

The Price Black Students Pay:

(Because Black Americans Fail To Support Black Universities)

Simpson College (Indianola, Iowa) April 12, 1974. Black students issued the following statement to the school Administration:

In the past four years this institution has portrayed itself as a haven of injustice, prejudice, discrimination and castration of Black culture. No longer can Black people tolerate this system of proven racist attitudes. The words "We are committed" can no longer suffice as the overall concern of this institution. For too long have we accepted the verbalization as acts of concern, rather than seeing what they truly represented. The points that we have outlined in the following statement are points that are not new issues but rather ones that have never been dealt with or the administration of this college has played with. We will no longer play anymore games and we do not hope that the administration of this college will have to test our commitment.

I. Due to the incompetence and the lack of true commitment displayed by the administration of this institution in the recruitment of Black faculty members and administrators, the Organization For Black Unity demands that the funds used in the recruitment be turned over to our budget. We will then coordinate the search for qualified Black personnel.

Rationale:

In the past the administration has utterly failed (eight years of failure) and we cannot wait another month.

At 9:00 am, Friday morning, about 40 Black students presented to the administration a list of demands outlining the following points:

1. A greater effort be given in the recruitment of Black faculty and administrators.

2. Office for Dean of Black Affairs be established by July 1, 1975.

3. That faculty make good their resolution to integrate literature, works, and readings by Black scholars in their course curriculum.

4. That transitions were needed in the Athletic Program, because of the innate racism.

Due to the reply from the President which did not speak to the demands, as well as the attitude projected by the administration, the OBU decided to take over the Brenton Student Center indefinitely.

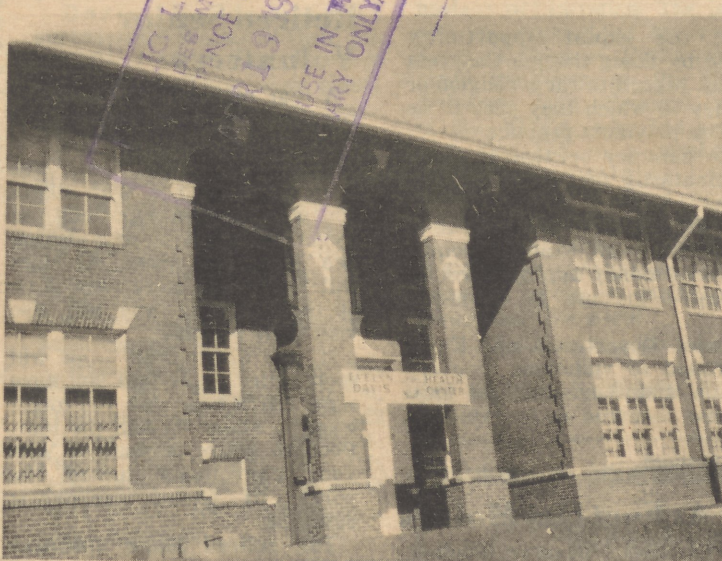

Through the course of all night deliberations, the OBU agreed to give up the building. The basic agreement from the President involved that; an Office of Minority Affairs shall be established, a greater effort made to recruit Black college staff, and that a Black Coach would be hired in the Athletic Department. Furthermore, that an administrative and student committee would be established to work out the specifics of each demand.

Evelyn Davis Health Center

(POSITIVE REACTION FROM POSITIVE ACTION)

by Julie Williams

The Evelyn Davis Health Center provides extensive professional medical services to the Des Moines Community. Located at 1154 5th Ave., Des Moines, the center has a clinical atmosphere, yet is warm and personal enough to assure its patients of dignified and efficient treatment.

The clinic was named after Mrs. Evelyn Davis, a Des Moines resident, who at one time worked as an outreach worker. Members of the community complained continually about the lack of professional medical facilities available to people of lower incomes. These many complaints inspired Mrs. Davis to instigate a committee consisting of neighborhood people, local hospital administrators and the president of the College of Osteopathic Medicine & Surgery to investigate the possibilities of a neighborhood clinic.

The committee wrote up a proposal to obtain federal funding. This proposal was successful, and funds were granted to the Health Center through HEW and Community Development.

The clinic provides an extensive staff for the utmost in professional services. There are two full-time staff doctors as well as eight interns (senior medical students from the College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery). There is a rotation of senior nursing students from both Methodist and Mercy Hospital Nursing Schools. Also on the staff is a full-time dentist and a dental assistant, along with five full-time nurses.

The Center receives patients from all over the city. In the first year of operation there were 12,000 visits made to the clinic, representing a patient load of about 4,500 persons. At the present time the center has patient load of about 5,000.

To complete the clinical services available at the Evelyn Davis Health Center, there's a complete diagnostic X-ray department with two full-time lab technicians and a well equipped lab.

A social services department with three outreach workers keeps in contact with the community, and follows up on patients, as well as taking care of their social needs.

The Center provides specialty clinics throughout the week, with doctors in private practice donating their services in such fields as pediatrics, surgery, OB/Gyn., psychiatry, urology and cardiology.

Serving on the Administrative positions at the Clinic are Dr. Kathleen Malaney, M.D., as the Medical Director; Dr. Steven Eckstat, D.O., Director of Medical Education; and Mrs. A. June Franklin, Clinic Manager.

Mrs. Franklin commented, "I think that working here has been the most rewarding experience I've ever had. First of all because we have patients that come here who have really never been treated as human beings, and when they leave you can see they feel as though someone cares."

She continues, I think we're trying to prove that good health care is a right, not a privilege, and as American citizens people are entitled to quality medical care."

Larry Clayburne Accidentally Slain

by marri b. johnson

Los Angeles — Larry W. Clayburne, a 27 year old Des Moines man, was shot and killed in what police described as a million-to-one shot in an accidental shooting. Clayburne was killed when a stolen rifle discharged while three juvenile boys were playing with the weapon in an adjacent house.

Clayburne was visiting at the home of a cousin, Judith Chipley, 407 E. 87th Place, Los Angeles, when the incident occurred. Police said the three boys were handling a 30-30 Winchester in the front house when the gun went off apparently accidentally.

Detectives say the bullet went through the wall of the front house and then through a window of the rear house hitting Clayburne in the back of the head. Clayburne apparently died instantly, officers said.

A 15 year old youth was booked on suspicion of murder because he was in possession of a stolen gun which caused the death, officers said. The other two boys were released to their parents.

Clayburne is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Clayburne, 524 Grandview, Des Moines. He was buried from the South Los Angeles Mortuary Chapel with Rev. Alvin Johnson officiating.

Department Of Justice

The U.S. City that has over 75% Black population.

The Department of Justice obtained a legal agreement today requiring an apartment management firm to rent to black persons in the metropolitan area of Washington, D.C.

Attorney General William B. Saxbe said a supplemental order signed by Scott Management Company, Inc., was filed in U.S. District Court in Baltimore, Maryland.

The Scott firm manages some 3,000 apartment units in the Washington area.

The order supplements a consent decree obtained by the Justice Department on March 24, 1971, which was intended to resolve a housing discrimination suit filed on September 24, 1969.

The order said additional affirmative action to insure equal opportunity in housing was required as a result of the Justice Department's analysis of periodic compliance reports submitted by the company.

The order requires Scott Management to offer to pay $250 damages to each of 26 black persons who were rejected for apartments at Oakcrest Towers in Suitland, Maryland.

In addition, the order establishes rental standards and fair-housing advertising requirements and requires the company to post a $25,000 performance bond.

Equal Employment Opportunity

Nine companies, which produce 73% of the nation's steel used in the United States have agreed to a decree issued by the United States District Court awarding $31 million in back wages as part of the industry's campaign to end racial discrimination.

This agreement, made with the Department of Labor and Equal Opportunity Commission, is the largest back pay settlement to date. The agreement provides for a one time lump sum settlement to black, Spanish-surnamed and women employees who, over the years, have been relegated to less desirable and low paying jobs with little opportunity of advancement.

The Justice Department and the Equal Opportunity Commission are setting an example by doing the job Congress meant, i.e., equal opportunity without regard to race, religion or sex. And this is not the only industry in which they seek to be brought under the equal opportunity employment practice.

Many cities have come under the hammer because of racial discrimination and have either voluntarily or by court order changed their employment practices.

These conditions prevail in most industries; they are true of states and cities as well. Des Moines is an example; equal opportunity in the city is terrible. Even money appropriated for Model Cities programs are suggested for use in downtown projects.

It takes a long time for the Justice Department and Equal Opportunity Commission to get around to violations in every community and it is for this reason that they authorize local commissions to act, and pay expense incurred in carrying out obligations.

We need some local action in this respect.

Army Reserve Building At Fort Des Moines

Ground breaking ceremonies for the Army Reserve building under construction at Ft. Des Moines were held Saturday, April 13.

At the invitation of F.H. Forrest, Commanding General of the 103 D Support Brigade, James W. Mitchell and I attended. He and I were candidates in the 17th Provisional Training Regiment where 800 Negro Officers were commissioned at Ft. Des Moines in 1917 and are the only two Des Moines residents surviving.

Representative Neal Smith was the speaker and he commended the reserves for preparing for such emergencies as may arise. Major General Clifton Smith, commanding Army Readiness Regiment 5, 5th Army which includes Iowa and is stationed at Ft. Sheridan, Illinois, also spoke. General Smith, who commanded a Cavalry Regiment during the early part of the Vietnam campaign told us that 25% of the members were Negroes. The regiment was decorated for bravery and unselfish service as well as individual men in the regiment.

Major General May of Iowa was a guest.

Gen. Forrest and Gen. Smith urged Negroes to join the Reserve which offers training, travel and retirement benefits all of which is valuable to young men. There are none in this brigade at present. Gen. Forrest suggests that anyone interested should call him at 285-6626.

After the services the guests were driven to Hiatt House for refreshments and an excellent luncheon.

Wage Increase Helps Black Economy

(NBL—April 9, 1974) ... In response to President Nixon's recent signing of legislation which raises the federal minimum wage to $2.00 effective May 1st and which carries additional provisions for increments to $2.10 in 1975 and $2.30 in 1976, Dr. Berkely G. Burrell, President of the National Business League said in an interview for national release to broadcasting networks:

"The seven million people who are being minimally upgraded by their inclusion under the law should now be able to make a larger contribution to the economic viability of the areas in which they reside.

"A healthy business can only thrive in a healthy, economically viable community. Black business, unlike white business, up until now has had to struggle in the heart of the ghettos of the nation surrounded by the people who have not had an opportunity to earn a living wage.

"Perhaps the floor is too low and the steps may be construed as being too slow, but this is a beginning. These advantages greatly outweigh any disadvantages the Black businessman may face."

The bill extends federal minimum wage coverage to approximately 7 million additional workers including federal, state and local government employees, domestic workers and retail employees who, prior to the signing were not subject to hourly wage requirement. While the legislation does not include an Administration backed provision for a lower minimum wage for younger workers, it broadens the existing law by allowing full-time students to be paid 85 per cent of the regular minimum wage rate.

Similar legislation was vetoed by the President twice in the past two years.

Pioneer Education Program Producing Its First Black Engineers This June

276 More To Graduate With Two Degrees by 1979

Nine black students, one a woman, will be the first to receive dual degrees this June from predominantly black colleges and the Georgia Institute of Technology in a pioneering program designed to bring blacks into the engineering profession.

The program, launched in 1969, is expected to graduate 276 more engineers by 1979. It enables students to study for three years at their Atlanta University Center undergraduate colleges (Clark, Morehouse, Morris Brown or Spelman), and two years at Georgia Tech. At graduation, they will be awarded B.A. or B.S. degrees from their colleges and degrees in engineering from Georgia Tech.

Originally funded with a $265,000 grant from the Olin Corporation Charitable Trust, the program has since drawn additional financial support from 29 other foundations and corporations including United States Steel Foundation, the Sloan Foundation, the IBM Foundation, Mobil Oil Corporation and Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation.

Jaycees To Provide Transportation To Careers Expo '74 For Students

The West Des Moines Jaycees have announced that they will be providing bus transportation from area high schools to CAREERS EXPO 74 at Veterans Auditorium on April 23 and 24. According to project chairman Pete Beilstein, the Jaycees will be spending over $1000 for promotion and transportation for the event. CAREERS EXPO 74 is a two day career fair open at no charge to area high school and college students, with an estimated 100 Iowa colleges, technical schools, associations, government agencies, labor organizations and local employers participating as exhibitors.

Beilstein stated that the unavailability of city school buses prompted the Jaycees to investigate establishing their own "mini transit system" for the two days. "We believe that this will be the largest career exhibition ever held in Iowa and we want to make every effort to insure that the schools, businesses and agencies that are participating will have an opportunity to meet with a maximum number of students." He also announced that the exhibit hours have been extended to 9:00 p.m. on Tuesday, April 23 so that parents will be able to visit the Expo with their children who are making decisions about their future education or employment. The exhibit hall will be open at 1:00 p.m. on Tuesday and from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Wednesday.

I SPENT EASTER SUNDAY IN ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA, with my son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sidner and their two children, Aaron, 6 and Alison, 5 and their dog, Tammie, a mixture of German Shepherd and Collie, a beauty.

Alison Brown Sidner

Aaron Brooks Sidner

Sunday morning found us attending church in a large home. I don't know if the group has a name. They have been together for quite some time and the spirit of goodwill reigns with them. As we entered I overheard my son-in-law ask if the men have gotten together. Someone replied "no." He said well let's all of us go upstairs. The men responded by promptly going upstairs. Then I was in for a surprise. My grandson placed himself on a low stool with his guitar across his knees. A young woman asked if he knew a number of songs. He replied that he did. She began to sing and was joined by others and the little fellow played the guitar. Usually it is his father who plays and Aaron plays with his father. I knew that he was being taught guitar by his father, but had no idea that he served in church services. I felt as any grandmother would feel upon seeing her young grandson helping at church. He played throughout the service. He was joined by his father when the men's meeting had ended. His sister, 5 year old, Alison, joined in the singing. She sings very, very well.

Monday morning came and there was discussion as to what time the father should be at school. Aaron said that he would phone the hour his father should come. Shortly after he had been at school, the phone rang and it was Aaron with his message. I immediately asked if I might go. It was all right. The son had invited his father to play the guitar for his class and he was playing with him. I believe the idea revolved around the idea of show and tell. If you could do something special, then this is what would be done for the class. Oh, my son-in-law makes guitars. The one he plays is most beautiful. The head is made of rose wood, the finger board of ebony; the sound board is made of spruce; the back and sides of mahogany.

The father explained that he and Aaron had to get warmed up for their performance. The two knelt in the corridor and softly went over their songs. They played for the class first an English number, Ash Grove; second a French number, Ronde; the third was an English song, Oh, No, John, No, John, No, John, No. The little listeners were very impressed with the songs. The father asked if anyone in class was from England, when explaining the origin of their music. One little girl had been born in England. This added to their interest greatly.

Mr. Sidner teaches guitar classes on Saturday in his home. They were planning a recital which has now developed into a concert. Everyone is pretty keyed up about the concert. I believe the older ones are not as game as the children. Everyone is looking forward to the affair.

Fraternity Reporter

On April 5, 6, and 7, 1974, members of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity journeyed to Purdue University which is located in Lafayette, Indiana to attend the Northcentral Province Meeting. The Northcentral Province has the second largest number of members of any province in the United States and encompasses the states of Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. Polemarch Wesley Chapman, Vice Polemarch Hubert McCatheon and Dean of Pledges Joseph Miller, who is also the alumni advisor to Omega Chapter at Drake University, represented the Des Moines Alumni Chapter. THE FEAST OF THE LORD'S PASSOVER, a seven day observance. My daughter's home was the perfect setting for my celebration of this week. We spent Sunday night in a large church, filled with predominantly young people. Many of the same group whom I met at the morning service were present in this second gathering.

I CONTACTED MRS. ROSE MARSH, wife of Dr. Donald Marsh. She did me a big favor. She learned from some of her card playing friends Mary Hyde's phone number. I had lost it. I always phone Mary and Rose. I learned from Mary that Robert was attending the Negro Medical Student's Convention in Atlanta, Georgia. Eric and his wife were coming the next morning to spend Easter with her. Rose told me how wonderfully Layuna Newman's paper was going and how busy she kept with it. I must give Layuna a call and maybe I can catch some enthusiasm from her.

Spring's Naturals

Close-ups of some fresh new looks for spring:

1. Photographed by GLAMOUR Magazine against a lovely crocheted throw and a handloomed rug, here's Beverly Johnson in a textured sweater set with lacy diagonal cut-outs, worn over a dusky green skirt with a deep front pleat. Accenting the openwork patterned top is a geometrical clip-on pin with a carved design.

2. A natural mixture of fabric and pattern — touchable textures in bag, belt and bangles. The nubby burlap clutch, brightened with colorful straw stripes, is matched up to a slim belt at the waist. Rope-wrapped bangles in rust and tan add extra earthy touches at the wrist.

3. Here's Beverly again in a flow of easy-moving stripes. She wears a crepe shirtdress with this spring's updatings — short sleeves and a deep frontpleated skirt. The look is simple and classic, accessorized with a canvas hat and several charms suspended on a thin silver chain around her neck.

Contemporary African Arts Festival April 20

On Saturday, April 20, Field Museum of Natural History will open a six-month-long "Contemporary African Arts Festival," the first comprehensive program of its kind ever presented in the United States.

It will feature a major exhibit of more than 200 art objects, a series of educational events including films, workshops, lectures, demonstrations and performances, and a shop offering contemporary African arts for sale.

One goal of the festival is to illustrate through a selective exhibit how the arts of the African people are being influenced by the social and technological changes that are taking place on the continent today.

The works of 13 artists, or groups of artists, each representing a different medium and a different culture, are examined in the exhibit. Some of the artists perpetuate traditional forms in their art, with little or no innovation. Others use recently-developed techniques and styles, as well as new materials.

Another aim of the program is to identify artists by name whenever possible. In the past, traditional African art has often been presented as anonymous. In the exhibit artists are referred to by the names by which they are known in their own cultures.

A Taste Of Ethiopia

Ethiopian cooking mirrors the divergent ways of the land and culture it reflects. No doubt the Ethiopian is prepared at birth for the contradictions in the land and its spill-over into cuisine — for in their eating habits are reflected the extremes of nature, and what might look strange to our culture is normal to the Ethiopian, who may begin his day with "wat", a stinging-hot stew, instead of cereal or bacon and eggs. One of the more adaptable Ethiopian recipes you can try is Doro Wat (Stewed Chicken), seasoned with Berbere, a pepper sauce used in many Ethiopian dishes which can be used to add a spicy touch to the most bland American meat dishes. Generally, injira, a pale, pancake-like bread made of teff flour (which is indigenous to Ethiopia) is eaten with Ethiopian meals. However, Syrian flat bread, sold in large supermarkets, may be heated and served with a bit of butter, and used as a substitute.

The House Of Gemini

The "House" also obtained contracts from J.C. Penney, W. T. Grants, Army Airforce Exchange Regions, domestic and overseas, and many stationery and greeting card stores throughout the United States, Africa and the Caribbean.

The principals of the company, President, Jill Gomez Knight and Executive Vice President and Business Manager, Harper W. Knight also the main designers of the first HOUSE OF GEMINI collection have added the talents of Brumsic Brandon, Jr., noted third world cartoonist and creator of "Luther", a nationally syndicated comic strip.

Yemisi, a whimsical African character is joined at the "House" by Blossom, Honeysuckle, Petunia & Company, Yumi, a little oriental character and Little Miss Ann designed for the general market.

The Knights have also created the Melting Pot line a very popular integrated theme. Also, for the first time, the Black consumer will have a wide selection of party invitations, appealing to all age groups, including a baby shower invitation and birth announcements.

THE NAME OF THE GMAE-BY WHATEVER MEANS NECESSARY

by Habiba

Few parents have fond memories of years spent in elementary school. Most are glad they're beyond all that classroom regimentation, and pleasant memories of childhood seldom include those endless school days. No one reminisces about hard chairs, stuffy classrooms, long hours and racist teachers. No one wants to return to those repressive days, but everyone seems to want their children to attend school faithfully.

Why, when the system of education has changed to no noticeable degree, do once miserable students, now parents, want to inflict the same kind of misery on their children? Almost all of us encountered hateful, racist teachers as we traveled the path of American education. Few of us were afforded the luxury of Black teachers. It is the same situation today; classrooms full of Black children are headed by white teachers who have no understanding of the Black experience, desire no understanding, and consider Brock Peters, Diahann Carroll, James Earl Jones and Richard Roundtree are joined by Joyce Selznick, co-producer of the new 20th Century-Fox release, "Claudine," at a recent Hollywood screening of the romantic comedy. Ms. Carroll stars as the mother of six who falls in love with Jones, a garbage collector.

Plan Nationwide Tribute For Duke Ellington

On April 29, Duke Ellington, one of the most celebrated musicians in the history of the world, will be 75 years old.

To coincide with this historical date, a group of Black men have begun efforts to have the week of April 22 to April 27 declared "Duke Ellington Week" across the country.

According to E. Rodney Jones, spokesman for the group and Program Director of WVON-AM in Chicago, the idea "originated at the last National Association of Television and Radio Artists (NATRA) Award Dinner in New York."

"The point was brought up by Dick Gregory," he said, "that each NATRA member was responsible for what his kids hear on the radio. And the idea came to me that many of our kids don't know about the great contributions that Duke Ellington has made to the world of music."

"So, I see this week that we plan on setting up as a chance to educate as well as entertain."

Mr. Jones indicated that some that which is unique to Black people a threatening, ugly culture to be wiped out by any and all means.

In the important area of curriculum, Black students are taught next to nothing of their history in America, and certainly nothing of their African origin. Pressures placed upon individual school districts have resulted in the addition of Black history courses in the classroom, but this is not to say that teachers have responded with enthusiasm to the idea. By and large, George Washington Carver is still number 1, while Nat Turner is not mentioned, even as a negative. As for Africa, Lumumba means nothing, and the "dark continent" is still depicted as home on the range for Tarzan and Jane.

If Black parents were not identifying with "Black is Beautiful", it would be easy to understand why white teachers of young Black children are still allowed to blaspheme and malign Black people in the classroom arena. But Ebony says Black consciousness is growing, and pride is the result. Where is the pride in sending children to school only to be exposed to anti-Black rhetoric of the ways in which the group was going about trying to bring off the tribute nationally were by enlisting the help of Black-oriented radio stations across the country.

"We are putting together a program, which will be sent to the stations, and will consist of 4 to 5 minute long vignettes of interviews by people like Sarah Vaughn, Ella Fitzgerald and Quincy Jones, interspersed with music by the Duke."

"These interviews will be dubbed at Stax Records in Memphis and sent out to all Black stations nationwide. It will be the first time where Black stations worked together in a combined effort since the death of Martin Luther King," he said.

The other members of the committee who will be working to see that "Duke Ellington Week" is a success are: Edward Windsor Wright, President of Edward Windsor Wright Corporation of Los Angeles, and Cecil Hale, President of NATRA. Both Wright and Jones are past Presidents of NATRA.

and behavior? What is beautiful about knowing nothing of your child's teacher other than the fact that he or she is white and licensed by his or her peers to teach? How does a responsible Black parent respond to a teacher who uses a can of disinfectant on classroom chairs because Black children sat in them?

Responsibilities as parents do not end with enforcing mandatory attendance to racist institutions. Your duty as a parent is to become aware of the attitudes of teachers who control your children six hours a day. It is your responsibility to remove a racist teacher and to see that he or she is not replaced by an equally offensive personality. If it is true that Black teachers are in short supply, then your responsibility is to see that a white teacher be as free from repressive tendencies as possible. It is your duty to actively recruit Black teachers, and it is your responsibility to ride the school system, principal and teacher when you feel that your child's human rights are being violated. In essence, it is up to you to provide your child with the best and most humane education possible. Whatever means necessary is sure as hell the name of the education game.

The Business Of African Art

African art objects first began to appear inside the United States toward the beginning of this century. What began as a humanistic study of curious "ethnographical material" in the hands of anthropologists has in recent years grown into a large business expertly transacted in the hands of wealthy white collectors, native African traders, Madison Avenue art dealers and an increasing number of private black collectors.

The business mechanism behind this growing African art trade — amounting to well over $1 million in direct importation from Africa each year — is explored in an article "Dealing in African Art" by Anthony Griggs in the March issue of the Race Relations Reporter magazine. Griggs gathered his information from interviews with both blacks and whites across the country, all of whom indicate that although the number of black collectors has increased since the sixties, the business itself is largely controlled by whites.

In the article, African art specialists elaborate on several explanations for the heightened interest in and increased marketability of African art in the past ten years.

"It is widely believed," Griggs writes, "that black Americans first became interested collectors of African art during the '60s as a result of the civil rights and black militant movements in the United States." But, on the other hand, Griggs refers to David Driskoll, director of the Fisk University Museum of African Art in Nashville, Tenn., who maintains that "the real foundation was laid... through the quiet and arduous work done by black collectors in the '20s, '30s and '40s."

The article lists a number of black Americans who collected African art in the early decades of this century before it became widely fashionable to do so. It also points out that there are now close to 300 black collectors of African art in Washington, D.C. alone. Reference is made to the location of some of the most important collections on public view at both white and black university exhibits and public museums. Griggs found that the first museum devoted entirely to African art — the Museum of African Art in Washington, D.C. — was founded in 1964 by Warren Robbins, a former foreign service diplomat.

Regardless of the differing views on how much the African art trade was influenced by the ideologies arising out of the '60s movements, Griggs found that those closely connected with the art traffic all in some way recognize the art objects themselves as an ideological and propagandistic force in the lives of black Americans in this country.

Kwanza To Be Celebrated

By Marri Johnson

The Survival Education Association, Inc. announces it is time to again celebrate Kwanza. Kwanza is a Swahili word meaning "first". It is an African celebration reflecting the joys, blessings of the year. Rejoicing for the fruits of our harvest, the blessings of God.

Kwanza is an African celebration that is traditional all over the African world. The word, Kwanza, means "first fruits." Kwanza originated when our ancestors gathered together to celebrate the harvesting of the first crops. This harvest time was a time for enjoyment. It was a time when the work had been put out all year was given meaning. Everyone could actually see the fruit their labor had brought forth. After the harvest was over, the entire community engaged in singing, dancing, eating and drinking. Everyone gathered together to give collective thanks for the collective effort that had made the community prosperous. On the last day of Kwanza there was always a gigantic Karamuc (feast). Everyone in the community would bring what they had grown as their contribution. This collective work and responsibility is traditional among African people.

Our recovery of Kwanza is positive and correct. When we recovered Kwanza we rediscovered part of our African selves. Kwanza existed centuries before Christ was born: by readopting Kwanza we take back a holiday that is rightfully ours. We begin to create the traditions that will be passed on to yet unborn generations of African people. By coming together to give thanks and enjoy the blessing of living and working together to give thanks and enjoy the blessing of living and working collectively we give concrete expression to our Imani (faith) in our people and the righteousness and victory of our struggle.

Early Applications Most Effective

By Diane Banks

As this school year draws to a close, more and more high school seniors who are planning to continue their education are finding themselves faced with that never ending problem of being accepted into a college. However, the importance of applying early cannot be stressed enough.

Sending applications at the beginning of the senior year of high school is not 'good enough' in this day and age. Parents confidential statements, applications, and various test scores, should be filled out and mailed in at the earliest possible date in a student's junior year. This allows enough time for the student to choose between the colleges they have been accepted to, and to make arrangements in the areas of personal finances, transportation, and curriculum.

The following is a brief list of financial aids available, which could be of value to minority graduating students:

— Iowa State University at Ames announces three College of Education Scholarship awards of $200 each. The major factors which will be considered in the selection are: good character, aptitude for success in teaching and service, ability, and financial need. Deadline for application is May 1, 1974. Applications may be obtained by writing to the Scholarship and Awards Committee, College of Education, Fisher House, Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa 50010.

— The Navy-Marine Scholarship Program for 1975 is now accepting applications. This program offers financial aid for four years in college involving tuition, books, etc., and $100 per month subsistence allowance. Deadline is Oct. 19, 1974.

FIRING LINE FROM AFRICA

In a pair of special Firing line programs from Africa, William F. Buckley, Jr., will interview two of the world's most controversial heads of state.

The programs, taped in Rhodesia and the Union of South Africa, will be transmitted by the Public Broadcasting Service Apr. 27 and May 4 at 8 p.m. and will be seen locally on channel 11-12.

On Apr. 27 Buckley will interview John Vorster, the outspoken Prime Minister of the Republic of South Africa. Vorster, who has been Prime Minister since 1966, is an ardent supporter of South Africa's apartheid policies.

Under apartheid, South Africa's 16 million black citizens have no vote, no right to own property and very little freedom of movement outside the black regions of the country.

However, some observers believe that, under Vorster's leadership, South Africa is slowly moving toward full citizenship for all its people.

On May 4, Buckley will exchange opinions with Ian Smith, the Prime Minister of Rhodesia whose white supremacy policies have been described as "unabashed racism."

Smith became Prime Minister in 1964 and, in 1965, declared Rhodesia independent. Britain

— Rhodesia's former mother country — and the United Nations both imposed trade embargoes on the country in an effort to force the small white minority to give some political power to the country's black majority. Both embargoes failed and political power in South Africa continues to rest with Smith and the other white citizens who make up about three per cent of the population.

On the FIRING LINE programs, Buckley will quiz the two Prime Ministers about their racial policies, relations with black neighboring countries, future plans, world trade and a range of other issues.

The two 60-minute programs are the first in a series of FIRING LINE editions from Africa, according to Warren Steibel, producer of the series.

"Later this year, we'll return to Africa to tape programs with some of the important black leaders," Steibel said.

The programs from Africa continue a FIRING LINE policy of interviewing heads of states and other important figures in all parts of the world. In the past, FIRING LINE has gone to Ireland, Vietnam, England, Israel and a number of other countries to tape programs.

FIRING LINE is a production of the Southern Educational Communications Association.

Minimum Wage Coverage for Domestic: At Last!!!

(Silver Spring, Maryland) Today in Maryland, Edith Barksdale-Sloan, Executive Director of the National Committee on Household Employment, issued the following statement in response to the extension of federal minimum wage coverage to household workers:

"The National Committee on Household Employment rejoices in the enactment of a federal minimum wage law which extends coverage to its constituents, private household workers, along with nearly 6 million other previously uncovered American workers with the increase in the hourly minimum wage to $2.30 by January 1, 1977.

"Minimum wage coverage for household workers gives to these one and a half million employees a legal mandate, a recognition of the value of their services and basic equality with other workers. It means that the average household worker - a 51 year old Black woman with a 9th grade education in a Southern state can earn a wage which will enable her to better feed, clothe and house her family or supplement her husband's earnings. For the domestic worker, whether she is Black, White, Red or Brown, or lives in the North, East, South or West, it means a new respect - for her service and her person - and the ability to support herself and family.

The National Committee on Household Employment, founded in 1964, is a private, non-profit service agency dedicated to improving the field of private household employment.

NAACP Membership Drive Aided By Watts, Freeman

New York — Two of the nation's top-flight performers appeared in a benefit performance for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in connection with its 65th anniversary. Paul Freeman of Detroit appeared as conductor of the Symphony of the New World and Andre Watts performed as piano soloist. More than 2,000 persons filled Philharmonic Hall, March 31, for the performance, following which Executive Director Roy Wilkins presented a life membership in the Association to Andre Watts. The affair was sponsored by the Mid-Manhattan Branch of the NAACP.

Mr. Freeman is conductor in residence of the Detroit Symphony. Seven years ago, he was a winner of the Dimitri Mitropoulos International Conductors Competition. Since then, he has rapidly acquired a high reputation. Two years ago, he conducted the Minneapolis Symphony in a special performance during the NAACP annual convention held in that city.

Andre Watts, at 27 years of age, has been a major star in the musical firmament for several years. He first came to national attention when he appeared, on short notice, as guest soloist with the New York Philharmonic under the direction of Leonard Bernstein. Since then, Mr. Watts has maintained a heavy concert schedule and has appeared as soloist with many of the world's leading orchestras. He has become so well known for his performing ability that a New York Times review of his performance for the NAACP needed to say only, "Mr. Watts played with his usual brilliance."

Mr. Watts donated his services in consideration of the NAACP birthday observances and its 1974 membership campaign which seeks "100,000 more in '74."

It doesn't necessarily take a big awesome lighting fixture to provide security lighting. Consider the security value of an "under-the-eaves" lighting fixture . . . two directional floodlights that put light wherever you want.

They're perfect for lighting up dark areas around your home. Many models come on at dusk, and go off at dawn . . . automatically.

By the time you read this, the Drake Relays will be on in full swing. If I am lucky enough to get out there, it will be just about my fiftieth view of them, and forty-fifth as a writer (?). Every time I think of the races, I can't help but think of the wealth of talent that we have seen through the years. If I had been collecting autographs, I would have a collection that would include some of the greatest athletes of our time. As I sit there now, and watch how the black schools dominate the college section, I have to laugh at the time the first black school came up here. It was bitter cold that day, and the boys ran last, and I had to listen to white people trying to make me feel better by explaining how the cold was too much for the fellows. They may have been right, but I didn't want to hear it.

But things have really changed, or shall we say turned around. Schools like Prairie View, Texas Southern, Southern of Baton Rouge, Alcorn and the likes go out there and the relay races in their section come down to a race between them. Anybody else in the race had better get out of the way or get run over. I recall seeing seven black schools in one race, and when a white team showed up with two black runners, the guy next to me in the press box wanted to know where those two ringers came from. Said they had better be good. I don't think it is necessary to give you a rundown on who will be here because we will just have to wait and see what happens. Time was when we could tell you just what black schools would be here and where they would stay, but there is no way one could get around to all of them now. Brother Bill used to hustle for good shots of the black athletes, and I would try to get an exclusive story. But now, we get just about the same story from all of the papers. Bill wouldn't have any corner on the black pictures, because there are so many of them that any story about the winners includes black runners, jumpers and such. But, do you know, in spite of the fact that I have seen more relays than a lot of people, I still get a kick out of watching the runners line up for the hundred year dash and the hurdle races. Oh, I enjoy the others, too, but these two are my races. Why, I don't know. See you out there.

Jess Owens, was voted the outstanding athlete of the past fifty years, but for the Drake Relays, I would vote for Mack Robinson, older brother of Jackie Robinson. Jess was expected to dominate the events he won here, but Mack was more or less unnoticed when he came here. But he won the long jump with a leap second only to Jess Owens, and came so close in the hundred that he never ceased thinking he was gypped. Maybe he was. The next man I would class with those two would be Willis Ward of Michigan. Ward won the hurdles and the long jump, finished in the money in the high jump, and led Ralph Metcalf for ninety five yards in the hundred. He was the first two hundred pounder I saw who could really run. Too bad Michigan chose to attend the Penn Relays after his appearance here. In fact, it was several years before the Wolverines returned to Drake. I heard that it was because of an incident that I shall tell about later, but I think I have told it several times.

Now to get back to the business at hand. I expect to see the spring game if there is one open to the public at Iowa University. I am anxious to see what the new coach has come up with. All of the Iowa alumni that I talk to are cautious. They put it like this. "I am glad he is an Iowa man who played for Iowa. "and that is about it. Looks as if they are adopting a wait and see attitude, and really that is about all they can do. Nobody will venture a guess as to what kind of season the Hawks will have. And they also wonder about Drake. The Bulldogs finished on a bad note last year, but they look for better things. It may be that Jonas Sears can pull them around. Lets hope he can stay in one piece all season. Iowa State lost some games they should have won last year, and maybe this is their big year. As I see it from here, the Iowa State coach has a free hand with his players, and I wonder if Commings will do that at Iowa U. There seem to be a couple of fellows who would like to run the Iowa ball club, but don't want the coaching job. They seem to like to criticize, and it isn't always constructive either. Oh, well, we shall see what comes up next fall.

Five To Challenge Wohlhuter In Drake Relays 880

DES MOINES — Now that world record holder Rick Wohlhuter is entered for the Drake Relays special 880-yard run, they're coming from all over the United States — and the world — to get a shot at him. They're coming from New Mexico, Texas, Oregon, Illinois and Virginia too, for the 4:15 p.m. race on the Friday schedule of the 65th annual classic April 26-27.

"We had an outstanding duel last year between Mike Boit and Wohlhuter," says Relays Director Bob Ehrhart, "but this should be even better. This has shaped up to be possibly our best race."

Randy Bethea

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 10 — Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation's announcement today that VICEROY cigarettes will sponsor Black American Racers Inc., marks the first time a Black auto racing team is being supported nationally by a major corporation. Randy Bethea will drive the team's new "Super Vee" Viceroy Special in 12 races this year sanctioned by the International Motor Sports Association and Sports Car Club of America. His first outing will be the Road Atlanta race on April 21.

The man that beat Wohlhuter in the Drake Relays 880 last year is back. His name is Mike Boit, the Kenyan running for Eastern New Mexico who won the Most Outstanding Athlete award at last year's Relays.

Boit won the special 880 in 1:47.1 to Wohlhuter's 1:47.3 then anchored Eastern New Mexico to victory in the distance medley relay and a second in the sprint medley.

But that's not all.

Oregon State's Hailu Ebba, an Ethiopian, will bring the spring's fastest half-mile to the field. He ran a 1:48.1 in mid-March in a dual meet at Sacramento State College.

Then there's Skip Kent, the former Wisconsin runner who won the NCAA 880 championship last year at Baton Rouge, La., in 1:47.2. He ran faster — 1:46.3 — later in the year and it earned him the No. 3 ranking in the U.S. (behind Wohlhuter and Bowling Green's Dave Wottle) and tenth in the world at 880 yards/800 meters.

Kent is back to serious track training after finishing his officer's training with the Marine Corp in Triangle, Va.

There's more. Another familiar name at the Drake Relays, Tommy Fulton of Texas Southern, will be in the field.

Fulton has finished his eligibility for Texas Southern and is running for the Flying Tiger Track Club. A versatile runner, Fulton has been mostly running the mile this spring, but has proved he can run the 880 with anyone, turning in a 1:48.1 clocking last season.

Rounding out the entries to date is Lowell Paul of the University of Chicago Track Club, who ran 1:48 from the blocks last year.

Boit appears fully recovered from a late February leg injury he suffered while running abroad for Kenya.

The target is Wohlhuter's world record of 1:44.6 he set last summer in Los Angeles.
