SLA Claims It Downed Helicopter

(LOS ANGELES)-The F-B-I is studying the contents of a letter bearing the seven-headed cobra insignia of the Symbionese Liberation Army. In the letter, delivered last Friday to Los Angeles television station K-N-X-T. The terrorist group claimed it used an antiaircraft missile to send a police helicopter crashing in a ball of flames.

The letter was slipped late last night under a door of the T-V

Station. It said the jet-powered helicopter was shot down "in retribution for the May 17 elimination of six of our beloved comrades by members of the Los Angeles Police Department."

A police spokesman said the helicopter crash is under investigation by a police board which will hear testimony from civilian and police witnesses to the crash. A report should be available next week.

The letter, signed "B Team Leader," warned the S-L-A has several more military-type antiaircraft missiles" and we will use them to shoot down fascist pig aircraft."

A senior officer who headed the special weapons and tactics section of the Los Angeles Police Department, was killed in the helicopter crash. Three other officers aboard the aircraft, suffered serious injuries.

The SLA claimed it was sending the letter "to claim credit for the shootdown of the police bell 206 Jetranger Helicopter ... our intelligence had informed us that members of swat would be involved in training exercises in the Kagel Canyon area on the above date."

The Urban Campus-will it live or die?

Vet's Benefits Increased

WASHINGTON AP — President Nixon signed legislation Friday to increase by 15 to 18 per cent the compensation paid to veterans disabled in service and dependents of those killed in service.

He also signed stop-gap legislation to prevent 250,000 veterans going to summer school from losing their education benefits while the Senate and House dicker over an education bill.

Education benefits to veterans who served in the military between 1955 and 1966 were due to expire June 30. The bill extends this for 30 days.

Earlier in the day Nixon announced the inauguration of a Veterans Administration "man on the campus" program intended to correct snafus in delivery of education benefit checks to veterans.

He said more than 1,300 Vietnam-era veterans are being hired and assigned to colleges across the country "to help iron out problems and correct clerical errors or oversights right on the campus."

Nixon said he soon will send to Congress supplemental requests to finance the two bills he signed. The compensation increases will cost $566.8 million a year and the education bill $75 million.

Bethune Memorial To Be Unveiled

Mary McLeod Bethune, founder of Bethune Cookman College and the National Council of Negro Women, will be memorialized on July 10 in Washington, D.C., as over 100,000 people view the unveiling of a monument in her honor. The National Council of Negro Women, headed by Miss Dorothy Height, President, and the Washington, D.C. Parks Service are sponsoring the dedication in the city's Lincoln Park. Three days of banquets, luncheons, receptions, benefit concerts, and symposia will follow the dedication ceremonies.

Over seventy organizations are participating in the Bethune dedication by serving as co-sponsors of the event. Such diverse organizations as Boy and Girl Scouts of America, American Jewish Committee, Salvation Army, National Urban League, Hadassah, and Americans for Democratic Action, have pledged to designate a representative to assist with the coordination of the Bethune Memorial, and to solicit participants among their many members.

NAVY VETERANS ELIGIBLE FOR BACK PAY

As a result of court action involving the last Federal Employee pay increase, all U.S. Navy veterans that served on active duty from 1 October, 1972 to 1 December, 1972 are eligible for a three month back pay increase initiated for that time.

All former Navy personnel that were on active duty during this time are encouraged to personally contact their local Navy Recruiting Office for forms and further information on claiming this back pay.

Black Des Moines may soon be losing one of the more valid institutions located in the community. If the City of Des Moines has their way, the Urban Campus, a branch of the Des Moines Area Community College, will be moved out of the Black community to a downtown location.

Apparently, several possibilities exist for maintaining the present location at 920 Washington, but none of these are expected to pan out. The College could buy the buildings, but that would require special funding, and $1,500,000 is a lot of money to sink into anything in the Black community.

One explanation as to the City's desire to re-locate the campus is the poor condition of the buildings. Students, however, aren't particularly upset by old classrooms; they find the location to be convenient and conducive to their desire to further their education. A group of Urban Campus students have formed an organization called Concerned Students for the Urban Campus. They stated that the original concept of the Urban Campus was designed to provide higher educational opportunities for those persons who would otherwise decline to seek further education because of fears of intimidation in attempting to attend another, out-of-the-community campus. The students feel that the Urban Campus is located exactly where it should be to attract and educate people who need this kind of facility the most.

Des Moines Area Community College Administrators seem to desire that the campus retain its present location. More than 1,000 community residents now attend weekly classes at the Campus, and enrollment is expected to grow to 2,500 in the next six years.

Once again the question of Black self-assertion arises. It is another situation where the Des Moines Black community, whether Urban Campus students or not, have the opportunity to demand that that which is beneficial to the community be retained. Should efforts to re-locate the campus succeed, it should be in spite of the fact that Black people demanded otherwise, and not because they remained silent in the face of power structure domination. Black Des Moines is ultimately answerable to itself-will you lose that which is good for you through sheer apathy?

Busing and Deportment in Defacto Segregation

At East High and Calanan Jr. High School, confrontation and fighting have occurred between Negro and white students.

Several such incidents have occurred at East High over the past few years and school officials seem powerless to prevent them or fail to face the issue. Neither have they been able to get rid of the small number of troublemakers who upset the whole school population.

For several months, the school board has come to grips with defacto segregation. In an effort to find a solution to it, a representative committee of whites and minorities has been appointed to come up with a plan designed to solve the busing and equal education problem. However, in my opinion busing and amicable race relations between students go hand in hand.

Unfortunately, race relations have been allowed to take care of itself without a definite program hoping that it will come out alright.

Invariably, one excuse is made that outsiders generally cause the trouble. Maybe some of this is true. On the other hand, the presence of a small band of such people should be used as an excuse where orderly conduct involves all members of the school.

In years gone by Negro athletes at East High School have played a large part in the successful athletic programs of the school. This is no longer true. Too many coaches do not face the problem squarely at the beginning of training and warn that those who engage in such would not be allowed to remain on the teams.

Unfortunately, we still have people in high places who continue to preach hatred between the races and are allowed to do so on the theory of free speech. This type of individual helps to arouse some students and their parents to practice racial antagonism and vent that feeling in the schools or wherever they gather with other people.

In view of the fact that we do have a goodly number of various races in the public schools, the principal should be required to assemble teachers and students in seminars from time to time to help create understanding and to emphasize that they should learn to get along with each other as part of their learning in school and which should be carried on in other endeavors after graduation.

Spending Big

Sometime ago the State of Iowa received a grant to recruit and train minorities in law enforcement and allied fields which heretofore they have had none. A bunch of recruiters went through the South to recruit minorities for that purpose and even the executive counsel wanted to renig on the large charges for expensive $14.00 dinners. If this keeps up there won't be any money left to train those who are recruited.

Racist Realtor Charged

The Department of Justice obtained a consent decree today requiring a Philadelphia real estate broker to make all of its listings available to black home buyers.

Attorney General William B. Saxbe said the decree was filed in U.S. District Court in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, resolving a housing discrimination suit against Chess Realty Company, Inc., and its president, Anthony L. Lerario.

The suit, which the Justice Department filed on October 2, 1973, charged the independent broker with discriminating against blacks by making homes unavailable to them and by printing advertisements indicating a racial preference.

The consent decree permanently enjoins the broker from engaging in any conduct that violates the Fair Housing Act of 1968.

The decree requires the broker to advertise its nondiscriminatory policy in a black community newspaper, to include equal housing opportunity statements in all advertising, and to post fair housing signs in sales and rental offices.

In addition, the company is required to offer to pay $500 to a black couple who complained that they were discriminated against by the broker.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

A group of enterprising students at Iowa State University have learned that Jack Trice, a one time Black member of the football team, frequently did not get to participate in games because it was feared trouble might follow. Finally he was to be in a game played in Minnesota. Before the game he wrote that he would do his best in every way for the sake of his school, family and race. He was injured in the game and died two days later. His memory was honored by a solemn funeral on the campus.

The group of young researchers have as their project seeing to it that the new stadium at ISU be named the Jack Trice Stadium.

I first heard about this on "Phone Forum". Please write and suggest that the name be The Jack Trice Stadium and mail your request to me. I will see to it that the information is forwarded to the proper group.

I hope we can show enough interest to make the new stadium The Jack Trice Stadium.

Dear Sir:

There's a beautiful lady I call Cakes. She smiles with proudness, she's sensitive and warm. She's Black and together. I have high regard for her individualism, her patience, and her soul.

Brothers & Sisters, let love be your guide, living side-by-side. Let love guide you into togetherness and the fulfillment of your Blackness. Brothers, let's stick together, even when times are bad. Let's protect our lovely Black women, Queen of the Nile. Treat her with kindness and love and she'll give you her joy. Be aware of her sensitive feelings, and in return she'll give you her love and respect.

My beautiful Black lady has opened my eyes to a beautiful sight, her beauty within, her soul, her tenderness. She relates to me. Time has come for togetherness, time has come to halt the rip-off of one another. Togetherness should be our life's theme.

The lady I relate about is my beautiful wife; I would be very pleased if you would print this, at this point this is all I have to give her: my love for her and my people.

Respectfully,
Theodore C. Brewton, Jr.

African Liberation Conference

(Washington- CNS)- Waving the red, black and green striped flags of the new Black protest movement, some 5,000 demonstrators marched through the heart of the Capitol past the White House and embassy row to climax a three day African Liberation Support Committee conference here.

The chanting marchers carried signs and called signs and called out such slogans as "One, Two, Three, Four, We Don't Want War No More;" "Down With U.S. Imperialism," and "Dump The Chump, Nixon," in the third annual protest march. The demonstration was considered more significant than ever in linking participants to the Sixth Pan African Congress scheduled to open in Tanzania, East Africa, June 19th.

Numerous green sweated young units of the Congress of African Peoples from Philadelphia and Newark joined older black clad representatives of the Republic of New Africa from Mississippi and booted guards of the Black Man's Liberation Army of Washington and Virginia in the line of march from Malcolm X Park in the inner city to Lafayette Square in front of the White House.

The peaceful, well organized rally followed two days of workshops and discussions on the Howard University campus on the theme, "Which Road Against Racism and Imperialism for the Black Liberation Movement?"

Speakers included Stokely Carmichael, Imanu Baraka and Owusu Sadaukai, all of whom urged unity and support by Black Americans for the new Liberation struggle in South Africa, Rhodesia, Mozambique and Guinea-Bissau.

The panelists urged conference delegates to adopt a position on the latest peace proposals made by the new government of Portugal to the guerilla warriors in Africa, but participants preferred a "wait and see attitude," an ALSC spokesman stated, last Monday.

However, conference organizers said the chief purpose of the sessions this year was to (1) Urge the Removal of President Nixon immediately; (2) Protest continued Police Repression and Oppression in the U.S. and; (3) Expose the Exploitation of Africa by Oil Magnates and Monopoly Capitalists.

To the cheers of some 1,000 delegates, Carmichael and Baraka openly called for a socialist revolution to insure the liberation of Africans everywhere.

Ms. Phyllis Jones, ALSC spokesperson, said representatives from chapters in some 40 cities attended the conference in addition to thousands of other participants in the protest march.

The members of Phi Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority continued celebrating their 50th Anniversary Year by entertaining and socializing with approximately 800 guests at their 50th Anniversary Red and White Formal Ball held on May 24, 1974, at the Val Air Ballroom. The ballroom was artistically decorated in the sorority colors of red and white, with black female silhouettes in white standards resting on red tablecloths covering each table. The sorority crest adorned the bandstand, along with a beautiful floral bouquet, compliments of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, and a colorful sign proclaiming the Chapter's 50th Anniversary.

Approximately 250 active members and spouses of other Des Moines Greek organizations Alpha Kappa Alpha, Sigma Gamma Rho, Alpha Phi Alpha, Omega Psi Phi, and Kappa Alpha Psi, were invited guests of the chapter.

THE HARRISES TRIP Part II

ON SATURDAY WE WERE UP EARLY to get a bus for Naples, where we alighted and boarded a hydrofoil, a boat in which you are airborne for a part of the ride, then descend to water where it slows down. This carried us to the Isle of Capri.

HERE WE HAD LUNCH AND BOARDED A BOAT FOR SORRENTO. And then on to Pompeii. We did not enter there but simply drove by and saw the city now rebuilt after the volcano had covered it.

WE RETURNED TO ROME. The next day was Sunday, election day for a referendum on the newly passed divorce law. The newspapers didn't tell you that people drove around town, honking, flying banners, celebrating winning their divorce law.

MONDAY MORNING, WE LEFT FOR GENEVA, SWITZERLAND. We stayed in Marges, Switzerland. Here Jim was visiting the WCOTP, World Confederation of Organization of the Teaching Profession. He was briefed there on the different organizations of the different countries in preparation for leading the Conference which is to be held in Singapore in August. Dinner ended that day. Our hotel was situated on Lake Geneva.

ON TUESDAY, MAY 14, JIM WAS IN MEETINGS WITH THE WCOTP ALL DAY SO THAT LEFT Mrs. Harris and I free to shop again. In the afternoon we were taken for a ride to the top of the Jura Mts. And you could see Swiss chalets, and of course noted for their dairyland, their cows. That evening the WCOTP had a dinner in honor of the three of us. We had five courses, began at 7:30 and ended at 10:30 p.m. Then we were invited to a Swiss home. Their homes are built to last 300 years. They wouldn't consider our buildings. Few people have homes as they are too expensive, so we felt most fortunate at the opportunity to visit one.

WE LEFT THE NEXT DAY, Wednesday, May 15, for Frankfurt, Germany. We were met at the airport by the OEA, Overseas Education Association vice president and were taken to Wiesbaden where the OEA Convention was being held. While Jim was in meetings continually and touring schools, we were assigned a hostess and she kept us on the go. Thirty minutes after we were escorted into the hotel, she had us in her car and we went to a home where German and American ladies meet for a cooking group. They don't do the cooking right there but would meet in a home and serve a dish representative of that country and learn how to prepare it. That took up the afternoon and she dropped us back downtown and we shopped a very few minutes and headed back to our hotel. The next day we started out with our hostess and went to an army base where we met with a prayer group which meets regularly on a weekly basis.

NOW FOR EXORCISM: a chaplain in the group described attending sessions where healing was done and driving our demons.

WE RETURNED TO WIESBADEN. The combined cooking group met at a luncheon and elected officers. That evening we attended a high school spring musical, band and choruses. We were surprised to see many Blacks but should not have been because this was an army base and many Blacks were stationed there.

FRIDAY, MAY 17, WE WENT TO A CATHOLIC MONTESSORI KINDERGARTEN. Then we went to a German Kindergarten. At both places we were impressed at the amount of equipment available to the children to use. They value education and respect teachers highly.

WE AGAIN GOT IN OUR HOSTESS' car and took a short trip down the Rhine. Along the Rhine one sees many castles. They've been renovated and are used for museums. Each has a legend behind it. We ate dinner at one of the restaurants along the Rhine.

WE RETURNED TO OUR HOTEL. Jim and I went to a cocktail hour at this OEA convention. We went to the hostess' home to dinner. She served American food and had made peppermint ice cream served with pretzels.

ON SATURDAY JIM GAVE THE ADDRESS TO THE O.E. ASSOCIATION and ended the evening going to dinner at a Chinese Restaurant with the Vice President and our hostess.

WE LEFT THE NEXT MORNING FOR COPENHAGEN, DENMARK, where we visited the parents of Mrs. Edward C. Harris. They took us to visit a big amusement park called Tiboli. We ended the day with dinner in their home.

THE NEXT DAY WE STARTED BACK TO THE STATES. We left Copenhagen and transferred in London for a flight on the Pan American 747 and landed at J.F. Kennedy Airport in New York and there Mrs. Harris and I got a flight back to Des Moines and Jim went to Washington for two days.

Fran Bennett At Drama Workshop

Fran Bennett

On last Saturday night, Miss Fran Bennett of the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, Minneapolis, Minnesota, appeared on a program at the Drama Workshop. Miss Bennett is voice and movement coach on the Guthrie Theatre staff. She lectured on her work there and ended the evening with a group called from the audience to demonstrate her work in voice and movement.

Miss Bennett's talk and demonstration held the attention of her listeners in awed silence, interrupted by enthusiastic applause and laughter. As the evening grew long, her audience was inclined to linger for still more of what she had to say and to demonstrate.

Miss Bennett finished Lincoln High School in Milwaukee, Wisconsin; she entered the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Wisconsin, where she majored in speech, English, dance and anthropology. She left college before she finished her Ph.D. which was to have been in voice and movement. She taught at Fiske University in Nashville, Tennessee. She found that she could not pursue her idea of voice and movement and become interested in theater.

She couldn't write her dissertation as no one had done it and she set out to try and do it herself. So off she went to get it together herself.

Leaving Fiske in 1965 she went to New York and spent a year there. She acted, sang, and appeared on the second night of Johnny Carson's Tonight Show. She was introduced on the Tonight Show by Tallulah Bankhead she was her protegee. On the Tonight Show they did a medley of Langston Hughes songs. She and Miss Bankhead had just finished Here Today, which had been on tour for 6 months on the New England circuit. She has been at the Guthrie Theater for nine years.

Following New York she studied in England. In her demonstrations, she borrowed some technique from psychodrama. She uses lots of Yoga. She studied with Lise Pitz in London. Miss Pitz is said to have studied with the sister of Isadora Duncan. Miss Bennett employs a great many of Jose Limon's techniques. She uses modern dance very much like Martha Graham. She gave her listeners a very accurate run-through of the warm-up exercises used at the Tyrone Theater.

CREDIT IS FINE,
BUT OH! HOW IT COSTS!!
DR. BERKELEY G. BURRELL
President, National Business League

During a recent phone conversation with my good friend Jim Greene, Professor of Economics at the University of Georgia, the interesting subject of buying on credit came up.

Unfortunately, too many of the people who want to buy on credit only ask "How much does cost and how much per month?"

One of Jim's friends said to him: "So what difference does it make? If I get the loan I can have the house and the car to use now and someday they may be mine."

In part he is right. Credit does give us the opportunity to use the product while we pay for it. For most of us, the figure at which we are valued (in economic terms - net worth) actually amounts to the home we own, our cars, furniture, refrigerator, or freezer. But we can reach that value only after subtracting what we owe on those assets.

The majority of that which we own might well still be in the store if we had to put aside a portion of our salaries each month and pay cash. In that light, credit can help us save for some of the tangibles of life we consider essential.

But with the ending of the Second World War, we became a nation which lived and breathed with credit cards for everything. They should have warned us: "Buy now We'll stick you later."

Think about those newlyweds who in a matter of hours could put themselves in hock for longer than divorce statistics would bet they could stay married - and only with the time it takes to put Mr. and Mrs. on a three-inch line.

This is to say that carefully thought-out "buying-on-time" cannot prove to be a good investment. Where the problem comes is in our anxiousness to own. We all too often do not consider what we actually pay over the long haul.

Take a moment to consider the terms for paying off a $30,000 home loan. At a 6 per cent interest rate, the monthly payment is $179.87 on a 30 year mortgage for a total payoff of $64,753; and on a 20-year loan, the monthly payment is $214 for a total payoff of $51,583 or $13,170 less.

On an 8 per cent loan on that same house, monthly payment for a 30-year loan is $220 for a total payoff of $79,200, while the monthly payment on a 20-year loan is $251 for a total payoff of $60,240 or $18,960 less.

At 10 per cent, the monthly payment on a 30-year loan for the $30,000 house is $263 for a total payoff of $94,680. At 20 years the payoff is $69,600 at $290 per month for a savings of $25,080.

Unfortunately for most of us called "consumers", the going percentage rate of interest on homes is 10 per cent. That means we pay top dollar. In the case of both 30 and 20-year periods, the interest cost may be more than the amount borrowed when buying the house. At the 10 per cent rate the buyers pay over twice as much in interest than the amount of the loan itself.

The case for cars is usually worse, although the time is shorter making the cost seem less. When buying a new car most of us get a 36-month loan. Over that period of time if a $3,000 car is financed at 6 per cent, interest would be added in the amount of $540. If $5,000 is financed, interest of $900 would be added. And financing $7,000 on a car purchased on credit will mean interest added in the amount of $1,260.

That is only one part of the picture. When you take that little four-inch credit card in your hand ready to bring home that once in a lifetime buy, REMEMBER! most major credit card time arrangements are at 1.5 per cent on the unpaid balance. That amounts to an annual rate of 18 per cent. According to Jim Greene's figures, "a $2,000 package of furniture over two years will cost the buyer about $400 in interest payments. Purchase of a refrigerator on minimum monthly payments over a 48 month period can raise the payoff of a $500 refrigerator to a total of $658 and at a 31.66 per cent cost to the buyer."

These facts don't say you shouldn't buy on time arrangements. It means that you should think carefully about time purchases and pay cash when you can.

When you cannot pay cash, then thoughtful buying should involve comparative buying. Remember that not even all banks charge the same rates for financing new or used cars. And this is very likely true for credit unions and other lending sources for auto financing.

This principle holds true with respect to most financing, whether for the once-in-a-lifetime purchase of a home or the occasional refurbishing of that home.

SHOP AS CAREFULLY AND ENERGETICALLY FOR MONEY AS YOU DO FOR THE PRODUCT ITSELF.

One important point to remember is that interest paid is an allowable deduction in computing your income tax. There are several considerations that you must make to gain a tax advantage on interest paid on installment purchases. These include your income level, the number of dependents and the fact that you must use the long income tax form. This deduction is a tax break that many credit users don't take advantage of.

At any rate, the cost of getting now and paying later is mighty high at present interest rates. Maybe for all of us who use credit, it's time for us to get down to the business of saving.

Black Enterprise Publishes Second Annual Listing Of 100 Leading Black Businesses

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Total revenues for the nation's largest 100 black businesses increased 17.7 per cent from $510.9 million in 1972 to $601.1 million in 1973, it was disclosed in the June issue of Black Enterprise Magazine.

In announcing the publication of the second annual edition of the "Black Enterprise 100", Earl G. Graves, publisher of the four-year-old magazine, noted that the advances had been made despite the unfavorable conditions that plagued the economy last year, particularly during its final quarter. "Last year, the smallest company on this list had 1972 revenues of $1 million. This year 1973 revenues for the smallest company listed are $1.6 million."

In compiling the list of the nation's top 100 black businesses several significant facts emerged: 20 of the businesses are located in New York, 18 in Chicago and 16 in the Los Angeles area. These 54 firms account for nearly two-thirds of the total revenues of the "Black Enterprise 100." the following cities are also headquarters for more than one "Black Enterprise 100" company: Atlanta, Baltimore, Detroit, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C.

The largest firm on the list, Motown Industries of Los Angeles, a "Total Entertainment Complex", increased its sales by 15 per cent over last year. It grossed $46 million in 1973, up $6 million in sales from the previous year, to reappear as the country's top black non-financial company. The second largest company is the Johnson Publishing Company of Chicago, best known for its publications Ebony and Jet. Rounding out the top five are Fedco Food of New York City, a supermarket chain, Johnson Products, also of Chicago, a publicly held cosmetics firm, and Stax, a recording company with offices in Memphis, Tennessee and Los Angeles, California. Included in the annual listing are the country's leading black financial institutions, headed by North Carolina Mutual, the largest black business in the country.

Also featured in the June issue is Andrew Brimmer, a leading economist and the first black member of the federal reserve board, who writes incisively about black business progress to date and what can be expected in the years ahead. Milton Friedman and John Kenneth Galbraith, perhaps the best known conservative and liberal economists in America, express their views on a wide range of issues in an attempt to explain the conflicting and confusing theories that dominate the economic thinking today.

In commenting on the current edition, publisher Graves said he feels the long-term prospects for black businessmen "are promising, provided they take full advantage of the opportunities unfolding before them. That means, if they are to play a significant role in the economic community of the future, a new breed of businessmen must emerge — willing to adopt new ideas and new techniques."

Black Enterprise, which began publication in August, 1970, is directed toward black men and women interested in business enterprise. Its 160,000 subscribers have a median income of $18,500.

Dolls Fulfill A Dream:

For Children & Shindana

Dolls are a part of any child's imagination, play value and exhibit that indeed, Black is beautiful. Shindana Toys, they are part of a bigger dream that a company owned and operated by Blacks can make it in a white man's world.

Eight new dolls are part of that dream this year. Shindana has lived up to its name. Shindana means "competitor" in Swahili and has become an important part of the toy industry. The company has also achieved a dual purpose with its dolls. They have produced ethnically correct Black dolls that are not just sold to Blacks, and they have built a successful business for and by Blacks.

This year's dolls provide imagination, play value and exhibit that indeed, Black is beautiful.

Li'l Souls: WILKIE AND SIS

New Li'l Souls "Wilkie" and "Sis" join the Shindana family as the smallest—but two of the most lovable—rag doll companions for both boys and girls. Both measure just 10 inches high and make fun-filled pals to hug and to hold.

Wilky is dressed in acrylic bellbottoms, a silver buckled green belt and a long sleeved shirt with matching hat. Sis wears smart cotton hiphuggers and a red gingham blouse and her black yarn hairdo has two beribboned, fluffy pom-poms.

California Republican Favored In House Race

by Ethel L. Payne

Norman Hodges has a good chance to break a political pattern that has prevailed for almost 30 years. He is running hard to become the first Black Republican member of the U.S. House of Representatives since Oscar DePriest of Chicago who served from 1928 through 1935.

Hodges, a 40 year old Los Angeles businessman and founder of the Green Power Foundation, a self-help program, is campaigning for the 31st Congressional District seat currently held by Democrat Charles Wilson who is a veteran of five terms.

Born in Chicago in 1934, Hodges has lived in Los Angeles since 1936. He is a true organization man who whetted his appetite for political action while working for the North American Aircraft Corporation. He moved up to senior research engineer, then chief engineer responsible for the non-metallic materials testing program.

Hodges found time to be active in many civic groups. It was the Watts riot of 1965 which spurred him on to organize the Green Power Foundation, along with 153 other concerned young Black members of the community.

In 1967, it was incorporated as a non-profit association. Hodges took leave of his position with North American to become the executive director. The Watts Wallpaper baseball bat was the first development of the venture. It was a unique approach to minority economic and employment opportunity. Green Power concentrated on creating "second generation" minority owned and operated business.

Fortune Magazine listed Hodges among its "Business Men on the Move" in July, 1968. The NAACP cited him that same year for outstanding contribution to the city.

Hodges has served on many advisory councils, among them Chairman of the National Advisory Council on Economic Opportunity; the Advisory Board of the Chancellor of the University of California at Los Angeles and the President's Commission on White House Fellows.

As a minority within a minority, a Black Republican among the preponderant Black Democrats in public offices, Norman Hodges has a philosophical outlook that transcends Watergate and all the other warts on the GOP body politic.

Neither Watergate nor Nixon are regarded as an extra burden. He's just Norman Hodges running for Congress on the Republican ticket. "At this point in time," to coin a familiar phrase, it looks very good for him.

V.D. To Be Discussed

Dr. Franklin P. Koontz, chairman of the Governor's Task Force Against Venereal Disease, will discuss Iowa's venereal disease problem at 6:30 p.m., June 8, on "Inside Iowa," a WHO TV (Channel 13) public affairs program.

The Governor's Task Force and WHO Broadcasting are cooperating in a public awareness campaign to alert Iowans to the seriousness of the venereal disease epidemic. The program, "Inside Iowa," is one of the first in a series of efforts.

The Governor's Task Force Against Venereal Disease was appointed last fall by Governor Robert D. Ray in response to the venereal disease crisis in Iowa. Last year there were an estimated 20,000 cases of venereal disease in the state, most of these among persons under age 25. Statistics indicate an Iowa teenager today has a one in five chance of contracting a venereal disease by age 25. The need for action and for public awareness of the problem is essential, according to Dr. Koontz.

To promote a continuing public awareness campaign, WHO has featured Dr. Koontz in a series of television and radio spot announcements, which will be distributed to stations throughout Iowa. Dr. Koontz said, "We are encouraging all Iowa stations to utilize these spots because of the importance of keeping Iowans informed about this major public health problem."

Promotion of African Business

by Kitoto - K. Kalombo

Africa, the exploited continent; Africa the teaming reservoir of manpower; Africa despoiled of its raw materials. This was the Africa of the sixties. It seemed that the seventies would be marked by the presence of another Africa. This was Africa, the subject of pipedreams, and sometimes of experiments in "projects of liberation" and "development patterns", emerging from a Europe which was itself busily seeking its own balance. It was an Africa to which everybody was only too willing to show the way it should go.

In either case, yesterday or today, it was Africa on the operating table, Africa under the stethoscope.

But today the african countries, or most of them, are independent. Being independent means you are master of your own possessions, that you have the right to think out your own development, to set up for yourself your own scale of values.

What will be the Africa of the next few years? Will it, by its efforts and by holding off the economically dominating countries, be able to establish its position as proceeding from Africans themselves? Will it be a continent, not of the lonely, the exclusive, the limited and the inward-looking, but of men independent enough to give expression to their own personality, devising their own schemes of development, and freely comparing them with those of others and making adaptations in consequence?

There have been so many forums on african development. Often they are a meeting ground for Europeans, Americans, Canadians and Africans - far be it from us to disapprove - but it must be admitted that, whether through habit or by an evasive courtesy, many of these events lead nowhere except to half-hearted resolutions and conclusions.

What type of business system do we want to set up for Africa? Where lies our responsibility as african business executives in the development of our own firms? Does it lie in adapting them to the men through whom they live and produce? Is it in the integration of these firms into the social life of Africa?

AFRICAN POINTS OF VIEW ON THE AFRICAN FIRM.

Why has there been so little development of up-to-date business in African ownership and management?

Before independence: a void.

Tribal society, with agriculture predominating, did not lend itself to a flourishing spirit of enterprise. Society was static, turned in upon itself; and not only was there no stimulus to scientific and technical knowledge, but every attempt at innovation was penalized as prejudicial to the preestablished harmony and balance.

In later years the colonial age was no more propitious to the growth of an executive class of African. Sensibly enough, the system of economic subservience allowed the native to rise to limited levels of responsibility in the administration, and even in the liberal professions; but it did not admit him to direct responsibility in the world of business.

Thus, when our countries acted to independence, except in english-speaking Africa, such as GHANA and NIGERIA, there was an almost total lack of national firms in the modern sectors of economic life.

The priorities of political independence.

When national sovereignty became a fact, such conditions did not change overnight. It was the wish of those at top that our nationals should play a larger part in the modern sectors of the economic system; but during the early years of independence it was not possible for them to give this the top priority.

The fact was that our countries were essentially agricultural; and a development policy called first and foremost for crop diversification, for rural modernisation and the development of economic infrastructure, especially transport and communications. In parallel with this, there were campaigns to promote an up-to-date industrial sector, partly to produce goods which would replace imports and partly to process our primary produce and market it to better advantage. This, however, was stimulated by recourse to foreign techniques and foreign capital, for which extremely liberal inducements were provided.

The exercise of national sovereignty meant that africanization had to begin with the administration. For some years all our citizens with degrees and diplomas quite naturally found their outlet in the public services, or in public undertakings which were, for the most part, handling development operations and were therefore outside the system of the market economy. Later, however, there was a material increase in the number of Africans taking an interest in business matters. At the same time the governments became increasingly aware of the necessity for not leaving the modern economic sectors exclusively in the hands of foreign interests, so that they were anxious to accelerate africanization and so acquire economic independence.

Obstacles to be overcome

The economic environment does not make it easy for african-owned firms to take root. In our african countries, economic life is still mainly in the hands of foreign companies; and it is far from easy for african firms to gain a footing, because the foreign companies usually have a wide experience, are well organized and well managed, and it is therefore difficult to compete with them. Another obstacle to the development of african firms is the inadequate administration provided by those who launch them. This is partly due to lack of experience and knowledge of management techniques. Another important cause is that african business leaders do not sufficiently delegate their responsibilities. Moreover, our nationals have an undue tendency to set up small individual undertakings. Admittedly these little family businesses are an indispensable cog in the national economic machine, but there are not enough in themselves to enable us to achieve economic independence. It must be clearly understood that economic africanisation will be more rapid if the private firms are able to come together in association and groups, each helping the other in bringing into existence industrial and commercial production units on the scale called for by technical civilization.

A new line of behaviour

The promotion of the african firm is a vital necessity for our content, and it is on the african business executive that the success of this policy must in the last resort, depend. His responsibility is thus of gigantic proportions, and his capacity must be in line with the difficulties which he will have to surmount.

The primary condition for success is that the african executive, in dealing with the constantly changing requirements of african development, shall put up a fight against conformism and inertia and adopt an entirely new mentality and a new line of behaviour: "It will imply renouncing prestige and power, sacrificing personal, sectoral and national interests. It will demand a constant effort of social imagination in order to develop new forms of cooperation."

For Black Students:

A Natural Genuine Talent: Richard Pryor

RICHARD PRYOR

It's a long row to hoe for a young man to change from a high school refugee at the age of 14 to a major award winning writer at the age of 34. But that row has been plowed, harrowed, cultivated and liberally fertilized by RICHARD PRYOR, who left school early (by mutual consent, he insists) and now has won an Emmy award for TV comedy-variety writing in the special category.

When Richard Pryor is described as a comedy writer, some clarification is called for. It is difficult to visualize Pryor sitting down at a typewriter and dashing off a few comedic scenes. Writing is, for him, a psychosocial process of crawling inside another character's head. It is, in a word, almost spontaneous creativity, the kind that can spark at birth and be only weakly translated into the written word later by somebody who types.

The character of "Piano Man" in the movie "Lady Sings The Blues" became, through this process, more than a foil for Diana Ross's Billie Holiday. The directors had told Pryor they had an idea for a character who plays the piano while Billie sings. Pryor took that concept and shaped it, made it grow, gave it dimension; he made the character of "Piano Man" a vibrant thing, one of the high points of the movie.

The more routine biographical data on Richard Pryor are harder to come by than an analysis of his creative methods. While he has not been a victim of the star syndrome, he comes on with what seems to be a shovel full of hype and bluster and basic dislike of the whole process. A sample opening: What about your earlier life? The answer: "Well, I was born in 1904, and my father was a used hockery nut salesman in Colorado Springs." Later it is determined that he was born in 1940 in Peoria, Illinois, an only child, and grew up on the wrong side of the tracks; the street was the central fact of his early life, a fact that is reflected in his on-stage routines.

His interviews and press conferences immediately become comedy routines, and that's understandable when you consider that most interviewers ask the same questions in roughly the same order. He would as soon play an interview straight as he would a part in a movie or a character in a skit. "Straight dramatic parts don't interest me," he answers to another rote question. "I can play a dramatic part but I have to identify with the role."

The role he assumes on stage before a live audience betrays his origin—a child of the streets. His performance vocabulary has been gingerly described as "street language," which means that Richard Pryor pulls no punches. He says he gets most of his material from the street and its people, and the language undergoes no change except selectivity when it moves onstage.

Pryor's new album, "That Nigger's Crazy" on Partee Records (a division of the Stax Organization), is plainly labeled on the cover, "Rated X." The album is not for the tender of heart or ear.

Natural genuine talent is taking Richard Pryor on a definitely upward-bound course. After many years of entertaining and getting his head together, he is far from an overnight success but now he is beginning to assume the position he deserves—with recognition as one of the funniest men in America.

Music & Other

Sounds

Richard Pryor has a new album for you, and anyone who has appreciated his humor on television will want his latest comedy album. A word of caution—unless you're the kind of person who enjoys a really "blue" party record, don't bother to buy Pryor's latest. Released on the Pardee label by Stax Records, the album, recorded live at "Soul Train" in San Francisco, is designed to create outrageous laughter. Even the record's title, "That Nigger's Crazy", will make somebody mad.

Pryor takes off on everyone and everything. Everyone and everything racial, and he does a job comparing the ways of white and Black folks. One of the Gene Diamond and the Means-DeVan Trio are appearing here. Like great organ and vibes? Don't miss this! Gene Diamond provides the vocals, and good as he sounds, you'll be sorry you didn't make it a point to stop by and stay a while.

The Moulin Rouge is a new Black club, a little support from the community would be in order. The music is better than good, it is fantastic! Get there this week-end, do something nice for yourself.

greatest spots in the album is the reaction of one dude in the audience who finally has to shout at Pryor, "You're crazy." All Pryor says in response is, "Yeh!"

If you like party records, and you can laugh at all that is supposedly sacred, buy the record. If you're easily offended, forget it because Richard Pryor does get down.

sports

by Allen Ashby

This must be the week for local black sports history. Back a while ago when I was doing what must be called a resume of sports history, I mentioned a Jack Price of Iowa State who was killed in a football game against Minnesota. This was in the days when young men made their own amusement, and clubs were a popular thing. So a group of us formed the Jack Trice Club. But I don't think the club ever really got off the ground, and I certainly can't recall what our purpose was. But the thing died, and that was that. So I was glad to see that somebody had gone back into history far enough to come up with the story of how the young man died. There weren't too many blacks at Iowa State then. A few years before Trice there was a big raw-boned fellow named Smith who played tackle for the Cyclones. Then it was customary for the coach of a team having black players to ask permission from the opponents to use him. So Nebraska was asked if it was all right to use Smith. The Cornhusker coach said sure because when he was hit a few times, he would be glad to come out. Well, the Cyclones lost the game, but the Nebraskans never forgot Smith. He is said to have staged a one man war, and probably was the reason for them refusing to play against Trice. The Minnesotans had a black player named Marshall before Trice and he was really a star, so they knew what they were getting into. It would be nice if they did name the stadium after Trice, but don't bet the rent money on it happening.

I have been so intent on following tennis, that I seem to have neglected bowling. Not really, because except for the usual run of scores of women in the paper, I have to nearly take my fists and fight for news of the bowlers. Why? I don't know. So it seems that we have some pretty fair keggers around here. Helen Jacobs and Gretchen Jace went to Huston and rolled in the women's National bowling meet. They shot a score of 1155 which I heard was good for third place and $800 bucks which ought to buy at least one pair of shoes. Then Chancey Bailey stopped by the other morning and said that I didn't read the daily paper. I wondered what he was raving about. Well, it turns out that he had competed in the state senior bowling meet at the Plaza Lanes and tied for first place in the handicap men's singles with a score of 689. His scratch score of 633 was good enough to win the division title. He said he has two trophies and was as proud of them as he was of his first Y Camp ribbons. What do you say but congrats, folks. And please let me hear about these things when they are going to happen or when they do happen.

One of the old boxers around here got to talking about the fellows who had potential and who never quite made it to the top. He mentioned fellows like Claude Elliston, Rowland Taylor, Bill Heath and Morton Graves. I always argued that if Morton had had a really good left hook he would have been one of the top fighters in this day. But he would have had a hell of a time getting out of Des Moines to prove it, because his wife wouldn't stand for any moves away from her home town. Claude Elliston was one of the really fine boxers to come along. He could box like a lightweight, although he was a light heavy, and hit like a heavy. He never was really tested around here, and was really robbed in Chicago at the Golden Gloves bouts. Later he went to the big city and fought in a few bouts in the Marigold gardens. In a couple of bouts he had worked his way to the semi-finals. And when you fought in the semiwindup at the gardens, you had to be good. I heard that he got into some sort of a jam, and never did realize his potential, or we might have heard of him on a national scale. Roland Taylor was a rough, tough battler who could hit you on the elbow and knock you down. His biggest fault was that he never did really train for his bouts, and went in the ring on sheer guts and hoping to land a good punch, for if he did, the fight would likely be over. I heard that he could have been taken over by a national group, but he didn't want to take it seriously. Bill Heath was a good right hand puncher, and fought some good bouts around here and in Kansas City. Bill came from a family of boxing brothers, Carrol and Wayland were both fine middleweights and they taught Bill a lot. But then there wasn't really too much dough for black battlers. Bill lost a couple of bouts to Morton Graves that were talked about for days and even years. But when you consider that Morton lost just seven bouts out of over two hundred, and was robbed in at least three of them, Bill needn't be ashamed for dropping those two.

I promise that next week I will get back into today's things, but every so often an old dreamer has to reminisce.

The ins and outs of an electric heat pump.

In and out pretty well explains how a heat pump works. It's kind of like a furnace and an air conditioner all rolled into one.

In the summer, it acts like an air conditioner and pumps heat that's inside your house . . . outside. In the winter, it automatically reverses itself and takes heat from the outside air and pumps it in.

The amazing thing about the heat pump is that except for a few of the coldest days of the year, it produces much more energy in the form of heat than it uses in the form of electric power.

The times is right for electric heat
