Gunman Says All Christians Are "Enemies"

Martin Luther King's Mother Slain

Mrs. Alberta King

Mrs. Alberta King, mother of slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was killed last Sunday, June 30th at Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, Georgia. Also killed in the two gun attack by a young Black man was Deacon Edwin Boykin.

Police in Atlanta say Marcus Wayne Chenault, 23, of Dayton, Ohio had compiled a list of persons he wished to kill. Mrs. King's name appeared on the list. Officials say Rev. Ralph Abernathy of the Southern Leadership Conference and Rev. Jesse Jackson of Operation PUSH were listed as future targets.

Mrs. King was seated at the organ when the attack took place. Members of the Ebenezer congregation apprehended the gunman who was said to have declared all Christians "enemies". Chenault told police he was ordered by his God to kill Rev. Martin Luther King, Sr., who had stepped into the church as the shooting began.

Injured but not killed in the shooting was Mrs. Jimmy Mitchell, who Chenault said he shot because "she worshipped false idols". Neighbors in Columbus, Ohio said the gunman believed Christianity an unnatural religion for Black people.

Marcus Chenault

Cause & Effect: Knowledge Without Understanding

Marcus Wayne Chenault is said to have been a devout Christian prior to his move to Columbus, Ohio where he attended Ohio State University.

Just 23 years old, Chenault is responsible for two deaths and one serious injury in the name of anti-Christianity. He proclaims himself a Hebrew, calls himself "Jacob", and says his God told him to kill prominent Black Christian leaders.

Many persons will attempt to hold the Hebrew faith responsible for Marcus' actions, and fail to understand that religious belief alone cannot perpetrate action such as the murders that took place last Sunday in Ebenezer Baptist Church. Indeed, it has come to be known that Chenault was involved in an organization calling itself "The Troop", dedicated to eradicating Black members of the clergy.

"The Troop" felt Christianity to be an unnatural religion for Black people, but apparently did not advocate conversion to any other specific faith. It isn't known why Chenault chose Judaism over Islam; he is said to have studied both.

Reaction to pressure manifests itself differently in each individual. Last year, when Mark Essex climbed atop that building in New Orleans and began randomly shooting white people on the street below, we saw an effort to do something, do anything, to make people aware of the poison racism produces. Last Sunday, Marcus Chenault responded to pressures and did something to alleviate the pain he felt.

It would be unwise to judge and condemn an entire religion for an act of violence committed by an individual. Just as we scream outrageously when we as a race are held responsible because a brother like Mark Essex kills white people.

All holy books contain passages relating to understanding and compassion. Don't let Marcus Chenault's action further divide Black people into religious camps. The division would only aid the oppressor. We are all familiar with the phrase "divide and conquer".

National News Briefs

Louisville—The Southern Branch of the United Presbyterian Church, a predominately white organization has chosen a Black minister as its leader for the year. Rev. Lawrence Bottoms was elected over two white opponents.

New York—In a recent, hotly contested school board race here, a white majority was elected in a district where the population is 73 per cent Puerto Rican and 20 per cent Black and Oriental. White board members say the district's Superintendent, Luis Fuentes, spends too much time trying to recruit minority and bi-lingual teachers.

Washington, D.C.—The city of Topeka, Kansas faces a loss of $2 million in federal education money because it refuses to desegregate its schools entirely.

Washington, D.C.—About $306 million will be provided by the federal government to state and local officials for the purpose of developing jobs for youth this summer.

Washington, D.C.—A recent research study conducted by HEW indicates that 40% of the people in the U.S. were eligible for welfare benefits during the last six years.

Baltimore—A survey taken here recently shows that Black people have as much trouble purchasing a mobile home in a trailer park as they do buying a house due to racist practices. Of 34 advertisements reviewed, none displayed the equal opportunity housing slogan or symbol.

Community Responses to Slaying of Mrs. King Sr.

A Personal Response

BY Raymon Ray

As the Editor of this paper, I was curious to seek thoughts being entertained by some local residents regarding the murder of Mrs. Martin Luther King, Sr. last Sunday. I wanted to find out if the so-called little people have become as callous as our government regarding the taking of lives and shrugging shoulders.

Emphatic does not mean fanatic. Too many have been slain in the name of the Lord. Assassination is the M.O. of the power hungry, the frustrated, and the sick.

History has revealed that two of the most deadly diseases contracted by man are patriotism and religion. Fanatical response to either of these involvements are certain to result in death or insanity.

J.D. JOHNSON, job developer.

"I think the man who killed Mrs. King is mentally unstable. I wonder why he chose to kill these particular people? I think there's more to it than has come to light."

GEORGE BREWER

"The city of Atlanta is already tense behind their mayor and other events that have taken place. It is tragic that this death had to happen."

MRS. JEAN JOHNSON, receptionist.

"I haven't recovered from the shock yet. At first I thought a white man had done the killing, but when I found out that the gunman was Black, the shock was even greater."

HOMER MCQUEEN, pharmacist.

"I don't want to make judgements. We are too quick to condemn. What we need to fight is not the man but the climate of violence. The real enemy is not the man but the demon inside of him."

IEWS and REVIEWS

by James B. Morris

National Association for the Advancement of Colored People

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is meeting in New Orleans, Louisiana, deep in the South where a few years ago it could not happen because there was a lack of accommodations and the attitude toward the organization generally in that part of the country. In recent years, this has not been a problem.

Since the uprisings during the 60's of college students and in thickly populated areas where radicalism was quite prevalent, the NAACP has received considerable criticism charging that its program was too slow and that too much emphasis was placed on leadership following the turn of the century and when the going was rough.

Generally speaking most of these critics had no program of their own or were too radical for solid substantial programs without the help of level headed thinking people. True, radicals called attention to injustice which made some contribution but the danger here was that their efforts got out of hand in some instances. A good illustration of this was the unsuccessful march in Atlanta last week, headed by Rev. Abernathy, in protest of the killing of a Negro youth. He did not take the time to secure a permit to parade so about the only thing to come out of it was a few cracked heads and the arrest of some of the participants for resisting officers who tried to stop the parade.

The program of the NAACP has been conducted along the legal direction, and thus has gained more employment, better education, housing and better observance of civil rights than ever before. And while there is room for improvement, it will not come about by irresponsible programs.

Of course, no program will suit everybody. There have been times when I have disagreed with the NAACP in specific matters but have never waived from the direction in which the organization has been moving.

Today, the NAACP needs members and money. Unfortunately, a large number of former contributors and members who have been successful because of what the NAACP has accomplished, now withdraw their support and / or forget to help the fellow who is on the lower round. The organization deserves support because it has done more and has become the most formidable and highly respected organization in the field of civil rights.

They Still Dodge

I watched the program on WHO Sunday conducted by the Des Moines Commission on Human Rights and Job Discrimination. The guest panelist were a white protestant minister, a Roman Catholic priest, a Jewish Rabbi, and a Negro pastor. The discussion was centered around Human Rights in Iowa today.

The protestant minister spent most of the period trying to justify the antiquated theory that "you can't legislate morals". With this we agree but on the other hand we can legislate against injustices and illegal treatment. As a matter of fact the law against murder is designed to punish offenders and deter those who are inclined to commit murder. Murder still goes on notwithstanding.

All the gains that have been made in the field of civil rights from Reconstruction Days to the Civil Rights Law of 1964 were made because the law required that certain conditions be observed. Many people don't agree with them but this is the reason why the law should set standards for people to follow who otherwise might violate moral and civil laws. Since most of the time was taken up debating this silly question, little was accomplished to enlighten the public concerning the individual views of others who served on the panel.

While the church has given voice to improve civil rights, it has been the intelligent hard headed business men who produced most of the gains we have made this far. Too many ministers fear their congregations might seek reprisals and fail to advocate a doctrine of human dignity for all men regardless of race or color.

The Slaying of Mrs. King

Sunday's tragic slaying of Mrs. Martin Luther King, Sr. and others was an intolerable act that we Blacks must consider to the ultimate.

Before we consider anything, I must say that the slayings were of suppression. To clear this statement, I'm only saying that the murderer could have had material motives for the Martin Luther King, Jr. family, but with security so intense, he went through Dr. King's father and mother, which resulted in the slaying of Mrs. King and Deacon Boykin.

Looking at the circumstances, there could be a variety of reasons why this individual performed this fatal act.

Considering the circumstances constitutes justification and excuses. But the question lingers, why?

Unreasonable human risk had to be considered by the individual, but I guess working with an unauthorized or organized group offering money was too concrete to turn down.

It goes to show that "Black Unity" hasn't gotten us anywhere. For this brother went beyond the cultivation of our race and formatted such a task.

During our struggle, I must say that we Blacks had our share of ups and downs. Talking isn't going to get us anywhere. Now action must speak. Forget the "Brother" rap and get your mind together and motivate. Action speaks louder than words.

Moines, pastor George Murray.

According to Charles Chandler, Coordinator of the information project, the purpose of the information distribution is to help restore solid principles in youth today which will produce leaders of moral worth and stamina, as well as knock down the walls of racial prejudice, deal with the issues of improving health, and instill a feeling of well being.

Charles is joined in his efforts by Johnny Russell of Des Moines and Arthur Thomas of Missouri. All are students at Oakwood College in Huntsville, Alabama.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Mr. Ray:

Your paper apparently agrees with the opinion of the Carrollton Central Community Council (regarding network racism against Redd Foxx) as printed in your Letters To the Editor column of June 27th. This is unfortunate. Racism, be it Black or white, is undesirable and something humanity should strive to eliminate.

As a white man, I feel the opinion put forth by the C.C.C.C. is a prime example of the growing cult of Black racism.

Redd Foxx is not a victim of racism as stated in the letter to the Editor, but rather in contract dispute with his employers, as are countless other stars, white, Black, and all other nationalities.

Peter Falk recently came to grips with the producers of his popular Columbo series. He claims he was not provided with all the profits his contract called for. The list of celebrities with similar problems is long indeed. To generalize and call Mr. Foxx's problem one of white racism smells of just the opposite.

To want equality between men is right and good. To strive to eliminate white racism is also good, but our society must be careful not to swing the pendulum to far the other way to where Black racism evolves.

A. A. Shaw
Des Moines

Editor's Note:

Your opening statement regarding what is apparently the opinion of this paper is typical of many whites who view, or read any Black oriented publication. As Editor, I reserve the right to reprint any letter whether I am in agreement with its text or not. The reprinting of yours is proof of that fact.

Throughout history the white man has designed laws and contracts in such a manner as to use them as tools of extortion. The fact that he uses them on his own people is not excusable enough for me to accept their use against mine. If you consider the awakening of Black people who act as well as speak against legal exploitation and extortion a "growing cult of Black racism", then so be it. It also appears as though you are reacting out of fear experienced by many whites that the Black man in America will resort to similar inhumane acts of racism in response to his own suffering.

NNPA Scholarship Program

JOURNALISM SCHOLARSHIPS FOR 1974— Marshall B. Bass (L.) hands Frank L. Stanley a check for $9,810. The money will help provide scholarship support for five new journalism students this year. Bass made the presentation at the annual convention of the National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) held recently in Pittsburgh, Pa. Stanley, publisher of the Louisville Defender and chairman of the NNPA Scholarship Foundation, noted that R.J. Reynolds remains the biggest contributor to the NNPA scholarship program.

R. J. Reynolds Industries, Inc. presented a check for the 1974 journalism scholarships to black students at the 34th annual convention of the National Newspaper Publishers Association held recently in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Marshall B. Bass, corporate manager, personnel development, handed Frank D. Stanley a check for $9,810 at the NNPA Awards banquet, an affair attended by over 200 NNPA members and guests.

Stanley, president of the NNPA Scholarship Foundation and publisher of the Louisville Defender, noted that with this year's check R. J. Reynolds continues to be the largest contributor to the NNPA Scholarship Program.

Reynolds began supporting black journalism students when in cooperation with the NNPA, it established a $52,000 journalism scholarship program in 1972.

Each year five outstanding high school graduates who aspire to become journalists are selected by the NNPA to receive Reynolds' scholarship support.

Ten students, studying at leading colleges and universities across the nation, have been selected to date. The names of the students and the schools they attend are as follows:

Gail F. Baker, Northwestern University; Mary Barr Brake, University of Texas; Joanne T. Logan, University of Maryland; Elsie L. Romer, Michigan State University; Carolyn C. Taylor, University of Alabama; Phyllis L. Alexander, University of Oklahoma; Ann G. Hadnot, St. Mary of the Woods; Dennis Ray Jones, University of Nebraska; Karen L. Mitchell, Stephens College; and Devore M. Nixon, Bowling Green State University.

Garnett Hennings (left), a Los Angeles City Commissioner and executive vice president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference-West, is shown presenting a commendation to "Pop" Staple for his work in keeping the values expressed by Dr. Martin Luther King alive through music, while setting an example for fathers worldwide performing by the side of his daughters, Mavis, Cleo, and Yvonne as well as guiding their music careers. Nothing I could write in the way of a review could convince you to read Dummy. So rather than wasting words, I'm presenting the introduction to the book, in hopes that it will move you to pick up the story of a Black man and read it through. Written by Ernest Tidyman, Dummy is a novel based on fact, terrible fact. Here is the author's own introduction:

This is neither a plea for sympathy for Donald Lang nor a justification of him. He is in his middle twenties as this is written and has spent one-fourth of his life behind bars. He has been accused of two murders and suspected of involvement in others.

"I don't know about The Dummy," a Chicago detective said during the research for this book, "but everytime he goes through a neighborhood we find a dead broad."

He is a suspect personality.

But Donald Lang is also deaf, mute, illiterate, probably ineducable now, possibly psychotic and perhaps brain-damaged by disease and accident in childhood. He is also an American Black, which is considered an infirmity and a defect by a major segment of the community.

He is nothing and nobody; he will never be anything or anybody. That may be the reason he is worth thinking about.

Given the intelligence, resourcefulness, generosity, and concern of his fellow men, one for the other, Donald Lang might have been.

That is the tragedy.

Ernest Tidyman, July 15, 1973.

Gladys Knight and Al Green Highlight 1974 Kansas City Jazz Festival

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Gladys Knight and the Pips and Al Green, two of the most exciting and popular groups in the music world today, will be appearing successively on Friday, July 26 and Saturday, July 27 as headliners of the Kansas City Jazz Festival at Royals Stadium.

Gladys Knight and the Pips have been in show business for 21 years. Gladys began her career at 8 years of age and in 21 years there is very little that Gladys and the three Pips, brother Merald and cousins William Guest and Edward Patton, have not achieved. This year, the Group walked off with two coveted Grammy's for "Neither One of Us", and "Midnite Train to Georgia". They also currently have another hit single, "Best Thing That Ever Happened To Me" on the charts. The Group was also named "1973 Top Singles Artist" by Billboard Magazine.

Headlining the Saturday, July 27 evening is an incredible performer, Al Green. From the first single Al Green cut to his unprecedented sweep of the No. 1 Male Vocalist Spot of the 1972 Annual Year-End Polls of all music trade publications and Rolling Stone's "Rock & Roll Star of the Year", Al Green's rise to super-stardom has been rocket powered.

Beginning as a gospel singer, Al moved to R&B with a group called "The Creations" while in his teens. Striking out on his own, Al recorded his first hit single, "Back Up Train" followed by "Tired of Being Alone" and "Look What You Done to Me", but it wasn't until the smash hit, "Let's Stay Together", that not only marked Al Green as one of the great soul singers today, but moved him into the pop field.

The Festival will utilize its famed stereo sound system, assuring patrons undistorted sound reproduction.

Patrons wishing to receive a free Festival brochure may write: Kansas City Jazz Festival, 2250 E. 31st Street, Kansas City, Missouri 64109, or may call toll-free to 800/543-7313.

(The change is effective July 1.)

American Federal Savings and Loan Association will have total assets in excess of $300,000,000.

Home Federal, with its home office at 601 Grand Ave., also has offices at Thirty-sixth Street and Ingersoll Avenue, and in West Des Moines and Ankeny. New offices will open soon at Southwest Ninth Street and Caulder Avenue, Des Moines, and in Newton.

Fletcher will continue as board chairman and chief executive officer of American Federal. Burd will be senior vice-president in charge of Eastern Iowa. Warren W. Harding, president of Home Federal, continues as president of American Federal.

Home Federal Savings and Loan was founded in 1936.

In its 1973 year end report, Home Federal listed total assets of $248,867,377, a gain of approximately $18 million during the year. Total savings reached $214,078,229, and total loans amounted to $218,889,352.

Black Unemployment Rate Up

WASHINGTON — The unemployment rate for black workers rose to 9.5 percent in May, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics announced. The rate was 8.7 percent in April.

The unemployment rate for black youths at 33.5 percent continued to be more than twice the white teenage rate.

Increased youth unemployment affected the unemployment rates of both black and white workers, with the unemployment rate for white workers rising two-tenths of one percent to 4.7 percent.

Unemployment rose in May, but employment also increased.

The nation's total unemployment rate edged up to 5.2 percent from 5.0 percent in April, primarily because of a rise in joblessness among teenagers.

by Allen Ashby

They held the Hawkeye open tennis meet last week, and it was really a big one. I guess this was partly because the Missouri Valley junior meet is being held this week, and a lot of the juniors are here for that. But there were more than three hundred juniors, and a few of them came from St. Louis. These kids were led by Mrs. Blount, and you could tell they had been around tennis meets. They were all well mannered, quiet and all of them played fine tennis. A girl, Mellisa (I think) Blount won the girls, twelve singles and her brother was beaten in the third round of the sixteen singles. The number one seed in the boys eighteen was Juan Farrow, a kid who almost had me believing he couldn't talk. But it turned out that he could and would when he wanted to. I asked him if he won his doubles in the boys eighteen and he said yes with a big grin when he got a clap on the back and a "Good". He lost in the eighteen singles semifinals. Never did get his game together and lost to a fellow he figured to take easily. But his buddy, Bruce Foxworth, son of the former boxing title contender, made up for it. Bruce took the fellow who beat Farrow into camp in straight sets. Spectators sat around and looked on in disbelief as they watched those two fine playing youngsters exchange shots and volleys. But Foxworth was ready, although he said he wasn't and came through like a champ. Farrow and his partner, a fellow named Munez, cleaned up the eighteen doubles in straight sets.

Then there was a fellow in the fifty five year veterans division. Paul Williams came back home after a ten year lapse, and about fifteen years since he played tennis around here. The guy looked to be in great shape for his fifty three years, and put on a display of top flight tennis in his quarter and semi final matches. But then he met Jack Silverman in the finals. Silverman is the number one player in the Des Moines Tennis Association ladder, and scrambles back balls that leave you shaking your head. Paul never did get his game into gear against this guy. Time after time he set the fellow up for a winning shot, and the thing went either into the net or out. After dropping the first set quickly, Paul was getting his game together, and if he could have taken the second set, might have pulled it out. But he dropped that one in a tie breaker 7-6.

Mark Morrow had his troubles in the boy's eighteen and lost out in the quarter finals to a fellow he had beaten eight times before, but that is tennis. His kid brother Reggie, really hustled but lost in the twelve year division. But people said they had never seen him hustle like that before. Then Mark and Paul Williams went out in the quarter finals to a local pair in the men's doubles, and Mark and his dad Harold, nearly made it to the finals in the father and son doubles, losing in the last set 7-5 to the McCullons in a long three setter.

But what I liked about the meet was that there wasn't any mention of the fact that the players were anything but tennis players. Nobody was designated as black or a black champ, and I have to congratulate the fellow who covered the matches for that, whether he meant it that way or not. But do you know that I thought I detected just a little bit of resentment on the part of some of the folks at the fact that some of the winners were what they are. It seemed to be just fine as long as you came to the meet and took your lumps. Then you were a fine fellow and got grins and had shakes all around. But in this one the guys were often greeted brusquely and at least once a fellow was allowed to go way past the default time without consulting his opponent. But you have to admit that all of the winners got their chance to have their say, no matter what they were, and that was great with me. But do you know, I bet they change back to white balls next year, unless they are awfully stubborn or the white ones can't be found. In the bright sunlight and against the green court back ground, those yellow balls are hard to see. We must be the only club in the state using white balls and after watching them Sunday I am glad.

There are lots of great things about this new Flynn
plastic gallon jug.

Actually our new plastic gallon jug is the next best thing to the cow herself for keeping Flynn Milk fresh. The re-sealable screw on cap insures complete freshness. The built-in handle makes it easy to carry and easy to pour from. The plastic is translucent so you can always see how much milk is left. Of course, we wouldn't be so excited about the container if we weren't so sure about what we put inside it. It costs no more than milk in waxed cartons. And you pay no deposit. Available now at your store. For home delivery call 243-6211.

But the best thing is still what's inside.
