The Men Of St. Paul

St. Paul A.M.E. Church of Des Moines is presenting two of the nation's more renowned personalities in the personages of the Rev. Wilfred Reid and the Hon. Judge Sidney A. Jones as featured speakers during their Men's Day celebration.

Sunday, July 28th has been chosen by the men of St. Paul as a day with which to exhibit enlightenment, pride, and respect of self and kind among the Black men, women, and children of Des Moines. To quote a very well known leader of Black progress in America: "Up you mighty race, you can accomplish what you will."

Rev. Wilfred Reid is the son of Rev. W. N. Reid. Rev. Reid is in his 10th year as pastor of St. Stephen A.M.E. Church in Chicago, Ill., with a membership of 2200 members.

He attended the University of Illinois and received his B.S. Degree, he received his Masters Degree in urban studies from Roosevelt University. He has done advanced theological training at the Urban Training Center, Chicago, and also at Garrett Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill. He is presently enrolled in the Ph.D. program at Antioch University, Yellow Springs, Ohio. Four Black Press Representatives Make Study Tour Of Middle East

-By Marjorie B. Parnham-Publisher, Cincinnati Herald

(Editor's note: This is the first in a series of four articles by representatives of the Black Press who visited the Middle East on a study tour during the easing of the Arab-Israeli crisis following the October war.)

AL KUWAIT (NNPA) - Our Middle East study tour of five Arab countries ended here in the final one when an immigration official refused to admit Howard B. Woods, editor-publisher of the St. Louis Sentinel and vice president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association, because his passport shows that he visited Israel in 1969.

So we all returned home. In the delegation assigned by NNPA to make the study tour were, in addition to Woods who headed the group: Robert A. Sengstacke, vice president of the Chicago Defender; Charles E. Belle, representing the Los Angeles Sentinel and the San Francisco Sun Reporter; and myself.

Before reaching Kuwait, we had visited Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, and Syria, presenting the head of the reception committee in each country a mounted facsimile of the front page of the third edition of Freedom's Journal.

In spite of the many problems of their countries, our hosts, as well as American Embassy staffs gave receptions for us and extended every courtesy.

But the memories we bring back to America are those of Palestinian refugees, hungry and in rags, living in tents under the boiling sun, and wishing and praying to return to their homeland. And there are memories of battle fronts with destroyed or captured military equipment, or prisoners of war returning to Damascus following the peace agreement with Israel which Secretary of State Henry Kissinger helped to achieve while we were in Syria.

Also in our memories are Palestinian commando schools with youngsters from 5 to 18, training with live ammunition for possible combat, as well as to further the economic life of their country.

And economic development is what all the countries we visited want. They hope to get financial aid from oil-rich Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, and other oil-producing countries.

Egyptian leaders said they wanted help in acquiring an adequate supply of fertilizer for food production in the Nile Valley. The Aswan High Dam, they said, is providing long-needed water.

Jordanians told us that they were counting heavily on their phosphates, a component of fertilizer, to help them improve their economic position. As they see it, more and more fertilizer will be needed to prevent a critical food shortage if the world's population continues to

East side Des Moines residents are about to see an important addition to their community. Because of the efforts of numerous persons in the medical field, a new clinic will soon be established, dedicated to serving their health needs.

Through the combined efforts of Ezekiel Abanishe, Dr. Burton Routman, Dr. Jack Spevak, and Dr. Joseph Herman, the clinic, formally titled the Pediatric Clinic, will open in mid-August at 1300 Hutton.

The Clinic will serve all types of medical needs, despite its name. It will be staffed by volunteers; nurses, osteopathic college students, and Mercy Hospital interns. A physician will be on duty during clinic hours: Monday & Wednesday nights from 6:30 to 9:00 pm, and Saturdays from 1:00 to 5:00 pm. A social worker will also be available for consultation.

Ezekiel Abanishe, organizer of the East side facility, stated that the volunteer staff is enthusiastic about the endeavor. He noted that patients will not be asked to pay more than they can afford for services, but that payment would be worked out on an individual basis, thus allowing everyone access to quality medical care.

The Clinic is directing itself to the Black community, although this does not mean others are unwelcome. Remember the address, 1300 Hutton. This is long overdue for residents of Des Moines East side.

expand. Also they hope to develop commercial resort areas along the Gulf of Aqaba.

Worst off of the countries we visited seems to be Syria with nearly 200,000 refugees. Since the 1967 war, the country has been largely a wartime footing. Now peace has come and idle soldiers are everywhere. More economic development is urgently needed, they say.

But the principal preoccupation of the Arab people we visited is peace and the restoration of their land.

National News Briefs

Columbia---The Senate and House of the South Carolina Legislature voted recently to reinstate the death penalty, despite the veto of Governor John West. The vote will be tested in the courts, and speculations have it that the ruling could go either way. South Carolina is one of many Southern states with a large number of Black inmates on death row.

Washington, D.C.---The Dept. of Health, Education, and Welfare is scheduled to file suit against the state of Mississippi in an effort to force desegregation of its high education system.

Chicago---Rev. Jesse Jackson of Operation PUSH announced recently that the slaying of Mrs. Martin Luther King, Sr. was not the act of a single, deranged individual, but a part of a conspiracy. Jackson believes the slaying was politically motivated, designed to stir riots in the Black community, thus alienating whatever support Blacks have from others in their quest for freedom.

Atlanta---Georgia State Representative Julian Bond said recently that Black voting trends in the South indicate a very real possibility that 10 more Blacks will be elected to the Georgia Legislature.

Washington, D.C.---Armed Services officials announced recently that Black armed forces personnel could reach 25% of the total service population.

Washington, D.C.---Black Congressman Parren Mitchell has introduced legislation that would allow certain suits to be filed against the U.S. for reasons of assault, false arrest, and false imprisonment. The U.S. is currently immune to this type of action.

Chief Justice Warren

The death of Chief Justice Earl Warren removes from the scene a figure whose career as a public servant, particularly on the United States Supreme Court bench, will long be remembered. Brown vs. the Board of Education, which outlawed segregation in the public schools, struck a blow which was an impetus to the cause of other civil rights gains and came at a time when the public was in a more acceptable mood.

The national news media gave little attention to the school decision in reporting his death as was done about others who have made great contributions in the field of human rights. A current example of this is pointed up in a report of the career of the late Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon who died this week.

These men did something which will long be remembered beyond words which are often forgotten. Fortunately for America, trying times have brought men to the front who have come on the scene and made contributions which helped to clear the way for continued improvement in human dignity. Chief Justice Warren was one of them.

Poor Apprenticeship Showing

Today, the building construction contractors have been crying for men to help pick up the slack caused by strikes and bad weather this year. So far, they have not been able to fill the gap which makes one question just how effective these programs have been.

During the past years apprenticeship programs have spent a lot of money in an attempt to train skilled labor both white and black. They have been at it long enough to have taken the basic training and on the way toward completion of their apprenticeship.

Just where these trainees are is a mystery. I see no Negroes filling these jobs and yet they have been the ones who have been excluded heretofore. These are apprenticeship opportunities which young men should not overlook.

Looking Up

Dartmouth College in Hanover, Mass., one of the Ivy League schools, has named Marcus Jackson as head basketball coach.

Jackson has coached at Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where he compiled a record of 56 wins and 14 losses. His team was rated nationally and had the best record of any team in Iowa the past two years including 24 to 1 the 1972-73 season.

Jackson is one of the few Negro coaches in big time college sports which is recognizing ability more and more without regard to color of a man's skin.

Busing Resolution Out

Two resolutions were introduced at the Republican State convention Saturday, July 20, which would add a plank preventing busing in the public school as a means of integration.

Two Negro delegates were among those opposing the adoption of the resolution, Cora Douglas, Assistant to Governor Ray and I.

The first resolution did not get a second while the other was debated extensively and opposed by most of the speakers. The vote was overwhelmingly against the resolution and this the delegates adhered to the long established policy of keeping race out of its platform.

Urban Renewal- Do It Yourself

by Habiba

Remember when Center Street used to pop to the tune of jukeboxes and bands? Remember when folks in the Oakridge area lived in their own homes, had garages for their cars, had good-sized yards for their children to enjoy? Remember when Oakridge was a community of people, not a project area and a bunch of parking lots?

Who sold the people of Oakridge out? Who convinced them to sell at a loss the land and homes they had worked years to own? Who convinced Mrs. Woods, who supported numerous grandchildren and an invalid husband, that paying rent on a house across the freeway would be superior to living in a house she owned? And who purchased her home for a few hundred dollars, when she had invested thousands in its acquisition and upkeep?

The story of Oakridge is a pitiful one. Today, no neighborhood exists, only some quasi-apartment houses, known throughout the rest of the country as projects. Children no longer play ball in the streets; they are confined to a small, inadequate project playground. The streets are no longer safe, they have been widened and see a steady stream of traffic, mostly suburbanites on their way home to neighborhoods where their children play safely on untrafficked avenues.

Do-it-yourself urban renewal has to do with self-help. One renews their own urban property, in cooperation with neighbors. One thinks positively of the community concept, less positively of being uprooted and moved to another area at the whims of City Councilmen and big business. One begins to understand that if something as big as city government wants their property, it must be worth owning, and one makes plans to keep that valuable commodity, rather than selling it for pennies on the dollar value.

As downtown Des Moines creeps further and further west, Black owned properties in the 'neighborhood' become desirable for future building. As plans to revitalize the downtown area are subtly developed, the community around University & Forest Avenues becomes subject to scrutiny. Because a large number of Black people live in that area, we should be paying attention to what's in the wind, unless we want to end up like Oakridge, with plenty of nothing.

Within a few years, the numbered streets and avenues in the Model Cities area will be prime property. Black folks need to begin an immediate do-it-yourself urban renewal program. Are you worthy of a clean, well-maintained community? If you answered yes, get to it. Nobody else will do it for you. You've got a choice, maintain your property or watch it turn into a parking lot, where nobody, especially you, parks free.

Letter To The Editor

Well here I come again, giving some unrequested advice. A very tragic incident occurred in Atlanta, Georgia recently. A man who is undoubtedly ill, involved himself in a tragic dramatization of something he felt. No one will dispute the fact that this man has exhibited unorthodox, pathological behavior, but there is a lesson that must not be missed.

The Church as an institution is not preparing its members to meet a new era by proper applicability of persistent teaching and instilling within the minds of men the Word of God, sharper than a two-edged sword. Some Black Ministers are busy pimping, conning, misleading, conniving, and stealing. We see far too little dedication and involvement by our black ministers, in community problems, racial disharmony, drugs, men & women on their way to prison & hell, children on their way to miscellaneous varieties of fantasies, myths, and games of let's pretend, escapism, and whatever, to escape realities that should be eradicated, and replaced with sound doctrine.

Marcus Wayne Chenault has given a lesson in the University of hard knocks, the school of experience, and fools will learn in no other, our eyes are shut, our lips mumbling the Lord's Prayer, the world is rapidly digressing, men's minds are becoming totally devoted to fantasy. This man is not to be excused it's true, but he is asking a question, "If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare Himself for the battle?" It would be well for us to take that question a bit further; what kind of man, woman, or child is this, who calls himself a child of God, a "Christian", who submits readily to authority, when it oppresses, when it expresses his inner conviction, and opens a door of opportunity, when it is alien to his spirit, restrains him, and literally robs him of his mind, dignity, and often times the soul & spirit, all in the name of justice, equality, brotherhood. A little good, a little bad, some win, some lose, some gain, some are disregarded altogether, for instance, those who have reached the age of 70 and over.

Finally, the trumpet must be certain, this letter is endeavoring to sound the report in a certain manner, not uncertain men are victimized by their quest after a voice that shall speak to them with authority. In education, in religion, in politics, in all realms of action, men seek truth in the sure knowledge that the truth alone will make them free.

The road may be long, the obstacles seem insurmountable, the cause seems well nigh hopeless, I beg you to check your trumpets in Iowa, if the trumpet sound is uncertain, nobody will prepare himself for the battle, if the trumpet sounds the true report, and you listen, free men will rise and conquer evil.

I sit here in prison, all of you have left me to bear the burden in the heat of this day alone, I know that God specializes, and Has brought me safe thus far, I yet love the task for which I surrendered, I cannot say much more, so let me simply say, as I continue for the cause of my people, pray for me, not long prayers with your eyes shut, while the world explodes, and others like you continue to sleep through a revolution, but simply say in my behalf, Lord, let your Will be done on earth as it is in Heaven, wherever Heaven truly is, as I continue as a Black Baptist Minister to do His Will.

Black Organizations Attack Broadcast Bill

The Broadcast License Renewal bill, which would extend licenses from three to five years, was sharply attacked recently by Jim McCuller, of the National Black Media Coalition, on the grounds that it is "anti-civil rights."

Testifying before the Senate Commerce Committee's Subcommittee on Communications, Mr. McCuller warned that passage of the bill "will totally demolish any hopes Black citizens may have for entry into broadcasting."

Legislation similar to that which is being considered by Congress was withdrawn in 1969 after strong Black opposition on the ground that its effect in making tougher challenges to license renewals was racist.

"If anything," Mr. McCuller continued, "it is more racist today than it was then, for in the past five years, most of the major cable TV franchises... the potentially profitable television assignments have been grabbed up by Whites..." He added that even the FM band has become unduly crowded with White broadcasters.

He accused the broadcasting industry with "vigorously and bitterly opposing every single proposal for increasing Black ownership and access to broadcasting."

Black groups are objecting to the following provisions in the license renewal bill: proposed extension of the license term from 3 to 5 years for radio and TV stations; the ban on consideration of cross-ownership of local newspaper and broadcast facilities at license renewal time; and the provisions which make it impossible for a challenger to a license to win the license from the incumbent — provisions which would apply retroactively to the more than 20 competing applications, most with Black organizers or principals, which have, in some cases, been awaiting FCC action for nine years.

Black Mayors Oppose License Renewal Bill

SAN DIEGO — In a meeting held Sunday at the Convention Center, the National Black Caucus of Local Elected Officials (NBC/LEO) unanimously adopted a resolution to oppose in strenuous terms a bill in the United States Senate that would expand from three years to five years the license terms of the nation's broadcasters.

The thrust of the resolution suggests that passage of the Broadcast License Renewal Act of 1974 would effectively foreclose further opposition of minorities to challenge incumbent licensees and prevent the needs and interests of the constituents of the members of NBC/LEO from being aggressively served. Moreover, the resolution condemning the legislation says its passage would remove from the grasp of minorities the opportunity for ownership of broadcast facilities and especially VHF-TV outlets.

NBC/LEO members were moved to adopt a resolution following a background briefing on the issues by Bill Wright, founder of Black Efforts for Soul in Television (BEST) in Washington, D.C., and one of three acknowledged Black experts in the nation of cable television. Wright, now a resident of Oakland, California, urged the organization to adopt as its own the strongest possible language in condemnation of the legislation.

"Community needs are, if anything, changing more swiftly than ever before," the resolution protests, "which should suggest a need for a shorter not a longer renewal period." The members of NBC/LEO drafted a telegram of opposition to the bill and sent it to Senator Pastore. Each member of NBC/LEO is committed to request time to testify before the Subcommittee in opposition to the bill.

NAB. Answers Opposition

To Broadcast Bill

An organized and determined effort is being made to get Black organizations to try to defeat the Broadcast License Renewal bill now pending before the Communications Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee.

The organizers of this effort are misleading such organizations with charges that the bill would prevent minorities from challenging a station's license, that it would forever prevent minorities from owning radio and television stations and that it would relieve stations of their obligation to hire, train and promote minority people.

None of these allegations is true. If they were, the 8-members of the Black Caucus who supported the legislation would never have done so.

The bill, which passed the House and is now before the Senate Subcommittee, will not deprive Blacks or anyone else from challenging an application for renewal; nor will it prevent any minority from acquiring a radio or TV station; neither does it affect their rights to file a competing application for a station; nor will it relieve stations of their obligation to hire Blacks and members of other minority groups, and being responsive to their needs.

Petition to deny, which invariably is the route taken by Black Groups, would not be affected by the legislation. The legislation affects only competing applications. Such applications have never been filed by Black or minority groups, but rather by well-heeled groups of businessmen who are willing to risk a half million dollars in legal expenses on the chance they may wrest away a license worth twenty or thirty times those expenses. The bill would correct the effect of the court decisions which created the broadcast industry instability on which these business groups are preying.

The bill requires only that the Federal Communications Commission consider the job done by the licensee and grant that licensee credit if his performance has been substantially responsive to the needs and interests of the public. That is a fair resolution of the issue. If he has done a poor job, then he receives no credit and takes his chances against a competing application on equal footing.

Statements have been made that a 5-year license term will shut out the minority groups. The bill reported by the House, far from shutting out minority groups, requires the broadcasters to meet and deal with those in his community who may have comments or suggestions about the operation of the station. In truth, this merely cements into practice something that most broadcasters have been doing for years as a matter of good judgement. The broadcaster is licensed to serve the public and he is engaged in a constant dialogue to determine the needs and interests of the public. Station files will continue to be open to the public which is invited bi-monthly on the air by the station itself to come in and inspect them. Members of the public are also encouraged to contact the station with any question or complaints. This dialogue would not be inhibited by the bill and in fact will probably be enhanced.

Further, nothing in the proposed law will affect the FCC's on-going scrutiny of broadcasting stations. Broadcasters will still have to file annual program, financial and employment reports with the FCC and to promptly report any changes in ownership or program service. The Commission will monitor station operation throughout the broadcast term, not just at renewal time. Stations will also continue to be subject to detailed, periodic on-site inspections by Commission personnel to insure compliance with all applicable rules. If at any time during the license period the Commission finds fault with a station's performance, it has wide discretion to have it promptly corrected. It can send out a cautionary warning, impose a monetary fine, or in the extreme situation, institute license revocation proceedings.

The License Renewal bill passed by the House of Representatives will not limit these FCC activities in any way. Nor will the minority groups find a less responsive broadcaster if his renewal is extended to five years. The bill represents a fair balance between the broadcaster's acknowledged public responsibility and the requirement for stability that is necessary to operate a station.

Community Focus

This week's question was: "Do you think local TV & radio stations broadcast enough programs for Blacks, Chicanos, and Indians?"

Charlie Mae Bell (housewife): "I don't think the stations, radio or TV are responsive to ethnics in the area, especially TV."

Sy Forrester (teacher): "I think it's a shame that every time my kids turn the radio on they have to tune in Omaha. And if it weren't for Black Journal, television would be out of the question."

Shirley F. Brown (secretary): "I don't think they are doing a bad job. But I am sorry we lost KYNA. We need a radio station controlled by Black people in Des Moines."

Claude Thadys (bartender): "To tell the truth, no! I feel there is very little programming on television or radio that is relevant to minorities. There are a few programs that are picked up from the national networks that are classified as Black entertainment, but nothing that relates to the other communities of ethnic persons mentioned."

There is a distribution program taking shape throughout the Midwest which is causing attention to be focused anew on the followers of Islam, led by the Hon. Elijah Muhammad.

During the past week, many people have noticed a big red truck bearing a large lettered sign, "Eat Fish". The four young men manning the truck are students of Islam who are helping to establish what they and the program's director, Minister Edwin Taylor, hope will become a nation-wide low cost food distributorship to the Black populated communities. The names of the young brothers are Taylor X, Sheldon X, Robert X, and L'mer X. Their route is comprised of southern Illinois and Iowa. The fish being sold is said to have been caught from the waters off Peru and processed in a plant owned and operated by Muslims to be shipped to America.

Just as any recounting of the history of Black Americans must involve relationships between interest groups within the community, so must it involve the relationship between Blacks and whites.

Temple University Press has published a long-awaited history of Blacks in World War I. Entitled The Unknown Soldiers, authors Arthur Barbeau and Florette Henri have produced a book true to the spirit of Black people. With the addition of sixteen pages of photographs, the lives of Black American soldiers unfold, complete, at best tolerable, and in keeping with the worst experiences of Black history.

Though the book recounts the pain Black soldiers were subject to, all is not unpleasant. A particularly positive passage refers to the French government's refusal to accept white American officers' directives to treat Black soldiers as inferior beings. The French rejected the call for racist treatment, and declared Black soldiers welcome in France.

For readers interested in Black Iowa history, The Unknown Soldiers contains several pages of history of the Colored Officers Training Camp at Fort Des Moines.

Perhaps much of the book's value lies in its effort to follow the soldiers home after the war. Here we see white fear of Black men manifest itself as it usually does, in savagery and violence. Here unfolds the brutality white America is noted for. Not a pleasant reading experience, but the truth as Black people know it.

The Unknown Soldiers is recommended, not as enjoyable material, but as an indispensable source of one aspect of Black history, and perhaps as a way to keep the fires burning in the souls of Black folks.

The Unknown Soldiers, Black American Troops in World War I. Temple University Press, 1974. By Arthur Barbeau and Florette Henri.

Going To The Jazz Festival In K.C.?

HERE ARE SOME SUGGESTIONS.

1. If you sent for tickets, but haven't received them, don't panic. Most are being held at the Box Office for pick-up upon your arrival at the Royals Stadium.
2. Just to be sure, take along your canceled check or money order receipt. There are bound to be mix-ups, but if you've got proof of payment, you'll get your seats. (Plenty of good seats left.)
3. Hotel & motel accommodations are practically impossible to come by. If you haven't reserved a room in a motel or made arrangements to stay with friends or family, you'll have a hard time. Take care of accommodations immediately. (Holiday Inns in K.C. Mo. are full.)
4. If you're not traveling by car, make arrangements for transportation immediately. This time of year, buses and planes are already full. Get tickets right away.
5. Be Cool and Enjoy!

A New Comedian On The Horizon

Franklyn Ajaye

It's difficult to get a funny man to be serious. He sits across the table, and although he doesn't smoke, he insists on chewing a cigarette to calm his nerves. Suddenly, a wave of seriousness sweeps over his brow as he tries to recall childhood incidents, the thought of which forces his face to break out in yet another enormous smile.

It was at school, in the third grade: I was really smart and able to finish all the class assignments before anyone else, even the Japanese kids. Then I would just sit there and say crazy things to make the other kids laugh. Finally, one day after class, my third-grade teacher came up to me and said, "Franklyn, you know, you ought to be a comedian." I didn't know what that meant, so I just said, "Same to you," and left.

Throughout his elementary, junior high, and high school career, Franklyn found that he could not only amuse the students but the teachers, too. "Franklyn, you're the craziest student I've ever had," was a phrase Franklyn would often hear, particularly when he was pretending to parachute from his seat on to the classroom floor. But he was such a good student that his teachers never reprimanded him.

So Franklin managed to laugh his way through college, where he majored in history. After graduating from U.C.L.A., Franklyn attended Columbia Law School in New York City. He found law school a particularly alienating experience and decided to work seriously at becoming a comedian. He made the rounds of the Greenwich Village clubs and coffee bars trying to get his act together. Franklyn listened to Richard Pryor's albums whenever he was confronted with a comedic problem: "Richard Pryor influenced me cause he showed that you could rap about the black experience and still make it."

When Franklyn's scholarship money ran out he returned to Los Angeles, where he took a regular nine-to-five job, making frequent appearances at the Comedy Store, a club designed to give old and new comedians a chance to work on routines in front of audiences. Eventually, he was spotted by Wally Amos, who was the talent co-ordinator for the syndicated show Black Omnibus. Wally put Franklyn on the show and soon afterward became Franklyn's personal manager.

After a hoot-night appearance at the Troubadour in Los Angeles, Franklyn was asked to appear as the opening act for Jerry Butler. One night during this engagement, A&M's president, Jerry Moss, happened to be in the audience; Moss was so impressed by Franklyn's humor that he asked him to become an A&M recording artist.

On his second album, I'm a Comedian, Seriously, Franklyn aims his irreverent wit at such topics as African culture, hippy professors, homosexuals, jammed zippers, busty women, partying, intimidation, movies, and street crime. Recorded live at the Pasadena Ice House, the album displays the unexpurgated Ajaye, and this performance will be a revelation to those who've only seen Franklyn perform on television. As on his first album, Franklyn Ajaye: Comedian, all the material here was derived from events and situations that either happened to Franklyn or that he observed firsthand. "After thinking about these events," he says, "I found something in each one to laugh about. It'd be hip if you'd join me." I'm a Comedian, Seriously was produced by Wally Amos.

Franklyn has appeared on such television shows as The Flip Wilson Show, The Tonight Show, Midnight Special, The Merv Griffin Show, and The Mike Douglas Show. Major club appearances have included the Bitter End-New York City, the Bijou Cafe-Philadelphia, the Cellar Door-Washington, Paul's Mall-Boston, the Troubadour-Los Angeles, and Ebbetts Field-Denver. Franklyn is currently working on the pilot for a projected television variety series, Cotton Club '75.

Black National Landmarks: Part II

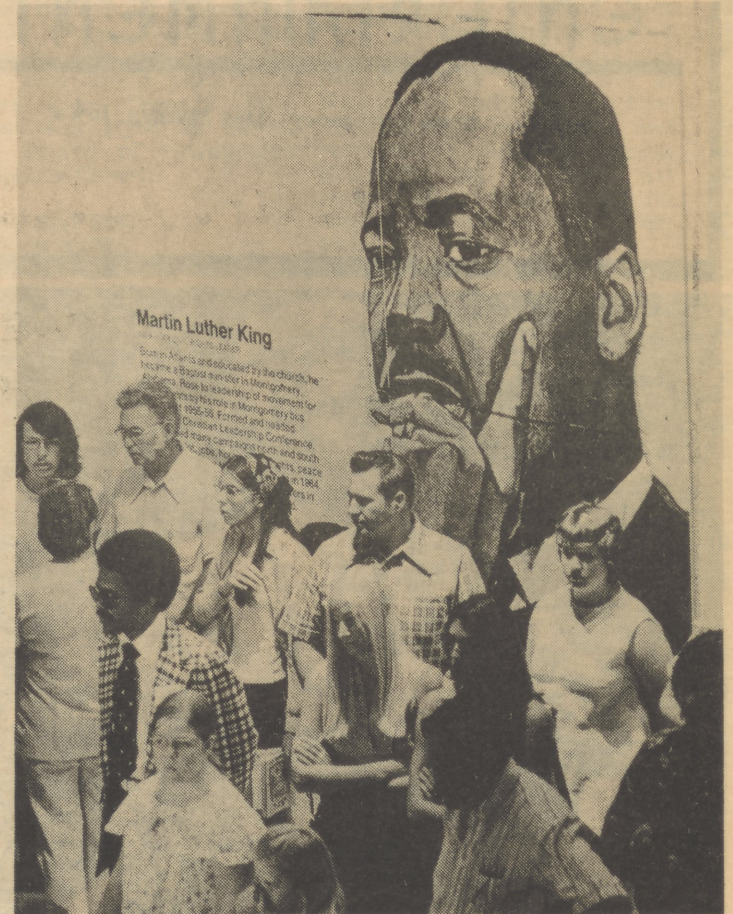

Yucca Plantation, "Melrose, Louisiana. Yucca Plantation (now known as Melrose Plantation) was established between 1775 and 1800 by a former slave, Madame Marie Therese Coin-Coin Metoyer, who later became a slave owner herself. As mistress of Yucca Plantation, she was a property owner and a wealthy businesswoman at a time when most black women were slaves and most white women had no identity apart from their husbands. The African design of the earliest buildings on the plantation, perhaps the only extant structures of this kind in the Nation, reflect Madame Metoyer's refusal to adopt European models of architecture around her.

The estate includes Yucca House, believed to be the original residence, a later plantation house of French Colonial style, and several outbuildings, the most important of which, African House, is a unique building whose great overhanging upper story creates an umbrella-like appearance, believed to be of African derivation. Plans are being made to open it to the public on a regular basis.

Port Hudson, Port Hudson, Louisiana. Two Union regiments of New Orleans free blacks and Louisiana ex-slaves participated in an assault on Port Hudson, a Confederate stronghold in Louisiana on the lower Mississippi. The attack failed but the blacks were able to advance over open ground in the face of deadly fire. Captain Andrew Callioux of the regiment known as Native Guards encouraged his troops for the final attack despite a shattered arm; he died running ahead of them crying, "Follow me," in French and then in English. In all, 600 of 900 black men died at Port Hudson. The battlefield is still relatively undisturbed. Privately owned; open to the public on a restricted basis.

Paul Cuffe Farm, 1504 Drift Road, Westport, Massachusetts. Paul Cuffe was one of the most prominent black men of the 18th and early 19th centuries. In some ways, his life, as revealed in his Journal and "Letterbook,"

Memorial Services For Mrs. King At Expo '74

SPOKANE--Sadness is reflected in the faces of visitors to the Expo '74 World's Fair who attended memorial services for Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr. in the Afro-American Pavilion. Mrs. King's son is prominently featured in an exhibit of famous black Americans in the pavilion, the first major exhibit of its type at any world's fair. More than five hundred persons attended the service.

is a classic example of rags to riches. He was a self-educated son of a freedman father and an Indian mother. Cuffe grew up on a farm of marginal value. He went to sea and became a prosperous ship owner, sea captain, merchant capitalist and philanthropist. Cuffe pioneered in the struggle for minority rights in Massachusetts and was involved in the vanguard of the movement for black settlement in Africa.

The Paul Cuffe house is a large two-story, rectangular, wood-shingle-sided frame house built circa 1797. Although somewhat altered, its original elements can still be seen in the interior, and portions of Paul Cuffe's docks, where he built and launched his ships, have been maintained. Privately owned; access is restricted.

Social Security Questions & Answers

QUESTION: I am only 16 years old but I work during the summer months while I am out of school. I earn over $75 per month but my employer never holds out any social security tax. He told me since my earnings were so low it wouldn't matter. He explained I would pay enough into social security after I was 21 for retirement and he advised me I couldn't draw disability regardless of what happened to me until I was 21. Am I being advised properly about my social security?

ANSWER: You most certainly are not being advised properly. You should call or visit your social security office immediately and provide that office with the name and address of your employer. There is no age requirement for receipt of disability benefits. There are even more liberal rules to qualify young people for disability benefits than older workers. Because your employer is not reporting your earnings you are losing valuable coverage that could be very important to you later. We can probably still get your earnings credited to your record for the last 3 summers if you came into the social security office without delay.

QUESTION: I have heard that people can now get Medicare coverage before age 65. What is the new age limit?

ANSWER: Since July 1, 1973, people who are under age 65 and have drawn a social security disability benefit for 2 years can be entitled. Anyone else must wait until age 65.

QUESTION: When I was young I went to a social security office to get a number and was issued a card the same day. Can my children do this?

ANSWER: No. It now takes about 3 to 4 weeks to receive a social security number so anyone needing one should apply well in advance.

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF INTENT TO APPLY FOR A FEDERAL MANPOWER TRAINING GRANT

This is to give notice that the Central Iowa Regional Association of Local Governments (CIRALG) intends to apply for a grant from the U.S. Department of Labor to administer a job training and placement program. The area to be served by the program will be the following eight counties in the Central Iowa area: Boone, Dallas, Jasper, Madison, Marion, Polk, Story and Warren. The program will be called the Central Iowa Comprehensive Manpower Program (CICOMP). The amount of the grant request is $3,097,400 to operate the program for the thirteen (13) month period from August 1, 1974 through August 31, 1975.

The enabling legislation is the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) of 1973, which was signed by President Nixon and thereby became law on December 31, 1973.

1973. This Act makes it possible to have unified manpower programs to serve the entire labor market area through one grant and one administering agency. Programs under the CETA will supplant the present system of separately funded and operated programs: e.g., the Concentrated Employment Program, Neighborhood Youth Corps and Manpower Development and Training Act vocational training programs. The functions of the current programs will be carried out by the new unified program (CICOMP). Also, it is planned to transfer the remaining unspent funds from these programs into the CICOMP. This amount is anticipated to be about $576,000.

The number of people to be served in the training components to be provided by the CICOMP, and the budgeted amounts for each component, are as follows: Comprehensive Manpower Services for 1221 people, including work orientation, work sampling, basic education and work experience $569,830; vocational training for 385 people - $1,377,623; on-the-job training for 190 people - $84,550; upgrading for 240 people - $94,646; youth work experience and counseling for 323 people - $271,392; summer youth employment for 592 people - $339,930. The budgeted amounts for services to clients are as follows: outreach and intake - $46,224; counseling and coaching - $137,614; job development and placement - $160,126; physical supportive services - $66,908; central administrative staff - $300,457; overhead and operating expenses - $224,400. The total administrative costs in this budget are $703,413, or 19.1 percent of the total budget.

In order to be eligible for CICOMP, the Federal regulations state that individuals must be either unemployed, underemployed or meet federal poverty income guidelines. After meeting one of the Federal criteria, priorities for enrollment into CICOMP will be determined by using a point system. This point system will take other factors into account, such as head of household, Viet Nam veteran, or public assistance recipient. The people with the greatest relative need will be enrolled after taking all eligibility factors into account. The levels of enrollment have been allocated to each county on the basis of population.

The total number of people planned to be enrolled into the CICOMP is 2,103. It is planned to enroll adults (18 years and older) with the following characteristics: unemployed - 1,065; underemployed - 118; economically disadvantaged - 1,065; public assistance recipients - 355; Viet Nam veterans - 59; heads of household - 828; non-high school graduates - 946. The program will enroll youth (age 14-18) with the following characteristics: economically disadvantaged - 920; school dropouts - 736.

The adult target groups identified as most in need of services will be placed in unsubsidized employment at the rate of 65 percent, which it is anticipated will reduce the number of poor in the area by 12 percent. The number of youth who will be able to stay in school as a result of Youth Work Experience is anticipated to reduce the area dropout rate by 8 percent.

sports

by Allen Ashby

Time was when the summer months were for a few sports such as baseball, softball, tennis and such. But now you have anything you can think of in just about any sport in just about any month. For instance, The American basketball team competed in the world championship games and finished third. As I look at the roster of cagers on the U.S. team I can't help but be just a little surprised that they did that well. To use an example, there is John Lucas, who has been called probably one tennis player who could play on the pro circuit and win his share of money. But here he is playing basketball. He came through a twenty-five or six or more games scheduled during the regular college season. Then he goes into this thing, and they play all summer, and I would have to bet he has a time keeping his mind off tennis. So the team, just about all of whom have had the same schedule as has Lucas, are likely played out by the time these games roll around. It is small wonder that they have what some writers called a lackadaisical performance. Maybe they should have had a few more of them earlier, and then they could have gotten ready for the games.

As you get used to reading basketball scores in July, you are hit with football, professional, in this same month, but the regular all star game has been canceled. There is news of the player strike hot off the press, as if it were an earth shaking thing. I don't know how the rest of you feel about it, but I am just a little fed up with strikes by players who make almost as much in a month as my dad made in ten years. And the club owners are not without blame. I read somewhere that to most of them owning a pro baseball or football club is to have a new toy. What they don't know about the game played by their team would fill a whole volume of books, but they often try to take over and run the whole operation, telling the experienced coaches and general managers what players to get rid of and to keep. How many of them would hire any one who didn't know beans about the business they made their money in to run that business? And if they got a good general manager, how many of these owners would try to take over the running of the thing if it was making money. The silliest thing I can think of is the way the owners fire a manager or coach when his team loses. The guy may have had an injury list that reads like a battle casualty list, or the management may have been too tight to get him, the key players he needs to make a winner. Maybe they let a high draft choice go because he cost too much money. Now, they can't fire an entire baseball, football or basketball club, so they fire the manager or coach. When you read where some coach or such turned a team around, look at the player roster. You can bet that the new head got a few key players and these made the difference.

There are just so many moves a team head can make during a game according to the situation, and he has to have the people who can execute those moves for him. Without them, the best he can do is send somebody out and hope he is lucky enough to make the right move. Well, now that I have taken a swipe at the club owners, let's get back to the original subject. You can watch tennis indoor and outdoor all year around, and that was once purely a summer sport. Now maybe they will come up with summer ice hockey and don't bet they don't. Of course there are the other summer sports such as softball, outdoor volleyball and such, but they are shoved onto the back pages by the big news about the games we used to watch in the fall or winter. Where will it all end? In these days of air conditioned buildings, one would be foolish to make a guess, but I would say that it will maybe slow down at least when the people are unable or unwilling to pay the top dollar for sports entertainment. And that may be sooner than you think.

Just a reminder: Our Hilltop Open tennis meet starts next Wednesday, July 31, at the Birdland courts. You can still get in until Saturday, July 27 at 10:00 p.m.

Dragons Finish 2nd In City Softball Tournament

The Des Moines Dragons, sponsored by the Hawkeye Elks Lodge No. 160, were the winners of the United Division in the Des Moines City Softball Tournament. In defeating Reames on Friday, 6 to 5 in eight innings, the Dragons won the United Division and qualified to meet the D.M. Merchants, winners of the States Division for the City Championship.

On Saturday night with the stands filled with enthusiastic fans, the Dragons played the D.M. Merchants for the City Softball Championship. In the first game of the evening the Dragons defeated the Merchants, handing them their first defeat of the double elimination tournament. The Dragons, who were defeated by Reames on Thursday, absorbed their second defeat of the tournament during the second game and were therefore eliminated from the double elimination tournament and the Merchants were the winners. The Dragons finished 2nd out of 42 teams that began play on June 30.

The Dragons, coached by "Bud" Collins, Luther Witt and Irv Clark; C.P. Vending, coached by Moe Euebanks and the Jets, coached by Bob White have all qualified for the Sub-State Tournament to be held at Bomber Park in Des Moines on August 1-4, 1974.

to these men and women who have risked their lives in defense of our Country. Upon returning home, these veterans have found that the VA hospitals were ill-equipped to treat their disabilities and addictions, that there were no jobs available for them, that their educational benefits were totally inadequate, and that their Country only wanted to forget about them."

Mr. Rangel further pointed out that "although the war has been over for more than two years, these problems continue to exist, the direct result of the Veterans Administration's failure to respond to the needs of Vietnam era veterans. The present rate of unemployment among Vietnam veterans is 10.6%, much higher than the national average."

The Congressional Black Caucus, with a constituency of nearly three-fourths of a million Black veterans, is particularly concerned with the needs of minority veterans. All of the problems facing veterans today are significantly magnified for minority veterans. The rates of unemployment, crime and drug addiction are significantly higher among minority veterans. The Veterans Administration appears to have completely ignored the special needs of minority veterans.

The Chairman of the Caucus further stated that "it is most important that the next head of the Veterans Administration take the lead in developing new programs to repay the debt which we all owe to these men and women who have served us with courage and dedication."

Public TV To Cover Judiciary Impeachment Debates

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) has announced plans for a series of nightly half-hour special reports when the House Judiciary Committee holds its debates on Articles of Impeachment against President Nixon. The programs are to be produced by NPACT, the National Public Affairs Center for Television.

At this time, plans call for the debates on possible articles of impeachment to be open to reporters, but not television cameras. NPACT correspondents and reporters will attend these sessions and report back on the day's events during each evening's program.

These reports, to be broadcast on the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network, Channels 11, Des Moines; 12, Iowa City; 24, Mason City; Waterloo; and 55, Marble Rock will summarize each day's proceedings and debates in the Judiciary Committee, supplemented by reporting from Capitol Hill and the White House. The sessions are expected to begin next week.

If the Judiciary Committee's proceedings should be opened to cameras, however, NPACT and PBS will provide a gavel-to-gavel taped replay of the day's sessions during prime-time evening hours, as previously planned. Such coverage would be similar to last year's prime-time coverage of the Senate Watergate Hearings.

The half-hour reports, which will air during the evening each day the Committee debates the Articles of Impeachment in open session, will be co-anchored by NPACT correspondents Paul Duke and Jim Lehrer with reporter-producer Chris Gaul and reporter Carolyn Lewis. NPACT producer: Alvin Goldstein.
