National News Briefs

Washington, D.C. — President Gerald Ford has named former New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller as Vice-President. Congress approved the choice enthusiastically.

Washington, D.C. — The Dept. of Justice has filed a suit against Bob Jones University of Greenville, South Carolina, charging racism. The University uses its religious orientation as grounds for denying Blacks admittance to the school. The University will lose its federal funding unless racist policies are changed.

Des Moines — The state of Iowa will receive approximately $57,000 in federal funds for use in community and school programs to fight drug abuse. Most of the money will be used to train personnel to correct drug abuse problems in their area.

Washington, D.C. — A South Carolina migrant farm operator has been indicted by a federal grand jury for conspiring to hold migrant workers in involuntary servitude. The farm operator is Black, the workers, white.

Ft. Dodge — Melvin Brown, Jr., a Black man is seeking a seat on the Ft. Dodge School Board this election year. See article on out-of-state page.

An Action Project

On August 9, 1974, the Gateway Resale Store, 1819 University, held an "Old-Fashioned Day Sale" — with employees dressed in fashions from the "Gay Nineties" era. Community response was enthusiastic.

The Gateway Resale Store has been in operation since March, 1974, and has served more than 6,000 customers since its opening day.

The store originated from, and is operated by the Gateway Opportunity Center under the auspices of Greater Opportunities, Inc., its parent organization.

The store has all kinds of furniture, clothing, household items and more — including some antiques, all donated by people of the Des Moines community as well as many surrounding areas such as Boone, Chariton, Carlisle, etc.

The store also donates clothing and household furnishings to needy families.

Mrs. Evelyn Davis, chairperson Pro Tem of the Gateway Board of Directors says, "The community is very proud of its store."

Although a large variety of items are available, there is a constant need for donations. Donated items can be delivered to the store at any time. For your convenience, a "drop box" has been placed outside, or you may call Gateway Resale Store, 282-5106 or the Gateway Center, 243-8685 for pick-up.

He Doesn't LOOK Black

by Habiba

The U.S. of A. has a new Vice President, and he sure doesn't look a thing like Shirley Chisholm. Doesn't sound like Shirley either, but then maybe that's the idea.

At least President Ford had the good sense to talk about a Black Vice-President. I wonder if he knew that Black folks kind of doubted he'd walk that walk after talking all that talk. No matter, we can use Ed Brooke in the Senate — he gives the place a break in its visual monotony.

Nelson Rockefeller, new Vice-President.

Nelson A. Rockefeller is our new Vice-President, and if you caught his acceptance speech, he said the right things. He pledged to be the Vice-President of all the people. He may be rich, but he's not terribly original, seems we heard something about "all the people" just a week or two ago.

Since a good percentage of the population is concerned about minority representation in government, Rockefeller was an excellent choice. He's a member of the minority minority group of them all — the super-rich. Not that "those people" have much in common with the poor, of-color population, but then nobody pinned Ford down to specifics. Rockefeller is here to stay; and there's nothing he can possibly know about poverty, racism or discrimination.

So much for a Black Vice-President in '74. Anybody care to bet on the skin tones of 1976?

Economics Are Viewed As Both Cause And Cure

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Harnessing the nation's resources and committing them to the improvement of the worsening economic condition of black Americans must command a priority position on President Gerald Ford's agenda for healing old wounds, asserts Eddie N. Williams, president of the Joint Center for Political Studies.

Acknowledging the gravity of the general economic picture in the United States, Williams insists nevertheless that the unchecked erosion of the black economic condition over the past five years threatens to wipe out the catch-up gains blacks were beginning to make in the sixties.

Williams cautioned that the economic outlook for black Americans today is so alarming that "it is imperative that President Ford fully grasp the implications" of the current rollback of advances achieved with some pain by minorities in earlier years.

Writing his commentary in Focus, the monthly newsletter of the Joint Center for Political Studies, Williams remarked: "Today, nearly nine percent of the black labor force is unemployed. The overall unemployment rate in the U.S. is 5.2 percent and is expected to reach six percent soon. When it does, black unemployment could soar to 13 percent, or some 1 million persons. In some ghetto communities right now, unemployment rates are estimated at 30 percent."

Williams continued: "The unemployment crisis suggests that it is already past time to get down to fundamental issues and to seek answers to hurting problems. The beginning of that process will be the time when everybody's good faith and pragmatism will be tested."

The latter comment relates to President Ford's endorsement of pragmatic politics as an appropriate means by which blacks can achieve minority goals. Ford urged such a course during his speech last month before the annual convention of the National Urban League in San Francisco — his last address as vice president before a major national group.

For a beginning of the Ford administration, Williams suggested as one remedy for black's economic malaise a serious consideration of public service employment which, if implemented properly, "can be an effective instrument of social policy for increasing and upgrading minority employment and for reducing poverty and dependency."

He cautioned that government — federal, state and local — has been discriminatory in hiring policies and practices. Thus, said Williams, blacks must insist on ironclad assurances that the needy get the jobs under any public employment scheme. In that connection, he urged blacks to encourage the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to freely exercise its recently-acquired authority to force remedies for the scandalous conduct of state and local governments.

Emergency measures to reach minorities are justified, said Williams, because black unemployment, as presently defined, is only the tip of the iceberg. "There are also untold numbers of blacks who leave the labor market altogether out of an inevitable despair prompted by discrimination and lack of jobs," Williams observed. "They are the invisible labor force dropouts who are not even counted in unemployment statistics. Clearly, something must be done in a hurry."

IEWS and REVIEWS

by James B. Morris

Rockefeller--An Excellent Choice

President Ford has named former Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, Vice President. He should be confirmed promptly.

Mr. Rockefeller was my choice in the beginning. He was my choice each time he attempted to secure the Republican nomination for President.

He was in the lead of candidates all along but not without opposition from those who said he was too liberal, was too rich, and that he was one of the oil tycoons who helped to trouble the energy situation last winter, plus a phony charge that he helped finance an effort to disrupt the 1972 National Democratic Convention. The later two charges faded away and in the light of his service to several presidents, both Democratic and Republican, and his known record as a fine executive, administrator and citizen interested in peace with all men whether in America or abroad overrides the other objectives. The Watergate prosecutor has given his blessing to his clean record.

Fortunately for the country, the interest of the Rockefeller fortune in human relations did not begin with his political career but dates back to his grandparents. Spellman Seminary (now Spellman College) an outstanding undergraduate school in Georgia for Negro girls bears his grandmother's maiden name.

His father served on the board of Tuskegee Institute while I was a student at Hampton and I had occasion to observe him as head of a committee which raised an endowment fund for the two schools, and one-third of the goal was contributed by him.

The Rockefeller fortune has played a prominent part in the education of Negroes for almost a century and it is being continued not only for education but also provide jobs in concerns of which he is a member.

He was the first Republican Governor of New York since Thomas Dewey having been elected four times. He was able to do this because of the respect and confidence of minorities in both races, helped to neutralize the enormous democratic majority in New York City.

Admittedly Ford leans somewhat to the right, President Ford wisely felt that in order to balance his administration he should look to one who was not only was an able individual but also whose view toward human rights were for all the people.

The country needs the leadership we have now, most people have indicated they will support it.

Closing Watergate

The Resignation of former President Nixon has presented the country with a unique problem. As such, he enjoys the emoluments of a former President. On the other hand, he is just a plain citizen subject to criminal prosecution. The sentiment in the congress is to rule out impeachment proceedings. What should be done in the way of criminal prosecution is up to the Watergate prosecutor. He has a hard decision to make.

Several of his aides have had their day in court, are serving time in jail and, in some cases, paid a heavy fine. It would be terrible to put a former President in jail but even though the woes and embarrassment which have come down upon him is strong punishment, I believe that he should be indicted for obstructing justice, placed on parole and required to pay a heavy fine.

This would eliminate the argument of unequal justice and at the same time close the Watergate mess which we have endured for many months.

Selective Law Observance

An interesting and unfortunate incident occurred in the Episcopal Church at the same time former President Nixon received his death blow forcing him to resign: one religious; one secular.

Resolutions have been introduced at several conferences of the Episcopal Church which would have permitted the ordination of women as priests. Each time the movement failed but judging from the sentiment at the last convention the rule will be changed at the next convention.

Three retired bishops claiming "a spiritual urge from above" ordained 11 women in defiance of the canons of the church. This action reminded me of some of the old school preachers who suddenly announced they had been "called to preach".

Unquestionably, the action of these bishops and those who support their views disregard the laws under which they had served for years and are no better examples of observing law and order than some of the actions committed by former President Nixon.

The action of these bishops is a poor example for young people who may feel that if spiritual leaders are able to select the laws they chose to obey then they should feel free to do likewise.

This attitude continues to add toward the crime rate in this country.

Open Letter From The Editor

The Bystander means many things to many people. It is welcomed in some households, tolerated in others, and considered foreign and irrelevant in far too many Black homes.

Many subscribers continue to receive (and read) this newspaper out of habit. Others have said they find no value in it beyond the church news. Still others want to see twelve pages of social news, and complain of the paper's political orientation. A few object to the consistent use of the term "Black", preferring instead to read of themselves as "Negro" or "colored."

Of all the negative attitudes expressed, the saddest and least understandable is the objection to "Black". Surely one is entitled to an apolitical approach to life, but rejection of the term "Black", the only identifying term not created by whites is tantamount to rejection of self. It comes as no surprise that persons who strongly dislike "Black" are the same persons who criticize the political orientation of news.

As much as one might like to return to the "good old days", when Black people complained among themselves about the inequities of American life and took little or no action as a group, "them days are gone for good." Today's world calls for personal involvement, it demands that each take a stand. The Bystander, as a Black institution, tries to take a politically progressive stand on behalf of its readers.

This attitude dismays a number of subscribers. Their obsession with religious and social life to the exclusion of all else is indicative of a reluctance to accept the present and relinquish the past. It is an unprogressive and stultifying attitude, not sanctioned editorially or otherwise by this newspaper.

Because our responsibility is to serve all of Iowa's Black community, our religious and social pages will remain a weekly feature. But so also will politically oriented news remain, and if all goes well, will increase, as there is great demand for this kind of content from more and more of our younger readers.

In the past few years, one particular personality has emerged who best embodies the Bystander's philosophy towards having the courage and desire to stand up and be counted.

Though a fictional character, "Miss Jane Pittman" remains in our hearts and minds; a constant reminder of the strength and awareness of Black people. Fictional or not, we would be doing Miss Jane a great injustice if we did not continue to educate and stimulate the minds of our readers. Who among us can forever deny the Miss Jane-ness we possess? The Bystander hopes to release the Miss Jane Pittman in every Black Iowan.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I am writing to let you know I read your article in the August 8th issue entitled "Save Mrs. Lewis-Organize Against Crime".

The Mrs. Lewises don't only need protection on the streets, they need protection in their homes as well as on the street. Their plight doesn't end just because they manage to get through the streets safely after cashing their pension checks.

There are people going around who are waiting for Mrs. Lewis when she gets home. She needs help in her home when she gets back there because these people are not seen when they enter her home or when they leave. And some of them don't give Mrs. Lewis a chance — they take her money and kill her and leave her dead in her home. And she lies there for 2 or 3 days before her body is found. I know this because I am having pressure put on me; blackmail, rape, and death pressure. These people have moved into my home and are trying to take it over. I had to move out of Oakridge because of some of these people. But now some of the same kind of people are near me again.

These people prey on elderly people. Senior Citizens need someone to stop in their homes a couple of times a day to see how they are faring. Believe me, I know something about this.

Contradictions Of The African Ruling Class

Copyright Institute of the Black
World 1974

One constructive outgrowth of the Sixth Pan-African Congress, which took place recently in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, was the increased discussion and analysis of today's Africa and Africans.

The following analysis of the African ruling class is taken from a longer article by Walter Rodney, an associate of the Institute and author of HOW EUROPE UNDER-DEVELOPED AFRICA. The full-length essay (entitled "Towards the Sixth Pan-African Congress") is available from the Institute, 87 Chestnut Street, S.W., Atlanta, Georgia 30314 for $1.00.

Since the Fifth Pan-African Congress in Manchester in 1945, the political geography of Africa has been transformed by the rise of some forty constitutionally independent countries presided over by Africans. Yet, following in the wake of the great pageant of the regaining of political independence, there has come the recognition on the part of many that the struggle of the African people has intensified rather than abated, and that it is being expressed not merely as a contradiction between Africa and Europe, but also as a conflict between the majority of the African people and a small African possessing class.

Before "independence," a small privileged and educated group of Africans expressed the grievances of many when they protested against discrimination, low wages, low prices for cash crops, colonial bureaucratic commandism, and the indignity of alien rule. But these leaders were reformers and not revolutionaries and their limitations were revealed in the character of the independence which they negotiated with colonialism. While demanding constitutional independence, they neglected a cardinal principle of Pan-Africanism: namely, the unity and indivisibility of the African continent. Throughout the continent, none of the successful independence movements rejected the basic validity of the national boundaries created by imperialism. To have done so would have been to issue a challenge so profound as to rule out the preservation of their own interests in the compromise independence worked out between themselves and their former rulers.

If the weakness of the present African leaders were the only problem, they could be dismissed as passive by-standers unable to make operational the potential of Pan-Africanism as an ideology of liberation. However, they maintain themselves as a class by fomenting internal divisions and by dependence on external capitalist powers. These policies are antithetical to Pan-Africanism. The record since independence confirms that the interests of the African rulers are as irreconcilable with genuine Pan-Africanism as genuine Pan-Africanism is irreconcilable with the interests of international capitalism...

All the activities of European and American business aim at perpetuating the division of the continent initiated at the time of the Partition (1885-1890). The African leaders are showing that they too seek to maintain division of the African people, since gaining their objective of formal independence. The only alliance which the African ruling class now vigorously defends is that with imperialism against the African people. Most

SIoux CITY

The bylaws of the Sioux City Black Caucus designates the month of September for appointment of a nominating committee to select candidates for 1974-75 officers. The Caucus will reconvene in September. All present officers are asked to have their books in order.

Ron James and Ernestine Boykin led the discussion at the home of James Holloway Thursday evening with Ass't. City Attorney Terry Timmons. There had been a television report on the environmental problems Mr. Holloway and neighbors were having with "Mid-Town Used Cars No. 2". After the television story and notification to the property owner that the neighborhood was taking him to court for environmental hazards, things began to happen. Junk cars were removed, car parts were removed from the sidewalks and oil and water pools were eliminated. Neighbors were often awakened at 2:00 am on week-ends when Mid-Town would bring in stock cars for repair. The noise of the motors could be heard for blocks.

When the Mid-Town manager heard of the neighborhood meeting with the Ass't. City Attorney, the lot was quickly rendered spotless. Neighbors could hardly believe their eyes, since they had no actual legal basis for a law suit. The group will continue to monitor the business to see that the neighborhood remains clean.

Gary Boykin was featured in the Sioux City Journal as a management trainee for J. C. Penny in Sioux City.

There is an increasing problem with men trying to pick up young children on the west side. Anyone having these problems should get the car's license number and a description of the man or men and contact Ernestine Boykin. She will be documenting information before going to Police Chief Hansen.

Filling Employment Need

Is Role Of The Minority Group

Springfield, Mass. — Despite the increasing demand for qualified minority professionals in many areas of employment, it has been often difficult for such applicants to achieve visibility in top companies around the country. And the companies themselves have been having a hard time finding the people it so vitally needs, at all levels.

The Minority Group of Springfield, Mass., a professional employment service operated under the aegis of two enterprising females, Brenda Walker and DiAnne Harris, specializes in planning and conducting the interaction that leads to placement of applicants with leading firms throughout the United States.

Working with David Francis, director of professional placement for the firm, Ms. Walker and Ms. Harris have established what they call "Career Weekends," a concept the firm introduced nationally at the National Urban League Conference in San Francisco, July 28-31.

Through the Career Weekend vehicle, they have provided a convenient and valid process by which professional minority candidates and serious-minded firms can get together. So far the concept is apparently off on the right track with the Group placing candidates in the fields of accounting, data processing, marketing, sales, engineering, administration and other areas with such firms as Aetna Fire Insurance, Burroughs, Corning Glass, Digital Equipment, Dow Corning, General Electric, IBM, J.C. Penney, McDonnell Douglas Aircraft and Xerox, among others.

"In essence we setup weekends in strategic regional locations where minority candidates and companies can have convenient access to each other, said Ms. Walker. "We conduct pre-screening of all individuals and submit them to firms participating in the Career Weekend."

"The candidate, through our auspices thus achieves a high level of visibility with a number of leading firms at no cost to himself. The companies pay a registration fee to review as many as 200 applicants in any weekend."

Ms. Harris explained that the companies are limited to 15 so that the weekends can be conducted in a professional and selective manner. The Minority Group, she said, is more interested in satisfying the need of both the applicant and the companies involved rather than putting a large number of unqualified people together with an unwieldy amount of firms.

The fast growing Career Weekend concept is providing a valuable service to both candidates and companies. The Minority Group is dedicated to keeping it that way.

Rev. & Mrs. Johnson Travel To Sioux City

Reverend and Mrs. Ivan J. Johnson motored to Sioux City, Iowa to attend the 50th Wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Walker on Saturday evening at the Sanford Community Center. Mr. and Mrs. Walker are members of Malone African Methodist Episcopal Church in Sioux City of which Rev. Johnson is the former pastor.

Honor and praise was given to these two people for their many contributions to the community in which they live and their dedication to their Church and the helping of those in need. Mrs. Walker has been a frequent visitor to Bethel A.M.E. Church here in Des Moines over the past few years. The Napoleon Walker's are considered second parents to Bethel's pastor and his wife.

They dined with his aunt, Mrs. Mary Etta McQuerry of 3124 6th Ave. Herbert Bundy, Mr. Butler's uncle, took pictures of all family members present at the dinner. Those present included; Margaret McQuerry and family, Carolyn Hill and family, and David Anderson.

The Butler family later visited Mrs. Betty Bibbs and family and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bundy and family. He was sorry he wasn't able to see all of his family. Mr. and Mrs. Butler attend the university in Orangeburg, South Carolina.

The Fair's The Thing

by Paula N. Quick

There are three more days left to the Iowa State Fair, and even if you haven't been able to get tickets to the Redd Foxx Show, there's no need to think the fair has nothing to offer you as a Black person.

While there are obvious Black attractions, such as the Gateway Dancers and Soul Food Day, the fair offers much to the Black community simply in terms of exposing other cultures.

Not enough of us get to travel abroad anyway. So, the genuine taste of life elsewhere featured at the fair is well worth taking advantage of.

The Spanish Pavilion is truly one of the fair's highlights.

Although it costs $1.00 to get in you're treated to a real "caseta" or "Spanish fair" inside. There's authentic Spanish Sangria, medieval Spanish singers, handicrafts and Flamenco dancers. Manolita Cano are a troupe of dancers well worth the admission price itself. There's no way you won't be mesmerized by soul of another kind — that of the Andalusian gypsy.

The Italian exhibit is something else again. While there are various crafts on sale, it's the food you'll probably like best.

There are meatball sandwiches, Italian club sandwiches, pepper steak sandwiches, which cost about $1.00 each. Of course, they're home-made.

When's the last time you went to an Hawaiian Luau? There's one every night at the International Place. It's $8.00, but consider how much it would cost to go to Hawaii.

And don't forget the Mexican restaurant located in the Cultural Center across from the Agricultural Building. The food's good and at a reasonable cost.

So if you're wondering what to do this week-end, consider the Iowa State Fair. You're bound to find something of interest.

Check Out Your Mind

BY Habiba

The fourth edition of a classic Black American history has recently been released by Alfred A. Knopf publishers. From Slavery To Freedom by John Hope Franklin now extends its historical view of Black history through 1973.

The book is a pleasure visually, and it feels good. It is cloth-bound, attractively jacketed, and heavy, promising hundreds of pages of information presented in an easily read, interesting manner.

From Slavery to Freedom abounds with photographs and illustrations. One of the most eye-opening sections of the book deals with Blacks in Latin America. After finishing this section, one feels a bond with the people of South and Central America, as their history and origin directly parallels that of Black Americans.

Though the price for this volume seems prohibitive, $13.95 is a steal for most. Franklin traces Black Americans from African origins through Black life in the U.S. today. All of that information, plus the detour through Latin America, provides the conscientious reader with a thorough knowledge of self.

If you've wondered which of the multitude of books dealing with Black history should be part of your library, From Slavery To Freedom deserves first choice. Franklin is a writer and scholar, he has the talent necessary to treat history, often written with a heavy hand, as the vital subject it is, boring few with his presentation. It is Black history at its best.

From Slavery To Freedom, A History of Negro Americans- by John Hope Franklin, Knopf Pub., $13.95, 1974.

New Moms Mabley Recording

Moms Mabley, whose irreverent folk humor has enlivened the American entertainment scene for more than 60 years, has just recorded a 2½-minute "sermon" about her first motion picture,

"Amazing Grace." The disc, produced by United Artists, is a humorous message about her new status as a motion picture star and also serves as an invitation to see her new film which is keyed to audiences of all ages and all groups.

Approximately 500 copies of the recording will be made available to church, community and educational groups through United Artists fieldmen across the country.

"Amazing Grace" is a Matt Robinson presentation also starring Slappy White, Rosalind Cash and Moses Gunn with Stepin Fetchit and Butterfly McQueen. Robinson produced from his own screenplay. Stan Lathan directed for release through United Artists, an entertainment service of Transamerica Corporation.

Moms Mabley, who is now in her mid-or late 70's, has already made a personal appearance tour in behalf of the picture with other members of the cast. Despite her age, she is tireless in her efforts to promote the picture which she believes should be seen by everybody. The film opens in selected cities this month.

Changing Rhythms

In the Denver Metropolitan area, as in any major city, there is a wide variety of musical talents that represent the various ethnic elements of the community. Beginning August 17 at 7:30 on Ch. 11& 12, CHANGING RHYTHMS offers exposure to black musical talents unknown outside their neighborhoods.

To the black community in Denver, music is more than a means to pass the time. It is many things: a life style, a philosophy, a direction, a goal, and to some a means to an end. In his quest for recognition, the black musician runs into many stereotype problems, stereotypes that are not only incorrect but which place him at a great disadvantage when he takes his talent outside his immediate community. CHANGING RHYTHMS, displaying talented blacks that are playing a wide variety of music, presents the views and feelings of the black population and shows how they are expressed through music.

Host Jim Alexander explains the styles of music and talks with the featured artists who perform on CHANGING RHYTHMS: Sa Sa Di, the Bill Jackson Trio, Sammy Mayfield and the Outcasts, the Macedonia Baptist Choir, Freddie-Henchie and the Soulsetters, John Bowie, the Cleophus Steele Quintet, Cecilia and Drusel White, Dave Summer's Monterey, Martha Mitchell, Mellow Moods, Cain's Clay and Era II.

For Black Students:

The Year-Round School: Should It Happen Here?

Hundreds of school systems in the United States today are experimenting with varieties of what they call the "year-round school" or "flexible school year" — any alternative to the traditional September to June school year.

According to the National Education Association, more than 40 different plans have been tried. At present, two are attracting particular interest.

In one, the "45-15" plan, students attend school for 45 days (nine weeks) and then have a three-week vacation. Usually, the student body is divided into four groups, which take their vacations one after the other. At any given time, three groups are in school and one is on vacation.

Another plan, originated in Atlanta, offers four 10- or 12-week quarters at the secondary level. Students can take any three quarters a year, or, by paying a per-hour fee, take four quarters a year and finish high school early. Sequence of courses presents little difficulty — 70 percent of the courses can be taken in any order.

Does the flexible school year succeed? That depends, first of all, on what it's supposed to do. The Atlanta plan was instituted to provide a better instructional program. According to teachers, it has cut down student boredom, probably because the courses are so short. The failure rate dropped 40 percent the first year — a student who fails a course can take it over right away. Gifted students can schedule their courses more creatively, to give them the concentration or the variety that will help them learn best. On the other hand, some teachers feel that shorter terms make their relationships with students more impersonal.

Lower costs is another reason often given for adoption of a flexible school year. In the Atlanta plan, there's no attempt to control the number of students in school at one time, but in the 45-15 and many other plans, only a specified proportion, say three-fourths of the students, attend during any period. This means that only three-fourths the usual number of classrooms, buses, and other facilities are needed. If each group of students comes from a particular section of the school district, bus routes are shortened.

On the other hand, in many locations the schools would have to be air-conditioned. The buses would have to be run all year — and where neighborhoods are segregated, the school shifts could not be limited to single geographic areas. Fewer teachers would be needed at any given time, but this does not mean a reduction in staff would be justified. In many districts, the teaching staff is now too small to do a good job, and reducing the number of students would simply make better teaching possible.

Furthermore, although there are many possible lengths of contract for teachers in a year-round school, the fact remains that a teaching staff would have to be paid year-round — and so would health, transportation, food service, supervisory, and maintenance staffs. The possible effect that lowering daily attendance would have on state aid also must be considered.

The year-round school raises many issues beyond the school, connected with the family and community. Many businessmen like it, because it spreads out the pressure for vacation jobs. Under the 45-15 plan, four students can share one job all year. Moving companies like the year-round school because it eliminates their summer overload. On the other hand, summer camps dislike it so much that they secured defeat of the enabling act in New York State.

Families where both parents work outside the home are specially affected by the year-round school. Under the 45-15 plan, for example, all the children in a family might have their vacations at the same time — but for only three weeks at a time. Whether the problems are greater than those of a three-month summer vacation depends on the family circumstances.

Different communities ask different things of their schools, and no one plan is best for all. Every community, however, needs the best education possible for its young people. Any community considering year-round school should spend at least a year investigating the attitudes and interests of parents, students, and teachers, of businessmen and other community members. A representative group should examine the advantages and disadvantages of many kinds of school year in light of the community's needs.

The public should be kept informed — through hearings, for example — at all stages of investigation and planning. In particular, students, teachers, and parents should be involved, because their cooperation is necessary to the success of any change in the schools.

Classes Still Open At DMACC

With registration well underway at Des Moines Area Community College, those who plan to attend classes fall quarter but have not yet applied for admission are urged to do so as soon as possible by the admissions offices of the college. This applies particularly to those who wish to register in full-time programs.

Although career (vocational-technical) programs are filling, there are still openings in several areas. The new six-month clerk-typist program opening for the first time this fall on the Ankeny and Boone Campuses can still accept new students, as can the longer business occupations programs.

Marketing programs on the Ankeny Campus — Industrial, Retail, Retail Merchandising, Banking, Consumer Credit Management, Insurance, Real Estate and Securities — have open slots. Some of these programs can be taken at night. A check with the Admissions Office is recommended by those interested.

The food service area also has several openings. Programs offered are Commercial Cooking, Hotel and Restaurant Management and the new seven-quarter Dietary Technician program.

Other programs with fewer openings are: Agriculture Supply, Commercial Horticulture, Bricklaying, Mechanical Drafting and Printing.

The remainder of the 60 career programs offered are considered filled at this time, according to the directors of admissions, although there may be openings after registration is completed. These slots occur if students who have made application for admission do not follow through with the registration procedure.

Those students who plan to register in freshman-sophomore college transfer classes offered on the Ankeny and Boone Campuses and the newly relocated Urban center (from 920 Washington to 5th and College in Des Moines) are also urged to make application now — both for full-time and part-time study.

Contact should be made with the Admissions Office at the respective attendance centers for complete registration information.

Lead Paint Ordinance Needed

Des Moines proposed lead paint ordinance received on August 5, a vote of confidence from the City Council. The Ordinance will come up before the Council again on the evening of August 19 and August 26. It will give the city housing and health departments the authority needed to insure that no child need live in a rented house which is dangerously leaded. This clout is necessary for some landlords who must upgrade their property to alleviate all health hazards, including lead.

In Des Moines the number of black youngsters with high lead levels has been approximately 90. Over 70 white children have been identified. In many larger cities black positives predominate, and this, sadly, is because more blacks are living in sub-standard housing.

Large cities with lead problems have passed ordinances for better child protection; New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Baltimore, etc.

In Iowa, Burlington (32,000) has a lead paint ordinance in effect. Readers wishing to support the ordinance should contact their City Councilmen. For a copy of the Proposed Ordinance call 283-4230.

Shock Hazard—"Trouble Light"

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission today warned consumers that some 200,000 household "trouble lights" or "mechanic's lights" sold in the past year pose an imminent danger of serious or fatal electric shock.

Consumers should immediately cease use of the product, taking extreme care not to touch any metal parts when disconnecting the light from the electrical outlet.

The light was manufactured by A. K. Electric Corporation, Brooklyn, New York. It has been distributed by several firms and sold by stores across the country, including Woolco Department Stores, Zayre, Korvettes, Food Fair, and J.J. Newberry.

The trouble light retails for about $1.50.

The potentially dangerous "trouble light" bears no brand name, label, or other distinguishing marks.

LIFE INSURANCE FOR VETS

Some 39,000 Vietnam-era veterans in Iowa are eligible for a new low-cost Veterans Group Life Insurance program which offers as much as $20,000 coverage for $3.40 per month to young veterans. But they must apply before August 1, 1975, the Veterans Administration said today.

Morris (Bob) Nooner, Jr., director of the VA Center at Fort Snelling, which administers the VA insurance program in this part of the nation, said the non-renewable, five-year term insurance is available for veterans discharged from military service since April 2, 1970. Nationally, some 2.7 million veterans are eligible.

The new VA-supervised program, authorized May 24 under the Veterans Insurance Act, also offers coverage in amounts of $5,000, $10,000 and $15,000. Rates for the maximum $20,000 coverage are $3.40 per month for veterans aged 34 and under, and $6.80 for those 35 and over.

CARD OF THANKS

As you read let our Lord help you heed. Although we wish to express our thanks for your love and kindness in our time of sorrow, let us also share our uplifting faith that we have received from our Lord during this our trying time. The acceptance of death of a loved one so dear must be dealt with on a level of deep understanding, not among ourselves but understanding with the knowledge of God our Saviour who is our sole provider of life and its surroundings thru prayer both day and night has strengthened us to accept such as the will which will be done. We have received so much love and kindness that it makes for an impossibility to single anyone. So as a family that has experienced not a tragedy but a blessing, let us say God Bless You All for whatever you displayed of love and kindness, for in our hearts we know, now that regardless of life's obstacles, they shall all be overcome thru faith and understanding in our Lord. Thank you all.

Liberian National Bank Inaugurated

The Newly Established Liberian National Bank was inaugurated on July 22, according to a report from Monrovia.

Speaking at the inauguration ceremony, Liberian president M. Tolbert said that the establishment of the bank was the first step toward effective control and coordination of the country's financial resources. The new bank would further mobilize the potentials of the country, he added.

In face of the economic policy of domination pursued by the big powers, the establishment of the bank would sig the presence of the Liberian national economy, he pointed out.

The bank is reported to have a capital of 5 million Liberian dollars entirely provided by Liberia itself. The creation of this first central bank of the country marks the end of a situation in which the country's finance was totally controlled by foreign banks.

I thought that when we finished our Hilltop meet, we were through with tennis, but a meet in Dubuque, Iowa cropped up. I went up there hoping to learn something, being a passenger in Chet Williamson's car. Two of the people who played in our meet teamed up and got into the thing. Esther Snype and Willie Alma Jones of Cedar Rapids have apparently struck up a fine friendship, and they went up in Miss Jones' car as a team. They didn't really get a chance to relax before they were on the court. Alma playing the ultimate winner, and Esther playing a girl who was the number one girl player at UNI. Esther's opponent seemed to have all the shots and knew what she wanted to do, but couldn't get it together. If she ever does get it together, with all the power she seems to have, whoever plays her will wish they hadn't. But she was easy for our Hilltop player in straight sets. Alma seems to always be playing the champ. She played the winner in our Hilltop meet, and here she was playing the defending champ again. She lost, but didn't look bad doing so. Then Esther played the top girl high school player in the state. In fairness to her, Esther might have made it a much tougher match had she got a chance to rest, but Susie Quirk was probably glad she didn't. They went three sets, and Mrs. Snype was just too tired to keep up the game she knew she had to play in order to win, so she dropped the third set.

Then the two of them teamed up in women's doubles, and won two matches, getting to the semi finals. Then, true to Alma's luck they met the champions again, and went down in a tough two set match. But in this match Miss Jones seemed to have found some confidence that she didn't have before, and she was really beating on the old apple, putting it where she wanted to, and lost her serve just once in the match. I would guess that Miss Jones' biggest hangup is her lack of confidence and her willingness to get depressed after an error, as if she were the only person in the world who ever made one. The way she played Sunday morning is an indication of what she could do if she got her mental attitude straight. But they didn't have anything to be ashamed of, and they are already looking forward to the Hilltop of 1975.

Later, in discussing the meet with the director, I pointed out a few things I thought could be improved as constructive criticism. One was the lack of communication between the various courts scattered all over town, and the difficulty the people from out of town had finding them. I suggested a taxi service for them. Then I thought there should have been some way to let the people at the main courts know when a match on one of the other courts was finished, and the opponents of the winner could be brought out. A copy of the draw sheets at each court location would be a big help. I didn't dwell on the condition of the courts that most of the newcomers seem to complain about. This is because I believe that one plays on the tennis court or playing field as he finds it. No one carries a playing field around to conform to his specifications, and since both players are on the same field, it should be accepted as part of the game. If you will pardon the personal reference, I have played on football fields that ranged from cinder cover to ones where the yard lines were out with lawn mowers, and I always considered that part of the game. Well, when I finished expressing myself, the director told me that they had done all these things for the juniors. Well, why in hell didn't you do them for the adults. "I don't really know, but we will next year." So I was speechless, and went on my way. But I enjoyed it, and had a lot of fun and got to do my sideline coaching and the folks I yelled at didn't have time to say anything back.

And now we are to have a meet for the fellows who play at the park to see who really is the best. Expect a lot of entries, and might have a good story next week.

Champ Feted Before Training For Ali Bout In Africa

LOS ANGELES (NNPA) — The leading sports enthusiasts of this city turned out last week for a champagne soul brunch for Heavyweight Champion George Foreman just prior to his departure for camp to train for his Sept. 24th fight with Muhammad Ali in Zaire, West Africa.

The affair, held at the Hancock Park home of Attorney Charles E. Lloyd, was hosted by Booker Griffin, news director of radio station KGFI, and his wife Lynette.

Among those in attendance were: Councilmen David Cunningham and Bob Farrell; Ms. Rae Cunningham, representing Mayor Tom Bradley; Mundungo Bula, representing Zaire; movie actor and former football star Jim Brown, who will help broadcast the closed-circuit telecast of the fight; and Don King, formerly of Cleveland, who is promoting the $14 million fight and music festival in the West African republic.

Also present were Dick Saddler, Foreman's manager; and Vicki King and Treina Booker, winners of the Foreman-Ali poster girl contest held recently at the Century Plaza hotel.

Foreman left immediately for his training camp in Pleasanton,

Calif., where he will remain until mid-September when he departs for Kinshasa, the capital of Zaire — formerly the Belgian Congo. Thousands of Americans are expected to fly there for the first heavyweight championship fight on African soil.

The fight will be held in 20th of May Stadium, a modern soccer arena. Its name marks the date of the founding of Zaire's Peoples Revolutionary Movement.

Kinshasa, with a population of nearly two million, is one of the largest cities in Africa with skyscrapers, massive government buildings, and modern hotels and villas. It was formerly Leopoldville.

Zaire's President, Mobutu Sese Seko, says the fight will inaugurate a new era of Pan Africanism as two sons of Africa return for a world heavyweight championship fight.
