James Meredith to speak at Drake

National News Briefs

DETROIT, MICH. — Florence Ballard Chapman, was the toast of three continents not so long ago as one of the original Supremes. But now she is broke and living on welfare with her three daughters in a two family flat on Detroit's west side. Mrs. Chapman said she thought she had enough money to last the rest of her life. Then she said, her lawyers told her she was broke.

RALEIGH, N.C. — The trial of Mrs. Marguerite Lightner, wife of the black mayor of this predominantly white populated city, resulted in her acquittal. She had been charged with buying stolen clothing and meat from an admitted shoplifter. She was tried by an all-white jury.

CHICAGO, ILL. — George Brown, senior editor of Jet magazine, died suddenly when he collapsed in front of the magazine's offices. George was the first black copy editor of the Philadelphia Evening and Sunday Bulletin in 1961, was a longtime editorial employee for the Pittsburgh Courier and was also longtime managing editor of the San Juan Diary in Puerto Rico.

HAWAII — Statistics just released show that 43 percent of the new marriages in Hawaii were interracial in 1973.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — All 17 members of the Congressional Black Caucus signed a letter sent to President Ford offering a 13 point program to improve the American economy. It included among other things, the creation of 1 million public service jobs, cuts in the military budget, an expansion of Federal housing projects and the vigorous enforcement of anti-trust laws.

Black's inventions have helped all mankind

WASHINGTON, D.C. — We should not let the eminence of George Washington Carver overshadow the accomplishments of other black scientists and inventors, a patent expert and former U.S. patent commissioner said here in connection with the celebration of Inventor's Day on Feb. 11.

"He deserves every bit of his fame and more, but his figure blankets the history of black invention the way that of his namesake does American history," said William E. Schuyler Jr., who is chairman of Intellectual Property Owners, Inc., a non-profit organization devoted to preserving the role of patents in the free enterprise system. "Dozens of others deserve fame," he said.

There was Garrett A. Morgan, of Cleveland, said Schuyler, who invented a hood to protect workers from noxious gases. It saved many lives before it was called a gas mask and adapted for soldiers in World War I. When Morgan saw an accident between a car and a horse-drawn wagon at an intersection he invented the automatic traffic signal, patented in 1923.

Granville T. Woods was an electrical genius, many of whose inventions were bought by General Electric and the Bell

Hinky Dinky resolving problems

Community relations problems are being cleared up between the Hinky Dinky supermarket at Nineteenth and Carpenter and area residents according to store manager, Charles Freund.

About 20 persons attended a follow-up meeting Tuesday and expressed their satisfaction with the improvements which are being seen at the Hinky Dinky store.

Youth activities

Freund said, "It's probably the best meeting we've had, people felt a lot better because we talked very little about the problems of the store but more on community problems."

A great deal of time was spent on youth activities in the community and if the money being put into various organizations was being used effectively. Represents from the boy scouts, schools and YWCA were on hand to discuss the youth activities which are going on in the Model Cities area.

It was the consensus of the groups present that the youth know about the programs but the adults don't," said Freund.

Good sales trend

The comments from the meeting were very good. Dave Pickett, Model Cities Priority Board Chairman said, "Lighting is better and the store appears much cleaner." According to Freund, some new light fixtures were installed, others were repaired and cleaned up, loose tile has been replaced and the store is being kept cleaner.

Freund said, "We see a good sales trend in this store the way the economy is now." Comments from shoppers in the store are very good and they all seem pleased with the way things are going.

Service counter

The store has a lot of walk-in trade for a pack of cigarettes, medicine, and people purchasing one or two items so a service counter is going to be installed. This way the management feels that people can be served much faster and efficiently.

Freund said further improvements are planned in the store's operation and he said efforts will be made to upgrade the quality of the meat and produce sold in the store.

IEWS and REVIEWS

by James B. Morris

Brotherhood Is Essential To Peach and Harmony

The month of February is being observed as Brotherhood month; the week nearest the birthday of Abraham Lincoln is Brotherhood week. Since 1926 Negro History week has coincided with Brotherhood week.

Carter Woodson, who spent several years assembling and writing about Negro history, suggested observance of the week emphasizing that Fred Douglas should be so honored in that he worked closely with President Lincoln in support of the anti-slavery movement.

Brotherhood month is the brainchild of those people who recognized the growing bold, religious and racial prejudice following WW I and even though some laws were on the statute books forbidding some of these prejudiced acts people who opposed them were too slow to denounce and oppose them.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews, in cooperation with the National Council of Churches, were bold enough to challenge these injustices emphasizing education and persuasion as an essential appeal to offset racism and other injustices which were constantly gaining ground as indicated by the rise of the Ku Klux Klan following WW I.

Carter Woodson knew that little had been done by the schools in digging up and or teaching Negro history. He knew it was essential to preserve the contributions Negroes had made so that they could be passed on to posterity.

He also knew that little attention had been given in school books to the contribution made by Negroes and that interested citizens should attempt the responsibility to help fill the gap. Thus he wrote and spoke on the subject covering the wealth of material he had gathered and which many writers today are using and expanding.

The world is in need of Brotherhood today more than ever before. This is true in local communities where diverse races and religions are found. We can make association in neighborhoods peaceful by applying the principle of equality and justice for all. Brotherhood month is designed to help by reaching the hearts and minds of people so that they may live and work together in peace and harmony each respecting each other as human beings.

Somebody must take the lead in maintaining the principle of Brotherhood in our communities and our states for even though laws have been enacted against prejudice, they must be supported and carried out by cooperation in the exercise of sound thinking.

Financing Participants In Crime

In recent years rehabilitation programs, carried on by various agencies, have urged jobs for released prisoners. The parole boards have insisted that a job was a prerequisite for a parole. Idleness breeds trouble.

It has not been easy at times to find jobs so some prisoners eligible for parole have remained in confinement past their allotted time.

Recently, another stunt has come out of Watergate involving persons released from prison or those close to the administration who might be able to tell a good Watergate story. The booking agency has arranged speaking engagements at several schools at handsome fees, the first being $4,500 paid to John Dean by the University of Virginia. These schools have guaranteed the fees hoping to recoup the amount by admission fees.

I have never opposed free speech at any place or time, however in view of the fact that the news media has covered every facet of the Watergate I see no reason why these people should continue to keep it alive and thus perpetuate the divisiveness that hurt the country.

Students are more uncertain about their course of action today than ever before. Rehashing Watergate adds to it. New lecture studies should be brought to the students rather than filling their minds with unpleasant things of the past.

Helping The Wrong Fellow

President Ford has presented his 1975-76 budget to the country which spells out a deficit of $59 billion - unprecedented in peace time.

The tax cut and high spending for the military account for much this deficit which is offset partially by lowering spending on social programs and reduction in the amount of help given the elderly and the poor.

This country has been financing other countries since WW II. We have just been the givers for many of these countries which have returned only hate. Today we are financing wars which seem to have no end. Yet unfortunate citizens are asked to take the rap.

Only last month the Defense Department contracted for the construction of several jet fighters costing more than $2 million each which naturally adds a big chunk to the budget.

I don't believe that the American people will permit Congress or the President to adopt the budget which Mr. Ford proposes. He seems to be on a speaking engagement to sell the American people on the budget. The time used to do this might be well spent in an effort to iron out the differences with Congress so as to get some kind of program started which will help reduce the terrible budget which the public is being pressured to support.

VA appoints new Chief Benefits Dir.

A former director of the Lincoln (Neb.) Veterans Administration Regional Office was appointed Chief Benefits Director of the VA, it was announced today.

Rufus H. Wilson, a 49-year-old VA career official who presently heads the agency's National Cemetery System, succeeds Odell W. Vaughn, who has been named VA Deputy Administrator.

Wilson, director of the Lincoln VA office in 1965, has been a top executive in VA's Washington headquarters for nearly six years. He previously served as chief benefits director from July 1969 to February 1970, when he was named Associate VA Deputy Administrator. He held the latter post until February 1974 when he became director of the agency's newest major program, the National Cemetery System.

The Department of Veteran Benefits, which Wilson will direct in his new position, has an annual appropriations budget of nearly $12 billion and accounts for about 75 per cent of VA's yearly expenditures. The department has 58 regional offices throughout the nation and includes operation of the agency's vast GI Bill education and training, GI loan, compensation and pension and insurance programs.

Wilson was elected national commander of AMVETS in 1954, the youngest man ever to lead that national service organization. Prior to his election as national commander, he served a short period as a special assistant to the VA Administrator, and then rejoined VA in December 1955 as head of the agency's congressional liaison service.

Besides serving as director of the Lincoln regional office from June through October 1965, he also headed regional offices at St. Petersburg, Fla., and Baltimore.

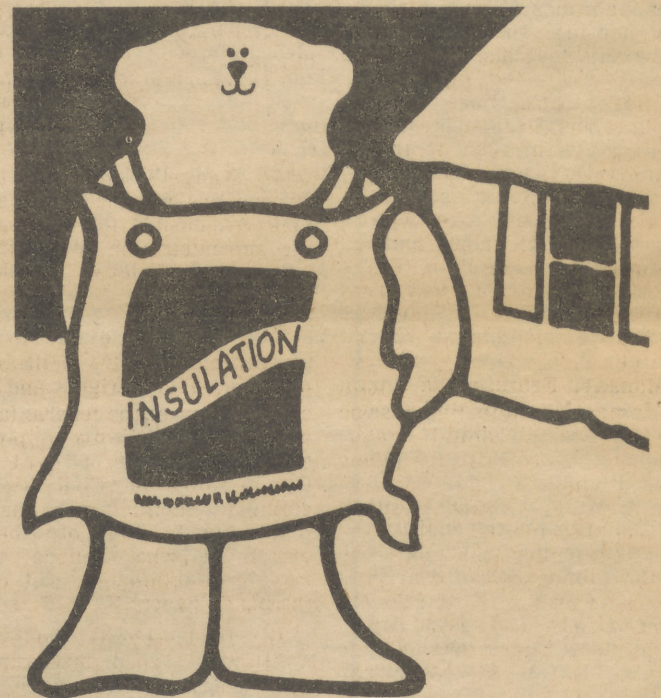

A native of Sweetwater, Tenn., Wilson attended Wayne University in Detroit, and American University in Washington, D.C., before obtaining his law degree from the University of Baltimore.

Enlisting in the Marine Corps at age 17, he was severely disabled by enemy gunfire during the 1944 invasion of Saipan.

A member of the Disabled American Veterans, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Marine Corps League, as well as AMVETS, Wilson was named Veteran of the Year in Maryland in 1969.

Don't get caught with your insulation down

With costs of fuel what they are today, it just doesn't make sense to pay for a lot of wasted heat. And that's what's happening if your home isn't properly insulated.

A well insulated home helps you save money on both winter heating and summer cooling. As a matter of fact, the savings on heating and cooling costs pay for the insulation in just a few years.

Call an Iowa Power Registered Insulation Contractor and ask him how you can finance reinsulation on your utility bill.

Credo of the Black Press

The Black Press believes that America can best lead the world away from racial and national antagonisms when it accords to every man regardless of race, color or creed, his human and legal rights.

Hating no man, fearing no man, the Black Press strives to help every man in the firm belief that all are hurt as long as anyone is held back.

Ford faces opposition

The Congressional Black Caucus today opposed the nomination by President Ford of former Mississippi Governor John Bell Williams to the newly-established Federal Elections Commission. Reports indicated that Williams, Governor of Mississippi from 1968 to 1972 and a Member of Congress prior to that time, was likely to be a presidential nominee to the post.

The Federal Elections Commission is established under the Federal Election Campaign Act Amendments of 1974 signed by the President last October. The Commission is to formulate policy and obtain compliance with respect to the 1971 Federal Elections Campaign Act. This includes disclosure requirements, contribution and expenditure limitations, public financing provisions and other matters involving campaign finance.

In a letter to the President, Rangel, Chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, said that the Caucus is "appalled at the prospect of the nomination to the Commission of a man who has been an outspoken and adamant opponent of the rights of black citizens."

Rangel pointed to an August 1965 speech to the Neshoba County Fair of then-Congressman John Bell Williams, shortly after passage of the Voting Rights Act, as evidence for the Caucus' concern. Williams is quoted as saying:

Just a couple days ago, by an overwhelming vote, the national Democratic Party rewarded the southern states for their years of loyalty by stripping them of their right to run their own elections according to their own laws. This monstrous bill, openly and admittedly pushed through as a punitive action against six southern states is a brazen rape of the Constitution of the United States and a gratuitous insult to the good people of the southern states, their governors, their legislatures and their elected officials.

(Speech at Neshoba County Mississippi Fair, August 5, 1965)

Mr. Rangel's letter said that "These are not the words of a man responsible for overseeing the administration of this most important federal elections law."

The letter cites other examples of Mr. Williams' position on civil rights and the enforcement of the federal laws. In 1967, Williams opposed extension of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, calling it "nothing more than a propaganda tool of liberal extremists who (believe) that racial amalgamation will cure the ills of society."

In 1971, then-Governor Williams signed Mississippi's open primary law which was objected to by the U.S. Attorney General under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act as racially discriminatory.

Saying that the Caucus had great hope that the Federal Elections Commission will succeed in its mission of restoring citizen confidence in government, Rangel said that "it will have a fatal flaw from the outset if John Bell Williams is appointed."

The Volunteer Bureau Needs You!

Anyone of any age, can find reward and satisfaction by serving as a volunteer in the community. Volunteer jobs available are listed in this column each week as a public service of the Volunteer Bureau-Your Voluntary Action Center, United Way of Greater Des Moines, 244-1181. Volunteers, 60 and over, are given special encouragement through the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (R.S.V.P.). Do you have two Fridays a month to spare? A local hospital needs you to man the service cart or to help care for patient's flowers.

A physically handicapped young woman needs a friend. Spend some time weekly in visiting, sharing interests, and in general adding a needed personal dimension in to her life.

If you enjoy children and like being in a hospital setting, offer to care for youngsters during periods while their parents are being seen by the doctor. Mornings or afternoons, any day but Sunday.

A training facility for handicapped and retarded adults needs your help between 12 and 1 p.m., any week day. You may join the clinics for lunch, then assist with recreation such as simple table games.

Persons are needed to serve on a committee dealing with nursing home care. Individuals with a sincere interest in quality care for the elderly are sought. You would talk with elderly residents, review care received, and make suggestions for improved care.

post, praise God, delivering a message taken from St. John 10:10,11. Her test was, "Devil, You Can't Touch Me, I'm God's Property." We thank God we have something better than "coke" over here at Messiah Temple. We do have the "real thing," we have Jesus Christ. The altar was full of people praising the Lord, thanking Him for what He has done. We were very happy to have Evangelist Zora Reed back with us.

Messiah Temple Mission Circle is busy with the Lord's work. We are having Bible study twice a week and are helping out where we can. The Life of Christ is continuing to be taught every Sunday evening at 7:00. There is a blessing in it for all who apply these teachings to their daily lives. Morris R. Massey, Journeyman Ironworker

MORRIS R. MASSEY.

Morris R. Massey of 843-17th Street became a journeyman ironworker in May 1974 after serving four years as an apprentice. As a member of Ironworkers Local Union No. 67 he has worked on many projects in the Des Moines area including the Low Rent Retirement Home at Eleventh and Crocker, the 36 story Ruan Building at Seventh and Grand, and Jacobsons Tire Warehouse.

At the present time Morris is working for the Northwest Erection Company, a company that specializes in setting steel columns and beams. The picture above was taken at the Nursing Care Center job in West Des Moines. The construction foreman on the job, Marvin Hansen, said, "Morris is a good ironworker who knows his work."

Morris was born in Des Moines and graduated from Tech High School and was in the army from 1964 to 1967 before becoming an apprentice ironworker. He said he likes the trade very much and is happy he went into it.

Anyone interested in becoming an apprentice in the construction industry can contact the Des Moines Area Apprenticeship Outreach Program at 1223 Sixth Avenue, in Des Moines.

Robert Prince

A Beautician with flair...

Robert Prince, originally, from Missouri, first came to Iowa at the age of 14. After attending Jr. High and High School in Des Moines he went to barber college and took his state board exam before he went to Waterloo, Iowa where he worked as a barber for about a year. After that time he left Waterloo and began traveling. Robert ended up back at home and still had an interest in hair. "My mother, sister and many of their friends stimulated my interest in hair I'd invite many people over to do their hair for the practice," says Bob.

Moved back to Des Moines.

Knowing that working with hair was of the most interest to him Bob moved back to Des Moines and attended Crescent Beauty School under Mrs. Humphrey. "Mrs. Humphrey is tops as far as doing black's hair, she really knows how to work with it and what to do to make it look its best," says Bob. Although he was learning a lot at Crescent Beauty School, "I wasn't utilizing all my talents so I transferred to Thompson's Beauty School and the student's there were much more advanced than I was on everything. I really had to dig to catch up," says Bob.

Still missing something, he got into a special haircutting class under three of New York's Glenby instructors, where he had the first place hair style on the last day's training. He has also had several courses in men's hair styling under New York specialist and has attended a seminar conducted by three top Chicago hairstylists: Mr. Nelson of the House of Nelson's, Miss Laura McGraw and Mr. Condi Johnson.

Presently Bob is working at Montgomery Ward's Beauty Salon in Merle Hay Mall. "My black clientele is almost as good as my white clientele. Black women are beginning to utilize beauty shops much more," says Bob. He feels that blacks are being very good to him, not excluding everyone else.

Wants his own shop.

Bob hopes to become the top hair stylist in Des Moines and have a shop of his own. He would eventually enjoy trying to give a lot of other black brothers and sisters the same kind of chance that he has had. Bob's professional advice for anyone interested in hairdressing is, "Be sure to not limit yourself to anyone type of hair, branch out, study, explore and keep up with the latest styles and cuts. That's what I'm trying to do."

Telephone Co. He invented a telegraph that permitted communication with moving trains to alert engineers to dangerous situations.

A great chemist who won many patents and contributed to medicine is Percy L. Julian. He discovered a synthetic cortisone.

Black doctors have made many contributions to medicine and health. David McHale Williams risked his considerable reputation as a surgeon in 1893 when he sewed together the heart of a man who had been stabbed. It was the first open-heart surgery. Despite the lack in those days of X-rays, antibiotics and blood transfusions, the man lived. Williams' skill attracted worldwide professional attention.

Charles Drew developed techniques for separating and preserving blood and became the father of blood banks; he was put in charge of blood donor stations in World War II. Ironically, he bled to death after an auto accident in 1950.

Schuyler noted that black inventors can claim such humble conveniences as pencil sharpeners and egg beaters among their patents, but also important advances in drugs, safety and life-saving devices, chemistry, electronics and farm equipment, transportation and military weapons.

George Washington Carver, of course, is the black man who made monumental contributions to the industrial use of plants. He is best known for promoting peanuts and sweet potatoes as less damaging to the soil than cotton. He then sought and found over 300 products that could be squeezed from the peanut alone.

Annual Third World Art Expo at YWCA

The Greater Des Moines YWCA Expo Committee will host their third annual THIRD WORLD ART EXPO on Sunday, February 9, 1975 at the YWCA from 2:00 to 6:00 p.m. There are no exhibit fees of any kind and admission is free.

Serving on the 1975 Expo Committee are Debbie Hunt, Pat Miller, Jeanette Spencer, Carolyn Beard, Regina Maiden, Camille Bradley, Sandra Allen, Mary Clark, and Frankie Violette. Some of the past committee members were Valarie Myers, Laura Grady and Joann Davis.

Various types of work to be displayed and/or sold include photo prints, paintings, wood, plastic art objects, sculpture, rugs, lamps, jewelry, crocheted and knitted items, ceramics, and Indian handcrafted accessories.

Our cultural program this year features music and modeling. The East Side Choir, (whose members reside through-out the city), will deliver several gospel numbers. Models representing various Third World Countries will style their native costumes.

In the past years our cultural program has featured music, poetry, and dancing. Vikki Spencer sang the Negro National Anthem, piano accompanist, Delores Garrison. The Fajilawa Band, from Iowa City, has played African Music. Poets from our local Community, including Drake University and also surrounding colleges have been on program. Some of the Poets were Irvin White, Eleanor Tate, Everett Mays, and Valarie Carson. The Gateway Dancers have performed Ethnic and Interpretive dancing.

The Expo hopes to welcome back some of the past artists and some new entrants. Zack Hamlett Jr. and Eleanor Tate will have displays. Works on display have included those of Rev. James Harris, Floyd Shephard, Leroy Mitchell, Rev. Robert Clay, William Wells Sr., Ozzie Morrow, Jr., and Archie Martin. The above named artists are just a few of the past and/or present artists to participate in the YWCA Third World Art Expo. Several Indian displays from artists of the Tama community were viewed and sold.

The Expo enables Third World Peoples to have an opportunity to exhibit and sell and become exposed to the YWCA and the community. If you are looking for an art addition for your home come prepared to buy, as you'll surely see something you will want to own.

The Expo Committee grew from the concern of the women to be of service to their community and for the YWCA to fulfill the needs of all peoples. The YWCA's Imperative states:

"To Thrust Our Collective Power Toward the Elimination Of Racism Wherever It Exists and By Any Means Necessary"

The YWCA Expo Committee is extending again an invitation to you to come and enjoy an afternoon of relaxation, enjoyment and cultural awareness with us, at your Greater Des Moines YWCA. You will meet adults and children browsing and participating in the activities. You are sure to discover the talent of a friend or acquaintance. Refreshments will be served.

Heart group trains

"CPR" instructions

The Holiday Inn in Cedar Rapids, was the scene recently of the second Certified Instructor Trainer Course in Basic Life-Support and Emergency Cardiac Care. The course, set up under the new American Heart Association guidelines for Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation Instructor certification, was held over a two-day period, according to Mr. Edward Tate of Des Moines. Tate is Chairman of the Iowa Heart Association's CPR Emergency Services Committee.

Throughout the sessions, those attending had opportunities to practice the closed-chest heart massage and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation techniques. The primary purpose of this course is to train the participants so that they can in turn train others as instructors in this important life-saving procedure. During the two days, each participant was tested at various intervals to guarantee their ability to train others.

The final session of the course dealt with procedures in setting up additional Instructor Courses throughout the State of Iowa. Heading the faculty were H.A. Van Hofwegan of Spencer and Jane Hasek, R.M. of Reinbeck, members of the Iowa Heart Association Board of Directors, along with Mrs. Kathryn VanDriel, R.N., Nurse Coordinator for the Iowa Heart Group. Funds to carry out this program were made available through the annual Heart Fund Campaign.

Understanding Life Ins.

by Quincy L. Southers

A Life insurance policy is a purchase contract between a person and a life insurance company. Under which the person buys, or is given the option of buying, usually through a series of installment payments, the right to a certain sum of money, to be paid in the event of his death or at the end of a specified term of years.

The policy is only a statement of all the terms of the contract. Many people will look at a life insurance contract and ask questions about the length and the number of terms written in the policy. There are two reasons that the contract contains so many clauses and terms that are spelled out in much detail. 1) The policholders rights must be protected. Not for just today but for many years in the future. Many of the people involved will probably be dead except the company, if the terms and details were not written down it would be fairly easy for the insurance company to institute new ideas and interpretations of the policies totally forgetting the wishes paid for and expressed by the then dead insured. Also it would be pretty easy for the insurance companies to make rules and practices that it would be impossible for the insured to follow and then the company could abridge your right of the contract that are yours because you lived. Almost every provision that is written into your insurance is to protect the policholder.

1) State law requires most of the clauses of the life insurance contract to be incorporated. Each contract contains a broad spectrum of provisions that must be approved by the insurance commissioner for the sole protection of the policy holders rights and interest. This approval will not be given until all features that are not in the best interest of the policholder are removed.

Many times people say to me that they could understand insurance better if they could understand some of the terms that are in most life insurance contracts. I will attempt to explain some of these terms so that everybody can understand life insurance a little better.

1) Mutual Life Insurance Co.: a life insurance company whose board of directors are elected by the policholders. Generally most mutual companies issue life insurance that has a cash value plus dividends.

2) Stock Life Insurance Co.: a life insurance company that is owned by stockholders who operate the business for a profit. The policholder is only entitled to cash values and no dividends.

3) Non-participating Insurance (non-par) policies that are calculated so close to operating expenses and premium that no dividends are paid, only cash values. This term is the same as stock company.

4) Participating insurance

(par): insurance policies which entitles the policholder to receive dividends reflecting the difference between the premium charged and the actual operating expenses and mortality experience (death) of the company.

5) Cash Value: the amount available in cash upon the voluntarily termination of a policy before it becomes payable by death or maturity.

6) Maturity of a policy: The time that the policy becomes payable. On term insurance policies they mature upon the death of the insured. On whole life policies the contracts become matured on the death of the insured or at a specified time stated in the policy. This time generally is age 85, 90, 95, 100 when the policy matures. If the policy is an endowment policy (20 year endowment, endowment at 65) the maturity date is at the end of the specified time or upon the death of the insured. Many people mistake an endowment policy for a limited payment whole life policy where you pay the premium for a stated amount of time (20 pay life, life paid at 65) and the policy doesn't mature till the maturity date around 100 years of age. All you do is quit paying premiums with a paid up policy and wait for the maturity date.

7) Dividends: The amount of money that is left over after the expense of operating cost, death claims and investment yields are calculated. This amount is distributed to the policholders according to the values they have in insurance.

8) Term Insurance: Inexpensive insurance that is for the protection of an individual only. There are no cash values or saving features. This insurance is for a certain period of time (10 year term) is for a period of ten years and after that period there is no protection. This is the type of insurance that most group (or job) insurance is.

9) Whole Life insurance: Insurance payable to a beneficiary at the death of the insured whenever that may occur. Premium may be payable for a specified number of years (20 pay life, Maturity is still not until death or age approx. 100) or for the life of the insured (straight Life).

As you can see that there are many provisions and terms in an insurance policy the majority of the terms and provisions are there for your protection. The key to understanding life insurance deals on having a general knowledge of terms. I am going to try to explain some of the most meaningful of them to you.

BREAD & BUTTERFLIES

Dancing, dreaming, or earnestly responding, these youngsters are "doing their own thing" expressing their uniqueness. In "Me, Myself and Maybe", a 15-minute color program in the career development series "Bread & Butterflies" produced by the Agency for Instructional Television, the value of individual difference is explored. The series, to be viewed in school by 9 to 12 year olds, demonstrates that each person should try to achieve his own career aspirations within society by pursuing his personal capabilities and interests.

A new venture in career education is a series entitled "Bread & Butterflies" and is scheduled to be released on Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network and most educational stations around the country in February. The series consists of fifteen 15-minute programs designed to help youth with the critical transition to adulthood. "Bread & Butterflies" is geared to children nine to twelve years old, whereas many existing career education courses are generally aimed at older students.

Observations of young people leaving school, either as graduates or dropouts, indicate that very few are ready for the working world because they feel alienated from their work, they lack required skills and/or they do not find motivation toward career achievement present. The paycheck "reward" is not enough. Research has shown that the desire for personal fulfillment in the working world needs to be instilled at an early age. The major goal of "Bread & Butterflies" is to help children develop a personal view of self and relate it to both community and personal needs. Utilizing community resources in the classroom is one method for stimulating career awareness.

A school's administration and faculty is always important to the child's educational development, but in the utilization of "Bread & Butterflies," community involvement and, most specifically, parental involvement is vital. Adults in the community setting should be seen as an extension of the school's staff, an enrichment of the learning experience. The home provides the elementary school student with his first and most persistent contact with a worker. Parents play an early and significant role in the child's development of attitude and habits conducive to his career development. Parents can be alerted to ways in which they can be profitably involved in their child's career development experiences.

"Bread & Butterflies" translates these goals and objectives into content and learning activities for the programs and the Curriculum Guide. Even though the series has been developed for children nine to twelve years old, older boys and girls whose experiences have been deficient in some areas of career development may also be interested in the programs that focus on adults at work.

This is WHY "Bread & Butterflies" was conceived; this is FOR WHOM "Bread & Butterflies" exists, but HOW "Bread & Butterflies" became a reality needs, also, to be considered.

Funding for the ambitious project was accomplished through a national consortium of 34 state departments of education, educational television stations, ETV commissions and an initial grant to the Agency for Instructional Television (AIT) by the Exxon Corporation, which established a $150,000 revolving fund which AIT uses to initiate projects.

Easter Seals annual report

The Easter Seal Society of Iowa today released its Annual Report for the 1973-74 fiscal year which ended August 31, 1974.

Release of the report to all media, a long established practice of the Iowa Society, precedes the opening of the annual Easter Seal fund campaign which runs from February 24 - March 30.

The report shows that 75.65 of each contributed dollar was spent in services to Iowans with slightly over 19 cents being spent on administrative costs of management and fund raising. The remaining 5 cents in each donated dollar was spent to the National Easter Seal Society in Chicago to be used for research and public education.

Of the over three-fourths of each contributed dollar spent for services, direct services including loan and purchase of orthopedic equipment and therapy for the physically handicapped, Homebound Training, handcraft sales for the homebound handicapped and camping at Easter Seals' Camp Sunnyside accounted for 65.03 cents. Indirect services to the handicapped including scholarships to Iowans studying for rehabilitation careers, public

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 28 — The U.S. Senate late yesterday passed a resolution introduced by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey honoring Roy Wilkins, Executive Director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

The resolution acknowledged Wilkins' recent selection as "American of the Year" by the American Religious Town Hall Meeting, a conference of Catholics, Protestants and Jews formed to promote tolerance and understanding among peoples of every race and creed.

"They could not have chosen a better man to honor than Roy Wilkins," Humphrey said in a Senate speech, "and we should take this opportunity to join in recognizing the great accomplishments of this courageous American."

Humphrey praised Wilkins' "commitment to justice, to equal opportunity for all Americans, to making the democratic process work and to what he has called the most radical idea of the 20th century — abolition of racial segregation."

"Our paths have crossed a number of times over the years of struggle for civil rights and economic opportunity for black Americans," he said.

Humphrey and Wilkins worked extensively together to create the Civil Rights Act of 1957, 1960, 1964 and 1965.

"His energy, his dedication, his pragmatism, his clear vision of what had to be done, and his realistic assessment of how reform could best be accomplished were invaluable in securing the passage of that legislation," the Minnesota Senator stated.

Humphrey and Wilkins are both Minnesotans. Wilkins graduated from the University of Minnesota, where he served as editor of the University paper and of the black weekly, the ST. PAUL APPEAL. At the same time he was Secretary of the St. Paul Chapter of the NAACP.

From there, Humphrey went on to chronicle Wilkins' career in civil rights work.

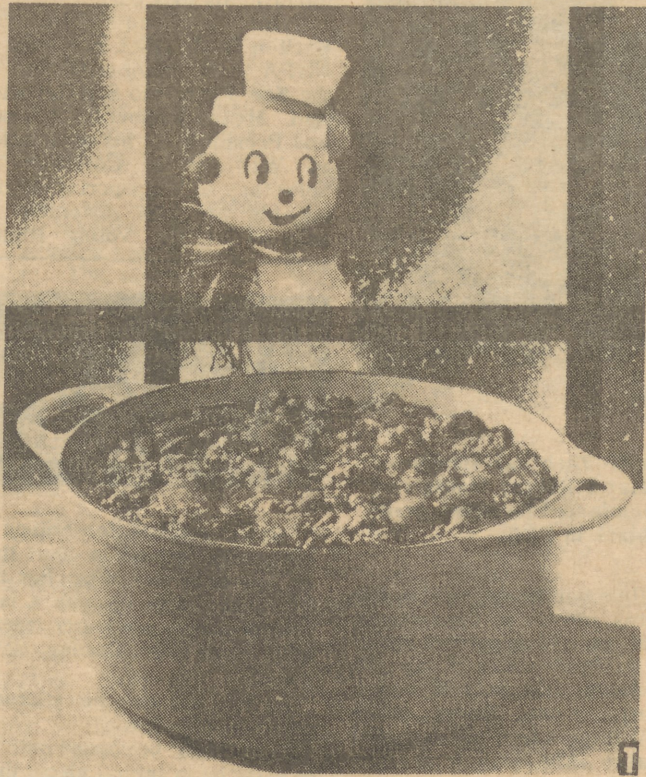

"He led the fight that enabled President Truman to desegregate the armed forces," Humphrey said. "He worked with Presidents Kennedy and Johnson on the Civil Rights Act. President Johnson called him 'a unique American, whose contributions transcend the boundaries of time and territory.'"

Humphrey cited Wilkins' use of the courts to reassert the legal rights of black Americans.

"The most famous legal victory for which Wilkins can claim a large share," Humphrey said, "is the 1954 Supreme Court decision to overthrow the doctrine of 'separate but equal' facilities in public education."

Humphrey also pointed to Wilkins' efforts to assure equal education and job opportunity and an improved standard of living.

Energy Affairs

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb has announced that FEA Consumer Affairs Director Hazel Rollins (conferring with Administrator at right) has been nominated for super grade status, making her the highest ranking black in FEA.

"The President's economic and energy conservation proposals are designed to 'bolster' the economy to get the employed back on the job," Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb told 200 Black newspaper publishers at a recent White House briefing by top Administration officials on minority affairs.

Zarb admitted that FEA's image in the area of minority contracts and hiring was not good enough, but promised that FEA would improve its sensitivity towards minorities. He announced that Hazel Rollins, Consumer Affairs Director has been nominated for super grade status, making her the highest rank Black in FEA.

Zarb outlined the Administration's proposed $30 billion permanent income tax reduction plan designed to mainly help low and middle income taxpayers. $5 billion would go to Federal, State and local governments to pay for higher energy costs. The other $25 billion will be returned to the economy mostly in the form of tax cuts on a 75-25 percent basis. $19 billion would go to individuals and about $6 billion for corporations. "Energy taxes and oil import fees are expected to raise $30 billion in new Federal revenues a year to offset the income tax cut," Zarb said.

"We are not forgetting the low-income and elderly homeowner," Zarb said. "We are asking Congress for $55 million to establish a low-income Energy Conservation Program to offer direct subsidies to these groups for insulation improvements in their homes. Acting through the States, these funds would be provided to buy material. Volunteers or community groups could install the materials."

Zarb warned that if the automobile industry fails to achieve a 40 percent improvement in gasoline mileage by 1980, we will ask Congress to make that a "mandatory" program.

Ford: Voting rights Act must not die

WASHINGTON — Declaring, "this law must not be allowed to die," President Gerald R. Ford assured some 200 delegates to the Mid-Winter Workshop of the National Newspaper Publishers Association last week that he is working to extend the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

His assurance came in an address before the group last Thursday afternoon during a White House briefing in which two cabinet officers and other top officials took part.

Prior to Ford's talk, Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett, president of NNPA and editor-publisher of the San Francisco Sun-Reporter and Metro-Reporter, praised and President for his nomination of William T. Coleman as Secretary of Transportation and for his previous statement in support of the Voting Rights Act.

Goodlett also expressed the concerns of the Black Press regarding U.S. foreign policy in Southern Africa and unemployment here at home.

Beginning with the voting rights issue, President Ford said: "As Dr. Goodlett indicated, I told Congress last week that I plan to ask for another five year extension of the Voting Rights Act first passed in 1965, renewed in 1970 and up for renewal at this time."

"This law must not be allowed to expire in August of 1975. The Voting Rights law helped open the way for the election of blacks in all parts of the nation, and that movement must be continued," the President added.

"As I look back over the past 25 years, I am reminded of how far America actually has come, of how many barriers have fallen, and the number of prejudices that has been laid to rest.

"But more importantly, as I look ahead I know how much work remains before every child born in America has the same opportunities for long life, economic security, and educational achievement. Much has been done. Much remains. But together we can make that necessary progress," Ford told the publishers.

(The President's bill to extend the Voting Rights Act was sent to Congress on January 27.)

President Ford also pledged that his administration will not slice off a small portion of the pie and say, "this is enough for the 25 million Americans who are black."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Harry, arrested for bribing a policeman, insisted in court that he had done no wrong. But the prosecutor came up with a tape recording in which Harry repeatedly made incriminating statements.

At this juncture, his attorney raised an objection.

"That tape," he pointed out, "is so scratchy in several places that it is incomprehensible. If a tape is not clear all the way through, it should not be admitted as evidence."

However, the court held the tape admissible—and it helped send Harry to jail. The court said a less-than-perfect tape, like any other less-than-perfect piece of evidence, should be accepted for whatever it is worth.

Courts generally agree that a tape need not be flawless to be used in a trial. This kind of evidence is often too important in proving (or disproving) guilt to be lightly discarded.

Nevertheless, the defects might be so pervasive as to cast doubt on the validity of the entire recording. In another case, the charge was murder. But the allegedly incriminating tape had so much static that it could be understood only in brief snatches.

This time, the court threw out the evidence altogether.

"Basic fairness," said the judge, "demanded its exclusion."

Of course, a tape is even less acceptable if it has been deliberately tampered with.

In another case, involving a dispute over the legal title to a house, the plaintiff offered a recording of a conversation between him and the defendant.

But under questioning, the plaintiff acknowledged that he had subjected the tape to some "editing." The court promptly rejected his evidence.

"In this case," observed the judge, "the tape does not speak for itself."

Black History Week activities revealed at Roosevelt

By Pamela Spencer

Pamela Spencer

Black History Week, which is February 9-15, at Roosevelt will cover several aspects of Black Culture.

Each school day during Black History Week, students will be encouraged to attend small group presentations concerning a different aspect of life and culture as it relates to Black Americans. Two community persons will participate in addition to the Roosevelt students who will lead discussions or give talks. Displays are also planned.

Mr. James B. Morris Sr., will review contributions made by Des Moines' Black Community, on Monday, February 10, 1975 from 11:30 - 1:00 pm. In what ways has Des Moines' Black Community grown and changed over the years?

Mr. Morris has been a great contributor of all people. He was the owner and editor of the Iowa Bystander, beginning in 1922 until 1972. As a member of the legal redress committee of the Des Moines branch, NAACP, he was engaged in a number of civil rights cases which ultimately brought about further enjoyment in equal accommodation in housing, public accommodation, public school teaching, and employment in Iowa.

On Tuesday, February 11, 11:30 - 1:00 p.m., Mr. Allen J. Correll, will identify the major concerns of the Black Community today. In an informal session students will have an opportunity to respond to his challenges.

Mr. Correll is the Executive Director of the Des Moines Human Rights Commission. He has the responsibility of enforcing anti-discrimination laws in the areas of housing, employment and public accommodations, due to race, color, creed, sex, religion and ancestry. Mr. Correll has spoken at Drake University, Simpson College, the Urban League, and many other places.

On Wednesday, February 12, 11:30 - 1:00 pm, Miss Laurie Heilman, a sophomore student, who lived in Nigeria for a year, will show slides and discuss her experiences.

There will be 12 student discussion leaders, who will conduct discussions on Thursday and Friday. The students are seniors Pamela Spencer and Donald Michael; juniors Larry Fowler and Twila Greene; and sophomores Dawn Hale, Gary Holmes, LaVerne Buffington, Carlos Richardson, Cathy Riddle, Machele McKay, Diane Forney, and Shirley Simmons.

The viewing of the film "Body and Soul" will be shown during selected periods, on February 13. After the film, student discussion leaders will focus on the role of black athletes in society and questions that arise from the group.

On Friday, February 14, during selected periods, after the viewing of the film "Body and Soul" Part II, student discussion leaders will focus on the contribution of the black musician to American life.

Carolyn Hammond Horan of Fairfield and the late James Horan.

"If there is one fact about persons who are mentally retarded that Meg Horan displays best, it is that through love, professional care and special training, all mentally retarded persons are capable of progressing and improving themselves," said Richard Grassman, I.A.R.C. President.

Meg's first official appearance was at the office of Iowa Governor Robert Ray on January 24. She presented the Governor and Social Services Commissioner Kevin Burns with lapel buttons featuring the symbol of the Association for Retarded Citizens, and bearing the motto, "Retarded Citizens Can Be Helped."

Miss Horan will be shown in statewide television public service announcements on mental retardation with I.A.R.C. Honorary Campaign Chairman Pete Taylor, sports director for KCCI-TV in Des Moines. Throughout the year, she will be promoting public awareness, interest and support for the needs of 84,000 mentally retarded Iowans and participating in statewide fund

East: blacks head Des Moines area civitan

By Vicki Clark

"Building good citizens" and "building tomorrow today" are two of the main objectives of the Junior Civitan program. Newly formed at East this year, Junior Civitan has begun the year without hesitation.

Junior Civitan is an international community service organization with an overall membership of over 180,000 people. Numerous high schools across the nation take part in the organization. At East a small group of students united to form a local Junior Civitan club.

As in any body of individuals forming a club, East's Civitan club elected an executive board. Mathew Holland, an 18 year old black junior at East, has been elected president of the organization.

Mathew is an active student at East. He has participated in football, as a tailback, and is presently wrestling for East. He worked for the Salvation Army and will soon be employed by the Wilkie House.

For the past 12 years, Mathew has also been a part of the Holland Family Singers. Other members are Jimmy, 18, who is employed by the city; Gregory, 18, who also attends East; and Doug, 14, who attends Amos Hiatt. Mat and the singers perform for various churches and organizations.

Secretary of the Junior Civitan Club is Sharon Colbert, an 18 year old senior. Sharon is also a black student at East. She participates in East's DECA program and is secretary of that group. She has been employed by Lutheran Hospital for the past 4 years.

Sharon said, "In our social science classes a few students signed up to attend seminars in Michigan which were sponsored by the Senior Civitan Club. On the way home I talked with the sponsor of the Marshalltown Civitan. He helped us start a club at East."

The newly formed group will be chartered January 24. So far prospective projects include: 1) a Brothers and Sisters project where underprivileged children are taken on field trips and 2) a red cross like program in which Junior Civitan will aid old people.

Other officers of the club are: vice-president, Karel Bakker; and treasurer, Kathy Bates. Mr. Max Knauer sponsors the club.

January has been the kickoff month for continuing projects at Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church in Davenport.

First, the Ebony Drive was started off with much success. Cecil Cooper is the chairman for this project and Nick Penny is the co-chairman.

The Birthday Club had their first celebration by honoring all those born in January with an Ice Cream Social. The social was sponsored by the Sunday School, Miss Pat Edwards, superintendent. The Bethel Januaryites honored included Addie Sterling, Mrs. A.C. Wright, and Mr. Jackie Tucker.

Bethel is continuing with success their Senior Citizens Nutrition Program. It not only includes a noon meal but varied activities and fellowship among the participants.

Rev. A. C. Wright attended the Illinois Christian Education Conference that was held in Daville, Illinois for the A.M.E. Church.

NNPA conf. Ford makes visit

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Ford made an unannounced visit to a White House Cabinet-level briefing for Black publishers and issued a series of strong statements on civil rights and reaffirmed his commitments to equality.

The President told members of the National Newspaper Publishers Association that "Blacks in our society have too often been mentally segregated by some thinkers and planners who act as if Blacks did not have the same expectations and problems as other Americans. I promised that I would be President of all the people, and I am keeping that promise," President Ford said.

Dr. Carlton Goodlett, President of the NNPA, introduced the President with high praise for naming a Black of his Cabinet, for support of the Voting Rights Act, and for opening his doors to Blacks. Dr. Goodlett's remarks were in apparent reference to the President's naming of Philadelphia lawyer, William T. Coleman, to be Secretary of Transportation and the message he sent to Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr., on her late husband's birthday.

The President told the publishers that he had talked with Vice President Rockefeller and urged that he establish a continuing liaison with the group. Dr. Goodlett had made the request for meetings with the Vice President similar to those held under the Johnson Administration.

President Ford promised not to ignore Blacks during these difficult days of the economy.

He restated his position to the Congress issued in his State of the Union Address which called for another five-year extension of the Voting Rights Act.

The President said, "The voting rights law has helped open the way for the election of Blacks in all parts of the Nation, and that movement must be continued."

The President praised the Black publishers for the effectiveness of weekly newspapers. He said: "You are where it counts, channeling local news to your communities and challenging them to solve some of the mutual problems."

President Ford told NNPA that the Black community had been neglected too long and Black newspapers have had to assume some special and greater responsibilities. "Long before the civil rights movement became a national cause, you were communicating to your readers the difficulties faced by Blacks."

The publishers warmly received his closing remarks

when he said: "As I look back over the past 25 years, I am reminded of how far America actually has come, of how many barriers have fallen and the number of prejudices that have been laid to rest. More importantly, as I look ahead I know how much work remains before every child born in America has the same opportunities for long life, economic security and educational achievement."

"Much has been done. Much remains, but together we can make the necessary progress," the President concluded.

121st Birthday celebrated with wedding ceremony

A former slave born on a South Carolina plantation in 1854 has celebrated his 121st birthday with a wedding ceremony, remarrying his wife of 63 years.

The Rev. Toby Crosby said a man reaching 21 was expected to marry. And after his first century and 21 years he would comply with that tradition with a ceremony of rewedding his wife Lula, who is 89.

The Rev. Mr. Crosby said he was born in 1854 on a plantation and moved to Florida about the turn of the century. He worked as a railroad brakeman and in the turpentine industry.

He entered the ministry almost three-quarters of a century ago and founded the Lily of the Valley Church of Our Lord of the Apostolic Faith. He still preaches regularly to a small congregation and on occasion is a guest minister at other churches, despite failing eyesight and hearing.

Gil Scott-Heron

Artista Records has announced the release of Gil Scott-Heron's debut Lp for the label entitled "The First Minute of a New Day." The album, which shipped 100,000 copies, features Scott-Heron in collaboration with Brian Jackson and the Midnight Band.

Record World, the record industry national trade magazine, noted that the new album "consisting predominantly of the poet/performer's striking lyrics set to Brian Jackson's African hued rhythms...is surely their dual rise into the spotlight through their unique talent display." Scott-Heron's lyrics concern and address Black people, and the new Lp

We owe the apple a lot, historically. Who would ever have heard of William Tell if he hadn't shot an apple off his son's head? And we wouldn't have had THAT overture! Don't forget, too, that Isaac Newton, sitting under an apple tree, supposedly discovered the law of gravity when he saw an apple fall.

Apples are your tummy's best friend. They aid digestion and pep up your whole system.

Although recent statistics show that not much more than half as much fresh fruit is consumed now as in 1940, apples still stand out as the most popular domestic fruit. The annual U.S. apple crop is about 150 million bushels — and that's not applesauce!

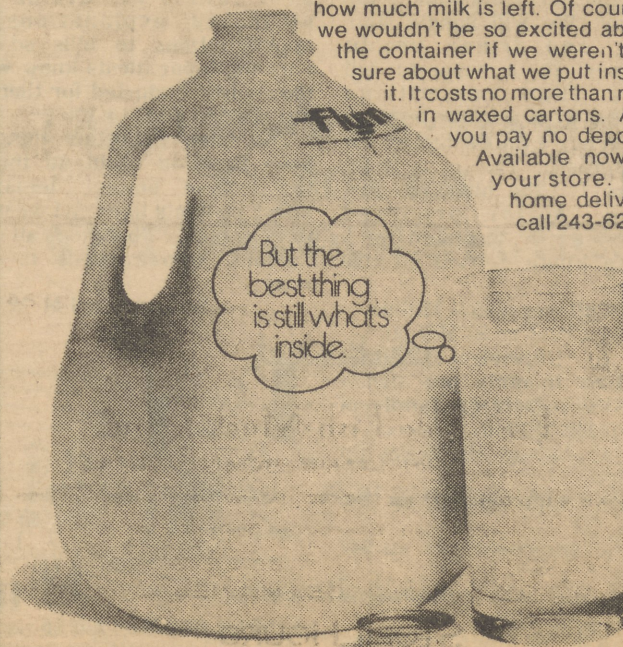

Good-tasting, economical apples come in so many varieties — over the years, more than 7,000 have been named and more than a hundred are grown commercially in the United States today — that you're not likely to taste them all.

Scott-Heron is perhaps most well known for his renowned recordings of "The Revolution Will Not Be Televised" and "The Bottle." In addition to being an accomplished songwriter/performer, he is the author of several novels, including "The Vulture" (World Press), and a book of poetry entitled "Small Talk at 125th and Lenox" (World).

Study: Child Abuse Rehab

Child abusing parents can learn not to abuse their children, and the families involved can be restored according to a study performed for BHSR.

The study, by the American Academy of Pediatrics, rejects foster homes as a solution to child-abuse, pointing out that such homes vary and that abuse has occurred in them. The contractors studied nine health-based programs in child abuse and child neglect, and found, in their words, child abuse in America to be "at the point of public outrage at the visible and dramatic end of the spectrum — the beatings, burnings, and drownings. A punitive approach has been the general rule; and the abusing, yet often loving, parents are fearful and secretive."

The study points out that for every severe identified case there are many less severe which pass through treatment agencies unrecognized, and others which are not even brought to treatment. The study adds, "Yet where compassionate treatment programs are known in the community, abusing parents even present themselves for help and find that an accepting, therapeutic, and nonpunitive approach awaits them."

Child-abusing families need all the friends they can get, the study says. It urges that the role of community services such as police and visiting nurse associations be studied to see how communications can be improved for the benefit of both parents and children.

It also asks whether child rearing should not perhaps be taught in public schools and whether child abuse prevention and therapy may need to be on the curricula of graduate schools. The teams which site-visited programs at nine major medical centers around the Nation, found generally that where there was community education on the problem, there was better and more reporting of child abuse, and called for more attention to the problem by schools and by private physicians. They also found need for a vast expansion of treatment facilities.

Calling for the institution of childabuse teams, the report suggests that on such a team, a nucleus would include a pediatrician, social worker, and a psychologist either part-time or on call. It cautioned, however that such a team cannot deal effectively with a community of more than a half-million people.

Social Security Admin.

The IOWA BYSTANDER has made arrangements with the Des Moines office of the Social Security Administration to answer questions for our readers about social security and Medicare. Send your question to Social Security Representative, Room 293 Federal Building, 210 Walnut Street, Des Moines, Iowa 50309.

QUESTION: My property was assessed a few months ago and the market value of my home was listed as $24,000. Will this affect my eligibility for supplemental security income payments?

ANSWER: Under the supplemental security income law, your home is not counted in determining your resources if it has a market value of $25,000 or less ($35,000 or less in Alaska and Hawaii).

Thursday, February 6, 1975

QUESTION: Do I have to send in a wage report and social security contributions on all of my farm employees?

ANSWER: If you paid a worker $150 or more in cash for farm work in 1974, his work is covered by social security and must be reported. If a worker did farm work for you on 20 or more days during the year—figured on a time basis rather than a piece-rate basis—his work is also covered even if he wasn't paid $150 and must be reported.

QUESTION: My mother cancelled her Medicare medical insurance 2 years ago, but would now like to have this protection. Can she re-enroll?

ANSWER: If she has cancelled her Medicare medical insurance only once, your mother can sign up for the protection during the first 3 months of any year.

QUESTION: I get social security retirement payments, and I've heard that the amount I can earn this year without losing any of my benefits has increased. If this is true, what is the new amount?

ANSWER: You can earn as much as $2,520 in 1975 without having any reduction in your social security payments. For every $2 you earn over $2,520, $1 in benefits will be withheld. But no matter how much you earn for the year, you can get your full social security check for any month in which you neither earn over $210 nor do substantial gainful work in your own business.

QUESTION: I am 69 and have very little income, but I own my own home. Will I have to give up my home to get supplemental security income payments?

ANSWER: No, you can own a home of reasonable value and still get supplemental security income and the Federal Government doesn't put a lien on your home because you get these payments. The supplemental security income program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Senate Report

Senate action thus far has revolved around committee work. Important basic decisions on handling appropriation's bills have been made. We will hold hearings on the requests by state agencies and make budget decisions for two years but appropriate for only one year due to the uncertain state of the economy. We will handle state salary and fringe benefit increases in a separate bill rather than committing ourselves to a certain level in each agency's billion budget for the biennium. This is a 19.4% increase for the biennium just ending. Major proposed increases for the biennium are:

Aid to Public Schools up $190 Million.

Area Colleges up $26 Million.

Aid for Cities up $8 Million.

Aid to Dependent Children (increases monthly pay ments from $353 to $410 for family of four) up $10 Million.

Special Aid to Highways up $20 Million.

IPERS Improvement up $26 Million.

Capital Improvements up $44 Million.

Increased Aid to Nursing Homes up $2 Million.

Because of their differing projections on the state of the economy, the comptroller and legislative fiscal director differ by $130 million dollars on revenues for the next two years. This illustrates how disastrous this projecting can be if estimates are way off. At this point, it is anyone's guess as to what will happen in '76-'77 and that is the danger in appropriating for two years.

We are also moving in the appropriations process to exercise more legislative control over what we decide by attaching explanations of appropriations to bills so the various departments know what the money budgeted for them is intended to do.

The most important thing to keep in mind about all this is that these budget decisions affect people's lives and we need to carefully balance all the various human needs in this state.

Which classification is the correct one for people who gather in a private home? They are not ordinary social guests, yet they have not come for business reasons either.

As a rule courts have decided that the social category, even if not exactly right, at least fits better than the business category. The practical effect is to reduce the home owner's responsibility for accidents.

Consider a typical case:

A woman opened her home for a meeting of college alumnae. During the evening, one of the visitors skidded on a loose throw rug and injured her shoulder. As a result, the hostess soon found herself facing a suit for damages.

But the court held her not liable. The court said the victim, just like an ordinary social visitor, had to take the premises as she found them.

On the other hand, the home owner's risk goes up when there is a business element in the day's arrangements. In another case, a woman allowed the local garden club to send sightseers to her home as part of a tour. But each person who signed up had to pay the club a fee.

This fact made all the difference later on, when an injured sightseer sought damages from the hostess. The court said payment of the fee gave the visitor the same special rights as a cash customer in a place of business.

HELPFUL IDEAS

BE A THRIFTY MOTORIST

Whether you've been driving for 10 days or 10 years, if your objective is saving money, knowing a few basics about how to drive and maintain your car for maximum energy and efficiency is the key.

Drive easily. Fast starts are an enormous strain on mechanical parts. It has been estimated that a single "blast off" from a traffic light costs ten cents in tire wear alone, not to mention the cost in general wear and tear.

When choosing a new car, safety should be as important a factor as styling. Volvo, for example, which redesigned its cars for the first time in eight years, reshaped the front end of their 240 series for safety as well as styling. A 40 mile per hour crash test into a barrier showed that the new design based on Volvo's experience with its experimental safety vehicles, decreased the average forces on the occupant compartment up to 20 percent.

Exercise your engine. The best thing you can do for your car, besides keeping good oil in it, is to take it out on a highway once a week for a good "exercise trip." It takes at least a 15 mile run for an engine to get good and hot — and heat is exactly what it needs to sweat out those acids and burn out the ruinous deposits.

By Allen Ashby

What do you do about the three major school teams in Iowa? Both Iowa U and Iowa State lose games they are supposed to win and win games they should lose. While Drake has lost more one point games in the closing seconds of games than any team has a right to. Give the Bulldogs just a couple of those last second losses and they would have a pretty fair record. Of course the Hawkeyes have been hit with untimely injuries to fellows who were supposed to help them a lot, or they might have a much better mark than they have. Don't know what the Drake problems are, except that the blame ball won't bounce right. Maybe it will before too long. Iowa State seems to come up with some fouls at the wrong time, and these hurt. I recall in one game, the high scoring Ivy made what looked to me to be a rather silly foul. I am no cage expert, but I would think that a fellow who knows that he has to score if his team is to win, should try to keep in the game as long as he could, and if he had to foul, let it be a foul that would help his team, such as making sure that the guy doesn't make the basket. But this is coming from a fellow who could hardly qualify as an expert, and besides, it is hindsight, which is never wrong.

High Schools

There is no doubt about it, Lincoln is at the top of the class at least in the Metro league, and possibly the state. It would be good for them if they did lose a game now, so there wouldn't be so much pressure on them when they came to the tournaments. And, now that Hoover has escaped twice in overtime games, you would have to give them at least second, with a slight chance to upset the Rail Splitters in their next game. Those tough games either make you ready or they take so much out of you that you can't have it the next time out. North has just about established their club as the number three club, but Dowling might have something to say about it. Tech and East are not in it, but East might get hot during the tournaments and spill somebody. I just wonder if Dowling's Tim Lee is the little fellow I used to tease him when he was a mere squirt. He probably doesn't remember it, and maybe it is just as well that he doesn't, for he might want to get even.

Who is Number One?

In the national picture, there is only one team that is undefeated. Indiana seems to be awfully tough or else the rest of the Big Ten is not so hot. Be that as it may, the Hoosiers go on kicking fannies and taking names as if they owned the league. In any other year, one would have to give them a chance to be favored for the national title, and maybe they will be. But the way the top teams are scrambled behind Indiana, I don't know. It seems as if the top twenty teams are so evenly matched that any one of them might beat any other on any day or night. For instance, Maryland beats Notre Dame by a good margin. UCLA dusts Maryland by about the same margin. Then Notre Dame does in the UCLANS. So what can you deduce from that? There are very few if any teams who haven't lost at least two games except the Hoosiers, and I believe that if they do drop one, it won't be the only one they lose. They will likely lose at least a couple, or else go all the way. And it is just about as bad in the small schools. No clear cut standout in their top twenty either. What a basketball year. In spite of the fact that Maryland has beaten defending NCAA champs, North Carolina

State, twice. The State boys will probably be the team to win the conference tournament and go to the big meet as defending champs again, because I don't think Maryland can do it three times in a row.

Now for the real games

Just an afterthought

I was interested in LaMont Lovelady's announcement that he is returning to the ring. From what I hear, the fellow has good potential, and maybe he has spent some time evaluating himself, and knows what he has to do to make it in the game. If he has done that and works at it, nothing is really out of his reach, I hope.
