Ask President's Leadership In Fight Against Segregation

National News Briefs

WASHINGTON D.C. Justice Thurgood Marshall of the U.S. Supreme Court administered the oath of office at the ceremonies concluding the appointment of William T. Coleman, Jr. of Philadelphia to become Secretary of Transportation in President Ford's Cabinet.

Chicago — The National Council of Churches (NCC) governing board meeting here at McCormick Inn March 4-6, was the attendance of 20 Soviet clergymen, were special guests of Black Churches of Chicago Sunday.

Baton Rouge, La. — The Department of Justice has concluded its investigation into the fatal shooting of two students at Southern University in Baton Rouge on Nov. 16, 1972.

Chicago, Ill. — Police said a Southside woman who had undergone brain surgery about two years ago apparently shot herself to death after learning she was facing additional surgery.

Memphis, Tenn. — Stax Record Company has been hit with more legal and economic woes.

RCA Records has filed a $154,000 suit against the Memphis-based company, adding to a bevy of suits, amounting to over $70 million, in which Stax is involved.

Washington D.C. — If the Pentagon gets what it wants, a volunteer stint in the military will last three years instead of two beginning in July, says defense secretary James Schlesinger.

Memphis, Tenn. — James Earl Ray was not surprised when prison officials told him a judge had rejected his plea for a new trial in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. — but he has not given up trying.

His attorney said the case will be appealed immediately to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Oakridge Project Stumbles

Oakridge, the low rent housing project built by church group before any effort was made by the city to provide dispossessed and low rent families accommodations, continues to be in trouble.

The $5,500 payment, part of a financial agreement worked out with the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), became due Monday, the Rev. Harold Varce, Oakridge board president, said.

The FHA which financed the project has been liberal in an effort to help the project succeed. It's troubles stem, in part, from the failure of authorities to grant tax exemption which constitute a large part of the operating cost.

The project has been a great help to low income people and has been very well run by the managers with little complaint.

Nate Ruben, director of the Des Moines FHA office, termed the situation as part of a continuing financial problem and not necessarily a new development.

Asks Court to Hear Seniority Case

NEW YORK — The NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review the fundamental issue of job layoffs and job recalls based on the widely used "last hired, first fired" principal said Jack Greenberg, director-counsel.

The case, Waters vs. Wisconsin Steel Works, concerns an Appellate Court decision in Chicago which last August held that district courts do not have the discretion or power to deal with layoffs which stem from seniority systems, even where such systems perpetuate past discrimination against blacks and give preferential treatment to whites.

The Seventh Circuit's ruling overturned a district court decision of May, 1973 which upheld charges brought by two black bricklayers against the Wisconsin Steel Works of International Harvester Co. and the United Order of American Bricklayers and Stone Masons, Local 21.

In that ruling, the district court upheld the plaintiffs'

Federal Funds Should Be Withheld from Violators

Washington, D.C. — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission, in a report issued this week, called for strong presidential leadership in eliminating segregation. The allegations that prior to April 1964, the company hired only white bricklayers, and that after 1964, it gave preferential treatment to those hired during the "white only" period.

The court concluded that such preferential treatment, including job recall rights had a discriminatory impact.

Since the record revealed that the seniority system and hiring policies were discriminatory, the district court ruled that company and union employment practices violated the law — that the defendants' seniority system was not a "bona-fide" system under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Commenting on the Legal Defense Fund's petition to the high court, Greenberg noted:

Friends Claim Metcalf Being Punished

Chicago, Ill. — The political predicament of U.S. Rep. Ralph H. Metcalf (D-1) has led some of his friends to suspect that he is "being framed" in retribution for his split with the regular Democratic Organization.

Although any prosecution of Metcalf will be engineered by U.S. Attorney James Thompson and newly-appointed Attorney General Edward Levi — both Chicago Republicans — is chiefly local Democrats who are supplying the information stacking up against him.

Metcalf, an outspoken critic of the Daley administration, is the subject of a three-pronged investigation conducted by the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and U.S. Attorney James Thompson's office.

Metcalf clashed with the Daley organization following his orders to his precinct captains not to circulate nominating petitions for the Mayor. He was forced to take the matter into court because some 3d Ward patronage workers feared loss of their jobs.

finger was pointed at the North which has not been responded in some places.

Entitled "Twenty Years After Brown," commonly known as Brown vs the school board it commemorated the historic U.S. Supreme Court decision that struck down the separate but equal doctrine, the bipartisan commission flatly rejected black separatists' demands for their own schools.

Separation remains unequal, it said, and "Integration must move forward for moral and legal reasons, irrespective of the difficulties along the way."

The report urged President Ford to provide Federal resources to effect as strong as possible federal enforcement of desegregation laws and to put the program under one person. Chiding the North for its poor progress, it said that the proportion of black people in predominately white schools in the south increased from less than 19% to more than 46% between 1968 and 1972. On the other hand 71% of blacks in the North attend predominately black schools in 1972.

Plans Uniform Standards

The commission is planning to develop uniform standards for elimination of segregation according to Chairman Arthur S. Fleming.

More Funds Needed

The report recommends that more funds be provided for schools that have complied with the standards and also to help districts that are demonstrating an effort to integrate schools where busing is needed. The Internal Revenue Service was urged to withhold tax exempt status from private schools which fail to comply with integration.

Other recommendations were:

- Take action to threaten funds cutoffs to schools which do not provide bilingual education.
- Protect the jobs of black administrators and teachers.
- Prohibit racially discriminatory pupil suspensions and expulsions.
- Require states to submit annual statewide desegregation plans for approval as a prerequisite for continued federal school aid.

Seeks To Sell Property By Opposition To Busing

Apparently, hoping to gain a real estate sale by appealing to anti busing people from Des Moines, a real estate agent has drawn strong criticism from the directors of the Greater Des Moines Realtors for placing a for sale ad in the shopper headed, "Worried About Busing".

Kathy Galassi a salesman for the Equitable Realty Corp. has been accused of violating the associations realty code. The officer stated,

"We don't condone this type of thing at all," said Robert Beattie, president of the Greater Des Moines Board of Realtors.

Kirk Fowler, Equitable's residential sales manager, said the ad "does not reflect our attitude or policy."

John Petosa, executive officer of the Board of Realtors, said Mrs. Gallassi could be reprimanded, suspended or excelled from the organization if the ethics committee determines the ad violates the group's code of ethics.

Follows National Code

The Greater Des Moines Board of Realtors follows the National Association of Realtors Code of Ethics, he said.

Article 10 of the code reads:

"The Realtor shall not deny equal professional services to any person for reasons of race, creed, sex or country of national origin. The Realtor shall not be a party to any plan or agreement to discriminate against a person or persons on the basis of race, creed, sex or country of national origin."

IEWS and REVIEWS

Civil Rights

There are three vacancies on the Iowa Civil Rights Commission. Judging from the bad publicity the commission has received the past months, some new blood needs to be infused into the commission.

It appears from all the confusion and disagreement that the public has been treated to, new leadership is essential to pull the commission in line with its responsibility.

It appears that some members are not really sold on the law: some are fearful to insist on its enforcement in which case neither is an asset to the commission.

Needless to say, members should be appointed who believe in the fundamental objectives of the Civil Rights Commission and have the courage to stand up against critics who wait in the corner waiting to throw rocks.

Ft. Des Moines an Historic Site

Des Moines has been favored by the National Park Service of the Department of Interior in the selection of Fort Des Moines as an historic site.

Many people are not acquainted with the history of Fort Des Moines. During World War I, the War Department chose Fort Des Moines as a camp site for training Negro officers.

Training camps had been set up in Plattsburg, New York, Fort Snelling, Minnesota and in the State of Washington but Negroes were not permitted to train in any of them.

Prominent civil rights groups spearheaded a force which finally convinced President Wilson and Secretary of War, Newton D. Barker, that Negroes should be given an opportunity to train for commissioned officers. The selection of a site became a problem with Howard University and Tuskegee, Alabama bidding for the honor. However, it was felt that to place the camp in either school would offer too many distractions from the job of training the cadets.

Fort Des Moines had been a cavalry post. Des Moines was chosen because the War Department felt it was a community that could accept a large number of additional Negro men in the community without trouble.

More than 1200 men from colleges and other areas of life came to Fort Des Moines which was designated the 17th Provisional Training Regiment. The staff and line officers were white and the cadre of non-commissioned officers from the 24th and 25th Infantry and the 9th and 10th Cavalry were assigned to assist in the training. Some unpleasant incidents occurred in Des Moines because the candidates insisted on exercising their civil rights. And while Des Moines officials backed them up, the commanding officer, Col. C.C. Balloau, did not have the courage to stand by his men.

The majority of the citizens of Des Moines were highly pleased with the presence of the men and they were invited to participate in many civic and religious activities in the community.

More than 800 candidates received commissions as Lieutenants and Captains. Upon the completion of their training they were assigned to various units of the 92nd division in different parts of the country. One, the 366th Infantry, was located at Camp Dodge.

Prior to the commission of these men there were only three Negro commissioned line officers in the service. In addition to the officers trained at Ft. Des Moines a few were commissioned in the field. Today there are Negroes with rank as high as Lt. General in the Army and others in the Navy, Air Corp and Marines.

The whole area will not be included in the site. However, improvements will be made particularly in the barracks where the men were quartered. The department will maintain the property designated to serve as a memorial to Negro soldiers.

Republican Conservatives

A group of conservative Republicans are trying to muddle the water of those who are attempting to rebuild the party from the terrible experience of the Nixon administration.

A recent poll showed that Republicans stand at 18%, Democrats at 42% and 40% are uncommitted. These conservatives do not realize that 18% of the voters will not elect a president; neither will 42%. But a party which makes the best possible showing among the 40% of the uncommitted gets elected.

There are Democrats who complain about the ultra conservative in their party, some of which are hard to swallow. The Republicans have some conservatives who are likewise hard for the majority of the Republicans to swallow but since politics produce some strange bedfellows, the winner is able to draw all factions together and come out ahead.

These conservative Republicans should remember that they were given a chance to elect a conservative in 1964 but suffered one of the biggest defeats in history.

The remainder of the Republican party must cling to the principles of the party but in the meantime realize that times have changed and that directions must change with them in order to attract the majority of the people. We need two parties, but conservatives who champion the idea of a choice between the two, contribute detrimental measures which help to destroy their own party.

High School Basketball Tournament

Few out-of-state people can conceive a girls' basketball tournament as is going on here this week. Up until recent years, all the teams were from small communities but high schools in larger cities are taking part in developing teams.

The youngsters have a good time coming to the city, living in hotels and motels and enjoying the facilities they never had before.

The boys' tournament will follow. Both activities offer these young people an opportunity to become more efficient in working with others and enjoying the activities that offers an outlet for the extra energy young people have.

A Woman's Views On Blacks and Crime

GUEST OPINION

By Rose Gillespie

As a lower-income black American woman, I didn't have to wait for former Atty. Gen. William Saxbe to tell me that crime was on the increase. I see it all around me all the time. And I want him and everyone else to know that we working-class blacks are sick and tired of it.

Any man who sets his hand against the laws that are supposed to govern social behavior owes a debt to society that can be paid only if he is punished. Until President Ford granted a pardon to Richard Nixon, I thought that was one of the things America stood for. Justice demands that wrongdoers, whether they are white or black, high or low on the social ladder, be apprehended and punished for their crimes.

Those of us who live in the black ghettos are tired of hearing mushy-headed do-gooders preach from their suburban homes and churches about the evils of retribution and the penal system.

We are tired of being afraid to leave our homes.

We are tired of being fearful whenever our children go out to play.

We are tired of paying our tax dollars for the salaries of police who are not around when we need them and of judges who let vicious criminals out on the streets.

And, personally, I am tired of being praised as a beautiful black sister when in the presence of some of my black brothers, and becoming just another ripoff victim when my back is turned.

We blacks have deceived ourselves into believing that we would improve ourselves by lowering the standards by which we live, and the Establishment has accepted our low estimation of ourselves. But we must face the facts: We will never be secure, we have no chance of being happy, and we will never have either self-respect or the respect of the majority in this society or in any other if we do not demand that one standard of conduct apply to all.

We must no longer accept the lie that every black who is arrested is a victim of racism. We must face the fact that there are black criminals and black juveniles who ought to be taken off the streets.

We have fought hard and long against unjust harassment of blacks and the members of other minority groups. Now the time has come for a new outcry:

●Against the injustice of law-enforcement officials pursuing criminals who victimize blacks with less vigor than they would if the victims were white.

●Against the injustice of parents failing to assume proper responsibility for their children's behavior.

●Against the injustice of blacks purchasing hot merchandise at bargain prices under the mistaken assumption that no one is hurt by their action.

●Against the injustice of blacks failing to support programs designed to combat crime in our communities.

●Against the injustice of our leaders, who have spent so many years denouncing the wrongs that whites and institutionalized racism have inflicted upon us that they have grown blind to the corruption and criminality of some segments of the black community and the dangers those elements pose to the rest of us.

I don't pretend to have a complete solution to the problem of crime in the ghetto. I'm not sure the American system offers any just solution to the problem of crime in this country. But I do know that we are doomed to live out our lives in fear unless we wake up soon to our desperate need to help put our house in order.

Ms. Gillespie, a native of Des Moines, is employed at the Des Moines Urban Development Office. She will graduate in August from Drake University with a degree in sociology. She is the mother of a young son.

"Black Scholar" publisher resigns

WASHINGTON — The publisher of a leading black intellectual journal resigned last week in protest against a "black Marxist" takeover of the publication he founded six years ago.

Dr. Nathan Hare, the publisher of "The Black Scholar," said in an open letter that he was "resigning and severing all ties" with the journal that has published major political and economic studies by a wide cross section of black scholars, intellectuals and revolutionary thinkers.

Hare, the victim of two political firings — "at Howard University in 1967 and at San Francisco in 1969," started the journal, he said, "as a vehicle, an open forum of debate, study and analysis among black intellectuals and activists of all persuasions" aimed at "evolving a new and viable black ideology that could rally black people and their allies at large for a sustained and victorious struggle for liberation."

Hare said that although he saw the black liberation struggle as "one of both class and struggle" the majority of American Marxists "see black revolutionary change primarily, even totally, as a class struggle, and seek accordingly to minimize the relevance of color."

Hare, a Ph.D. in sociology, accused the black Marxists of "a narrow devotion to conventional Marxist interpretation and ironclad intolerance for and resistance to opposing views ... Thus 'The Black Scholar' ... has increasingly come to be regarded as locked in a deadly vice of progressive deterioration."

"The Black Scholar, under the umbrella of the Black World Foundation, was incorporated as a non-profit organization with by-laws and a board of directors, with all policy decisions to be made by majority vote of board members," said Hare in the 3-page letter. "That was supposed to be in the spirit of 'revolution', but it was my mistake."

"That majority is now 'black Marxist', and soon found my contribution sabotaged and almost liquidated. But I hung on, feeling that my own personal satisfaction was secondary to a chance to help black people."

Hare, who is to receive a second Ph.D. in psychology this summer, said his studies left him with "less time to devote to 'The Black Scholar.'" He said that his "new direction" in wedding sociology and psychology as "instruments for the understanding ... of the black condition became the first stage in his leaving the journal and 'moving to a higher level of involvement in the black movement.'"

Hare said he hoped his leaving would play a part "in preventing the black movement from making an untimely mistake and getting sidetracked and further decimated for perhaps another generation."

Measles vaccination Clinics

Special measles vaccination clinics will be held in all Polk County public, parochial and private elementary schools the week of March 17 to combat an outbreak of the disease.

Robert M. Williamson, communicable disease control officer of the Des Moines-Polk County Health Department, said seven cases of measles were reported on one day last week, six of them in one school. He said children who contact measles will lose two weeks of school.

Parents of elementary school children will be asked to sign an authorization for the vaccination.

The vaccinations, which also will be administered to brothers and sisters of elementary school children if parents consent, will be made by teams from the Des Moines-Polk County Health Department. They will be assisted by school nurses, school volunteers and Red Cross volunteer nurses. The vaccine will be provided by the State Health Department.

Williamson said children who have had measles or received adequate vaccination will not need to be revaccinated. He suggested that children be vaccinated if they have not had measles or been adequately vaccinated, if they were given gamma globulin when vaccinated (requiring two shots at the same time) or were vaccinated before one year of age. He said, for practical purposes, any child vaccinated before 1967 should be revaccinated because gamma globulin may have been given with the vaccine.

"If there is any doubt as to whether your child has been vaccinated or had the disease, vaccinate him or her now," Williamson said. "Revaccination does no harm."

Mrs. Beatrice Sweet, head nurse for Des Moines Public Schools, said the goal of the clinics will be to achieve a vaccination level in each elementary school about 90 per cent. She said the school reporting six cases in one day last week has a vaccination level of only 69 per cent.

Williamson said the last measles outbreak in Des Moines of concern to public health officials was in 1968.

Communities face suspension

Seven communities have been notified they face suspension from the National Flood Insurance program, effective March 26, for failing to adopt the necessary local flood plan management measures required to remain eligible for federally subsidized flood insurance.

Notice of the pending suspensions was announced by J. Robert Hunter, acting Administrator of the Federal Insurance Administration in the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The communities under threat of suspension are Topeka, KS., San Jacinto, CA., Franklin, NC., Titusville, FL., McGregor, IA., and Desoto and Newburg, both of MO.

Mr. Hunter said a record of the correspondence and other communications between these communities and representatives of his office showed, on FIA's part, a continuing effort to advise and assist the communities in meeting the Federal requirements and, on the part of the communities, "a general pattern of delay or unwillingness to follow through on their promises."

All of the seven, Mr. Hunter said, were made eligible for the sale of flood insurance policies in 1970 or 1971. At various times thereafter, the communities were sent deficiency notices, giving them six months to adopt an ordinance regulating future construction in their flood hazardous areas along prudent lines.

In almost all cases, he said, the responsible local official promised to take the necessary action and suspension notices were withheld. But despite persistent urging from the FIA, deadlines suggested by the communities themselves were allowed to lapse, and Mr. Hunter said he had no alternative, regrettably, other than to send out the suspension notices.

Mr. Hunter warned that unless the seven comply with the requirements by March 26, no new policies will be sold in those communities as of that date, although existing policies will be honored until they expire. These may not be renewed, however, until the suspended communities are reinstated.

"I must repeat what I said last month when we had to suspend nine communities from the program," Mr. Hunter said. "Compliance with the program is the whole economic justification for the availability of flood insurance.

"To continue federally subsidized flood insurance in communities that have failed to administer an adequate flood plain management program would be an unjustified waste of taxpayer's dollars.

"Let us hope the responsible officials of these seven communities will do what is needed to return to their citizens the benefits of this nation-wide program to reduce loss of life and property damage from floods."

An electric heat pump uses the old energy wisely

In these days of tight energy supply and rapidly increasing prices, wouldn't it be great if there was a heating system that furnished more energy in the form of heat than it used in the form of fuel.

Well, as a matter of fact, the electric heat pump is such a machine. It's like a furnace and an air conditioner rolled into one.

In the summer it works like an electric air conditioner and in the winter it automatically reverses itself and pumps heat from the outside air into your home. Because the electricity is only used to transfer heat rather than to create it, it saves energy.

Ask your local Iowa Power office or your "certified heat pump dealer" about the advantages of the electric heat pump.

Council of 100 republicans

Lloyd Von Blaine, Director of Communications for the Council of 100, an organization of Black Republicans, announced today that a select committee of the Council met with Senator John Tower of Texas Chairman of the Republican Policy Committee to press its demands for urgent and immediate enactment of legislation to extend for five (5) years the voting rights act, employment of more minorities on congressional staffs and the establishment of a comprehensive program designed by Republicans, implemented for and by the poor.

Mr. Samuel C. Jackson, Chairman and spokesman for the Council stated that these issues were of high priority for minorities and urged the Senator to review his position and support these as a matter of human and constitutional rights. These he stated will if enacted greatly aid both the Black Republican image and the Republican party.

Senator Tower promised to consider the voter rights acts extension personally and at the same time present the request to hire more minorities on his Senatorial staff and requested the Council to recommend qualified candidates for immediate consideration. He further admitted a need for an overall review of hiring practices on Capitol Hill by all members of Congress.

In response to questioning by Willie Williams Council Co-Chairman he agreed to have his administrative aid Elwin L. Skiles, Jr. to receive the complaints of the Council and work with a committee toward the presentment of an agreed solution.

The New Iowa Bystander - Des Moines, Iowa

Approximately one hundred African works from the collection of Julian and Irma Brody of Des Moines will be exhibited at the Art Center from March 19 through April 20. The exhibition has been selected by Professor Roy Sieber of Indiana University, one of the foremost scholars of African art.

The selection of works ranges geographically over the Western Sudan, the Guinea Coast, the Equatorial Forest, and the Southern Savannah with a heavy emphasis on art from the tribes of Nigeria and particularly the Yoruba.

This will mark the first time that such a large selection of works from this significant collection will have been shown in central Iowa. An illustrated catalog with an introduction by Sieber will be available.

Special Closing

Instead of the customary opening of an exhibition, a special "closing" will be held at the Art Center on Sunday, April 20 from two to five p.m. The Brodys will be present.

A film of African dances will be shown at 2 p.m. in the Levitt Auditorium to be followed by an African musical program by the Fajilawa trio at 3 p.m.

The group works with instruments and music derived from African and Western cultures, mixing sights and sounds. The nibira, an African thumb piano is crafted and played by the group's director, Gary Gray. Featured also is Lynn Dillon, flutist, and the slide-projected paintings of John McDonald.

This group has toured Iowa schools and cultural centers for the past two years through a supporting grant from the Iowa Arts Council.

African Films

To augment the Brody Collection, a series of four outstanding color films on Africa's contribution to American culture will be shown.

Produced, written and directed by Eliot Elisofon and featuring as narrators four noted black Americans, the films describe the history, traditions, culture and beauty of Africa. Each film is 50 minutes in length and different film will be shown each of four weekends... with a 3 p.m. Saturday and a 3 p.m. Sunday showing.

"The Congo," narrated by Julian Bond will be shown on March 22 and 23; "The Bend of the Niger," March 29 and 30, is narrated by Ossie Davis; Maya Angelou will narrate "The Slave Coast," to be shown April 5 and 6; and the series will conclude with a showing on April 12 and 13 of Gordon Parks presenting "Africa's Gift," with special focus on the Senufo people of the Ivory Coast.

NWB seeks art work

Northwestern Bell is inviting area artists to submit their art work for consideration for publication in the company's 1976 Appointment Calendar. More than 600,000 copies of the 1975 calendar were distributed to Northwestern Bell customers.

Both amateur and professional artists are encouraged to submit their paintings. "This year we hope to follow a Bicentennial theme," said R. A. Reed, Northwestern Bell district manager-customer relations. "1976 is the 200th birthday of the United States and the 100th anniversary of the telephone. Our calendar will help commemorate those two events. We want to illustrate it with original art work that portrays the people and events of this region's past."

All art work will be considered but there is special interest in paintings that depict the history of the Upper Midwest. All techniques and media are acceptable. Artists whose paintings are selected to be featured in the calendar will receive $200 for publication rights.

To be eligible, artists must live in one of the five states served by Northwestern Bell — Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota or South Dakota. Interested artists should contact Northwestern Bell's business office for further details.

HANK AARON'S HOSPITAL ODYSSEY

Wheelchair bound patients at Denver's Veterans Administration Hospital are now playing baseball, football, hockey, tennis, and ping pong ... electronically.

Laughter and cheers now resound through the hospital's recreation area as the patients using the Magnavox "Odyssey" television unit compete in sports and informational games.

The game was presented to the hospital recently by Hank Aaron, president of the No Greater Love organization. The group sponsors programs of friendship and care for hospitalized veterans and the children of servicemen missing or killed in action.

While setting up "Odyssey" for the patients, Aaron told them, "I bet you're a lot like I am. It's nice to watch a game, but playing it is where it's at."

"With the 'Odyssey' you'll be in there working at the game ... and there is nothing to stop you from establishing a few of your own records."

The electronic game can be attached to any set that measures over 19 inches. Many sports and educational systems are included.

Working with Magnavox, Hank Aaron will be visiting hospitals throughout the country during the year, leaving an "Odyssey" trail.

unique thing about this program is that we had to pick the executive we wanted, as well as them picking us."

There are no grades as such for the executives. Every week they hand in a daily log. At the end of the semester, Jackie will write a summary of her experiences besides a personal project she is working on.

Roosevelt Jr. enjoys Exec. Internship Program

Junior Jackie Easley is spending this second semester participating in the Executive Internship program. She first heard about it last spring, during one of her classes. Jackie immediately inquired about the program. Several meetings were held at Roosevelt, and a few during the summer.

There are about 18 Des Moines area high school students involved with the program, five of these students are from Roosevelt. Jackie is with Chief Judge Gibson Holliday at the Polk County Courthouse. She works as an intern on Monday through Thursday, from 8:00 until 4:00 p.m. Every Friday, the interns attend seminars with regard to their experiences and progress during the week. Reporting back to their particular high school for information, is done during one Friday a month.

Jackie and Laura Blunk, from Lincoln are both working with Judge Holliday. Jackie has been attending arraignments and observing trials. Judge Holliday confers with her and explains anything that she might not understand. Later, she hopes to get involved with divorce actions and other proceedings.

Working at the courthouse full time is a learning experience for Jackie. She will receive four and one half credits this semester. She chose the legal area, because of her interest in legal and political processes.

Requirements for the program included an application and parental and school permission. The students were interviewed by prospective executives. Jackie remarked, "The most

Polk County 4-H'ers will have a chance to enter two posters in the Iowa 4-H Poster Contest at this year's Iowa State Fair, said Mary K. Munson, Polk County 4-H and Youth Leader. Three posters displayed at the state fair will be entered in the National 4-H Poster Art Exhibit at the 1975 National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Illinois.

"The poster contest is open to all enrolled 4-H members," said Miss Munson. "That includes all young people involved in any of Extension's youth programs. The purpose is to give young people a chance to express their ideas and feelings about 4-H. It doesn't involve a specific project; the contest just asks them to be creative."

Mary Kay listed the poster categories — "4-H - Room to Grow," "We Are Involved," and "You've Got a Friend in 4-H." She said that 4-H'ers can use watercolor, ink, crayon, acrylic, charcoal, oils, or collage techniques. Posters may be horizontal or vertical, and should be 14 by 22 inches. Members should not use copyright material or cartoon characters in posters because these can not be accepted as state or national entries.

The Polk County contest will be held in conjunction with the Polk County Fair with entries made directly at the fairgrounds on Sunday, July 20th between 2 and 5 p.m. One entry per 4-H participant will be allowed. Entries will receive medallions from Coats and Clarke, Inc.

All 4-H members who make posters will receive medallion seals. The seal is provided by Coats and Clarke, Inc., national sponsor of the 4-H poster art program. Leaders and members can get additional information about the poster contest at the Polk County Extension Office.

Ebony "75"

On Feb. 25 the Dowling Black Student Union displayed some unforgettable talent, fashions and Black pride, all wrapped up they called their effort Ebony "75".

If you were among the audience for 90 minutes you would have experienced a lot of eye pleasing, mind boggling fantasies, fantasies that one wouldn't forget for a time to come. The guest speaker brought to mind thoughts of different prejudices, what places serve colored people and rapped a little about his job. The audiences attention was also held by a cultural dance done by Valerie Hill.

In conclusion Catherine Campbell for sure brought tears to everyones eyes when she presented her 81 year old grandmother with a large bouquet of flowers for her birthday.

"All in all, the show came out better than expected" says Catherine. "The support from the parents was fantastic but faculty representation was almost zero."

As of March 22, Saturday, we will be starting up our meetings again at 3:00 p.m. at Martin Luther King, Jr. Park.

We are asking that all members leave their irrational attitudes at home and try to make this organization a success.

Only you can do this by being on time at a specified date, and by bringing new ideas and being willing and ready to work for the betterment of your community.

This year we are going places. Get yourself together and leave your funny bags at home.

TM lecture at Drake

"Transcendental Meditation (TM) and Its Effects on the Individual and Society" will be the subject of a lecture to be given at Drake University, Meredith Hall Room 106 - 7:30 p.m. Meredith is just northeast of the University Avenue parking lot. The public is invited free of charge.

Dr. R. C. Wooters, Polk County Medical Examiner has commented, "I am profoundly impressed both personally and professionally with the benefits of Transcendental Meditation in the area of producing emotional tranquility, as well as improving one's general outlook and efficiency. There is absolutely no conflict whatever between Transcendental Meditation and religion."

Research at Harvard Medical School, Stanford Research Institute and the University of Texas has shown that two twenty minute periods of this simple mental technique has beneficial effects in reducing high blood pressure, normalizing weight, relief from insomnia and an overall increase in energy.

These and other current areas of research on TM will be Understanding Life Ins.

Many people continue to purchase various types of life insurance contracts and they do not have a clue to the type of policy that they have. When I ask people what type and kind of insurance policy that they have, they usually give me a face amount or the maturity date of the policy. When I probe to find out about the dividends or cash value of the policy the normal response is that they don't know because insurance is so confusing. I contend that a majority of the confusion could be straightened out if the policyholder would take a minute to read his policy, and then sit down with his agent and discuss anything that isn't clear. Most people ask questions about their policy after a death or when they need one of the benefits of the policy. The time to examine your policy is now, especially if you don't understand it. Many misunderstandings may then be avoided. If your insurance agent does not take time to explain your policy to you, demand it. It is your right to know what is in your policy.

The first step in understanding your policy is to have a knowledge of the basic types of policies. It is important to know if you have a term, whole life or endowment policy. First we will discuss the term policy.

The term policy is for, as its name indicates for a certain time or period. This policy pays only after the death of the insured, and at the end of that term period the policy has a face value of zero dollars.

A ten year, $10,000 level term policy would maintain a value of $10,000 for the entire term period (ten years). At the end of the period the policy would have a face value of zero dollars.

Many people mistake the decreasing term policy with the level term policy. The decreasing term policy starts at a certain face value and decreases in a stair step manner to a zero dollar value. A ten year decreasing term policy would have a value of $10,000 the first policy year, five years later it would have a value of $6,000 and in the tenth policy year it would have a value of $1,000, the eleventh year it would have a value of zero dollars.

As you can see the type of term insurance can make a big difference in the amount of protection that you have. Most term policies run 5-10-15-20 years and will not be issued to run past age 60 or 70.

Next week I will finish our discussion of term insurance.

Social Security

The IOWA BYSTANDER has made arrangements with the Des Moines office of the Social Security Administration to answer questions for our readers about social security and Medicare. Send your question to Social Security Representative, Room 293 Federal Building, 210 Walnut Street, Des Moines, Iowa 50309.

QUESTION: When my husband started getting supplemental security income payments last year, I got payments as his wife. We've been separated a little over 6 months now. Should I report this to social security?

ANSWER: Yes. When a husband and wife who get supplemental security income payments have been separated for at least 6 months, they should report the separation to social security. Any change in your marital status, living arrangements, or income can affect the amount of your payments. You can report a change by calling any social security office.

QUESTION: Both my husband and I will be 65 in a few months and will get Medicare. Will we each get a Medicare card, or do I use the card that he gets? ANSWER: When a husband and wife both have Medicare, they get separate cards and claim numbers. You'll use the Medicare claim number on your card. Your husband will use the claim number on his card.

QUESTION: We have a grown son who's been severely disabled since he was born. I know he can get social security benefits when my husband retires next year, but I'm only 58. Will I get any social security payments?

ANSWER: A wife can get monthly benefits on her husband's record regardless of her age if she is caring for a son or daughter who is under 18 or who became disabled before 22 and remains disabled. Your son may also be eligible for supplemental security income payments. Call or write any social security office for more information.

QUESTION: My husband and I are going to retire in a few months. I've been employed most of our married life. Can I get social security benefits on both my husband's work record and on my own?

ANSWER: If you're eligible for benefits on two work records, you can be paid a monthly amount equal to the higher of the two benefits, but not both. When you apply for benefits, the people in the social security office will tell you which benefit amount is higher.

Vet's Questions

Q— I received treatment for a service-connected injury at a Veterans Administration hospital about two years ago, but I need treatment again. Will VA give it to me?

A— Yes. And, if as you indicated, you have already established service-connection, all you need do is apply for treatment again.

Q— I know World War II veterans who never used their GI home loan benefits are still eligible, but are they also eligible for school benefits?

A— The Veterans Administration can provide education benefits only for eligible veterans discharged after January 31, 1955. Under a recent law, education benefits expire 10 years after date of discharge or May 31, 1976, whichever is later.

Q— The National Cemetery in my state has been closed because of lack of space. Will the Veterans Administration pay an additional allowance for veterans buried in private cemeteries?

A— Yes. VA can provide a $150 plot allowance in addition to the maximum $250 burial benefit when a veteran is buried outside a National Cemetery.

Senate Report

The first regular appropriations bill was sent to the governor after the Senate passed it 41-3. This bill provided operating funds for five licensing boards, including architecture, engineering and accounting. The bill served as the vehicle to debate the question of annual appropriations. As floor manager of the bill, I supported appropriating annually rather than biennially. This makes sense considering the uncertain state of the economy. Any other governmental agency appropriates on an annual basis as do private businesses. We are trying to budget further ahead to allow agencies to plan their work. Annual appropriations will allow greater legislative control over budgets. Opponents of annual appropriations were mainly concerned that additional legislative time will be necessary for the second year of the biennium. I don't think this is the case as we are making budget decisions for the second year but just not appropriating them.

Senate File 74, which I supported, passed the Senate. This would allow expanded use of the school house fund. Presently this can be used only basically for acquisition of land. This bill would allow improvement of sites, including grading, seeding, trees, sidewalks, etc. Some school boards have been using a sort of subterfuge of having the property owner improve the property before buying it and this bill would eliminate this problem.

Citizens sometimes ask if we ever repeal laws. The answer is "yes", and we did repeal many chapters of obsolete railroad laws with passage of House File 127. The bill was the result of an interim study on the need to modernize our railroad laws.

I supported a bill to provide a lifetime hunting and fishing license for citizens over 65. A combined license would be $8 and either individual license $6.

Thursday, March 13, 1975
This is reasonable service to help our senior citizens save a little money.

A good deal of time was wasted by minority party partisan maneuvering on resolutions. I have long felt legislative resolutions to Congress were of little use. All they do is allow legislators to vent some steam and waste debate time. We are trying to eliminate some of this.

Partisan debate also erupted over the progress of the legislature. I would strongly defend our record to date. Appropriations bills have moved through both houses two months earlier than last time. The Senate has completed a five-year task in passage of the criminal code. All in all, progress is good.

USPS UNPAID MAIL DELIVERY POLICY SUCCEEDING

Mr. John A. Knopp, Officer-In-Charge, Des Moines Post Office, said today the volume of mail containing no postage has dropped about 88 per cent overall since it instituted a policy last November discontinuing delivery of such mail.

Samplings from major post offices indicate the volume of unpaid mail has dropped from an annual level of about 185 million pieces to the current level equivalent to about 20 million pieces and it continues to drop. The Postal Service annually handles 90 billion pieces of mail.

When the new policy was announced on November 17, 1974, the Postal Service estimated it was losing at least $13 million yearly in the processing and handling of unpaid mail.

Particularly important at this time of year, Mr. Knopp reminded, is that proper postage be placed on income tax returns to insure they will be expeditiously delivered to federal and local offices. In addition, senders should take care that the return and destination addresses are correct, and should also enclose in the envelope their full name and address.

sports

By Allen Ashby

Too bad the basketball season isn't beginning instead of ending. All three of our schools, Iowa, IOWA State and Drake ended on victory notes. And, since most of the regulars will be back for next season, it looks as if they will all be in their conference races then. The Iowa-Illinois game was one of those comic section thrillers, and if anyone had tried to write something like it, it wouldn't have gone over.

Iowa State looked like a first place team instead of the cellar dwellers against their opponents. Their big scorer, Ivy sat out part of the game, or he might have set a new Big Eight mark for a season scoring. But the guy said he was glad to be on the winning note, and the record wasn't that important. What is important is that he is coming back next year, or at least, he thinks so now. Probably will, too.

Drake got the tournament bid they were after, and by the time this comes out will have done something, won or lost in the commissioner's meet. All season I wondered how the Iowa State assistants, especially Guydon, would fare under Trickey, and it was good news to read that he planned to keep both of his first assistants on. But, I guess Gus Guydon might find himself faced with a chance to become a head coach somewhere. Then what?

One Big upset

I have been saying all season that Lincoln High was going to come a cropper, but they haven't done it yet. However, the other school, Hoover which was expected to battle the Railsplitters for the final tourney berth, did get set down by East. The Scarlet, with a losing record, played as if they hadn't lost one all season, and this was one close one that Hoover didn't pull out. Early in the season, East had some problems, and this might have kept them from getting it all together as soon as they might have. But they did it for at least one game. In the all city team picked by the players, North's Bruce Smith was the leading vote getter, and I think if they had waited a couple of weeks to vote, that Dowling's Tim Lee might have made the first team. But in the face of the big Lincoln players, his size may have been against him, so maybe he would have still been second team.

It Wont be Long Now

While I was reading about Mark Morrow winning his second match as Iowa's number four man, and his number three doubles match. Wait a minute, the guy lost his singles match, and won his doubles duel. I was watching Arthur Ash playing on the tube. I watched him last Sunday, too, and concluded that it is my expert opinion that the fellow consistently makes three fundamental errors that cost him a lot of matches. He doesn't get down on low shots very often. He drops his racket head on easy forehand volleys, and he loaf's getting up to the net too often, so he is just about a half step behind where he should be to put away a volley. Why doesn't he do something about this, or why don't his fellow players see it? Maybe they do. And as for doing something about those things, you must remember that tennis is a game of habits, and once you get into a pattern, it is hard to break out of it. I have read that the only way to break one's self of those bad playing habits is to take time off and start learning the game over under a competent coach. And most of the players don't have time off from their schedules to do that, so they do with what they have, and hope it is good enough most of the time. And in spite of his bad habits, Ash is always one of the leading money winners, so I guess I would trade a few errors for some of that dough he gets, wouldn't you?

Bowling, anyone?

I finally got some action on my requests for bowling scores. The Trihards sent in a whole bunch of scores, and all of them were good. I can't remember one below 500 which is very good for women or for a lot of men, including me, for that matter. Now, I would like to hear from some more, and Dick Henderson, how about a rundown on your new organization, some of the particulars that you didn't give to the daily papers. I don't like to copy stories out of the daily papers, so when a story about black doings hits the dailies first, I usually leave it alone. But you must have some dope that they either didn't print or didn't get, so how about it?

There weren't enough scores from way out to come up with, but Jackson State finished second in the small college poll, and there were some others in the top twenty.

But the Maple St. Baptist stayed in a tie for their league lead by beating the First Federation group 31 to 28. Their next game is March 24 and they have one postponed game to make up. Do you know, I should tell you who the leading scorers are, but I think I will have Pat

Marshall give me a list of them for the season.

a short story about beards and bumps

How To Help Eliminate and Prevent Razor Bumps

Men shave in different ways because they have different beards and different types of hair:

A. STRAIGHT HAIR

Grows from follicles that are straight all along their length.

B. WAVY HAIR

Grows from follicles that are curved a little.

C. CURLY HAIR

Grows from sharply curved follicles. It often coils before it comes through the skin.

Straight hair, wavy and curly hair can be shaved with a blade or electric razor. Shaving very curly hair (common among Black men) may require another way to avoid "razor bumps".

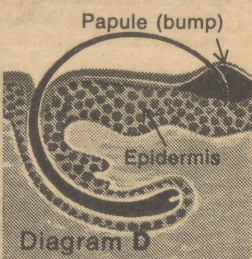

Diagram "D" shows what can happen when hair is very curly. This hair comes through the skin's surface and then curls back until the tip re-enters the skin, forming an "ingrown hair." A razor isn't always the best way to shave such hair. The hair can curl so close that the razor misses it. Those whiskers it does remove are cut at a sharp angle, making it easy for the hairs to re-enter the skin after a couple days' growth. The result is the same — either way.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER? For over 70 years Black Americans have been using Magic Shaving Powder (depilatory) instead of a razor. It actually "dissolves" hair rather than cutting it. It doesn't leave sharp tips on the hair it removes. And when used properly it gets them all. So it helps eliminate and prevent razor bumps.

No matter what formula you choose they are all fine products — the world's leaders. Blue Label (Regular Strength for the average beard), Red Label (Extra Strength for tough beards), Gold Magic — with a pleasant fragrance... or Magic Cream Shave — Ready-to-use formula that requires no mixing. And for after shave comfort, use Magic After Shave Skin Conditioner. It's especially formulated for depilatory users. Won't sting or burn!

For the complete story about beards and bumps, send stamped, self-addressed envelope for free illustrated booklet.
