SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

Unveils Desegregation Plan

Dedicate King School

Martin Luther King Elementary School, one of the Charatte type schools constructed in Des Moines, was dedicated Sunday, May 4th. Mrs. Robert D. Ray, wife of the Governor, cut the ribbon setting off the program which was preceded by a tour of the building.

A solo, "Lift Every Voice and Sing" was rendered by Mrs.

Betty Jackson. James Bowman, director of elementary education, dedicated the building in behalf of the school board; Mrs. June Larson an community worker accepted it.

Lynn Clutter, chairman of King Advisory Council, was master of ceremonies and the guest speaker was Dr. Todd Hines, Coordinator of Community Service, Polk County Mental Health Center and Dr. Donald Brubaker gave the history of King School in the absence of Dr. Charles Link of Bay City, Michigan who had been scheduled to do so. The welcome address was given by Mrs. Betty Davis, Vice Principal, substituting for Donald Williams, principle of the school.

Mrs. Evelyn Davis presented an American flag to the school in behalf of VFW Post 5784 and Thomas Spencer presented a picture of Dr. King on behalf of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity of which Dr. King was a member.

Music was rendered by the King Chorus, Rev. F. W. Strickland, pastor of Corinthian Baptist Church, gave the invocation and Father James Kernan, pastor of St. Johns Catholic Church gave the benediction.

Mrs. Coretta King, widow of Dr. King, sent a letter of regret that she was not able to accept the invitation because it came too late to adjust her schedule.

Involves Closing Some; Busing Some Pupils; Consolidating Other Schools

For the past 24 months the Des Moines Schools have been communicating with the Dept. of Public Instruction regarding allegations that the Des Moines Schools are in violation of nondiscrimination guidelines and policies as published by the Dept. of Public Inst., State of Iowa.

Since April of 1973 correspondence has gone between the Dept. of Public Inst. and the Des Moines Public Schools. The past record of the Des Moines School District is to avoid segregative action. The schools' efforts are to further desegregate and integrate where possible and when in the best interest of all.

It was felt that the schools' responsibility to integrate and desegregate students, staff, curriculum, and activities is only one aspect of the matter and that they should not bear the burden alone. The problem is a continuing and changing phenomenon of urban life. So continuous efforts need to be made with other community organizations and agencies to establish open housing, equal employment opportunities, economic security and full social participation.

Thus a final plan by the Des Moines School System is to be submitted to the Dept. of Public Instruction on or before June 15, 1975.

Reports have been made from the City-Wide Advisory Committee on Intercultural Affairs and from members of the community regarding proposed solutions. The superintendent of Des Moines Public Schools and his staff have studied these solutions. A public meeting was held March 31, 1975, to hear further suggestions from the community. Open sessions were held throughout the month of March and continued in April.

Eleven recommendations have been made by the Superintendent and his Cabinet concerning the matter of desegregation. Curriculum - Draft a curriculum that will not only involve educators in fostering the inclusion of more intangible elements of culture into the instructional process but will also focus upon the tangible elements of the multi-cultural curriculum such as language, folklore, dances, songs, customs and similar areas which are extremely important.

Affirmative Action - Revised affirmative action document will be recommended at the June 3, 1975, Board meeting.

Voluntary Programs - Voluntary transfer programs, open enrollment, shared activities at the elementary level and magnet programs.

School Discipline - The discipline needs to be revised to comply with recent school laws and court decisions concerning the rights of students. This revision is proposed to be completed during the 1975-76 school year. A review of the policy should involve representative comments about minority and majority students.

Meeting the Minimum Requirement of the Dept. of Public Inst. Attendance Areas - Boundary changes can be made. This type of recommendation would affect the racial characteristics for a short period of time. A portion of the population in Des Moines is fluid. As the population relocates, the boundaries may require further adjustment. Changing boundaries does not suggest a sustaining change in the racial characteristics of a given school.

Alternatives for reducing minority isolation in three Des Moines Elementary schools - During the past few weeks 29 options were considered for reducing minority isolation in Moulton, Casady and Logan elementary schools. Reviewing and planning have resulted in a much smaller number of options for each school. These three schools exceeded the 31% DPI guidelines.

Recommendations for modifying the racial mix in secondary schools of the Des Moines Independent Community School District - Recommendations are made with the objective of producing student enrollment conditions for the secondary schools of the Des Moines Independent School District through which the number of minority students enrolled in any school will be less than 31%.

Staff and community needs - As the district implements policies affecting changes in minority group enrollments of the schools of the District, four categories of needs will emerge.

Metropolitan Govt. Conference

Gov. Robert Ray and Lt. Gov. Arthur Neu discuss plans for the upcoming Metropolitan Government Conference to be held May 9 and 10 at Drake University's Olmsted Center. Meeting with Gov. Ray and Neu were (left to right) Robert King, Chairman of Central Advisory Board; Jack Woods, Des Moines Councilman; Governor Ray; Nadean Hamilton, Conference Coordinator; Lt. Gov. Neu; and Windsor Heights Mayor Clarence Millsap. The conference is sponsored by Metro-Des Moines League of Women Voters.

Governor Robert Ray and Lt. Governor Arthur Neu discuss plans for the upcoming Metropolitan Government Conference with Des Moines Councilman Jack Woods, Robert King, chairman Community Advisory Board, Nadean Hamilton, Conference coordinator and Windsor Heights Mayor Clarence Millsap recently in the Governor's office.

The Conference, sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Des Moines, will be May 9 and 10 at Drake University's Olmsted Center.

Ray commended the effort and its stated goal of examining the financial problems of local governments and their reliance on property taxes. "The property tax issue is a continuing problem," Ray said, "with no easy or simplistic answers and there is a need for the kind of discussion this conference can stimulate as we look for ways to meet the needs of people who look to local government for services without crushing those same people under an increasing heavier property tax burden."

Another method to relieve the property tax is the use of local option taxes. Councilman Woods and Mayor Millsap had varying opinions regarding local option taxes now being considered by the legislature. Although both could agree with the basic concept of using this form of taxation, Millsap believes "that any such taxing should be done on an area-wide bases building on the on-going cooperative efforts that now exist in Des Moines and its suburbs." Woods is more concerned with how the additional money generated by a local option tax is used in Des Moines. He says "50% of the tax collected should be used to relieve property tax assessments." Both men agreed that communication and feelings between the cities in the Des Moines area were good and that Central Iowa Regional Association of Local Governments (CIRALG) was mainly responsible for helping to create this good relationship.

One of the Conference speakers, Robert A. Horton, Fiscal Administrative Advisory to the Mayor of Nashville, where they have city-county consolidation, will present first-hand information on how they are solving their fiscal problems with metro government.

Robert King, chairman Central Advisory Board is discussing with Ray and Neu another area of concern, that of citizen participation and effectiveness in local governmental affairs. "Citizens need to be more involved in government," says King, "and I would be totally opposed to any form of metro government that would remove citizen participation. In fact, it (citizen participation) needs to be increased."

These issues - taxes budget finance, citizen participation and how local government can provide better services, will be debated at the Conference. The public is invited and conferees will be coming from throughout the state. Lt. Governor Neu will welcome the participants on Friday evening. For reservations, call the Metro Des Moines League office, weekdays before noon, telephone 282-4703.

IEWS and REVIEWS

by James B. Morris

CBS Program Passes up Black Soldiers

Last week I watched 90 minutes of National CBS Program on Channel 8, covering the period beginning with our entrance and closing of a campaign in Southeast Asia.

As war goes the program showed that the campaign was a spectacular, desperate, gruelling experience involving both American and Vietnamese soldiers, who were up against unusual defense by the North Vietnamese. Death and destruction lurked every minute.

From the beginning of the American participation black soldiers played a large part in the campaign. In fact, during the early stages there were complaints that they were in the ranks far out of proportion in the American population. General Westmoreland, who commanded the forces, praised the courage of black soldiers. One regiment commanded by a black brigadiere general, was commended for having never permitted one of its members to be captured.

As an old soldier and still strong supporter of participation by blacks in our armed services, I watched hopefully for their presence. And to my surprise I only saw two: one captured airman who was leading a group of white airmen singing "God Bless America", (I had seen it previously) and one among Americans retreating in disorder in protest against being allowed to remain at the front after others had gone home.

This is uncalled for. In recent years considerable complaint has been registered against history books which have consistently left blacks out of major events. While I do not favor pointing out different races in historical events, photographs and televised documentaries should not exclude them. It is just another reason why some are clamoring for teaching separate Negro history in the schools.

Diverting Model Cities Funds

Officials of the city of Des Moines, in cooperation with a group of business men, is attempting to revitalize the downtown area. Since the bond issue has failed, these businessmen have volunteered to raise nine million dollars to pay for the theatre and plaza to which the voters objected. The city proposes to buy the land with two million dollars, part of which will be taken from the Capital Improvement Fund and a portion from the Community Development, three hundred five thousand dollars of which will be taken from the Model Cities redevelopment project to rebuild houses in that area.

No doubt the city has authority to do this but to my way of thinking it is a rotten deal. Anyone who visits the area can see that the housing situation, to a great extent, is disgraceful and a blot on the city of Des Moines itself. There are members of the city council who complain that the model cities program has not been a success. Some of this is true but on the other hand the city has not carried out its responsibility of helping develop programs and seeing that they are carried to completion.

I am strongly in favor of the redevelopment and the business men should be commended for displaying their interest in developing downtown Des Moines as creditable project.

The Federal Department of Housing and Development made these funds available to assist areas which were least able to pay their way.

To divert these funds tends to make the people of the area feel that as charged during the bond issue campaign the project was designed to bail out owners of run down properties at the expense of the taxpayer. And to do this would further make it difficult to pass any kind of a bond issue.

President Ford and the Refugees

President Ford has stated that refugees brought into this country are our friends and that we are obligated to see that they escaped and are supported until they can be assimilated in America. To me, our only obligation is derived from the humanitarian cause of helping those in need. Most of the grownups worked for American business or for our war effort where they were well paid for their services.

It is unfortunate that the responsibility of caring for the world seems to develop on our shoulders because we are alleged to be great and powerful. However, I feel that in our effort to display that image we pass up the United Nations which is organized and partly paid for by the U.S. to do these charitable things.

Unfortunate as it may be, in the face of little help from other nations, we must work these problems out and those with funds should be required to pay their way just as we insist on people who are receiving ADC illegally.

Air finance problems at Metro conference

A Metropolitan Government Conference, sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Des Moines, will be held Friday and Saturday, May 9 and 10, at Drake University's Olmsted Center.

Ray commended the effort and its stated goal of examining the financial problems of local governments and their reliance on property taxes. "The property tax issue is a continuing problem, Ray said, with no easy or simplistic answers and there is a need for

New York, N.Y. — Kivill Kaplan of Boston, Mass., president of the NAACP since 1966, died in New York City Tuesday of an apparent heart attack.

He was a retired vice president and executive officer Colonial Tanning Company in Boston and had spent his later years as an active participant in a number of civic and education institutions.

Mr. Kaplan succeeded the late Arthur Spingarn as president of the NAACP in which he had worked many years of Life Membership Chairman and Fighting Fund for Freedom Director. He succeeded in building a large life membership roll including all members of his family.

He was the recipient of several honorary degrees from both Negro and Jewish schools.

Senate Report

Probably one of the most controversial bills, the Anti-trust Bill, passed the House this week by a margin of 62-34. Like the federal Sherman Act, the Iowa Anti-trust Bill broadly prohibits two categories of conduct which are inconsistent with the maintenance of competition: agreements, between businesses, which restrict competition between those businesses or with others; and actions by individual businesses which lead to the creation or maintenance of a monopoly.

Many people have asked why the bill is needed. The following is a list of some problems that current legislation makes it impossible to deal without the new anti-trust legislation:

1. A fertilizer company may tell farmers that they have to buy all of their farm chemicals from the firm or the firm would refuse to sell fertilizer to the farmers.

2. A lime quarry selling lime to farmers on the condition that the quarry's trucks were used to haul it.

3. A nursing home that required its patients to buy drugs from a specified drugstore.

4. A mobile home operator requiring tenants to buy propane from him at above market prices as a condition of renting space to the tenant.

5. Major oil companies establishing the resale price of gasoline by independent gasoline dealers in the state.

There were numerous misconceptions about the bill. First, HF 584 has no effect on banking activity and insurance companies. These are currently regulated by the state.

Secondly, and a critical concern of mine, revolved on the effect the bill would have on the real estate business. Multiple listing associations or "exclusive listing" contracts are not prohibited by this bill. This had caused some problem earlier but a corrective amendment solved the real estate problem.

While any bill of this nature has a quite complicated side to it which may not immediately surface, I felt the bill had merit and supported it.

The House also dealt with two other major bills this week, the Packer Bonding Bill and the Surface Mining Reclamation Act.

A livestock bonding bill was designed to protect Iowa livestock producers from a recurrence of the difficulties experienced when American Beef Packers, Inc. went bankrupt. The measure requires packers to post a bond representing two days' average kill — up to $400,000, plus 10% of anything exceeding that amount. The bill would also require packers to pay producers for their livestock before the close of business the day after the sale and also provides that a bonding company must give 30 days' notice if it intends to terminate a packer's bond. The bill passed unanimously.

A bill patterned after the federal Surface Mining Reclamation and Control Act was adopted by the House. It requires that land disturbed by surface mining must be restored to support natural vegetation "at least as vigorous" as it had been originally. At present, Iowa has five coal mining operators who strip 50 acres of land each year. The bill passed easily, and I supported it. If this bill helps us to guard our land yet sue our coal resources, it will be worthwhile.

ACTION ON LEGISLATION

HF 724. This bill provides for the issuance of a three-year registration plate for trailers and semitrailers when payment of three times of annual registration fee for the trailer or semitrailer is made. It also provides for the negotiation of an appropriation agreements for registration of vehicles owned by residents and nonresidents. The bill passed unanimously.

HF 766. This bill established a prosecuting attorneys training coordinator. It also provides for the creation of a council which will appoint the training coordinator. The bill passed 78-13, but I services, will be debated at the Conference. The public is invited and conferees will be coming from throughout the state. Lt. Governor Neu will welcome the presidential candidate appoints black assistant

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (CNS) — Senator Henry (Scoop) Jackson, a leading Democratic candidate for President, has appointed Edward H. Lewis, a Howard University graduate, to his personal staff. Lewis is regarded as an outstanding expert on urban problems.

Jackson has indicated that Lewis' first major assignment will be to assist him in developing a program to provide jobs for the hundreds of thousands of Americans who desperately need work.

Senator Jackson, who has been critical of the economic program of the Ford Administration, says "every American who is willing and able to work should be gainfully employed." Lewis is assisting Jackson in preparing a program that would pull America out of its employment slump, a spokesman for the Senator stated.

Lewis worked on Jackson's Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations for a year prior to his new appointment. Lewis also worked for the National League of Cities U.S. Conference of Mayors from 1971 to '74.

Besides a Political Science degree from Howard University, Lewis holds an M.A. in Urban Studies from Occidental College in Los Angeles, Calif.

A native of New Haven, Connecticut, Lewis and his wife, the former Heloise Poitier, have four children.

Robert Howard, carpenter apprentice

Robert A. Howard, of 1069-38th Street, is a carpenter apprentice working for Arthur H. Neumann and Brothers Construction Company on the Swift Soybean Mill in Des Moines. He was selected by the Carpenters Joint Apprenticeship Committee on May 10, 1973 but since he was still in school at Tech High, did not start to work until he graduated.

The coordinator for the Carpenters' J.A.C. said that Bob is a good man and has not missed any of his related training classes which are held at Tech High School on Saturdays. His work record is also good and when he completes his four year apprenticeship he should be able to earn a better than average living as a carpenter.

The construction superintendent on the job said that Bob was a good worker and had no problems at all on the job. His comments were in line with others in regards to Bob Howard.

Boston, It's not the Britich, It's the NAACP

On May 17 almost exactly 200 years from the night of April 18, 1775, when Paul Revere made his famous ride, more than 50,000 NAACP'ers will ride into Boston from across the country to march from Fenway Park to Boston Common.

We are marching on Boston to commemorate the 21st anniversary of the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision, and to support the Boston Branch of the NAACP and the courts in achieving desegregation of the schools there.

It's ironic that such a march has to be made on Boston where a black man, Crispus Attucks, was the first to give his life for America's freedom.

Isn't there some mistake? It must be Mississippi and not Massachusetts where the last holdouts against integrated schools reside. It's hard to believe that the people of the town that first rebelled against British oppression, that laid Attucks to rest on Boston Common, that saw black Peter Salem die on Bunker Hill, and helped elect Edward Brooke to the Senate are throwing rocks at school buses and threatening children because they are trying to achieve school desegregation.

Paul Revere rode out in the middle of the night to warn the colonists that the British were coming. NAACP members and supporters will march on Boston in the middle of the day to help save justice and freedom in America.

Boston had better light a third lantern and hang it in the old North Church, because NAACP marchers will be coming by land and air. Every city worth its salt will be sending a delegation.

It's 1975 and every decent man now alive is fully behind all who will arrive to tell old Boston to quit its segregation jive.

Congressional Black Caucus supports Voting rights act

The Congressional Black Caucus today announced its unanimous support for a bill which would extend the Voting Rights Act for an additional 10 years and expand its coverage to include many Spanish-speaking and other minority persons. The bill, H.R. 6219, was reported out of the House Civil and Constitutional Rights Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee. The full House Judiciary Committee began deliberations on the bill today and will resume tomorrow morning.

Representative Barbara Jordan (D-Tex.), a sponsor along with Congressmen Herman Badillo (D-N.Y.) and Edward Roybal (D-Calif.) of an early proposal to extend the Act and expand it to cover other minorities, called the subcommittee's bill a "sound and necessary measure to protect the most fundamental of our democratic rights for all Americans." "We feel," she said, "that this bill is carefully drawn to protect black voting rights while bringing under its umbrella other minority groups who face similar voting problems."

The Caucus called on all Members of Congress to support this extension of the Voting Rights Act. "I think we will find," Representative Jordan said, "that many Members who previously had doubts about the Act, will respond to their new constituencies which are themselves testimony to the effectiveness of the Act."

Grambling Motel

HELP FOR GRAMBLING BUSINESSES — Samuel J. Cornelius, standing left, deputy director of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE), announced the presentation of a $50,000 grant to procure management consultants to assist the Grambling Motel and Restaurant and Big G Supermarket in Grambling, La. last March. Seen here accepting the SCBM grant is its president, Mayor A. J. Cooper of Prichard, Ala.

AIRY AND CHERRY — The Grambling Motel at Grambling, La., boasts clean and well-appointed facilities. Here we see the interior of one of its 72 units. Owned by an all-black corporation in Grambling called Grambling Motel International, the facility sits at the Grambling exit of busy Interstate Highway I-20 about a mile from the all-black community. The corporation was given managerial assistance at no cost to it through a minority business development organization funded by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE).

GRAMBLING MOTEL

Ask almost anyone what Grambling is, and the answer you will probably get is, "Isn't that the small black college in Louisiana that's famous for all the professional football players it turns out?"

That may be true, but there is another side to Grambling, which is in fact, an all-black town in Northeastern Louisiana, and the home of the predominately black Grambling State University.

A couple of groups totaling about 250 Grambling citizens, including the city's mayor, B. T. Woodard, the "Dean" of American black mayors, have gotten together there and after some initial adversity come up with several promising money making business ventures — chief among which is the Grambling Motel.

Located about a mile from the heart of the City and the college campus, the modern, 72-unit motel, formerly known as the Lantern Inn, sits at the Grambling exit of busy Interstate Highway I-20.

A Harvest of Good Eating

TIPS ON ENTERTAINING

A successful host or hostess is not always remembered only for the great parties they give. More often than not it is for the small touches: it could be a delightful first impression, unexpected foods, decorations, or some little thing you are not always immediately aware of, but sense it is there and it makes you feel comfortable and welcome.

A first impression can create the mood for the entire affair. You can give the entrance to your home a lift with pots of flowers leading up the walkway or steps. Hang a may basket of flowers at the door entrance. Have a large container spilling with flowers on the front hall table. Tie a bouquet of flowers to a door knocker. Have little bouquets in unanticipated places. At dusk light candles outside as well as in. Make a cluster of candles on the dining table, on the table in a front hall, on a coffee table or fireplace mantle. Serve Champagne before the meal instead of mixed drinks. Everyone should know mixed drinks are a taboo before a good meal; it kills the taste bud's ability to savor every delicious morsel.

Print the menu on parchment paper, one for each guest. Write name cards for seating on green ivy leaves with white felt tip pens. Lay a single red rose on the napkin for female guests only. Having pleasing music to converse and dine by. Do you remember finger bowls with water and several drops of lemon juice? They're especially welcomed when fingers have been the eating utensils. Retire from the table after dessert and have your coffee and liqueurs in the living room, library or den, where the conversation can flow, the guests can relax and everyone is in a different atmosphere other than the dining table.

For decorative, summertime, ecological place cards, buy tiny, live potted plants at the greenhouse, and insert real, little garden markers inscribed with your guests' names. If you build your whole table setting around this theme you'll have a delightful and original dinner party or luncheon.

For your next cocktail party or informal get together have among your hors d'oeuvre a bowl of freshly shelled raw peas for your guests to nibble on, like popcorn. Nothing can match the sweet juicy crunch of garden fresh peas!

For an eye pleasing summer drink drop 1 plump, red strawberry in the bottom of a wine glass and pour in an icy cold, dry white or rose wine. Serve to delighted guests.

Before the guest arrive, cut fresh limes into wedges and tuck them into flower arrangements for a pungent and surprising fragrance.

Place a miniature easel at each end of the dining table with a menu hand written on an attractive card or personally engraved stationery.

HAVE YOU EVER THOUGHT: of sharing fine Beluga Caviar, Champagne, and toast with just one other couple?

of having a group of friends over JUST for a spectacular dessert, coffee and liqueurs?

of having your guests bring a boxed dinner of really super delicious goodies and exchanging them with the other guests at the party? Your responsibility is to supply the wine and hors d'oeuvre.

of making centerpieces by arranging crisped parsley in little wicker baskets and adding a tiny porcelain snail or ladybug for the final touch?

of spaetzle or consous instead of potatoes or rice?

of setting a wine glass filled with flowers at each place instead of a big arrangement in the center?

of serving cold soups in Champagne glasses?

of having a candlelight picnic on the living room floor, for pure chic use china, crystal and lots of candles.

of a late night get together with oysters on the half shell, black bread, chilled white wine and good friends?

of getting together with friends and preparing together a meal of foods none of you have previously tasted?

The possibilities are endless and with a little imagination one can indeed add excitement and individuality to any form of entertaining.

If you have a few suggestions you feel are unique and would like to share them with our readers write in care of the

Top graduates honored by C of C

(Des Moines.) For the eleventh consecutive year, Des Moines, Valley and Dowling high school scholars who rank in the top two per cent of their graduating classes were honored tonight by the Greater Des Moines Chamber of Commerce. Urbandale High School seniors were also included in this year's fete.

High school principals presented to each of the 80 top scholars a certificate from the Chamber "in recognition of scholastic achievement in the upper two per cent of the 1975 graduating class".

Dallas Schroeder, chairman of the Chamber's Education and Youth Affairs Committee, presided at the dinner and program at Valley High School. Some 260 students, their parents, and school and civic officials attended.

During a brief address to the graduates, Chamber President Joseph L. Strasser said, "You young people of today are more attuned to the problems of today—people-problems, government-problems, money-problems—than any graduating class that has preceded you. You are up on the human aspects—human needs—to be struggled with in our modern society."

Strasser added, "You have the advantage on us—the educational background, the parental guidance, the knowledge of the need of things in your chosen field... but you also have been given more than previous generations."

You have the understanding needed to see through the social—the 'human'—reforms necessary to make yours a city, a state, a nation, and a world in which the future can be bright for all people," he concluded.

Seniors honored as the top two per cent of their graduating class are:

Move to get high school seniors registered to vote

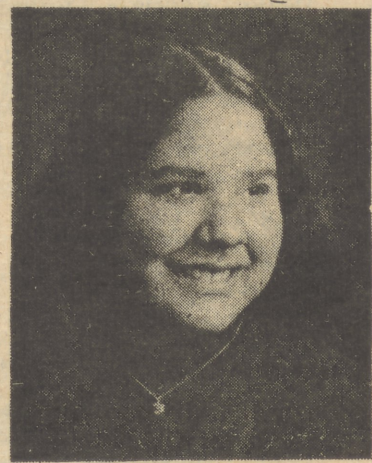

"It's almost like having the opportunity to register a whole city like Council Bluffs or Iowa City at one crack." That's how Tom Morain, chair of the Iowa Political Education Committee and executive director of Iowa Common Cause, describes the "Class of '75 Voter Registration project", an effort get Iowa's 50,000 graduating seniors registered to vote before they graduate this spring.

The project, launched by the Iowa Political Education Committee (IPEC) for these last few weeks before school ends, involves high school personnel, such as government teachers and principals, working with local county auditors to get seniors registered to vote.

A law passed by the Iowa legislature in 1973, now requires that all Iowans be registered in order to vote. A provision in that law also allows for persons to register up to six months prior to their eighteenth birthday.

A Tribute to Mom

So glad to be back, sorry I missed you last week. I think I will let Dowling lie until next week and get off into something that I'm sure everyone can relate to.

This Sunday, as I'm sure you realize, is Mothers Day. Have you ever stopped to think just how much mothers go through to get one day out of the year that they can call their own? Well even if you do, let me fill you in on what, at least mine does to deserve this day.

First of all its the potty training and the mud pies, lets not forget the puppies, turtles, fish, and cats she had to housebreak and feed. What about the dental and orthodontal bills and baseballs through the plate glass window, does that ring a bell? Since we're on the subject, what about the boyfriends and girlfriends and teen-age ache, the staying up till 2:00 a.m. waiting for a date to end.

What about the 16 year old driver and the gas thats always empty? Dishes and cleaning come in there also, along with cooking, graduation, college and marriage running right behind.

So many things that 24 hours does not begin to cover. Let me say thank you Mothers and Grandmothers, especially mine, for so much, wanting so little. Happy Mothers Day!

MESSIAH TEMPLE CHURCH NEWS

The Reverend Jacob Reed gave a stirring message last Sunday on, "That's Why I Love Jesus." In his lesson, Reverend Reed listed many different reasons for his love of Jesus. Among them were Jesus' sacrifice for his soul, Jesus' personal touch in his life, and the assurance that when He comes back Jesus will take him home to reign with Him in eternity.

The Lord blesses our services with His Spirit each time we meet. Last Sunday He also blessed them with the saving of another soul. Mr. Gary Ott is now a member of Christ's

Tribute to blacks in music

Chicago — Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, National President of OPERATION PUSH announced today that its Record, Radio and Retail Division will sponsor an event on May 31, 1975 in Memphis, Tenn. to honor Blacks in the business of music.

The Record, Radio and Retail Division of OPERATION PUSH was organized as an instrument for procuring more equity and a larger share of the decision-making in the music industry.

The PUSH Division recently raised serious issue with the industry about where Blacks are relative to its total structure. They have sought data on who makes the companies decisions and who determines the companies budgets.

Their studies have proved that, today, the issue is not whether Blacks contribute to the music industry. This is a foregone conclusion. Well over 80% of the industry rests on the talent and creativity of many Blacks who have sung, danced, produced and arranged, manufactured and distributed, marketed and promoted, advertised and publicized without just nor equitable compensation.

Thus, the Record, Radio and Retail Division will honor these men and women because their struggles and contributions are missing songs on the carts of American music. They deserve to be recognized and applauded.

There must be a continuous effort to make certain that there are a proportionate number of Blacks reaping the benefits of substantive business activities within all companies of the music industry. For further information concerning the Awards program in Memphis, contact Mr. Bill Cherry, National Director of Special Events, OPERATION PUSH, 930 E. 50th Street, Chicago, Ill. 60615 or call (312) 373-3366.

High Blood Pressure: A Major Cause of Death Among Black Americans

The Silent Killer

High blood pressure kills. It can cause strokes, heart failure, kidney disease and more. It's called the "Silent Killer" because you might not even know you have it. Usually there's no pain or other sign of trouble.

High Blood Pressure—A Big Problem For Blacks

It's a fact—high blood pressure is one of the biggest causes of Black deaths in the United States. Doctor's don't know why, but Blacks get high blood pressure more often than other Americans.

Who Gets High Blood Pressure?

Anybody. You can feel good, look fine, and still have it. It hits young and old, men and women, easy-going and up-tight people. But if you're over 40, there's an even bigger chance you have high blood pressure.

Now For The Good News

Blood pressure can be checked quickly—without pain. And most times high blood pressure can be treated—often just by taking medication. Then, when it's under control, you usually can lead a normal life.

Delinquent Taxpayers

Des Moines—The interest rate for taxpayers who are delinquent in paying Federal tax bills, or have been granted extensions of time to file, will jump to nine percent beginning July 1, Donald J. Porter, District Director for Iowa, said today.

He said that the higher interest rate will be charged on all overdue taxes on July 1 as a result of legislation enacted on January 3, 1975. The present rate is six percent for most taxes.

The government, which now pays six percent interest on overpayments by taxpayers, will also pay nine percent interest, starting July 1. Interest becomes payable if an overpayment is refunded to a taxpayer more than 45 days from the due date of the tax return, or from the date of the return's receipt by the IRS, whichever is later, Porter explained. However, for this year only, interest must be paid on overpayments after 60 days.

In addition to hiking the interest rate to nine percent, the law provides for increasing or decreasing the rate in line with the prime interest rate commercial banks charge their largest customers.

The IRS official pointed out that there has been no change in the law setting the penalty for late payment. The penalty remains one half of one percent of the unpaid tax for each month, or part of a month the tax remains unpaid, to a maximum of 25 percent of the unpaid amount.

By Allen Ashby

Now they have done it. Basketball season is just about over, the Drake Relays are history and the school baseball season is just about to end. So, what do you write about? Track? Maybe. But the local schools aren't doing too much this year, that is, with the exception of Tech, and they seem to have a chance to finish high in the state meet if they can get enough guys qualified. But the rest of them, no. So the writers are looking around for stories like who is going to attend what college on a cage or football scholarship.

I was surprised to see that Curt Forester was going out of the state to play college basketball. But then I recall that Tony Mitchell did, and I have always wondered how he made out. Have to ask his dad some day. Trouble is that when you ask dads, you have to separate the facts from fatherly pride, but it can be done. I have often wondered why a boy can't just choose his school and go to it without signing a contract. I wonder too, what would happen if a fellow decided to change his mind after he has signed with a college and wants to go somewhere else. This to my thinking, puts the college game on the level with the pros.

We know the name of the game in college athletics is money from football and or basketball. So when a player signs to play with that team, why should he be bound to a rule that says if anybody buys him a badly needed pair of shoes, he is out. I can recall the plight of a basketball player at one of your midwestern universities. He didn't have an overcoat in the dead of winter. One of the local business men felt sorry for him and gave him one. Well, the player was promptly kicked out of school, and I don't know what happened to him after that.

My argument is this. With football bringing in anywhere from a quarter of a million to three quarters of a million bucks each week if you have a winning team, and basketball fifty to seventy five thousand a game, why can't the players get a little of that dough? If you don't have a winning ball club, nobody is going to see your team play. If you don't have players, you ain't gonna win, so you won't draw crowds. You say that would make them pros? Well, what are they playing for now? Some say an education. And yet a lot of them don't finish school to sign with the pros in both football and basketball. Just last week a tennis player quit his school team so he could play for money.

I just can't believe there is too much school spirit today. The athlete looks on college games as a showcase for the pro scouts. So we are not playing for dear old Siwash, but I am playing hoping to look good enough to land a pro contract.

The name of the game

Let's face it. The name of the game in America today is money. That crinkley green stuff. I once heard a tennis pro say that the United States would never develop a good tennis player until the teachers stop getting money hungry. He said that in his country there were no paid instructors for kids under fourteen. Teachers took them under their wings looking for talent that could develop into an international player. But over here it is see how many kids you can crowd into a tennis camp for from two hundred and fifty to five hundred bucks. There just is no way you can evaluate all of them so you teach them the basics and you have earned your money. How well the kid does after that depends on him.

The thing that makes Jimmy Connors so tough is the fact that he was taken over by a fellow who wanted to bring out his potential, and seems to have done it. But while still on tennis, the game is changing. Time was when sportsmanship was of the highest order. Today the game is to try to see how much you can irritate the other fellow. This carries over down into junior ranks.

In our local Hilltop meets we have had to discipline juniors because they were acting like monkeys instead of tennis players. But they must figure if the best players in the world can do that, it must be all right. There was a time when one could learn from being around pros in any game, just listening to them talk and watching their moves.

But now how much could one learn from watching Muhammad Ali and George Foreman hurl insults at each other, or listening to professional basketballers and footballers badmouth each other. They don't seem to discuss the things that made them go, but rather try to get the goat of the fellow they are going to face. Now, don't get me wrong. There are some professional athletes who are as much for helping kids as they can be, but I believe they are in a minority.

When a guy gets to making that hundred thou or so, he tends to become conservative, and doesn't want to rock the boat. And I think too many black super stars, forgetting their God given talent, are prone to say "Look, I made it. Why can't you? All you have to do is work." But the guy he is talking to may not be six feet seven and
