

Booker Rice Prudential Officer Here

Vice President and director of Agencies of the North Central Department of the Prudential Insurance Company has come a long way as a Black youngster from New Jersey.

Booker R. Rice Jr. was in Des Moines in his capacity as director of a territory which includes, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Montana, Michigan and Nebraska.

I visited with Mr. Rice in the office of Herbert A. Willoughby, the Manager of the Prudential office here in Des Moines. Mr. Rice grew up in Chicago and received his education at Notre Dame University completing both his under graduate and graduate work there majoring in insurance. While at Notre Dame he visited Des Moines twelve years ago as part of the relay team.

Asked for advice to youngsters he stated, "They should work hard, stay in school to prepare themselves for some kind of work whether it be professional, maintenance, mechanics, labor or what not." "Today a fellow gets further when he is prepared".

Mr. Rice lives in Minneapolis with his wife and two daughters where his office is located.

Quoting from the Black Enterprise Magazine, "Prudential Insurance has on deposit over $3,000,000 in Negro owned Banks."

Reverend Jesse Jackson;

Help U.S. Jobless First; Then Vietnamese Refugees

Our Priorities Should Be Directed To Reconstruction

WASHINGTON — The Rev. Jesse Jackson Sunday urged the government to stop resettling Vietnamese refugees and start devising long-range programs to rebuild Vietnam and provide jobs for America's own unemployed. Jackson, director of PUSH, said Congress should enact emergency legislation to help the nations, nine million jobless — a group he described as "a colony of refugees within our own nation."

"We do not oppose assistance to refugees," he said. "We do feel however that the priorities of this nation must be directed toward the reconstruction of Vietnam and the resurrection of America's cities."

He said his organization feels the Vietnam refugee program is "distorted and misfocused" on the evacuation issue, which he described as an immature attempt to ease America's guilt over Vietnam.

"If we spent $150 billion in the destruction of Vietnam, we certainly owe the Vietnamese an investment of larger and different proportions than we projected for refugee rescue operations," he said.

"It means a budget commensurate to the task that faces those who remain in Vietnam."

Jackson said the administration should establish diplomatic relations with the new communist government in Saigon and create a "Marshall Plan" for Vietnam — similar to the program that reconstructed postwar Europe and big enough to repair the war damage caused by American troops and bombs.

"We therefore urge that those activities surrounding the Vietnamese refugee settlement in the nation be suspended immediately," He said.

Jackson said he agreed with Sen. George McGovern's estimate that about 90 per cent of the refugees would return to Vietnam if they could.

"I think he's absolute right," Jackson said. "Their cultural adjustment could be catastrophic. The notion that the provisional revolutionary government will cut their heads off is wrong."

He said the administration should repatriate any Vietnamese who wants to return and not give special treatment to those who remain.

Referring to the unemployed in this country, Jackson said "It is unlikely that any of these people could understand anyone having priority over them."

Two blacks appointed Brig. Gen.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger today announced that President Ford has approved the appointment of 57 Army colonels to the grade of brigadier general and forwarded the nomination to the Senate for confirmation.

Included in the list are two black officers — Colonel Jerry Ralph Curry and Colonel Robert C. Gaskill; and one woman — Colonel Mary E. Clarke. The selection of Colonels Curry and Gaskill for promotion to the grade of brigadier general will bring the number of black general officers in the Army to 14.

Colonel Curry was born in McKeesport, PA, September 7, 1932, and is currently assigned as Deputy Chief of Staff, V Corps, U.S. Army, Europe. He has seen extensive service in Germany and Vietnam between attending classes at the Army War College and Army Command and General Staff College.

Colonel Gaskill was born in Yonkers, NY, April 12, 1931, and has served as Commander of the Letterkenny Army Depot, Chambersburg, PA, since June, 1974. Colonel Gaskill recently held logistical posts in Vietnam, Germany and Headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Colonel Clarke will succeed Brigadier General Mildred Bailey as Director of the Women's Army Corps effective August 1, 1975. Colonel Clarke is presently serving as Chief of the Women's Army Corps Branch, U.S. Army Personnel Center, Alexandria, VA.

Mays retires From NW Bell

Everett Mays

Everett A. Mays, 701 Hull, has recently retired from Northwestern Bell with over 33 years of service.

A native of Newton, Mays graduated from high school there in 1928. He attended the University of Iowa for four years where his major area of concentration was music. He joined Northwestern Bell in 1941 as a garage service helper and since then has held several positions, including personnel assistant and most recently, public relations assistant. It was in these appointments that Mays feels he was most successful. "It gives me a sense of accomplishment to know that I was instrumental in influencing the development of the Greater Des Moines Merit Employees Council," he says. "The resource materials I gathered had the necessary impact to convince a group of Des Moines businessmen of the need for equal opportunity employment."

Mays goes on to explain his part in Northwestern Bell's community relations program. "Through three programs, 'Road Ahead,' 'Black Pride,' and 'Black and White: Uptight,' the company was able to promote a concern for problems regarding employment and race relations." The Iowa Personnel and Guidance Association presented an award to Mays in 1967 for his "Road Ahead" program.

Mays is president of Olympian Club, an organization promoting sports, midwest secretary of the American Tennis Association, Iowa director of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and treasurer of its local chapter, Zeta Kappa Lambda. He is also steward at St. Paul AME Church as well as treasurer of its Sunday School.

Mays has two children: Evanette Luton of Rockville, Md. and Everett Jr. of New York, N.Y.

Perry nominated to Chairman of EEOC

President Ford today, nominated Lowell W. Perry of Detroit to serve as a member of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and said he will designate him as chairman of the five-member body upon confirmation by the Senate.

Perry, 43, a business executive and labor law specialist, when confirmed by the Senate, will become the sixth Chairman of the EEOC, created by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The name of Lowell Perry is well-known to ardent football fans. An All-American end at the University of Michigan, where he also distinguished himself in the class room as an honor student. Perry's professional football career in 1956 was ended by a serious injury while playing with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

He subsequently served as an assistant coach and scout for the Steelers while pursuing a law degree that he received from the Detroit College of Law in 1960, a J.D. degree.

Perry is married. The Perrys have three children — Lowell, Jr., a freshman at Yale, Scott 10; and Merrideth, 4.

VIEWS and REVIEWS

Troubles In Southeast Asia

Those Cambodians who resorted to an old act of piracy and captured an American ship in neutral waters, while a daring exploit, has a potential for a lot of trouble. Our patience with fighting wars thousands of miles from home, has worn thin and many people are in no mood to engage in another conflict.

The pride of America has been wounded by having been run out of Southeast Asia. The reason for our defeat and those who were in charge of the operating should be forgotten as there is no future in continuing to investigate and stir up dissension among ourselves. The matter must be settled by diplomacy and not by trying to help recapture our prestige once more.

New York City Has Financial Problems

New York City is in deep financial trouble. In spite of cutting back in many services and discharge of employees it owes more than it has cash to pay. When everything was breezing along and the war was in progress apparently the city fathers failed to save anything for a rainy day. Other cities are finding it difficult to make ends meet.

New York City, like most cities, pays too much for what it gets in the way of services. In spite of difficult times organized groups continue to bid up the price for goods and services making it difficult to hold prices at a level that would not jeopardize those who are not so organized.

New York City wants the government to loan it 1½ billion dollars. I believe this would be a bad precedent and an invitation for other cities to do likewise.

I always felt the only way the Americans and this of course includes New York City, can halt the continued rise in the cost of living is by stopping the bidding up the prices so that no one will be penalized.

Advertisers Duck Equal Opportunity

Speaking at the annual meeting of advertising agencies in Puerto Rico a few weeks ago Vernon Jordan director of the Urban League, told the audience that advertisers should double their advertising in the black news media.

Most of the advertising agencies service companies which boast "equal opportunity employer" but many give little attention to it including the expenditure of a part of the advertising dollar to the black media.

The New Iowa Bystander has not fared as well as many of its counterparts in other cities. Too many concerns have foreign ownership which adds to the problem of reaching the home office where the distribution of advertising is agreed upon. Some locally owned businesses have advertised in the Bystander for years and this includes a number of banks and insurance companies which use space in special editions which the daily papers utilize also.

So as buyers spend their money, they might well support the New Iowa Bystander by reminding businesses that those who fail to do so are not equal opportunity employers.

Desegregation Proposal Vague

The board of education provided citizens of Des Moines an opportunity to have their say about the desegregation proposal revealed by Superintendent Davis.

Like the first meeting in which the public was offered an opportunity to discuss proposals for a plan, this meeting was held at Tech High School and the attendance was small in comparison with the first. It was easy to see that about the same group which was present before was there and made the same objections to the proposal based on busing.

Practically every speaker opposed the proposal, many of whom engaged in some rather low blows; few logical, calm, intelligent speeches were heard. Three advocates of the measure were heard who pointed out that the plan could work provided all citizens went about it in a calm manner without the rancor of which has prevailed in some other communities.

One speaker made a legal argument. I think the school board might well have presented a legal brief in support of their position particularly in view of the recent decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court which have consistently refused to review lower court directives for desegregating schools in the area involving their cases.

The vicerous opponents should be advised to maintain their opposition in a moderate manner so as to not participate the kind of troubles that have occurred in other cities. After all, these same people are constantly calling for law and order and this is just another incident where citizens select the laws they obey.

KSO's Black Awareness '75

KSO's public affairs program, "Black Awareness '75" has raised over $1000.00 in the fight against Sickle Cell Anemia.

The weekly program, hosted by Des Moines personality, Vel Turner, held a "Sickle Cell-a-thon" to both raise money and to educate minority races about the killer disease with no known cure.

According to Ms. Turner, "...the public response was overwhelming." Funds collected in the effort will go toward the purchase of an appropriate education film and the individual testing of minority students in Des Moines public schools. The entire program is being coordinated with the Des Moines Public Health Department.

Sickle Cell Anemia affects blood cells in several minority races including Blacks, Italians, Arabic Jews and others.

Information about the disease is available from the Des Moines Public Health Department and KSO's "Black Awareness '75". The 90 minute program is heard Sundays at 10:30 p.m. on KSO 1460.

The anti-busing white-dominated groups have been very busy recently. Much of their voiced statements have been couched in technical terms, statistics and oratorical rhetoric.

But cut across their statements to the core. What they mean— but do not have the honesty to say publicly— is that whites (or most) just don't want their white children going to school with poor, black children.

They do not want their white children to rub elbows— heaven forbid— with black children living in what the white media erroneously calls the "inner city."

That is the basic issue in forced busing. That many whites oppose poor black children being bused into "their" neighborhoods should be clear. Still, under this proposal, black children going to school on "white turf" can be "watched" and "controlled" by the whites.

But there is no way, according to these white folks' thinking, that those white children will be bused into such foreign and presumably dangerous, "crime-ridden" territories of black people.

My child is proud of the so-called "inner city" school she attends. She does not want to be bused out of her neighborhood. She does not like to be stared at by dozens of little blue eyes who see her through the philosophies of their prejudiced parents.

This is the crux of busing in Des Moines, despite Mayor Richard Olson's feeble plea that busing is not a "racial" issue.

Some white parents have tried to brag that their schools have black students. In many cases, those black children are the products of "affluent" black families, who are "safe," because their fathers wear business suits, wing-tipped shoes, carry brief cases and live in expensive, Colonial style homes.

That is fine for those black families, but not all of us can be like them.

Black fathers of poor children do not always wear business suits. They do not always have college degrees. They do not always work in prestigious occupations. They do not always live in fancy neighborhoods. They do not always play bridge or dine in the best restaurants, drink the best wines or drive the best makes of cars.

But they want their children to be as well educated as anyone else's children. They have the right to expect that their neighborhood schools provide quality education. Quality education includes the existence — in large numbers — of experienced, veteran teachers, unlike many inexperienced, young white teachers who enter many schools with the thought of being missionaries to black students.

Black children have the right to a quality education. But it is not necessary— or should not be — that they carry the burden of desegregation from one side of town to another to get it.

In what is perhaps the largest health insurance contract negotiated in recent years, the General Electric Company has chosen the Blue Cross organization to cover its 330,000 employees across the nation. Counting their dependents, the contract, which went into effect May 1, covers nearly one million persons.

With the enrollment of General Electric, nine out of ten of the nation's largest corporations, on the basis of Fortune's "500" list, now provide Blue Cross health care benefits to all or a proportion of their employees. The eight other companies are American Telephone and Telegraph, General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, International Business Machines, Exxon, Texaco and Mobil Oil. (The tenth company, Sears Roebuck, covers its employees through its own insurance subsidiary.)

In the case of General Electric, the Blue Cross benefits cover hospital bills, replacing the hospital benefits available until now from other companies. The other insurers are continuing to cover General Electric employees for other health care benefits.

Covered under the national contract are both General Electric's salaried employees and hourly workers throughout the U.S., including 2900 Iowans. The largest General Electric operation in Iowa is Switch Gear Products in Burlington.

IWPC

The Iowa Women's Political Caucus announced today that the number of women holding elected office in the State of Iowa has increased 32% over the last two years. According to the Caucus study, completed in conjunction with the Iowa Women's Caucus Research and Education Center, there were 557 female elected officials in 1972, and 737 after the November elections in 1974. However, the total number of women serving is only 7.5% of all elected offices. If the traditionally female jobs of county recorder, auditor, and treasurer are eliminated, the percentage of women holding public office drops to 6.2% up from 4.3% in 1972.

The statistics, according to a Caucus spokeswoman, show that women are running successfully for the non-traditional jobs. For example, while no new women were elected to the Iowa Senate, four were elected to the Iowa House, bringing the total to 14 women legislators out of 150, an increase of 40%. The number of women mayors more than doubled from 15 to 32, and the number of women on City Councils went from 164 to 227, an increase of 69%. Even in the office of County Supervisor, women achieved gains. In 1972, there were only five women out of 362 members. After the elections, there were six more women, an increase of 120%.

In only two offices did the number of women decrease: the Area College Boards, from four out of 115 to three out of 124; and the County Auditors, from 38 to 32.

MESSIAH TEMPLE CHURCH NEWS

The Lord blessed us Sunday with a message from the Evangelist Zora Reed on, "Faith of Our Mothers." She spoke of the results of faithfulness to God and the responsibilities of motherhood. We must train our children in the way of the Lord; and when they grow up, they will not depart from it. A child's discipline must be consistent with the deed and must be continuously maintained to be effective.

After morning services, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Ott celebrated their anniversary by renewing their wedding vows. The Lord was there as Reverend Jacob Reed officiated at the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. David Leech and family of Des Moines were our visitors last Sunday.

Sunday school is at 10:30 with services at 11:30. The Life of Christ is every Sunday evening at 7:00. Prayer meeting night is Wednesday at 7:30. We invite all to join in our praise of the Lord at any and all of our services.

An electric heat pump uses the old energy wisely

In these days of tight energy supply and rapidly increasing prices, wouldn't it be great if there was a heating system that furnished more energy in the form of heat than it used in the form of fuel.

Well, as a matter of fact, the electric heat pump is such a machine. It's like a furnace and an air conditioner rolled into one.

In the summer it works like an electric air conditioner and in the winter it automatically reverses itself and pumps heat from the outside air into your home. Because the electricity is only used to transfer heat rather than to create it, it saves energy.

Ask your local Iowa Power office or your "certified heat pump dealer" about the advantages of the electric heat pump.

Graduation, Just a Matter of Time

There are two more articles for me to write, so instead of waiting for the last issue to write about graduation, I decided to cover it now.

It only seemed like a few instead of 12 years that my parents first took me to kindergarten. At first I had my doubts about being away from my home, but then I got used to it. Just as soon as I did, we moved from Massachusetts to here. Then I had to get reassured all over again.

When you've been in school, what seems like all of your life, it might be hard to finally get out and leave everything behind.

But, nevertheless, is a matter of 17 days. I will be walking up on the stage in Vets Auditorium and receiving my diploma. Just think, that one piece of paper represents all of the grades I've struggled to make and all of the classes I had to take that I disliked.

What really seems unfair is the non-credit that all of the parents get. For if it wasn't for them, all of the seniors graduating wouldn't even be walking across the stage.

I will always remember the different things that school allowed me to do. Playing in the band for 7 years, receiving one's running track, playing powder puff football, and meeting a lot of new friends.

Simpson College

INDIANOLA, IA. — One hundred twenty-five students will be graduated at Simpson College's 108th commencement Sunday, May 25, during ceremonies beginning at 2 p.m. at Neff Field on the campus.

Also receiving their bachelors degrees officially at commencement will be 67 other students who have been graduated since last spring.

Dr. J. Steven Watson, principal of the University of St. Andrews in Scotland, will deliver the commencement address on "Scotland's Contribution to the American Way of Life."

A noted Scottish scholar and author, Dr. Watson was the first Oxford University professor to teach at Simpson under a student-faculty exchange program between the college and the British institution during the 1960's.

Before becoming principal of St. Andrews, Dr. Watson served as chairman of the board of modern history at Oxford from 1956-58 and was editor of the Oxford historical series from 1950-66. He also was a lecturer and tutor at Christ Church in Oxford from 1945-66.

There is a bright side to my graduation though. For once I won't have to worry about studying for tests, or trying to complete an assignment in one class, which was due the next period.

Of course, when I go to college, the scene won't be that much different. There will be a little more freedom though.

At one time, I seriously didn't think I could or would be graduating. But the time is finally arriving, and I know I don't want to be left behind when the class of '75 leaves Roosevelt for good.

Warden can be seen currently as the philandering and philandered husband in the film, "Shampoo". The actor's many screen credits include "From Here to Eternity", "12 Angry Men" and the recent "The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz".

Wills, who has had a checkered employment career since he discovered the Watergate break-in will be making his screen debut. He has worked sporadically since he lost his Watergate job and has subsisted mainly through speaking engagements across the country.

"All the President's Men" began filming Monday, May 12, on location in Washington, D.C., following a week's rehearsals. Alan J. Pakula is directing from a screenplay by William Goldman. Walter Coblenz is producing the film which features Jason Robards as Ben Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post.

POITIER FILM SHOOTING IN SOUTH

NEW ORLEANS — The cast and crew of "Let's Do It Again", the new First Artists comedy starring Sidney Poitier and Bill Cosby under Poitier's direction is expected to complete principal photography in New Orleans on Tuesday, May 13, after shooting earlier in Atlanta, Ga.

Starring with Poitier and Cosby in the picture, which began filming in California March 10, are Ossie Davis, Calvin Lockhart, John Amos, Denise Nicholas, Lee Chamberlin and Jimmie Walker.

Melville Tucker is producing the Richard Wesley screenplay, which Warner Bros. will release.

Major Harris streaking to the top

With his first Atlantic single as a solo artist, "Love Won't Let Me Wait," streaking to the Top Ten of both the pop and R&B charts, and his album, "My Way" doing the same on the LP charts. Major Harris need wait no more. Refusing to take his sudden smash solo status lightly, the former Delphonic is working tirelessly so his fans needn't wait, either.

"It feels very, very nice," said Major Harris recently from Philadelphia while discussing what it's like to have his first hit on his own. "It's kind of a surprise, really. During my engagement at Just Jazz, the fans were lined up around the corner trying to get in." And following his television appearances on "Soul Train" and "The Mike Douglas Show," Major is finding himself recognized on the street whenever he goes out on the town. "Philadelphia just won't let me wait," he chuckles. "I've even seen a lot of 'Major for Mayor' bumper stickers on the cars here."

Even though Atlantic is readying "Loving You Is Mellow" as the next single from "My Way," Major Harris' attention is already focused on his upcoming second album. "The next one will be better," he promises. "I'm recording now at Sigma Sound with Bobby Eli and we feel very confident." He should, for the album will include some tunes composed by Joe Jefferson and Charles B. Simmons, the team that wrote "One of a Kind Love Affair" and "Mighty Love" for the Spinners, as well as numerous others.

Concert goers won't have to wait too much longer for Major Harris. With the Philadelphia triumph under his belt, he is anxious to hit the road. According to Major, "I'm particularly anxious to hit the West Coast." He has tentatively scheduled a tour for that area in June that will take him to Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, Seattle, and Portland.

Major Harris is emerging as the first true male star of 1975. And with his talent and drive, he isn't about to wait around and relinquish that position to anyone.

IEBN

SUMMER VIEWING

On May 26, when the regular in-school, daytime programming stops, the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network (Ch 11, Des Moines; Ch 12, Iowa City; Ch 24, Mason City; Ch 27, Sioux City; Ch 32, Waterloo) will continue to provide daytime programs... with a schedule for the whole family.

Mornings will be filled with programs for children: Sesame Street, Misterogers' Neighborhood, Villa Alegre, Electric Company, special films and some new series.

At 12:00 noon, programming for older people begins. Book Beat, Know Your Antiques, Mele Hawaii, Making Things Grow, Consumer Survival Kit, Woman, and Interface are among the choices that will be offered daily.

For many years viewers had been asking that Sesame Street and The Electric Company remain on the air during the summertime. It seems a reasonable extension of this to program the morning for children and the afternoon for a wider audience. The IEBN daytime summer schedule will provide Iowans with an alternative to the other daytime viewing fare.

Bargmann is DMACC speaker

Dedication ceremonies and campus-wide open house are scheduled for the Ankeny Campus of Des Moines Area Community College Sunday afternoon, May 18.

Paul Lowery, administrative head of the college since its founding in 1966, emphasizes that the day is planned to allow everyone in the area to get a good look at their college and participate in the dedication of the buildings that mark the completion of Phase 2 of the master campus plan.

W. O. Bargmann, Ankeny, general manager of the John Deere Des Moines Works, will be the main speaker for the formal dedication of Buildings 31, 32 and 22A, scheduled to begin at 2 p.m.

Bargmann has been associated with John Deere since 1946, starting as an industrial engineer at the John Deere Plow Works. After working in many capacities for the company, he lived in Heidelberg, Germany for ten years during which time Deere manufacturing operations were established in Germany, France, Spain and South Africa. Returning to the United States in 1968, he assumed the position he now holds.

Also appearing on the program will be Lowery; Max Kreager, vice president of the board of directors; Architect Kennard Bussard of Wilkins, Bussard & Dikis; and Sister Margaret Mary Toomey, O.P., head of campus ministry at the college. Richard Chapman will represent the faculty.

Music will be by the Lab Tech group from Ankeny High School directed by Curtis Svalstad. In addition to being a part of the formal program, the group will present a concert at 1:30 p.m.

Refreshments will be served in Building 25 following the program.

There are 82,000 sq. ft. in the buildings to be dedicated. All are single story, precast concrete with exposed columns and fascia.

Building 22A is an addition to the Health Sciences building and houses the dental auxiliaries clinics, including laboratories and classrooms for the dental hygiene and dental assistant programs. There are 15,000 sq. ft. in the addition.

Building 31 houses the public services careers classrooms and laboratories, a large group area, and administrative offices for the career education and arts and sciences divisions. There are 32,000 sq. ft. in Building 31.

Located in the Applied Sciences building (No. 32) are laboratories, classrooms and the mechanical and architectural drafting programs. Size is 29,000 sq. ft.

The 6,000 sq. ft. utility center constructed in this phase augments a similar structure completed in 1971. All utilities, including heating and cooling, are carried underground. The two centers will be adequate to serve all future campus development according to college officials.

Lowery reports that the cost of Phase 2 is $3,300,000, which together with Phase 1 places the cost of developing the Ankeny campus to date at about $12 million. Financing is through the three-quarter mill levied in the district for capital improvements, plus some state and local funds. Total square footage is 354,000.

Everyone is invited to view the special displays, exhibits and demonstrations during the campus-wide open house from 12:30-5 P.M.

I watched the tennis match between Arthur Ash and Bjorn Borg for the WCT championship, and I was surprised by the commentators. I thought the need for such columns as this wasn't as great as it used to be, but I think I was wrong. I listened to the comments about the youthful reflexes and super quickness as the Swede won the first set, and heard several comments about the differences in the ages of the two players, Ash being thirteen years older than the other guy. So, reasoned the fellows who talk over the mikes, Ash shouldn't be expected to keep the pace with his younger opponent. It so happened that Ash was on his game like I haven't seen him since he won the US Open a while back. After that shaky start in the opening set, the fellow really went to work and did just what you are supposed to do when you get your opponent on the floor. Don't give him any sort of chance. So the talkers began to tell about how tired the young men was because he had played such a hectic schedule and had that tough five set with Rod Laver forty eight hours before. I would have to argue that tough playing schedules are a part of the WCT groups, everybody has to play them. Since the two men are in the same group, I would suspect that the playing schedule of Ash was as tough as Borg's. And as for that tough five setter with Laver, the guy had a whole day to recover, and you can't tell me that at eighteen you can't recover in that time. I believe that if you are in condition, you don't need too much time to regroup. Sometimes from a tough defeat, yes, but a win, never. In fact, I wonder how a seventeen year old gets tired at all. And, since tennis or any other game is your life, you just can't get tired doing it. I never cease to wonder at the major league pitchers who get tired during a game, and have to leave. If that is your living, and you like it, you shouldn't get that tired. Of course I can understand that professionals playing every day don't always feel up to par, and that could affect their performance, but that should really be all.

Not the first time.

But then I recall that Ash and Borg had played several times before this meeting, and Ash had a one match lead on him. I remember that when Arthur won in Bracelona, there was a press release that the Swede was recovering from an auto accident, and wasn't at his best. But he was good enough to get to the finals, and to do that he had to beat some pretty good players. I would like to see the fellow just once get a win with the credit he is due. They say that Ash is the champion loser off finals. Well, in all of the finals I have heard him talk about after he lost them, I have never heard him offer any sort of excuse so he must be a champion at that, too. A fellow said that Borg got a bigger hand for losing than Ash did for winning. Can't you figure that out? John Lucas, who could possibly be the man to follow Ash, is quoted as saying he doesn't know whether to go into pro basketball or tennis. He could likely make it in the cage game. But I read that he said he couldn't keep his mouth shut as Ash does at flagrant bad calls. If anyone gave him a bad call, they would hear about it. I understand that there was a fellow from Detroit who had the same philosophy, and he hasn't gone into the game for keeps. Oh, yes, I might add that Lucas won the Middle Atlantic conference tennis title without the loss of a set, and not too many games, so he must have a little bit on the ball.

A LOOK INTO THE PAST

A few years back I lost a friend that I considered more of a mother than a friend, at least after my own mother passed. What I didn't know was that she had kept just about all of the clippings of the fights of Joe

Louis Chet Williamson gave me this collection of old clippings and I took a look at them. Well, you try keeping something on newspaper for nearly forty years, and in some cases maybe more than forty, and when you go to examine them, you are in for a surprise. But the bunch brought back memories of fights I had forgotten about. Such as Jack Roper on the West Coast, A guy named Brown in Kansas City. Then there was the former local favorite, Lee Savoldi, along with Jack Sharkey, and I don't know how many stories about the second Max Schnell battle. That one stands out in my mind because I recall that after the first one in which Louis was kayoed, three of us walked from nineteenth and Center to Tenth and Woodland a distance of about eleven blocks. In that walk we were accosted I don't know how many times by whites in cars asking us what we thought of Louis then. We ignored them because we figured they wanted trouble. But after that second brawl, nobody accosted us then. Wonder why? Included in the collection were a few clippings of some of the tennis matches Chet and I played in and were able to win, but not too many of them. Mrs. Williamson was the original Joe Lois fan, and if you didn't think so all you had to do was talk to her about five minutes, and if you weren't one, she would convert you. When I can get that roll back together, I will have some more dope on that.
