Gives King One More Year

News Briefs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Delegates to the annual convention of the NAACP accused the Veterans Administration Thursday of failing to comply with fair housing practices.

In a resolution passed by voice vote, the more than 1,300 delegates strongly condemned the VA and urged Congress and the Ford administration to act promptly to bring all VA housing programs into compliance with equal housing laws.

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi summoned parliament to meet in a special session beginning July 21 to approve her declaration of a national emergency, official sources reported Wednesday.

She decreed the state of emergency on June 26 to put down calls for her resignation after she was convicted of campaign violations.

MOSCOW, Russia — The split among Jewish activists here broke out into the open this week with the visit of 14 U.S. senators. One group of Jews initially refused to meet the senators in the presence of the other.

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit seeking the cutoff of funds to Los Angeles city schools unless the schools are desegregated. The district could lose more than $50 million a year in federal funds if the suit is successful.

BOSTON, Mass. (AP) — A conference of the nation's big-city mayors voted narrowly Wednesday to eliminate their long-standing criticism of the defense budget from their lobbying policy.

By a vote of 91 to 86, the U.S. Conference of Mayors struck from its resolution on national priorities criticism of President Ford's proposed $107.7-billion defense budget.

SAN FRANCISCO (NNPA) — Seeking an answer to the constantly rising unemployment rate among blacks, which exceeds 25 percent, the National Newspaper Publishers Association has called on President Ford to declare all 10 percent jobless communities as disaster areas.

And further, urged the President to hold a meeting with a black delegation to devise programs and policies to meet the critical economic needs of blacks and other minorities brought on by inflation and unemployment.

Harris Loses In Second Bid

James Harris, a Des Moines art and human relations teacher, was defeated Monday in his bid for a second term as president of the National Education Association (NEA).

Harris who went into the NEA convention in Los Angeles as the incumbent and frontrunner, was upset by John Ryor, a mathematics teacher from Springfield, Mich.

The new NEA president received 4,179 votes and Harris collected 3,597.

The election at the 113th annual educators' meeting was the most controversial and most hotly contested in NEA history. A recent change in the NEA constitution lengthened the president's term from one year to two years and made it possible for incumbents to seek re-election for the first time.

Thus, an NEA president now can serve for a maximum of four years rather than one, upgrading the position from a mere figurehead to one of real power in education.

Harris said some delegates did not apparently feel the president of the NEA should serve more than one term. He said his defeat was a disappointment because he had hoped to complete some things started during his term.

He was referring to his efforts to focus attention on educational neglect in America, to achieve passage of a national collective bargaining bill and to improve education in other countries by training surplus American educators to teach overseas.

The 48-year-old Harris will return to his duties next fall at Des Moines Callahan Junior High School. His term as NEA president ends August 31.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Joseph W. Hatchett, 42, has been appointed to the Florida State Supreme Court by Gov. Reubin Askew. Southern Regional Council records show he is the first black to become a state supreme court justice in the South. Hatchett, a Florida native, has been U.S. magistrate at Jacksonville, Fla., the past four years.

LT. GEN. DANIEL JAMES, JR.

Becomes First Black With Four Star Rank

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger recently announced that the President will nominate Lieutenant General Daniel James, Jr., United States Air Force, for promotion to full general and assignment as the Commander-in-Chief, North American Air Defense Command and Commander, Aerospace Defense Command with headquarters at Ent Air Force Base, Colorado Springs, Colorado. The assignment, which has the approval of the Canadian government, will be effective on September 1, 1975.

With this promotion, Gen. James will become the first black officer to achieve four-star rank in the history of the U.S. armed services.

Gen. James, 55, is a native of Pensacola, Florida, and a 1942 graduate of Tuskegee Institute. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps in 1943.

A fighter pilot, Gen. James flew 101 combat missions during the Korean War and 78 combat missions into North Vietnam during the Vietnam conflict.

Gen. James became deputy assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) in March 1970 and was designated principal deputy assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) in April 1973. For his service in these positions he received the Department of Defense Distinguished Service Medal, the highest non-combat award which can be presented to a member of the armed forces.

A command pilot, Gen. James became vice-commander of the Military Airlift Command (MAC) on September 1, 1974.

Gen. James is married to the former Dorothy Watkins of Tuskegee, Alabama. They have a daughter, Denise (Mrs. Frank W. Berry) and two sons, Daniel III, now a captain in the Air Force and Claude.

Magnet Concept Has Not Been Given A Fair Chance

The Des Moines School Board met Wednesday night for a special workshop in the board offices at 1800 Grand Ave., to discuss desegregation.

The board listened to possible plans from a committee of several board members and district administrators who have been appointed to study integration and to develop a desegregation plan.

Purpose of the meeting was to help establish guidelines for developing a desegregation plan that will be presented to the board August 5. Last night's workshop dealt with junior high schools. All board members were present except Ora E. Niffenegger who is out of town.

James E. Bowman, executive director of Elementary Education, reported on Edmunds and King elementary schools and their roles as magnet schools. Bowman stated that Edmunds attracted more majority students (60) and has a waiting list (of 14 students) to determine where students will go next year.

He added that 17 or so youngsters applied to go to King. The board members felt that the idea of using King as a magnet school should be given one more year to see if the magnet concept will not work. If the minority population is not lowered significantly by 1976-77, other means of desegregation will be instituted.

Bowman said the reason King was not successful was "the community and the advisory council were not satisfied with the magnet concept at King because it was a neighborhood school." The concept has not really been given a fair chance he added.

One board member indicated that discipline and noise were other problems at King.

Board member George Caudill believes "we should leave King alone for next year and see if the situation will work itself out."

"Edmunds had a reasonable amount of success as a magnet school after its first year under new administration," Bowman said. Dr. Dwight M. Davis, superintendent of schools, said that leadership and location were two factors helping Edmunds attract students. King has a central location which would not attract many students he said.

Nolan Gentry, board president, feels that the districts should try to do more to attract students. Efforts should be "attempted to throw weight, positively, to attract majority students," Gentry said. He stated that the districts should try to get parents and students to volunteer or assist in getting plans to attract students to the magnet schools.

Dr. John McCaw suggested that the church groups which appeared before the board "vindicating themselves to help" now have the opportunity to "put up or shut up" concerning the situation to find plans to attract students to the magnet schools.

Gentry addressed the board stating that serious consideration should be taken to allow King to continue—building into the program other things that would attract kids to come in. The programs would be additional adults for a better adult-student ratio, better discipline, exemplary programs such as talent programs and possible teacher training programs.

"There are two things that cause discipline problems in our schools," Dr. Merle Schlamp said. Students having trouble with their school work, he said is the first problem. There are boys and girls that are annoying and questioning everything; bright students who are not kept busy, constituting the second problem.

Mrs. Kate Goldman reminded the board of a suggestion that if a student moves into an attendance area during the school year he will be transferred to the school with the lowest minority percentage.

One consideration to move minority students to majority schools was mentioned. Mrs. Jack Spevak introduced the concept of "focus" schools as used in Seattle, Wash. Focus schools are where students do not feel alone at a majority school where he is one of maybe 6 or 7. She suggested that the efforts of the magnet schools should be reviewed annually.

The board considered the idea of leaving Moulton Junior High at its present fifty per cent minority enrollment. They also listened to plans to change the attendance areas of Logan Junior High because of a cluster area. The board will work toward decreasing the percentage at Moulton.

Figures of possible bus routes, distances, number of buses needed and the students to be transported were reported to the board by the study committee. The statistics concern the possible pairing of several elementary schools by grade levels.

The Des Moines District School Board is studying the issue of desegregation because the State Board of Public Instruction asked the district to do more to integrate the schools.

IEWS and REVIEWS

by James B. Morris

Stewing In Their Own Juice

The U.S. Conference of Mayors is carrying on its 1975 session. As usual, the representatives of the large cities were singing their woes that they are either broke or close to it. They did not emphasize the plea for individual deals as was the case of New York City when the mayor went to Washington for help to pay bills, but was refused.

However, the mayors did appeal for more revenue sharing because their income is not sufficient to pay the upkeep.

There is little doubt that most large cities are in financial trouble. But they are not willing to admit what the trouble is other than to say then need more funds to carry on their poorly managed systems.

For instance, the news media reported that the striking garbage workers in New York City were returning to work, which happened to be on Sunday, and they were getting paid $90 per day. No doubt, under the union contract with the city, the men were paid double time for Sundays work. It costs garbage men more to live in New York City than it does in some of the smaller cities, but certainly not to the extent that such wages are paid employees by a city that is broke.

Pressure groups have dominated political machines in New York City. They have forced taxing bodies to grant wage raises which the budget does not cover. The taxing bodies do not have the courage to stand up against those intrusions.

I do not argue against cities paying employees good salaries. But I am opposed to voting expenditures that are beyond the income. Of course, this is what the federal government has been doing for years. There have been few years since 1932 that the national budget has been balanced and thus we are carrying a national debt of more than $350 billion and it keeps going up year after year.

The cities, as well as the federal government, must learn eventually to live within their income, otherwise, like business concerns, they will find themselves in bankruptcy.

This Is A Poor Example

An organization of citizens formed to oppose the use of busing in the public school desegregation plan of the City of Des Moines asked the city council for a permit to solicit funds to pay their legal counsel should a court case arise.

Monday night the council voted unanimously to grant the permit. I am disappointed that this vote was unanimous and yet when the mayor comes out publicly in opposition to busing — outside of his jurisdiction — it is understandable how the vote went.

I think the action is a mistake for it opens the door for all kinds of movements to pray upon the public to pay their bills.

Most of these people are the middle class group which generally earns good salaries. They have a right to oppose busing, but I am surprised that they have the courage to ask the public to pay their own bills.

Too Much Politics in Everything We Do

James Harris, has been defeated in his effort to serve a second term of president of the National Education Association. Even so, he has gone a long way and deserves great credit for having been elected head of such an organization in the first place.

The NEA is beginning to flex its muscles because of this election of members of Congress they supported and is building great strength. Des Moines is no exception.

Teacher organizations, like labor unions, are giving much of their attention to the selection of favorable members of Congress much of which should be used to teach young people to do a better job teaching reading, writing and arithmetic which is suddenly being done in a miserable manner in many instances.

I am opposed to strikes by public employees. I also believe that a system of compulsory arbitration should be required in the settlement of disputes. The day has come when everybody is organized against the next fellow with the result that the country is shaken with deviousness. True, we are a great country, but selfishness has made its lack of solidarity become a serious matter.

Somehow, we must come to grips with this deviousness for a dissatisfied population is fertile ground for movements like those that have hurt other countries.

So Far and No Further

The issue of July 7th of the Des Moines Tribune carried a photo of Dan Williams, the man who groomed the famous race horse, Ruffian, standing in front of the Equine-Horse-Hospital lamenting the death of the famous horse.

Grooming includes exercise and riding a horse which are valuable portions of the training and perfection of a race horse. Apparently Williams helped to do a great job in this instance. In the early days of horse racing in America Negroes were the jockeys. But the job became too lucrative and thus they were replaced, and like Williams they never got beyond the grooming stage.

Williams displayed extreme sadness over the death of the famous horse which he had groomed and yet sad to realize that his excellent work never let him in on the big money which the horse won.

Black Press of America Threatened

The Black Press of America is greatly threatened by white daily newspaper creation of black-oriented sections and free home delivery journals in the inner cities of 16 metropolitan areas with black populations in excess of 250,000 each.

Last week the Washington Post began publishing a black community section which will be part of each Thursday's edition of the daily. Similar weekly sections will accompany editions going into the Maryland and Virginia suburbs each Thursday.

The Washington Post venture into the black community with a section reminiscent of the "colored pages" of many newspapers in the South a generation ago may hurt the four black weeklies of Washington — the Afro-American, the Informer, New Observer, and the Capital Spotlight.

In Los Angeles, the Knight-Ridder owned Wave Publications have a free home-delivery circulation of 250,000 in the black community, adding to the revenue of the highly profitable chain. Since the Wave newspapers became black oriented some four years ago, the black-owned Los Angeles weeklies scarcely obtain any large display advertising from the big downtown department stores.

The Chicago Tribune is reportedly planning a colored section for distribution with the big daily in the southside and inner city of Chicago. The Tribune's entry into the field

N.Y. Urban League Sponsors Young Football Classic

The New York Urban League's Annual Whitney M. Young, Jr. Memorial Football Classic will be played on November 15, 1975 at Shea Stadium, New York City, according to an announcement by Horace W. Morris, executive director of the League.

Morris said that, the teams playing in this year's Classic will be announced on August 21, 1975 at a Press Conference/Reception to be held in the auditorium of the Time-Life Building, Rockefeller Center, New York City.

The Classic, which is the largest interracial sponsored Black athletic event in the United States, is being played for the fifth time. In previous years it has attracted sell-out crowds and is expected to have the same type of turn-out this year. Fans attend from all over the United States and the West Indies.

Last year the teams participating in the Classic were Grambling State University Grambling, La., and North Carolina A & T University of Greensboro, N.C.

Morris stressed that the League is sponsoring only the Whitney Young Jr. Classic and has nothing to do with a game being sponsored in Washington, D.C.

The New Iowa Bystander—Thursday, July 10, 1975

could threaten the economic position of Chicago's black-owned successful daily and weekly publications.

The Washington Post "colored community" supplement is a glaring example of greed. In collusion with white merchants, the paper is seeking a still larger share of the advertising revenue generated by the billions of dollars spent annually here in Washington by blacks who earn more as a group than members of the race in any other city in the country.

How can the Washington Post, which daily demonstrates a subtle type of racism by ignoring the print media needs of blacks who make up 71 percent of the District of Columbia population, be counted on to do anything really constructive for the black community through its "colored section"?

The organized Black Press of America is threatened by the projected publication of black oriented sections and free home-delivery newspapers by white dailies in 15 other metropolitan areas, including: New York City, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Atlanta, Miami, New Orleans, Houston, San Francisco, St. Louis, Detroit, and Cleveland.

Through these mutually exclusive sections, the Post and other major dailies will be able to offer split rate or cut-rate ad schedules. This may add revenue, but it will further divide metropolitan areas, contributing to an unhealthy provincialism.

The NNPA, the Black Press of America, called upon the 66th Annual Convention of the NAACP, which met in Washington, to oppose the segmentation of the daily press and the total usurpation of the advertising dollar in the inner city to the disadvantage of black newspapers.

Ashe Wins Wimbledon Tennis Title

Arthur Ashe became the first black to win a Wimbledon men's singles title Saturday in Wimbledon, England.

He also erased a stigma which has followed him throughout much of his career.

Ashe shocked defending champion and number one seed Jimmy Connors in four sets. His 6-1, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4 victory in the Wimbledon finals took him another step toward establishing himself in world esteem.

Touted as tennis' next superstar before he turned pro in 1968, Ashe had been known as a "choker," the guy who lost all the big ones. He played in Wimbledon 12 years without gaining the final. Ashe's career took a turn last May when he won the World Championship Tennis title over Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

He received a solid gold tennis ball for being the top scorer in the World Championship Tennis 1975 tour.

Ashe won largely because he suddenly began hitting winning forehand volleys. That stroke had threatened to cost him his semifinal round match against Australian Tony Roche. This time he hit a stream of winning volleys and Connors had no answer to them.

The new Wimbledon champion earned $22,000 and said this was his second-greatest victory. His greatest triumph, he said was when he led the United States to victory in the Davis Cup in 1968.

Colorful Buses

One of the few city bus systems in the country that is not a financial disaster manages to pull in riders with a promotional campaign that uses almost anything to get attention. One gimmick is to paint the buses with weird colors and designs.

You'd think a chance to save money getting to work would be enough to get attention, but there are still thousands of people in Des Moines who aren't taking advantage of a way to ease the strain on their budget.

If painting candy canes and psychedelic colors on the buses would get attention, we ought to try it. It sounds dumb, but it's hard to argue with success.

WHO Editorial

Where's the Spirit?

If you look at the fierce independence of those who founded this country ... and compare that to the dominant attitudes today ... it's impossible to shake off the feeling that we've lost something. People still talk about freedom and states' rights when the federal government does something they don't like. But they'll be smiling with contentment when Uncle Sam uses exactly the same pressure tactics to force through something they want.

That's not the kind of spirit that built this country. And, in the long run, it's not very smart.

Louisiana Leads Nation In Elected Black Officials

Washington, D.C. — The percentage of elected officials who are black is greater in Louisiana than in any other state in the Union.

And despite a total population of less than 4 million, Louisiana ranks second in the nation in total number of black elected officials with 237 — exceeded only by the 246 in Illinois, which has a total of more than 11 million.

The Joint Center for Political Studies (JCPS), which has its headquarters in Washington, soon will publish its latest national survey of black elected officials containing the above figures.

Although Louisiana's percentage of elected officials who are black (5 per cent) is tops in the nation, it is still far below the proportion of eligible voters there who are black (26 per cent).

There are 88 more blacks holding elective office in Louisiana than in 1974, a spokesman for JCPS said. The state's increase was the biggest in the nation over the past year.

There are nine blacks in the Louisiana state legislature — one senator and eight representatives.

Last year, the JCPS reported Michigan had the largest number of elected blacks and that Mississippi ranked second in the nation.

Under the new ranking behind Illinois and Louisiana, Michigan is third in total number of elected blacks, followed by North Carolina and Mississippi. Alabama ranks eighth, but has two state senators and 13 state representatives in its legislature.

Nationwide there are 3,503 elected blacks in 45 states and the District of Columbia. States without any elected blacks are Hawaii, North and South Dakota, Utah and Vermont. Montana has one.

Michigan has the most elected black women (53). Mississippi and Illinois are next, each with 42.

Agrees Harkin Is Radical

The following statement was issued today by Conservative Coalition of Iowa Chairman Leroy Corey:

"Recently, the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress (CSFC) issued a list of its 'Ten Most Radical' members of Congress including Tom Harkin (D-Iowa Fifth District). This rating was made on the basis of voting records and in the judgement of the Committee Harkin's voting record is more akin to Berkeley, Calif. than it is to Iowa's Fifth District.

"Harkin, instead of defending his record, chose to issue a very ill-tempered attack on one of the Committee's contributors, Joseph Coors of Colorado. Specifically, Harkin called Coors, who is one of the country's leading businessmen, 'one of the dumbest right-wing kooks in the country' and went on to infer that Coors has something in common with Adolph Hitler and Genghis Khan.

"Because of this and because of Harkin's own ultra-liberal voting record, the Conservative Coalition of Iowa is pleased to join with the CSFC in calling Harkin what he is, namely a radical liberal. In Congress, Harkin has consistently aligned himself with the left-wing of his own caucus.

For example, he recently opposed an amendment to prohibit aid to Communist North Viet Nam and he also opposed a bill to require Congressional approval of National Science Foundation funding for school curriculum programs and materials. The latter vote was brought about by the NSF funding of a program called 'Man: A Course of Studies,' which is decidedly anti-family and against Christian morality in its teachings.

"Furthermore, Harkin's own uncalled for attack on Coors just proves our case. Harkin didn't even bother to get his facts straight as he tried to imply that Coors runs the Committee for Research reveals more bone damage in sickle cell patients

(Baltimore radiologists reveal results of study of 26 patients ... As treatment of sickling disorders improves, patients living longer exhibit dead tissue at bone ends ... Early diagnosis and treatment can decrease crippling).

Whatever headway is being made in the treatment of patients with sickle cell disorders will allow them to live longer but this then permits the development of bone abnormalities, indicates a team of Baltimore radiologists who have completed an x-ray research study of particular bone changes in these patients.

Sickling disorders consist of an inherited defect in the red blood cells (which assume a sickle shape) rendering them ineffective as carriers of oxygen. Because of sickled cells' poor ability to carry oxygen or their tendency to sickle and clump and thus thrombose or block blood vessels, sickle patients may have insufficient oxygen at the ends of some vessels, thus causing death of tissue (infarct). The sickle cell anemias occur almost exclusively in blacks.

The research was conducted the Survival of a Free Congress when in fact, Coors and his family contributed less than 4 per cent of the Committee's total income last year and the Committee has nearly 10,000 contributors.

"If Harkin doesn't like the 'radical' tag then we suggest he should stop acting like one. Otherwise, he can expect people to continue to call attention to his voting record."

Sang Oh, Jack W. Bowerman, Stanley S. Siegelman and A. Everett James, Jr., all of the department of radiology and radiologic sciences and Laboratory for Diagnostic Radiological Research at the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions. It is reported in May's issue of the American Journal of Roentgenology, Radium Therapy and Nuclear Medicine.

The study concentrated on x-ray assessment of dying or dead tissue (infarcts) in the ends, or epiphyses, of the long bones in 400 patients with sickling disorders. They found bone infarcts at these sites in 26 of the patients (6.5 per cent). The researchers point out that much attention has been paid to abnormalities in the top of the hip bone (capital femoral epiphysis) but little to other sites. They found infarcts in the top of the arm bone (humerus) to be almost equal in incidence, as well as infarcts in the lower end of the hip bone, both ends of the tibia (shin bone) and the radius (in the wrist).

The radiologists offer a chart summarizing the details on each patient, discuss the incidence of epiphyseal changes in each of the sickling disorders and the probable cause, and delineate the x-ray patterns they found.

"Early diagnosis of epiphyseal infarction and prompt institution of adequate treatment possibly would decrease the frequency of secondary collapse with resulting functional disability," the team concludes.

Army Results of Recruiting

Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway announced that the army successfully completed the second year of recruiting without the draft authority.

In recruiting some 209,106 young men and women into the army, Callaway pointed out that the army not only was able to meet its annual recruiting objective, but, at the same time, improved the quality of personnel being recruited.

Of those enlisting in the Army for the first time during the fiscal year, some 66 per cent have high school educations. Army-wide, 77 per cent of the enlisted force have high school educations.

Additionally, 90 per cent of those new enlistees entering the army during February 1975 were Mental Category I-III personnel—an increase of eight percentage points over February 1974.

Increased educational opportunities and a directed effort at improving the quality of potential enlistees are having a positive impact on the caliber of Army recruits.

Callaway also announced that the total of 25,576 men and women recruited in June 1975 was 103 percent of the total June objective of 24,800—of that number approximately 21,300 or 83 per cent were high school

Commenting on the kind of people entering the army, Callaway indicated that today's recruits are better motivated, better educated and better prepared to accept discipline, thereby making better soldiers. In the past two years since the draft ended, about 408,300 young men and women have

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. My family has just adopted an orphan from a foreign country who will live with us in the United States. Are there any special tax deductions or exemptions I can claim?

A. There are no special tax deductions or exemptions for adopting an orphan from a foreign country. However, if the child was legally adopted, or was placed in your home for adoption by an authorized agency, before the end of the tax year, and if you provided more than half the child's support for the year, you may claim the child as a dependent.

Q. I have been hired for a summer job that will make up my entire income for the year. My total earnings will be several hundred dollars. What can I do to keep from having my federal taxes withheld?

A. If you paid no income tax last year and expect to pay none this tax year, you are eligible for exemption from federal income tax withholding. This exemption entitles you to have no federal income tax withheld from your pay, although FICA (Social Security) and any State tax will still be withheld.

ENTERTAINMENT WORLD

HODGES, JAMES & SMITH

'Cause They've Got the Power

While the name Hodges, James and Smith might evoke a mental image of a conservative, serene, perhaps male-dominated aggregation, nothing could be further from the truth when describing Hodges, James & Smith.

They are electric, exotic, explosive and totally feminine. In a time when female trios abound, this one is so extraordinary that when you hear them you wonder, where did they come from? Where have they been? But you are certain where they are going. They are going where they belong, at the top of every chart, center stage of every showplace worldwide.

Where did they come from? Pat Hodges comes from Los Angeles. The journey from South Central Los Angeles to the center of any stage is not only difficult and discouraging, but sometimes impossible. Pat's infectious wit and indomitable Sagittarian love of life has brought her to this point in her journey, and she has come armed with a demanding gospel, gutsy style that may change at the shift of the stage lighting to a soft seductive mood-making vocal caress.

Denita James was born on the cusp of Sagittarius-Capricorn, right into the middle of South Central Los Angeles. She has had to make the same journey as her childhood friend, Pat ... with somewhat different armament, however.

One look at Denita and you realize it would take some formidable obstacles indeed to stop her on any journey. Visually she is six, slinky, silky, sexy feet of female. Denita's voice is rooted in gospel from the years of working with her mother's gospel group. But her vocal style is heavily overtone with a husky lushness that transmits some sensuous secret. But that secret erupts right into Denita's on-stage dance sequences. And when the stage lights go to black after her number, the audience just sits and sizzles.

Jessica Smith comes from Detroit. No doubt she flew on a plane to Los Angeles, but the ethereal, angelic quality to her voice gives you cause to almost believe she could have floated to L.A. on wings. Pisces-like, Jessica is extremely soft spoken and her gentle, whispering conversational voice belies the pure, powerful soprano that pins an audience to their seats, lifts them into her incredible octave range, and sweeps them away with her emotion-packed delivery.

Where have they been? In the background, in recording studios. The sound of Hodges, James and Smith has provided the perfect backing for artists such as Elton John, Neil Diamond, Johnny Nash, Quincy Jones and Johnny Bristol. On the nightclub circuit with such stars as Sammy Davis, Jr., Roberta Flack, Ann-Margret, Buddy Hackett, Charo, Paul Williams, Rod McKuen, The Temptations, The Dells, Cheech & Chong, Ahmad Jamal; and touring the Orient with Wilson Pickett.

They've been in rehearsal halls and classrooms, constantly studying and striving for perfection, under the expert tutelage of producer-manager, Mickey Stevenson. Now you know where Hodges, James and Smith came from ... what they've been doing to get where they're going.

Signed to 20th Century Records, Hodges, James and Smith have a current album entitled, "Power in Your Love"; and they've got the power ... power to excite, entertain, and to spread love through their music. If you ever witness a Hodges, James and Smith performance center stage where they belong, with all the house lights up, you'll agree that they deserve to be there, cause they've got the power.

club book alone in the Maestro Barry White Fan Club Package is worth the price of the entire package."

And following an exclusive story in the Italian Magazine "Ciao 2001," in which the writer Armado Gallo mentioned the initiation of 'The Maestro's Fan Club,' there has been a steady flow of letters from all over Italy from Italian fans seeking to become registered members of The Maestro Barry White Fan Club.

From the very beginning and inception of the idea to start a fan club for 'The Maestro,' it was the projection of the creative department under which 'The Maestro's Fan Club' is operated to build a one-million membership fan club, for the man of music who's success and popularity is based on songs of love; and judging from the growing response and registration of 'The Maestro's' fans from all over the world, it won't be too long before The Maestro Barry White Fan Club registers one million members.

Perry: Much More Critical of Perry

Greg Perry, whose latest Casablanca Records single, "I'll Be Coming Back" has just been culled from his "One For the Road" album, is no stranger to the recording studio. As a composer and producer, Greg has been responsible for such multi-million sellers as Freda Payne's "Bring The Boys Home," Honey Cone's "Want Ads," and 100 Proof's "Somebody's Sleepin' (In My Bed)." He developed a confidence in the studio which was built upon his basic belief in the validity of the song being recorded itself.

Yet, when Greg stepped over to the other side of the glass to become an artist, he was in for a surprise.

"When I was at the controls in the studio, producing other artists, I was always positive about what I wanted to hear," Perry recalls. "But this time, I was much more critical of myself than I would be of another artist."

"Also, hearing my own voice coming over the mammoth studio monitors instead of, say, Edna Wright, who I am currently producing, was at first a shocking experience," Perry said.

The results, as the critics have acclaimed, are far from shocking, "One For the Road" embodies the entire musical spectrum with memorable melodies and lyrics to which anyone can relate.

Ironically, Greg Perry intended to be an artist from the beginning, when he was singing with his brothers in Palm Springs.

"But as I looked around me, I saw so many once-big artists starving," he says. "Their problem wasn't talent, but in having good material, for they had to rely on writers for strong songs. At the instant I realized this, I vowed to learn to write and produce successfully before becoming an artist, so I would not suffer the fate of so many performers who have come before me and who I respect so highly."

Now reunited with close friends Neil Bogart, president of Casablanca Records, and Cecil Holmes, the label's vice president general manager of R&B Operations, Greg is confident of his future. In fact, he is readying a major tour for later in the year.

"I don't want to simply go on stage and sing a bunch of songs," Greg Perry feels. "Each song I perform, whether on wax or in concert must be personally meaningful, for that is something the audience can feel instinctively. I will never allow my music to violate the people's - or my own - instincts."

Hawkeye Buys Film Packages

Hawkeye Cablevision has acquired rights to two new motion picture film "packages," Bill Riley, director of programming for the cable company, announced.

Principal purchase was of 40 Twentieth-Century Fox releases generally from the 1940's. Included in the purchase are such films as, Brigham Young, Captain from Castile, and In Old Chicago with Tyrone Power, Forever Amber with Linda Darnell, The House of Rothschild with George Arliss, and Young Mr. Lincoln with Henry Fonda.

The other films purchased by Hawkeye Cablevision are Republic Pictures' adventure serials, again from the 40's and early 50's. These serials will be remembered as the "cliff hanger" continued adventures presented each Saturday at neighborhood theaters in the years past.

In announcing the film purchases, Riley indicated the Twentieth-Century Fox feature films will be presented on Hawkeye Cablevision's 24-hour-a-day film channel, Channel 7. The serials will be presented each evening Monday - Friday from 6-6:30 p.m. between the Bingo games on Channel 10, and will be repeated each Saturday from 5-7 p.m.

As a finalist, she has already won an all-expense paid trip to San Antonio, and will receive a trophy, $100 cash award, a year's supply of co-sponsor products and a chance at one of the five top cash prizes.

She's "surprised"

Upon learning that her recipe had been chosen first in New York, Ms. Baggett said "fantastic, but I am surprised to be able to come up with the most creative recipe of all those entering the contest here. I think it's a great accomplishment, especially to represent New York State."

So now it's on to the grand cook-off in San Antonio.

Voluntary gasoline conservation works

The AAA Motor Club of Iowa says that voluntary gasoline conservation is working! Despite the skeptics arguments that Americans will not conserve gas unless it is rationed, consumption is down and the AAA Gas Watchers program has contributed.

The AAA Club does not claim that Gas Watchers is solely responsible, but the recent Federal Energy Administration figures comparing the first quarter of 1975 with that of 1973 (the last normal year for energy use), show considerable reductions. The February, 1975 demand of 6.6 million barrels daily was 300,000 barrels per day fewer than that of February, 1973. March figures were even more encouraging in that demand was 1.6 million barrels per day fewer than in March, 1973.

The Gas Watchers program started in January with the full support of President Gerald L. Ford. The White House has since distributed Gas Watchers materials at citizen meetings conducted by President Ford in New Hampshire, Florida, Georgia, and California. This

Your club need a service project?

Service projects at Living History Farms abound, but groups to do the projects are lacking, said executive director Oliver Gillespie.

The Bankers' Life group, It's Up to Me, recently did a service project for the farms. On May 31st, 40 volunteers and their families exchanged two hours of work for a free afternoon at Living History Farms. The enthusiastic group moved and cleaned bricks, painted fences, hoed corn at the pioneer farm and painted pickets at the 1900 farm.

According to Sue Ditzel, educational director in charge of the projects, the group did an excellent job. Ditzel said she would really like to see more groups doing similar projects for the farms. "Older Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts would be good groups to do painting, hoeing, weeding and general pickup work. In return, the groups could possibly spend an afternoon at the farms."

Organized groups interested in doing service projects should contact Sue Ditzel at 287-5286 for more information.

Child-parent workshop Sunday

Parents with children ages 5-12 will create 3-dimensional assemblages from a wide variety of materials, discovering that sculpture and form is sometimes the result of putting things on top of things.

Advanced registration is encouraged with a 75c per person material fee.

The Second Forty

(A forum about mature women)

by Margaret Brookfield

Have you a problem as a mature woman, or with one? For advice write Margaret Brookfield, Information Center on the Mature Woman, 515 Madison Avenue New York, N.Y. 10022.

To Dye or not to Dye
Dear Margaret Brookfield:

At 57, I'm completely gray-haired. My problem? friends who urge me to color my hair. I tried once but the results were most unflattering. Frankly, I'm not wild about my friends' dye-jobs. But I'm too gracious to tell them so. Why can't women understand some of us dare to be different?

R.D.

Dear R.D.:

Many women follow their own taste without undue pressure from friends. Perhaps your friends think you don't mean what you say. Even your letter is unclear: do you prefer to be gray or is the choice based on your unsuccessful attempts to change the color of your hair? If you want to hide the gray hair, perhaps you should seek the services of a professional colorist. If not — do your own thing, and ignore your well-meaning friends.

Cause of Symptoms

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

We are a group of old friends, ranging in age from 47 to 52. A few of us are going through the menopause; the others have already experienced it. We recently compared notes on symptoms and found they varied widely. With some the symptoms were mild; others were severe enough to require medical attention. What are the most common menopausal symptoms?

M.F.

Dear M.F.:

A wide variety of menopausal symptoms have been noted by medical researchers but hot flushes head the list of complaints. Other common menopausal symptoms include anxiety, headaches, insomnia, periods of feeling "blue" — sometimes with crying spells — nervousness and fatigue. Another complaint of women past menopause is painful intercourse due to thinning of the walls of the vagina.

Many other complaints have been reported by menopausal women, but there's some question about whether all these problems are menopausal or are related to other changes that may be taking place in a woman's life at this time. Only a doctor is qualified to determine if the symptom is due to menopause or to some other cause. If it is menopausal — and caused by an imbalance of the hormone, estrogen — then replacement of this hormone through medication often offers relief.

Urges Caution on Mississippi River

Caution should be exercised when wading, swimming and boating on the Mississippi River, according to Iowa Conservation Commission (ICC) Waters personnel.

Currently, the river is high and debris washed in from other streams constitutes a hazard to boaters and swimmers. Sandbars are popular wading areas, but numerous, hidden dropoffs can suddenly spell trouble. Six drownings have

IMA Seeks Outstanding Mothers

Governor Ray has given his permission for the Great Seal of the State of Iowa to be used in this art contest. Iowa law prohibits use of the seal without the governor's consent.

"Discover America's Historic Mothers - Past and Present" has been chosen by the American Mothers Committee as their Bicentennial Project.

Each state has been asked to select from ten to thirty distinguished mothers, past and present, who have made outstanding contributions on state and national levels in various fields of endeavor. The Iowa Mothers Association, affiliate of the American Mothers Committee, plans to submit thirty outstanding Iowa mothers for inclusion in the book, according to Mrs. John Schutter, Algona, president of the Iowa Mothers Association.

Resumes and pictures of these eminent state mothers will be compiled by the American Mothers Committee, and printed in 1976. Copies of this historic book will be presented to the President of the United States and to each governor. They will also be available for purchase through the Iowa Mothers Association.

Mrs. Wilber Sackett of Spencer has been named by the American Mothers Committee as Iowa chairman of the project. She is working with many groups and individuals to compile a list of mothers to be considered for final selection in the book. Individuals or organizations wishing to suggest names for consideration may write Mrs. Sackett at 1413 Country Club Drive, Spencer 51301, before September first, giving the woman's name and biographical information.

Eligible mothers include, both past and present, women who have been born in Iowa or who have lived in Iowa long enough to have become identified with the state. An attempt is being made, Mrs. Sackett says, to discover women who have made influential contributions in many different areas.

Mrs. Sackett also announces an art contest which is being held in conjunction with the Bicentennial Project. Each state's section of the book will have an art cover, which is to contain the State Seal and a design or drawing suitable to the state. Entries should be done in India Ink on 8½ by 10½ white paper and sent to Mrs. Sackett by October 15. Prizes of $200, $100, and $50 will be given by the American Mothers Committee for cover pages judged best among those submitted by the various states. The one chosen by judges to represent Iowa will automatically be eligible for national competition. Further information may be obtained by writing Mrs. Sackett.

This project has been approved by the Iowa American Revolution Bicentennial Commission for endorsement, and it is listed in the national register of the American Bicentennial Administration's projects. It is hoped that many Iowans will participate in the project.

occurred from sandbar incidents so far this summer.

The ICC urges all who use the river this summer to be particularly careful while enjoying their favorite form of water recreation. Those who plan to wade should wade in an upstream direction.

Eat and Grow Younger

Are You Aging Too Fast? Be Smart--Check Your Diet!

This newspaper is pleased to start today a hard-hitting commentary on present-day food habits, "Eat and Grow Younger," by Lelord Kordel. The book from which this series is adapted, has been an instant sensation wherever it has appeared. Don't miss a single one of the 24 parts.

By LELORD KORDEL

Number One of a Series

MR. U. AWOKE one morning to a disturbing discovery. A panicky feeling welled up from the pot belly that had begun to bulge out below his belt. He glanced across the breakfast table at Mrs. U. Dismayed, he realized for the first time that the woman facing him was in the same unpleasant fix as he now found himself. He was getting old—and so was she!

His usual zest for breakfast was gone!

Why did people have to grow old so soon? He was only 46. Look at old Joe Jenks, who had lived on a neighboring farm when he was a boy.

Joe had got up before sunrise every morning, did more work than the hired man, ate heartily, slept like a top, took a young second wife, and fooled the whole community by living hale and hearty, well into his 90's.

What was wrong? Why shouldn't men and women keep on looking and feeling young and alive past that momentous 40th birthday? No reason, actually, why everyone past 40 shouldn't look and feel young and vigorous.

BODY MORE THAN MACHINE

We often speak of the human body as a "machine." Yet, actually, your body is more than a machine—it's an extremely complex laboratory where intricate chemical reactions take place which no human chemist has even been able to duplicate.

The awe-inspiring thing about this mysterious body of yours is that when some "mechanical" part breaks down, under ideal conditions your "chemical laboratory" can rush quickly produced substances to the spot that needs repairing, in order that life may go on and the body's efficiency not be seriously impaired.

You'll notice I said that "under ideal conditions" the chemical laboratory in your body can produce quickly those mending substances needed to put injured or worn-out body parts back in good working order.

What are those ideal conditions?

First — certain "test tubes" (the endocrine glands) must be in proper working order.

EDITOR'S NOTE: What is the Kordel Plan? It is a way of living healthily while eating enjoyably. A faulty diet, Lelord Kordel believes, is often both cause and symptom of much physical and mental illness in men and women today. His studies of the effects of food on mind and body have convinced him that proper diet can prevent, even eliminate, many illnesses. Revise your way of eating, says Lelord Kordel, and you will begin to really live.

Before leaving the estancia near Buenos Aires, I took a meal with Justino and the other gauchos down at their quarters. A whole sheep (sometimes it was a side of beef) was roasted in the skin over an open fire. When the meat was done to a turn, nicely browned on the outside but tender and juicy on the inside, large chunks were hacked off by each man with the long-bladed knife he wears at the back of his broad belt.

These large chunks of meat, followed by second and third helpings until nothing was left but the carcass, constituted the entire meal — no potatoes, no bread, no pie. Nothing but meat, followed by a gourd of the brew made from the green herb called mate. Yet this was not an exceptional meal with them — it was the diet they followed three times daily, year in, year out.

FOR BETTER NUTRITION

Meat, of course, is another way of saying protein. For meat provides the highest type, most complete protein.

"All very interesting," you may comment, "but is it good nutrition, this meat-and-mate diet of your gaucho?"

To which I hasten to reply with a big, loud "Yes!" Far better nutrition than is to be found on the expensively itemized menus of the finest epicurean restaurants in our cosmopolitan centers, with their dozens of tempting dishes from which to choose — most of them too starchy, sweet and overcooked.

Remember, it is the nutritional pauper who early loses his vitality and glow of youth. Any person who surfeits his body with carbohydrates and starves it of proteins is a nutritional pauper.

You'll meet protein in several guises later on. But regardless of the form in which it appears on your plate, protein will be right in there pitching for you, striking out old age and pepping up slack muscles. Before you can hope to Eat and Grow Younger, you must make a meal-time companion of protein, your "youth restorer" food.

CIRCUS HEAVY WEIGHT—Michu, the smallest man in the world, featured in Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, "takes on" Muhammed Ali (left) and Joe Frazier. Guess who won? The Greatest Show on Earth opens at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines on Wednesday evening, July 30, for ten performances through Sunday, August 3.

World's Smallest Man Comes To Des Moines

Mihaly Meszaros, better known on two continents as "Michu," is 33 inches tall, weighs 25 pounds and is a featured performer in the 104th Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. This miniscule marvel of mirth, this titan of the teeny weeny is seven inches shorter than the legendary Tom Thumb and more than lives up to his billing as "The Smallest Man In The World."

Michu, a 34-year old Hungarian, a dancer - singer - acrobat - musician - comedian, is a dynamo of energy possessed of more "get-down-and-go" than men five times his size. All of Michu's talents will be prominently on display when the glittering, fantastic 104th Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus comes to Veterans Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines on Wednesday, July 30 for performances through Sunday, August 3.

Michu's parents, both eight inches taller than he, were members of Budapest's Lilliputian Theatre. He attended the state-run high school and then applied to a couple named Liebel for a job in their family circus.

The Liebel Circus was a small one but for a newcomer like Michu it was an ideal training ground. Also, he could make extra money by selling programs and cooking, what else, Hungarian goulash for the troupe.

Michu spent fifteen years with the Liebels — as a clown, unicyclist, announcer and dancer. He also served as an advance man, riding on to the next village ahead of the circus to proclaim their impending arrival. To Michu, a Volkswagen was the Queen Mary, so he had a car built especially for his tiny measurements. There was never a problem going through a red-light. If he did, pedestrians would step over the car, so Michu never had an accident.

Michu came to Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus because Irvin Feld, president and producer of The Greatest Show on Earth, travels to every city on the globe to look at a potential Circus star. Feld had gotten word about Michu from a member of his intercontinental network of talent scouts. Wasting no time, Feld boarded a jet, pen in hand, and came back with what he considered "The Circus find of the century."

Michu's debut with Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus in America more than lived up to Irvin Feld's prediction. He devastated the normally-blase press, TV and audiences. The 33-inch entertainer was so accomplished a performer everyone quickly forgot his diminutive stature and embraced his talents as a super showman. Besides, he was the "cutest" thing they had ever seen!

In Michu's own words, he became a circus performer because, "I could never become a soccer star! It had to be the circus. I love to perform, I love applause, I love audiences!"

Audiences love Michu. A better bargain was never made.

The 104th Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus is produced by Irvin Feld and Kenneth Feld, and staged and directed by Richard Barstow.

Tickets to The Greatest Show on Earth are available at the Auditorium Box Office, Richman Gordman, City Drug, Nims Sportsman (Ames), Younkers (Newton, Ft. Dodge & Marshalltown) and Stapps (Oskaloosa).

All seats are reserved at $3.50, $4.50, and $5.50, with children under 12 $1.00 less on weekday performances. For ticket information, phone at the Auditorium is 283-4172.

Bicentennial Communities Total 4,780

Washington, D.C.— Connecticut has become the first state in the Union to have all of its eligible communities nationally recognized under the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration's (ARBA) Bicentennial Communities Program.

John W. Warner, Administrator of the ARBA, announced the recognition of 642 additional Bicentennial communities in June, bringing the total to 4,780 in the nation.

Connecticut's achievement, among other things, means that every citizen in the state's 169 towns and cities can now fly the national Bicentennial flag.

Lost Springs, Wyoming, population eight, was among the newly recognized communities. This rural community may be the smallest incorporated town in the United States. Despite its diminutive size, the area's Bicentennial committee has come up with an active Bicentennial program.

Lost Springs is building its July, 1976 celebration on plans taken from a 1926 issue of the "Lost Springs Times." That same year, Catherine Snyder Nuttall began teaching school in Lost Springs. She is still teaching school there today, and the town will show its appreciation with a special day in her honor.

Other Bicentennial projects in Lost Springs include renovating two cemeteries and the town hall, a family history and genealogy program and a compilation of school children's art depicting local history.

With the recognition of Lost Springs, the national Bicentennial Communities program now includes the nation's smallest community and its largest—New York.

In numbers of communities recognized, New Jersey leads with 256, followed by New York, and Texas with 252 each.

Demo Telethon Has 200 Personalities Agreed To Appear

Jean Haugland of Lake Mills, chair of this year's Iowa Democratic Telethon, Tuesday announced that the national telethon office in Washington has informed her that over 200 television and movie personalities so far have agreed to appear on this year's Democratic telethon, July 26 and 27.

Mrs. Haugland noted that Iowa natives Karen Morrow of Des Moines and daytime television star MacDonald Carey of Cedar Rapids will both be appearing during the 22-hour telecast which begins at 8 PM Saturday, July 27 and ends at 6 PM Sunday, July 27 on the ABC Television Network.

Mrs. Haugland indicated that all four of the state's ABC affiliate stations — WOI-TV in Ames, KCRG-TV in Cedar Rapids, KCAU-TV in Sioux City and KTVO-TV in Ottumwa— will be carrying the program billed as the "longest political broadcast in history."

Red Cross Offers

Childbirth Classes For Single Women

Childbirth education classes for single women due for labor and delivery in August, September, or October will be offered by the Red Cross beginning at 7:30 p.m., July 16.

The classes will be held each Wednesday for four weeks, starting with the session on the 16th. They will be taught in a private residence at 741 35th Street, under the direction of Ms. Katie Hane, RN.

Transportation to and from the classes is available from the Red Cross should it be needed. Women wishing to enroll in the classes may do so by calling the Red Cross in Des Moines at 243-7681 and asking for Suzanne Murphy.

"The importance of knowing what is happening to your body during pregnancy, labor, and delivery cannot be overestimated since the lack of knowledge breeds fear. All single women and their female relatives and friends are encouraged to attend these classes," Ms. Hane said.

Photographer's View Point

by
James E. O'Day

It all began with the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776. A new kind of freedom was born that day, but the journey from declaration to independence was to be bloodstained and long. We are a nation of people with God-given rights, and ours is a government designed to protect those rights.

What a price paid for freedom! The Declaration of Independence of the United States of America was grounded in one unforgettable and unforgotten premise: Every person derives his rights from the great architect of the Universe, God our Father, and the chief purpose of the government is to ensure and protect those rights. Few documents ever inscribed upon paper anywhere are held in esteem equal to those statements of honor.

Each of the thirteen original colonies had delegates present at that historic event. Fifty-six men signed the Declaration. Their purpose was to officially separate the thirteen colonies from the authority and repression of the king of England. These men, on behalf of their respective colonies, declared this new land to be free and independent from the power of any other force save that of God.

It was a long, bloody, agonizing and terrible road from the declaration to independence. The two acts were sharply set apart by months and years of struggle during the American Revolution. Not one of the fifty-six signers finished that span of time or that tragic road without suffering some penalty. The very act of signing made each man a legal traitor to England. Most of them suffered by losing their families, property and even their lives.

What price freedom! True, fifty-six men fought in defense of their homes, their property, families and their future. True, they convetted all they had worked for throughout their lives, prized possessions as would any honorable man, but each felt the truth of life's greatest reward — freedom. For that one value — freedom — fifty-six men signed a document and suffered.

What is the purpose of recalling, however briefly, the agonies and sacrifices of men long since dead? There are two purposes. The first is to refresh you of the historical truth about the real price of freedom, about the real cost of this nation and about your heritage. Without men like the forefathers we might well be living quite differently today without a Declaration of Independence — quite possibly without liberty.

The second purpose is to challenge the citizens of our modern nation with the question: Would you pay one-tenth or one-hundredth the price those men — and countless others — paid for freedom and liberty?

The purpose of these accounts is to give us grounds upon which to judge our own worthiness for the unequalled positions, wealth and opportunities we have only because of what happened between the declaration and independence.

Because of what was done July 14, 1776, almost a million Americans have paid the supreme sacrifice in wars to protect and extend what they purchased at so dear a price.

Freedom does not require war as its fuse or revolution as its engine. It requires war only for the protection and extension of freedom.

Freedom demands that those who are free never yield to that last great thrust of the tyrant who would enslave his own fellow citizens for power, wealth and glory. I do not hold myself as an advocate for the memory of those fifty-six stalwart Americans who signed the Declaration, for I have not their power of attorney. Because of them and the grave errors in the way we live today, I believe I have every right to raise the question: Did those inspired, dedicated and committed signees and their one million-war-slain descendants really die in vain?

In a real sense, that for which they gave up so much is steadily slipping away from you and me because we demand and want to keep so much. It is greed versus sacrifice, and greed is winning while freedom slips away.

The spirit of the 1776 declaration is not in us and we are trading our independence for the security of the enslaved. Blacks have only asked, "Give us the same privilege and the same freedom that every citizen of the United States enjoys."

Seed & Nursery Open House

Shenandoah Iowa (Special) — Gardeners and green thumbs from all over the Central Midwest will have the opportunity Sunday, July 20th, to preview all the newest strains of flowers and vegetables that are being developed. The Earl May Seed & Nursery Company is playing host to all visitors with an Open House at its 76-acre Test Gardens. The company also maintains the All-America Test Gardens for the Central West, where new All-America test entries will be shown to the public.

The Open House is from 10 A.M. to 5 P.M., C.D.T., and a staff of experts will be on hand to answer your questions.

There are 3,008 different varieties of plants in their peak of bloom in the display including 1,098 different varieties of flowers, 145 varieties of roses, 137 different strains of gladiolus, 102 varieties of shrubs, 66 shade and ornamental trees and 73 types of specimen evergreens. Seeds from nineteen foreign countries are also being shown, growing side-by-side with American counterparts. Featured in the rose display are All-America Rose Selections. Landscape Architects will demonstrate simple home-beautification procedures all day.

The giant United States flag is 56 by 103 feet, and is made of over 4,000 red, white and blue petunia plants.

And, for the Midwest farmers, the company has sample plantings of farm seeds, forages, grains and hybrid corn included in the Open House showing.

Drake Presents Lecture Series

The Drake University Municipal Observatory invites the public to its traditional annual free lecture series, which is scheduled in 1975 to start July 11, and run for five weeks on Fridays and Mondays. The public is welcome without need for advance appointment.

The series of lectures by Professor Philip S. Riggs is designed to present a general, descriptive introduction to the sun and the astronomical universe beyond the solar system, illustrated with lantern slides. Five topics are presented, one each week. Each Friday topic will be repeated the following Monday.

Lectures start at 9 p.m., and are offered regardless of weather. (The late starting time is necessitated by the delay of darkness by daylight savings time.) The lectures are followed by observing with the telescope provided the sky is clear. Although the lectures are planned primarily for an adult audience, they should also interest older children with some astronomical background.

We regret that organizations of children, even though of small membership, cannot be accommodated. All children under senior-high-school age must be accompanied by parents and must stay with them throughout the evening.

The rapid increase in astronomical knowledge has made it impossible to cover the entire subject of astronomy in one series of lectures of reasonable length. The Solar System and The Stars and Outer Universe are now discussed in alternate years. This year the theme will be the Stars and Universe; next year, the Solar System.

The schedule for the lecture topics is as follows: July 11, 14 The Sun; July 18, 21 Stars and the Milky Way; July 25, 28 Nebulae and Evolution of Stars; Aug. 1, 4 The Milky Way; and Aug. 8, 11 The Outer Universe.

Telescopic observation of the Moon is scheduled for July 14 and 18. No planets are in position for observation in the evening sky this summer. Nebulae, clusters, and double stars will be observed depending on sky conditions.

Simpson College Appoints Meyers As New Chairman

Dr. Bruce G. Meyers of Homewood, Ill., has been appointed chairman and associate professor of the department of economics and business administration at Simpson College. Dr. Richard Lancaster, Simpson president, has announced.

Dr. Meyers has been university professor of business administration in the College of Business and Public Service at Governors State University in Park Forest South, Ill., since 1972.

Dr. Meyers' appointment at Simpson is effective September 1.

An undergraduate journalism major at Kent State University in Kent, Ohio, Dr. Meyers spent several years as a writer, photographer, editor and public relations representative for various publications in Ohio and Wisconsin. He also worked as a paper company sales representative in Cleveland, Ohio, before returning to Kent State to earn his masters degree in business administration.

For Black Students

He taught marketing at St. Cloud State College in St. Cloud, Minn., at the Southern Illinois University School of Business in Edwardsville and at Washington University prior to joining the Governors State faculty.

The economics and business administration department at Simpson has long attracted a large student enrollment. Work currently is underway to remodel a 68-year-old building on the campus to house the department's offices and classrooms. The building recently was renamed Heckert Hall in honor of Dr. J. Brooks Heckert of Columbus, Ohio, who is a former chairman of the department and who, along with a group of his former students, donated a total of $83,400.50 toward the remodeling project.

Hinderk Damm, 22, a German participant in the International 4-H Youth Exchange Program, is currently the guest of the Paul Linn family of West Des Moines. Hinderk has stayed with three other Iowa host families in Webster, Delaware and Plymouth counties since he arrived in the state in early May.

His stay with the Linn family is Hinderk's only urban experience while hosted by the Iowa 4-H organization. Hinderk's stay in Polk county from June 29 - July 9 will provide him an opportunity to visit 4-H activities in urban areas, visit urban programs for disadvantaged in urban areas, participate in a tour of Des Moines with Polk county 4-H'ers and Indiana 4-H'ers and participate in several activities of the Linn family.

The young German farmer has also given talks about his homeland, north German farm, and young farmers club. He comes from a dairy farm at Canhusen — only a few miles from the North Sea where the crops are wheat, barley, oats and pasture.

The International 4-H Youth Exchange Program is conducted by the National 4-H Foundation, Washington, D.C. and is supported by the 4-H Clubs of Iowa and friends of 4-H. The Iowa State University Extension Service conducts the IFYE Program in Iowa.

$124,000 For Rural Fire Protection

Many rural Iowa communities will receive better fire protection as a result of a program administered by Iowa Conservation Commission foresters.

The Commission recently approved applications from 95 communities in 58 counties for federal rural fire protection funds. Under this program, rural Iowa fire departments will be allocated more than $124,000 in 1975.

The money will be used to better organize, train and equip fire departments in locales which previously lacked adequate protection.

NAACP Files Suit Against Government

Washington, D.C. — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) filed suit last Thursday charging the government has failed to enforce civil rights law in schools in 33 northern and western states, including Iowa.

The suit charges the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) and the Office of Civil Rights have not acted to end segregation in elementary and secondary schools.

Nathaniel Jones, general counsel for the NAACP, announced the suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Washington, at a news conference at the 66th annual convention of the association. The NAACP has been joined in the action by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund.

Jones said the suit represents "the first major assault against segregation in the North" in schools. He said the suit, if successful, could bring the cutoff "of millions and millions of dollars" of federal aid to public schools.

Jones said, "Blacks are being hurt by (the policy of) continuing to fund" schools that are not in compliance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Title VI requires HEW to enforce bans against discrimination by any means including cutting off funds to federally assisted programs.

The complaint was brought on behalf of eight black school children from Akron and Columbus, Ohio; Racine, Wis.; Fort Wayne, Ind.; and San Diego, Richmond and Delano, Calif. HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and Peter E. Holmes, director of the Office of Civil Rights, are named as defendants.

The complaint charges that HEW officials have failed to begin investigations into alleged

Culver-Smith at Democratic fete

U.S. Senator John Culver and Fourth District Congressman Neal Smith will headline the list of Democrats to appear at a fundraiser planned for Jester Park, Friday evening, July 11.

The $10 per ticket event includes a 6 p.m. social hour and a 7 p.m. "old-fashioned picnic", all to be held in Shelter House No. 3 of the Polk County Park, located 12 miles north of Des Moines on Highway 141.

segregation, failed to act quickly on individual complaints, failed to bring enforcement proceedings, and failed, after determination that segregation does exist, to cut off federal money.

Jones said HEW has begun administrative enforcement proceedings against "only five isolated districts" and ended funding to only one district outside of the South.

Six Blacks Average Deans' List

Five Des Moines and one Ankeny black students are among the 1001 students named to the President's and Deans' Honor Lists at Drake University for the 1975 spring semester.

Students named to the President's Honor list have earned perfect 4.0 grade point averages for 12 or more hours of course work.

Those named to the Deans' Honor Lists have maintained a 3.5 grade point average or above for 12 or more hours of coursework.

The five Des Moines students making the Deans' List are Marsha Diane Collier 1176 13th; Marion Eppright, 949 20th; Brenda Louise Traylor, 715 E 5th, Apt. 1; Diana Lou Williams, 1415 Goddard Court; and Ramona Ann Woods, 1449 13th.

Victoria Kirby Twedt of Ankeny also made the Deans' list.

Then, events like "Opening Night Extravaganza," "Monday Night Bash" and "Lavish Grand Finale Extravaganza," prove that these hairdressers know how to play as well as work. Best of all, the public is welcome, to preview authentic styles and fashions...and, to play!

Needs 500 Volunteers

Volunteers — about 500 — are needed for the Gateway Opportunity Center's "Tag Day," according to the Center's director, Zack Williams.

"All proceeds derived from the Gateway 'Tag Day' will be split between the Model Cities Senior Citizens, Inc., and the Gateway Opportunity Center," Williams said. The city-wide fund drive will be held July 25 and 26.

Funds given to the Model Cities Senior Citizens organization will be used to help that group which is having financial difficulties. The organization owes $29,000 in taxes or it will "cease to exist." Directors of the Senior Citizens' group were misinformed by a mistake and believed the organization to be tax-exempt.

Williams added that anyone wishing to volunteer can get information at a kickoff luncheon to be held at the Gateway Center on July 21. An orientation for volunteers, to tell where they will be assigned, will be held July 23. "We need around 500 people to help encompass the entire city," Williams said.

Perry Warns Minorities Against Ploys To Impede Equality Fight

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Lowell W. Perry, chairman of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), told a public meeting at the 66th annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) that minorities must be wary of ploys which seek to impede the progress of equal opportunity for all Americans.

In a plenary session devoted to youth, Perry said "a common ploy of the forces opposed to progress in equal opportunity is to use the voices of unthinking women, blacks and other minority leadership to be unfairly critical of the very agencies that can do the most to eliminate the many problems of discrimination." He called it a "ploy designed to make us doubt ourselves, and in doubting, weaken our efforts and the positive results of what we are trying to accomplish."

Saying that minorities must build a team effort to defeat inequality, Perry added that the "opposition has enough advantages with out our unwittingly adding to them."

The newly appointed EEOC head promised to "carry the message of this kind of opposition to groups across this nation," and expressed the hope that "all of the thinking leadership in our struggle for freedom will join me in defeating this oldest and most subtle threat to a solid and unified stand for civil rights progress."

President Gerald R. Ford, who earlier had addressed the NAACP assembly, said that he "emphasized to Lowell Perry, the new chairman of the EEOC, this Administration's commitment to the elimination of all vestiges of job discrimination because of race, religion, or sex." The President said that Federal civil rights enforcement outlays for fiscal 1976 are 395 million dollars, 34 million more than the previous year.

Assessing minority progress over the past decade, Perry noted that there was a time when a light of hope was shining on the horizon and people worked together in a new spirit of cooperation. He said, however, that today that light has dimmed into a glimmer and the same old patterns of prejudice, bigotry and petty jealousies are beginning to show themselves again.

For example, he said, that no one has a monopoly on leadership in the civil rights struggle, yet there are those who continue to guard their roles jealously, refusing to admit that they don't have all the answers or that there are many ways to arrive at the common goal of achieving equality in our society.

Calling on those in attendance to act with conviction, courage and decision to gain the maximum results, he asked his listeners to add their energy and time to a struggle which can only be as meaningful and successful as its purpose and those dedicated to that purpose.

"We must look ahead and work together," he said. "We must begin to set our ears to the tune of that different drummer, shutting out the roar of the crowd and dedicating ourselves to the difficult, less glorious gains that make up a solid but sure march to the goal line of equality."

Perry, a former professional football player, closed with the admonition that minorities must fight to win equality because, in the words of the late Vince Lombardi, "Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing."

Ford Disappoints NAACP Delegates At Convention

Washington (NNPA) — Sticking to his promise that he did not come with a checklist of program items for blacks, President Gerald R. Ford left the delegates to the 66th Annual Convention of the NAACP emptyhanded when he had finished his address here at the Sheraton-Park Hotel Tuesday.

Delegate after delegate expressed disappointment that the President had not brought a prescription for black unemployment which is estimated at nearly 25 per cent. However, he placed it at only 12 per cent, and told the 4,000 delegates that there are signs that the recession is coming to an end.

Regarding job discrimination, Ford said that he had emphasized to Lowell Perry, the new chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, that this administration is committed to "the elimination of all vestiges of job discrimination, because of race, religion or sex."

Ford praised the NAACP for concern about economic problems, saying: "The end of racial discrimination by law has paved the way to the beginning of full participation. I commend the NAACP for its new emphasis on the economic problems of blacks."

The keynote address of the convention was delivered by Mrs. Margaret Bush Wilson, chairman of the board of the NAACP. In a hard-hitting message, she criticized President Ford for his failure to provide effective leadership in employment, housing, and desegregated education.

Emphasizing unemployment, Mrs. Wilson said: "Today, in the face of catastrophically high unemployment, the national administration seems too

OVEN PEEPING COSTS YOU MONEY

The wise use of your oven and range can mean big energy savings. Here are some suggestions to help you get the most for your money when it comes to cooking.

- Don't be constantly opening your oven to see what's cooking. A lot of valuable heat escapes.
- Plan oven cooking so more than one item can be cooked at the same time.
- Most ovens are well-insulated to retain heat, so if the food is done a few minutes before serving time, go ahead and turn the oven off.
- Use tight lids on cooking utensils.
- Make sure the pan is as large as the burner so you don't lose valuable heat around the sides of the pan.
- Use high heat to bring foods to a fast boil, then reduce the heat to maintain boiling.

Fuel saving vacation tips

The AAA Motor Club of Iowa believes that advance trip planning is vital in helping Americans to conserve millions of gallons of gasoline. Pleasure rides, visits to friends or relatives and other social and recreational trips, along with vacations, consume over 380 million gallons of gasoline nationally each week.

Trips of this kind are not luxuries. On the contrary, AAA says they are of a nature which allows for some easy savings in fuel consumption, without depriving anyone of the leisure activities so important to physical and psychological well-being. Equally important is the fact that tourism employs over four million persons and it means some $70 billion to the U.S. economy.

Motorists can save on gasoline consumption by first taking a serious look at their vacation plans. This might be a good year to vacation where you won't need a car as much to get around at your destination ... a large metropolitan area, a beach or mountain resort. If you will be driving to your vacation destination, look into sight-seeing services offered locally for your transportation needs while you're in the city.

Your mileage budget can be adjusted upward to include longer trips if you're able to decrease gasoline consumption proportionately for other uses, such as commuting to work.

AAA also suggests combining a motoring vacation, if you know some friends who are planning a trip to the same area at the same time. And, remember that qualified travel counselors can assist you in matching your personally-budgeted fuel supply with your travel interests.

For social driving, think twice before setting out on those spur-of-the moment local pleasure rides to see friends and relatives. Do they really need that kind of surprise? Or, could the visit perhaps be combined without another trip? It has also been found that many local pleasure rides are a result of boredom. Why not substitute a few of those local excursions with a nature walk or bike hike?

The Motor Club of Iowa believes that a motoring family vacation is both a rewarding and relaxing experience. And, the Club feels that careful trip planning can help all families make 5 gallons do the work of 6.

One of Sports' Great Upsets

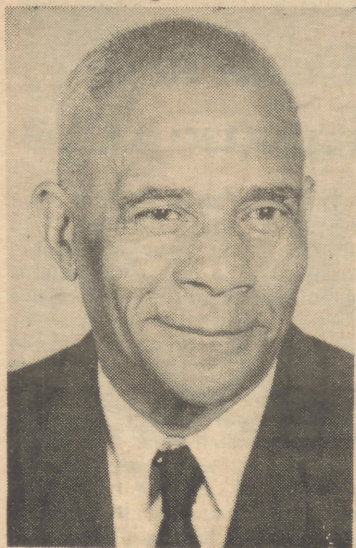

Was It Really A Surprise?

Watched the taped tennis match in the Wimbledon finals between defending champ Jimmy Connors and Arthur Ashe. Tennis writers and commentators called it one of the great upsets in sports history.

But, as one watched the match progress, you would have to wonder if it was really that. Of course the champ was taking opponents apart, and up to the finals had not lost a set. One writer went so far as to say that he would win the whole thing without losing a set.

Meanwhile, Ashe was struggling to the finals, and was hardly given notice when he beat Bjorn Borg — the Swede had a bad leg. In fact, I have never seen Borg lose without having an alibi. He was tired, sick or such. Then the Aussie didn't play his game, and Ashe was lucky to get away. In all of the match stories I read, there just wasn't any mention of Arthur Ashe, except to say that he won. Maybe the defending champ deserved all of the ink.

But the thing that I have to ask is was the match such a big upset. Ashe conceived a game plan and stuck with it. Even in the third set, when it looked as if Connors had found his game, Arthur didn't depart from his plan. He reasoned right that you can't keep a good hitter from could beating him make anyone the number one player. And I think that if Jimmy played in all the meets the rest of the players take part in, he would lose a few matches, too.

Now, they will try to build up a match between Connors and Ashe for the world tennis championship and rake in maybe several hundred thousand bucks. But I guess that is the name of the game. But, then be honest about it and say that is just what you are doing, trying to rake in dough. That five million dollar law suit against Ashe, in my book, was simply another way of keeping Connors before the public. The more you read about him, the more you believe that he is invincible, and after all, he is only human.

Here at home

We got our lessons started at Good Park. Esther Myers is taking some of the slow learners in hand and really brings them out of it. As for me, I don't know how much I am teaching them, but I am having a ball trying. It really is fun. Got two more weeks to go. Good attendance, too.

Do you know, we are getting more entries for our Hilltop meet than I am sure we want. This could be our biggest draw ever. And we are no longer exclusive. For some time, now, the ATA has integrated its meets, and has a policy of reciprocal sanctions with the USTA. So players of either body or of any color can get into any meets they want. Sure took the game a helluva long time to catch up to our Hilltop meet.

hitting some of them. His plan was to let the champ furnish his own power for his bullet like shots. Just like a pitcher gives a home run hitter slow curves.

Sometimes the hitter will get to one, but most of the time he won't. So Connors didn't get to hit very many balls he likes to hit. In fact, I thought he got so frustrated that at one time he just hauled off and smacked one, to get it out of his system.

Connors might have had better luck on a different surface. He has beaten Ashe on clay and asphalt, so maybe he might do much better on artificial courts. But it was good for the guy to come through, because tennis writers seem to have forgotten that among the first twenty players, any one of them is apt to beat any other player on a given day. There is really no one player who dominates the game.

Jimmy Connors has a really astute manager, and he is going for nothing but the bucks. For instance, how could the match with John Newcomb be billed for the world championship when Newcomb had beaten the guy twice in tournaments? Laver has lost his share of tournament matches, so how

Royals—Number 1 in Spirit

The University Little League Royals came into existence April 3, 1955.

The team that started practicing and playing in a ravine behind the Ramsey Home for the Aged has now doubled in size and is going strong.

For this season, the little league Royals have won nine of their 21 games. They have been sparked by the hitting of Monty Thomas who has a batting average of .636 and averages three home runs per game. Thomas has earned the title "Star" of the Royals team.

Harold Howard, manager of the Royals said the young men practice about three times prior to each game. Manager of the team for six years, Howard said, "The team I have now is not the best in the league but they are number one in spirit, sportsmanship and coordination."

He also stated that there are no racial problems whatsoever.

One of the Royals' worst defeats came when they lost to the University Little League White Sox. They made a strong comeback displaying determination and spirit when they defeated the League's Red Sox with a 20-3 score.

Some of their off-the-field activities consist of an ice cream social, ticket raffle for various prizes and selling tickets to Iowa Oaks baseball games. On July 8, they left for a brief trip to Kansas City to see a baseball game.

Sounds like an almost perfect team with potential. Keep up the good work and spirit.

Hawks Lose Thompson To Nuggets

David Thompson, three-time North Carolina State All-American and No. 1 draft choice of the Atlanta Hawks, turned down the National Basketball Association Club Tuesday, and revealed he will play with Denver of the American Basketball Association.

The loss of Thompson was a serious blow to the Atlanta franchise, reportedly in financial trouble.

Through the Pete Maravich trade last year with New Orleans, the Hawks went into the NBA draft with two first-round draft choices, the first and third picks.

They first chose Thompson the 6-foot 4-inch jumping jack, who averaged nearly 30 points a game during his career at North Carolina State, and then took Marvin Webster of Morgan State as their third pick.

The 7-foot Webster, drafted first in the ABA by Denver, recently signed with the Nuggets.

In losing Thompson, Atlanta became the first NBA team to lose the league's top pick to the ABA which began operations in 1968.

When Atlanta discovered several weeks ago that Denver had Webster virtually wrapped up, the Hawks tried to trade Webster's rights to the New York Knicks.

However, Webster also turned down the Knicks despite an offer of $500,000 more from New York.
