PASSES EXPANDED VOTING RIGHTS ACT

News Briefs

ATLANTA, Ga. — Dr. Martin Luther King, Sr., 75, gave his farewell sermon Sunday to an overflow congregation at the historic Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta. King said, "I've live lived to see my son, Martin Luther King, Jr., give his life to his people." King retires after 44 years in the pulpit.

KAMPALA, Uganda — Leaders of black and Arab Africa gathered here for an Organization of African Unity (OAU) summit were united in their condemnation of Israel but appeared widely divided on other major issues.

The meeting marks the start of Ugandan President Idi Amin's turn to be president of the OAU and his selection has stirred one of the major controversies of the session.

KAMPALA, Uganda — Gen. Yakubu Gowon, ruler of oil-rich Nigeria, has been overthrown in a bloodless coup, according to reports reaching here Tuesday from the west African nation.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congress Tuesday overrode President's Ford's veto of a $2 billion health bill—the first time in five tries this session that the House mustered enough votes to enact into law a measure that Ford rejected.

RALEIGH, NC. — A defense attorney was dismissed from the Joan Little murder trial Tuesday and named in a felony warrant accusing him of attempting to influence a witness to commit perjury.

The witness, a black woman who works as a radio dispatcher at Beaufort County Jail, said attorney Morris Dees approached her during the trial's midday break and tried to get her to change her testimony.

School Board Reminder

The Des Moines School Board will hold a work session on desegregation procedures for the elementary schools at 7 p.m., August 4 in the Board Room at 1800 Grand Avenue.

The Board also will meet at 1:30 p.m. August 4, with teacher representatives to discuss school desegregation.

Views of an abandoned house at 925 Ninth St. which burned early Saturday, claiming the life of an unidentified man and possibly a second. The dead man and one or two companions apparently had been sleeping or smoking on the rear sun porch when the fire started, authorities said.

Shooting Ignites Violence

DETROIT, Mich. — The shooting of a black teenager by a white bartender touched off a night of rock-throwing and fire-bombings by roaming gangs of angry youths in Detroit Monday police reported.

Obie Wynn, 18, died of head wounds in a hospital early Tuesday. He was shot Monday night by Andrew Chinarian, 39, a bar owner who said he found the youth tampering with his car.

After the shooting, hundreds of rock-throwing black youths skirmished throughout the night with police, who hurled teargas into the crowds that gathered in the Livernois-Fenkell area, a western suburb.

The area is about three miles northwest of the intersection of Clairmount and 12th streets, starting point of the 1967 Detroit riot in which 43 persons were killed and millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed.

Police said some 500 to 700 officers had been called into the area during the height of the violence. Many officers were equipped with riot gear and some carried carbines. However, police said that by daybreak most of the trouble had subsided and that only a small contingent of officers remained in the area.

Mayor Coleman Young, the city's first black mayor, went to the scene.

White motorists were targets for brick-throwers, and police said several motorists were taken from their autos and beaten.

Police radio reports said there were scattered incidents of looting. Fifty-three persons were arrested, mostly for malicious destruction but some for breaking and entering, police said.

Extends To 17 States Special Enforcement

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congress passed a bill extending key sections of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 for seven more years Monday before it begins its recess August 1.

The bill sent to President Ford extends the act for the first time to cover areas in 24 states where Spanish-heritage, Asian American, American Indian and Alaskan native dialects are spoken by large groups of voters.

Special enforcement of voting rights in seven southern states was extended by the bill. The southern states are Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia and most of North Carolina. The bill also extends special enforcement in portions of Alaska, Arizona, California, Connecticut, Hawaii, New Hampshire, New York, Maine, Massachusetts and Wyoming until 1982.

Registering and Voting

The bill would require that bilingual voting information and, in some cases, federal enforcement officers be provided in areas where less than 50 per cent of those minorities registered to vote in 1972.

Also, the bill would make permanent the 1965 acts temporary nationwide ban against literacy tests or other devices that keep people from registering and voting.

Compromise Conference

The House originally voted to extend the special provisions of the act for 10 years but accepted the seven year extension approved by the Senate last week rather than risk becoming embroiled in a House-Senate compromise conference.

The special provisions expire August 6 and chief sponsors of the bill said they were afraid a House-Senate conference might prevent Congress from extending the special enforcement and adding the new coverage before it begins its August recess Friday.

President Ford indicated last week he will sign the bill into law even though he said he still believes the voting Rights Act should be applied equally nationwide without being enforced especially in the South.

Backers of the bill agreed the South has made progress but said more work needs to be done.

Last weekend was Tag Day for the Gateway Opportunity Center. Part of the proceeds raised were to help the Model City Senior Citizens. According to Zack Williams, head of the center on Forest Avenue, over $2,000 was collected. One volunteer, Leslie Barber receives a contribution from Don Murray Saturday in the East Gate Shopping Center.

VIEWS and REVIEWS by James B. Morris

Showing Their Independence

The present Congress, in order to show its independence of the executive branch of the government, has been passing laws without regard to their consequences.

A striking example is the vote in the lower house which cut off funds to Turkey. Apparently, the members gave more weight to the political consequences than to the seriousness of closing the bases on Turkey's soil which we maintained.

True, Turkey has been high handed in its policy toward Cyprus where they have taken over areas formerly occupied by Greeks. Yet, it must be recognized that international law, like any other dealings with another state, demands some give and take.

Americans were manning all of these bases but without fanfare. Turks have taken them over. In the meantime, we have 24 installations controlled by the Turks while our forces simply moved out quietly as they should have done.

Several Senators, including Majority Leader Mansfield, have criticized the house for its actions. Considerable sentiment has grown up in Congress to reverse this action which was bitterly opposed by the administration in the first place.

Crime Continues To Rise

Recent figures from the FBI show that crime continues to increase; the figures further show that the increase has been greater in the suburbs than in the inner cities; no doubt more criminal characters have moved to the suburbs and that criminals find the pickings easier and more profitable outside the cities. All kinds of reasons for the increase of crime are put out everyday, all of which have some merit. However, I believe that the lack of training in very early stages of our young people has a lot to do with it.

Republicans Must Remember

Apparently, many of the leading conservative Republicans have forgotten the 1964 campaign and the resounding defeat of Senator Goldwater.

Since registered Republicans constitute 1/3 of the registered voters, it is imperative that Republicans must depend upon independents and some democrats to help them get elected.

Congress Extends The Voting Rights Act

Congress has extended the Voting Rights Act for an additional seven years. The house had passed the law extending it to ten years but in order to secure its favorable vote from the Senate on the measure it was agreed that seven years would be the law.

The Voting Rights measure is one of the most far-reaching and brought more prompt results than any other civil rights measure other than the Emancipation Proclamation. Thousands of Negroes have registered and voted who never did so before; the measure has brought about the election of hundreds of Negroes to public office in the states covered by the law; candidates who heretofore paid little attention to the Negro vote are courting it as never before.

As President Johnson once said, "Civil Rights mean little to a man without a vote".

The original law applied to Negroes only but the extension includes Spanish speaking and Indians were they constitute 5% of the population.

It is ridiculous that citizens would be denied their ordinary rights in this day and time. But, many of the diehards hang onto the very end.

610 BUSINESS LOANS MADE DURING FISCAL YEAR 1975

During fiscal year 1975 which ended June 30, 1975, 610 business loans were approved in Iowa, totaling $41,726,550, according to J. Harold Sears, Iowa District Director, U.S. Small Business Administration.

Sears emphasized that much of the credit for SBA accomplishments in providing financial assistance to the small business community of Iowa must go to the local banks and other participating lending institutions. More than 95 percent of all loans made by the U.S. Small Business Administration are under the bank guarantee program, Sears said.

In addition to the financial assistance, the Des Moines SBA office offered many Management training programs during the year with 160 training programs attended by 3,794 persons.

SBA's volunteer affiliate, SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives) has provided management counseling to 722 business firms during FY 1975, and SCORE Chapters were formed in Fort Dodge and Dubuque, Iowa, to make a total of 10 chapters in the State.

Sears said that with the addition of these two newest chapters there isn't a small business person in the entire state of Iowa who cannot be reached and counseled effectively.

In other areas of management assistance through the Small Business Institute, 80 firms received counseling from the student and faculty of the Business Administration Departments of Drake University, Des Moines; Iowa State University, Ames; University of Northern Iowa, Cedar Falls; University of Iowa, Iowa City; and Mount Mercy College, Cedar Rapids.

There were 11 Community Economic Development Loans approved for a total project cost of $1,371,490, and these created 90 jobs. In addition there were 60 Disaster Loan approvals totaling $1,006,361.

Sears said, "Business conditions throughout Iowa show signs of strength, and we look for these conditions to prevail and get stronger during Fiscal Year 1976."

Polk Co. in fiscal year 1975 had 65 small business loans amounting to $4,161,200.

Republican Van Visits Iowans

Republican State Chairman John C. McDonald of Dallas Center today announced an ambitious project to attract party supporters and "take the Republican message to all sections of the state" during the next two months.

The party, McDonald said, will place a van-type vehicle — which will be called the "Republican Van" — on the road during August and September to encourage Iowans to seek information about the Republican Party and volunteer their time and services to Republican efforts. The Republican Van, he added, is part of an overall party effort during the fall months to involve Iowans and to encourage them to take an active role in the party programs.

He said the van is scheduled to leave Des Moines on August 4 for a two-month trip which will include stops in all 99 counties, visit about 120 communities and travel more than 4,000 miles. McDonald said exact details of the Van's schedule will be released at a later date.

"We believe that this is one of the most ambitious programs that has been undertaken by any political party in Iowa in recent years. We are going to take the Republican message to Iowans in hope that they respond by offering to help us in our efforts to continue a record of common sense government in Iowa," McDonald said.

He said that the Republican State Central Committee approved the Van in recognition of the "fact that we must get citizens involved in the political process, and specifically the Republican Party, if we are going to preserve and maintain responsible government." He said that the trend toward a full-time, professional which we have, to be denied because of our unfortunate condition?

Editor's Note:

From the Editor:

The New Iowa Bystander occasionally receives and has published mail from persons who are within the confinement of a jail or prison cell. Most of the letters are appeals for communication with others.

Very few (such as in our July 17 issue) display an effort of adding to the community. We appreciate all letters from persons in unfortunate conditions and allow what time we have to arrange them in a printable manner.

To the Editor:

In a small section of the New Iowa Bystander, I noted that one of the conditions of having articles published in your medium is that they are typewritten.

Unfortunately, being confined to the environment of the Polk County Jail, we are not rendered access to such equipment as typewriters.

My question is: Even though we are confined and denied the use of a typewriter, are the matters of public interest, legislature under the control of professional politicians is of "great concern to Republicans."

He said that the van will be staffed each week by a driver and a "guest host or hostess" who will visit with people on an informal basis about the opportunities within the party and the political goals of the Republican Party. In addition, he said the van will contain information about how to become involved in the political process, a calendar of planned Republican events and other materials.

and other minorities, including women if women can be said to be a minority, in positions of responsibility is a sorry one.

Nor is the employment record of public broadcasting any better. No black manages a single one of PBS's some 200 television stations, and few of its some 700 radio stations. It is a matter of sorry record that while some 36 blacks own radio stations in the U.S., there are only five black-owned TV stations, but only one in the Virgin Islands is on the air.

The road ahead is long and perhaps rocky. But I believe we are beginning to make definite progress. If the presence of one black—it could have been any black not just me—can cause these kinds of positive ripples in terms of black hiring, upgrading, training, etc., what would the presence of a dozen blacks in influential positions in the communications area do? The thought is titillating.

Benjamin L. Hooks

When I first came to the Federal Communications Commission, the agency's equal employment opportunity program was sporadic at best, staffed by part time Equal Employment Opportunity officers and directed by a division chief who, though well intentioned, could give only a part of his attention and energy to this most important project. Today, the Commission has established fulltime in-agency EEO program, staffed by a young black woman with a Latino assistant.

The Commission has also established an external (industry) EEO unit, staffed by two blacks, one of whom is also an attorney. This unit will deal with the powerful industries we regulate. I have been designated the "EEO Commissioner" as well as the "Backlogs Commissioner," the latter having to do with trying to unclog the FCC pipelines of the thousands of petitions and undealt with business matters we must urgently handle.

It is instructive that the Commission first established and staff the in-agency EEO unit before turning its attention to setting up and staffing the external EEO unit. We felt we would be remiss in our duties if we asked the industries we regulated to deal with minority hiring and upgrading in a positive way, if we ourselves were not doing so.

The external EEO unit has a mammoth task ahead. Of 690 commercial TV stations in the U.S. only, two are managed by blacks. Few blacks are managers of the nation's 7,000 commercial radio stations or 700 commercial TV stations, and the record of employment of blacks

Public Service Opinions

These editorials do not necessarily express the policy of this newspaper. You can express your opinion by sending a Letter to the Editor.

If you own a home insured by the Federal Housing Administration, and if your home has serious defects, a letter to the nearest office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) by August 22 of this year could mean the Federal Government will pay for repairs of substantial defects that threaten the lives or safety of you and your family.

HUD's field offices across the Nation are ready to assist you in determining if your home is eligible. The program is part of the Housing and Community Act of 1974—Section 518(b). Its purpose is to correct serious defects in houses with mortgages insured by HUD's Federal Housing Administration, specifically, where the defect should have been corrected before you bought your house.

The first, and most essential step is your letter alerting HUD officials that your house may be eligible for federally financed repairs. Or—if you make the repairs yourself—let HUD know you think you're due reimbursement.

But you must tell HUD in writing you think your home is eligible for the 518(b) program on or before the August 22 cutoff date for applications.

You may already have received a letter from Acting Federal Housing Commissioner, David M. DeWilde which detailed the specific criteria for eligibility under the Section 518(b) program. If not, following are the conditions that must be met:

First, the dwelling must have been more than one year old at the time you purchased it;

Second the dwelling must consist of not more than two living units;

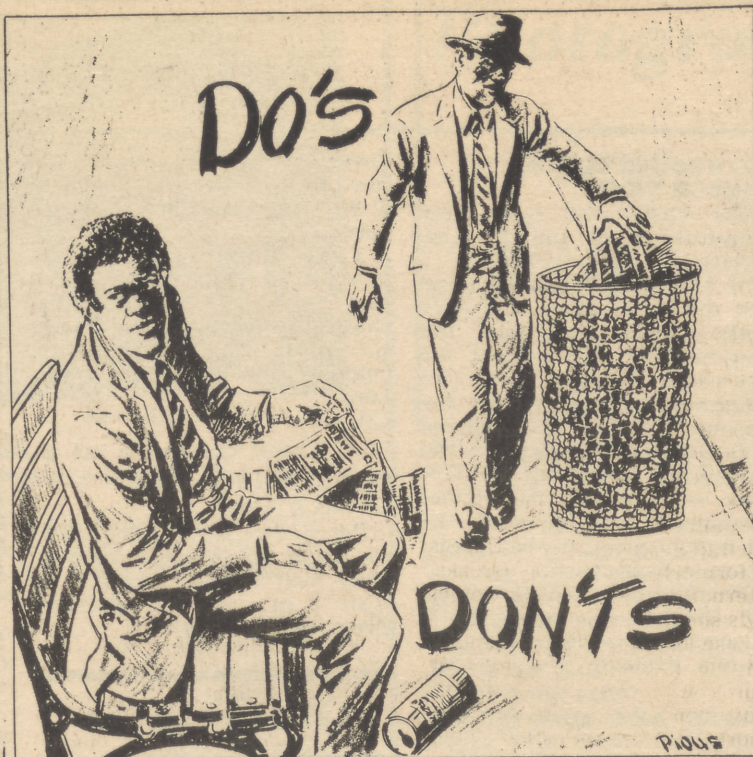

Third, the defect must be one which so affects the use and livability of the property as to create a serious danger to life or safety;

Fourth, the defect must have existed at the time of the original appraisal and be one which a proper inspection by HUD-FHA appraiser would have normally revealed. The existence of a defect at this time does not necessarily mean that you have an eligible claim;

Fifth, the mortgage financing the purchase of the dwelling must have been insured under Section 203 (b) or Section 221 (d) (3) of the National Housing Act, on or after August 1, 1968, but prior to January 1, 1973, and the dwelling must be located in an older declining urban area. An older declining urban area is defined as a community with a population of 2,500 or more and a neighborhood which is comprised predominately (50 per cent or more) of dwellings built prior to 1940. The determination of location eligibility will be made by HUD-FHA; and Finally, a claim must be filed by August 22, 1975.

After eligibility is determined, HUD wants to pay you back for your expense in eliminating defects that went undetected or were inadequately repaired. Where repairs haven't been made, HUD wants you to know, as quickly as possible, if your claim is eligible so you can contact home repair firms and begin the process of transforming your home into a safe environment for your family and friends. The contractor will send the bill directly to HUD.

Black Publishers on GDR Tour Impressed by Fair Treatment

This is the first in a series of five articles by black newspaper publishers who visited the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) recently.

By Sherman Briscoe
NNPA Executive Director

Berlin, Ger. (NNPA) — "We enjoy the same rights and duties of all other Germans," Jurij Gros, first secretary of the Parliament of the Sorbic minority of the German Democratic Republic (GDR) told us in his headquarters office in Bautzen where we visited him recently.

The Sorbs are really the only cultural minority in East Germany. The Jews are a minority in numbers, but are not considered as a minority. Decimated by Hitler, their number has dwindled from nearly 7 million to about 25,000 in the entire country.

Upon hearing of the Sorbs as the only minority in the GDR, our delegation of 16 publishers and editors wanted to visit them and see for ourselves how they were really treated, or if this talk of democracy and justice was mere verbiage.

So, one morning before 8 o'clock, we were in a bus and on the road to Bautzen about 120 miles away in southeast Germany near the border of Czechoslovakia.

There in this small town, which we could see across the green fields in the distance, we met the leaders who were the equivalent of our Roy Wilkins or Vernon Jordan or Carlton Goodlett, except that their fight has been won, and they are not in a day-to-day battle for the rights of their people.

The Sorbs are a Slavic people who have lived in the Bautzen area for more than 1,000 years. While they number only 100,000, they have four representatives, including one woman, a teacher, in the national assembly of 500, representing the country's 17 million.

Following a reception and choral singing by the Sorbs, we saw their museum, newspapers, books and radio station which are designed to promote their culture, our bus took us 50 miles to Dresden, noted for its chinaware and art treasures.

There, we met at the Newa hotel for lunch with Dr. Helmut Aris, president of the Union Jewish Communities, and a group of his associates. They were all older people who had lived through the war and Hitler's concentration camps and gas chambers; and they had the scars to prove it, but their spirits were undaunted.

However, there was a trace of sadness in their voices when they reported that there were only 18 Jewish children in Dresden. "Almost all our young and middle-aged people have moved out of Germany," Dr. Aris said.

Dresden itself, although largely rebuilt and a beautiful city, is dotted by bombed out buildings still standing as reminders of World War II. In a single night, an estimated 100,000 people died in the city from British and American bombs.

During our five-day stay in the GDR, we visited a concentration camp, and the Peace Memorial, dined at the Berlin Press Club, and conversed with journalists, toured 600-foot TV tower restaurant and the summer palace of Frederick the Great, and sat in the Potsdam Palace where President Truman, Churchill and Stalin signed the peace agreement, dividing up Germany.

Our tour ended with a reception in the office of Professor Albert Norden, secretary of the Central Committee of the Socialist Unity Party and a member of the Bureau of the Presidium of the World Peace Council. His impressive office is reached by a non-stop perpetual elevator which one boards and alights from at will. No waiting.

There in his private chamber, Professor Norden, a former carpenter, who is the historian and theoretician of the Socialist Unity Party, presented Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association. The GDR Medal of Peace, highest honor that the country can bestow.

Other recipients in the past were: Dr. W. E. B. DeBois, Ms. Angela Davis, and Paul Robeson. The latter's name is a household word in the country.

At the junior high school named for Robeson, three 13-year-olds told us his life story — athlete, singer, actor and worker for peace. "He is my inspiration; I want to be like him," each of the two boys and a girl said repeatedly.

Dr. Goodlett headed the delegation. Those who accompanied him in addition to myself were: Raymond H. Boone, editor, Richard Afro-American; Mrs. Mildred Brown, editor-publisher, Omaha Star; Arthur M. Carter, publisher, Washington Afro-American; James Cleaver, managing editor, Los Angeles Sentinel; Mrs. Corrine Drew, associate publisher, New York Voice.

Robert E. Johnson, associate publisher of Jet Magazine; Jerrel W. Jones, publisher, Milwaukee Courier; Louis Martin, vice president and editorial director, Chicago Daily Defender; George Murphy, advertising executive, Afro-American Newspapers; Mrs. Marjorie B. Parham, editor-publisher, Cincinnati Herald.

Garth C. Reeves, editor-publisher, Miami Times; John B. Smith, executive vice president, Atlanta Inquirer; William O. Walker, editor-publisher, Cleveland Call & Post and Howard B. Woods, editor-publisher, St. Louis Sentinel.

"The Breaking Of A President" Airs

Friday, August 8, at 9 p.m., exactly one year after the resignation of former President Richard M. Nixon, the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network, Ch 11, Des Moines; Ch 12, Iowa City; Ch 24, Mason City; Ch 27, Sioux City; Ch 32, Waterloo; will present "The Breaking of a President," a retrospective on Nixon's climb to the presidency and the events surrounding his departure from that office.

Theodore White's film "The Making of the President, 1972" (based on his book by the same name) will be featured in this special 90-minute program, along with video taped excerpts from Nixon's farewell speech to his White House staff and President Ford's swearing in.

Of Richard Nixon, the program says: "... his name had become a political institution that loomed almost as large as that of the office he held. He had been congressman, senator, vice president. He had been defeated—it was thought, permanently in 1962, only to re-emerge in one of the most astounding come-backs in the history of presidential politics... An election night landslide of historic proportions gave way in the space of a year to tales of scandal and corruption equally historic..."

Of Gerald Ford: "...Among the power-brokers in Washington Gerald Ford was not respected for his intellect. Lyndon Johnson aimed some of his sharpest Texas barbs at him— suggesting at one point that he 'couldn't walk and chew gum at the same time'... Yet on August 8, 1974, this man managed to capture the mood of an American public in need of a 'nice guy'..."

"The Breaking of a President" is an IEBN Public Affairs presentation written and produced by Robert Bradsell with Assistant Producer Jean Jordan.

Wesley Tindrell will hold a recital at the New Jerusalem Church 1198 Fourteenth St., August 3 at 4:30 p.m. All are welcome to this inspirational meeting.

Who? Where? What?

Let's take inventory of ourselves to see where we can best serve, and join that person, group or society where we can contribute the most for the improvement of Person Kind.

Who is our leader?
Where is our unity?
What are we doing to make things better for our children?

Who is our leader?
That all people trust,
That some people trust,
That helps his brother,
That puts justice first,
That won't rip off his brothers:
Let him step forward so he can be shot.

Where is our unity
That was here during the thirties,

That was strong during the forties,
Stronger in the fifties,
Powerful in the sixties
And was destroyed in the late sixties and early seventies?

What are we doing for Ourselves?
Our brother?
Our sister?
Our community?
What are we doing for the betterment of mankind person kind (Women Libbers please accept my apology).
What must we do today and tomorrow because of what was or wasn't done yesterday?

Pryor—Tall In Saddle

As quiet as it's been kept, Richard Pryor had never ridden a horse.

Yet, for his co-starring role in the Fred Williamson production of "Adios Amigo" that was filmed in Santa Fe, New Mexico, he had to spend the biggest part of his time in the saddle, atop real live western horses.

After bolstering his nerves, making a few comical quips, and saying to Fred Williamson, "Show me how to get on this Mutha...", Richard Pryor is now an experienced horseman who sits tall in the saddle and rides very well.

Barber and Cosmetology Laws Continue

Norman L. Pawlewski, commissioner of Public Health, has assured barbers and cosmetologists across the state that licensing of their respective professions will continue under present Iowa law.

A great deal of concern has been expressed by members of both professions, as well as the general public, due to the governor's recent veto of Senate File 296, a bill which affected certain aspects of licensure and regulation of barbering and cosmetology.

The regulation of barber and cosmetology schools will be carried out under existing rules and regulations, the health commissioner said, adding that the sanitary inspections of barber shops and beauty salons will continue as in the past, under the general statutory authority granted to the Iowa State Department of Health.

Pawlewski said his agency's actions are an interim measure designed to provide orderly administration of the existing programs until the next session of the Iowa General Assembly can develop new legislation.

Bus service at state park

DES MOINES— The Iowa Conservation Commission recently initiated a bus transportation service in the lower Ledges State Park canyon area. The canyon area was closed to automobile traffic this year to help conserve the natural environment of the area and preserve its natural beauty and scenic atmosphere. Before closing the area to automobiles, traffic had increased to a point where roadside parking areas were deteriorating, exhaust fumes were accumulating and the pedestrian / auto conflict presented a definite safety hazard. The flash flood in Pease Creek in May, 1974, destroyed portions of the parking, and at that time the decision was made by ICC staff personnel to correct some of the quality problems.

The Ledges Bus Service is an attempt by the ICC to give all persons the opportunity for use and enjoyment of the lower Ledges. The bus operates from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. on an hourly schedule weekends and holidays. There is no charge for riding on the bus.

The Ledges State Park is located six miles south of Boone on Iowa Highway 164.

Floating Caged Channel Catfish

More than 100,000 channel catfish have been delivered to county conservation board lakes around the state.

Hatched and reared to 4 1/2 inches at the Iowa Conservation Commission Fairport and Mount Ayr Hatcheries, the fingerling catfish will now be placed in floating cages at the various county areas. County conservation board personnel will feed the caged catfish all summer while state fisheries management biologists periodically check the progress of the fish. The catfish grow amazingly fast under these conditions and will be released this fall as 8-10 inch fish.

IRS Audits Ensure Correct Tax Payments

Some people are afraid to disagree with the Internal Revenue Service, especially when it comes to how much they owe in taxes. Of course, there are many others who have no qualms about taking issue with the IRS!

Whichever category the taxpayer is in, he or she has the right to appeal the results of an IRS audit.

Perhaps it would be best to start from the beginning—when a taxpayer receives a letter from the Internal Revenue Service notifying him of an audit.

A return is selected for audit because some information is missing, or more probably, because screening by computers and trained employees indicate a likelihood of errors on the return. Or, a return may have been chosen as part of a random sample for research studies. Selection of a return for examination doesn't imply dishonesty or suspicion of criminal liability. The ultimate aim is to help ensure that taxpayers pay the correct amount of tax.

If an IRS auditor believes that the tax should have been more than shown on your return, he or she proposes to change the tax liability upward. Honest people can—and often do—disagree about interpretations of our complex tax laws.

If the taxpayer disagrees with a proposed change, the auditor explains the administrative appeals process within the Internal Revenue Service, as well as how to appeal through the courts.

The first line of appeal is to the district conference staff. Members of a district conference staff work independently of examiners and their supervisors and try to view each case impartially, paying careful attention to your presentation of the facts, the tax law, and the arguments you feel support your position. They'll meet with you at a mutually convenient time in an IRS office. Incidentally, district conferees can settle cases involving $2,500 or less in tax per year by weighing the relative chances of success that the IRS or the taxpayer might have if the case were tried in court. This is referred to as "hazards of litigation."

If the taxpayer is not satisfied after meeting with a district conference staff member, or wishes to bypass this opportunity altogether, he or she may go to the next level. This is a conference with an appellate conferee in the IRS Regional Appellate Division, which is organizationally independent of not only the level that conducted the audit but also the district conference staff. Appellate conferees have the authority to settle any case based on the merits of the case and the hazards of litigation. An appellate conference is scheduled for the most convenient time and location possible for the taxpayer.

While the administrative appeals procedures are designed to enable a taxpayer to appeal with a minimum of inconvenience and without the expense of professional assistance, he has the right to have someone represent him or accompany him at either the district or appellate conference.

With written authorization from the taxpayer, his attorney, certified public accountant, or else enrolled to practice before the IRS, may represent the taxpayer at a conference in his absence. Some 98 percent of all disputed cases are settled by mutual agreement in audit or district and appellate conferences.

However, the taxpayer need not accept what he considers to be an unfavorable finding under the IRS administrative appeals procedures. The tax laws allow an appeal to the U.S. Tax Court, to the U.S. Court of Claims and the U.S. District Courts.

Before someone can appeal to the Tax Court, he must have received from the IRS a formal letter, called a "90-day letter," or a "statutory notice of deficiency." The former term is used because a petition must be filed within 90 days from the date the notice is mailed to the taxpayer. (If a notice is addressed to a taxpayer outside the United States, he has 150 days to file the petition.) The IRS cannot collect the tax until the case is disposed of by the Tax Court.

If the amount of tax in dispute amounts to $1,500 or less, the Tax Court has a simplified Small Tax Case Procedure. For detailed instructions and required forms, write to the Clerk of the Tax Court, U.S. Tax Court, Washington, D.C. 20217.

Commissioners of the Tax Court, who hear the small tax cases, try to help taxpayers by making the hearings as informal as possible. Decisions by Tax Court Commissioners are not binding as precedents on a taxpayer for other tax years, or other taxpayers or on the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. On the other hand, there is no further appeal from a decision made under the Small Tax Case Procedure.

Cases involving more than $1,500 or sums below that amount which the taxpayer doesn't choose to appeal under the Small Tax Case Procedure, may be considered by one or more Judges of the Tax Court. Judges of the Tax Court hold sessions in 62 cities. Decisions by Tax Court Judges may be appealed to the U.S. Circuit Courts of Appeals, and to the U.S. Supreme Court, although in practice relatively few cases are appealed beyond the Tax Court.

The other judicial appeal route is the U.S. Court of Claims or a U.S. District Court. The taxpayer begins by paying the tax to the IRS and filing a claim for refund with the agency. If the claim is disallowed by the IRS, then he files a suit in either court.

The U.S. Supreme Court can review decisions by the Court of Claims, while District Court decisions may be appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and then to the Supreme Court.

If the decision is ultimately in the taxpayer's favor, the government will refund the tax and pay interest for the time it held the money which the taxpayer has paid.

The tax laws are designed to protect the interests of taxpayers as well as the government. Appealing an unfavorable IRS finding is a right any taxpayer is entitled to but he cannot do so unless he or she knows the correct procedures. Publication 556, "Audit of Returns, Appeal Rights, and Claims for Refund" further explains these procedures. It may be obtained free of charge from any local IRS office.

Princeton Seminar Focuses On Women

Princeton Seminary's Center of Continuing Education, noted for such diverse seminars as the Lawyer-Clergy discussions and the Jewish-Christian dialogues, will introduce a new series in the coming academic year: "Women in the Church."

The first, which bears the same title as the series, will be led by Ms. Jean Huffman, manager of Financial Aid Studies for the Vocational Agency of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. The December 8-11 meeting, open to both lay and ordained men and women, will deal with the emerging new roles of church women. Participants can expect such subjects as language in worship, mutual support among women, concrete steps to enable women to assume leadership roles and the relevance of women's groups within the church.

Rev. Ann Conrad, coordinator of Employment Opportunity for the Vocation Agency, has been announced as leader of the second seminar, for clergywomen, scheduled for April 19-22. The lectures and discussions will focus on the particular needs of women ministers; the workshops, on "Support Networks" among clergywomen.

LUNG CANCER: If lung cancer continues to increase at current rates, it will kill a million Americans in the next 10 years, the president of the American Cancer Society said recently. Dr. George Rosemond said this will occur even though lung cancer is the one major cancer for which the key cause is known—cigarette smoking. He said four out of five lung cancer deaths could be avoided if people didn't smoke.

KIDNEY TUMORS: Three human organs in which the early diagnosis of trouble is difficult are the kidneys, liver and brain. But recent reports of ongoing research promise these developments: Dr. James A. Roberts of Louisiana, working under a grant from the National Institute of Health, has developed a device that may eliminate need for surgery for more than 100,000 kidney patients.

Dr. Roberts injects into the kidney a fine hollow needle that can be looked through—an endoscope. The trained eye can tell whether cancer, which could mean surgery, is present—or whether such drastic treatment is unnecessary.

AID IN HEART ATTACKS: A drug used to relieve the chest pain from a heart ailment called angina pectoris also appears to reduce the damage from heart attacks, a National Heart and Lung Institute scientist reported recently.

The drug, nitroglycerin, also was found in a series of tests on animals to make the heart less susceptible to dangerous rhythm disturbances which sometimes are a lethal consequence of heart attacks.

Dr. Stephen E. Epstein said the experiments have moved from animals to humans and 10 heart attack victims given nitroglycerin have shown a reduction in the degree of heart muscle injury. Most heart attacks are caused by obstructions in one of the arteries that supply blood to the heart muscle. The resulting deprivation of oxygen and other nutrients damages heart tissue and the extent and severity of this damage affects patient survival.

NEW DRUGS AID IN TREATMENT OF ARTHRITIS, ULCERS: New drugs are being developed that appear to be much better than current methods of treating arthritis and ulcers, according to Dr. John R.J. Sorenson of the University of Cincinnati medical school in recent report.

He says "certain copper-containing compounds are dramatically more potent in reducing inflammation than many well known anti-arthritis drugs." The anti-ulcer potential of the compounds—called copper chelates— "has created a great deal of interest since most anti-arthritis drugs are known to produce ulcers," noted Dr. Sorenson.

The doctor said the chelates are formed by the process of chelation in which the drug interacts with the body's neutral stores of copper to bind the copper and hold it firmly.

Funds Available For Request

The Iowa American Revolution Bicentennial Commission (IARBC) announced the availability for funding requests from $200,000 the Commission received from the Iowa Legislature.

Robert W. Dillon, chairman of IARBC, stated, "with the signing of Senate file 353 by Governor Ray, funds appropriated by this act shall be allocated by the Commission to Bicentennial projects only if matched by an equal amount of money raised by the sponsors of the Bicentennial project from other sources. Dillon further stated, "It is important that all groups are aware of the funding program so all Bicentennial projects may be considered."

Projects must be of area interest and be endorsed by the local Bicentennial organization.

Groups interested in the matching grants may obtain more information after August 1st by writing: Iowa Bicentennial Commission, State Capitol, Des Moines, Iowa 50319.

A few weeks back, the Katherine Dunham Dancers performed at St. Ambrose Fine Arts Building. The group was sponsored by The Quad City Negro Heritage Society.

Theodore H. Jamison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah B. Jamison, Sr., 914-8th Ave., Rock Island, Ill. was one of the dancers. He graduated from Rock Island High in 1971 — attended Black Hawk College for 1 year and 2 years at Illinois University in Normal, Ill.

Waterloo News

Reporter

Thanks for the opportunity to share our "Waterloo" news with you and the New Iowa Bystander readers.

Many "Waterlooans" expressed pride in the 10-day return of Walton E. Lewis and wife, Dorothy. Lewis, stepson of the late Rev. Peyton M. Lewis, who pastored Payne AME Church, is president of Lewis and Thompson Insurance Agency in Detroit, Michigan. He is the first black member of the board of directors of the National Bank of Detroit. He also organized the First Independence National Bank, Detroit's first black-owned bank.

Lewis' deep interest in youth led to a recent presentation of a testimonial resolution from the Chamber of Commerce honoring him for "personally having financed the education and training of many underprivileged Detroit youths."

Lewis' wife and son, Robert, are vice presidents in the firm. Another son, David, is a Detroit attorney.

Sutters Mill was the site of a dinner honoring the Walton Lewises. Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Willie Allen, Sr. Mrs. Eugene Holt presented a group gift. Forty guests were in attendance. Lewis encouraged any youth interested in art, ceramics, sculpture, etc. to contact him with the possibility of a scholarship to be effected. Hosts, the Willie Allen, Sr.s., stated that the dinner was not only to renew old acquaintances but to introduce and inspire others.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams and family, 719 Willow Street, have returned from a vacation to New Orleans, Louisiana and Jackson, Mississippi.

Ben Jordan, 233 Ash Street, has retired from the Chamberlain Company after 29 years as a machinist. Relatives and friends honored him with a party with 75 people in attendance. Guests also were there from Minneapolis and Milwaukee.

St. John's Masonic Family will start building their new home by laying bricks Monday evening — so says co-chairmen Russell Burt and Vivret Norman. The new building will be located at 820 Newell Street.

Rev. J. V. Tolbert and family spent a week here as houseguests of Rev. and Mrs. Thad Thomas, pastor of Mt. Camel Baptist Church. Rev. Tolbert, now serving as chaplain in the Air Force stationed at Colorado Springs, Colorado is the former pastor of Payne AME Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jordan, 233 Ash Street have returned from a vacation at Water Valley, Miss. The Jordans were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bobo and Mrs. Perline Coty. During their stay, the Jordans attended the homecoming of the Water Valley Love Club. This club formed by former Water Vallians wanting to keep in touch meets every year on the second Sunday in July. Headquarters for this year's homecoming was the Everdale Missionary Baptist Church. Sixty-nine people were in attendance from Chicago, Davenport, Waterloo and the state of California.

Word has been received of the hospitalization of Nate Hackett, former Waterlooan, the son of the late Elizabeth and Clarence Hackett. Hackett now resides in Decatur, Ill.

Kathy Smith, Denise Sisk, Clea Perkins, and Tony Woods — delegates from Payne Memorial AME — attended the St. Paul-Milwaukee District Sunday School and ACE Convention of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. The sessions were held at the Allen AME Chapel in Rockford, Ill.

Bethel AME had the usual Sunday morning service on last Sunday, Rev. D. E. Johnson pastor.

Eleven o'clock services were at Pilgrim Rest Baptist Church the past Sunday, Rev. J. H. Mims pastor. Rev. Mims had as his subject, "A Fool for Christ." His text was Corinthians 1, 3:10-21 verses.

Quite a bit of interest has been generated here in S.E. Iowa, "Should there be one courthouse in Lee County, and should it be located in Fort Madison. "In last Thursday's daily newspaper, the president of the NAACP Ray Bradley was pictured with his comments in opposition to the proposal.

Seaman Apprentice Robert Williams, Jr., who is stationed in Jacksonville, Fla., is spending some time home on furlough. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams, Sr.

Mrs. Rupert Conn motored to Rock Island, Ill., the past weekend. She returned her grandson, Calvin Clay, Jr., who had spent the past week in the city.

Matthew Carter is spending several days in Minneapolis,

Minn., on a fishing trip.

The descendants of Lillian and John Roach held their reunion at the Holiday Inn here in Keokuk the past weekend.

Some 80 adults plus children attended. Three daughters born to this union were present: Mrs. Bea Hodges of St. Louis; Mrs. Ada Galbreath of Dayton, Ohio; and Mrs. Faye Brown of Warsaw, Ill.

Family members attended from Milwaukee, Boston, New Orleans, New York, Des Moines, Chicago, Dayton and Urbana, Ill. The states of Michigan, South Carolina and Mississippi were represented.

A silhouette of Ms. Julie Williams, indulging in the favorite summer pastime of "fishing in the Mississippi," had a prominent place on the front page of the Tuesday evening paper. Ms. Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of Keokuk.

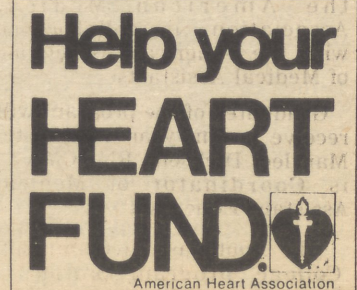

Rev. and Mrs. John Linquist, missionaries serving in the Central African Republic have returned to the States. They have with them a native couple Rev. and Mrs. Lazarus Aborokpuyi. Rev. Lazarus, a polio victim at age 3 or 4 years, is unable to walk. His legs are twisted and withered from his knees to his feet. His only method of moving is to crawl. A very innovative person, he fashioned pads from buffalo hides to cover his knees, and with large wooden blocks managed to be able to do and go anywhere he desired. He was able to raise a large garden and he also learned blacksmithing.

Rev. Lazarus attended Bible School in Zemio and graduated at the top of his class. At age 35, he is the pastor of the Town Church in Zemio. He is ably assisted by his wife, Tabita. He preached at a conference in the area in January, having to crawl to the pulpit. Rev. and Mrs. Linquist heard him and while listening to him as he preached-standing on a chair-thought what a wonderful thing if he could walk. The Linquist's son, Dr. John Linquist, is an orthopedic surgeon in California. He was contacted by his parents and advised of the condition of Rev. Lazarus. He was asked if in his opinion, could any help be found. He told his parents to take the couple into their home, teach them some of the American ways and customs and to bring him to the States. This the Rev. John Linquist's have done. They will leave Keokuk for California after spending a few days here in the city visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. Cornelia Cooper's daughters, Ms. Jean, Patricia and Juan are spending some time in Centerville visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Cooper and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor and daughter, Katrina of Monmouth, Ill. are visiting in the Robert Williams' home.

Hilltop Tennis Meet In Full Swing

By Allen Ashby

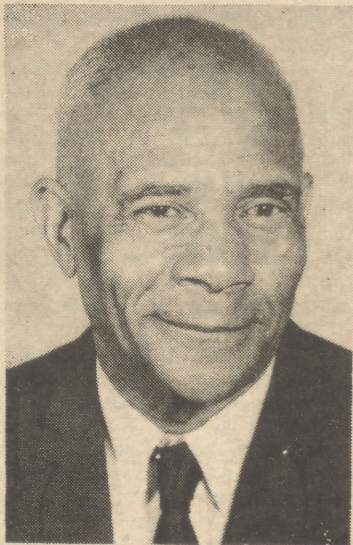

When you read this, the Hilltop Open tennis meet will be on in full swing. In fact, by the time this comes out we will be in the midst of the men and women's singles. Both the titles are up for grabs, since neither champion is going to defend his or her title. The winning doubles team of Randy Kreei and Steve Carlson has been broken up also, and Kreei will try to win the thing with a new partner. One of the brightest things that ever happened to the meet was the fact that at least twenty one juniors from Omaha came over, and they will really make a showing. From the dope sheets on them, some of the youngsters are pretty good, and may have a chance to do all right here. We thought we would have our biggest meet ever, but we fell short on the twelve year olds and people over fifty five, so we will just about equal our last year's draw.

While we were getting set up for our meet, Esther Myers and Willie Alma Jones got into the Iowa Open meet in Cedar Rapids. They both won one match, and got wiped out in the women's doubles. Of course, Esther had a rough trip. Getting up at three AM to catch a bus, a long ride, and then not much rest before playing, she had to be tired when she went onto the court. So they had trouble, but it was a worthwhile trip for both of them.

The American Tennis Association

The American Tennis Association is another outgrowth of those things that sprang up in the thirties and even in the twenties. Black people were not allowed to play in most of the meets sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, so they organized their own national group, and held their own nationals. To play in this national brought as much prestige to blacks as playing in the USLTA brought to white players. Then when the bars were let down in the fifties, and with Arthur Ashe there was a bit of a let down. I recall doing a column on this. I wondered what they would call the black champions of the sports like tennis and golf. We had had our black American and National league baseball broken up with the opening of the majors to blacks, and now it was to be so in golf and tennis. I wondered what they would call the ATA meet. They couldn't call it for the black national championship, because then what would they do with Ashe or Althea Gibson? Well, they solved that one easily. They are the ATA champs. What do you make of that?

ALLEN ASHBY

It won't be long before football will be back on the scene. One wonders what kind of clubs Iowa, Iowa State and Drake will have. Commings of Iowa made a good impression last year, but I still think his big problem will be with alumni who want to help, and who sometimes do more harm than they realize. At Iowa State, the head man there has a chance to finish well up in the conference, and he has the nucleus of a good ball club. Drake's Jack Wallace will have to lick illness first before he can come out but they say he has that done, and maybe you will see a much better Bulldog team than you had hoped for. One can't pick out any possible outstanding fellows yet, because they haven't gotten off the ground yet. But do you know, I am looking forward to seeing some reports of some of the games between the black schools. I recall that one year, why, I'll never know, somebody picked me to be on aboard to choose an all American team from the black schools. What could I do but turn down the deal because I knew I hadn't seen a black school game or read too much about them for some time. I suggested that they give the post to someone who was better qualified, and I hope they did.

Track Clubs Compete In AAU Meet

The Model Cities YMCA Saturday Super Stars Track Club and the East Side Track Club competed Sunday at 6:30 p.m. in the Iowa AAU and Hawkeye Striders Running and Walking Program held at Tech High track stadium.

Ribbons for first, second and third places were given to winners. No points were awarded. The young people competed in running events only.

The Saturday Super Stars are headed by Al Collier and Jimmy Cooper. John Harris is coach of the East Side Track Club.

Individuals winning three events were Pam Carter and Alvin Miles. Carter competed in the 8-9 boys and girls group. She won the 440 (1:16.8), 100 (14.8) and the 220 (36.2). Miles, in the 10-11 group won the 440 (1:07.1) 100 (12.3) and 220 (31.1).

Double winners were: Lucian Wyatt, 8-9 boys' 100 (14.5) and 220 (35.1); Jeff English, 12-13 boys' 100 (12.2) and 220 (31.1); Rowenda Carter, 12-13 girls' 100 (13.4) and 220 (32.9); Bryan Smith, 13-15 boys' 100 (12.1) and 220 (29.3); Bobby Jo Minor, girls' 100 (12.6) and 220 (31.2); and Alonzo Moore, 15-16 boys' 100 (11.1) and 220 (27.6).

Other winners were: Andra Collier, 12-13 boys and girls' 440 (1:05.8); Clair Evans, 14-15 boys and girls' 440 (0:56.6); and Clarence Talton, 12-13 boys' 880 (2:47.4).

There is a difference in bringing scores of black schools and the ones around here. Most of the time you might not ever hear of the games in those schools. With this formula of net designating anything by race, you would have one hell of a time picking out the scores, unless you knew all the schools. So you will get news that you really didn't get on the previous Sunday or Monday.

Collier stated that he will take his whole club to a meet during Minneapolis Olympic Week, August 9.

Morgan State

Grid Season

The Bears of Morgan State University open their 1975 football season with powerful Virginia State Trojans, September 6 in Hughes Stadium in Baltimore.

The Trojans slipped by Morgan last year by a score of 10-9 and this year's game promises to be just as much of a thriller.

On to RFK Stadium in Washington, D.C., the Morgan gridders head for the annual gridiron fight with the defending black national champions, Grambling State University on Sept. 13.

Included in the schedule is an exhibition game with perennial Ivy League power, Princeton University. The Sept. 19 scrimmage will show Morgan's ability to play with the big-time university teams in the country.

Then the bears will ready themselves for the challenging lineup from the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, (MEAC). North Carolina Central in Durham, N.C. on Oct. 4 will kickoff the Bears fight for the 1975 MEAC Championship. Morgan fans will enjoy the intra-state rivals of UMES for the homecoming game on Oct. 11, followed by trips to South Carolina and Delaware State.

Nov. 1, Morgan Bears will celebrate "Letterman's Day" with the North Carolina A & T Aggies. On this day Morgan will honor some of their top teams, players and coaches of the past. Nov. 8 will find the Bears in Westchester, N.Y. where they will face Virginia Union.

Morgan plans to revenge the worst lost in their history, as the Marauders of Central State come to Hughes Stadium Nov. 15. And for a grand finish, the Bears will play the Bison of Howard University in the Howard-Morgan Sportacular. This game promises to become one of the top classics in black collegiate football.

Proposed Agency Outlaws

Washington, D.C.—Citing a lack of coordination among Federal agencies with equal employment responsibilities, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights called for a consolidated agency with the power to enforce a broad Federal statute forbidding employment discrimination.

To be called the National Employment Rights Board, the agency proposed by the commission would outlaw discrimination in employment based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age or handicapped status.

The recommendation is contained in a 673-page report, "To Eliminate Employment Discrimination," which was released by the Commission last Tuesday. The report is Volume V of "The Federal Civil Rights Enforcement Effort—1974."

The report evaluates the civil rights activities of most Federal agencies with major responsibilities for ensuring equal employment opportunity, including the Civil Service Commission, the Department of Labor, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Equal Employment Opportunity Coordinating Council. Previous reports have covered regulatory agencies and agencies with responsibilities in the education, housing, and revenue sharing fields.

Calling the Federal effort to end employment discrimination "fundamentally inadequate," the commission blamed a lack of overall leadership, deficiencies in existing laws, and inconsistent policies of the many agencies with enforcement responsibilities.

The commission pointed out that agencies not only differ on compliance standards, but that they disagree on "such key issues as the definition of employment discrimination, testing, the use of goals and timetables, fringe benefits, and back pay."

The commission said that "this fragmented administrative picture has resulted in duplication of effort, inconsistent findings, and a loss of public faith in the objectivity and efficiency of the program."

As outlined in the commission's report, the new board would have stronger enforcement powers than any existing agency. It would be given cease-and-desist authority, including the power to order relief such as back pay and affirmative action. The board would also have authority to bring suit in Federal District Court.

The board would emphasize the elimination of patterns and practices of discrimination. Although it would be empowered to act on individual complaints, most would be referred to state and local fair employment practices agencies. These agencies would be periodically reviewed by the board for consistency with board guidelines.

The commission recommended that the board be allocated at least one and a half times the funds currently provided for the total Federal equal employment effort.

Pending the establishment of the National Employment Rights Board, the commission made a number of interim recommendations aimed at increasing the efficiency of those agencies whose practices were reviewed.

The commission also released an 83-page report documenting the economic status of women and minorities during the past 20 years. Titled "Twenty Years After Brown: Equality of Economic Opportunity," the report is the third in a series of reports examining civil rights progress in the United States since the Supreme Court's 1954 decision in Brown vs. Board of Education.

The report points out that despite laws, executive orders, and regulations requiring equal employment, minorities and women remain underrepresented in higher-paying jobs and overrepresented in lower-paying jobs. During the 20 years since Brown, the unemployment rate for nonwhites has continued to be more than double that for whites.

The commission recommended in this report that the President and Congress adopt as a high-priority national goal the elimination of disparities in economic status based on sex, race, or ethnicity.

The Commission on Civil Rights is an independent, bipartisan, fact-finding agency concerned with the rights of minorities and women. Chairman Arthur S. Flemming is also commissioner on Aging of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Other Commissioners are Vice Chairman Stephen Horn, president of California State University, Long Beach; Frankie M. Freeman, an attorney specializing in estate and corporation law in St. Louis; Manuel Ruiz, an attorney specializing in international law with offices in Los Angeles; Robert S. Rankin, professor emeritus of political science at Duke University, Durham, North Carolina; and Murray Saltzman, Rabbi, Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation, Indianapolis, Indiana. John A. Buggs is staff director.

Black American History Highlighted In Tour

American blacks who made major-- but frequently little-known-- contributions to the development of the country are featured in an Eastern Airlines Bicentennial tour of Washington, D.C.

A black cultural program, in conjunction with Soul Journey Tours, is the highlight of a seven day, six-night package that includes use of a car with unlimited mileage. Accommodations are at a selection of 85 Holiday Inns in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and the District of Columbia, and one or two children under 12 may share a room with their parents at no extra charge. A guidebook is included with the tour and covers major attractions in the region and provides numerous discount coupons. Price of the package is $135.90 per person, double occupancy.

In Washington, the black cultural tour starts every Saturday morning at 10 a.m. Its first stop is at Benjamin Banneker Circle, named in honor of the black mathematician who was part of the team of three men who designed the physical layout of the District of Columbia in the late 1700's.

Guides, referred to as "historians" on this tour, not only explain the significance of specifically black monuments, but also explain the contributions of black people to other parts of the nation's capital. They inform visitors, for example, that the Tidal Basin bridge and sea wall were designed by a black engineer, Archie A. Alexander. And the Lincoln Memorial, which almost always has an atmosphere of hushed awe, was the backdrop for a concert by Marian Anderson in 1939, after she was refused the use of Constitution Hall.

The tour also visits another monument to Abraham Lincoln, the Freedom Memorial Statue, which depicts the former President standing by a slave as he breaks from his chains. Funds, design, and execution of the statue were all the result of black effort, culminating in the unveiling in 1876.

In another part of this park there is a monument to Mary McLeod Bethune, black educator and humanitarian. The daughter of slaves, Mrs. Bethune's life accomplishments included the opening of a Negro girls' school, serving as an advisor to four U.S. Presidents, and founding the National Council of Negro Women.

Other points along the tour include Howard University, the Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Library, the Museum of African Art, and the Frederick Douglass National Shrine. The tour concludes at one of the city's black-operated restaurants.

Eastern's tour highlighting the contributions of Black people to America's foundations is just one of many Bicentennial tours the airline offers. Further information can be obtained through a travel agent or by calling Eastern Airlines.

Innocent Heart Murmurs Often Occur in Childhood

When your doctor says a child has an "innocent" heart murmur, there is no cause for alarm, says the Iowa Heart Association. This kind of murmur is harmless and often occurs in childhood. It is sometimes described as a "functional" murmur.

Innocent murmurs are so common that in any group of children, a large percentage is likely to have had one at some time. These heart sounds usually appear between the ages of three and seven years, and generally disappear in adolescence.

Heart murmurs are sounds produced by the circulation of the blood through the valves and chambers of the heart. There are different kinds of murmurs which a doctor can recognize. He can tell whether a murmur is harmless, or whether it indicates a heart condition. Not all murmurs are innocent—some are organic murmurs which mean that a disease or defect of the heart is present.

Sometimes heart murmurs are hard to diagnose. Nor is it easy to examine a child when he or she is restless or a little afraid. For these reasons, it is not unusual for a doctor to want to see a child more than once. He may also want to consult a heart specialist to confirm his findings.

The Heart Association is offering a free booklet to parents of young children. For your free, single copy of "Innocent Heart Murmurs in Children," write to: Iowa Heart Association, 3810 Ingersoll Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa 50312.

The Second Forty

(A forum about mature women)

by Margaret Brookfield

Have you a problem as a mature woman, or with one? For advice write Margaret Brookfield, Information Center on the Mature Woman, 515 Madison Avenue New York, N.Y. 10022.

Caught in Curlers

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I recently had an embarrassing experience that I hope will set an example for other women. The afternoon before a dinner party in honor of a community leader whom I admire tremendously, I had to get some groceries. I dashed out to the store in an old, not-too-clean house dress and with my hair in curlers. On my way I ran into that same guest of honor, and wished I could become invisible. She was kind enough not to comment on my appearance then or to mention the improvement when I met her later at the party, but I've resolved never to leave the house unless I'm dressed presentably.

E.B.

Dear E.B.:

Three cheers for your resolve! I'm always appalled at the sloppy appearance of many women I see at supermarkets or laundromats. It's not necessary to be a fashion plate when doing chores, but I see no excuse for not being clean and neat or, as you put it, "presentable."

Figure Problem

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I have always been proud of my trim figure and firm breasts, but now, five years after I stopped menstruating, I notice that my breasts are sagging and seem to be getting smaller. Is this natural, and is there anything I can do to regain my former shape? Also, marital relations are sometimes unco fortable for me. Does this have anything to do with my having gone through change?

Dear L. B.:

Shrinking and drooping breasts do occur with aging, as fat, glandular tissue, and tone decrease.

If your major concern is your appearance when dressed, a slightly padded bra with some form of support will help.

As for your discomfort during marital relations, this may be related to the decline in estrogen (a body hormone) which occurs during menopause. Estrogen deficiency may lead to a thinning of the wall of the vagina, making it somewhat dry and more susceptible to infection. Probably it would be a good idea to see your physician for a gynecologic examination.
