Omaha Youth Sentenced to Death Awaits Appeal

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea — A 101-gun salute from Australian warships and a colorful fireworks display ushered in the independence of Papua New Guinea Tuesday after 92 years of Australian colonial rule.

NEW DELHI, India — A smoldering sense of confrontation between Indian's judicial branch and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi appeared to intensify Monday as two Delhi High Court judges ruled that government officials must supply grounds for arresting people under the nation's preventive detention law.

ATLANTA, Georgia — George L. P. Weaver has been appointed to the Board of Trustees of the Atlanta University Center by John Wheeler, chairman of the board.

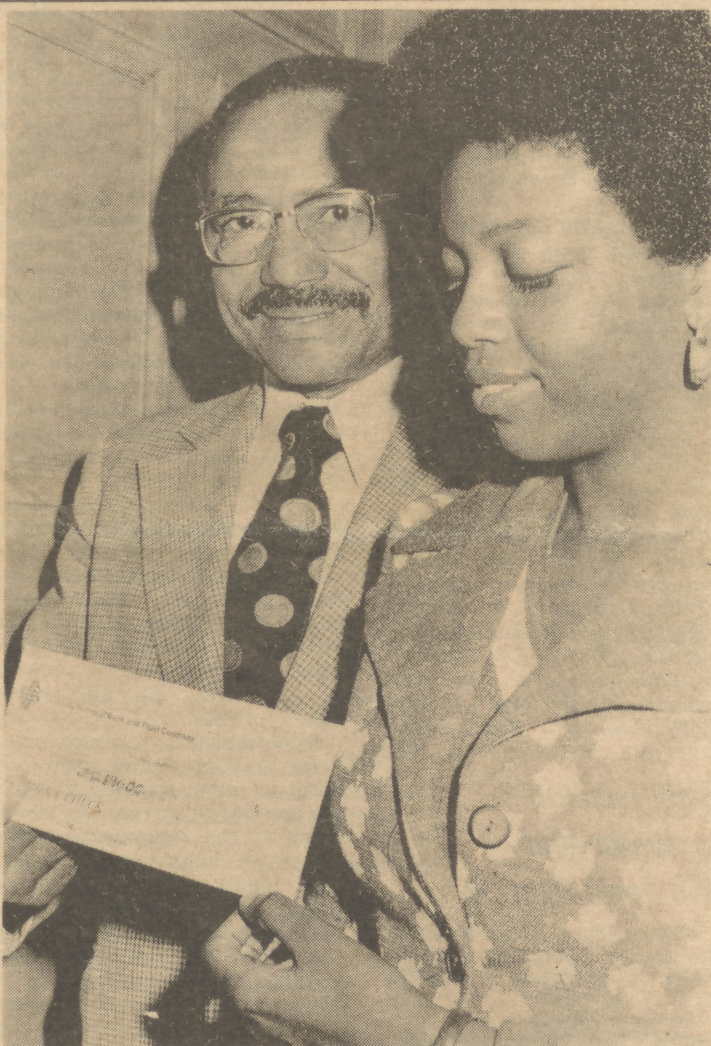

DES MOINES, Iowa — Nolden Gentry stepped down Monday as president of the Des Moines School Board. In remarks from his state of the district speech, Gentry said the board and school administrators are going to have to do a better job of justifying district needs and expenditures.

George Caudill was elected to the one-year presidency. He served as vice president last year.

DES MOINES — Opening arguments and testimony were scheduled to begin Wednesday in the murder trial of Terrance Hollowell, who is charged with two counts of murder in a robbery of the Downtown Des Moines Holiday Inn in August, 1974.

A jury of 11 women and one man, plus two women alternates, was selected Tuesday afternoon. The case is being tried before District Judge Anthony Critelli. Hollowell, 26, a native of Toledo, Ohio has pleaded innocent to the charges and is being held in the Polk County Jail.

Youth 14, Convicted Of Rape

Mark Nelson, 14, was convicted of rape Tuesday by a Polk County jury that deliberated about four hours.

Nelson, son of Mrs. Mary Evans, of 926 Oakridge Drive, was found guilty of raping a 43-year-old cerebral palsy victim at knife-point in her home on Des Moines' near northside on June 7.

Nelson is being held in the Polk County jail in lieu of $15,000 bond. Sentencing was set for Oct. 16 by Judge Leo Oxberger.

According to testimony, Nelson arrived to visit the victim's son early on June 7 and the rape occurred in her home about 5 a.m. The state's case rested heavily on the testimony of another neighbor boy visiting the home who pretended to be asleep while the rape took place.

Rodney Stewart Gets Support From Indianola Group

by Charles McCauley
Editor

Rodney Lamar Stewart was charged at the age of 16 with one count of murder and one count of attempted murder.

The black Omaha, Nebraska youth, now 17, has been given the death penalty and is awaiting an appeal decision from the Nebraska Supreme Court.

The September 26 death sentence was imposed on Stewart by District Court Judge Theodore Richling August 20 after a jury (in a four-hour trial) found the youth guilty of first-degree murder in the shooting death of Thomas Ehlers during a January 25 marijuana transaction.

The prosecuting attorney did not ask for the death penalty, according to Mrs. Nancy Wood, an Indianola telephone counselor for persons with drug problems. For first-degree murder in Nebraska, there are only two choices - life imprisonment and the death penalty.

Charles Stackweather was the last person in Nebraska to be executed. In 1959, he was electrocuted following a killing rampage the previous year.

Richling Involved in 2 Death Sentences

There were no persons under sentence of death in Nebraska until Richling made his August 20 ruling. Ironically, one of the last two persons on death row in that state before the U.S. Supreme Court banned capital punishment in 1972 as it had been applied was a man prosecuted by Richling when he was U.S. attorney for Nebraska in the 1960s.

Duane Pope was sentenced to death following a 1965 bank robbery in Big Springs, Neb., in which three persons were killed. According to Nebraska Penal Complex officials, Pope presently is in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas.

Citizen Concern grows

Many interested Iowa citizens have become concerned about Stewart's situation. One such group of Iowans is in Indianola and is spearheaded by Mrs. Wood.

Mrs. Wood, when she read about Stewart's sentence in a news article said, "It just broke my heart, I have never had anything to hit me like that."

Her efforts to help Stewart began when she asked members of Brown Chapel, a nondenominational church, to pray for the Omahan. Members of her Tuesday night prayer group also were asked to pray.

Young people in Indianola became active in lending support. An interested youth wrote for an audience with Gov. Robert Ray. Mrs. Wood and several adults carried 14 Indianola High School students to request assistance from Gov. Ray. (The Iowa governor is out of the country representing the United States and is expected to schedule another audience when he returns).

"Letters to Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon helped to get an appeal for Rodney," Mrs. Wood said. In a reply to Mrs. Wood, Gov. Exon stated the only way he could act to get an appeal of Stewart's case would be through a Pardon Board consisting of the state's governor, its attorney general and its secretary of state.

Other efforts

The Indianola group has contacted Dave Wilkerson, a minister and author of "The Cross and the Switchblade," Oral Roberts and Billy Graham and many others for assistance.

About their efforts, Mrs. Wood said, "We are trying to get the death sentence commuted to life." The point of the matter, she further stated, is that Stewart is a juvenile and should not have been tried as an adult, but in Nebraska a 14 year old can be tried as an adult. She added that the incident took place about a mile from the Iowa stateline. If the crime had happened in Iowa Stewart probably would have been tried as a juvenile.

Mrs. Wood feels "that justice is what the court should be after and not revenge." She also feels that Stewart can be rehabilitated.

A Chance To Rehabilitate Him

"He should be given a chance to be rehabilitated as a juvenile. You're not going to teach him anything by taking his life," she said in an interview.

VIEWS and REVIEWS

by James B. Morris

Piling On Taxes

Last year, assessors raised property valuations here. The action brought protest from owners of both business and residential property owners realizing that the increases would mean additional taxes.

Many of the new assessments were reduced.

Last week, the Iowa Director of Revenue notified assessors to raise valuation on residential, business and farm properties, all of which would entail the payment a considerable increase in taxes.

The director was acting under laws passed by the legislators which appear to reason that inflation has increased the price of everything and that increased valuations of property should follow. He states that the tax rate should be reduced and thus the taxpayer will not be required to pay additional tax. This, of course, is foolish for experience has shown that taxes once assessed are seldom reduced.

The County Board of Supervisors and City Council have both vowed to fight this assessment. It should be done with every legal means.

Hurting The Unorganized Fellow

The State Board of Revue has ordered Polk County to reduce the 1976 budget by more than $300,000. This has required that taxing bodies reduce their budgets in order to comply with the directive.

The city manager has chosen to meet the city's share by reducing the funds originally budgeted for social programs and senior citizens.

Nothing was said about reducing other departments of city government.

This is unfair and penalizes those who are least able to fight back. Also, these services are manned by employees who are on salaries and it will be their salary eliminated and/or cut and not that of the regular city employee.

Then too, both the county and city have initiated programs, some of which are of questionable value, just as is true among some of the social services.

No one group should be penalized at the expense of the other and particularly for those who are in far better circumstances.

School Board Election

Des Moines voters, in the recent school board election, displayed good judgment when all the candidates for re-election were returned to office.

The campaign was rather heated with thirteen candidates vying for five offices. At the beginning of the campaign there was much heated talk about busing but as time went on, most candidates took a rather reasonable position on the subject so that when the voters went to the polls I doubt that busing influenced many of the voters.

Apparently, the voters appeared willing to go along with the policies of the present administration since they have been able to conduct the affairs of the district with reasonable success.

No Campaign To Influence Court Action

Reporters asked the new Secretary of Health Education and Welfare his views on the policy of his predecessor who, following the law, withheld funds from schools and school districts which failed or refused to carry out the law governing the receipt of these funds.

Almost to the surprise of the reporters, the secretary answered that the matter was in the courts and he did not comment under the circumstances.

President Ford may well take a cue from his Secretary of HEW because he has commented on cases that were pending in the courts. This has not been a good example for executive officials charged with the enforcement of the law.

OMAHA YOUTH SENTENCED TO DEATH AWAITS APPEAL

Stewart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, cannot afford an attorney for their son. The elderly Stewart was recently laid off his job. The family's income now is only $80 a week from unemployment plus $90 worth of food stamps. There are four other children within the Stewart household. An older child is married.

A defense fund cannot be put in Stewart's name for reasons unknown at this time by the Bystander. A defense fund has been set up in the name is his family church. Anyone wishing to help support efforts to obtain better counseling for Stewart should send donations to the St. Mark Defense Fund, 3907 - N 18th; Omaha, Neb., 68110.

State Senator Acts

In other efforts, Nebraska State Senator Ernest Chambers of Omaha said on August 28, he is heading a petition drive seeking to nullify the death sentence imposed on Stewart.

Chambers said the petition's argument is based on U.S. Supreme Court comments made in its 1972 decision to outlaw the death penalty as it was then being applied.

The Nebraska law was enacted in 1973 in an attempt to reinstate a form of capital punishment the court would allow to stand.

Chambers' petition says that between 1968 and 1974 there were 318 homicides in Nebraska, 217 of them in Omaha.

Mel Taylor will interview Mrs. Wood Saturday morning at 7:06 on WHO-Radio.

Democrats' J-J Dinner Draws Presidential Hopefuls

DES MOINES — Eight contenders for the 1976 Democratic Presidential nomination and the man who won that nomination in 1972 are going to draw considerable national attention to the Iowa Democratic Party's Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner this year on Saturday evening, October 25 in Ames.

At a Des Moines press conference Monday, State Democratic Chair Tom Whitney unveiled plans for the Democrats' annual statewide fund-raiser. He stated: "This year's Jefferson-Jackson Dinner is certain to be one of the most exciting events in the history of Iowa politics and could very well outdraw last year's record-breaking crowd of 4,000 who came to hear Senator Edward Kennedy."

Whitney indicated that in a departure from the traditional format of a political dinner, the event will feature eight Presidential candidates and place major emphasis on the Presidential process itself.

Certain to set that tone is the appearance of U.S. Senator George McGovern who will keynote the event.

Said Whitney: "We are honored that Senator McGovern can join us on October 25."

"In 1976, Whitney went on to say, "Iowa again will have the nation's first precinct caucuses and it seems only fitting that at the largest Democratic gathering this year we feature those Presidential candidates whose very campaigns may depend on how well they do in the first heat which takes place here in Iowa."

Scheduled to speak at the dinner which begins at 6:30 p.m. are Presidential hopefuls: U.S. Senator Birch Bayh, former Georgia Governor, Jimmy Carter, former U.S. Senator Fred Harris, U.S. Senator Henry Jackson, 1972 Vice-Presidential nominee Sargent Shriver, former North Carolina Governor Terry Sanford, Pennsylvania Governor Milton Shapp, and

Finger-Lickin' In Japan May Aid Farm Exports

The fast-food business is on the rise in Japan, and it could mean a big increase in exports for U.S. farmers.

Fast-food sales in Japan reached $237 million last year, and Japanese predict a five-fold increase by 1979.

When this occurs, USDA's Foreign Agriculture Service says American farmers could expect about a $100 million increase in exports of farm products to Japan.

Last year, 24 of Japan's 43 fast-food chains were serving Western-style foods like chicken, pizza, and hamburgers.

Eternal Vigilance

Violence on television and children's viewing habits have been twin concerns of mine for some time, indeed, long before I became a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

As a grandfather, my concern is personal. As a member of the FCC, I have a broader concern — that of the public interest. By the time they are 18 years old, children will have spent more time before the television set than they will have in classrooms, it has been noted.

Social scientists say that television merely mirrors the views, values and attitudes that we come in contact with daily in the real world. Thus, the lurid headlines of crime, brutal violence, bloodshed, rapes, that inflame our newspapers, are reflected in an almost endless stream of murders, tortures, gougings, whippings, rapings, sluggings and brutal violence of every sort and description parading across the bloody tv screen in our living rooms.

The U.S. Surgeon-General's Report (1972) titled: "Television and Growing Up: The Impact of Televised Violence" was compiled after two years of effort on the part of a group of distinguished behavioral scientists. It found that while the data are by no means conclusive, there is definite evidence that a "modest" relationship between the viewing of violence and aggressive behavior exists."

A number of psychologists and other experts agree, some of them in much stronger terms. I am convinced by common sense, if not by the voluminous studies of these behavioral scientists that open-ended violence in programming must have a decided deleterious effect on the minds of the impressionable, whether they are the young, or the mentally immature or those who are emotionally tottering on the fringes of fantasy and reality.

The Federal Communications Act which gives the FCC its authority, however, forbids the government (this agency) from laying the heavy hands of censorship on programming. I applaud this and would have it no other way. For if the federal government, no matter how well-intentioned, is permitted to censor some of the bloodier segments of violence from programming, where will it turn next? To the less offensive segments, then to total thought control? I shiver at the thought.

Nevertheless, FCC licensees are responsible for their programming and should strive to tailor this to the positive needs, interests and convenience of their listening and viewing audiences.

Absent such a responsible action on the part of the broadcasters, what can those of us who are parents and grandparents do? Well, we can demand, as more and more concerned parents and kinfolks are doing, that bloodier violence be excised from programming that's shown in our homes during the prime time hours (7 to 11 p.m.) or that it be cut down in a drastic way.

As citizens we must vigorously mount protests while working in positive ways to change the basic value system in our broad community that makes such programming commercially profitable and popularly attractive.

Shabby advertising in children's TV is another area for parental concern. Last year the FCC came to grips with this problem in a Notice for Proposed Rule-making. I voted for the item and issued a concurring statement, declaring: "I agree that constant and contrived bombardment of slick appeals exhorting sugar-coated crunchie-munchies and other fluff to suggestive minds ... is generally antagonistic to the 'educational and cultural development objectives' espoused. Consequently, I sympathized with ACT (Action for Children's Television) and others who have deplored examples of exploitive hucksterism to your youngsters over the public airways."

Eternal Vigilance? That's indeed, the price of freedom. And the child we save may be our own!!

Aphasia--What Is It?

Imagine, says your Heart Association, waking up one morning, and as you begin to speak, the world seems to have turned topsy-turvy. People can't understand what you are saying. You attempt to say one word, and a different one comes out. Perhaps you can't talk at all, no matter how hard you try. When someone speaks to you, it may sound like nonsense.

The man or woman with the condition called aphasia may begin by having an experience just like this one. Suddenly he or she lives in a world of "scramble" communication. Aphasia (a-fa-zhia) is the technical name given for interference with the comprehension and use of language—a condition which can follow injury to the brain. Most cases of aphasia occur after a stroke, although many people with strokes do not become aphasic. Or aphasia can develop from other conditions where brain damage is present.

The first step in understanding the aphasic person is to recognize that he must be treated not as someone with a single problem, but with a whole series of them. Aphasic patients who later recover say that their most distressing experiences was the failure of those around them to realize what a tremendous handicap they had.

The Heart Association is offering a new booklet entitled, "Aphasia and the Family." If you would like a free, single copy of this publication, write to: Iowa Heart Association, 3810 Ingersoll, Des Moines, Iowa 50312.

White outmigration changes racial composition of cities

The movement of whites from central cities of metropolitan areas between 1950 and 1970 was the single most important factor in changing the cities' racial composition, according to a study by Dr. Larry Long of the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

In 11 cities studied, white outmigration was generally much more important than black immigration in raising the percentage black in the 1950-70 period. A higher birth rate among blacks also contributed to raising the percentage black, according to Dr. Long's

In 11 cities studied, white outmigration was generally much more important than black immigration in raising the percentage black in the 1950-70 period. A higher birth rate among blacks also contributed to raising the percentage black, according to Dr. Long's study published today in Land Economics, a scholarly journal that often features articles on population trends in cities and suburbs. The cities included in the study were Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and Washington, D.C.

In most of these cities the percentage black more than doubled in the 20 years and, by 1970, six had populations that were over 40 per cent black: Atlanta, Baltimore, Detroit, New Orleans, St. Louis, and Washington, D.C. In these six cities white outmigration generally accounted for more than 50 per cent of the increase in the percentage black between 1950 and 1970, leading to the conclusion that these cities are in the process of developing black majorities primarily as a result of white migration patterns.

The role of white outmigration in raising the percentage black was generally higher in the 1960's than in the 1950's. The black immigration rate to cities went down in the 1960's, but the white outmigration rate generally stayed the same or went up (New York City is an exception). The result is that white outmigration became even more important as a factor in raising the percentage black in the 1960's.

Differences in rates of natural increase were generally somewhat more important in raising the percentage black in the 1960's than in the 1950's. Birth rates declined between the 1950's and 1960's for both blacks and whites, but the decline was greater for whites due in part to sustained outmigration of whites in the child-bearing years. Thus, these differences increased slightly as a factor in changing the racial composition of cities.

Of the 11 cities, New York and Los Angeles are frequent exceptions to the above generalizations. Los Angeles in the 1950's was unique in that it had net immigration of whites but, by the 1960's, it too had come to have net outmigration of whites. New York is unique because it was the only one of the 11 cities to experience a rise in the black rate of immigration between the 1950's and 1960's. Partly because of this, New York was the only city where black immigration was ore important than white outmigration in raising the percentage black.

As the percentage black was rising in cities in the 1950's, the suburbs were generally becoming "whiter." The percentage black in the suburbs of Atlanta, Cleveland, New Orleans, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and Washington, D.C. went down in the 1950's as a result of white immigration. The percentage black in the suburbs of Baltimore and Detroit went down in the 1950's for an additional reason — as a result of net outmigration of blacks. Partially counteracting white immigration to the suburbs in raising the percentage white was a higher rate of natural increase among suburban blacks.

By the 1960's only three of the suburban populations — those around Atlanta, Baltimore, and New Orleans — continued to experience a decline in the percentage black. In all of the others, the percentage black in the suburbs started to rise in the 1960's, but only by small increments. As more middle class blacks move to the suburbs, Dr. Long sees further erosion of the middle class in cities, thus widening the socioeconomic gap between central cities and their suburbs.

LNG: It'll help this winter.

To help keep your home warm this winter, we've built one of the world's largest liquefied natural gas storage plants near Carlton, Minnesota.

We liquefy natural gas and store it during the summer so it will be ready when you need it most on cold days. And we're also storing gas underground in Iowa, Kansas, Michigan and Illinois.

Storage facilities help meet the harsh demands of winter but they don't create any more natural gas. That's why we're supporting new gas production in far away places like the Gulf of Mexico and Alaska's North Slope. But it will be several years before these supplies become available.

We also need gas from our traditional supply areas — from Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. But Federal controls on the price of new gas at the wellhead have discouraged exploration. Most of our remaining reserves are deep in the ground and costly to develop. Drilling costs are rising and higher prices are needed to finance the deeper drilling.

Removing Federal controls from the wellhead price of natural gas will encourage more exploration and drilling . . . and make more gas available. Higher prices are needed now to insure that enough natural gas is available to us and to you in the future.

We'll continue to develop storage facilities like our new LNG plant and to search for new gas supplies. These projects cost a lot of money . . . that's why natural gas costs more these days, just like all other forms of energy.

We're counting on you to do your part, too, by conserving natural gas and all forms of energy wherever you can.

Tomorrow's energy is everybody's job.

Each program has been planned to be of interest to everyone: a worship service, Community Night, Music Night and Youth Night.

The formal banquet will be held on Friday, October 10 at Younkers Tea Room with Bishop H. Thomas Primm as honor guest. St. Paul is looking forward to seeing their friends from throughout the city during that week.

Business in the Black

By Charles E. Belle

This is the first column by Charles E. Belle, a Harvard graduate economist who is on the staff of a leading San Francisco brokerage firm. The column will appear weekly.

New York Turning Sour

The "Big Apple," as the astute people call New York, is turning sour. Tom Fleming, knowledgeable managing editor of the San Francisco Sun-Reporter & Metro News Group, doesn't believe it's the only apple in the barrel going sour. Indeed a similar smell from other cities reflect New York's problem. Too many poor people in town out of work and too many middle class whites working in town and living out of town.

Stand on any corner of Wall Street in New York, Montgomery Street in San Francisco or La Salle Street in Chicago and watch the money go by. It's headed home for suburbia. Since blacks, browns, and even yellows cannot conceal their color, your counting is as easy as "hiring and firing."

Because New York has some extremely wealthy individuals inside its city limits, its contribution to the federal government coffers is substantial. However, its bills for some of its social programs must be paid for from local revenue sources. The numbers aren't there when it comes to collecting from those who use its streets, lights, highways and, yes, fire and police protection.

These expenses must be met and should be by all those who make use of these services. The only existing method for New York to make ends meet is to request the federal government to equitably share its "take" from the whites who work in New York with all the residents of that city. Failing to do this the city can only cut services.

The "Big Apple" could use some polishing up as probably could a lot of other cities. The police, fire, garbage workers, maintenance workers and city hall itself should start providing jobs for local residents.

There is no shortage of "qualified" workers for civil and non-civil service work in any city in this country. But blacks, browns and their yellow brothers have got to get these jobs. They need these jobs not only for themselves, but to lower the cost of caring for these "prima donnas" who dominate employment, but dodge their financial responsibility. (NNPA)

NCCJ Names Jerome Holland Vice Chairman

NEW YORK — Jerome H. Holland, former United States Ambassador to Sweden, All-America football player, educator and business leader, has been appointed national vice chairman of the National Conference of Christians and Jews (NCCJ).

Dr. David Hyatt, president of the NCCJ, announced that Ambassador Holland would represent the Northeast region of the 48-year-old human relations organization which has offices in 70 cities.

"We are honored that Ambassador Jerome Hollaand one of America's great educational, business and civic statesmen, has agreed to serve as a National Vice Chairman," said Dr. Hyatt. "He long has been involved with the NCCJ and we are delighted that he has accepted an expanded leadership role in the NCCJ. The Conference is indeed strengthened by having Ambassador Holland in this significant position. He is concerned and committed to the ideals of brotherhood and to the goals of the NCCJ. We are very proud that he will be working more closely with other lay leaders and our professional staff."

Dr. Holland is currently a member of the Board of Director of the New York Stock Exchange, American Telephone & Telegraph, General Foods, Union Carbide, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., Federated Department Stores, Continental Insurance Co., Chrysler Corp., General Cigar Co., and Zurn Industries.

He also serves on the Board of Trustees of Cornell University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is Vice Chairman of the American National Red Cross.

DR. JEROME H. HOLLAND

A native of Auburn, N.Y., Ambassador Holland received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from Cornell University and his Doctorate in sociology from the University of Pennsylvania.

Ambassador Holland has been awarded numerous honorary doctorate degrees; received a host of awards for his leadership from local, national, social, civic, fraternal, educational and philanthropic organizations, and has been honored for his athletic achievements. The latter includes induction into the National Football Hall of Fame for his selection as a two-time All-America end.

Fisk Names VP To Interim Post

NASHVILLE Tenn. - Judge L. Howard Bennett, chairman of the Fisk University Board of Trustees, announced that Fisk Vice-President, Dr. Rutherford H. Adkins, has been named President for the interim. This action follows the July 24 resignation of President James R. Lawson which became effective August 18 - the day Adkins officially assumed the post of interim President.

Dr. Lawson had suffered serious illness from late March to mid-July. Bennett expressed the gratitude of the Board of Trustees for Adkins' leadership during Lawson's long illness and made the observation that Adkins continued leadership during the period of seeking a new President will be a definite plus for Fisk.

Bennett indicated that a search committee had been formed, chaired by Dr. Wesley A. Hotchkiss, a trustee and general secretary for Higher Education for the Board of Home Missions. In addition to Hotchkiss the committee consists of four other trustees, two faculty members, one alumnus, and one student. The objective is to have selected a president during the next six to nine months.

Adkins, in accepting the interim presidency acknowledge the difficulty of the task he's been asked to assume but that he accepted and looked forward to the challenge. He pointed out that contrary to recent statements, the life of the institution appeared healthy for 1975-76 and there was high optimism for a successful year.

"We're in the first year of a $1 mil supplemental grant (Advanced Institution Development Program-AIDP) from HEW; the second year of a 5-yr. 1.8 mil (AIDP) grant and we're just coming off a year when over $1.7 mil came from private sources, said Adkins. Most important, he added, it

SMOKED SUGAR

Smoked Sugar: Really Going To Be Smokin'

"Richly melodic," "dynamically exciting," and "funky-class!" are all phrases that have been used to describe SMOKED SUGAR, the dynamic and versatile group which records on the 20th Century Record label.

The four young men who comprise Smoked Sugar met through a 4-H Club in their hometown of Los Angeles, and soon discovered that they preferred making music to raising pigeons. They then called their group the Viceroyes and had one national hit record for a local independent label, which was later sold to Mercury Records.

After finishing high school and doing their stint for the Armed Services, they added rhythm instruments to their act and began to tour. So successful were they, that they parlayed a three-week engagement at Las Vegas' Hacienda Hotel into a three-year stay with the posh Strip establishment.

After polishing their act with the Vegas audiences and expanding their repertoire to 150 songs, the group made their way North thru Washington and Oregon until they found a home in Alaska. They were to remain there only a year before being lured back to the sunshine of Southern California by their original mentor, Frank Robinson, and his partner, Bret Kennedy, who now manage the group exclusively under their "Giant-Pathway" Artists Management banner.

Individually, the members of the group are: Oliver "Ollie" Williams, keyboard player, leader of the group and Aquarian; James Conwell, conga player and Cancerian; Andrew "Jack" White, guitarist and Sagittarian; and Charles Jones, drummer and Taurean. All four sing lead as well as contributing to the harmonious background blend that gives Smoked Sugar their rich, full, very unique sound.

Recently, Smoked Sugar has been playing an extended engagement at the popular Name of The Game Lady night spot in Los Angeles. They also headlined a special concert for the inmates of Terminal Island Prison, visited the children at the Los Angeles Sickle Cell Day Camp, and performed at the Celebrity Basketball Game for the Advance Foundation for Mentally Retarded Children.

With the release of their smokin' new album on 20th Century Records, their tight schedule of personal appearances, and their background of talent and perseverance, nothing can stand in their way. Watch out for Smoked Sugar.....cause they're really going to be hot!

Love Unlimited Records Again

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Love Unlimited, the 20th Century Record's trio of talented young ladies who placed high in the polling of this year's Music Industry's Awards, are back in the studios under the productive genius and guidance of the phenomenal Barry White, recording new single and album materials that have been tagged for an immediate release by 20th Century Records.

"On the Rocks"

Neither STEWART nor WILLIAMS are new faces to TV audiences, but they are, however, creating totally new characterizations for their roles in "ON THE ROCKS". STEWART, a native of San Francisco, started out as a Broadway actor who later made the transition to films. TV fans will remember him from "guest" shots on "POLICE STORY", "MARCUS WELBY" and "HARRY O", among others, but will probably know him best as Lionel Jefferson's uncle on "ALL IN THE FAMILY".

On the other hand WILLIAMS has faced a complete turn around in casting, having been seen as the 'policeman' on "SANFORD AND SON" last season. This year he is the wise-cracking inmate, De Mott, in "ON THE ROCKS". HAL, who came to television playing a wide range of roles from gangster to "super cop", also has a background in the theatre. This season both MEL and HAL will have a chance to show off their expert comedic talents and excellent timing in the hilarious new comedy series "ON THE ROCKS", which promises to become one of the major hits of the new TV season.

20th Century Records Score On All The Charts

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Current record charts in all the music magazines are deluged with record by 20th Century Recording artists. Tall Texan, Leon Haywood has both a single and an album riding high. His latest LP, "Come and Get Yourself Some," is No. 26 on the Billboard R&B charts, and is also rising on the pop charts. Haywood controversial new single, "I Wanna Do Something Freaky To You" can also be found on both the R&B and pop charts.

Funkadelic also spans both the pop & R&B charts, with their album, "Let's Take It To The Stage," holding down No. 13 on the Cashbox R&B roster.

The Fantastic Four have almost carved themselves a permanent place on the R&B charts with their "Alvin Stone" album, which is also breaking onto the pop listings. The single of the same name has risen to No. 29 on the Billboard R&B chart and has spot No. 59 in the

GOING ABROAD IN YOUR 50s

Dear Margaret Brookfield: I am in my 50s and lost my husband two years ago. Before he died, we both did a great deal of traveling, in this country and abroad. We loved it, but since his death I haven't had the heart to get away on my own.

A close friend has just asked me if I would accompany her college-age daughter on a trip to Europe since she and her husband are unable to leave home at present. They would pay half my expenses. The girl and I have always been friendly and she calls me "Aunt K," but responsibility for someone else's having a good time, and at the same time enjoy yourself. There's no need to worry about being a drag on your young friend if you don't insist on her companionship every minute of the day. She'll probably have much more energy than you, so encourage her to see by herself those sights that particularly interest her but have no appeal for you, while you take a nap or catch up on postcards. It's very likely that she'll meet other people her own age who are traveling with parents, thus giving both of you a chance to make new acquaintances.

Bon Voyage!

NO SIGN OF WEAKNESS

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

My philosophy has always been that growing older was a natural event and that one should accept it and not fight it. I've also felt that using hormone therapy for symptoms of menopause was tampering with a normal process and a sign of weakness. I was even relieved when I stopped having my periods, but isn't there some other way I can cope with those hot flashes and night sweats that leave me feeling like a wet dishrag?

N.P.

Dear N.P.:

Your accepting attitude toward growing older is admirable, but taking advantage of the findings of medical science to alleviate some menopausal discomforts is hardly a sign of weakness—no more so than getting immunized against smallpox or polio, or taking some form of insulin for diabetes.

Do see your doctor about your symptoms and if he or she advises estrogen replacement therapy, by all means follow the advice and don't consider yourself a weakling for doing so. Just be glad you live in a day and age when it's possible.

I'm afraid that I'll be a drag on her. What do you advise.

By Sherwood Ross

The life of Haile Selassie, the Lion of Judah, will be weighed by historians in terms of his human qualities, as well as his political acts. He was a mean, chiseling, petty ruler who hoarded a personal fortune of $10-million while his people lived in poverty. His grandeur, though, was his warning before the League of Nations in 1936 that it must stop Italian aggression of Ethiopia.

The League of Nations acted clumsily, failed to impose effective sanctions, and the Italian army of Benito Mussolini slaughtered and subjugated his peoples. Perhaps if the United States had been a member of the League of Nations, originally conceived by President Woodrow Wilson after World War I, the story might have been different.

On the same day the papers announced the death of the 84-year-old Selassie, a dethroned emperor living in disgrace not far from what was once his imperial palace, they reported, too, that the White House refused to turn over to Senate investigators former President Nixon's file on the 1970 assassination of Chilean General Rene Schneider.

To most people the events are not related. But the failure of the U.S. to put down aggression in 1936--despite Woodrow Wilson's high ideals for a just world society--was an act of failed conscience. We did not do what we ought to have done. Now, however, in the Nixon years, the U.S. has emerged as an aggressive, imperialist power. Under Richard Nixon it actively worked to murder Chile's General Schneider and then, with the guidance and leadership of Henry Kissinger, to "destablize" (i.e., overthrow) the elected government of Chilean President Salvador Allende.

What has happened to Chile since Messrs. Kissinger and Nixon, the CIA, and some American labor unions and corporations helped turn Chile from a democracy into a dictatorship constitutes not merely a repudiation of the ideals of world order and justice but an act worthy of Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia in 1936. It was murder, cold-blooded, calculated, sinister, despicable, cruel, and vicious in every way.

Now that Senator Frank Church (D-Ida.) is demanding to know the full story of the White House's manipulation of the Allende overthrow, President Ford is fighting him, trying to limit the scope of the probe. The fact is, President Ford has kept many Nixon men around him, including Secretary of State Kissinger, described in the current issue of Penthouse magazine as the chief architect of the Chilean coup.

The world knows the story of what happened to Chile after Kissinger and the CIA worked the September 1973 coup that overthrew Allende. Writing in the current issue of Penthouse magazine, author Tad Szulc tells Americans: "We must all accept a degree of responsibility for the suffering of thousands of Chileans tortured by their new masters, for the 7,000 Chileans who remain in political prisons, for the military kangaroo courts that are still operating, and for the fact that, contrary to our pre-revolution expectations, Chile's economy is in absolute shambles."

And just as President Ford tries to hide the facts from Senator Church, so did Nixon's henchman, General Augusto Pinochet Ugarte, rule last July to bar a visit to Chile by the United Nations Commission on Human Rights. The U.S. President and the Chilean dictator are in common league against the facts, the truth.

Mrs. Allende, widow of the late murdered Chilean President, has called for the American people to cut off all financial credits and arms sales to the new ruling generals led by Pinochet. That is wise advice. It is also wise advice for the Senate to urge the removal now, and possible trial, of Secretary of State Kissinger on charges of arranging the overthrow of the Allende regime, with its attendant murders and atrocities. Former President Nixon, too, should be called to account for the crimes against Chile.

The U.S., as I see it today, has two choices: we can either dust off Mussolini's old totalitarian flag and run it up over the White House, openly admitting a policy of slaughtering people with whom the White House disagrees, or we can keep the American flag flying proudly, by removing and trying the policy makers in the White House, the CIA, and the State Department who backed the Chilean revolution, and whose hands run red with the blood of thousands of innocent people.

New Once-a-year Birth Control Device

The first once-a-year birth control chemical - a hormone inside an IUD, or intra-uterine device - has been tentatively approved by the Food and Drug Administration and will probably be marketed in the near future.

Shaped like a T and made of a porous, membrane-like plastic, the device contains a long-lasting supply of progesterone - a hormone naturally produced in the female ovaries - to be released bit by bit into the womb to prevent conception.

The Progestasert (the device's trade name) must be replaced once a year. It has been approved for effectiveness and safety, the FDA, says, and needs only approval of labeling and packaging. Final review is expected to take place within two months.

The tentative FDA approval came after an advisory committee review of the results of tests in some 6,000 women in several countries, more than half of them in the United States. The device is being marketed this year in Britain, Canada, Mexico and West Germany, all of which have approved it.

POOR CHILDREN STILL IN NEED OF HEALTH CARE

More than seven years ago Congress passed legislation requiring states to set up, under Medicaid, a health screening and treatment program for poor children. Fewer than 3 million of death of middle-aged women in western countries according to a recent announcement by the World Health Organization.

Mortality, the organization explained, has been persistently high in northern and western Europe and North America, intermediate in eastern and southern Europe and low in Africa, Asia and most of Latin America. Medical science still seeks a better understanding of what causes the disease.

The W.H.O. report stated that "It has now been established that the one significant element... is the protection conferred on a woman by having a first

POOR CHILDREN STILL IN NEED OF HEALTH CARE

More than seven years ago Congress passed legislation requiring states to set up, under Medicaid, a health screening and treatment program for poor children. Fewer than 3 million of the 13 million eligible have received this mandated health care, and the Federal Government has decided to try to prod the states.

Based on the screening already done, at least one quarter of the untreated children require dental care, more than one million need correction of eye problems and more than 30,000 need care for hearing defects.

The Department of Health Education and Welfare can withhold one per cent of the Federal payments for Aid to Families with Dependent Children, a major category of welfare aid, if a state does not comply with the child-health regulations. Recently HEW used that power for the first time.

Most of the states notified were cited for failure to notify those eligible that the services were available and that parents could receive transportation and baby-sitting services if needed to take advantage of the program.

BREAST CANCER LOW IN AFRICA AND ASIA:

Mortality from breast cancer has been increasing in many countries since 1920 and the disease is the leading cause of intermediate in eastern and southern Europe and low in Africa, Asia and most of Latin America. Medical science still seeks a better understanding of what causes the disease.

The W.H.O. report stated that "It has now been established that the one significant element... is the protection conferred on a woman by having a first fullterm delivery at a young age." It has been found that the risk of developing breast cancer is low in women having their first child under the age of 20 and increases with age to become much higher among women having their first child after 30.

INSTANT VIDEO REPLAY FOR STUDY OF STROKES

Instant video replay, similar to the method used in television sports coverage, is now being used to detect the causes of strokes. The technique, called Electronic Radiography, was developed by the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine and it permits "stop action" and "instant replay" of the brain's blood vessels.

According to Dr. Joseph Maroon, of Pitt's medical staff, "It enables us to have a road map of the brain's blood vessels. Various types of instruments can be inserted through very small holes in the skull. Basically, it utilizes a magnetic disc recorder with the routine X-ray equipment to provide instant replay and stop action X-rays of the brain vascular system. The idea is new for neurosurgery."

And you won't have a problem cashing your check because it goes directly into your account. If you're away from home you don't have to worry about your check being stolen or just sitting idle in your mailbox.

Just come in to one of Central National Bank's four offices and we'll help you with the forms and everything—and we'll guarantee that too.

One more thing, at Central National we give you FREE checking if you're 60 years or older. That can save you money, too.

What's New From ISU?

by Ann Harrison

Extension Home Economist

Most people can reduce their home heating bill 15%-40% by installing more insulation. To make such savings, however, they need to spend (invest) more money for insulation — perhaps $200 for a small home; maybe $1,500 or more for a large 2 or 3-story house.

In many houses, added insulation will pay for itself in 5-8 years from savings in fuel. The payoff time may be shorter, or longer, depending on factors such as: amount of insulation at beginning, cost of added insulation, price of fuels and air leakage (infiltration losses).

Once the insulation has paid for itself, it will continue to pay a better return than most savings and investment accounts.

How much insulation is enough is what we frequently hear. The best way to consider this is in terms of R values. R indicates resistance to flow of heat through a material. High R values mean lower heat losses. Recommended R values for economical heating and cooling are: ceilings - R 19 minimum, R 30 better; walls - R 11 minimum, R 19 better and floors (above unheated space) - R 11 minimum; R 19 better.

Fiberglass or mineral wool are available in batts or blankets. They come in a variety of thicknesses and have an R value of about 3.5 per inch. They may be used in the walls, ceilings and floors of new construction or as additional insulation over ceilings and under floors.

Another common insulation is loose fill which can be blown in or ureaformaldehyde foam which an installer needs to apply.

Approximate R values of these materials are: cellulose fiber - 3.7 per inch; glass or mineral wool - 3.0 per inch; Vermiculite - 2.1 per inch and Urea-formaldehyde foam - 5.0 per inch.

Any one considering additional insulation should make comparisons of the amount needed to achieve the desired R value and the cost of that amount.

 ON SPORTS

Football Brings Out
 The Bleacher Critics

Saturday was a perfect football day. I joined the big crowd of over fifty thousand to see the Hawks make their 1975 debut. Well, we all saw Illinois, reinforced by nineteen red shirts who didn't play last year, come out to win, and did.

In case you don't know, a red shirt is a player who, for one reason or another, is allowed to sit out the current year while he practices with the varsity, and gains experience for the next year. These guys had paid their dues and were ready. The Hawk offense didn't show much largely because the quarterback didn't get much of a chance to throw, so he couldn't keep the Illinois defenders off balance.

Some fellows behind me had a lot of fun second-guessing Coach Cummings. Why, they wondered, didn't he start Wellington at halfback instead of the guy that started. When Bus looked good on a couple of runs and scored the TD, they were full of 'I told you so.' They wanted any quarterback to call signals but the one who was in there, and maybe another fellow wouldn't have done much better, because the Illini defense was on the passer like 'white on rice.' I got my fun out of it when the fellows were surprised by the fact that Illinois had a black kickoff man.

The fellow really booted them either clean through the end zone or so high that the entire team had time to get down and cover. This one fellow said he had never heard of a black kicker before. So I turned around and told him that he had probably never heard of black college football. Did he suppose that teams like Grambling, Tennessee State, Florida A&M, and others had white players to come out of the stands to kick the ball for them? Well he just about cracked up laughing, and said he was a little undereducated.

The Future

You have read about the game by now, so what do we think about the future for the Hawks? Well, if they don't slip by Syracuse, they may never win a game. As it is, they might beat Minnesota. Maybe they will tie last year's mark, and that will be it, but I would hesitate to guess who their victims might be.

Drake Bulldogs, Iowa State

If Drake ever learns to hang onto the football, they will upset somebody. They lost a game Saturday that my spies tell me they should have won. They might get 'em next week. Iowa State was in too deep and needed luck that they didn't have to have a chance with UCLA. They might have a better ball club than things look, because it could be that UCLA is among the top twenty teams in the nation. Might get to see them this weekend.

Back at the ranch

Here at home, the high schools were knocking heads. Tech can be glad they got Dowling out of the way, because now they can work on the rest of them, and they just might beat somebody. I still look for them to hang one on somebody maybe more than once. Over at East, the Scarlet had a tough time giving the game to Valley in overtime, but they finally made it in a game they could have won in regulation time. North and Roosevelt had one of those games, and North slipped by the Riders, Fowlers and all. It still looks like the battle will be for second place in the Metro, with just about anybody getting the call. And do you know, East has a better ballclub than their mark of 0-2? You go to these games, and try to sit where you won't be seen too much. Well, you just try it. Could do better with a sign telling who I am, because then maybe nobody would believe the sign.

Candidates Call For Continued Protection of Black Students

NEW YORK, — Peter Camejo and Willie Mae Reid, Socialist Workers party candidates for president and vice-president, sent two campaign fact-finders to Louisville, Kentucky on September 7.

Returning after five days, campaign aides Nan Bailey and Peter Seidman reported that only the deployment of armed guards on every bus and at every school had allowed the reopening of schools without serious incident. Boston Socialist Workers mayoral candidate Norman Oliver reported that black students in Boston were bused to and from the public schools in safety during their opening days only because nearly 1,900 police officers patrolled the streets near the schools.

After meeting with these campaign fact-finders, Camejo and Reid issued the following statement:

"The federal government must use all necessary force to protect black school children being bused to achieve school desegregation. The deployment so far of substantial police power in Boston and Louisville, including federal and state forces, is a victory for black rights and a setback for the racists. The fact that only now, under protection of armed guards, can black students in these cities ride to school in relative safety is proof positive that force is necessary. Even now, the threat of lynch-mob terror remains a daily reality for blacks in Boston, Louisville, and other cities where anti-black hysteria has been whipped up by anti-busing organizers.

"Just a few days ago frenzied mobs in Louisville were burning buses and stoning black students with impunity — just as they did in Boston last year. The more sophisticated apologists may invent code phrases about "neighborhood schools" and "quality education," but the real message is scrawled all across South Boston and Charlestown: "Niggers keep out" and "Kill niggers." The use of military force is the only way to prevent these hate-crazed bigots from making good their threats.

"School desegregation is the law of the land. Yet President Ford repeatedly incites racist resistance to desegregation with his antibusing statements. Just last month Ford reiterated, "I don't think forced busing to achieve racial balance is the proper way to get quality education." This statement was cheered by racists across the country. While Ford covers his racist antibusing stance with talk of "quality education," he hastened to veto a bill appropriating $7.9 billion for education.

"The record of Democratic party officials has been no better, and many have been in the forefront of the racist offensive in Boston. Kennedy and the other liberal Democratic politicians and presidential candidates have said as little as possible, refusing to stand up forcefully in defense of black civil rights.

"In the upcoming municipal elections in Boston, Socialist Workers party candidates, headed by Norman Oliver for mayor, have taken a forthright stand for school desegregation, for busing, and for federal troops to enforce desegregation and protect black students.

"The NAACP and the National Student Coalition Against Racism have taken the lead in organizing actions such as the May 17 march on Boston, the August 10 Carson Beach picnic, and other marches, picket lines and rallies across the country that have helped to put the pressure on the government to uphold the law and defend black rights. This pressure must not be relaxed. The federal and state forces must be kept in place, increased, and used to protect blacks wherever they are threatened.

"As Socialist Workers party candidates for president and vice-president, we salute the courageous black students who have braved bricks and bottles to assert their right to attend desegregated schools. We pledge to continue campaigning with all our might for enforcement of school desegregation, for massive federal funding for education, and for the use of whatever force is necessary to protect the rights and safety of black people."

VA Increases Loan Mortgage Interest Rate

The Veterans Administration increased its home loan mortgage interest rate ceiling from 8 1/2 per cent to 9 per cent, effective September 2.

The increase was made in accordance with a joint VA and Department of Housing and Urban Development policy of keeping the maximum rate in line with actual mortgage market conditions and to keep discount points to a minimum.

The increase was necessary to permit the VA to maintain its mortgage interest rate ceiling at a level consistent with the demands of the loan market, a spokesman said. If the interest rate is allowed to fall behind the market, the availability of money for VA loans becomes seriously impaired, he added.

The increase to 9 per cent will narrow the gap in relation to the loan market. In addition to improving the yield of such loans, the increase in the interest rate will also reduce the discounts for VA loans.

Since VA regulations prohibit payment of discounts by veterans, the discounts must be paid by the seller of the house. When discounts are high, many sellers refuse to sell to veterans and thereby prevent many veteran buyers from acquiring homes to meet their needs, the VA said. The present increase is expected to improve the availability of funds for VA loans as well as improve the housing outlook, according to the federal agency.

The VA loan guaranty program assisted almost 300,000 veterans to become homeowners in the last year. In the 31-year history of the GI loan program, there have been 8.8 million loans guaranteed, amounting to $113 billion. About 54 per cent already have been paid in full.

Special Workshop For GOPs

DES MOINES — A special workshop on campaign techniques will be held for Fourth District Republicans in Oskaloosa in early October.

Fourth District Republican Committeewoman Pat Bain of Des Moines and Committeeman John Tone of Ottumwa said the seminar, which has been designed to acquaint Republicans with upcoming programs, will be held at William Penn College in Oskaloosa on Saturday, October 11.

Mrs. Bain said the workshop is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.
with registration beginning at 8 a.m. She added that interested Republicans are encouraged to contact local GOP leaders to register, but that registrations will be accepted on the morning of the workshop.

"We believe this will be an informative session for all Republican leaders, workers and prospective candidates in the Fourth District. Anyone who wants to be involved in the Republican election effort next year should make plans to attend," Mrs. Bain said.

She said that several programs which will be implemented during the coming months will be explained, and that participants will have an opportunity to ask questions about party projects. Among topics on the workshop program, she said, are campaign techniques, candidate recruitment, voter registration programs, county and precinct organization, fund-raising and volunteer recruitment.

Mrs. Bain said that she anticipates a "good give-and-take workshop in which the participants will be able to generate ideas to contribute to a successful campaign effort in the coming months. "If we are going to win in 1976, it is essential that as many Republicans as possible become familiar with the techniques that result in victories."
