Proposed Strategy Improves Opportunity For Blacks

News Briefs

ALI PREFERS GOOD SCHOOLS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali says he prefers good schools in black neighborhoods to forced busing for integration.

"Most of all, what I'd like to see one day is peace between our people," Ali said. "But I can't help but think that the people in Mississippi and Alabama must be having a great time looking up here where this is such a big problem."

PUPILS TELL OF SLURS

BOSTON, MASS. — Black pupils at South Boston High School have told federal Judge W. Arthur Garrity they are subject to racial slurs and taunts at the newly integrated school.

The testimony from three black students came Friday at a hearing in U.S. District Court on a motion by black parents asking Garrity to close the high school because of racial trouble.

VISITS FORD

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Daniel Patrick Moynihan went to the White House for a talk Monday with President Ford that was expected to influence his decision on whether to resign as U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

Issued in honor of America's Bicentennial, the "Salute to Black America" checks are to be sold through banks across the nation, with a percentage of the proceeds earmarked for charity.

New Check Series Salutes Black American Community

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.

"Salute to Black America," a new bank check series commemorating contributions by blacks to all walks of American life, has been created and introduced for the nation's Bicentennial by J. Wallace Gaines of Oklahoma City.

Currently being made available to banks across the nation for public sale, the new checks salute contributions of blacks to a series of areas, including business and professional fields, entertainment, civil justice, the military services, government, religion and sports, Gaines said. Black women and the Congressional Black Caucus also are honored, and a special tribute is paid to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Other Personalities

Among the personalities whose portraits appear on the checks are the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; Georgia State Representative Julian Bond; Mrs. Coretta King, widow of Dr. King, and entertainers Aretha Franklin, Nancy

Wirtz, NMI Report Offers Proposals

Blacks stand to gain especially from an education-work strategy proposed by former Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz and the National Manpower Institute (NMI) in a report that will be released Friday.

Offering a wide range of proposals to develop "a lifetime continuum of education and work opportunities" for all Americans, The Boundless Resource: A Prospectus for an Education/Work Policy devotes particular attention to young blacks for whom career guidance and counseling are inadequate and adult blacks whose access to and advancement in the work place are limited by insufficient schooling.

Unemployment Rates

Wirtz and his NMI associates maintain that "although the high unemployment rates for black teenagers have been widely publicized, the increasing seriousness of the situation is not yet generally recognized."

In 1955, the black teenage unemployment rate was 1.5 times the white rate, they point out. In 1973, it was 2.4 times that for white youth.

The Prospectus goes on to say that for all blacks "the unemployment rate runs consistently at just about twice the rate among whites."

"A real affirmative action equal employment opportunity program," the authors add, "must include for those adults who have been discriminated against, at least the offer of a chance to acquire that education or training that they missed out on and that has now become the qualifying condition for so many more jobs."

Solutions To Problems

The Prospectus, which presents a number of solutions to blacks' education-work problems, was derived from a two-year study conducted by a special council made up of 24 national leaders from education and business. The council was assembled by the National Manpower Institute, a group founded in 1970 with the expressed aim of "helping to better meet the nation's manpower needs."

This council, under the stewardship of Wirtz, generally agreed that learning and earning should be treated as part of the same process, not separate, unrelated functions. They conclude that communities should bring the worlds of education and work together through the creation of local education-work councils.

Our Civil Rights Commission Continues to Flounder

It is unfortunate that the Iowa Civil Rights Commission has carried on an uproar within its rank for more than a year directed, in part, against the work of its executive director.

An organization set up to deal with injustices brought on by violations of the civil rights on the basis of race, sex or religion, the body itself does not seem to be able to solve its own problems. They don't seem to agree on what is going on.

Its members talk too much on the outside about the divisions within the body which helps to keep up the nonsense.

One would wonder whether this is a body designed to enforce the law or a commission hung up on criticizing the efficiency of its employees. Some members have even suggested that they would like to know how the Negro community feels about the efficiency of the secretary.

The commission itself should know whether Tate is doing a good job for they are the ones to have the facts on which to base their judgment.

Frankly, the commission has not functioned well for many months. The previous executive got in hot water with legislators who appeared to represent the Iowa Manufacturers Association at the time the appropriation for the commission was being considered. He found himself in trouble with little support from the commission itself and little from the Negro leaders of the community upon whom he should have called on for support.

The commission has never had a strong base. It has never had a strong business executive as a member who had the ear of the Iowa Manufacturers Association. (Included among the members of the original Des Moines Commission one later became president of the Iowa Manufacturers Association, and also manager of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company).

I realize that the wild uproars of the 1960's frightened a lot of people who, heretofore, had been active supporters of civil rights for minorities. It shook the improved relationship that existed which was making great progress only to have it slowed down because many do not have the courage to go all the way in support of civil rights.

Like the NAACP, the commission has an important job to do and with courage and support by those who believe in what our government proposes to stand for, it will accomplish its objectives. But it cannot do a good job without the support of the public and particularly those that have the responsibility to help get the job done.

Thanksgiving Day

Success stories are often produced out of tragic situations that leave some on their feet after all that has happened. Thanksgiving Day, first observed by the Pilgrims, was a means of thanking the Lord for the wonderful crops they had harvested enabling them to carry on another winter. The previous winter had done the Pilgrims great damage.

And while all of us are not engaged in raising crops, we can be thankful for whatever success we had in our individual endeavors. Like most of our holidays, which have some particular method of observance, many people will attend the church of their choice or watch some athletic event either at the spot of the play or television. But all will participate in the long standing practice of serving Thanksgiving dinner.

For many months in the past years, this country has been involved in conflicts with countries from one side of the continent or the other. This year, the situation is different and further our good offices are being called upon to help other nations settle their differences without the use of armed forces. Some will complain that our efforts are too farflung but the fact that America is being looked upon as a leading nation among the democracies the mantle naturally falls upon her shoulders. For all these, we should be thankful and look forward to even an improvement over what has been done in 1975.

Clean Up and Continue Student Loan Programs

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has come under considerable criticism from Congress because of the large amount of delinquencies in the student loan program.

This is unfortunate that many students are beginning their careers in life with a bad mark on their character because they have failed to meet their obligations or have not seen fit to make adjustments that would allow them to work their obligations out just as it is being done with business organizations.

Phila Psychic Says:

Kissinger Going Out, Barbara Jordan Going Up

WASHINGTON (MHA) — U. S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is on the way out of the present administration and government service while dynamic Congresswoman Barbara Jordan of Texas is going up to a higher position in national government. Petite, nationally famous psychic Lillian Cosby made this prediction while appearing over WTOP-TV November 17.

Ms. Cosby, who predicted in January of this year that Nelson Rockefeller would not run for either top office in 1976, told the Washington TV audience that Gov. George Wallace of Alabama would be placed in a very high government post. She also said that crime will rise to stunning heights in the next few months.

On the national level, NMI supports the creation of a Work Institute for stimulating collaborative effort to maximize work satisfactions and meaning.

Suggestions

The Prospectus also suggests that the following could and should be done within the next two years:

- Creation by federal agencies of a comprehensive Outlook and Career Information reporting system to keep records on the training force and to project future manpower needs;

- Establishment by communities of procedures ensuring that all high school and college students receive at least five hours per year of career guidance and counseling from both professional trained and work- or service-experienced counselors;

- Development and administration of programs providing youngsters with the opportunity for at least 500 hours of work or service experience;

- Institution of a comprehensive program of community internships and

Iowa WIN Program Gets Additional Funds

The program to help Iowa welfare recipients get jobs and become self-supporting has received an additional $600,000 to operate through June, 1976, it was announced recently by the U.S. Department of Labor in Kansas City.

Richard G. Miskimins, regional head of the Department's Employment and Training Administration (formerly the Manpower Administration), said that the funds go to the Iowa Employment Security Commission for the Work Incentive (WIN) program.

Through WIN, employable welfare recipients register for basic education, skill training, job placement assistance or other services which help them off the welfare roll and onto a payroll. During the quarter that ended September 30, 579 Iowa WIN enrollees entered employment.

work apprenticeships, as well as recognition of a considered break in the formal education sequence;

- Inventory of the extent and effect of laws, practices and customs that constrain or otherwise influence people's movement between education and work;

- Coordination of the policies and efforts of national and state bureaucracies dealing with education and work;

- Removal of all state laws and regulations that bar adults from elementary and secondary public education;

- Revision of unemployment insurance laws and regulations to permit and encourage the use of periods of unemployment for training and education, and revision of the public employment program and concept to include a significant training and education element; and

- Improvement in current employment and unemployment statistics to provide a more reliable basis for measuring problems and determining future policies on work.

Wilson, James Brown and Leontyne Price.

Others include Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind.; New York Congressman Charles Rangel, and Dr. Berkeley Burrell, president of the National Business League.

Worthy charities will receive a percentage of the proceeds from sales of "Salute to Black America," Gaines said. Purchasers will be invited to direct $1 from each check order to their favorite charities.

"We believe this 'Salute to Black America' represents a fitting and important tribute to great black people of America, as well as a unique personal check series and a fine means of contributing to one's favorite charities," Gaines noted.

Gaines said a goal of 1,000 offering banks and 1,000 check orders has been set for the first year of sales, 1975-76, which would generate an estimated contribution of more than $1 million to charity organizations. Gainescheck, Inc., bank marketing firm formed by Gaines, will produce and distribute the check series, as well as collect and distribute contributions to benevolent organizations.

Banks in a number of cities have agreed to begin sales of the checks immediately, with other sales agreements pending, Gaines announced. "We have received good cooperation from the National Bankers Association and many of its member banks in developing our project," he noted. "We expect to be moving forward rapidly toward offering the checks through many more financial institutions across the country."

Introduction of "Salute to Black America" culminates more than two years of work by Gaines in initiating and developing the check series. Illustrations utilized on the checks are the work of Gary Thomas, artist from Cleveland, Ohio.

Blacks' Destiny In Own Hands

Jan. 1 Deadline for VA Questionnaires

Annual income questionnaires were mailed with Veterans Administration pension checks to approximately 15,000 recipients in Iowa in November, the VA reported today.

Bob Winters, director, VA Regional Office, Des Moines, said completed questionnaires must be returned to the VA by January 1 to ensure continued receipt of benefits. He said questionnaires went also to parents in the state receiving Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC) checks.

Winters said pensions are paid to veterans and widows of veterans with non-service-connected disabilities. Amount of the monthly stipend is based on the annual income of the recipient. Also governed by annual income are amounts of DIC payments to certain parents of veterans who died of service-connected causes.

With some exceptions, pensioners are required to file income questionnaires annually. Those 72 years of age or older are exempt from filing, but must report income changes as they occur.

He said that some beneficiaries, who normally are exempt, will receive questionnaires because of cost-of-living increases in annuities. Prompt return of

Good and Bad News

Modern medicine has provided near-miracles in extending people's lives, but the blessings are not entirely unmixed. Average life expectancy has increased from 47 years in 1900 to 71.9 today, according to the December Reader's Digest. That's the good news. The bad: we may be living longer, but we're not necessarily enjoying the extra time. Thirty-eight per cent of our over-65s suffer some kind of chronic condition that limits their activities. Of these, fully half have serious problems, and five per cent are homebound. And about a third of all elderly Americans are also plagued by poverty.

And the interesting thing about a heat pump is that except for a few of the coldest days of the year, it furnishes more energy in the form of heat, than is put into it in the form of electric power. That means energy savings for you.

Ms. Ruth Gaines is the only black female instructor teaching at East High.

Ms. Gaines teaches communication media and drama at the Des Moines high school. She also advises her own mind and dance group called Silent Vibrations.

As a 1965 graduate of Dowling High School in West Des Moines, Ms. Gaines was selected outstanding senior in her class by students and faculty.

Ruth Gaines

After graduating from Dowling, she attended Clark College in Dubuque, Iowa and later attended the University of California where she received her masters degree in drama.

Hobbies

Ms. Gaines' hobbies are going to plays and movies, sleeping partying and reading. She teaches drama and speech parttime at the Des Moines Area Community College (Area 11).

Presently, she is working on the collection of black history in Iowa to be shown on Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network at a later date.

5 Years at East

For five years, Ms. Gaines has been teaching at East and reflects some of her views on the school.

"I haven't seen as many changes as I would like to have seen," she said. "I would like to see all the faculty make extreme efforts to encourage blacks to become involved in the main stream of East High. Black students will come out for school activities only when they know they have a chance of making it."

"The pantomime group," she continues, "is one activity that blacks know they can be in. Thus other blacks are continuing to try out (for the group)." Every club and organization should be like this this year she stated.

If you would like for Ms. Gaines' Silent Vibrations to perform for your school or organization, please contact her at Des Moines East High School.

Have a Happy Thanksgiving.

Des Moines TECHnicalities

by
Leslie Talley

The New Iowa Bystander welcomes the addition of Leslie Talley as a contributing writer for our School News Section. Talley is a junior at Des Moines Tech High School. Students interested in writing news on minority students at their school should call the New Iowa Bystander editor at 277-8736 for interview.

Des Moines Tech High School students have a lot of things going for them. Tech may not have an Afro or similar club yet, but black students here are getting their thing together.

Tech is really a great help to the City of Des Moines and to blacks because, at least at Tech you are put on co-op and if you plan to go on to college, the money is a great aid.

You can say Tech has a lot of black students, but I feel if you want to learn you will learn no matter where you go to school or who goes there. No one can say, "Well, I don't want to go there because there are too many blacks," for if you want to learn you will.

Black students at Tech do participate in activities outside the regular course of study-which is really good.

This year's sophomore class brought in the most black students in Tech history.

Tech has a young man, named Alvin Hill, fighting for a music segment oriented toward the black community on Tech radio KDPS.

Alliance Awards Educators of the Year

NEW ORLEANS, LA., — The National Alliance of Black School Educators Saturday presented its Educator of the Year Award to Dr. Robert L. Green and Dr. Charles H. Smith for their commitment to quality education.

The awards were presented by Dr. Charles Townsel, president of the Alliance and superintendent of schools, Del Paso Heights School District, Sacramento, Ca., at the concluding banquet of the Third Annual Conference, where some 1,500 leading educators were in attendance.

In making the presentations, Dr. Townsel, pointed out that Dr. Green, who is dean of the College of Urban Development at Michigan State University, and Dr. Smith, who is associate director of Social Sciences for the Rockefeller Foundation, received the Alliance's most prestigious award for their "notable impact on the advancement of the quality of education for Blacks in the United States."

"The Alliance since its founding has made a strong commitment to the improvement of standards of education for all children and minority children in particular. It also has provided an avenue for recruiting qualified school personnel in general and specifically black personnel," said Dr. Townsel.

He explained that both recipients at their respective institutions have played important roles in "significantly raising the academic achievement level of all students by placing emphasis on that type of learning which builds positive and realistic self-concepts among black students."

Dr. Charles H. Smith

Dr. Green, who is professor of educational psychology at Michigan State and founding dean of its College of Urban Development, had served as education director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference under Dr. Martin Luther King.

The author of numerous books, including "Racial Crisis in American Education," Dr. Green serves as chief educational consultant to the NAACP legal staff and Advisory Council to the Executive Board, National Association for Financial Aid to Minority Students.

Dr. Smith, who has served as associate director of Social Sciences of the Rockefeller Foundation since 1968, previously served in the U.S. Office of Education as special assistant to the Commissioner of Education. He also served as Comprehensive Program manager for Cities, Bureau of Elementary and Secondary Education, U.S. Office of Education.

A member of the Board of Trustees of the National Urban League, Dr. Smith is chairman of the National Urban League Education Committee. During the presidential term of Lyndon B. Johnson, he served as Chief Consultant for the President's Advisory Council on the Education of Disadvantaged Children and also served as Chief Advisor of the President's Council on Youth Opportunity.

The keynote speaker at the three-day event's closing banquet was Vernon E. Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League.

Dr. Townsel also announced to the delegates that Dr. Deborah P. Wolfe, professor of education, Queens College of the City University of New York, had been elected the Alliance's new president.

Elder Richard Daye, host of the Gospel Train presents a list of the top twenty recordings played on the early morning gospel program which is aired on Channel 10 Hawkeye Cablevision.

Gospel Train is designed to bring the very best and latest in Black Gospel music to the community. The program also features area church news, community affairs and interviews with important black people in our community. It is aired 7-8 a.m., Monday through Friday.

Study Shows Changes In Minority Expenditures

Patterns of minority personal expenditures are showing perceptible changes linked to rising incomes, increased educational attainment, and the lifting of discriminatory barriers, according to a new study published recently by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

From 1966 to 1973, the proportion of nonwhite personal expenditures on food, alcohol and tobacco declined from 28.3 per cent to 25.8 per cent, for example, while expenditures for medical care rose to 6.2 per cent in 1973 from 5.3 per cent in 1966.

The new study, "Minority Markets," prepared by the Department's Bureau of Domestic Commerce, discusses these and a variety of other historical patterns in non-white personal expenditures and analyzes the share of market held by minority spending in over 20 industry markets.

"In view of projections showing that minority personal consumption expenditures will rise from $77 billion in 1975 to nearly $120 billion in 1980, minority markets will be increasingly important," Samuel B. Sherwin, deputy assistant secretary for Domestic Commerce said.

"In order to reach this market, businessmen must be familiar with its locations and its social and economic characteristics.

"This report analyzes recent trends in minority consumer expenditures, and the factors influencing these expenditures."

In addition, an appendix of 25 tables provides the latest available (1966) data on minority share of markets for hundreds of foods, beverages, tobacco products, shelter, house furnishings and equipment, appliances and housewares, utilities, clothing, jewelry, personal services, transportation, medical care, recreation, cars and other durables. It also includes tables of projected minority income, personal consumption expenditures, and population by region and state.

Copies of the 70-plus page booklet, "Minority Markets," are available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, and from many U.S. Department of Commerce district offices at $1.35 each.

HEW Converts Regulations On Health Services

Since the regulations were proposed for public comment March 25, comments have been incorporated to clarify the regulations and to avoid lowering the quality of health care provided the beneficiaries.

Otherwise, the regulations stand as proposed and provide that states, to be eligible for funding, must include in their health plans for such beneficiaries five types of projects:

Persons interested in copies of the regulations should write to the Director, Division of Policy Development, Bureau of Community Health Services, Health Services Administration, Room 6-17, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20852.

Ebony Fashion Fair

produces the Fashion Fair annually for the benefit of local charities. The 1975-76 fashion event will travel to more than 160 cities and will appear in Des Moines December 4 at Hoyt Sherman Place, 15th & Woodland. It is sponsored in Des Moines by Phi Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc.

Flick Undergoes Title Change

"Peace Is Hell," a motion picture directed, produced, and starring Fred Williamson, has been retitled and is set to open nationally Thanksgiving Day, November (27) under the title of "Mean Johnny Barrows," according to an announcement from Atlas Films, distributors of the motion picture.

"Mean Johnny Barrows" is a sensitive story dealing with the problems facing a black Viet Nam war hero seeking honest employment upon his return to his hometown, and who, because of desperation, hires himself out as a 'hit man' in a war between two syndicate families seeking control of the town.

Williamson is cast in the starring role of "Mean Johnny Barrows," and is supported in this action-filled motion picture by Roddy McDowell, Stuart Whitman, Luther Adler, Tony Caruso, R. R. G. Armstrong, plus Aaron Banks (karate expert) and a cameo appearance by Elliott Gould.

The motion picture also debuts Jennie Sherman in her first full length feature motion picture role.

IEBN Airs Special On White House Tapes

The White House Transcripts, a 90-minute special of selected portions of the transcripts release by former President Nixon, will be broadcast on the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network, Tuesday, December 2 at 8 p.m. The telecast can be seen on all IEBN channels: 11, Des Moines; 12, Iowa City; 24, Mason City; 27, Sioux City; 32, Council Bluffs; 36, Waterloo; and 36, Red Oak.

Included in the program are the significant differences as noted by the House Committee of the Judiciary and the June 23, 1972 conversations, the revelation of which led immediately to Nixon's resignation. The production has been re-enacted by professional actors who resemble the actual participants physically and vocally.

The producers point out that the program presents the actual words without editorializing and great pains have been taken to represent the events with objectivity and fairness. Where significant differences between the White House version of the transcripts and the version released by the House Committee of the Judiciary occur, the action on the screen is stopped and both versions are given.

Spoken and written introductory disclaimers and titles are superimposed over the scenes at regular intervals and clearly label the segments as dramatizations. Special care has been focused on avoiding gestures and inflections that impute meanings not implicit in the written transcripts. Editorial techniques such as reaction shots, split screens, cutaways to such things as American flag lapel pins, etc., have been avoided in the production.

White House deletions presented a special problem. Expletives and deleted adjectives have been covered by "bleeps" just as in normal television procedures. Inaudible or unintelligible references are indicated on the screen.
