Scabies on Increase In D.M.-Polk County

An unusually high number of scabies cases were seen, treated, and reported in Des Moines-Polk County in 1975, according to Dr. Julius S. Conner, city-county health director.

"In 1975, 150 cases were reported compared to 19 for the year 1974," Dr. Conner said.

Scabies is a skin disease caused by a tiny mite, or parasite, which burrows into the skin to lay its eggs. It can appear between the fingers, around the wrists, on the breasts, over the lower abdomen and the buttocks, and on the genitals. It usually causes such intense itching that the disease scabies is often called "The Itch."

This disease is spread when some of the mites leave one person's body and bore into the skin of another. The mites or parasites can get from one person to another through handshaking, close physical contact, clothing and bedclothing, etc. A case of scabies often spreads through a whole family.

Extra efforts toward maintaining personal cleanliness will help prevent the occurrence of scabies. Frequent handwashing and

Caucuses Allow Citizens Part in Nominations

DES MOINES — The leaders of the state's two major political parties issued a "citizen's challenge" calling for a significant turnout at more than 5,000 precinct caucuses across Iowa on Monday, Jan. 19.

The two leaders, Republican State Chairman Tom Stoner and Democratic State Chair Tom Whitney, said Iowans will have a "unique opportunity to play a critical role in the 1976 election year by voicing their support for Presidential candidates and on vital issues."

Rights Commission

Holds Monthly Meet

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission will hold its regular monthly meeting in Des Moines on Wednesday, January 14, at 3 p.m. and on Thursday, January 15, at 9 a.m.

Both Commission meeting dates will be held in the Commission Conference Room, Third Floor - Liberty Building, located at 418 Sixth Avenue.

The agenda for the Iowa Civil Rights Commission will include staff reports and items for discussion.

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission wishes to extend an invitation to the public to attend these meetings.

bathing and frequent laundering of underwear and bedclothes are good preventive measures to follow.

Not only is the disease very uncomfortable, especially at night when itching is more intense, but the scratching that it causes can lead to secondary skin infections. Effective treatment is available.

Persons who get scabies should go to their usual source of medical care: family doctor or clinic. Also, the doctor who treats the patient will give details about how to make bedding and clothing safe to use again.

The leaders said that "since the Presidential nominating process begins in Iowa, we are urging all Iowans to make a significant contribution to better government during 1976 by attending one of the caucuses."

"At a time when confidence in government is on the decline and people are becoming more critical of government, we challenge people to demonstrate their concern for responsive government by attending one of the caucuses," they said.

Stoner and Whitney issued the challenge recently at a joint news conference in Des Moines. The news conference and related efforts to encourage political participation are a continuation of the cooperative efforts by Republicans and Democrats to involve Iowans in the governmental process.

On Jan. 19, Iowa will be the first state in the nation to conduct caucuses leading up to the nomination of the respective Presidential candidates and the leaders said it will be a chance for Iowans to have "a meaningful role in the political process."

"We believe that the precinct caucuses, being conducted in 2,600 precincts throughout the state, is the best place for involvement to begin. It is the caucuses in neighborhoods across Iowa where people can be heard and participate in the initial stages of the political decision-making process," they said.

Ronald Reagan Wishes To Transfer Responsibility

Gov. Ronald Reagan is promising, if elected, to balance the federal budget by returning to the states such services as health, education and welfare. These are services which the federal government either set up, developed or took over in order to insure uniform operation in each of the states.

Many states are not in sound financial condition now even though revenue sharing and other federal grants make up a large share of their operating expenses. This is true of counties and cities also. In other words, former California governor Reagan wants to balance the federal budget, but unbalance many state government budgets.

In fact the proposals Reagan makes do not set well with thousands of voters who are recipients of checks from these services month after month and which they doubt would be available should the responsibility be turned over to the states.

A large number of citizens will not be voting for former Gov. Reagan because of his program of leaving to the states the responsibility of carrying out obligations being administered by the federal government, even though he is saying now that the Federal government would give the money to the states to administer it.

When Will Strikes Carry America

Teachers in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, have been on strike for six weeks. A federal judge has issued an order that they return to their jobs, but the president of their union has declared that the order will not be obeyed.

There are rumors going on that members of the armed services are planning to form a union which is, to my mind, ridiculous because the foundation of a military establishment is discipline in the ranks of its members.

Imagine a strike in such operations as Viet Nam, Korea and even World War II. In two of these instances there was considerable grumbling by many people and desertions and all kinds of tricks were played in order to avoid serving when many of the men were called up.

But judging from the action taken by teachers, policemen, firemen and other public service employees, in which many broke contracts not to strike or refused to obey court orders to return to work, it is easy to see how a union in the Defense Department would wreck havoc in our military operations.

It seems that we are rapidly coming to be a country consisting of complete union labor organizations with one group vying against the other with the result that the whole country will consist of fragments rather than a solid United States.

Let People Settle Their Own Differences--Ford

Speaking before the American Farm Bureau in St. Louis, Missouri, Monday, President Ford stated that our foreign policy favored each country getting out of Angola and allowing the people to settle their own problems.

With this I fully agree and go further. That policy should prevail with all the countries where we are trying to settle their problems.

Experience has shown that we have spent a lot of lives and money helping foreign countries, but today, those expenditures have not paid off for our friendship is at a low ebb in many of them.

Postal Service Still Having Troubles

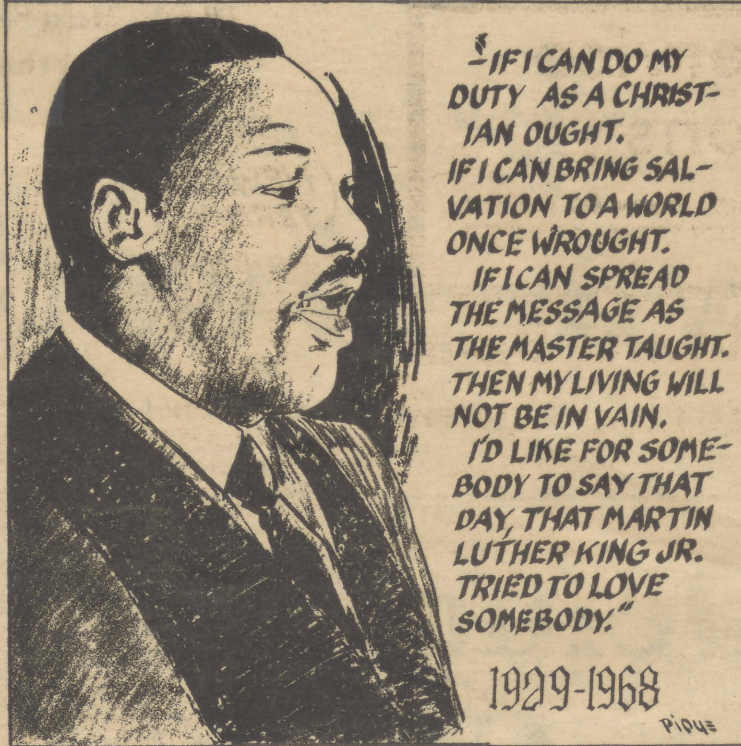

First class mail went up by 30 per cent last month because officials said there would be no money for immediate payroll without it.

It is difficult to understand the postal authority which was set up to take postal administration out of politics and with the promise that the job would be done cheaper by an independent government agency.

This rise, along with other mailings, is hurting the post office because private concerns are taking over much of the business and doing the job cheaper. This is particularly true with regard to parcel post services as United Parcel and other concerns cutting into the business and doing the job cheaper and in most cases much quicker.

Then too, the federal government is taking away a lot of the business by depositing Social Security and other checks of recipients directly in the banks which relieves them from mailing thousands of envelopes to the recipients.

The postal service has been a great convenience to the public even though Congress has been required to make up deficits in its operational expenses each year. But with long experience the service has undergone under both systems it should enable the operators to do a better job at this time without constant raises in prices.

BLACKS CAUGHT IN FOOD TRAP

Despite record crop production, the relative cost of food is likely to go up this year. Retail food prices in 1976 might more than double the four per cent prediction of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Wendell Earle, professor of marketing at Cornell University, says retail food cost can rise as much as 10 per cent. The average retail cost of a market basket of U.S. produced foods climbed to $126 in the first nine months of 1975. The farmer is not totally to blame for this barn burner. The culprits are the columns of middlemen developed through detente.

Farm productivity will score a record high this year with individual operators now concentrating on fewer and larger crops or livestock enterprises. Both corn and wheat sales abroad will surpass the one billion bushel mark by wide margins this season.

The U.S. will sell over 80 million metric tons of grain this year, double the amount exported four years ago and over half the total movement of grain in world trade. Soviet buying of U.S. wheat in July of 1972, inaugurated increases in bread prices.

Severe winter kill in early 1972, had created the need for the Nixon agreement. Summer drought sent Soviet buyers to New York with a $750 million line of credit to get huge orders of U.S. wheat.

China joined the act, buying U.S. wheat for the first time in many years. Today, detente demands that we send cereal to East Germany, Poland and Romania which will be nearly five times higher than last year.

Higher food prices can only partially be placed on the farmer for asking the higher price available in the world market. Only $33 of 1975's $126 price jump went into the farmer's purse. Like pack rats, middlemen take 51 per cent of the price you pay for a half-pound of cheese. These bottlers, meat packers, transporters, processors, wholesalers, grocers rip you off for 80 per cent of a one-pound loaf of bread. (NNPA)

President Implements Program On Consumers

President Ford has decided to implement a unique new program to open up the governmental process to citizens and groups from every element of society.

To carry out this experiment, the President has instructed the seventeen federal agencies which administer federal human resource programs to conduct regional conferences during January to discuss opening up the governmental process through specific new agency Consumer Representation Programs. These January conferences will provide hearings on the plans for citizen-consumer groups and the general public.

While arrangements for speakers, conference content and details of financial support will be handled out of Washington, the President recognizes that the best level for organizing and delivering logistical support and assembling advice on regional consumer issues is at the local level.

Therefore, area Federal Executive Board chairmen working with the White House have been requested to coordinate efforts in each selected city and we have requested the assistance and advice or organizations in the community which have demonstrated capability and interest in dealing with consumer problems at the grass roots level.

Forum Discusses Caucuses' Issues

Polk County Republican Chairman John A. Merriman announced Friday that Polk County Republicans will sponsor an Issues Conference, Saturday, January 10, 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in the downtown Ramada Inn.

The conference is open to the public without charge except for those wishing to have lunch. The cost of lunch is $3.75.

Merriman said that the purpose of the conference is to provide a forum to discuss important issues which citizens will be able to vote on at precinct caucuses on January 19. The conference will include four panel discussions on these topics: personal liabilities v. security; conserving natural resources v. energy needs; government resources and public demand for services; and Republicans-where are they?

The conference chairman is Terry Swanson. Each panel will contain local experts discussing some of the major problems facing the government. Merriman urged all citizens to attend and obtain information about different opinions so that they can decide where they stand on January 19.

Taxpayer Residence Basis For Revenue Sharing Funds

Individual Internal Revenue Service (IRS) taxpayer returns for 1975 include questions on residence intended to provide an accurate basis for equitable distribution of general revenue sharing funds, according to the Office of Revenue Sharing (ORS) of the U.S. Treasury Department.

Such funds are returned by the federal government to state and local general-purpose governments under terms of federal revenue sharing law. The amount each government receives is based, in part, on population and per capita income estimates made by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The new questions on the income tax form are designed to identify the taxpayer's legal residence, which may differ from his or her mailing address. Authority to ask the new questions is provided in Section 6017A of the Internal Revenue Code.

The information from the residence questions will be used by the Bureau of the Census to make biennial population and per capita income estimates needed to insure that States and communities receive the amounts of general revenue sharing funds to which they are entitled. For this reason, all taxpayers are urged to provide the information as an assistance to their states and communities. The Internal Revenue Code authorizes a fine to be imposed for failure to provide the residence data, unless reasonable cause is shown for such failure.

Information provided to the Census Bureau, under law, can be published as statistical totals only, and no information about a person or individual firm may be disclosed to any person, institution, or government agency. This law of confidentiality under which the Bureau operates applies also to the residence data to be collected on IRS returns.

The new questions are labeled A, B, C, and D, and the wording of each follows:

Question A — In what city, town, village, etc., do you live?

Question B—Do you live within the legal limits of the city, town, etc.?

Question C—In what county and State do you live?

Question D—In what township do you live?

In regard to Questions A and B, directions on the form explain that every municipality has defined legal limits. If the area where you live is unincorporated, or is outside the legal limits of the place named in Question A, check "No" to Question B. If you are not sure whether you live within the legal limits, check "Don't Know" to Question B.

Question D, the form also explains, applies only to townships or equivalent areas in New England, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and Wisconsin.

Taxpayers who have difficulty in answering the residence questions are instructed to seek assistance from their local government officials or to write the Bureau of the Census, Residence Question, Washington, D.C. 20233, or to call collect at 812-948-2111 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. (EST) Monday through Friday.

FCC

More About FCC's Equal Job Program

Jobs on all levels continue to be the number one concern of black folks, other minorities and women. And at the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) we are no less concerned about this chronic problem than others in the private sector.

With unemployment remaining at a statistically official nagging high of more than 15 per cent, about double that of whites (the figures are much higher according to the Urban League, especially for black youths in the ghetto, where the League says it soars to about 40 per cent), blacks are more concerned than ever about the simple fact of how to earn a basic living.

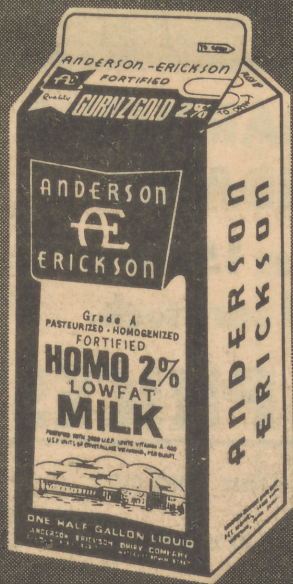

At the FCC, we are concerned not only with jobs for minorities but upgrading in those jobs as well. Since 1973, shortly after I came to the Commission, we have had an equal employment opportunity unit to deal with job problems within our agency. Mrs. Curtestine Boardley, a young black woman and mother of two, who was an employee counselor in the Office of Personnel, was appointed to head this unit July, 1973.

Mrs. Boardley says there has been an increased effort to upgrade women, minorities to supervisory and upper grade level positions. There has been more emphasis in trying to restructure jobs in order to upgrade people who are in the lower grades, also.

But there has not been, in her opinion, enough effort to create enough career ladders so that people can move from a particular series into another one where there would be greater mobility and opportunity to move into better job slots, provided they have the ability to perform in the new slots after receiving the proper training, in government or outside of it, in college, etc.

She points out there is certainly much greater representation of blacks and women at the grade level of eleven and above, now than before. As of March of 1975, the total employee complement was 1,971. Of that number, 439 were black, 21 were Spanish, 2 were American Indian and 18 were Oriental-American.

The Oriental Americans are fairly well distributed

Governor Ray Reappoints Morris To Merit Board

Gov. Robert Ray has reappointed James B. Morris, Jr., a Des Moines attorney, to a second term on the State Merit Employment Board.

The appointment expires in July 1981.

The board administers the Iowa Employment System which includes adjudication of promotions and complaints of employees who are under the merit system.

The first successful attempt to treat an unborn child for an often fatal, inherited disease was carried out in 1973 by grantees of The National Foundation-March of Dimes. The child, diagnosed before birth as having a rare metabolic disease, is healthy today.

One in 14 American babies more than 200,000 a year are born with birth defects, says The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

throughout the grade structure, with the highest being a GS-14. The highest black is at the GS-16 level, and the highest Spanish is a GS-12. The highest American Indian is a GS-12, and the highest woman is a GS-17 super grade, administrative law judge. The woman, of course, is white. (Pay scale range, GS-11, $16,255; GS-17, $37,800).

The bulk of women employees, like the majority of blacks and other minorities, are clustered in the FCC as they are throughout the governmental structure, at the lower grade levels, with black women concentrated as clerk typists, in the secretarial field and as applications examiners, Mrs. Broadley explains.

But we do have the black male in such occupations as attorney, engineer and electronics technician, so this picture is helped at the upper grade levels, she says. A few black women are entering the agency as lawyers now, so that picture is bound to begin to look better in the future, she adds.

However, the upward progress of black attorneys and engineers has not always paralleled that of whites as a whole in supervisory positions in becoming heads of divisions, or chiefs of branches, to say nothing of becoming chiefs of bureaus.

The FCC has about 11 organizational units, five bureaus — broadcast, cable, common carrier, safety and special radio and field engineering—and six staff offices—review board, office of opinions and review, office of hearing examiners, office of the general counsel, office of the chief engineer and office of the executive director.

As we enter the Yule Season the importance of having a job that will help keep a family's body and soul together becomes more pronounced. More on this next week.

Black news is good news

WHEN WE'RE IN TROUBLE YOU'RE IN TROUBLE

For more than 66 years, black Americans, faced with threats to their civil rights, have turned to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The NAACP response to these threats would fill volumes. It ranges from the end of lynchings, the abolition of jim-crow, the 1954 school integration decision, equal access to public accommodations and the extension of voting rights, to guarding the rights of blacks on the aircraft carrier, Kitty Hawk, and participation in winning the largest back-pay award ever for black steelworkers in Alabama.

The means to maintain and increase civil rights gains for all Americans are threatened because the NAACP and its programs are now throttled by inflation and the continuing national economic crisis. Yes—when we're in trouble, your civil rights are in trouble. Only you and your like-minded fellow Americans can help maintain the Association in times of stress as the firm and unwavering civil rights bulwark.

Des Moines TECHnicalities

by
Leslie Talley

Well, the vacation period is over and everybody is back at school. The students who do not participate in any 2xtracurricular activities really do a lot at Tech.

They are rather busy. In th2 halls, you will probably see students laughing and talking. Tech has a student center which is kept "jumping" by the black students. Students must present their ID cards to enter the student center, except during the lunch period.

Last year Tech had a big air hockey table, but this year it was removed because it was broken. The student center also had two pinball machines. This year there is only one. A foosball table was in the student center but it was taken out.

There are two ping pong tables in the center. Ping pong at Tech is a different story for the tables are never empty. Last year the center was the site of the school's ping pong championship tournament.

Randy Western, a 1975 graduate, won the championship in a field of 28 contestants. Terry Braggs and Nate Butts, both 1975 graduates, placed second and fourth respectively. Western and Butts are enlisted in th2 U.S. Army. Butts was Tech's 1974 homecoming king.

If a ping pong tournament were to be held, there is a chance that a very special young lady might place. Her name is Valinsica (Linsay) Frazier. Frazier is really very good. I am not saying that other young ladies would not make it, but Linsay really has a chance.

Tech's student center has two pop machines, a potato chip machine and a candy machine. But the thing that keeps our student center jumping is the juke box. The juke box has a lot of up-to-date songs by black artists.

If you happen to come to Tech during the lunch period and look around, you will find a lot of blacks dancing. There is one young lady, Debbie Mays, who always tries to get people to dance. I think she was born dancing.

While some students are dancing some blacks are playing cards. If you can play spades you have it made. All you have to do is pull up a chair. Last year, black students played spades a lot but Yvonne McGregor, a 1975 graduate, always had a bid swiss game going.

But some black students like to study so the library is open during the lunch period.

During the spring, when it gets warm, the black students are usually outside or down at a park on Ingersoll Avenue. Actually the rest of the black students at Tech High keep very busy if just standing around talking and laughing.

From Roosevelt by Sheila Carson

Roosevelt High School is a predominately white school, but black students seem to be involved in as much as or more than white students in the area of school support.

Sophomores are more interested than any other class. We have three black sophomore cheerleaders. Monica McGregor, Bobbi Jo Minor and Charlotte Vaughn are the trio of young black ladies who worked hard to make the cheering squad and need some recognition for their efforts.

They practice at 7:30 in the morning and cheer on Monday nights for our sophomore boys and girls teams.

McGregor is interested in gymnastics and is in Roosevelt's gymnastics club. Next year, she thinks she will tryout for the gymnastics squad.

Minor, like Monica, is interest2d in gymnastics and would like to tryout for the gymnastics team also. Vaughn is undecided on whether to join gymnastics but Charlotte is interested in the sport.

Camp Fire Girls

Spend Holiday

In Willkie Area

The West Area of Camp Fire Girls held Holiday Vespers in which each girl contributed a can of food to be used by Willkie House for a dinner for senior citizens during Christmas.

Each group of girls made decorations for a Christmas tree which was purchased by the West Area and given to Willkie House.

Camp Fire Girls also held a special activity for girls and boys at Willkie House during the vacation period. One afternoon, Virginia Lee Cunningham of the Camp Fire staff taught participants how to make mints.

The following day the group took the finished mints along with some fruit (for patients who could not have sweets) to the Normandy Hills Nursing Home and visited with the patients—wishing them a happy new year. They returned to the Willkie House and enjoyed eating some mints they had made.

Lois Hall is the district director who serves the Willkie House area. If anyone would like to work with a group of Camp Fire Girls in either Willkie House area or Model Cities area please contact Mrs. Hall at the Camp Fire Girls office, 244-1181, ext. 213. If any girls in grades 1-8 are interested in participating in the Camp Fire Girls program please call Mrs. Hall.

"The advertising agency that advertises" has a new name . . .

LaGrave Klipfel

Edward LaGrave President

Ron Klipfel Executive Vice President

Now, we're a corporation, and Ron Klipfel moves up from account executive to Executive Vice-President. Since Ron joined us, we have added a large number of new clients while keeping old ones. (UFS/United Federal Savings, Winpower Corporation, and Forman-Ford Paint have been with us since we started in 1962).

Sales have increased for 12 of our 13 years, always at a profit. Most of our clients have similar growth records.

1975 was our best year ever . . . just about $1 million, putting us in the top 12% of the nation's 5,000 agencies in size.

In 1964, we were elected to membership in American Assn. of Advertising Agencies, one of 4 Iowa firms and the first in Des Moines to be given this highest professional recognition an agency can achieve.

We advertise ourselves . . . always have. We believe in advertising, and we agree with a large Cleveland agency: "Look for an agency that regularly advertises its own services. If it doesn't have enough faith in the effectiveness of its own work to take its own medicine, why should you trust it to spend your money?"

Media people tell us they like the way we handle our client's money . . . and our own: no slow pay, no accounts receivable. Promises made, promises kept.

When can we start working with you?

ENTERTAINMENT WORLD

FLOATING THIRST QUENCHER—The wackiest boat ever put afloat is the Pepsi-Cola bottle boat which will be shown at this year's Chicago Boat & Sports Show. Of course, the usual array of more than 600 other boats, motor homes, and travel exhibits will also be on display when the 43rd annual five-day exposition opens its doors at McCormick Place, January 21-25.

Rosey Grier Changes Fields

Coming to Des Moines to encourage voter participation among blacks while campaigning for presidential hopeful Sargent Shriver is Roosevelt Grier, entertainer and former football player.

Though he is presently shining in the limelight of an entertainment career, Grier spent his childhood in Cuthbert, Ga., where he sang spirituals in his church at age five.

Named after the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, he began his sports career at Rochelle (N.J.) High School as the star of the varsity football team. He moved on to Penn State where he won honors as an all-American lineman.

In 1956, he was drafted into the ranks of professional football where he played for 12 years for the New York Giants and the Los Angeles Rams.

He left football in 1967 following the injury of an Achilles tendon. Grier then turned to the entertainment field.

He has written, published and recorded more than 20 songs, which has earned him guest appearances on television as well as contributing to his achievements on the screen.

He has hosted his own syndicated television program and performs in nightclubs and on college campuses throughout the country. Grier is currently recording for A & M records.

In addition to his credits as an entertainer, Grier is also on the board of directors of the Joseph Kennedy Foundation for Retarded Children.

He lives in Brentwood, California and will travel here with his wife and child.

Noted black illustrator Jerry Pinkney is congratulated by Jack Yogman, president of Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc., at an exhibition of Pinkney's paintings for Seagram's Bicentennial Black Historical Calendar. The paintings, shown in the famous Seagram Building on Park Avenue in New York, depict the important contributions of Black patriots in America's struggle for freedom and the events in black history which led to personal and national freedom. The illustration in the background calls attention to the fact that by 1778 a full ten per cent of George Washington's soldiers were black.

LOOK ON SPORTS

 Big Ten Went Bowling

Now that all of the experts have taken a crack at analyzing the bowl games, it is my turn. How do they figure Oklahoma as number one? The Sooners lost to Kansas, which in turn got whopped by Pittsburgh, or doesn't that one count. Maybe they were the best ballclub in the country, but not on the strength of the bowl games.

Who would have thought that a major team like Michigan would complete more passes to its opponents than to its own receivers? And, yet, the Wolverines might have pulled it out if they had gotten a slower call on that behind the goalline interception. But, says our expert, they never should have passed in the first place. With two losses in bowl games, does that mean that the Big Ten is at the bottom of the heap?

Stunned at Lost

Everybody says that old Woody Hayes pushed the panic button when his club got six points behind. I disagree. That same passing game worked for the Buckeyes against Michigan. It just seemed that Greene wasn't as sharp as he had been. And I have to differ with the folks who say the man was acting the part of a poor loser, or a petulant old man or a few other adjectives.

Speaking from experience, I know, or at least can well imagine what was going through Woody's mind as he took that long walk across the field to congratulate the winning coach. All of his plans and dreams of a national title had gone, and the man no doubt was hurt as much as one can be. That walk across the field must have seemed like a walk into hell. After one of those stunning losses, you don't talk to people because there isn't much to say.

They ask silly questions, such as "What went wrong?", and "What would you do differently if you had it to do over again?" How do you answer them? So you avoid them and become a poor loser, but then, who really likes to lose? Show me anybody who likes to lose. Some people can carry their disappointment better than others.

Get up for each other

But, do you know, I really believe that both Michigan and Ohio State play their entire season for the game with each other, and that any game after that is an anti-climax. So they never really got up for their bowl games. For them the season ended with their big game in November. I think they play the whole season with their eyes on their meeting, and work towards that like it was the end of the world. Maybe if they had caught their bowl opponents before they played each other things might have been different.

Basketball, Anyone?

It finally happened. The Hawkeye bubble burst, but still they have a good mark to date, even if they did run into just about the hottest shooter around for one night. There really isn't much you can do when a fellow gets a hot hand as Furlow of Michigan State did. About all you can do is hope he breaks a leg, and that didn't happen.

Did you notice how many of the home teams won in the Big Ten openers? Looks as if that is going to be the deciding factor in the conference race. And the favorite, Indiana has survived some squeakers. People who are supposed to know say that the ability to pull out the close ones is the mark of a champion. It could also be the mark of a ballclub that isn't as strong as it is thought to be.

Somebody is going to get them and maybe throw the race into a scramble for a while, at least. But the Hoosiers ought to win it because nobody is good enough to beat everybody else. The Iowa club is supposed to finish fourth, and maybe do better than that. A lot depends on how they come out the next few road games. If they can break even on the road, they will be well up in the title chase.

Drake has to get one win on the road to get started. They do all right at home, but have yet to win one away. They nearly did in St. Louis but just couldn't quite pull it off. And the Bulldogs seem to have a better ball club than their record would indicate. Maybe they will get going.

What can you say about Iowa State? No matter what they do, the Cyclones come out on the short end. I would guess they are in the familiar rut where they get off to a good start and then something happens to sink their hopes. It is so easy to say "Here we go again." Clubs or people on losing streaks do that and nobody knows what will turn them around. Bet Coach Trickey wishes he knew.

Grambling Tops At Box Office

GRAMBLING, LA. — For the fifth straight year, Grambling State University achieved remarkable results at the box office to lead all Division II college teams in attendance with 372,807 fans in 11 games.

Much of the credit for the coast-to-coast success can be attributed to shrewd publicity and promotional programs, plus the phenomenal success of Coach Eddie Robinson.

He has developed a mystique that few football programs anywhere enjoy.

Robinson currently boasts the second best record among active coaches, topped only by Bear Bryant of Alabama.

In 34 seasons, the Grambling mentor has won 245, lost 83 and tied 11.

Grambling has played before more than 1-million fans in the last five years.

It was the universal appeal that was instrumental in luring a record crowd of 73,241 into the Superdome for the Southern University game, an achievement that few reasonable observers will attempt to minimize.

In two games played in the Superdome this season, the G-Men drew 134,812 fans.

Grambling holds football attendance records for the Superdome, Astrodome and the mini-domed Convention Center in Atlantic City, N.J.

Previous records were set in the Astrodome with a crowd of 53,662 in 1973, followed later the same year with a turnout of 12,043 in the Convention Center for the Boardwalk Bowl.

The Tigers are scheduled to appear in the new domed stadium in Pontiac, Mich. next fall.

Terrors Have Tough Effort

A basket by Gracie Edmonds lifted the Maple Street Holy Terrors to a 42-41 victory over a Fort Des Moines Open Bible team in Interchurch Girl's Basketball action Monday night.

The Terrors led the Ft. Des Moines team by ten points in the first half, but were outscored 23-18 in the second half.

Pat Collins led the Maple Street team with 21 points. Donna Ferguson of Ft. Des Moines led all scorers with 25. Her teammate Chris Dineman, netted 12; Tami Dineman scored 4 points.

Kim Donnelly and Edmonds rounded out the Terrors scoring with 11 and 10 points respectively.

The Holy Terrors defensive efforts were led by Donna Anderson, Lynette Butts, Kim Sharp and Terrie Collins.

With a record of 5-1, the Terrors face First Christian next Monday at 7:30 in the last scheduled game of their league. Tournament action begins January 19.

All games are played at First Christian Church, 25th and University.

Bisons Lose In National Soccer Finals

Failing to show the spirited play and the crisp passing that has been its trademark, a crippled Howard University team was soundly whipped by Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville 3-1 in the NCAA soccer semi-finals.

To conclude Howard's last weekend, Brown University shut out the Bison booters 2-0 in a lackluster consolation contest the following day.

The University of San Francisco, using eight foreign players in its starting lineup, swarmed all over Southern Illinois to win the NCAA soccer championship 4-0. Last year the championship was won by Howard 2-1 in a four overtime victory over St. Louis University at Busch Stadium in St. Louis.

Visiting Malawi Priest Speaks At Masses

"Malawi is known as the Scotland of Africa," so spoke Father Dominic Musasa, visiting Des Moines this week from Malawi in East Africa.

Malawi is a Third World nation of 5 million people, with cities not unlike Iowa's in population. It is an agricultural country with corn as the basic crop.

With the help of Taiwan, rice is being introduced as a new crop. "We fight the three great enemies—ignorance, disease and hunger," Father Musasa stressed.

"When someone mentions that Malawi sounds like 'Hawaii,' I reply that we have 500 miles of beach—Lake Malawi is second only to Lake Victoria and," Musasa added, "Mt. Maluanje is 12,000 feet, second only to Kilimanjaro in Kenya at 20,000."

"American Christians often think of Africa as mission territory, yet the United States has, for instance about 49 million Catholics while Africa has 50 million. In fact, Africa is 25

Father Dominic Musasa per cent Catholic and that includes all of North Africa which is all Moslem."

Father Musasa speaks of his nation enthusiastically in terms of economics, social advance and spiritually. "Like Brazil we have carved out from scratch a beautiful totally new capitol at Lilongwe. And now we work for a reincarnation of our faith by the clergy of Malawi and of Africa!"

The Second Forty

(A forum about mature women)

by Margaret Brookfield

Have you a problem as a mature woman, or with one? For advice write Margaret Brookfield, Information Center on the Mature Woman, 515 Madison Avenue New York, N.Y. 10022.

A Show of Hands

Dear Margaret Brookfield: I hate the thought of showing my age—I'm 50—so I've kept my skin lubricated, my hair styled and tinted, and my figure trim. Now, however, I'm getting those tell-tale brown spots on my hands. Is there any way to get rid of them?

H.S.

Dear H.S.:

The changes in pigmentation that produce the brown spots on one's hands can't really be reversed, but some cosmeticians advise using lemon juice to try to bleach them.

If you use nail polish, use the lighter shades or colorless polish, so you don't emphasize your hands. You might also avoid big rings and jangley bracelets. But don't be self-conscious and try to hide your hands, as that will only make them more conspicuous.

Keep up the good work on your skin, hair, and figure, but please don't develop the "I hate growing older" attitude. That will put age lines in your face and a tenseness in your movements faster than the passing years will.

Bladder Infections—a Sexual Problem?

Dear Margaret Brookfield: I seem to notice a direct relationship between having sexual intercourse with my husband and the many bladder infections from which I suffer. It's getting so that I can't enjoy sex with my husband for fear that I'll have another infection and it's creating a real rift in our marital relations. Can sexual intercourse contribute to these infections, and if so, is there anything that can be done about it?

F.W.

Dear F.W.:

Scientists at the National Institutes of Health have documented the fact that such infections can be related to sexual intercourse. They suggest that this is because it makes it easier for bacteria to enter the bladder.

They have found that a single oral dose of an antibiotic immediately after sexual intercourse may be helpful in preventing bladder infections. I would suggest that you tell your doctor about your problem since he or she is the best judge of whether such treatment would be appropriate for you.

Heart Salvage

Artificial pumps and chemical injections in the critical hours immediately after a coronary attack can save the heart muscle from its most dangerous damage, a Harvard University specialist says. The new salvage measures, learned by studying experimental heart attacks produced in laboratory dogs, have been described as "exciting and encouraging" by researchers working on the stubborn problem of heart failure.

Dr. Eugene Braunwald, head of the Department of Medicine at Harvard Medical School, says modern skill and space age instruments in cardiac care units have cut the death rate from the fatal arrhythmias, or abnormal flutterings that often turn a heart attack into a permanent stoppage. Heart failure, or a general weakening of the pump to the point where circulation falters, is a complication that has resisted the advance of science.

Braunwald and other researchers knew that when a heart attack occurs, blood vessels nourishing the pumping muscle are blocked, leading to death by starving of large areas of muscle. And the greater the amount of muscle tissue death, they noted, the more likely the heart would fail. Until recently it was believed that once the crucial blood supply to the heart muscle was blocked (usually by clots), the damage was done and irreversible.

Breast Cancer

Treatment of breast cancer with radiation has proved to be as successful as mastectomy in some women studied at Harvard Medical School. Drs. Eric Weber and Samuel Hellman reported recently on treatment of 100 patients with localized breast cancer over a five-year period.

Most of the patients were elderly and infirm and unsuitable for massive breast surgery. A few were wives of physicians or young women who refused to have a breast removed. Weber and Hellman's report follows similar reports from other centers which have shown that radiation therapy may be as successful as radical surgery in the treatment of breast cancer. (NNPA)

NW Bell Announces Progress For 1975

Record calling totals and several major service improvements highlighted the state's telephone story in 1975. And a continuing heavy investment in telephone facilities helped Northwestern Bell keep pace with Iowa's growing communications needs.

An average of 6.5 million local calls were processed by Bell offices each day in 1975, a boost of 300,000 over 1974. Long distance calls were also up over 1974, with Iowans placing 161 million for about an eight per cent increase. Additional call-handling equipment was installed in many locations to meet the increased calling load.

Bell's year end figures were announced by William A. Stauffer, vice president and chief executive officer for Iowa. "We think we're a more efficient company than a year ago," he said. "For example, we're serving more phones with fewer people. Our 1.38 million phones served is a gain of 53,500 over 1974. But the number of employees is 7,622, or some 220 less than 1974."

Stauffer said Bell continued work on several projects designed to improve service quality and reliability. "We installed new electronic call-handling systems in Waterloo, Marshalltown and western Cedar Rapids and continued work on several others." The electronic systems, he added, are less costly to maintain, yet provide a variety of new services and handle more calls in a given time period than other systems.

Rural service has also improved, according to Stauffer. The number of Bell-served eight-party customers declined in 1975 from about 21,600 to 18,000, a aerial wires and poles are removed." During 1975 more than 44,000 poles were eliminated, while 1,500 miles of underground cable were placed.

The company's business customers benefited in 1975 from the introduction of several new communications systems. Use of equipment that sends data over telephone lines continued to grow, as did the number of Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS) lines.

Twelve new company buildings or additions were completed or being built in 1975. They were designed mainly to house additional call-handling equipment. The cities involved are Davenport, Des Moines, Dubuque (two additions), Marshalltown, Ottumwa, Sheffield, Sioux City, Spencer, Waterloo, West Des Moines and Winterset.

Stauffer also cited a change in the way Bell processes customers' service orders, issues bills, records payments and keeps service information updated. "We've computerized our record keeping system," he noted. "And we're performing those jobs more efficiently and more accurately."

Altogether, service improvements brought Bell's Iowa investment to over $875 million. That's about $649 for every phone the company serves in the state. New construction necessary to provide those service improvements totaled $114 million in 1975.

Northwestern Bell and the Bell System contributed some $282 million to Iowa's economy during the year in new construction, payrolls, taxes and the purchase of goods and services.

Many Iowans still have an urge to roam, a final statistic shows. To gain 53,500 telephones, Northwestern Bell had to install about 237,000 phones.

Government Planning Cancer Alert

Since one of every four Americans probably will develop cancer, the government is working on a cancer alert to tip off the public about suspicious chemical agents that may cause cancer but have not yet been thoroughly tested.

Ever since recent studies showed 25 per cent of all Americans will get some type of cancer during their lifetime, there has been pressure to get quick publication of laboratory findings about tested chemical agents and compounds.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department is considering a plan to publish memos about research. "The idea is to let people know results exist, but we don't know what they mean," said Dr. Ian Mitchell of the agency.

Smallpox Now Only in Ethiopia

The battle to eliminate smallpox around the globe is almost won, according to an announcement by the World Health Organization. The organization said Asia is now free of the disease and Ethiopia is the only country still reporting cases. Bangladesh, the last Asian country with smallpox, was declared officially free of the disease on November 12th.

WHO, a specialized agency of the United Nations, began its eradication campaign nine years ago when 31 countries were considered breeding grounds for the disease, suffering more than 2.5 million cases each year. "In the ninth year of the 10-year campaign, Asia has been cleared of smallpox and Ethiopia is the last country in the world with infection," WHO said.

"This is a very historic milestone — this was a great killer disease, there was no cure for it," WHO said the program will have cost $83 million by the time it is

CARD OF THANKS

The family of William E. Rife, Jr. wants to share this thought with you. Perhaps you sent a lovely card or sat quietly on a chair; perhaps you sent a funeral spray, if so, we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words that any friends could say; perhaps you could not come at all, just thought of us that day. Whatever you did to console our hearts, we thank you so much whatever the part.
