AFRICARE Says:

Black Americans Need African Information Link

Black VP
LUBBOCK, TEX — Maj Gen. Lucius Theus, second highest ranking black officer in the U.S. armed forces, said recently in Lubbock that if a black man wanted to make a bid for the White House, "I definitely think that he should be given a fair opportunity to try."

Gen. Theus was commenting on Dr. Martin L. King, Sr.'s prediction that a black man was going to be the vice president of the U.S. in the next four years.

Black Stuns Machine
TUSCALOOSA, ALA — Cleo Thomas, a 19-year-old senior honor student from Anniston became the first black president in the student government's 62-year history at the University of Alabama.

Thomas' victory marked a stunning defeat for the "machine"—a political coalition controlled by fraternities that have dominated the university's campus politics for more than a half-century.

It was a turning point for the University of Alabama and its muddy racial image, most campus political observers agreed.

AFRICARE, HABARI Sources On Key Issues Help Inform Constituents

WASHINGTON (NNPA) — Black Americans must utilize the tools of communication and data most available to them to better understand their relationship to what is happening in Angola and elsewhere in Africa.

That was the consensus arrived at during workshops at the First National Conference on AFRICARE held here last week.

AFRICARE is a private, non-profit organization founded four years ago to help improve the quality of life in rural Africa. Its director is C. Payne Lucas, a former Peace Corps official. There are chapters in 17 cities.

While it gets support from some large corporations, it is said to be the first major effort by Black Americans to lend a helping hand to their African brothers and sisters, mostly through small contributions.

World focus now on Angola raises anew the nature of those special links and how to more effectively mobilize them. To help bridge the gap of understanding, the Black Press and black-oriented radio stations will be asked to join in a cooperative effort to inform their constituents of the key issues concerning events in Africa.

An important tool in this service is HABARI, an audio service of the African Bibliographic Center and the Washington Task Force on African Affairs.

HABARI is a nationwide telephone facility which reports seven days a week on global African affairs, Congressional activities on Africa, U.S. Foreign policy toward Africa, economic affairs and general information of interest. There is a transcript service which is an alternative mode of communication, provided on a daily, weekly, monthly or annual basis.

HABARI can be reached by calling (202) 659-2529 day or night from any point in the country. The information is free. The telephone expense, however, is borne by the caller.

25th Anniversary Banquet

The Des Moines Commission on Human Rights and Job Discrimination observed its 25th anniversary at a banquet at the Fort Des Moines Hotel February 26.

The committee in charge arranged an excellent program which included an address by Arthur A. Fletcher, assistant to President Ford for Urban Affairs; a reproduction of some of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s addresses and the reading of three winning essays by fifth and sixth grade students on "How I Would Integrate the Public Schools."

Business institutions responded well to an invitation to help finance the venture, but they failed to show up to hear the messages. This, to me, was very disappointing for it is they who are generally challenged for equal opportunity for employment of the minorities and, also, who generally point the direction in which the community goes.

The commission came into being partly because of the plea of a member of the chamber who later became a member of the commission and the work of several organizations adding strength to its beginning. It cannot be effective without both social workers and business working hand in hand to bring about proper human behavior and the elimination of job discrimination. The commission has held its own through these 25 years and with the support of the community it can do an even better job.

Secrecy In Civil Rights Government Should Be Abolished

Recently an employee of the Civil Rights Commission filed a complaint of sex discrimination against the commission's executive director complaining that even though she had served three-and-one-half years with the responsibility of training new employees and directing the office generally, she had not been given the raise comparable that other employees had received.

The complaint was made to the Iowa State Merit Employment Commission. However, on the day set for hearing, it was announced that the matter had been settled.

Under the law governing the commission the results of the settlement could not be made public.

When the law was passed, because of the strong lobbying by opponents of such legislation, it was agreed that all such matters should be kept secret so as to not embarrass one charged with racial discrimination.

This part of the law should be changed. It should no longer be an exception to the right of the public to know what is going on in government.

It is a reminder of the operation of the old civil rights law which provided for $1,000 fine or six months in jail or both. Invariably, violators waived to the grand jury, where everything is secret, and nothing further was heard from the case.

Spearheaded by the NAACP and other individuals, representatives in their campaign pledged to change the law during the 1923 session reducing the penalty to a $100 fine or 30 days in jail or both. This required no grand jury secrecy.

Subsequently, charges were filed against a number of establishments; they were convicted and paid fines. This broke the back of discrimination in public places and led to other advances which helped bring about the Civil Rights Commission.

Hiding behind the law helps to keep the public ignorant of what goes on in the conduct of the government by its public officials.

Block Grants of Federal Funds Undesirable

Speaking to a group at the Chamber of Commerce last week, Arthur Fletcher, an assistant to President Ford for Urban Affairs, said that he was in the process of visiting a number of cities in order to determine the best method of spending the public funds which the federal government is giving the states.

While all kinds of projects are being financed by federal funds to supplement what the cities can do for their constituents, the main thrust was directed towards providing the necessary guidelines to the extent that those who needed help most should share equitably in them.

Admittedly, funds in aid of capital and social progress have been misused in many instances because insufficient planning had not been done in advance to carry them out.

The President favors block grants to the states charging them with responsibility for devising the best means of securing results. This, of course, Congress is opposed to and in this instance I agree with them because past records show that some states have not dealt evenly with

Time For Action In The Black Community

Progress Calls For Struggle

DES MOINES, IA. — "There is no such thing as effortless progress. Progress calls for a struggle," said Arthur Fletcher recently in Des Moines.

Fletcher, deputy assistant to President Ford for Urban Affairs, spoke at the 25th anniversary banquet of the Des Moines Human Rights Commission where he was keynote speaker. The banquet was held at Hotel Fort Des Moines February 26.

During the contest of his address to near 300 persons, Fletcher stated that he was without a job for three years and described his efforts. On February 25, 1976, he was sworn in by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller as the first black in U.S. history to hold the Presidential assistant position.

Fletcher said he was inspired as a seventh grader by the words of Mary M. Bethune, who spoke at his school. He read excerpts of her legacy to his audience.

The deputy assistant said that going to the streets in the 60's accomplished several rights acts. "Today," he said, "we have to be inside" (the system) to continue the struggle in a different manner.

He said that young people should not be going to college to be able to stick it out but to learn a skill.

"Youngsters born in the year 2000 will face the most competitive world over," he said. "Our most valuable resources are our human resources. The quality of our people will determine the outcome. (We must) rear a generation that is second to none in terms of world human resources."

Dr. James Bowman, executive director of elementary education in the Des Moines Public Schools, presented the winners of the Commission-sponsored essay contest, "How I would integrate the Des Moines Public Schools."

Winners the prizes were Joy Mumford of Perkins Elementary School, first place — $75 savings bond certificate; Scott Johnson of Washington Elementary School, second place — $50 savings bond certificate and Amy Toomsen of Samuelson Elementary School, third place — $25 savings bond certificate.

Allen J. Correll, executive director of the commission, was presented a plaque and a goal digital watch by the commission and its staff for "outstanding service performed to Des Moines Commission 1969-76."

Under Correll's leadership, the Des Moines agency has not had one case reversed.

all of their citizens.

Fletcher asked his audience to write the President telling what they feel is the best method of distributing these funds. While it is an excellent suggestion and very important to the success of any project, we must remember that whatever program is provided, all segments of the population should have a part in planning as well as executing them.

Vatican Attacks Black Slogan

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican radio said Tuesday the slogan "black is beautiful," launched in the United States in favor of the dignity of blacks, "might hide a racism of a different character."

"The slogan is suggestive," the radio said. "To be black is beautiful, just the same as to be white or yellow because God has put his gifts in every race. Racism might have different faces but it will be always reprehensible."

The radio, in general comment on racism, called "inadmissible by all means any race erecting itself as a superior race unduly claiming powers upon all remaining men."

Health Horizons Meets Monday

The March meeting of Health Horizons will deal with the relationship of agriculture to people health. As it is becoming more realized that there is a relationship between the soil, water, crops, chemicals and pollution to people health, this subject is most timely.

The speaker will be Dr. W. D. Martin from Vinton, Iowa, a well-known advocate of eco-agriculture and non-pollutant farming.

The meeting will be Monday, March 8, 7:30 p.m., YMCA, Des Moines.

Atlantan Found Slain; Stabbed 25 Times

ATLANTA, GA. — Mrs. Ruth LeFlore Ward was found dead by her husband, Judge Horace Ward, upon his return home from the Fulton County Courthouse on Tuesday, February 17.

She had been brutally attacked, sustaining approximately 25 stab wounds. On the day of her death, Mrs. Ward had put in a full day's work in the area office of the Atlanta Board of Education.

Judge Ward is a Morehouse College alumnus, class of 1949.

At the time of her death, Mrs. Ward was mourning the death of her father, John L. LeFlore, Sr. who died January 30 in Mobile, Alabama. LeFlore was a member of the Alabama Legislature and a prominent civil rights leader in that state.

As of the date of this news release, no arrests have been made in the slaying of Mrs. Ward, however, an intensive police search is underway. A reward fund has been set up locally under the direction of Atlanta Commissioner of Public Safety A. Reginald Eaves. Governor George Busbee has added $1,000 to this fund.

Scholarship funds in her memory will be established at St. Augustine's College in Raleigh, North Carolina and at Atlanta University, where she received her undergraduate and graduate degrees, respectively. Commemorative resolutions and proclamations have been adopted regarding Mrs. Ward by the governments of the city of Atlanta, Fulton County, and the Georgia State Legislature.

Services for Mrs. Ward were held on Saturday, February 21, at 1 p.m. at St. Paul Episcopal Church. Rev. Dr. Henry J. C. Bowden officiated. Assisting him were Rev. William V. Guy and Rev. Robert Hunter. Burial was at Westview Cemetery.

Mrs. Ward was the daughter of Mrs. Teah Beck LeFlore and the late Alabama State Representative LeFlore. She was married to Horace T. Ward, presently a judge of the Civil Court of Fulton County. Since 1961, she had been employed by the Atlanta Board of Education as a teacher and librarian, resource librarian and resource teacher for social sciences, and coordinator of Title I, Area III.

Mrs. Ward was an active member of Saint Paul's Episcopal Church where she served as the chairperson of Saint Katherine's Circle. She worked diligently in the affairs of the community and served as the chairperson of

Calloway Reflects On Black Culture

Des Moines, IA — Being brought from Africa was the greatest blessing that could have happened to blacks under the situation we could have lived, according to Earl Calloway, for it helped to release the "expression of our souls."

Calloway, fine arts editor for the Chicago Defender, spoke February 28 at Drake University on "A Reflection of Black Culture in America," as part of the Black Students Organization's Black History Month celebration.

One of the results that has come out of bringing blacks to America is the dance. Calloway said dance gives a "fresh kind of respect for culture."

It "permitted us to see and compare cultures," he said. Most of today's dances were derived in Africa but have taken social stances. Africans have transferred the African culture into America's culture.

"America never cultivated the noble music of the (American) Indian, but caught on to the European experience," the concert artist said.

Calloway said that Afro-American dances have captured the main stream of America in emotion, the minstrel and the concert.

Concerning music, Calloway said, "Blues have not been created anymore because those types of experiences do not exist anymore. Our music is the neighborhood Community Club. In this capacity, she was instrumental in bringing the needs of the community to the attention of public officials.

She was a member of the Atlanta Chapter of the Saint Augustine's College Alumni Association, the Georgia Association of Educators, the National Association of the League of Women Voters, Delta Kappa Gamma Society, The Atlanta Association of Educators, the National Council for the Social Studies, and the Georgia Council for the Social Sciences.

taking on different perspectives and is still growing."

Blacks need to take control of our music and our culture. He added that some of the greatest musical works by blacks are owned by private individuals.

The black man, like other immigrants, did not know the English language when brought to America, but he picked it up fast, made it his own and expressed himself in prose and poetry.

Umbrella Seeks Strong Members

Des Moines, IA. — A nucleus of all minority people would help to "develop a strong coalition."

The preceding statement describes Umbrella, a political coalition of minorities in Des Moines, still in an infant stage but growing rapidly.

Umbrella seeks to "find out what the (political) issues are and how they affect people," according to Wayne Ford, founder of the organization. Ford is also chairman of Concerned Citizens for Minority Affairs, one of the co-covering groups supporting Umbrella.

The local chapter of the A. Philip Randolph Institute is the other co-covering organization instrumental in the founding of Umbrella. Hollie Cherry chairs that group which works for equality.

Ford said that Umbrella is in the stage of being a 'working coalition' to see who (minority groups) wishes to work to organize as a group before organizing the masses (of citizens).

He added that Umbrella needs the support of minority organizations trying to obtain strength.

For a recent meeting, members of Umbrella were asked to bring a list of the number of registered voters in their respective organizations, ideas on

LPN Completes Therapy Course

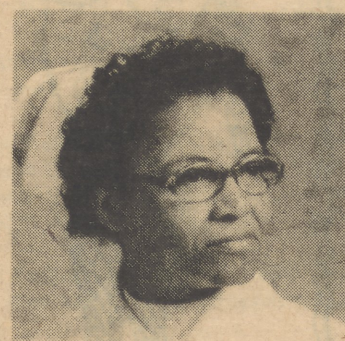

Kizzie Storther, local LPN, recently completed the prescribed course in enterostomal therapy.

The course was offered by the Department of Enterostomal Therapy at the Ferguson-Droste-Ferguson Hospital in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Enterostomal Therapy is an area of specialization within nursing and the allied health occupations. It involves the care of patients with all types of abdominal stomas. The main function of the enterostomal therapist is to select and fit the permanent appliance.

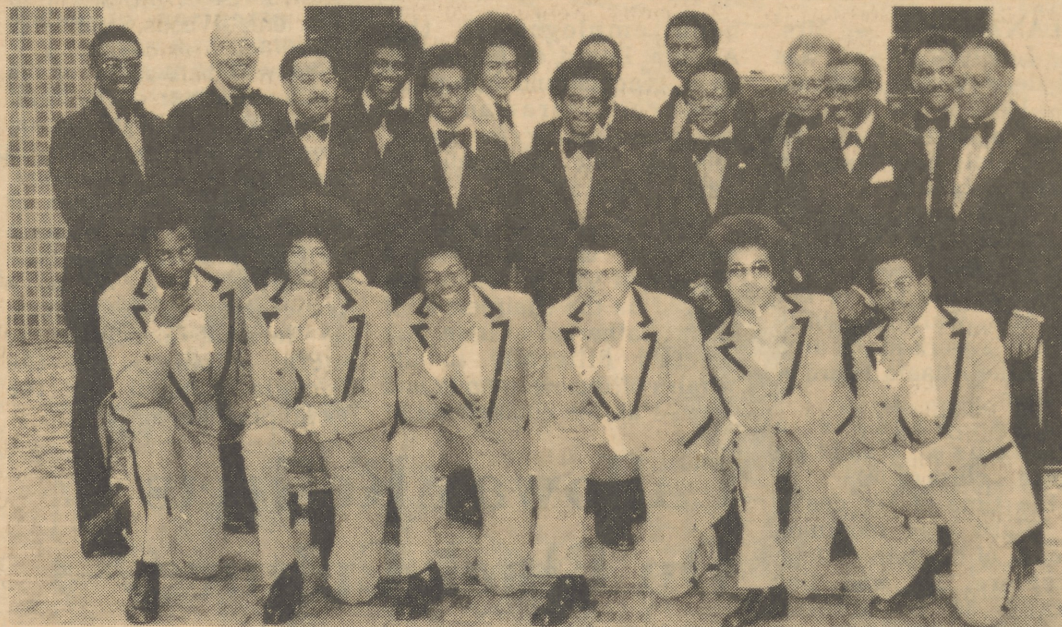

Ms. Storther is prepared to spend considerable time assisting patients during their adjustment periods with the appliances, helping them to understand the steps of changing the appliance and training them in general self care.

The LPN is retired from the Veterans Hospital in Des Moines.

Kizzie Storther

On her return trip from Grand Rapids, Ms. Storther stopped to visit several days with her sister, Ms. Earline Riley in Gary, Indiana.

Alphas Host Annual Black and Gold Ball

The Hilton Inn Ballroom on Saturday evening, February 28, was the scene of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity's Annual Black and Gold Ball.

With chic ladies dressed in the latest styles of evening gowns and handsome dudes clad in tuxedos, many of whom were following the black and gold theme, the Alphas and their guests grooved to the music of the Urban Suburbans until the wee hours of the morning.

Midway in the evening, the guests were treated to a late evening buffet consisting of Swedish meatballs, beef and noodles, chestnuts wrapped in bacon, cocktail wieners, cheeses, and champagne punch.

Represented among the party-goers were a cross-section of age groups—Drake University students, recent residents of Des Moines, as well as established members of the community.

Observed in attendance were three father-son combinations: Thomas V. Spencer, Sr. and Thomas, Jr., both Alphas; Dr. Lewis A. James, an Alpha, and his son, Lewis, Jr.; and William W. Wells, Sr., and son, Billy, Jr.

Out-of-town guests included Earl Calloway and Gary Field, both with the Chicago Defender. Calloway is fine arts editor of the black newspaper.

A highlight of the evening was the singing of the famous Alpha Phi Alpha hymn at intermission by members of Zeta Kappa Lambda Chapter. Dr. Walter J. Riley, president of the chapter, introduced the fraternal brothers and their pledges.

In addition to the Spencers and Dr. James, the chapter includes Billy Ray, Everett A. Mays, Paul Danforth, Dr. Eddie V. Easley, Gerald Page, Paul Best, Moses Clinton, William L. White, William Davis, Vince Butler, Douglas Corbin and Ronald Sundling.

Members of the Sphinx Club include Drake students Derek Batts, Detroit; Kim Massie, New Jersey; Cornell Fowler, Alonzo Anderson, Eric Perry, David Millner, all of Chicago; and Arthur Lee, Des Moines, a student at the University of Northern Iowa.

Founded in 1906 at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York, Alpha Phi Fraternity, Inc. is the oldest of the primary-black greek letter societies. Among its goals are scholarship achievement, service to mankind and professional excellence.

It's ranks have included such notables as W.E.B. DuBois, Paul Robeson, Whitney Young and Martin Luther King, Jr. Today, Edward Brooke, U.S. Senate; William Coleman, Secretary of Transportation; Thurgood Marshall, Supreme Court Justice; and a majority of the Presidents of primarily-black colleges are brothers in the fraternity.

The Bicentennial year will be celebrated by the Alphas with their national convention held in two parts: the first part in New York City and the second part in Monrovia, Africa.

The theme of the convention will be "Alpha's International Year," which means that the fraternity will look both in America at the Bicentennial and look beyond America to Africa to focus on the history of black folk.

AHS Student On Trip To U.N. and D.C.

Saretha Jones, an Ankeny High School student and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Jones, Jr., is one of 150 Polk County high school juniors who will be leaving March 26th for a ten day trip to Washington D. C. and New York City, including a trip to the United Nations.

The project is sponsored by the United Nations Association of Greater Des Moines.

Saretha's expenses are being taken care of by the Ankeny Kiwanis.

Students were chosen on the basis of academic achievement, and activities and through applications submitted telling why they wanted to go.

In thanking Ankeny Kiwanis members at dinner last week, Saretha offered to report on the trip when she returned to Ankeny.

Conducts Interest Survey Of Fundamental School

A survey of interest in a fundamental school will be conducted in the Des Moines Public Schools this week.

Questionnaires were distributed in all elementary schools Wednesday. Parents will be asked to return the questionnaire, if they would plan to enroll one or more of their children in the school this fall. The returned questionnaire, in the form of an enrollment application, requires a signature indicating that "I agree with and will support the philosophy and goals of the fundamental school..."

Deadline for returning the application is March 8.

Dr. James Bowman, executive director of elementary education, said parents who do not receive a questionnaire and want to apply for enrollment of their children in the fundamental school may request an enrollment application from their neighborhood elementary school office.

The survey is being conducted at the request of the School Board which asked the school district administration to determine the number of students who would be enrolled.

Information accompanying the questionnaire includes the philosophy, goals, instructional program, the methods of determining and reporting student progress, the criteria for selecting pupils and the transportation arrangements.

The school will be located in the now-closed old Jefferson Elementary School building at SW 30th and Park. Transportation will be provided for students living more than 2 miles from the building.

The selection criteria said that all pupils in the school district will have the options of attending the fundamental school if space allows and qualifying requirements are met. The old Jefferson building has a capacity of 225 students.

The selection criteria also provides the minority enrollment will be limited to 25 per cent to "insure that the new school will be established with a pupil population that will be within the state guidelines for an 'integrated' school." Other factors in the selection criteria are limiting enrollment of any one sex to 55 per cent, basing enrollment on 25 students per classroom and requiring parents to sign an agreement to support the philosophy, goals and standards of the schools.

If the response to the survey indicates enrollment would exceed the capacity of the building, a waiting list will be established, ranking applicants according to the

Just as each child is unique, so also are his/her parents. Wise parents grow and learn along with their children. They learn to relax and allow the child to be himself/herself.

They observe and guide carefully during the growing up process of their child. Out of an understanding of the very young child comes insight into adult behavior.

Important facts to keep in mind about raising children include:

1. No two children are alike. Each differs in his rate and pattern of growth.

2. Growth follows an orderly sequence or pattern and although it is continuous, it is also uneven.

3. Each stage of development has certain characteristics common to that particular stage of growth.

As an infant develops some new power or capacity, he/she develops the impulse to use that new capacity. (An example would be learning to walk.)

5. Children, at all ages and stages, have some reason to behave as they do.

Being a parent does not demand unusual skills, but sometimes trying to be the "perfect" parent can make the job more difficult. A realistic approach based on self trust coupled with common sense can be helpful.

The fundamental school planning committee of teachers and administrators proposed that the school be named "Jefferson Traditional Elementary School."

Nash Scout Unit Gets Organized

Junior Girl Scout Troop 399 has started at Nash Tiny Tots with Jerry Finney as the leader. The girls in the troop are from the King and Casady schools area.

On February 10 they held their investiture ceremony at the Parent and Headstart meeting. The girls wore their uniforms for the first time and received their Girl Scout pins.

They had a Valentine's Party, February 14, with Cub Scout Pack 260 and a few members of Scout Troop 79. They had refreshments, exchanged valentines and gifts and played several games. It was a fun day for both Troops and Pack 260.

Troop 399 has also made a visit with the entertainment chairman of the Medi Center. The girls plan to start a buddy program with the senior residents and are really excited about this idea.

Youth Organization Active In Quad-Cities Area

Cecile Cooper
Reporter

Davenport young males ages 12-16 have been meeting on Sunday afternoons to set rules and guidelines, as well as to plan programs and activities for the newly formed Quad-Cities Youth Organization.

Elected officers of the group are Adrian Elzy, president; Richard Lloyd, vice president; Eugene Bassett, secretary; Michael Terrell, asst. secretary; Victor Mitchell, treasurer and Charles Taylor, sgt. of arms.

The purpose of the club is to provide supervised structured activities for Quad-Cities youth that will provide the basis for the development of good citizens and quality leaders of boys from low socio-economic, background minorities and other socially deprived families.

They will be working with as well as being supervised by an adult male sponsors' group in the planning of social, cultural, educational, recreational and physical programs. The sponsors who will act as overseers in a "Big Brother" capacity are headed up by Earl McNeal, chairman; Roby Amos, co-chairman; Cornelius Henry, secretary and Charles Scott, treasurer.

The Quad-Cities Youth Organization which has a full membership of 30 young men, meet at 1708 E. 11th Street every Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m., and hold business meetings on every first and third Sunday and recreational activity for members only on the second and fourth Sundays.

They have just completed their first community activity which was a trip to Wharton Field House, Moline, Ill. to see the Harlem Globetrotters. Monthly community social activities will also serve as fund-raising projects for the group and they are now in the process of planning a skating party for area teens late in March.

Monies received from the projects will be used to sponsor club activities which includes a number one goal to build a multi-purpose youth center.

Both sponsors and youths agree that the membership should be limited to 30 in order to assure a smooth running organization. Therefore, only the names of youths interested in being a part of such a group are taken until another group of volunteer sponsors can be acquired to support another group of youngsters.

It is the hope of the sponsors and the co-ordinator to be able to organize several chapters in neighborhoods throughout the Quad-Cities in an effort to meet the needs of more disadvantaged youths.

Adults who enjoy working with kids and want to make a positive impact on their future, should contact Billie Lloyd, Co-ordinator, at 1708 E. 11th St., Davenport, Iowa 52803, 322-6394 evenings or 326-8695.

Davenport Citizens

Take Action On City's

Use of Funds

DAVENPORT, IOWA — In view of the recent dismissal of two members from Davenport's Civil Rights Commission, approximately forty citizens of Davenport met to formulate methods to insure effective action would be taken to prevent present city administration from ignoring the needs, such as housing for low and moderate income families.

This meeting was chaired by ousted member Clarence Jackson. Emphasis was given to the fact that more than 50 per cent of a federal community development grant for $976,000 is planned for recreational facilities.

Actions initiated by these concerned citizens will be individual letters and petitions to Guy Birch, area director, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development requesting an investigation of the city's proposed use of funds to be granted prior to its approval and release.

Clarence Carter and children of Minneapolis, Minn. were guest of his mother Mrs. Hattie Carter for dinner Friday, Feb. 20. He and the children went to Canton, Mo. to join his wife who was visiting her mother. The Carter family came through Fort Madison on their way home Sunday, Feb. 29.

"Black Perspective" —Behind The Scenes

What makes a TV news show successful?

Different people may add to this list of elements, but everyone agrees that special attention must be paid to timeliness, issues, accuracy and personalities.

"Black Perspective on the News" is PBS's weekly news analysis series that concentrates on all four. Co-producers Reginald Bryant and Acel Moore cover each point in putting together the series.

"Our shows are telecast nationally," Acel observes, "and to a very sophisticated audience. We know we compete for our viewers' time and losing in this game is sudden death. So we move to be sure we're at their fingertips with the proper concern in mind at the right time."

"We give the often overlooked point of view brought out through questions formed by some of the nation's top journalists put to knowledgeable experts on timely subjects. Better sources or more up-to-date information isn't available anywhere under any circumstances."

When moderator Reginald Bryant speaks of the show, he frequently mentions the importance of selecting journalists and guests who relate best to the topic chosen.

"The issues of the moment," Bryant states, "are important to everyone. More important is a well-rounded understanding of those issues. When we select journalists for a particular show, we search to find those who are particularly versed on the subject at hand. At the same time, we look for a guest newsmaker with an in-depth background and active interest in the subject. This makes for a lively exchange of thoughts and satisfied the most discriminating viewer."

With a smile, he adds, "I hope so anyway."

"Black Perspective on the News," though based in WHYY's Philadelphia studios, goes wherever the action is at the moment. The taped show has been recorded as far from its home base as Los Angeles.

"Although Alabama Governor George Wallace might have come to our Philadelphia studios," Reggie stated, "it was our intent to do a program with the Governor in his own backyard."

So, with crew, set, journalists and all, the "Black Perspective" team went to Montgomery.

Later, they were flexible enough to tape an in-studio interview on extremely short notice with Israeli Prime Minister Abba Eban.

Other national newsmakers have included Georgia State Representative Julian Bond, Operation PUSH President Jesse Jackson, New York Mayor Abraham Beame, United Farm Worker's Ricardo Chavez and the National Urban League's Vernon Jordan.

Journalists have come from across the nation. They have come from print and electronic media as well. Though at least one of the three guest journalists on each show is from Philadelphia, others have come from New York, Washington, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

They have come from

Needs Host Families For French Teenagers

International Student Exchange of Black Hawk County, Inc., a non-profit organization, with the endorsement of the Iowa national media like Joe Boyce of Time Magazine, John Dotson and Vern Smith of Newsweek, Paul Delaney and Roger Wilkins of the New York Times and Peter Bailey of Ebony Magazine.

Gordon Graham from NBC. From radio came Gerald Bentley and Ralph Featherstone of the Mutual Black Network.

Keeping "Black Perspective on the News" tops in its class requires constant attention to the basic elements. After its first year of national exposure, its producers seem to be doing quite well.

Bicentennial Commission, is seeking host families for 500 French teenagers, together with a few chaperones, for a four to six week stay in the State of Iowa this summer.

It is anticipated that the guests will arrive around the first of July and depart around the middle of August, although specific dates will be announced later.

It is expected that the visitors will be here in time to participate in the various bicentennial activities planned to celebrate our nation's 200th anniversary. Opening our homes to these visitors gives us a very unique opportunity to say "Thank you" to the French citizens for their help and support so long ago during our fight for independence.

Prospective host families need have no other qualifications but to be patient, understanding, loving and willing to accept these people as members of the family during their short stay.

The host families only responsibility is to provide room and board, love and care for these teenage "ambassadors". Interested persons should contact: Imre Takacs, President, International Student Exchange, 2567 Saratoga Drive, Waterloo, Iowa 50702. 319-234-4135. Deadline for application is March 15.

Gossett To Preach In "J.D.'s Revenge"

Actor-singer-musician Lou Gossett joins Glynn Turman and Joan Pringle as co-star in the role of an ex-convict, ex-con man and ex-boxer turned revivalist, in American International's suspense mystery "J.D.'s Revenge," now filming in New Orleans.

Arthur Marks, whose current opus "Friday Foster" is making boxoffice marks nationwide is producing and directing from a screenplay by Jaison Starkes.

Gossett created the role of "George" in the late Lorraine Hansberry's award-winning play "A Raisin in the Sun" on Broadway, and later repeated the part in the film version. He also won critical acclaim as James Garner's co-star in the hit film "Skin Game."

The CoCaCo Service Company is providing production services for "J.D.'s Revenge," which is scheduled for release this summer.

"Shaft" Is Dead! Says Actor Richard Roundtree

"Shaft," the fictional tough guy he brought to life on the movie screen is dead, says actor Richard Roundtree, currently starring in Man Friday, an Avco Embassy Pictures' release.

In a copyrighted story in the January issue of Black Stars Magazine, Roundtree says that he wanted to shake the image of the hard-hitting detective and get on with his career.

Roundtree, a former model, starred in three "Shaft" pictures, and has now expanded his acting dimension, as he demonstrates in Man Friday, based on the Daniel Defoe's classic, Robinson Crusoe.

Speaking of Man Friday, in which he co-stars with Peter O'Toole, Roundtree says "It's told through Friday's eyes, so it's a whole new story. It's different from anything I have ever played."

Roundtree said he read the script and saw a character who showed another side of the great word, "civilization."

The question raised in the film is who is civilized, Crusoe or Friday?, the actor is quoted in Black Stars.

Mayo Joins Advisor Staff Of Miss Black USA Pageant

Whitman Mayo, star of the new NBC TV comedy series, "Grady", and co-star of "Sanford and Son," has joined the advisors and Board of Directors of the Miss Black U.S.A. Beauty Pageant. Mayo will direct his talent and expertise to production and talent

"Friday's domain is the jungle. He worships everything. Religion and the Christian work ethic are questioned throughout the film. Things are pointed up through humor and that really turned me on about it," said Roundtree.

In Man Friday, according to Roundtree, "I totally experienced my acting ability in that film — tested how good the instrument was and where I could go with it."

performances.

Mayo's acting career dates back to his high school days in Los Angeles, where he first performed in "Home of the Brave." Later, after attending Los Angeles City College, Mayo studied under the late actor-producer Frank Silvers, and appeared in Silvers production of "The Amen Corner" starring Beah Richards.

Mitzi's Special Guest

Linda Hopkins, star of the current Broadway Show "Me & Bessie," will portray the legendary Bessie Smith in a guest appearance with Mitzi Gaynor in "Mitzi ... Roarin' in the 20's." Miss Hopkins, who was discovered by Mahalia Jackson, will sing "Birth of the Blues" on the March 14 CBS-TV special (9-10 p.m. ET). The show is a nostalgic salute to the music, dance and fun of the 1920's.

Horse Of Another Country

LOOK ON SPORTS

LOOK AT SPORTS

Iowa State has hired a basketball coach. As was expected, the two guys who took over after Coach Trickey left were passed over. And the new coach didn't say so in so many words, but he made it clear that neither man figured in his plans. I would have had more respect for the fellow if he had just come out and said no when he was asked if he planned to use the two former Trickey assistants.

Instead he did a tight rope walk, and said they hadn't asked him about staying on, but he had some other fellows in mind. Wonder why people don't say what they want to say in the most direct manner instead of beating around the bush? Maybe that is why I would not make a successful coach. Of course the man says his first concern is to get some players. That is the first fundamental rule of successful coaching: Get some people who can play the game you are coaching.

We shall see what he does. One thing is certain, he has to win very few games too improve on this year's Cyclone mark. And that should earn him at least one more year, no matter what he does next year. I hope the two former assistants can catch on somewhere.

Black In the Headlines

And another thing. Why is it headline news because a black coach would like to have the head basketball coaching job at Ohio State? The man must know what he is doing or he would not have applied for the job. So why can't he be just another applicant instead of a black applicant? Will the fact that he happens to be black help him win games? I don't think so. Maybe, but perhaps not in my life span, people will wake up and stop making headline news of a person's color whenever he does something.

Iowa Colleges Basketball

What can we say about the three major school basketball teams this week? They all got their tails kicked, and as I write this, I bet Iowa U is having problems with Michigan State whom they have to beat if they want to finish third. You will know if they did. But do you know, both Iowa and Iowa State have wrestling teams, and will likely finish one-two in the national meet. So let's forget about football and basketball for now, and talk about the mat game.

In High School Action

And here in the high schools, we shall see who makes it to the final game in both the boys' and girls' basketball meets. I have to bet against Lincoln to repeat last year's feat. Who will it be? I don't know.

Tennis, Anyone?

Last week there were two challenge matches between top tennis players for what was supposed to be at least a quarter of a million bucks. In one Borg of Sweden demolished Rod Laver who is ten years past his best playing days, and in the other Jimmy Connors sailed past the fellow who beat him at Forest Hills last year. Connors then turned and said "Bring on Arthur Ashe."

It just happens that I don't think challenge matches do the game any good, and if they continue to be so boring as the last two were, television will stop putting them on. The Connors-Orantes match was called the "heavyweight championship of tennis." By what reasoning? Both Connors and Orantes have been having their problems on the playing circuit, so neither was unbeaten.

How, you ask, could they be playing for a championship when they have been beaten quite a few times? I am amused at tennis writers who always say that Ashe, Orantes and Mexico's Rameriz played over their heads to beat Connors. But for that they would not have won. But nowhere do you read about Eddie Dibbs or Roscoe Tanner who also dusted the great one, and lately Nastase and on national television. So if Jimmy Connors wants to challenge everybody who beats him in meets, I would suggest that he keep on playing in tournaments and he might have quite a list of challenges, for there is no male player who dominates tennis as Chris Everett does the women's division.

As I have often argued, anyone on the top twenty list of male players is apt to beat anyone else on the list whether that player be rated above or below him. But tennis writers and some sportscasters keep insisting that Connors is the number one player in the world. Maybe they should ask Mexico's Davis Cup players about that.

Good Ship Lollipop Sails On In Ghana

Can a former Hollywood child superstar, who grew up to become a Republican politician, a Nixon supporter and an unrelenting hawk during the Vietnam War, find happiness, popularity and success among black people in equatorial West Africa?

Of those who bothered to ponder this question following the nomination of Mrs. Shirley Temple Black as U.S. Ambassador to Ghana 19 months ago, most responded with an unqualified "No way!"

Others, notably the bulk of American Blacks who felt that the post should have gone to a "brother" or a "sister," regarded the nomination of the one-time movie idol as one more example of the Ford Administration's insensitivity toward blacks, both at home and abroad.

Yale professor, David Apter, an acknowledged American authority on the Ghana republic, went a step further. Insisting that the post called for a seasoned career diplomat, he called the nomination "an insult to Ghana and a slap in the face."

Meanwhile, syndicated columnist Joyce Haber, when learning about the nomination was moved to write in wonderment, "Shirley Temple? Ghana? Gee whiz! As if we didn't already have enough troubles abroad."

Surprisingly, among those who came out strongly in favor of the appointment was Franklin H. Williams, a black man and himself a former ambassador to Ghana. Now president of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, Williams predicted that Mrs. Temple Black would make a fine ambassador.

Ebony managing editor, Hans J. Massaquoi, journeyed to Africa to get the strange story of Ghana's love affair with Shirley Temple Black. He reports in the March Ebony, that the Good Ship Lollipop is having smooth sailing as U.S. envoy to the West African Republic.

"Today," says Massaquoi, "the skeptics who for one reason or another predicted that the one-time tap dance whiz would fall flat on her face in her new role as a diplomat, are either eating their words or ought to be."

To say that Shirley Temple Black is succeeding in her job is putting it mildly, reports March Ebony. Already thoroughly at home in her new environment, she is rapidly establishing herself as the most popular, and certainly the best known American in residence in Africa.

NW Bell Seeks Artwork From Young Students

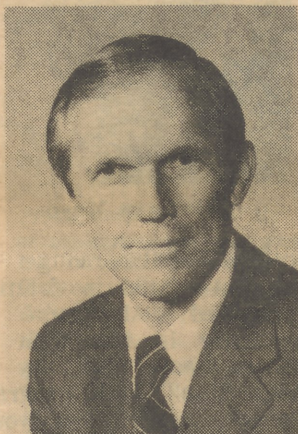

Pictures painted and drawn by children will illustrate the Telephone Company's Appointment Calendar for 1977, according to Northwestern Bell District Manager, Les Watts. The calendar, which contains information for telephone users, will be distributed this year through Northwestern Bell business offices.

Watts said students in the first through sixth grades are invited to submit artwork which can be considered for use in the calendar. Entry rules and instructions have been sent to elementary schools.

"Our calendar has featured original art by adults in recent years," Watts said. "It's become a popular calendar. More than 123,000 copies of the 1976 edition were distributed to Northwestern Bell's Iowa customers. For 1977, we want to give some younger artists a chance to show off their talent. I think they'll give us some pleasant surprises. Children's art can be delightful."

Twelve pictures, one to illustrate each month, will be selected for reproduction in the 1977 calendar. Elementary school students in all communities served by Northwestern Bell are eligible to participate. Young artists whose art is chosen will receive a certificate and a Savings Bond. Special awards will be presented to their schools.

Betts Heads Campaign For United Way Agency

Charles H. Betts, Jr.

Ann Kenworthy, president of United Way of Greater Des Moines, recently announced that Charles H. Betts, Jr., president of Betts Cadillac, Inc., has been named chairman of the 1976 United Way Campaign.

Betts, a Des Moines native, attended Roosevelt High School and received a B.S. in business administration from the University of Michigan. He has been active in the United Way Campaign for the past 14 years and has also served on the boards of Goodwill Industries and the Salvation Army - two United Way funded agencies.

In addition to being involved with the United Way, Betts is currently a trustee of Iowa Lutheran Hospital and serves on the boards of directors of Des Moines Savings and Loan, Central National Bank, The Carpenter Paper Co., and ADAPT, Inc.

As campaign chairman, Betts will be charged with building, organizing, and managing a successful campaign team. This will involve recruiting over 4,000 volunteers to raise funds for the 36 United Way member agencies.

When accepting the position Betts said, "Every member of every community has an obligation to put something back into their community. We must not continue to take out of our community without reinvesting in it. The United Way is the best buy we have for helping others. If each of us lucky enough to be employed and have good health will do a little something for those who need it, there isn't anything or any amount of money that is out of reach."

Last year's United Way Campaign generated $3.4 million for the voluntary human services in the Greater Des Moines area. The goal for this year's Campaign has not yet been set.

Kennedy's Rapid Cadence Manipulates Language

by Eleanora E. Tate

So what was I doing at the front of a Drake University classroom as the black woman whirlwind beside me expounded on American social diseases, like "Pentegonorrhea?"

Obviously, Florynce Kennedy, activist, lecturer, feminist, lawyer and world philosopher, needed no assistant — even if that assistant was merely 'Keeper of the Tape Recorder' — to help her give her own brand of interpreting how America perpetuates racism and sexism.

Kennedy, who would repeatedly remind her classroom listeners of her age (60) and her ailments (backache and three missing feet of intestines, among other things) was busy spelling out her concern — with many so-called "obscene words" not fit for weekly newspaper sprinkled throughout her talk — about abortion, feminism, women's rights, American institutions and the need for everyone to become political.

Guilty, Guilty

"One of the things we (women) got to do is not exactly get our — together, but understand the contradictory pressures that are on us all the time," said the New York City feminist, "and understand that it's partly that pall of guilt that is lying on you (women) all the time."

And what are some of those contradictions?

"You're a woman, you're guilty," Kennedy began. "You get the curse (menstruation) — you're guilty. You don't get the curse — you're guilty. You got too many children — you're guilty. You ain't got no children — you're guilty. You got a job — you're guilty. You don't have a job, you're staying at home with the kids — you're guilty. You take the kid to the day care center — you're guilty."

Then, with barely a new breath drawn, she charged on, "You're 10 pounds overweight, you're 10 pounds underweight, you got no breast, you got too much breast, your hair's too long, it's too short, it's too straight, it's too curly — your pall of guilt is such that you're so busy coping with the — pall of guilt that you ... don't relate the outrage of Pentegonorrhea to social disease..."

Opportunity for Involvement Is Now

Words rushed from her lips like a waterfall. Kennedy, a founder of the Feminist party and a member of the National Black Feminist organization, drummed hard at the students' (and everyone else's) procrastination at becoming involved with issues that influence their lives, particularly the political arena, abortion, Drake University problems and negativism in general.

"You will never have a time in your life when you will have a more appropriate opportunity to be involved," Kennedy declared. "If you're not doing anything now (to combat problems students see at Drake, for example), there's most especially something very wrong with you."

Kennedy had a penchant for coining words like "Pentegonorrhea," "pigocracy," and "niggerization," and manipulating the English language so that it appeared at times that the students, possibly more used to less strident conversation, were hesitant to readily speak their minds.

That proved true when Kennedy asked the class, "How many of you think that the social and functional and economic and political roles of men and women could be changed for the better in this society?"

Few hands went up.

Kennedy murmured, "That many, hunh," then asked, "How many of you think there should be? Well, let's be right careful," she chided, "cause we got some real cautious people; they ain't gonna move until they can be real — sure. Cause if they raise their hands, the whole building is gonna fall, the Congress is gonna be adjourned and all the courts

New York feminist Florynce Kennedy (right) and Eleanora E. Tate, keeper of the tape recorder (for the time being, at least) "giving the fist" during Kennedy's appearance at Drake University last week. Photo by Zack Hamlett, III.

with all their racist, sexist decisions are gonna be ... well, the judge is gonna fall over stone cold dead just by the raise of a stone cold hand."

She repeated her question carefully, with succinct qualifications. Most hands rose this time.

(That night, in a speech at Drake's Olmsted Center she would again drill on abortion (which she supports); the Equal Rights Admendment; recognize her brother and family in the audience; urge students to "take back Iowa" politically; rage against Washington, D.C.; and, while striking out against former United Nations ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan, would defend Uganda's Idi Amin.)

Back to the Classroom

As Kennedy lectured, cajoled, joked and guided the students through the afternoon, my main wonder was whether Kennedy believed all that she said, whether she also expected the students to believe her words and, if they did, to be motivated enough to do something about it.

She answered my unspoken questions herself.

"I don't want to give you specifics," Kennedy told the class. "I don't wanna chew up your steak like your mamma did and put it in your mouth half chewed up like when you were a year and a half old. I'm not off into making baby food."

"I didn't come here with no committment to make no dumb people wake up or even explain why they are as dumb as they are ... I'm talking to you as if you had taste and brains."

She picked up a sheaf of papers on the table, had them distributed to the students. The papers were songs, like "My Country 'Tis of Thee," but with special lyrics:

"Land of pigocracy/ Land of pig gluttony/ land of gross apathy/ of thee. I sing!" sang Kennedy and the students.

Then Kennedy raised her arm, balled her hand into a fist and called out, "Give 'em the fist!"

Kennedy's appearance here was sponsored by Drake University's National-International Awareness Committee.

Bob Jones (center) heads extension urban youth programs in Polk County. He plans activities with Des Moines teens in above photograph.

Urban 4-H Program Provides Youth Leadership

4-H has come to town in a big way across Iowa. An urban thrust begun by the Cooperative Extension Service three years ago now includes 9,000 youth. The program brings fun new learning experiences to inner-city urban youth in seven Iowa cities.

In Des Moines, Bob Jones plans the Urban 4-H program. Formerly a Drake basketball star and a community development employee for the City of Des Moines, Jones has held the 4-H and youth leader job for three years.

Linda Winston, 4-H and youth leader in Cedar Rapids, graduated from Morningside College and worked in Sioux City as an OEO center director before joining the extension service.

In Cedar Rapids, her after-school groups and summer day camp for

Workshop Set For Elementary Art Teachers

An art workshop for Des Moines Public School teachers will be held at Madison Elementary School Tuesday through Thursday.

The sessions, conducted by Annemarie Barron, art consultant of Binney & Smith, manufacturer of art supplies, will cover use of crayons, water colors, poster paints, finger paints, colored chalks and modeling clay.

There will be 15 hours of instruction in the three sessions related to classroom activities.

Urban 4-H'ers include nutrition education and a wide variety of topics the young people choose. This year's day campers saw a karate demonstration, met an Indian guest and learned about city parks from the city park commissioner.

After a puppet show about nutrition, they made food puppets from brown paper bags and wrote a skit. Nature trails, crafts and games were also on the agenda.

Keep Youths Busy

"I plan lots more activities than I think I'll need," Winston said. "We want to be able to give the group free time during meetings, and yet have structure, so they're all busy and involved, not bored."

Winston also plans special events such as a basketball clinic, or a three-day camping overnight using back packs and pup tents borrowed from the National Guard. In the fall, a soul banquet and dance were part of Black History Week.

Show Alternatives

Winston emphasized that she doesn't try to change kids, but meet their needs and give them opportunities to try new things. Another goal is to let the youth see that people live in different ways. "Only they can select how they want to be," Winston said, "but we can show them some alternatives."

Her plans for the future? She'd like to get the youth together for an igloo building day.

Many of the same activities are available in Urban 4-H programs in Council Bluffs, Sioux City, Waterloo, Dubuque, Davenport, and in Des Moines.

In his program, Jones concentrates on developing package programs for other agencies and community groups. Topics are varied: personal relationships, auto mechanics, pets, weight lifting, insects or leathercraft.

Last year, Jones coordinated programs with the East Side Boys Club, Iowa Children-Family Services, a day care center, opportunity centers, and others.

Recently, the extension service teamed with about twelve other agencies in Des Moines to form the Olympic Development Committee. They planned Olympic Development Week which involved 1500 youth in wrestling, field and track, basketball and swimming.

A Goal for Youth

With the recreation department, Jones has organized college exposure trips for junior high students to Grinnell College, Iowa State University and community colleges.

Jones also works with youth returning from the extension's week-long state leadership development workshop. A goal is for the teens to practice community betterment skills when they return to Des Moines. Close to 50 students from Des Moines have participated. Some have returned to beautify vacant lots, work in a day care center, supervise recreation or get jobs that help them practice leadership skills.

Many young people also come to Jones for counseling on a one-to-one basis. He answers questions about further education, getting a job, relating to adults, or just listens.

Jones agrees with Winston that teens need to be involved. "They have lots of energy and need adults to give them worthwhile avenues of participation and a part in decision-making."

Jones also stressed the importance of a program reaching youth on their level with what they're interested in now on their familiar ground. "On their turf, you have your foot in the door to relate to them and help them learn."

Parents or youth who want to know more about Urban 4-H should contact their county extension office. The telephone number is listed under the name of the county in the telephone book.

MARGIE JAMES

Services will be at 1 p.m. Friday at the Estes and Son Funeral Home for Margie Bee James 66, of 1422 Twenty-second St., who died Monday at Mercy Hospital of cancer.

Burial will be at Glendale Cemetery.

Born in Lubbock, Tex., Mrs. James lived in Des Moines 40 years.

Survivors include five daughters, Mrs. Pearl Daniels, Mrs. Madeline Montgomery, Mrs. Esther Fryer and Rebecca James, all of Des Moines, and Mrs. Marjorie McGaw of Cleveland, Ohio; a son, Isaac of Des Moines; three sisters, Mrs. Jessie Mickens of Stockton, Calif., Mrs. Maggie Perkins of Omaha, Neb., and Mrs. Maderic Harvey of Fresno, Calif.; a brother, James Shelton in California; 16 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Visitation will be at 7 p.m. tonight at the funeral home.

Aid Sought for Guatemala

CARE collects quake aid funds

From Press Dispatches

Volunteers and villagers in Guatemala are racing against the arrival of the rainy season to house over a million homeless victims of the earthquake that ravaged the tiny Central American country, a CARE official says.

Bertran D. Smucker, assistant executive director of CARE, said that tools and corrugated zinc roofing are being distributed to make temporary A-frame housing. The roofing can later be transferred to permanent structures, he said.

"There's a fighting chance to get emergency housing finished before the rainy season in May," said Smucker.

WHOLE VILLAGES and towns were destroyed by the earthquake Feb. 4, which, at last count, killed more than 22,000 and injured more than 74,000.

Some victims found emergency shelter in tents outside of Guatemala City, Smucker said, but many others "just huddle under what they can find."

CARE is appealing to the public for funds to supply food, medicine, tool kits and blankets.

Black Neurosurgeons Urge Limited Use of Operation

Behavior-altering brain surgery should be permitted on violent or disturbed mental patients when nothing else will help, two prominent black neurosurgeons said recently. Such operations, called psychosurgery, have been under attack in recent years by blacks and other groups as a potential weapon, according to critics, to murder the minds of minorities.

Dr. Jesse Barber, chief of neurosurgery at Howard University Hospital, estimated that 500-600 psychosurgery operations are quietly performed each year in the United States. Speaking along with Dr. Barber at a National Minority Conference on Human Experimentation held recently in Reston, Va., Dr. Ernest A. Bates, also a neurosurgeon, called for government controls or guidelines for performing psychosurgical operations which are the more sophisticated successors of lobotomies performed in the 1940's and 1950's.

Bates, assistant clinical professor at the University of California in San Francisco, said psychosurgery is done without adequate consideration or follow-up by most of the surgeons performing it. Nevertheless, he said, "it is not possible for me to give a blanket condemnation of all psychosurgery."

"I and other physicians have seen those who are under such great personal distress that they would prefer psychosurgery if all other methods (of treatment) have been given an adequate trial (and failed)," Bates added that such operations should not be done on persons under 21 or on prisoners.

Dr. Barber acknowledged that there have been good reasons for disadvantaged groups to fear operations that affect their brains. But he said that black opposition is "unfair to black patients," and "has prevented neurosurgeons and psychiatrists from developing knowledge and techniques." Both Barber and Bates said there is no evidence that the operation is performed on blacks to any greater extent than on whites.

In fact, Barber said, "it is not done on blacks," partly because of black opposition, partly because government officials will not finance it for welfare patients. "And poor blacks don't have money to pay for it," he said. Barber said a common charge is $1,000.

Women Health Problems Discussed In Workshop

DES MOINES—"From Awareness to Action—an examination of health problems" is the title of a one-day conference scheduled for Saturday, March 20, at the Olmsted Center on the Drake University campus in Des Moines.

The conference is sponsored by the Iowa Commission on the Status of Women in cooperation with Drake University College for Continuing Education Women's Programs. The program, beginning at 9 a.m. and concluding at 4 p.m., will focus on major health problems affecting the individual today.

The program includes four workshop segments on cancer, birth defects, depression and hypertension. Representatives from the American Cancer Society, the March of Dimes, the Polk County Mental Health Association and the American Heart Association will participate.

A panel discussion on breast cancer detection and treatment will be presented. The panel will be comprised of: Dr. John Grzybowski, pathologist, Iowa Lutheran Hospital; Dr. James Kelso, gynecologist, Des Moines; Dr. Robert Stickler, surgeon, Des Moines; and Dr. Donald Young, radiologist and project director, Iowa Lutheran Hospital Breast Cancer Detection Center.

The program also includes two speakers: Leone Johnson, nursing consultant with the Iowa Department of Health, will discuss women's involvement in community health programs; and Dr. Robert L. Burns, Des Moines periodontist, will look at the future in relation to women's health.

Those planning to attend the conference must pre-register by March 13. A registration fee of $3.75 includes lunch. Child care will be available. For further information, contact the Commission Office at 507 10th Street, Des Moines, Iowa 50319, or phone 515/247-4470.

VA Stamps Out Hoax

The Veterans Administration and major veterans organizations have launched a joint effort to stamp out a hoax that has disappointed millions of veterans since it began in 1948.

Bob Winters, director of the VA Regional Office at Des Moines, said that VA is receiving thousands of telephone calls and letters weekly from World War II veterans who have been deceived into expecting dividends on GI insurance they allowed to lapse years

Michael Booker

Michael Booker Becomes Journeyman Electrician

It is not easy for a young black man to be selected from hundreds of applicants for the Electricians' Apprenticeship Program, and after selection it is difficult to complete four years of on-the-job training and complicated related classroom studies.

Yet, this is what Michael Booker of 6319 Hickman Road has done. On March 13 Booker will become a journeyman electrician.

Booker began his apprenticeship with Keith

Electric Company and worked for them one year. The last three years he has worked for Baker Electric, Inc. and is presently employed by that firm.

Booker said, "I want to thank the Des Moines Apprenticeship Outreach Program for their assistance." He also said, "The variety of work keeps a man on his toes, he must be thinking all the time and it was a rough road but I now feel that it was all worth it."

Personal Exemption Credit Is Across-the-board Break For The American Taxpayer

A one-shot tax break for all U.S. taxpayers has been enacted by Uncle Sam in the form of a credit for personal exemptions but only for the 1975 tax year.

Currently, however, some ago. He said the hoax has recurred since 1948, and with each wave of letters the VA explains to each applicant that dividends are payable only on policies that are kept in force.

"But the hoax is fueled anew every few years by the mysterious distribution of official-looking application forms complete with an address where dividends are said to be available for the asking," Winters said. The bogus application alleges that dividends are payable even though premiums haven't been paid since 1945.

The VA official said the rumor may have its roots in a special dividend paid in 1950 and 1951. However, all payments on that program were ended in 1970 by a Congressional act.

Another theory is that the rumor is fueled annually by VA's announcement of dividends for holders of current insurance policies. But these annual payments are made automatically and no application is necessary, he said.

thought is being given by the Congress for continuation of the credit into 1976.

As part of the historic Tax Reduction Act of 1975, the credit is extended to all individual taxpayers for personal and dependent exemptions but does not apply to additional exemptions claimed for age or blindness.

Craig Schwab, city manager in Des Moines for H & R Block, Inc., the nation's largest income tax preparation firm, said the credit is arrived at by simply multiplying $30 times the number of applicable exemptions the taxpayer reports on his return.

Schwab gives these examples:

Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Taxpayer file a 1975 joint return on which they claim their two children as dependents. Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer are therefore entitled to a personal exemption credit of $120 ($30 times 4 exemptions).

Ms. Working Girl files as a single person, claiming only herself as an exemption. Her credit thus is an even $30.

Mr. Sam Citizen, who was 66 years old in 1975, files a joint return with his wife on which the couple claim dependency exemptions for their three children. Mr. and what today's consumer needs... a banker to bank on

At Bankers Trust, we'd like you to know us on a first-name basis. That's why we're introducing a new concept called Consumer Banking. From now on, a member of our Consumer Banking staff will be available to help you with your personal financial planning.

Our Consumer Bankers will explain bank services and help you make the best use of them. For instance, they'll acquaint you with our MoneyManager program — a Bankers Trust service that helps you save money, while you're earning money! To qualify for the MoneyManager program, you simply maintain a balance of $500 or more in a Bankers Trust savings account. You receive eight additional banking services free! These services include free checking, a free safe deposit box (where available), free travelers checks and preferred rates on consumer loans.

Speaking of loans, your Consumer Banker will be on hand to give you valuable advice about borrowing money. He can help you when you decide to borrow for any important purchase — whether it's a new car, home improvement, or a special vacation.

Stop in soon at one of our offices and ask to meet your Consumer Banker. Then get to know him . . . or her . . . on a first-name basis.
