Burke Testifies In Support Of Revised Employment Bill

BARS CUTOFF

Baltimore, Md. — A federal judge has barred cutoff in federal education funds in the state of Maryland in a dispute over implementation of school desegregation programs.

Chief Judge Edward S. Northrop of the U.S. District Court in Baltimore said HEW officials had acted "arbitrarily and whimsically" in dealing with Maryland's colleges and Baltimore's public schools.

Releases "Hurricane"

Paterson, N.J. — Former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, released from prison to await a new trial for a 1966 triple shotgun murder, spent Sunday with his family for the first time in more than nine years.

Carter and codefendant John Artis were released from jail Saturday and were greeted by cheers from several hundred friends and supporters, including world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, who gathered at the entrance to the Passaic County Courthouse.

Superior Court Judge Bruno Leopizzi reminded the defendants and their lawyers of the "gag rule" in effect about commenting on the case.

Artis, who has been taking courses while in prison, said his immediate plans were to finish his college curriculum in personnel management.

Carter's lawyer, Myron Beldock of New York, said Carter was "in a state of shock." Beldock said his client had received Leopizzi's permission to vacation in Florida. Beldock also said Carter would not return to his Paterson home, where his wife, Thelma Mae, and daughter Theodora, 11, have lived.

Government Performs As Employer Of Last Resort Under Revised Legislation

Washington, D.C. — The Congressional Black Caucus recently released the testimony of Congresswoman Yvonne B. Burke (D-Calif.), chairperson of the Caucus, in support of the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1976.

The testimony was presented before the Equal Opportunities Subcommittee of the House Education and Labor Committee. The subcommittee is chaired by Congressman Augustus F. Hawkins (D-Calif.), primary House sponsor of the Full Employment Act and a member of the Caucus.

In summary, Congresswoman Burke's testimony made the following points:

—Full Employment legislation has been the highest priority for the Caucus, which held major Full Employment Forums last year and which arranged meetings with congressional, labor and other leaders which led to the revised bill.

—The official statistics show black unemployment rising from 13.2 per cent in January to 13.7 per cent in February, but even these figures seriously understate black unemployment, which the National Urban League estimates to be over 25 per cent nationwide.

—That while blacks have a special concern with unemployment, their unemployment rate being twice the national average, unemployment is a national problem which affects all Americans.

—The Congressional Black Caucus supports the revised full employment bill and its fundamental restructuring of economic policy-making.

The public is extended an invitation to attend the Iowa Civil Rights Commission meetings on April 14 and 15.

—The cost of not passing full employment legislation is seen in higher crime rates, broken families, more mental illness, and payments for unemployment insurance, welfare, food stamps, and other social insurance payments which could be better used to pay salaries.

—The pace of Congress in addressing full employment legislation has not been rapid enough, but with broad organizational and public support, the bill will be passed.

The Full Employment legislation is a general economic policy measure, rather than one which directly creates programs. The Full Employment bill would require the President to submit legislation to create the programs and to present economic plans to produce the low level of unemployment.

In the past, there has been no such requirement in the law, and the President and Federal Reserve Board have frequently subordinated low unemployment to other purposes.

Under the legislation, the President would be required to submit a full employment and balanced growth plan designed to produce the low level of unemployment in the specified time. Initial reliance would be on hiring in the private sector of the economy.

However, the President would be required to submit legislation to create public service jobs, public works jobs, and youth employment jobs to create employment opportunities where the private sector has not produced an unemployment rate at the specified level.

The Labor Department would maintain a reservoir of jobs in a Full Employment Office, the government acting as an employer of last resort.

VIEWS and REVIEWS by James B. Morris

Knowledge Of Negro History Is Important

In recent years, much has been said and printed about Negro history even though Carter Woodson did a great deal of research and wrote at length about it for 60 years. Yet, not too many youngsters take the time to know much about it.

Negro spirituals are a substantial contribution to Negro history, but at times, it is well to know something about them and, of course, the music is beautiful.

Appearing on an NBC show "Name That Tune" recently was a young Negro girl who was a teller at a California bank and she displayed great knowledge about music of stage and screen. She named one tune after another and was well on the way to winning $15,000 in cash and prizes. However, when she was asked to name the tune of the famous upward bound spiritual which was common knowledge to most people she missed. The tune was "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot."

Maybe she never thought that it was important to know those tunes which are familiar to most people, but she will always remember that she made a great mistake and lost $15,000 because she missed the tune she should have known.

In connection with Negro history, I called attention of the Des Moines Register and Tribune to their lack of knowledge of Negro history as displayed in news items. For instance, in announcing the coming appearance of Representative Diggs of Michigan at one of the undergraduate schools in Western Iowa the article stated that he was the first Negro elected to Congress. Of course this is incorrect in that Negroes were elected to Congress during reconstructed days and up to the turn of the century. They reappeared in 1930 with the election of Oscar DePriest of Illinois. Another instance stated that Tony Brown was Dean of the School of Communication at Howard University. This is incorrect. Another stated that W.E.B. Dubois was the founder of the NAACP. This is incorrect.

These instances emphasize that more Negro history should be included in the regular curriculum of history classes and as required reading.

Third Parties Have Not Been Successful

A group of black Republicans meet in Cleveland, Ohio last week for the purpose of forming a third party because they have become dissatisfied with the two major parties because neither was giving them any consideration. True candidates of both parties have said little during the primary campaigns nor have any plans been announced with reference to their participation at the national conventions.

An example is Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, who all along has favored busing in the public schools but has changed his position because of the opposition that has developed against it.

As much as Negroes need to be knowledgeable and substantially a part of American life, the chance for a third party is suicidal and only helps to elect some candidates that are more distasteful than others.

These men tried it and failed: Theodore Roosevelt, Bullmoose Senator LaFollette, Progressive in 1924; Sen. Strom Thurman, State Rights in 1948 and Senator Henry Wallace, Progressive in 1948. Prior to 1932, the great majority of Negroes voted the Republican ticket. But with the advent of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, which brought on a number of social projects that tended to relieve the pressure of the depression, they turned to the Democratic party just to the extent they had voted the Republican ticket. But failure to make racial discrimination an unfair labor practice hurts to this day.

I have no quarrel with any man as to whom he wishes to vote. To vote is his own business, but this new group needs to be told that there is no future in a third party.

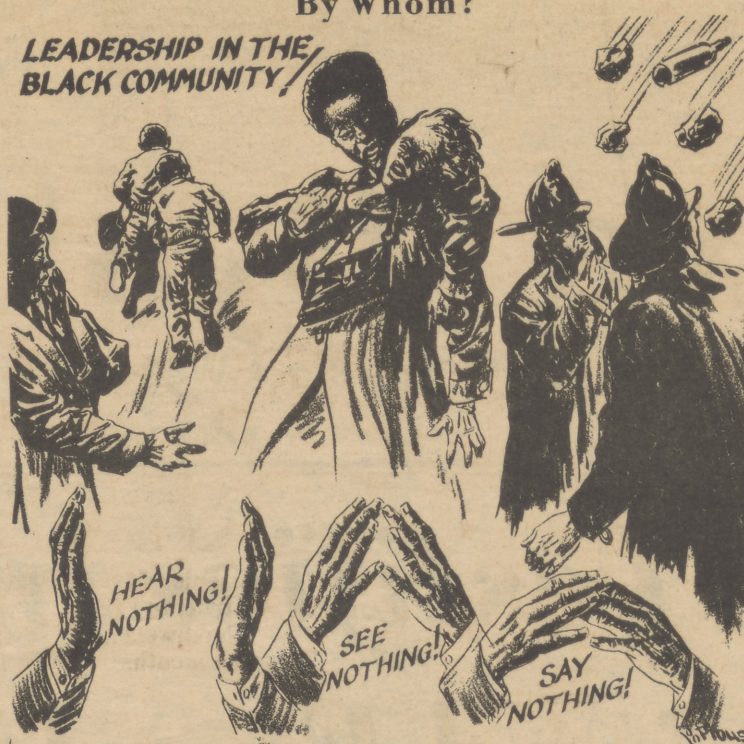

In some of the primaries this year, there has been a line of opposition to those candidates who had been favorable to the cause of the Negro. In fact, there are those who claim that the government was doing too much for Negroes. Of course, this is ridiculous and whatever has been done was only carried out that they may fully enjoy the same thing that all other Americans enjoy.

No special effort beyond this should be made but they should insist on the rights that the Constitution guarantees every citizen. And this, of course, means equal employment, equal education and equal opportunity to do the thing best that one is able to do. Working within the organization is far better.

Brokerage Firm Faces Discrimination Charges

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, the world's largest brokerage firm has been accused of practicing religious discrimination in violating the Human Rights of Patricia McGregor a.k.a. (Jamilah Abdullah) in the firing of McGregor from their staff in January of 1972.

On February 3, 1972, more than four years ago, McGregor filed a verified complaint against Merrill Lynch with the New York City Commission on Human Rights; charging that her firing was a result of her conversion to the Orthodox Islamic Faith.

Religious discrimination is unlawful in accordance with the administrative code of the City of New York. The commission has set March 30, as the date when the matter will go to trial.

McGregor charges that she was released under extreme pressure because she is an Orthodox Muslim. She said she became the target of abuses including derogatory utterances and other forms of harassment because of her adherence to the beliefs of the Orthodox Muslim Religion.

After a full investigation was ordered by Elinor Holmes Norton, chairperson of the commission, the commission has determined that there were sufficient facts to substantiate McGregor's claim that Merrill Lynch has engaged in or are engaging in religious persecution. A finding of probable cause was made against Merrill Lynch and the matter set for trial.

Praise For High School Basketball Tournaments

Iowa high schools girls basketball teams have competed in annual tournaments for a number of years. The 1976 meet was the most successful ever. Ankeny was the first to break the ice.

Practically all of the teams come from communities where there are no Negro students and thus the teams naturally have none. As stated by the announcer at the meet as more of the larger cities become involved in the tournaments more Negro students would be among them. In fact, this year a black female competed with the Washington of Cedar Rapids team.

These games provide recreation and sportsmanship along with the opportunity to compete with and against others and to work together as a team. These are valuable assets to youngsters even after their graduation from high school.

Thousands of grownups, as well as youngsters, look forward to these annual events and certainly Des Moines profits by them both for entertainment and the money spent with the merchants and hotel facilities.

Fisk University Raises Tuition $150

The Board of Trustees of the Board that the current Fisk University voted at its February meeting to raise tuition every alternate year with 1976-77 being the next year for an increase.

Tuition will be raised $150 for 1976-77. The increase will bring Fisk's tuition to $2200 or about the 1975-76 national average ($2240) for four-year institutions.

In doing this Adkins noted that Fisk's tuition would "lag" the national average by about $150 and consequently will cause less strain on the student. Both the scope and tenure of this lag for the future will depend on the university's effort in fundraising.

"We recommend this action so that we might have a systematic gauge by which to set our tuition rate," said Adkins, who also reminded that "It is unreasonable to

Rules Affect Telephone Service, Bills

Northwestern Bell Telephone Company's annual report issued recently says the company's earnings improved somewhat in 1975, but warns that the trend of federal regulatory decisions regarding competition threatens to impair service quality and increase phone bills for the average user.

Per-share earnings were $2.43 in 1975, compared with $2.19 in 1974 and $2.46 in 1973.

Company President Jack A. MacAllister notes that in 1976, the industry celebrates the centennial of the invention of the telephone.

"The anniversary alone would make 1976 an important year for the communications industry," he writes. "I believe it will become even more significant because decisions made this year may determine the course of our industry in its second century — and determine the quality of telephone service to worship with them. Rev. I. J. Scales is pastor.

Morning worship begins at 11 a.m. and is preceded by Sunday School at 9:45. Wednesday night prayer service is 7-8.

Americans shall have, and the price they shall have to pay for it."

These decisions involve federal regulatory policies, he says, which could lead to deteriorating service and higher prices for the average user.

"Cat" Goes To College

There's no doubt about it. Everyone is going to college these days, even "The Cat In The Hat."

Yes, the highly successful Dr. Seuss book is now being used at Dartmouth College to help undergraduates overcome deficiencies in English grammar and composition.

And if that's not enough, Theodor Geisel, the book's author and a Dartmouth alumnus, has established a Professorship in the school's Humanities Department. Why is the chairholder, Professor Peter A. Bien, using the book? "Some of our students here are verbal cripples," he says.

YMCA Offers Swim Program

"Drowning has become the third leading cause of accidental death in the United States according to national statistics. Nearly one-third of the victims are teenagers between the ages of 15 and 19 and over 60 percent are under 25."

"These grim statistics and others like them underscore the value in knowing and understanding aquatic safety both in and near the water," Ivor Thomason, aquatic director of the Des Moines YMCA said. "We'd like to waterproof every boy, girl, man, and woman in Des Moines," he added.

To do this, the YMCA is offering a "3-in-1 Aquatic Program" to promote safety in or near water for persons of all ages and all swimming abilities. The three programs which will run April 5 - May 21 are: Basic aquatic safety; advanced aquatic safety; and YMCA senior lifesaving.

The Y is a good place to learn water safety because the Y has been teaching swimming and water safety for over 100 years. Last year 731,000 people learned to swim at Y's across the country.

For information on how to enroll, stop by the YMCA or call Thomason at 288-0131, ext. 276.

Article Recounts Triumph Of Black Female Singer

NEW YORK — Reflecting on the struggle of Marian Anderson, Margaret Truman, daughter of President Harry Truman, writes in April McCall's special Centennial issue: "It seems incredible that the woman who turned out to be one of the most magnificent singers of the 20th century was denied an opportunity to study voice because of her race, but discrimination was a way of life in this country for more years than most of us like to admit."

Describing Marian Anderson, Ms. Truman writes that "the young singer knew that there was a desperate need for change in America's attitude toward its black citizens, but she never saw herself as a torchbearer of that change. She had elected to give her life to music; someone else would have to fight the battles against racial injustice."

The real discovery of Marian Anderson occurred in Europe, Ms. Truman notes. On tour in the United States, Marian Anderson suffered the meanness of Jim Crow and was refused hotel accommodations in New York City.

Her manager, impresario Sol Hurok, was determined that she play the best halls — which led to the eruption of a national issue when Washington D.C.'s Constitution Hall, owned by the Daughters of the American Revolution, refused to allow her performance as part of a Howard University Concert Series.

Ms. Truman reports that the situation drew national attention when Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt resigned from the DAR disputing its restriction of Marian Anderson's performance.

"To Marian Anderson," Ms. Truman says, "the situation was nightmarish. She was still on tour, and in every city she visited, newspapermen mobbed her, trying to get a comment. She refused to say a word."

Explaining further, Ms. Truman states: "She was as indignant about the DAR's restrictive clause as Eleanor Roosevelt had been, but it would have been out of character for her to strike out against her enemies."

The outcome, Ms. Truman writes, was a magnificent triumph for Marian Anderson, engineered by Sol Hurok, and a group of government officials and politicians. She appeared before a crowd — white and black — of 75,000 on Easter Sunday, 1939, outside at the Lincoln Memorial.

When the last lines of "My Soul Is Anchored In The Lord" died away, "the crowd erupted. It was not applause, it was tumult, a wild mixture of cheering and pounding hands and stamping feet."

The truth prevailed, Ms. Truman writes, as "A woman of courage had forced the American people to confront the greatest, most shameful inequity in our national life. Marian Anderson had made her voice the symbol of the too-long-forgotten doctrine that all men are created equal."

Your local newspaper leads the way in providing local citizens with a voice in your community.

The majority of school, city, and county officials recognize the need for keeping the public informed. An informed citizen is an educated citizen.

Need information on a local bond issue? What's going on at your city council meeting? Local citizens want to know, and local newspapers report it . . . honestly and fully.

Local newspapers deliver, where other news sources leave off. People believe strongly in newspapers for several reasons: newspaper reading is a habit with most people; it's part of the habitual routine of daily life; and over eight out of ten adults read a newspaper every day—seven out of ten teenagers too! No other news media can match local newspapers for speedy, thorough saturation of your town.

Who wants to know? You do! And, your local newspaper is the place to find it—with a full report.

LOOK ON SPORTS

Now we are getting down to the final week of the real test of champions in the NCAA basketball meet. As has been said before, the ballclub that comes out of that scuffle is the number one team, no matter what. There have been years when the final winners were rated maybe four or five, but they wound up being the top dog. Maybe it could happen this year.

Just about everybody picks Indiana to take it all, and on the strength of their record, they should. Some writers are calling the Hoosiers the team of destiny, and say they are supposed to win, no matter what happens. But Michigan remembers that they had those fellows down with three seconds and it took a rather lucky tipin to turn the game. Then UCLA must be thinking of that early season trimming Indiana gave them and could be looking forward to this meeting. So, maybe destiny had better be on the side of the boys from Indiana.

This year was featured by the fact that some of the black schools wondered why none of them were invited to the major meets. Well, one was, but it wasn't the best. Even so, they had a good game, but went out early. You know, I have argued for years that a lot of our black colleges could play with anybody because they got players who were first class when they couldn't play in the major conferences, and this gave them the base for good teams which they still have. Maybe after the fuss this time, one of the better black schools will get to play in the thing next year.

A Slight Error

Our editor received a communication from Luther Trent, president of the Cedar Rapids NAACP. When we watched the girls state basketball meet, I recall the girl who got in the game at the tail end. But since she played only a few minutes, I thought nothing of it. Well, somebody got their facts slightly garbled.

Trent says that it was mentioned that she was the first black to ever play in this meet, and thought that deserved special mention. Now, most of you who take time to read this drivel know what I think of that first black business, so I won't go into that. But while I think we ought to include the girl's resume of herself, I must let the folks in Cedar Rapids know that Gertrude Wilson was in fact about the fourth black that I know of to play in this meet.

Way back in the late twenties, there was a girl named Mary Woods who came up here from southern Iowa, I think from Centerville. There was Dorles Brown of Ankeny whose team won a couple of games. Miss Brown made the first all-state team that year, 1952 or 53, and has been inducted into the basketball hall of fame.

In 1965 there was Colleen Bowser, who was expected to lead Valley High to the state title. But she injured her leg in one of the earlier meets and wasn't at her best in the final meet. But Valley did win at least one game even with Colleen on one leg. But I am glad to hear from Miss Wilson, and sure hope she comes back next year. Being a sophomore, she should make it big in the next three years. Here is the dope on her as she tells it.

"I am a sophomore at George Washington Senior High School and I am very interested in sports. I participated not only in basketball, but volleyball, track and softball, with basketball my favorite sport. I enjoyed playing on a winning team and it was a great thrill to participate in this year's girls state basketball tournament."

Well, Gertrude, for any girl who makes it to the sweet sixteen, it has to be one of the high spots in her life, and sometimes it is the top spot. Hang in there, and real good luck next year.

How Come?

There is talk of abolishing the wrestling program in the Metro high schools. Seems the chief complaint is that the coaches can't keep full squads all season, and it would cut down some expenses. Well, I happen to agree with one fellow who said that he thought that sometimes money had to be spent on some programs even though they did lose money in order to keep fellows in school and out of trouble.

If I had to offer a solution to the situation, I would suggest junior varsity or second mat teams so every fellow out for the sport would get a chance to compete. The trouble, as I see it, is that after the varsity squad is picked, the coach doesn't have time to fool around with the other fellows and they know they won't get to wrestle, so they quit.

If each youth knew he would get to meet some outside competition at his level, I think most of them would stay out for the sport. Why couldn't there be two or three mat squads at each school — A, B, and C — with each bunch meeting the other? Now, this is just my personal idea, and you know how much I know about these things.

Metro Retains Wrestling; Considers Expansion

The Metro Conference turned down a move to declare wrestling a non-conference sport and decided to send letters to several central Iowa high schools inviting them to a meeting to discuss conference expansion.

At a meeting Monday night of principals and athletic directors of the eight Metro schools (Valley, Dowling, Hoover, Roosevelt, Tech, Lincoln, East and North), the members turned down the wrestling move, 6-2. It had been suggested by Valley and Dowling so the strong teams could schedule more competitive teams.

A committee studying possible expansion of the conference recommended that discussion of the subject be postponed for a year, pending a decision by the Des Moines School Board on whether to change high school attendance boundaries or close high school buildings. The recommendation was voted down and the conference members then voted to invite Southeast Polk, Marshalltown, Ames, Ankeny, Newton and Urbandale to a meeting to discuss expansion.

In other action, the conference voted to:

- * Set the starting time for evening wrestling matches at 6:15 p.m.

- * Hold all conference cross country meets at Ewing Park.

- * Leave unchanged the distribution of receipts from football and basketball games and receipts from employee passes.

- * Continue present practice of playing sophomore basketball games on Monday nights and varsity boys' and girls' doubleheaders on Friday nights.

- * Increase the number of players permitted to dress for football games to 55 in line with the state 4A regulation. This is an increase of 11 from the previously announced figure. The members earlier voted down a suggestion that schools be allowed to dress 60 players.

- * Retain present conference eligibility rules for athletes.

- * Establish a committee to review and rewrite recommendations on the number of coaches in all sports.

IEBN Airs Gymnastics

Some of the nation's finest gymnasts competed in the 1976 Big 8 Gymnastics Championships in Boulder, Colorado on March 19 and 20.

Two conference and national powers, Iowa State and Nebraska, were the team favorites entering the tournament.

The Central Educational Network (CEN) will present television coverage of the individual championships in each event on Sunday, March 28 at noon on all the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network channels: Ch 11, Des Moines; Ch 12, Iowa City; Ch 27, Sioux City; Ch 32, Council Bluffs; Ch 32, Waterloo; and Ch 36, Red Oak.

Last year Iowa State won its ninth consecutive conference title with Nebraska finishing a close second. Nebraska defeated Iowa State earlier this season and ended the nation's longest dual meet winning streak. The Cornhuskers also finished ahead of Iowa State in last year's NCAA championships. Both Iowa State and Nebraska were ranked high in the national gymnastics polls entering the meet.

Highlights of the 1976 Big 8 Gymnastics Championships is being co-produced for the Central Educational Network by the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network and the Nebraska ETV Network.

Williamson Retitles Latest Motion Picture

Hollywood, California—Following the wrapup of his most recent motion picture production, Fred Williamson, president of Po Boy Productions, announced a title change of the film.

Previously titled, "Journey to Nowhere", the motion picture will now be released under the title of "No Way Back" and will be distributed by Atlas Films.

Upon Release, "No Way Back" will debut the acting talents of Don Cornelius, way I can persuade her that the time is now?

L.G.

Dear L. G.:

I'm afraid the decision about children must rest with your daughter-in-law, and you'll only create ill will if you keep on urging her to start a family.

Since you obviously love little children and are willing to devote yourself to their care, why don't you find out if there are working mothers in your community who would like to have you look after their children — either all day or in the afternoon period when nursery school or kindergarten is over and before the mother gets home. You can even earn some extra money and enjoy being a substitute grandmother.

popular television "Soul Train" Host, who was signed for his role by Williamson.

Additionally, "No Way Back" co-stars the Vivacious Tracy Reed and the soundtrack and title song of the motion picture production is being produced and recorded by The Dells, longtime perennial favorites among appreciators of good group sounds.

Pre-Medical Madness?

Reports alleging that medical students cheat and deliberately destroy classmates' experiments may be correct but such instances are rare at Brown University, according to the school's assistant dean for health careers.

Some pre-medical students do become "pre-medically mad," he says, because they have been at the heads of their classes through secondary school and do not expect to encounter defeat.

Dean Robert Ripley suggests that there are alternatives to the "medical school or nothing" philosophy. Rather than cheating to stay ahead, his students who are not doing well are urged to examine other fields of study such as medical economics or hospital administration.

Gardening Doesn't Need Green Thumb; Add Love

by Eleanora E. Tate

The brisk late March wind whips at Andrew Jones' jacket as he reaches into a brown sack on the ground and takes out another about-to-be-planted onion sprout.

Jones, 66, and his wife Willa, of 722 S.E. Twenty-seventh St., are like the hordes of other local residents who have (or who still plan to) plowed, tilled, hoed or troweled up the earth to grow flowers, vegetables or both.

"People will go by and look at everything growing and say I must have a green thumb," said Jones, who is semi-retired.

"They don't think there's anything to it. But if you've got it in your mind that you can just throw things in the ground and they'll grow—forget it."

He shakes his head, nods at the black raspberry bushes not far away, the strawberries hidden by straw and the asparagus, garlic, horseradish and other vegetables growing in the 155-by-60 garden plot.

"No, it's all foot work," he explains, adding, "And my back gets tired, too."

Jones, who has gardened here for more than 20 years, remembers the struggles he has had "for the last 10 years" in trying to grow eggplants. This year, however, there are 17 signs of success to make up for the past years' eggplant failures, and they stand tall by the cherry tomatoes inside the Jones home.

As his dog, Queenie, prances about beside him, Jones walks over to the hotbed near his garage. In it are radish, cabbage, cucumber, melon and other young edibles.

"And that one back there," he says, pointing to a plant, "might be a weed. You gotta let them grow until the leaves get broke (unfurled) and then you can know for sure."

When the hotbed seedlings are ready, they'll be transplanted to the garden, he says.

In addition to vegetables are flowers—rows and circles and beds of grape hyacinths, bachelors buttons, mums, roses and others that, when in bloom, will turn the Jones yard into a multi-colored cornucopia.

"I love flowers," Jones murmurs, looking as if he can see already the bobbing petals of tulips in the yard.

"They're (flowers) a sort of satisfaction. I don't think there's anything prettier." He pauses, then quickly adds, "But I love to garden, too."

Civil Suits Filed Against Southern City, Businesses

The Department of Justice filed a civil suit recently charging officials of Mamou, Louisiana, with permitting a private club to exclude black youths from a baseball league at a city-owned park.

Attorney General Edward H. Levi said the suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Shreveport, Louisiana against Mayor Burkman J.

Motors, Cargill, and from the Procurement departments of several federal government agencies, including the Navy Supply Systems Command, Air Force Logistics, the Defense Supply Agency, the Army and Air Force Exchange Services, the Veteran's Supply Services, the Rock Island Arsenal, the Iowa Veteran's Administration Hospitals, and the Post Office.

Representatives of the Small Business Administration, and the National Minority Purchasing Council will also be in attendance.

Manuel, five members of the board of aldermen, and two officials of Sports, Inc.

The suit charged that Sports, Inc., refuses to allow blacks to participate in its baseball league at Mamou city park in violation of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Mamou is northwest of Baton Rouge.

The suit said city officials permit racial discrimination by sanctioning the organization's use of the city-owned park and by contributing to the club's operations.

Mamou Athletic Club operates a separate baseball program for black youths at the park, and a proposal to integrate the two programs or to allow black teams to play white teams has been turned down.

The suit asked for a court order enjoining the city from allowing any organization that practices racial discrimination to use the park and enjoining Sports, Inc., from refusing to allow blacks to participate in its activities.

The Justice Department also filed public accommodations suits against two pool halls in Louisiana and Texas and a tavern in Florida.

T. C. Camp, owner of the Pub, outside of Bogalusa, Louisiana, was charged with refusing to serve blacks or allow them to use the facilities. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in New Orleans.

Edwin R. Ellis, owner of Eddie's Tele-Tot-Um, in Houston, was charged with refusing to allow blacks to play pool while restricting them to service at the front of his establishment. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Houston.

Morris E. Hensler and James B. Longacre, owners of the L-Bo Room Lounge, in Winter Haven, Florida, were charged with refusing to allow blacks to drink alcoholic beverages on the premises. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Jacksonville, Florida.

The suits asked for court orders prohibiting the owners from engaging in racial discrimination and requiring them to post signs stating that they will serve persons of all races.

IDEAS Lists Objectives For Approaching Seminar

IDEAS, in conjunction with Kirkwood Community College, Cedar Rapids, is sponsoring a Federal Procurement and Minority Purchasing Seminar on Friday, April 2, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. at 3-Center, Iowa Hall, 6301 Kirkwood Blvd., S.W.

IDEAS, the Iowa Development and Economic Assistance System, is the first, and currently the only, organization in Iowa funded by the Office of Minority Business Enterprises, (OMBE), U.S. Department of Commerce. Its function is to provide management and technical assistance to potential and existing minority businesses in central and eastern Iowa, concentrating in the major cities of Cedar Rapids, Davenport, Des Moines, Iowa City, and Waterloo, and extending into the Illinois cities of Rock Island and Moline.

Executive director of IDEAS is Hugh Gibson, who formerly headed the Oakhill-Jackson Economic Development Corporation, (OJEDC), and was the Black Self-Help Enabler in Cedar Rapids, as well as being involved in other community activities. IDEAS is an outgrowth of OJEDC, which is now dissolved.

The major objectives of the IDEAS seminar are:

- 1) To expose minority and disadvantaged entrepreneurs in Iowa to the private and public procurement opportunities for minority-owned businesses.
- 2) To encourage Iowa businessmen to become more aware of the need for a concentrated effort on their part to commit themselves to a minority purchasing program within their own companies and to maximize the volume of goods and services purchased from minority-owned businesses.

3) To offer the opportunity for appropriate representatives from federal agencies and major corporations in the private sector, to interact for the first time, with Iowa's existing and potential minority entrepreneurs.

4) To educate and expose the state of Iowa to the minority resources available.

To facilitate the attainment of these objectives, participation in the seminar will include representation from the national offices of several major corporations, including General Motors, General Mills, American
