Civil War Cited as Example of Intolerance

PILOT PROGRAM FOR EX-OFFENDERS

Des Moines has been chosen as one of two pilot sites in the nation that will attempt to break down communication barriers between the ex-addict and future employers.

There is a communication breakdown between potential employers and ex-addicts or known drug abusers that is fostered and perpetuated by preconceived ideas about both drug abuse and employment expectation says Leonard Peavy, Employer Relation Manager of the pilot program: Employability Assistance to Rehabilitated Drug Abuser (EARDA).

"The program is not designed for drug counseling or vocational evaluation" said Peavy, "but instead to play supplementary role in gaining jobs for the rehabilitated addict. This will include individualized job preparation and placement assistance."

Clients for the program will be selected from ADAPT and other qualifying agencies who will recommend those individuals within their counseling programs who have become socially and physically stabilized and are ready for job development and placement assistance. "job coaches," Peavy continued, "have a unique pivotal role in this program. They will be on call to both the employee and his supervisor. They will conduct the weekly follow-up sessions in person. This personal and close contact will hopefully aid in the detection and prevention of any problems the employer or the ex-offender may have."

This close follow up procedure is designed to help the ex-offender succeed on the job.

In order to break down the barriers between the employer and the ex-offender each client must be willing to sign a release paper permitting EARDA staffers to use; certain confidential information concerning his form addiction and arrest records in developing job opportunities.

It makes good sense to fight addiction and drug abuse with a commitment and investment" said Peavy, "drug abuse is expensive." It is estimated that an addict in the Greater Des Moines Area must pay between $60 and $80 a day to support his or her drug habit. This can amount to substantial cash dollars spent daily for heroin in our community.

CHISHOLM RAPS POLICY MAKERS

by Eleanor E. Tate

Indianola, Ia. — The first black woman elected to the United States House of Representatives left the Simpson College audience here Monday with messages that would have made her mentors — Harriet Tubman, Sojourner Truth and Frederick Douglass — proud.

Shirley Chisholm (Dem., New York) told an audience made up of college students, children and admirers that America, with its "impoverished spirit," must remember that because government is for the people, by the people and of the people, it must be returned to the people.

In a speech that focused on women's rights, politics and governmental ineptitude, Chisholm declared, "In this 200th year, the time has come in this nation when we've got to have new kinds of people running city government, council government, state government and national government."

And particularly needed are "more minorities" and "more women" in administrative and policy-making positions, she said.

Chisholm, a former New York state legislator elected to Congress in 1968, said that although the United States is celebrating 200 years of existence in 1976, the as set forth in the country's Declaration of Independence and in its Constitution have yet to become "a reality for many, many Americans."

"FRATRICIDAL CIVIL WAR"

NEW YORK — Citing the terrible fratricidal civil war in Lebanon as "the newest of what happens when religious hatred is allowed to fester and there exists no respect for religious pluralism," the President of the National Conference of Christians and Jews called for the eradication of the "evils of intolerance, injustice and oppression."

Dr. David Hyatt, in a statement issued for the Passover-Easter holy days, stressed the need for mankind to establish "amity, love and peace among ourselves."

"The people of this nation and the world have to start respecting the rights and dignities of others or we will eventually destroy ourselves," insisted the head of the 48-year-old human relations organization. "The terrible fratricidal civil war in Lebanon between Muslim and Maronite Catholic militiamen is the newest example of what happens when religious hatred is allowed to fester and when there exists no respect for religious pluralism."

"Violence and killings do not solve problems," said Dr. Hyatt. "Social progress cannot be won on the battlefield. Quiet dialogue is essential and I fervently hope that people throughout the world will take the occasion of this time of Passover and Easter to pray for peace and for all people to enjoy the God-given rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"True freedom exists," he said, "when peace and justice prevail and the NCCJ urges mankind to earnestly work for those ends."

The complete text of Dr. Hyatt's statement follows:

The National Conference of Christians and Jews welcomes the Passover-Easter season, when Jewish and Christian holy days coincide, as a symbolic reminder of the need for love and understanding, especially in

Cuba Does The Fighting For Russia

CUBA

A few years ago America was paying anti-Communist citizens to get out of Cuba and also gave them extra cash to get them started. I could never see the sense of this program: since only those who favored Castro were being left.

Prior to the administration of Castro, the Monroe Doctrine was adhered to by the nations on this hemisphere. The smaller ones looked to America as a big brother and we have responded whenever the occasion arose.

During the administration of President Kennedy, Castro permitted Russia to sneak missiles into his country without our knowledge. When it was discovered a strong protest was made to Russia and they were removed.

During the uprising in Angola, Cuba sent several thousand troops to bolster Communists in that country and their side was victorious.

Today, there is talk that Castro contemplates sending troops to Rhodesia to help the Communist cause there. Thus, Castro is pulling Russia's chestnuts out of the fire and perpetuates the spread of Communism. Castro's campaigns fit into Russian tactics by fighting in the field while enabling Russia to gain ground without use of their military operations.

Big Teams Share The Best Players

The 1976 baseball season has gotten off on time, but only after lots of changes, trading and hold-outs which makes many teams of last year almost new. Today, we are trying to make every fellow the master of his own destiny. But there comes a time when some rights must be curtailed for the benefit for those with whom you may be associated.

The famous teams which generally have large bags of money to deal with have managed to get most of the good players and thus we have leagues with a number of fine teams and another with a number of poor teams. The idea of drafting players was instituted to correct this situation but today the big money holders are at their old game.

No doubt there will be complaints as the season goes on and a more strict distribution will follow after meetings for fixing the rules of the game next fall.

Downtown Development Moving Too Slow

Des Moines, like many cities, is stuck with a delapidated downtown area. The city fathers have not been able to sell the taxpayers on a program to redevelop the area. And while two blocks have been designated as a starter on the program even it will be surrounded by undesirable buildings.

This has led to the construction of several centers on the outer edge of the city that have taken most of the shoppers from downtown.

Opposition from a few self-satisfied people continues to intimidate the city fathers and what programs have been initiated, mostly by downtown business people, are moving at a snail's pace.

There is no sense in Des Moines allowing itself to be a backward community when the financial standing of the community is able and sufficient to do otherwise.

Backyard Bounty

"How do you plant — and care for — dwarf fruit trees?"

Several readers write that they're ready to plant some dwarfs this spring. But they want to be sure they're giving their trees a healthy start.

Here's how to plant bare-root nursery trees, whether dwarf or full-size:

Remove packing material and soak the roots in water overnight. Cut off only several damaged roots.

Dig a hole deeper and wider than necessary to hold the spread-out roots.

Untangle and spread out the roots in a natural position.

Place the plant at the depth it grew in the nursery or just a little deeper. You can tell by the color change on the trunk.

With dwarfs, be very careful to have the knob (at the base of the trunk) above ground level. This is the spot where it was grafted, and your tree won't be a dwarf if you bury the knob.

Madison Child Care Center in New York, and who has been deeply involved in community education and health, said that although the United States is the "wealthiest" nation in the world, "there are still 42 million people in this country who are impoverished."

And, said Chisholm, "At least 30 per cent of all black children, compared to less than 10 per cent of white children, still suffer the permanent physical damage due to malnutrition and lack of medical care."

Millions of children in "ghetto" schools, said Chisholm, "are handed diplomas each year that they cannot read because their educational systems cannot cope with their special problems. And so they're graduated instead of educated."

Chisholm ran for the presidency in 1972 and was criticized for doing so by the predominantly male Black Congressional Caucus, of which she is a member. Still, her presidential attempts will hopefully pave the way so that other non-white persons — and women — will want to do the same.

Though Chisholm lashed out at the multitudinous misdoings of the Nixon administration, particularly the Watergate affair and the "immorality and illegality" of the Vietnam War, she did not mention the part played in the war by the late Democratic president Lyndon B. Johnson, who chose not to run for re-election as a result of opposition by the public to the war.

Nor did she criticize other Democrats. In fact, when later asked to comment on Democratic presidential candidate Jimmie Carter's "ethnic purity" remark, she said that every Democratic presidential candidate has said something negative about black people at one time or another and that once the late Democratic president Franklin D. Roosevelt used the phrase, "the good darkies."

For the Republicans, however, she had many words, particularly in regard to the doings of the Ford administration.

The current unemployment situation, which affects primarily the low and middle-income families, has helped to make up "the worst economic crisis in (America) over 40 years," she began.

Yet, said Chisholm, Ford is attempting to cut back on social services programs,

"many of which are the only sustaining forces today in the lives of the poor in this nation," she said.

Chisholm said that Ford believes that this country cannot afford such social services programs — although earlier this year he had called for an "investment program" that would benefit middle and upper income families.

"Such proposals are far too generous for those in our country who have already reaped the benefits of an unequal society," said Chisholm. "That indicates that the presidential priorities have no room for the poor and the minority."

Chisholm, a strong supporter of women's rights, urged the women of the nation to "get up and move" to "help save America's children, because male politicians, 'almost without exception, are not concerned with health, education or nutrition legislation."

Those politicians, she said, are more concerned with oil depletion, munitions and similar legislation according to the wishes of special interest groups.

"We know that this is presumably and allegedly a government of the people, by the people and for the people," Chisholm told the Simpson audience. "But the people's representatives in Washington, D.C., are not placing the people's concerns and the people's interests at the top of the agenda."

If citizens inspected the voting records of certain American politicians, "Your hair would go to the ceiling," said Chisholm. "When you look ... you can't understand how they vote for certain things" which do not reflect the needs of the folks back home who elected them.

"They vote that way because of the money that was put into their campaign," she said, and added:

"And you must never forget that he who pays the piper calls the tune."

Chisholm's appearance at Simpson was sponsored by its College Activities Board and Concerned Black Students.

The time for decision...is now!

The decisions that must be made about energy today are ones that will affect our lives and our children's lives ten, twenty and fifty years into the future.

It's a virtual certainty our society will demand more energy in the years to come. Just how much is not easy to say. If current rates of growth were to continue, the U.S. Department of Commerce predicts energy demands could triple by the year 2000.

The large increases in costs of all forms of energy will undoubtedly reduce the future growth rate. But by how much? Even with stringent conservation measures, the Commerce Department predicts we would need 2½ times more energy to sustain reasonable economic growth. While we can conserve energy in our homes, energy shortages on farms and in factories will mean unemployment and production cut-backs.

To satisfy these future demands, we will have to explore and utilize all available energy resources. These include solar, geothermal and hydroelectric energy, imported and domestic oil, natural gas, coal and nuclear energy.

Actions to increase our energy supply cannot be taken overnight. For instance, it takes up to a decade to put a power plant into operation, once the decision has been made to build it. Meanwhile, our energy requirements are gradually increasing, day by day.

In the days and weeks to come, Iowa Power will be providing you with more information on the nation's energy situation; on Iowa's particular energy needs; and on our plans for meeting your future energy needs.

For more detailed information on these vital areas of public concern, send for the free booklet "A Time For Decision."

Anti-Malaria Tablets to Mozambique

Two Quaker organizations and the Mennonite Central Committee today announced an emergency shipment of over 1-million anti-malaria tablets to Mozambique — in response to an urgent request to avert a serious outbreak in the wake of dangerous flooding.

The medical supplies were flown from London last week by the American Friends Service Committee, Philadelphia; Friends Service Council (Britain), and the Mennonite Central Committee, of Akron, Pa.

The government of Mozambique's request came to the AFSC in late March after the Quaker organization's southern Africa representative, Bill Sutherland, met with the Minister of Health in Maputo March 18. Sutherland, an American Black, has worked and lived in Africa over 20 years. He is based in Lusaka, Zambia.

The government asked for 100 million chloroquine phosphate tablets for a stepped-up anti-malaria campaign during April, May and June.

Homemaking Hints

Conserving time is a major concern of today's busy homemakers. One way to keep house cleaning simple is to do little jobs more often!

Food spills on stove and counter tops, for example, can be cleaned more simply if you grab a sponge and wipe them right away. Once a spill has hardened, it often takes real muscle to get rid of it. Baked-on foods and dirty cooking utensils, when soaked immediately, also become a cinch to clean up later.

A HEARTY SOUP FOR A HUNGRY MAN

The brothy smell of this homemade soup is calculated to arouse the appetite; its hearty goodness will satisfy it. The secret of its flavor is a generous measure of the original Worcestershire sauce.

HEARTY MEATBALL AND BEAN SOUP

- 1 pound ground lean beef
- 3/4 cup soft bread crumbs
- 3 tablespoons catsup
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Original Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- 2 cups boiling water
- 1 cup carrots cut into 1/2-inch thick slices
- 1 can (1 lb.) baked beans in tomato sauce
- 1 package (9 oz.) frozen cut green beans
- 1/3 cup alphabet or other noodles

In a medium bowl lightly combine beef, bread crumbs, catsup, egg, salt and 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce. Shape into about 18 meatballs. In a large skillet heat oil; brown meatballs on all sides. Remove and set aside. In a medium saucepan dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water. Add carrots; simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. Add 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, browned meatballs, baked beans, green beans and noodles. Bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. Serve hot with crisp Italian bread and green salad, if desired. Yield: 6 portions.

Premature Births

Approximately 245,000 babies are born prematurely or below normal birthweight (5 1/2 pounds) each year in the United States. This happens more frequently when the mother has had little or no prenatal care.

Selecting a physician or clinic as soon as a woman suspects she may be pregnant could reduce infant mortality by as much as one-third. High quality medical care should be available to all women especially during the pre-natal months. The incidence of prematurity and birth defects can be decreased if high risk pregnancies are diagnosed and monitored.

Fathers-to-be can play an important role in the over-all health of their wives and their future child by encouraging early visits to a physician or clinic.

Most hospitals conduct classes for pregnant women and their husbands to help them prepare for the birth of their child. This is especially helpful for the first-time parent. The miracle of birth can be a time of shared happiness for the couple.

Happiness Through Health

by Otto McClarrin

The Saxena blood test has shown in clinical trials with 2,000 women that it can detect pregnancy as early as six to eight days after conception.

The test may also be used to determine imminent spontaneous abortion, ectopic pregnancies, and the presence of trophoblastic disease, according to a New York hospital - Cornell Medical Center report.

Dr. B. B. Saxena, a professor at the medical college, developed the test after ten years of research into human pituitary hormones, the report stated. The test's accuracy has been confirmed at four other centers.

The first "Yes or No" kits for determining pregnancy within one day of missed menses will become available this spring. In addition to detecting pregnancy earlier and thus providing for early abortion, the test can detect ectopic pregnancies (located away from normal position) more accurately than current methods and "usually before rupture," the report said.

Clinical experience has also shown that in patients monitored by the Saxena test, other tests permit early diagnosis of impending miscarriage and earlier therapy, the report explained.

The first success ever in reviving the frozen hearts of warm-blooded animals was claimed recently in Japan by Dr. Saijo Sumida, who said he did it with rats and mice. Previously, similar success was attained only with cold-blooded animals such as frogs.

Dr. Sumida, chief surgeon of Fukuoka Central Hospital and an authority on frozen blood, told a meeting of the Japan Transplantation Society that two years ago he replaced the blood of rats and mice with glycerin fluid, froze their hearts with liquid nitrogen to -196 degrees centigrade and preserved the hearts at low temperatures.

In August, 1975, he thawed the hearts in Ringer's solution and they began to pulsate normally. The glycerin, Dr. Sumida explained, both prevented ice from forming during freezing and protected the hearts from damage while in storage.

I received a letter recently from Ariel Melchior, Sr., publisher of the Daily News of the V.I., which called to my attention a news release dated October 3, 1975, stating that Dr. Alfred O. Heath, Commissioner of Health of the Virgin Islands had approved several changes in health policy; a major one being:

"Smallpox vaccinations will no longer be given to anyone in the Virgin Islands except those persons travelling to or through smallpox endemic areas or to those areas still requiring smallpox immunization."

Business in the Black

By Charles E. Belle

The Monongahela Menace

Mention lumberman and a picture of Paul Bunyon and pancakes appears to most people. The nearly 1,000 men meeting for the spring session of the Western Wood Products Association in San Francisco appeared to be ordinary businessmen.

They talked about their families and friends while trying to find energy saving home construction methods. They kept one ear to the world market because Japanese exports are on the rise.

With the other ear they heard the rumbling of environmentalist emproaching on their place in the wilderness. The Monongahela decision, by the U.S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals on August 21, 1975, upheld a 1973 lower court decision that narrowly defined the 1897 Organic Act for the national forests.

It stopped the forest service from selling trees from the Monongahela National Forest in West Virginia unless the trees were dead, physiologically mature, large, individually marked and removed.

Officials are afraid that if the decision is demanded of all 155 national forests, federal forestry for federal timber would end. They say it could cut timber production 75 percent this year alone. The Monongahela decision may cost 1,500 jobs in one one-industry town.

It could shut down the entire Ninth Circuit, encompassing such giant forest states as Oregon, Washington, and California. This would mean more lost jobs and a jump in wood product prices.

The United States has plenty of trees, nearly three-fourths as much forest land as when Christopher Columbus landed. It totals 754 million acres, about one-third of all the nation's land. A half-billion acres are "commercial."

The other 254 million, about one-third of the total forest land cannot be harvested because they are set aside for parks, wilderness and recreation or simply unsuitable for commercial production.

The U.S. Forest Service says the Monongahela menace could prohibit the use of three-fourths of the timber available from the nation's forests in fiscal 1976.

These lands provide 15.6 per cent of the total U.S.

harvest of all timber. The same percentage of U.S. dependency on Arab oil at the time of the 1973 embargo.

A forest embargo could create a shortage of wood forcing additional unemployment and a higher cost for housing on poor people. Perhaps white liberals living in suburbia can afford to pay higher prices for their place in the sun, but poor blacks have little enough chance to construct homes at today's prices. (NNPA)

Community Action

Mid-Iowa Community Action (MICA) and the newly formed Chelsea Improvement and Development, Inc. have organized a Community Betterment Project in conjunction with MICA's Summer Youth Employment Program.

Under CIDI supervision, 3 youths will be hired to install street signs, restore the old bridge and lighting structures and construct a new park and recreation area on an acre of land near the intersection of highway 212.

The Summer Youth Employment Program, a Federal Manpower program administered by Mid-Iowa Community Action, provides summer employment and career assessment activities for economically disadvantaged youth, ages 14-21, in Hardin, Marshall, Tama and Powershiek counties.

Funding source for the project is Chelsea Improvement and Development, Inc. CIDI is formed and supported by all town organizations and businesses.

AREA VI Co-operative Area Manpower Planning System voted Friday to make three major recommendations to the State Office for Planning and Programming for the state 1977 manpower plan. The group will recommend that CETA Title I and CETA Title VI be coordinated under the direction of the CETA Title I Team. Currently, the CETA Title VI program, an Emergency Job Service Employment Program, is administered by the Iowa Employment Security Commission. The second recommendation calls for the development of a job seeking skills program. The job seeking skills program would focus on helping the unemployed gain job applications and job interview skills. The third

Labor Dept. Clarifies Rule on Rehiring Workers

The U.S. Department of Labor has proposed a clarification of its policy limiting the number of laid-off regular employees a city or county can rehire under federally-funded public service employment programs.

Proposals which appeared in the Federal Register Friday (April 9) spell out allowable re-employment levels by local prime sponsors under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), many of whom have had to lay off regular employees to balance their budgets while hiring new workers in jobs funded under the Act.

Richard G. Miskimins, Kansas City regional administrator of the Department's Employment and Training Administration, said that if, for example, a city has a total of 10,000 jobless persons and 800 of them are laid-off city workers, the proposed regulations would limit the number of laid-off city workers who could be rehired to about 8% of the total number hired for public service jobs with federal funds.

Other proposals published at the same time— also to effect CETA operations in the fiscal year beginning October 1— would reduce workload, time and cost for state, city and county governments operating CETA programs. The new rules would

—Shorten the public notices required for initial plans and subsequent modifications, and reduce the publication time from 3 days to 1.

—Revise and streamline the grant modification procedures thereby reducing the number of modifications that require prior approval from the Department and public notification.

—Reduce the need for prime sponsors (the 431 state and local governments) to audit subgrantees and contractors by 10 to 15 percent by requiring that audits be limited to projects of $100,000 or more (and at least 25 percent of the remainder).

—Redefine administrative terms to make them more compatible to local government cost accounting methods and modes.

—Relieve the majority of the primes sponsors from the requirement to obtain approval for administrative cost allocation plans.

The proposals are open to the public for comment through May 10. Interested parties may send comments or proposed changes to: Assistant Secretary of Labor for Employment and Training, U.S. Department of Labor, 6th and D Sts., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20213, Attention: Pierce A. Quinlan, Director, Office of Comprehensive Employment Development.

JENNINGS ELECTED VICE-CHAIRPERSON

At the 12th Annual meeting of the National Association for Community Development held in Washington, D.C., April 7-11, 1976, Mrs. Jeanette Jennings, Executive Director of Greater Opportunities, Inc. was elected Vice-Chairperson for the Region VII Affiliate.

It's that time of the year again. The relay season and I have a perfect record that I maintained last Saturday. I have never seen a Valley Relays meet. Why? I don't know. It seems that I usually get off on some other track or project when they come around. But this year I made a paper with what I thought the fellows would do in the thing. I guessed wrong on the meet winner, Dowling. I had picked Tech. Was right about the hundred won by Tech's Duncan. Also picked the short relays right, but struck out on the rest of them. Maybe, just maybe, I shall be present at the 1977 running of those races, if I am still around, and might come up with a story.

Next week is the big one, the Drake Relays. This will make about fifty one or two that I have sat in on. Can't forget the first nearly all black relay team I saw in the thing. There was a team of high school boys from Crawfordsville, Indiana made up of three blacks and a white boy. They ran away with the half mile and mile relays, setting records that stood for a number of years. One of the runners, a Maurice Patterson came to Drake after he finished high school. The guy had tremendous potential, but never realized it, why, I don't know. It might have been because he wanted to play basketball, and at that time, the early twenties, blacks couldn't even go out for college basketball at Drake. He played in a church league and was protested there. I always thought if he had not been pretty good he might have got to play in that league. Well, anyway, Pat proved to be the first protester around these parts. He refused to wear his freshman sweater and later, as a sophomore, gave back his varsity D sweater, and quit school. This might have kept him from being what he might have been in track events, although he won the state college meet javelin throw. Where is he now? I don't know. I last saw him in Kansas City. By now he would be in his early seventies if he is still alive. Would be nice to hear from him if he is.

Over the years I have had some experiences that ought to be worth repeating. Like the time when they used to have a feature race for the bell boys at the various hotels in the city. Each runner ran a block carrying a suit case and the winner got trophies. Well, a fellow named Tommy Avant and I got together and rigged up a relay team to represent the Martin Hotel which had only two bell boys. We got what we thought were pretty fast runners for our team. The day of the race came, and as the teams lined up in the street, the crowd came out to see the start, so our first runner, a pretty good sized fellow, ran over a couple of them to put our team out in front. The race went on for three blocks with our gang leading by a whisker. As the teams neared the finish line, the crowd poured into the street again. Our anchor man, trying not to run over anybody began to try to manoeuvre around the people. But here came the Randolph anchor man like a bull breaking out of a pasture. He knocked down a couple of folks, trampled a few more and beat us out by less than a whisker. Stung by that, we vowed to come up with a team we knew couldn't be beaten next year. We were going to be anchored by Bob Vandevire, the fastest human in Iowa. But the people must have gotten wind of our plans because they called off the race and have never held it again. It would be hard with all the traffic to have it today, but it was fun then. And, did we all work at the Martin Hotel? Yes, for one day, the day of the race.

If anybody asked me what was the greatest thrill I ever got out of the meet, I would have a tough time choosing any event, there were so many over all these years. I remember when the first black schools came up to the thing. It was bitter cold, and that didn't help the brothers any. They were so far behind that people thought they were leading the next race. They made polite remarks about how the cold must have kept them from doing their best, but I knew that best or not, they would have still been running last if it were ninety in the shade. But I would say that my greatest bang came when late Brother Bill and I got photographer's passes to cover the races from the field and Bill got over on the west side of the track so he could get the entire field. Today with those wide lense cameras that isn't necessary. We never thought of ourselves as the first blacks in that position, but as guys who had something to sell, and we did, syndicating our articles to black papers around the country. We would shoot the field, cut out everybody but maybe one black runner, and show him with a caption like "So and so trying to help his team win." It didn't matter that he was forty miles behind and losing ground with every jump. Black papers were so hungry for news of black athletes that they took them. How times have changed, and I am glad. Will I see you out there?

Big Four Track Meet

Highlights of the Big Four Track Meet will be telecast on the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network, Sunday, April 18 at 9 p.m.

The program will be composed of various track and field events of the Big Four competition between Iowa State University, University of Iowa, University of Northern Iowa and Drake University, taped the previous Tuesday (April 13) at the Drake University Stadium. Announcing the events will be Dale Buhl, and the color announcer will be Mike Henderson.

Fed. & Est. Income Tax

Des Moines— Many Iowa citizens who do not have enough taxes withheld are required to pay their first installment of 1975 Federal income taxes no later than Thursday, April 15.

The total estimated tax due may be paid in four equal installments, April 15, June 15, September 15 and January 17.

"Many taxpayers realize that they meet the requirements for filing a tax declaration at this time of year," Donald J. Porter, IRS District Director for Iowa, said. "Generally, when the taxpayer will owe IRS more than $100 not covered by withholding, he should file a declaration of estimated tax. A Form 1040-ES voucher must accompany the first installment."

Taxpayers who filed a declaration of estimated tax last year should have received an estimated tax package in the mail, which includes four declaration vouchers and pre-addressed envelopes for making the 1975 declaration and payments.

IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax," is available free from IRS offices to provide more details on the payment of estimated tax.

FATHER OF SIX UNDER-GOES OPERATION FOR PARKINSON'S DISEASE!

In 1972 Delano Moore, then 41, father of six boys, including at least one fine athlete at Tech High, was on the job at Anderson Erickson Dairy where he had been employed for around twenty years and had been a member of the Teamsters Local 387, the union for that group. About a year later Moore noticed a slight shakiness in his hands and seemed unable to get going on his job. The problem got worse in spite of trips to the Vets hospital, and he was finally told that he had Parkinson's disease which makes one unable to control his hands and is not fatal. People live to a ripe old age with it, but become progressively helpless because they shake worse as time goes on. So Moore got steadily worse and was just about to give it all up. He couldn't comb his hair and was really discouraged. Then a friend of his, Ed Sparks, business agent for the union Moore belonged to, told him that he had read about an operation that had proved to be ninety-five percent successful. Delano asked his doctor about it and was told that it was a new deal, but that his chances were good. By then the guy was willing to try anything.

Sparks got things in gear and he, the union, Anderson Erickson and some of the office workers raised around $800 to pay the expenses of the two to West Orange, N.J. where Moore entered St. Barnabas Hospital. Ed was so anxious for his pal to have the treatment that he convinced him that it would be no more than a headache. It turned out to be the granddaddy of all headaches because the patient had to remain awake during the whole operation so he could follow the doctor's orders in order to prevent a mistake. A brain surgeon, Dr. Stellar, drilled a hole in Delano's head and froze the part of the brain that was affected by the disease. The recovery period took longer than either man had figured and there were times when their friendship hinged on the fact that Moore couldn't get up to fight. He says he probably never will quite forgive Sparks for telling him the thing would be a breeze. If he isn't the first person, Moore is one of the very few people around here to have that treatment and today he looks and acts perfectly normal, but says he is nervous and has a very slight tremor. He wanted to get his story before the public because he and Sparks think it might help someone else in the same predicament. And by the way, the two men are still friends. Sparks thinks people should know that the Teamsters are good people in spite of what you may have read about them. There are good and bad in all groups, he says.

CORNERS

The sports enthusiast doesn't have to be a muscle-bound athlete. There are those who prefer to develop their brains and their manual dexterity. These are the Sedentary Sportsmen; the board games players. And here are some facts to interest them.

MONOPOLY: The top-selling board game. Its makers print more money per year, 18.5 trillion dollars, than all the real paper money printed in the entire world.

CHESS: The man to beat in this game is Bobby Fischer. He became the youngest International Grandmaster at age 15, and is officially accepted as the great Grandmaster of all time.

CHECKERS: "Lightning fingers" might be the name for Newell Banks who averaged one move per second in 1933. He played not one opponent but 140, simultaneously, beating 133 of them!

Magazine News

Although police are only supposed to draw their guns when they or somebody else are in danger of "grave bodily harm," or to prevent the escape of a felon, the police and the courts have extended the law apparently beyond all reason. It is not uncommon for a cop to shoot down a suspected hub cap thief who dares to run away on grounds that fleeing is a felony.

If you take your cue from prime time TV, the police should draw their guns every four or five minutes. But if you are concerned about the quality of life in the streets and neighborhood around you it is time to speak out against the unnecessary use of the police power. According to the current issue of Human Behavior magazine, one study of 911 persons slain by police between 1965 and 1969 revealed that almost 30 per cent of the police victims "were either involved in a misdemeanor such as a traffic violation or were doing nothing at all wrong." That's right. Your chances of being mowed down by mistake by a man in blue is increasing all the time.

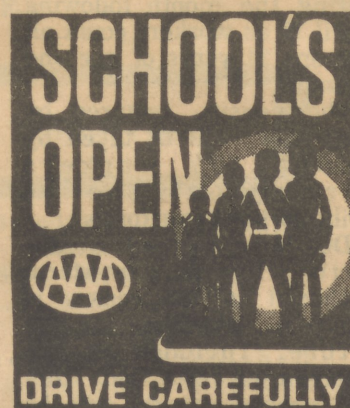

And even though police claim theirs is a dangerous occupation (as ABC and NBC will tell you tonight), the fact is that more farmers are killed by accident than police shot down in the line of duty. And in a quarter of those 911 cases studied, victims were shot in the back — that is, they were obviously not presenting the police officer with a danger to his life or limb. Finally, those shot in the back tended to be younger and black.

As matters stand now, the police can kill literally with impunity — and go uncharged, with their consciences wiped clean by a quick, official investigation. Of 1,500 incidents where police killed others between 1960 and 1970, psychotherapist Arthur L. Kobler of the University of Washington, found only three cases where the policeman was subject to criminal punishment.

"Cases that are brought to trial rarely result in a verdict against police," says Kobler. And the Federal government has been even less successful in prosecuting police. For instance, in the dozen or so cases brought by the Justice Department against cops who killed, not one guilty verdict has been brought in.

Why does this blue tide of police incompetence wash over the nation year after year? There are many reasons, ranging from poor salaries and poor training to a fundamental lack of respect for the law. Race is another factor and poor police-community relations. But the wave of slayings by police, and of police by civilians, may well be rising at about the same rate as TV shows glorifying crime and violence. Not only do such shows extoll the gunplay and mayhem of the cop-versus-robber but they discourage public support of the police by making the public accept the role of the victim who is helpless in the face of the criminal or the cop — and usually you can't tell them apart.

Johnson Lambasts Black Businessmen

Too many minority businessmen lack sufficient motivation to succeed and are too easily discouraged if the going gets tough, says John H. Johnson, editor and publisher of the Johnson Publishing Co., which issues Ebony, Jet, Ebony Jr! and other black magazines.

"I don't see, never did see, failure as an option," Johnson said in an interview published in the March April issue of Harvard Business Review magazine.

"I meet so many men who want to go into business and they can't because the SBA (Small Business Administration) won't give them a loan. Now, if you truly want to go into business and you try all the banks and they say no, and you try all the SBA's and governmental agencies and they say no, then you have to talk individual people into buying stock and making investments," he said.

"If blacks had the motivation, we would do some of these things. We would not give up our dream of going into business simply because a particular agency would not let us have the money to do it...

"Most people don't believe success is possible. So they get discouraged before they start. They think that all the cards are stacked against them; and many blacks think the white man's not going to let him succeed..."

"Many of these things are within our own power to do, and so we can't blame the system for everything. Anger and fear of failure get in the way."

Johnson, one of the country's most successful black entrepreneurs (he also heads the Supreme Life Insurance Company and Fashion Fair cosmetics, as well as serving on the boards of such corporate giants as Twentieth Century Fox, Greyhound, Bell & Howell and others), declared in the interview that he did not believe in black capitalism.

They all are doing it: dentists, teachers, doctors, truck drivers, typists, bricklayers, stenographers, accountants, physicists, preachers, secretaries, farmers, lawyers, Indian Chiefs, blacks, whites, browns, yellows and reds.

They are joining the gigantic wave of folks buying Citizens Band radio sets and inundating the Federal Communications Commission with requests for licenses to operate them.

It is estimated by the Safety and Special Radio Services Bureau which has jurisdiction over CBs for the Commission, that more than five million applicants for CB licenses will be made this year.

This is putting a tremendous pressure on that Bureau which until just a few short months ago was operating at a relatively unhurried pace.

The Commission has a plan which proposes that after a citizen buys his radio, the money order stub used for the purpose may be his temporary receipt permitting him to operate the CB until the license arrives, eliminating the lengthy period of waiting, (usually six weeks or more). Hopefully, this plan will be approved within a few months.

Last week, I talked about the number of sets in use and the growth potential predicted for this year by the FCC (about five million). Most of the CB sets and parts are presently being made in Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, etc. But American manufacturers such as Motorola, General Electric, Panasonic, RCA, and other giants are beginning to tool up, to get into the act.

There yet is a golden opportunity for American blacks and other minorities to get in on this multi-billion-dollar a year market by entering the manufacturing end — of making parts: co-axial cables, antennas, microphones, speakers, informational literature — publications, etc. Most of all, the industry needs crystals.

These are relatively easy to manufacture. They are made from quartz, and large amounts of this mineral is found in South America, chiefly, Argentina.

There is also an opportunity for blacks and other minorities to get into the outlet side of the business by selling sets, parts, and publication, essential to the knowledge of this new booming craze.

In entering the manufacturing end of the business, a black would have to do so in concert with competent engineers who are familiar with the market and can, thus, tool instruments to the minutely fine specifications of set manufacturers.

Many Asian manufacturers today make sets and components for a large number of firms who in turn attach their own stamp or label. A minority manufacturer could, I am certain, secure contracts to supply parts and components to set manufacturers and distributors, providing those parts and components are built to correct specifications and of durable material.

As of now, a CB set ranges in cost from $69 to $500 or more, with an average set retailing at about $149. Manufacturing parts and components for such sets, for initial or replacement use, given the economies of scale could be a very profitable business for blacks and other minorities. (NNPA) view of the pain, difficulty and struggle of human existence.

The parallels of these religiously related days stress freedom, hope and renewal and help to emphasize the absolute necessity for everyone to establish amity, love and peace among ourselves.

The evils of intolerance, injustice and oppression must be eradicated. It is imperative that people of this nation and the world start respecting the rights and dignities of others or we will destroy ourselves. The terrible fratricidal civil war in Lebanon between Muslim and Maronite Catholic militiamen is the newest example of what happens when religious hatred is allowed to fester and when there exists no respect for religious pluralism. Tragically, more than 15,000 have been killed and 32,000 injured in the 12-month conflict.

Violence and killings do not solve problems. Social progress cannot be won on the battlefield. Quiet dialogue is essential and I fervently hope that people throughout the world will take the occasion of this time of Passover and Easter to pray for peace and for all people to enjoy the God-given rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Certainly all Americans as they celebrate the Bicentennial should take time during the holy days to reflect on the importance of religious tolerance, freedom and liberty. As a nation we are fully cognizant of the significance of religious pluralism and its positive effects upon our quality of life.

True freedom exists when peace and justice prevail and the NCCJ urges mankind to earnestly work for those ends.

Black Caucus Blasts Carter's Statement

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Congressional Black Caucus sent the following telegram to presidential candidate Jimmy Carter in response to his statements on social and economic integration of neighborhoods:

Dear Mr. Carter:

The Members of the Congressional Black Caucus are stunned by your reported statements supporting the maintenance of "ethnic purity" in neighborhoods and opposing the federal government's — "deliberately (trying) to break down an ethnically oriented community — by injecting into it a member of another race."

This is a regressive and unfortunate view of our present housing patterns and of rights of minorities in our society. It is not, as you suggest, the "natural inclination of people" to live in segregated neighborhoods. It is a well documented fact that racially segregated communities in the North and in the South have been created with the active assistance of the federal government and of state and local laws.

This so-called "natural inclination" to self-segregation is particularly indefensible when it infringes on the rights of others to enjoy all benefits of our society. Residential segregation produces school segregation, inhibits contacts for job opportunities as well as a vast array of other benefits which flow to the better neighborhoods. When you say that "To build highrise, very low-cost housing units in a suburban neighborhood or other neighborhoods with relatively expensive homes... would not be in the best interest of the people who live in the high-rise or the suburbs," you fail to speak to whether this would be in the best interest of those who now live in the ghettos and slums of this nation.

Yet rather than speaking of the need to aggressively provide access to all neighborhoods for all Americans, you are shamefully quoted as speaking of "black intrusion" into white neighborhoods, "alien groups" in communities, and "injecting a diametrically opposite kind of family" or "a different kind of person" in a neighborhood. Is it "black intrusion" to move from the ghettos to decent housing in presently all-white suburbs? Are Americans now to be viewed as a conglomeration of "alien groups" rather than a nation of diverse persons who wish to and will live and work together?

A national leader, we would hope, would express the value of diversity, rather than the narrowness of

HALF A VICTORY

Jackson, Miss.— In a historic decision the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals has quietly conceded in New Orleans that black who profess allegiance to the Republic of New Africa, are citizens of that nation and that that nation exists.

With this land-mark decision, a high American court has for the first time in history acknowledged that blacks, no less than Indians, may have their own nation. The decision thus gives to the black "nation" the Republic of New Africa, one-half of a major victory.

homogeneity. It is this elitism of race and class that have caused many of our profoundest social problems. It is particularly troubling to see such views from a candidate who has enjoyed considerable success in attracting the black vote in primaries.

The Members of the Caucus join me in asking that you affirm the role of the federal government to enforce and your commitment to affirmatively work to provide equal housing opportunities for all Americans in all neighborhoods.

Sincerely,
YVONNE B. BURKE
