Black's Must Become Responsible for Themselves

A Gateway Dance Performance is more than a talent show

by Don Rhone

Scarves wave sensuously through the spring air as the Gateway Dancers perform the Drum song before an outdoor audience at Grandview college last week end.

The energy and exuberance that the dancers displayed was contagious, you find yourself rocking to the movement of the dancers, to the beat of the music.

And they smile.

"You can't look down on your audience," says the bright eyed Director Penny Furgerson, who was a classical dancer in Bombay, India, where she is from. "There's always someone in the audience who knows, what you are doing," she continued. "Every performance has got to be better than the one before."

One of the problems, in starting the Dance group, was, to, "try to do something that's not a talent show," Penny explained. If the dances performed at Grandview were any indication she obviously succeeded.

The Harlem Dance Theater came to Des Moines a few years back, said Lee Furgerson, Penny's husband who is also a director, "and they wanted to work with black groups."

But there were none at that time. And any individuals wishing to work with the Harlem Dance Theater experienced some odd difficulties in doing so.

Penny Furgerson was able to work with them because, "I was known... I was a classical dancer."

But the experience upset Penny and later, discussing it with her husband she was

Gateway Dancers Plan Benefit Show at Drake

The Supreme Court's unanimous decision on low and moderate income housing for minorities in the suburbs has been called "the most vital judgement on civil rights rendered by the Court since the Brown decision in 1954" by the President of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Dr. David Hyatt, in a statement issued here from the 48-year-old human relations organization's headquarters, said that he "applauded" the Court for its "wisdom and humanity in taking the giant step toward moving America toward a fuller realization of true democracy."

"This monumental edict has signalled that the Federal judiciary has the power to deal with patterns of racial segregation in housing which have imprisoned Blacks and other minorities in poorer urban cores for decades, indeed centuries," said Dr. Hyatt.

"Let us hope and pray that this landmark decision will now spur progressive, assertive action, albeit difficult and complex, by the officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development," he added.

"It is high time that all Americans—not simply the victims of discrimination—but particularly the majority of citizens whose lack of pigmentation make them non-black, come to realize that the problems of housing, employment, education and health care, among others, are all America's problems. In the search for equality and justice in human rights, housing, education and employment are an inseparable inexorable trilogy in which everyone is affected," the NCCJ President stressed.

"We will not solve any of our problems as long as so many Americans continue to think of them as problems only of a particular religious group or of the Blacks, the Chicanos, the Indians, the Asians, the Puerto Ricans or the poor," he declared.

Huey Newton Ready to Return to U.S.

HAVANA (NNPA — Huey P. Newton, the 34-year-old co-founder of the Black Panther Party, exiled in Cuba for more than a year, is awaiting his lawyer's okay to return to America and stand trial on a bizarre string of alleged crimes.

In our hour-long carpet treatment of Fidel Castro's socialist government, but he is ready to return home and face the charges against him — "though" said he, "I am not guilty."

"I was about to go back and face the charges" — but then "renegade scab Eldridge Cleaver returned," Newton said. "So my attorneys came in and they advised me to wait until after he (Cleaver) goes before the House of Internal Affairs Committee to see what charges might come out of that. "I am in a position to wait and see."

While his big, winning smile and easy manner give the outward impression of a man at peace with himself, Newton is an intense, restless young man who must deal with an issue head-on once he has made a decision. He is also homesick, yearning to be back with relatives and friends and to operate from the American scene which is more familiar to him.

I got his impression of Newton after meeting him at dinner, and later chatting with him over drinks with other newspaper colleagues who were part of an

VIEWS and REVIEWS

Civil Rights Commission Bogged Down In Complaints

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission has a long record of accumulation of a backlog of cases. Now HEW is advertising for help in order to break the backlog of cases which have been filed in its offices over the country.

Originally, these commissions were formed to serve minorities, but with the advent of women's liberation and Hespian groups, the load has become heavy. And, of course, this has meant a larger increase in the appropriation to carry on the work of these commissions.

Fundamentally, the trouble with the laws creating the commissions is that they are so cumbersome that entirely too much time is spent disposing of cases either by agreement or hearings and also throwing out those that have no merit.

These complications were set up to placate the diehard opposition to any measure which would bring racial discrimination out in the open rather than behind closed door operations which permit all kinds of secret horseplay.

The operations of these commissions have proven their worth. Competent enforcement officers should not be hampered by antiquated rules and legislation.

Justice Department Moves Against Loan Violators

The Department of Justice has filed a lawsuit against four appraisal and four lending agencies charging that they maintain different criteria in appraising and lending money to Negroes on real property.

Further, it is charged that different lists are used to differentiate between the price and the appraised value of property loaned to whites and to blacks.

These rules require a lower valuation of property being sold, a higher interest rate and less otherwise favorable loan requirements.

I have never seen such a list in Des Moines, but it is generally understood that the real estate interest has consistently failed to show good houses to Negroes or to show any houses in mixed neighborhoods.

Mortgage lenders have changed considerably in recent years. Some of those who now follow unfavorable practices were pretty rotten. Naturally, a company expects a loan to be repaid and paid promptly. For this reason there is no reason for anyone, black or white, to complain of discrimination when he does not meet these requirements.

In spite of the practice of most real estate companies Negroes have been successful in securing good homes in most parts of the city; in fact, any area when the purchaser is able to meet the terms.

It is unfortunate that it requires lawsuits to make it possible for a person to enjoy his rights particularly, as we celebrate the bicentennial which emphasizes the rights of freedom and opportunity in this country.

Schools Not Required To Teach Homeland Language

The Supreme Court has ruled that HEW need not require schools to maintain special classes to teach native language to immigrants who have come to this country.

This is as it should be for these people came here to enjoy the privileges offered by this country and they need to learn to speak English in order to do so.

Taxpayers are providing schools which offer education for all students at least up through the grades. They should not be required to finance another school in order to accommodate such a program because a few people advocate it.

While the language and the customs of the country from which they come are dear to them, immigrants in the past have made the adjustments without these special privileges.

Experience has taught that students from other countries placed with those already here are quick to learn because they must do so in order to communicate.

I witnessed this experience while serving in France during World War I. Many of the soldiers who had little formal training quickly learned to ask for what they wanted or other information by signs and giving attention to many French words that are spelled the same in English but with a different accent. They learned to speak the language surprisingly well.

Then too, such a program would help to build some cells of divisions of different races which, in times of stress, may make it difficult to have their loyalty.

DOES EXCITING THINGS."

Death Crosses The Color Line

The murders of two great black leaders, Martin Luther King, Jr., and Malcolm X, are examined in Playboy's "History of Assassination in America, Part VI." Their killings and the lingering speculations about what persons or groups carried them out and why are detailed by James McKinley in the June issue of the magazine.

"Chickens coming home to roost never made me sad" was Malcolm X's bitter comment following the assassination of John F. Kennedy, whom he blamed — along with the system Kennedy represented — for poor progress in civil rights issues.

Then came the killings of the "incendiary" Malcolm himself and the "genuine martyr," Martin Luther King — birds of a different feather, perhaps, but both with a cock-o'-the-walk charisma that incited their enemies to murder.

On February 21, 1965, while speaking in a New York auditorium, Malcolm was shot to death. Of the three men soon arrested for the crime, two had reputations as enforcers for the Muslims. In 1966, all three were convicted of Malcolm's murder and given life sentences.

Was it that simple? According to McKinley, some insiders believe Malcolm's growing importance was not only a threat to the Muslim power structure, but also to the CIA. CORE director James Farmer said Malcolm could have been killed by Harlem narcotics interests because of his crusade against drugs.

Three years later, Martin Luther King died for his dream of brotherhood. King's assassination also remains heavily shrouded in controversy. On April 4, 1968, as King leaned on the second-floor balcony railing of his Memphis motel, talking to friends below, a rifle bullet ripped through his right jaw and severed his spine, killing him instantly. That bullet launched a world-wide search for his killer and eventually brought "petty criminal and lifelong loser" James Earl Ray to trial.

McKinley details Ray's story: his deplorable childhood, his racism, his erratic movements both before and after the killing, his escape to England and his references to a man called Raoul, who Ray claims planned the whole thing. His lawyers "may have been more interested in capitalizing on the notorious case than in representing the best interest of their client" — both were financed by a man who was gathering and publishing information that indicated Ray was guilty. Four attorneys who have since taken up the case now believe Ray was set up.

Would a new investigation be in order? McKinley reports that the lone-killer theory is rejected by many, including Coretta King, Ralph Abernathy and Jesse Jackson, who think King fell to a conspiracy. The best witness — James Earl Ray — is available. He seeks a new trial, but he has said he won't help solve the crime by naming conspirators.

in Des Moines

by Don Rhone

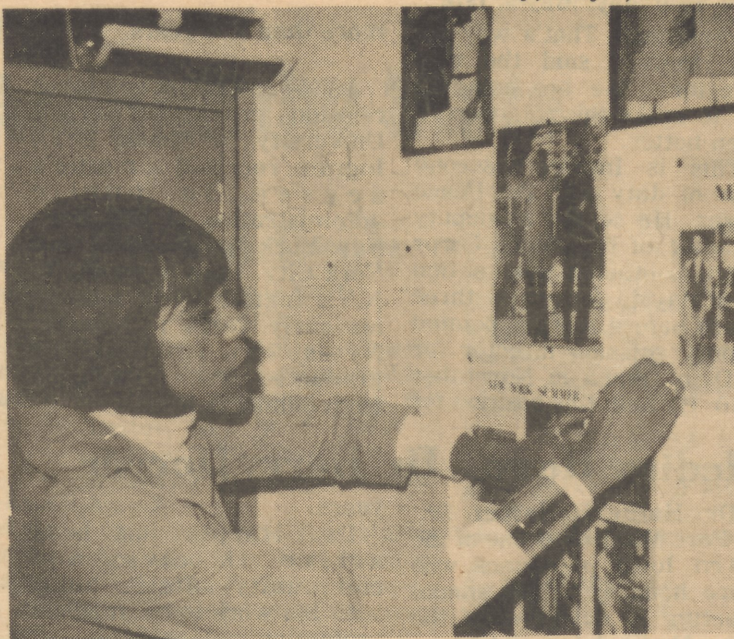

"Basically, I'm a ham," says the tall ex-model with a characteristic wave of one long-fingered hand.

And it's a good thing she is because there's not much room in television, on camera or off, for anyone who's not, at least part of the time, a ham.

And fortunately for Linda Smart, KCCI's newest assistant producer, she fits right in there, her slender figure right at home standing next to one of the stations big cameras directing traffic, cajoling a stagestruck person to look at her rather than at the frightening bug-eyed camera and then the next moment she folds one arm over her head. Perplexed she views the set with dissatisfaction until Mary Brubaker, with whom she shares an office, comes breezing in to the studio for a cup of coffee and makes a suggestion. It works.

Linda, whose titles also include, Fashion Coordinator, Make Up artists and Director of Religious Affairs, has never had formal training in the television media.

Linda Smart

Having never gone to college she has had to pick up her working knowledge of television, "on the job. It's sort of on the job training. It's a hassel."

"The job is very demanding on me," says the twenty-five year old scorio, "I can't be late for my job anymore. I have to be here punctually at eight-thirty every morning basically because people depend on me now.

My career and my daughter," says Miss Smart, who is the mother of a five year old child, are most important to her. "I'm working here at KCCI more or less to get my experience then, hopefully, to move on to a larger scale. Perhaps," she goes on, "producing for a television show, possibly on CBS or a studio in California."

"I'm just going to shoot for it," continues Miss Smart with a laugh, "Right now there are no possibilities for me going to CBS" this is only natural considering Linda has only been "in the business" a little over six months.

Bright and bubbling, the twenty-five year old scorio describes herself as an opportunist. "I feel that I'm a very independent woman. I have a five year old daughter I have to provide for, plus myself... I find that now days that you have to help yourself— no ones going to help you— and if you want to get something accomplished you have to go out and do it. And here at KCCI I think I've done that—I've proved myself. "Miss Smart pauses to consider that possibilities a career in television would offer her, she has already met several celebrities "I think I'm going to be very successful in my job and in my line of work and I think that all the black females in Des Moines should take a positive attitude instead of a negative one."

"I think they (black women) should be independent and strive for their goals because the sky is the limit for the black female."

Black Republicans Council Pick Cummings Chairman

James C. Cummings, Jr., Indianapolis, Chairman of the Indiana Black Republican Council, has been elected Chairman of the Midwest Region Black Republican Council which includes 13 state organizations. Cummings won in a close election Saturday, April 24, during the first annual Midwest Republican Regional Conference, held in Indianapolis April 23 and 24.

He defeated Leroy Tombs of Bonner Springs, Kansas, one of the nation's top Black businessmen and a leader of the Republican movement in the state of Kansas.

The Region includes the states of Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, and Illinois. Ten of the states were represented at the conference.

Lillian Warren, Minneapolis, Mn., was elected vice chairman, with Mary McElroy, St. Louis, Mo., secretary. George Cathcart, Detroit, Mi., who served as acting chairman of the Midwest Region since September of 1975, was elected treasurer.

Eddie Mahe, Executive Director of the National Republican Committee, was principal speaker at the conference luncheon. John C. Calhoun, special assistant to President Gerald Ford, was the honored guest at a reception sponsored at the conference by the President Ford Committee.

John Wilks, minority affairs director of the Republican National Committee and Executive Director of the National Black Republican Council, participated throughout the conference.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q— Does the Veterans Administration education

loan program apply to persons eligible for VA dependents educational assistance?

A— Yes. Eligible dependents and veterans may borrow up to $600 per academic year to pursue a course leading to a standard college degree, or if enrolled in a course leading to a professional or vocational objective which requires at least six months to complete. The interest-bearing loan is based upon financial need and is available only to those who are unable to obtain a student loan under the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Q— I used my Veterans Administration automobile grant when the maximum amount was $2,800. I understand the amount now is $3,300. Can I receive the additional $500 difference?

A— No. However, the law does provide for repair or replacement of adaptive equipment necessary for safe operation of an automobile acquired under this benefit.

Q— How much money may I borrow on the GI loan for purchase of a home?

A— Your lender will determine the maximum loan he is willing to make on the basis of your repayment ability and the maximum guaranty permissible of 60 per cent of the loan or $17,500, whichever is less, if you have your full entitlement available. In no event may the loan exceed the reasonable value established by the VA on the property you are buying.

Director in Belize

Reginald K. Ingram, Sr., former deputy mission director of the United States Agency for International Development (AID) in the West African republic of Ghana, has been named director of the Peace Corps in Belize, Central America.

Ingram, 49, a long-time resident of Rochester, N.Y., will direct the work of approximately 60 Peace Corps volunteers and trainees who are participating in education, health, environmental, agricultural and rural development, public works and urban development projects throughout the developing country.

Belize wants to expand its agricultural development in order to feed itself and to increase export revenues, according to Ingram. He pointed out that the country particularly wanted to increase its seafood market. The government has also indicated an interest in improving tourism and health services for its people.

"The Peace Corps has enjoyed a very good relationship with the Belize government. That's why we are there," said the new director. "We are going to try to make this relationship even better."

This is Ingram's second tour of duty with the Peace Corps. He served as deputy director of the Peace Corps in the Southeast Asian nation of Malaysia for nearly three years before being appointed deputy mission director for AID in Ghana in November 1970. He held this position for

Mother's Day Phone tips

Long distance telephone calls will shorten the distance between millions of moms and their families on Mother's Day, making May 9 one of the busiest calling days of the year for the phone company.

"About 12.5 million interstate calls will be made that Sunday," says Northwestern Bell District Customer Services Manager Les Watts. "That's an increase of about one million over the last Mother's Day calling volume."

Long distance calling usually is heaviest between metropolitan areas. Mother's Day is an exception, though, with calling patterns shifting due to heavier calling from suburbs, small towns and rural areas. "That keeps us pretty busy," says Watts. "Bell System people will be on duty around the country to help route calls to their destinations."

Since so many people will be using long distance facilities for long conversations, some calls may not go through on the first attempt, says Watts. "We suggest callers wait a few minutes instead of immediately trying again. Or they might call in midafternoon when calling loads should be lighter than at other times that day."

Watts adds that to avoid the rush some callers may want to call Saturday or earlier. People who don't know the numbers they want to call can save time by getting them in advance rather than waiting until Sunday.

told, "Well, what are you going to do about it?"

The results are unusual. The performers of the Gateway Dancers have, for the most part, no formal training in dance. The group is open.

The Furgersons, you get the feeling, don't like boxes, or pidgeon-holing, "we'll accept people right off the street, that's what we're all about."

The show, they feel, are not just for the dancers but for the people, and the people should be in it. They did have to make one concession to age though. If there were too many young people in the troupe too much time would be lost from actually performing.

Right now, the dancers are looking forward to their next performance which will be at Drake University, May 15. They will then have the opportunity to perform on a stage equipped with modern lighting and sound equipment.

The fight to keep things going has kept the Furgersons busy since the conception of the Gateway dancers in late October of '72. The Gateway Dance Theaters is also an educational affair, the Furgersons take the performers to see other performers whenever they can.

"It's never been easy," said Lee, who is also a manager of customer services at Blue Cross, Blue Shield. "We'll never be on easy street"

Child Should Help Select Camp

What does a child look for in a camping experience? Most young people measure the value of a camp by how much "fun" they remember. But "fun" means more than having a good time. Mary K. Munson, Polk County 4-H and Youth Leader, said that camp can also mean new friends and experiences, and enjoying the camp environment. Camp can be an important part of growing up, and because of that, a child should have some choice about the camp he or she attends.

"Let your youngster choose a camp that has some appeal to him or her," said Mary Kay. "camp is a child's vacation. If John or Mary enjoy music, forcing them into a camp situation that dwells on athletics could turn them against camping of any kind."

Another factor to consider is friends at camp. If the camper is going to be away from home for the first time, Munson suggested a camp with some friends not too far from home.

Clean Air Week being observed

May 2-8 has been declared Clean Air Week in a proclamation issued Monday by Governor Robert Ray.

Governor Ray commended the American Lung Association of Iowa for its sponsorship of Clean Air Week and its year-round efforts to assure a healthier environment.

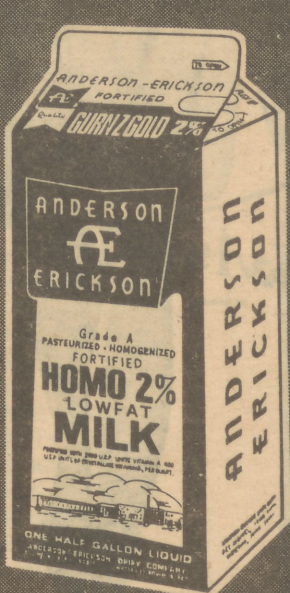

Clean Air Week is being observed nationally by the American Lung Association, who wishes to make people aware that breathing polluted air can be dangerous to health and to rally them to action to protect the environment.

This is the first year that the annual observance will take place in the spring.

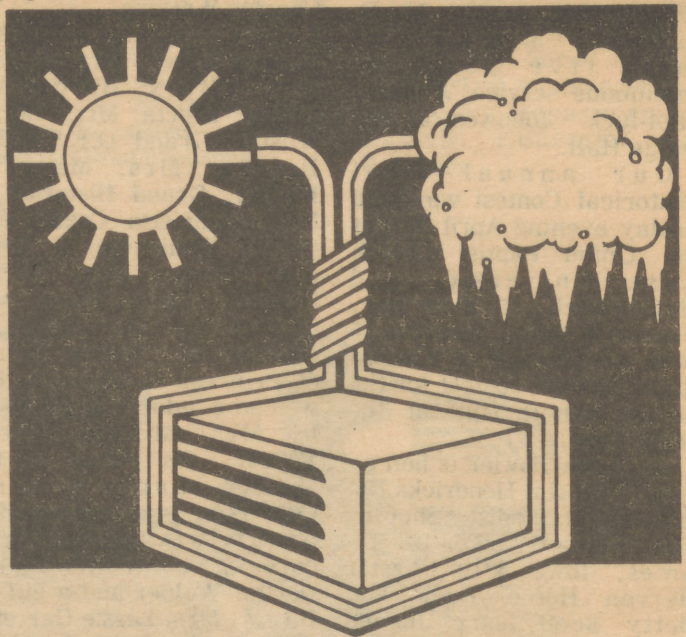

opinion on camp subjects like nature, art, aquatics, sports, and crafts. Children also differ in their preference of camp structure. Certain camps have rather rigid programs where all campers take part in the same activities. Some children prefer a more flexible schedule where they can sign up for what they like to do. Another choice is living facilities. Do youngsters like primitive camping, lake swimming or do they prefer swimming pools and heated cabins?

"Directors of youth camps have problems with a few youngsters each year," said Mary Kay, "and often the core of the problem is that parents have not allowed a child any choice in the kind of camp or whether to attend at all."

Miss Munson added that 4-H camp details are available at the County Extension Office in Des Moines.

Heat with a new twist

In the summer, the electric heat pump acts like a central air conditioner and keeps your house cool and comfortable. But in the winter, it automatically reverses itself and takes heat from the outside air and pumps it into your home.

The amazing thing is that it takes a lot less energy to take heat that exists, even in cold outside air, and transfer it into your home, than it does to create heat from scratch. That's why the heat pump helps you fight the higher cost of energy.

Call your local Iowa Power office or your "certified electric heat pump dealer" and ask them to tell you why we think...

The time is right for the electric heat pump

Iowa Bystander SPORTS

ALLEN ASHBY

ON SPORTS

That red you saw in the sky last Saturday morning wasn't the sun. It was my face after the alleged boxing match between heavyweight champ Muhammad Ali and Jimmy Jones. I have been preaching that Ali stays in condition. In fact I have argued that he was probably the best conditioned fighter in the game today. So what does the man do? He comes into the ring weighing two thirty and looking like a blimp on legs. His boxing was abominable. I could take the missed timing and the fact that he seemed to have suddenly lost his boxing skill because I have seen athletes in their middle thirties lose their stuff in the very middle of a contest and they never figure out what happened. But I don't think that Ali's missed punches and such were the result of losing his ability, but because he hadn't really taken Jones seriously.

And as for Jones. He looked from the start that he came in there to stay the limit, and did everything in his power to keep from getting hit. A couple of times I thought he was going to jump out of the ring when he stuck his head between the ropes.

If Jones had fought from the first as he did in the closing rounds he would have left no doubt as to the winner, and would have been the new champion. But he didn't come on until he realized that the champ was tired and couldn't hurt him. Then it was too late. Getting back to the champ. If he fights in his next bout as he did in that one, he could very well become an exchampion.

You hate to see a guy who had it all turn into a shell of the once beautiful fighting machine he was. Maybe for his next one he will be more ready and we can see just how far he has slipped. It is my guess that he had better be ready for his next one. Kenny Norton must be licking his chops in anticipation of their fight. On the basis of what we saw last Friday night Norton would beat the tar out of the mouth.

HEY NOW!

Last week I read an interesting article that had a theory that some blacks have argued for some time, but this came from a fellow whom I don't think was black. He was talking about the sports of pro baseball, football and basketball. He said that pro basketball was going down the drain because it was getting too black. Black coaches, black general managers and the majority of black players. He said that contrary to what we would like to think, there is a hell of a lot of racism in America and the whites just don't like to see blacks make the kind of dough they are getting in basketball. And if they ever invade hockey that sport will go too. Then he says that football is still popular because blacks haven't gotten into the key positions yet.

But Willie Davis, former Green Bay Packer star says that the reason why there are no blacks in the key places in pro football is because the managers and owners stick to what looks like a successful policy. They win with white key men, so why change.

After all, changes come only because they are forced upon the people who make them. And so it is in baseball. But I wish you could read those articles and you could see what I mean. I hope to get the book soon and will likely have some more to say about it.

HE FINALLY MADE IT

For three years Ron Maly of the Des Moines Register has been asking me who I thought was the best black tennis player to come out of Des Moines or Iowa, hoping that I would say Mark Morrow.

Well, it looks as if that is really a fact now. Mark is playing at the number two spot on Iowa University's tennis team and is having his problems but manages to win his share of matches. Since he has a couple of more years to play, he could become one of the really top players in the conference.

But, even as I write this I have to wonder what guys like Paul, Chet Williamson Byron Wiley or Bill Ashby would have done in the competition that Mark faces now. Would have really been interesting, but this summer when Maly pops that question to me I will make him happy by saying the magic words Mark Morrow. Nice going Mark.

This is the week-end that our section of the Younker's Kodel tennis tournament is to be played at Good Park.

At this writing I am still scrambling around for players, but expect enough of them by the time the meet gets under way to have a qualifying meet. That takes eight couples.

ELDER WINS

If you are a golf follower you know by now that Lee Elder made the biggest payday of his life when he won the Houston Open last Sunday. Besides the forty thousand bucks the win brought him, Elder now has a ticket of the tournament of champions and the Masters again. He would like to make the Masters because he is sure he can play better than he did in his first appearance there. In just about all of the meets Elder has been in so far he has been in the running but for one round when his scores seemed to balloon and out he would go. Most of the time he has been about five or six strokes behind the leader when he has that bad round. But this time he put together his best rounds in the last two and picked up six strokes on the leader. Did he back into the title? Well he just happened to finish first ahead of the others, so he had to wait to see what they did. The commentators at the meet talked as if it were wrong for Lee to post his score so the others could see it, but I think I understand what pressure there is on him every time he gets into a meet and I would guess that he was just playing the pressure game in reverse. In 1975 he got into the masters by winning a tournament as the rules say you must do to qualify for that prestigious meet. There was at least one other time when he thought he had qualified, but it looked like the committee changed the rules in the middle of the game and he never made it. But then he left no doubt when he played in 1975. Now he is back from another try and says he thinks he can win it all.

Piney Wood School Shares In Estate; To Receive $47,319

Piney Wood School in Braxton, Mississippi, was named in the will of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Peterson, of Posten, Iowa, along with a large number of charitable institutions to share in their estate of more than a million dollars. The school is among the group which will receive $47,319.87 each.

Piney Wood School was started by Dr. Laurence C. Jones, who was born in St. Joseph Missouri, graduated from Marshalltown, High School and the University of Iowa. Upon graduation he went to Mississippi and without money, but determination, began this school which today is a modern institution. For many years it was financed practically by citizens from Iowa.

Recipients to Report Income Changes

People getting supplemental security income payments should promptly report changes in their other income and resources to social security, according to William R. Durst, social security district manager in Des Moines.

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over or blind or disabled.

"Increases or decreases in income may affect the amount of monthly supplemental security income payments," Durst said. "People getting supplemental security income checks should report changes or expected changes in their wages, self-employment earnings, Veterans pension payments, and other income from any source except general increases in social security benefits."

Changes can be reported by contacting any social security office.

People getting supplemental security income checks should also promptly report change of address, marriage, separation, and any other circumstance that might affect their payments, according to Durst.

The Federal supplemental security income program is run by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Evangelist Zora Reed was our speaker last Sunday. Her lesson, "Attitudes," was taken from Matthew 23:37. She started with the question, "Why do people reject the Lord Jesus?" God cannot and will not do our believing for us. That is something each one of us has to do for himself. We must realize, confess and forsake our sin of unbelief. It is our attitude, that forms our character.

Next Sunday Messiah Temple will be fellowshiping with the Baptist Church in Perry, Iowa. Meetings for exceptional children

A coffee to observe Exceptional Child Week in Iowa, May 3-7, will be hosted by the board and staff of Heartland Agency, at 3:30 p.m. Friday, May 7, at the agency's offices, 1932 S.W. Third, Ankeny. All interested persons are invited to attend.

The week was proclaimed by Gov. Robert Ray and is set aside to increase public knowledge of the nature and extent of exceptionality in children and what is being done in schools to help them. By hosting the coffee agency staff hope to strengthen its relationships with parents of exceptional children.

Children whose mental abilities or physical characteristics, separate them from the norm are considered exceptional. The range is from gifted and talented children to the most profoundly handicapped.

All of Pearl Bailey's scenes in "Norman, Is That You?" will be shot in four days so that she can keep her dates in Africa for the State Department. Ms. Bailey has been invited to house-guest with Ambassador Shirley Temple Black during her Ghana stay on the first of two trips to Africa. On her retirement, Pearl Mae said, "You can't retire what God gave you. The time to do something is when you can, and there is no such good to be done. I'm not seeking employment," she smiled, "but I can't help it if it seeks me." Ms. Bailey has said most of her performances will be aired at charities. A portion of her "Norman, Is That You?" salary is being donated to three charities.

Natalie Cole has announced her plans to tie the matrimonial knot with Kevin Nance, a keyboard player in her backup band. The private wedding will be held August 1 in Brooklyn, with a special invitation reception planned for a somewhat later date. The couple met last July. Whether Muhammad Ali wins or loses his next title defense, he has been offered the head role in a projected movie-stage play, "The Greatest Othello," based loosely on Shakespeare's "Othello." The producer has stated he doesn't care, the movie can follow or precede the stage version. It's up to the Champ. Charles Hobson, director of the Masscommunications Center at Atlanta's Clark College, has been named manager of Washington's WETA-FM. The area's most powerful radio station. Hobson becomes only the fourth Black public radio station manager in a national system of 125 federally funded outlets...

Actor Brock Peters has recorded an album, "Ballad for Americans." The material from the LP was first recorded by the late Paul Robeson in 1939. Actor's Equity Association unveiled a bronze bust of Paul Robeson at Lincoln Center recently. Redd Foxx is so excited about his new role in "Norman, Is That You?" that he's agreed to a new image, like a new hair-do, and a trim of his moustache and beard to Van Dyke sharpness. By the way, Redd will get 10% of the net gross of the picture. Cicely Tyson will star in Melvin Van Peebles' "Just An Old Sweet Song," which starts filming on location in Georgia May 12. Wilt Chamberlain is after Bill Cosby to pick up where he left off as a Temple University basketball star, with a starring role in "Slam Dunk." Wilt will serve as executive producer.

Magazine Week

By Sherwood Ross
Either Puerto Rico should be made out 51st state or it should be set free.

For my money, I'd like to see Puerto Rico in the union— but the 3-million poverty-struck citizens of that American commonwealth may have ideas of their own and they haven't voted on what they want since 1967.

Today, Puerto Rico is in trouble. It is either free nor independent. It exists in a political limbo, a murky area that is growing more bleak as its economy slides downhill. At least 80 per cent of the population live below the U.S. federal poverty line— and the 20 per cent above that line get half the national income.

The importance of Puerto Rico to the U.S. goes beyond the political. U.S. corporations are heavily committed to that country. They sold $2.5-billion worth of goods last year to Puerto Rico and they have more assets invested there than in any Latin American nation. Former Gov. Luis Munoz Marin complained, however, "We have built economically better than we have built socially. The economy should be the servant of social justice, better distribution of income, more useful consumption. We should have put more muscle into social programs rather than strictly economic growth before we got into this hole," he said.

To this observer, it seems obvious that Puerto Rico's commonwealth status is obsolete. A new vote ought to be taken so that Puerto Ricans can choose the future they want for themselves. I think it would be excellent if they elected to join the union. The Cuban refugees living in South Florida have a major contribution to the economy of that area and the addition of 3-million Spanish speaking people would go a long way toward giving us a better perspective on Latin America, a neglected but critical hemisphere, and perhaps the hemisphere of the future, if the planet has a future.

Spinners to Perform at Newport Festival

The Spinners, Atlantic Records' superstars, are scheduled to headline the Newport Jazz Festival in five major cities as part of their summer itinerary. The shows will include entertainment greats Ray Charles, Marvin Gaye, Al Green, Srokey Robinson and Harold Melvin. The concert package tour commences in Atlanta (June 25), Kansas City (July 9), New York's Shea Stadium (July 10) Cincinnati (July 24) and Pontiac, Michigan (August 7).

The Spinners' new show contains a combination of new vocal material, an eight and a half minute tribute to Duke Ellington and a new comedy routine.

50's Stars appear on Bandstand Special

"American Bandstand's 23rd Birthday Special," with host Dick Clark, will be rebroadcast as a "Monday Night Special" on the ABC Television Network, Monday, May 10 (11:30 p.m. - 1:00 a.m., EDT).

Entertainers who appeared on the popular dance program during its early days will be in on the show. Among them are Fats Domino, Fabian, Chubby Checker, Connie Francis, Dion and Jimmy Clanton.

Clark also features special interviews with Pat Boone and Annette Funicello, conducted in their homes in Beverly Hills.

The program also includes visits with some of the original dance regulars: Kenny, Arlene, Justine and Bob. A highlight of the special will be film footage from the early "American Bandstand" days.

The program originally aired May 9, 1975.

Free Movie at Library

The film, "Abbott and Costello Meet the Keystone Cops", will be shown free of charge at the Mid-City Branch of the Public Library at its new location at 1305 University on Friday, May 7th at 3:30 p.m.

FACTS & FIGURES

When did baseball begin? Historians of the sport say it had its origins in a game called "rounders" which was played in England as early as 1744.

In Army tests, it was learned that Bob Feller (Cleveland Indians) threw a pitch which traveled at a speed of 98.6 miles per hour as it crossed the plate. This makes him the fastest pitcher in baseball.

Chosen to play in every All-Star game since 1965, Cincinnati's Pete Rose (who boasts 1,329 runs in 2,022 games!) can now be seen in advertisements for Aqua Velva Ice Blue After Shave.

Mickey Mantle of the once-unbeatable New York Yankees hit the longest homer in history — 565 feet in 1953.

The world's heaviest "coin" is the Fe or stone discs from the Yap Islands in the Pacific, which can be as large as 12 feet in diameter—and a medium-sized one used to be worth one wife or an 18-foot canoe.

The most valuable treasure ever found was one discovered in England in 1966 of more than 1,200 antique gold coins worth more than $1,400,000.

Tattletale Bookkeeper

Parker, a businessman, was systematically cheating on his income taxes. One day his conscience-stricken bookkeeper took several incriminating documents out of Parker's safe and handed them over to the Internal Revenue Service.

In short order, Parker was charged with income tax evasion. But in court he insisted that the evidence, having been taken illegally, could not be used against him.

"This clearly falls under the Fourth Amendment," he said, "which forbids unreasonable search and seizure."

However, the court held the evidence admissible and Parker guilty. The court said the constitutional ban applies only to searches by government agents, not by private individuals.

Courts generally agree. They say the Fourth Amendment was designed to protect citizens from prying by the government, nothing more. Although the private searcher may indeed be committing an offense, the evidence that he finds remains acceptable.

The same is true if the evidence is discovered purely by accident. In another case, a departing guest in a motel left a suitcase in his room. The manager, peeking into the suitcase, noticed some odd-looking checks. These he reported to the police.

Result: the guest was arrested for possessing forged checks. The judge said that even though the manager had no right to look into the suitcase, the evidence he found was nevertheless admissible in court.

But the rule changes when the search, although conducted by a private person, is done at police instigation. Another motel manager told a policeman that he suspected one of his guests of being a drug pusher. Instructed to search the man's room, he did so—and found heroin.

But this time, the evidence was rejected in court because of the police role in the search.

"The search was just as 'official,'" said the court, "as though the officer had acted in person."

U.S. Census Reports Women Change Status

Women have come a long way in the present century, according to a popular advertising slogan. Measures of just how far are shown in a comprehensive statistical portrait of American women released today by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The report shows that women and girls outnumbered men and boys in the population—109.4 million to 103.8 million in July 1975, and the population advantage for women is projected to widen to a range of 6.9 to 7.9 million by the end of the century. The last decennial census year in which males outnumbered females was 1940, 66.4 million to 65.8 million.

Life expectancy at birth has improved more for women than for men, advancing for women from 48.3 years in 1900 to 75.3 years in 1973, and advancing for men from 46.3 years to 67.6 years during the same period. Life expectancy of women now exceeds that of men by almost 8 years. The median age of women has risen since the beginning of the century from 22.4 to 30.0 years in 1975, the report shows.

The dramatic improvement in the maternal mortality rate in the last five decades has eliminated this as a major cause of death among women. It dropped from 690 deaths related to pregnancy and childbirth per 100,000 live births in the early 1920's to 15 deaths per 100,000 births in 1973.

Three-fourths of all women lived in urban areas in 1970 compared with less than half in 1910, and women outnumber men in central cities of metropolitan areas. The report suggests this is partially because of greater employment opportunities for young women in such areas.

Evidence of a changing social and economic role for women is shown in their increased participation in the labor force. Between 1950 and 1974, the number of working women nearly doubled while the number of men in the labor force increased by one-fourth. Moreover, the report points out that the traditional relationship between labor force participation and such variables as marital status and the presence and age of children has been undergoing a profound change. Among married women with preschool children, the labor force participation rate rose from 12 percent in 1950 to 37 percent in 1975. In 1950, the ratio of women to men who were year-round full-time workers was 29 women to every 100 men; in 1974, it was 47 women to every 100 men.

Tennis series on television

Inner Tennis, a series of six half-hour tennis lessons, will be broadcast on the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network (IEBN) beginning Sunday, May 16, at 6:30 p.m. The programs, presented as active tennis clinics and featuring Tim Gallwey, author of "The Inner Game of Tennis," can be seen on IEBN Channel Ch 11, Des Moines.

Gallwey will utilize his unique teaching methods to demonstrate to a class of players ranging from "beginner" to "advanced" that inside each of them is a better tennis player waiting to be set free. By discovering the natural learning process the players will learn to improve their games in the same unconscious way children learn to walk. "We already know how to play well," says 38-year-old Gallwey. "All we have to do is let it happen."

Newton

American delegation on a visit to Cuba a couple of weeks ago.

I met Newton in the lobby of the Havana Riviera, a luxury, Miami Beach-type facility built by American gangsters just before Castro led the Cuban people to independence in 1959 after three decades of American domination and exploitation of the island 90 miles from Miami. I introduced myself and extended my hand to Newton and he shook it with both hands as though we were old friends and had not seen each other in years.

He looked more like a movie star than one with a reputation of a revolutionary theoretician. Possibly influenced by Castro's practice of wearing only military fatigues, I had somehow expected him to be wearing something resembling a "Black Panther outfit" — at least the leather jacket. Instead he looked like a model who just stepped off the cover of Gentlemen's Quarterly wearing an expensive, perfect fitting faded denim outfit. He looked younger than his 34 years, but a slight limp from a bullet he would received in a confrontation with police reminded that his youthful look could not be attributed to an easy life.

During the interview, it became obvious that there remains bad blood between Newton and Cleaver, the former minister of information for the Black Panthers who was expelled by the party in 1971 in an ideological spat.

In addition to calling Cleaver a "renegade scab," Newton sharply criticized him for supporting Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's foreign policy related to Third World Countries, and blamed Cleaver for the Panthers' violent philosophy during the turbulent Sixties.

Newton said Cleaver's stand with Kissinger shows that Cleaver has gone beyond "shuffling" to return to the U.S. where he faces charges of attempted murder and assault stemming from a 1968 shoot out between Panthers and Oakland, Calif. police. "He is not shuffling; he is crawling back," Newton said.

Newton, who once represented the epitome of black rage against white racism in America, said that he sought to get the Panthers to abandon the gun philosophy during the Sixties — but was unsuccessful because of Cleaver's influence over Panther leaders.

"... I tried to get the party to stop the shooting, to stop their talk about the gun thing," Newton said. "They voted me down. We always had a central committee. They were mesmerized by Eldridge Cleaver."

Newton said he was "in solidarity" with the Panthers' current program of fielding political campaigns and community service projects such as free lunch programs and shoe distribution centers.

Once back in the United States, Newton indicated that he plans to devote much of his time to bring about black liberation through the mobilization of blacks to put "the right" blacks in to City Hall and other "authoritative" places.
