11 Rights Commissioners Resign

The governor of Kansas City, Mo., Christopher S. Bond, recently requested the resignation of all 11 members of the Missouri Human Rights Commission and has appointed Kansas City, Mo., assistant city manager, Alvin Brooks, to serve as the commission's new chairman. The other members of the commission have not yet been appointed.

The governor acted after receiving a 61 page report on the commission from a task force of the International Association of Official Human Rights Agencies (IAOHRA).

Governor Bond asked the IAOHRA to make a study of the Human Rights Agency which has been embroiled in controversy for the last few years.

The task force submitted its report to the governor on May 14, after four and a half months of study. The report contained a list of 18 positive recommendations "designed to improve the ability of the Human Rights Commission to fulfill its very difficult responsibilities" said governor Bond.

Although governor Bond has endorsed the recommendations made by the Task Force he does not, "necessarily endorse" or support the allegations of facts or the conclusions in the appendix."

"The IAOHRA report contained 18 specific recommendations for resolving the current controversies and moving the Human Rights Commission forward in a constructive way. I shall ask the new commission to redraft its bylaws to vest full operating authority, including the hiring and firing of personnel, in the Executive Director and to allow the Executive Director the latitude to organize the agency in any way he sees fit to carry out the Commission's responsibilities."

Governor Bond went on to state that he thought it clear that improved legislation is needed to insure that the Commission can carry out its work. And that he would ask the new Commission to review these recommendations and present a legislative package to him prior to the next session of the General Assembly.

"This has been a very difficult time for all of us who have a concern for human rights but I am confident that the new efforts we are undertaking a new chairman and commission and a set of very positive recommendations to guide us will strengthen the Missouri Commission on Human Rights and make it an agency of which all Missourians can be proud."

Black Community Shows Heritage in Bicentennial Parade

Alexander Easter of Omaha, Neb., a member of Omaha's predominantly black Delta Riding Club, makes last-minute preparations.

Stepping high and low on horseback or on foot (as well as in cars and on floats), members of the black community from around Iowa and the midwest showed their "heritage," too, in the Bicentennial Parade held in Des Moines recently.

The parade was to be an "ethnic" exhibition of the diverse peoples of Iowa in honor of the country's upcoming 200th birthday.

A major share of black participation in the parade was due to the numerous (and outstanding) drill teams, floats and motorcycle brigades of the Ancient Egyptian Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine, North and South America Jurisdiction, whose Midwest Gala Day Association gathering was held here May 20-22.

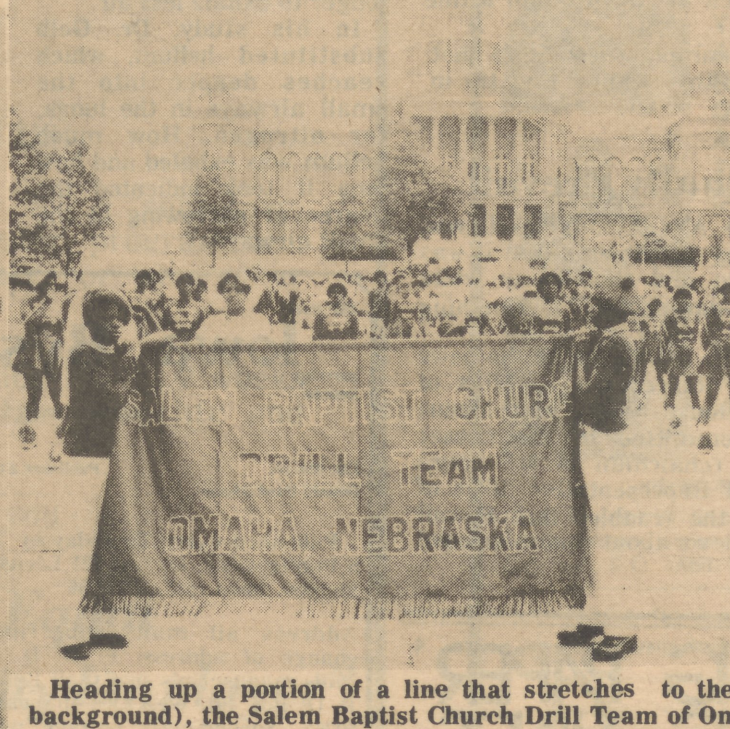

Among other black participants in the parade was Omaha's Delta Riding Club, a 23-member, predominantly black horseback riding club established in 1972.

Said Alexander Easter, a member of the group, "We go everywhere, in parades and around. We show all over in Nebraska and Iowa."

VIEWS and REVIEWS

by James B. Morris

Black and White Congressmen Have Troubles

It was encouraging to see more Negro students in the upper 3% of the high school graduating classes in Des Moines this year. Students are realizing more and more that getting an education is competitive and that more attention must be given to efforts to make better grades.

On the other hand, as I visit the hospitals in Des Moines there are more foreign nurses and doctors than Negroes and doctors are few and far between. While the restriction on the number of admissions to medical school is limited I have never heard about the extent in nursing schools.

At one time Negro athletes dominated athletic high school teams in those cities where they represent a fair share of the student population. And yet in the professional basketball, football and baseball teams they are well represented and, of course, in these days the money stakes are high.

Participation in choruses, bands, orchestras and other extra curricular activities is helpful in securing a well rounded education and a sense of respect among those who learn to work together regardless of the color of their skins. This is helpful as they engage in other avenues in pursuit of their life work.

In any event it was encouraging to watch these youngsters and to think that we went through the same programs years ago.

High School Graduates Raise Their Levels

Periodically, the Ku Klux Klan raises its head emphasizing that they are still in existence. Most people don't need to be reminded for there are members all around us and many who sympathize with their views.

And in keeping with their views, an unknown character announced recently to the world that this is a white man's country. Such announcements may be heard here and there as long as the days go by but some people need not forget that the Constitution of the United States guarantees every citizen certain rights and privileges and realize that practice of these democratic pronouncements is the foundation of this country.

From day to day, I am fully convinced that no man needs to fear that he will fail to reach his goals, even though there may be rocks in the path at times, as long as he conducts himself so as to follow the honorable means others have used to do so including proper respect for the law and the rights of other people.

My greatest concern is what the Negro himself does for the mistakes he makes are printed in big headlines in most cases. True, there are abuses, among which is police brutality and even though whites complain that they are subject to it. In some cases, it is true but the proper method not to handle the situation in an attempt to settle a matter with an arresting officer but to do so in the courts provided for the settlement of disputes both criminal and civil.

A show on CBS entitled the "Jeffersons" uses as their theme, "finally getting a piece of the pie". Jefferson himself has a successful cleaning and dyeing business which has enabled them to do the things that he had hoped for in years gone by, such as moving into a fine apartment.

To me this is an excellent example to point to that people can get most of the things they want if they try in an intelligent and orderly fashion.

Sound People Finally Prevail

When the late Representative A. Clayton Powell was punished for his misdeeds, many people said that it was done because he was a Negro and that many white representatives were doing the same thing, and nothing was done about it.

Well, if these same people have been reading the news they would be surprised that Representative Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee (most powerful committee in the house) Representative Hays of Ohio (chairman of the house administration committee) and Representative Sikes of Florida, all white are having the troubles that Powell did. They should change their views about what happened to Powell.

The proposals will be submitted to the Department of Planning and Development for review and consideration. Approval will be based on the developer(s) receipt of Federal Housing Administration approval of Section 3 Housing Assistance.

See public notice on page 5 in the paper.

PUBLIC HEARING IN SIOUX CITY

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission will hold a public hearing in Sioux City, Iowa, in the Council Chambers, City Hall, 6th and Douglas, June 3, 1976, at 10:00 a.m.

The case involves alleged discrimination on the basis of age and sex and is an employment case.

Simple Test for Healthy Lungs

Time ages lungs, but smoking ages them even faster.

In a study supported in part by a grant from the Long Beach Lung Association in California, Dr. Arthur Gelb found that of the supposedly healthy smokers with no symptoms of any lung trouble, more than half had early disease of the small airways.

One of the simplest tests of lung function requires the person to take a deep breath of ordinary air, which is 30 per cent nitrogen and 20 per cent oxygen, and blow out as hard and as long as possible. It takes old or diseased lungs longer to exhale less air.

In his study, Dr. Gelb substituted helium, which reaches deeper into the small airways in the lungs, for nitrogen. How much helium was exhaled and how long it took indicated the degree of narrowing in the small airways.

NANCY WILSON

Nancy Wilson knew she wanted to be a professional singer when she was four. "I just couldn't keep quiet," she says. "I sang anything anytime anybody would listen."

She lived with her grandmother in Chillicothe, Ohio, and there was music everywhere around. Her aunts came to visit and said to the little girl, "Come on, honey, sing." And from then on, Nancy did!

Getting out there meant going after a job as a vocalist with the Rusty Bryant Band—travelling a lot—but not really getting anywhere; singing a night here, a night there; exhaustion, but also experience. By 1953 Nancy decided that she had all the experience she needed and she headed for New York.

One of the great events of Nancy's life, some months later, was meeting Cannonball Adderley. Cannon realized her talent and took an active interest in her career.

Nancy has since gone on from achievement to achievement. Many people have tried to categorize what she does. It's jazz, they say, or it's soul. Nancy herself says, "I don't like categories. I remember when I started, depending on whether you were a jazz enthusiast or not, I was either definitely a jazz singer or strictly a pop singer. Everyone had to put me in a category."

"But I believe that if a song comes along that has a different kind of sound—maybe just a different kind of background than anything people are accustomed to hearing me do and if the music and lyrics are good, I'm going to sing it."

1974 saw Nancy blast back into the limelight with her acclaimed effort All In Love Is Fair, produced by the hot new hit-making tandem Gene and Billy Page. Featured on the album were: the Stevie Wonder Title tract and "Streetworker" by the Bros. Page. Now 1975 sees that same team of the elated Wilson vocal style matched with the cool of the Pages' production and arrangements, on an album entitled Come Get To This. Included are knockout versions of the Marvin Gaye title tract, James Taylor's "Don't Let Me Be Lonely Tonight," "If I Ever Lose This Heaven" and five new Page Bros.' tunes. An artist with a style all her own, Nancy Wilson circa 1975 is hot stuff.

HOSTS SICKLE CELL TOURNEY

Actor/director, Fred Williamson is curtailing his stay aboard his private yacht off the Coast of Cannes to wing back to Los Angeles to host an all-star Celebrity Tennis Tournament Saturday, June 5. Sponsored by the Polaroid Corporation, it will benefit the Sickle Cell Disease Research Foundation. The event calls for special tennis courts to be constructed on the roof of the new Fox Hills Mall located in the LA area.

Among the celebrities set to play are: Janet Leigh,

"WAKE UP SUSAN" NEW SPINNERS SINGLE

From the excitement amongst the staff of Atlantic Records, it looks like the Spinners and Thom Bell have presented them with another gold nugget in the form of the new single and forthcoming album. The new single is entitled "Wake Up Susan" and Spinners fans will welcome the long-awaited new release. If the indications prove to be valid, the group will add number ten to their list of million sellers.

Spinners fans will also have the opportunity to hear some of the new material as Raymond St. Jacques, Michael Dante, John Amos, James Harris, Bo Hopkins, Councilman Dave Cunningham, just to name a few.

The original program called for 24 participating celebrities. The number of people accepting the official invitation is forcing celebrity officials to increase the number of scheduled matches.

When this information was relayed to Williamson he indicated pleasure but no great surprise. "The Sickle Cell trait, long mistakenly believed to affect only the Black community, is now known as a crippling disease to people of Spanish, Italian, Greek, Turkish, Mexican and American Indian descent," he said. "As more and more people are made aware of this they will understand how widespread Sickle Cell is among a large proportion of the Country".

the group has a heavy schedule of performances slated for the rest of the year. They will, however, take time out to host and perform the Jackie Wilson Benefit at the Latin Casino, in Cherry Hill, N.J. on October 3rd. The benefit will feature top record industry artists along with the Spinners who feel that his numerous contributions to the industry make Wilson a more than deserving benefactor during his personal crisis.

Dinner theatre at Drake

Drake University will hold its first dinner theatre Friday and Saturday, June 11-12, in the Olmsted Center. The play will be Neil Simon's hit comedy, "The Prisoner of Second Avenue."

William R. Dunbar, director of the Olmsted Center, 29th St. and University Ave., said the dinner-theatre productions would not be held on a regular basis.

"If that weekend is successful," he said, "we will try it again in the fall during Parents Weekend and/or Homecoming, whenever many alumni, parents, and friends come to campus."

The comedy will be directed by Dr. Gary Hobbs, associate professor and chairman of the department of theatre arts at Drake. In the cast will be students from the College of Fine Arts.

Dunbar said the doors to Parents Hall for the dinner theatre would open at 6 p.m., the buffet and bar will be open until 7:40 p.m., and curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Reservations must be made by Wednesday, June 9, by telephoning the D Shoppe in the Olmsted Center at 271-3936.

Questions left Unanswered in Death of Publisher's Son

Several questions have been left unanswered in the shooting death of John H. Sengstacke Jr., son of the Chicago Daily Defender Publisher John H. Sengstacke, at the Dixie Truck Home in McClean, Ill., Monday.

An extensive investigation found apparent discrepancies in the reports that John H. Sengstacke Jr. shot himself after shooting Russell Watier, an armed, uniformed investigator for the secretary of state's office.

Laboratory tests have yet to confirm that he even fired the investigator's gun.

The incident occurred Monday at 4 p.m., according to police logs and witness reports, but official notification of the shooting did not come until Tuesday at 10 a.m., and then from Peoria coroner Buzbee.

Confusion over the identity of one of the gun-shot victims who had legally changed his name caused the delay, claim the police.

Sengstacke had lunched in Chicago until 2 p.m., before making the 150 mile journey to the truck stop.

He was left lying in a pool of blood from the 38 caliber gunshot from Watier's .38 special, by McClean Town Marshall William Maxwell who transported the less critically wounded investigator 22 miles to Bloomington's St. Joseph Hospital.

Sengstacke was later taken to the hospital in one of two county ambulances, dispatched to the scene.

The policy of the hospital is to "treat the most critically injured victims first", claims Hospital Administrator Marvin Nichols.

Yet St. Joseph's personnel merely dressed Sengstacke's wound and determined that, "his condition had "stabilized." and then transferred him to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria, nearly 50 miles away.

Buzbee's office performed a powder burn test on Sengstacke's body, at the request of Miller and McKinney, but the nitrate test proved negative. No powder burn test was performed on Watier.

Just one other person actually witnessed, or was even in a position to witness the actual shooting, according to reports contained in the investigation. That person is a Springfield medical school student who the police declined to identify.

All About Health and Black Beauty

Naomi Sims, the well known high-fashion model has recently published a comprehensive and informative book on beauty and health care for the Black Woman. Ms. Sims, who herself reached the top in the beauty world as a Black model, has now shown in her new book that she is equally concerned with helping other Black women learn the essential facts of health and skin care that will truly improve their overall health and well-being. "All About Health and Beauty For The Black Woman" covers problems Black Women most frequently face in dealing with the care of their hair and skin. In addition the book destroys many myths about Black skin and hair while providing expert solutions to those problems. Sensible diet ideas are discussed that pay attention to the nutritional needs of women and practical fashion advice is offered in the Encyclopedia for Black Women. But probably the most unique part of the book is the fact that Ms. Sims does not separate the body from the mind of the Black woman and she offers valuable information on subjects such as alcohol and drug abuse, rape prevention and other aspects of physical and mental health care. The book's bibliography contains a listing of hospitals, and health care agencies she herself has uncovered in doing the research for the book. The Black Woman now has a volume on beauty advice and health care that she can trust and that she can be assured will aid her in improving her outward appearances as well as helping her to cope with problems in daily living. "All About Health and Beauty For The Black Woman" is available.

NO. 1 BREAKFAST ENTREE IN THE U.S.

Grain based foods have long been considered economical sources of carbohydrates, certain B vitamins and iron. In recent years a growing number of health leaders have encouraged their increased consumption because evidence has accumulated that indicates the desirability of reducing the fat and cholesterol intake of many Americans. The quick convenience of breakfast cereals, the variety of flavors and widespread taste appeal have helped to make cereal with milk the No. 1 breakfast entree in the United States.

Still, the breakfast habit record is not good enough. A study made in October, 1969, by the Massachusetts Department of Education showed that only one elementary school child in twenty (5%) was eating a good breakfast each day and nearly one-third (29%) of senior high school students had no breakfast at all on any given day.

One answer may be the Basic Cereal and Milk Breakfast. It serves up in minutes and includes fruit or juice, fortified ready-to-eat cereal with milk, enriched or whole-grain bread with a spread, and a milk beverage. For menu variety include meat or egg in place of the cereal with milk, a couple times a week.

Communist China: A Black Perspective

By Paula Baker

The Chinese people have accomplished many economic and social breakthroughs in the past twenty years that were never thought possible of a third world, backward nation controlled for decades by foreign oppressors. These great accomplishments have not been achieved by fragmented or divisive efforts on the part of the Chinese people. But rather by the unity and selfless dedication of Chinese leaders and the mass of Chinese people.

The obstacles that the Chinese people had to overcome in order to create a nation made by and for the best interests of all Chinese people, are different in many ways than the obstacles Blacks in America must overcome in order to achieve equality and self determination in America. But in many ways, the obstacles facing the Chinese people were the same as the obstacles facing the American Black people in their efforts to realize the full potential of their existence in the world and the nation.

The oppression of the Chinese people and American Black people have a definite commonality in terms of the psychological and social effects of oppression on any group of people.

The common results of oppression on groups of people are: 1) A feeling of inferiority and lack of self esteem held by groups who have been oppressed historically, 2) A distrust among each other that governs interpersonal relationships within the oppressed group, 3) A need or desire on the part of members of the oppressed group to "put down" or ridicule fellow group members in order to feel superior to someone; a need that is perpetuated by the conditions of oppression bestowed on all members of the group, and 4) An eventual state of total dependence on the conditions of oppression.

These characteristics of oppression have very damaging effects on the ability of any group to realize the fruits of collective action, and impairs of groups' ability to overcome powerful obstacles. There were many obstacles to the liberation of Chinese people prior to 1949 and there have, and are many obstacles to the total liberation of Black people in America.

Because the effects of oppression are so damaging to the ability of oppressed people to unite together and to realize their collective strength in facing the many obstacles of their oppression, Blacks in America who are still operating within the "oppression syndrome" for the most part, will be unable to unite for collective action to overcome the grave obstacles facing their right to a full and equal existence in the world as members of the human race, unless Blacks assume the responsibility of counteracting the negative effects of their historical oppression in America and the world.

Perhaps the first step is the recognition of these effects of oppression. Recognizing these effects can be done easily enough if we pay attention to what American Black Psychologists tell us about the problems of our children growing up in a society that disdains their existence, the breakdown in communication between the Black male and the Black female, and the slow deterioration of the Black family structure which is unable to survive the economic and social pressures exerted on all family members by the conditions of oppression.

We can recognize these pressures in our daily lives if we take the time to examine our interaction with other black people. For example, if we examine the times when we have become upset or disgruntled with a member of our family because they do not meet our expectations of them (expectations that are based on the accepted behavior in the broader society), or if we examine the times we have tried to work together with other Blacks in groups to achieve collective goals and have become disgusted or disillusioned because everyone in the group wanted to be a leader and no one would trust the other persons' opinion or ability to make proper judgements, we will realize that the "oppression syndrome" is at work to destroy our ability to love each other, to trust each other, and to unite together to overcome grave obstacles.

The Chinese have been relatively successful in counteracting these factors that served to divide the Chinese people and to impair their ability to unite for collective action against a common oppressor.

The leaders of the Chinese liberation movement helped the Chinese workers and peasants to regain confidence in themselves by paying special respect to methods of survival used for thousands of years by the Chinese peasantry and working class people. Many basic and down to earth ways of providing food, shelter, clothing and medical care are now upheld as models of living. The leaders of the Chinese liberation movement also worked hard to develop among the Chinese people principles of group and individual conduct that would counteract the negative psychology of oppression, and which would help to enhance the creative power and strength of a people united in respect and love for each other and all human life.

Applied to the situation of American Blacks, many of the same principles can be utilized to increase the ability of Blacks to survive the social and emotional pressures of American society while uniting in collective activities to change the nature of existence for all Blacks in America.

LOOK ON SPORTS

There was too much activity in high school sports for one person to see. There was the boys state track meet at the Drake stadium and the boys tennis tournament at Birdland. Well, I have seen a couple of track meets so I went for the tennis meet. Saw some fine matches and had my usual fun with a couple of people.

There was a young black player from Iowa City in the doubles. The team was beaten in the quarter finals. But this was what made the day for me.

A fellow came up to me and reminded me that there was a black boy playing over there, "well, what do you think I should do, stop the match and run over to shake his hand?" The guy was sort of taken aback, and replied that he thought I would be glad to see a brother in the thing. I explained to him that it was not a really big thing. If the guy couldn't play tennis a little, he wouldn't be there. He was just a tennis player who happened to be black.

Later I got a chance to talk to young Davitt. I reminded him that he had missed a lot of low shots because he forgot to bend his knees on them. Then I told him not to feel too bad because that was one of the fundamental weaknesses of Arthur Ash. He told me that this was his first year at school tennis. He was from Africa and planned to stay here until he finished school. Said he would have plenty of time to work on his game because he wanted to make the singles team next year.

There are some fine tennis programs in Iowa City, and I am sure that if Davitt gets into some of them, he will be tough next year. In fact, I plan to try to see him in the Iowa Open at Cedar Rapids next month and see how much he has improved.

Then there was this fellow who should have known better. He was trying to have some fun with me in a rather kidding manner. We talked about what a fine match the singles final was, and a group of young girls came around to talk to him. He looked at the kids, winked and said that was probably the kind of tennis I must have played when I played. I replied that I didn't play tennis like that not even in my dreams. "Oh, you're just being modest" and another wink. "No, I am just telling it like it is. I don't think you could play tennis like that in your day either because the game as you and I played it wasn't molded in that style of those kids.

So no matter how good you might have been in your day, you couldn't have done that. And I never was good enough. And if you had come along with me and been black you would have learned why. You wouldn't have gotten a chance to play in that competition so you could get really good" My teaser responded with a weak "I see what you mean" and that was that.

Maybe

Those of you who don't like heavy weight champ Muhammad Ali will likely get a chance to gloat over his troubles this month. This is the month Ali takes on the Japanese wrestler in a mixed match. According to my book, the champ should finish about third.

Bouts between boxers and wrestlers, called mixed bouts were held pretty often in the late twenties. Out of about a dozen such bouts I can remember when the boxer won just once, and then he got in the first punch.

Jack Dempsey was supposed to take on the heavyweight mat champ, Strangler Lewis in a mixed bout. Dempsey took a middleweight wrestler for practice, and the guy tossed him into the next county. Jack reasoned properly that if a one hundred sixty pound man could do that, what chance would he have with Lewis who weighed around two thirty and wasn't fat. So the bout just died.

So if you see a UFO on that night it will more than likely be the heavyweight boxing champ.

Not Front Page News

This didn't make much news in some papers, but there was a real war going on in Milwaukee. It seems that the front office had planned to fire the coach of the Bucks basketball team along with the general manager Wayne Embry who is black. They finally decided to give the coach another chance, but there were several meetings on the status of Embry.

The black cage fans in Milwaukee let it be known that if Embry went, so would their support of the team, and they were a big sector of the box office. After fumbling around with the idea for a while, the people in power renewed the contract of Embry for a year.

Maybe they will have the battle all over next year if they haven't eased the guy out in the middle of the season. The Milwaukee fans said that Embry was doing a good job in his role as GM. and was a great factor in the work with kids from the inner city, and that was why they wanted to see him stay.

Don Kings Due in Boxing

The world lauded a white promoter who came up with five million dollars for the first Ali-Frazier fight as a financial wizard and a promoter supreme. It did not matter that that promoter turned out to be a flash in the pan and boxing skidded in steady decline from that point until a black Don King resurrected it.

King more than doubled that five million figure in his Ali-Foreman venture but the world was loath to laud him. He continued to lift boxing from its doldrums and to raise the earnings and continual perpetuation of top bouts.

King opened up new viewers around the globe in his ventures and elevated blacks to new and unprecedented levels of participation. Through his successful stewardship, network television which had all but relegated boxing to file 13, suddenly renewed its interest in boxing.

His televised promotion of the Ali-Ron Lyle fight ushered in a new era of television boxing that has sent all three networks and syndication operations out scurrying for top bouts for television.

While few would doubt the worldwide popularity and charisma of Muhammad Ali, few who know, would fail to acknowledge that all the popularity and charisma of Ali did not payoff in high dividends until it was paired with the matchless skills of Don King.

The combination of King and Ali was a sound business combine and one to make Black Americans and all third world people proud. Now at the peak of success the combination has been broken up.

Don King earned his way and deserved better treatment at the hands of Muhammad Ali and his manager Herbert Muhammad. For people whose rhetoric is full of mouthings of freedom, justice and equality and whose pronouncements speak of unity and togetherness they have added one ugly and historically untimely chapter to the proverbial crabs in the bucket tale.

It is difficult to bear such occurrences in 1976 but these and other things happening around him may one day force Muhammad Ali to realize that the multitudes throughout history have found it easy to turn on the idols they have adored and to stamper them into the dust.

ALEXANDER RACE FOR DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION

Georgena Alexander is mounting an active campaign to seek the Democratic nomination for House of Representatives from Des Moines' 67th District. In this, the last week leading up to the June 8th primary elections, Georgena's campaign has gained increasing momentum. Georgena herself, has appeared at numerous campaign rallies, luncheons, churches and other community activities in an effort to let the people of District 67 meet her and to see how well she represents their interests.

Mrs. Alexander, a thirty-five year old housewife and Communication worker for Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., feels that she is the candidate that best represents the residents of District 67 because she understands the needs of the entire district. As a property owner she is interested in fair taxation and fair property valuation; as a mother she is interested in meeting the needs of the youth in District 67 as well as in Iowa; as a person concerned with everyone getting a fair deal, she is interested in working for the solution to the problems of senior citizens and handicapped persons in Iowa.

In addition, Georgena is interested in working to restructure the state income tax structure that places an unfair tax burden on average citizens.

She would also like to see that programs to provide nutritional assistance to the elderly be adequately funded and supported, and that everything possible is done to keep the costs of Childcare low, while the quality of care is improved and readily available to families in need of day care services.

"High-Risk" Districts are Illegal

Withholding credit because the applicant lives in what is euphemistically termed a "high-risk district" is a discriminatory practice and illegal, says a Legal Aid lawyer.

So is refusing credit solely because the applicant is on welfare or because of an applicants marital status. Legal action can be taken in these cases. Although it is hard to prove that that is the sole basis for refusing credit.

summer months broken windows plague many neighborhoods that have a lot of children whose time is no longer taken up by school. When the identity of the culprit is known action can be taken. Children as well as parents are responsible in this civil suit. Unfortunately, warns Legal Aid, as often as not the parents have no more money than the child.

Sidewalk Accidents

If the construction of the sidewalk is such that it causes the accident. If it, for instance, was not level, there is the possibility of a suit. The property owner is responsible for the condition of the walk. Especially in the winter months. When he is responsible for the removal of snow and ice.

A suit on the public walk is difficult. A person that has walked that way before and thus knows the inherent 'dangers' is liable to lose the suite as he knew before hand the conditions of the walk.

But it is not a sure thing.

The private walk, the walk leading up to the house, is another thing. You are responsible. Its best and easiest all around to keep your walks in a good state or repair.

In most instances when the consumer or applicant has a complaint about service received or treatment while applying for welfare the fact that they are applying for welfare is a pretty fair indication that they are eligible for Legal Aid.

Legal Aid fields approximately 8,000 calls for advise a year so their lines are usely busy. The best thing to do is to leave a message stating your problem. They return calls for advice twice a day at 11 and 4 o'clock.

If nothing else the Legal Aid office can call 'up front' where, when the word leaks down to the people giving the runaround hear, it really "shakes them up".

The "consumer has a lot of remedies that even some private lawyers aren't aware of," says the legal aid office. But there is little that can be done to stop, once and for all, the "total insensitivity" and "subtle discrimination" that a few people working in public places exhibit.

Legal Aid can help even if its, "nothing more than to interpret," legal jargon.

After all, they know what the rules are.
