Jewish Leader Urges Ford to Bar Support of Anti-Busing Measures

Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the American Jewish Congress, urged President Ford in a letter released this week not to support measures that would limit the courts' ability to impose busing in racially segregated school districts. "The courts have both the power and the duty to correct violations of the Constitution when they occur," the American Jewish Congress leader declared.

In the letter, Rabbi Hertzberg said:

"On behalf of the American Jewish Congress, I urge you not to press for measures that would cripple the courts in dealing with unconstitutional racial segregation in public schools.

"Specifically, we urge that no support be given to measures which would prevent the courts from ordering busing of children when that procedure is found to be necessary in order to correct patterns of racial segregation caused by unconstitutional practices of school officials.

"We do not regard busing as the one and only way to achieve desegregation. Experience has shown, however, that it is sometimes necessary. When used appropriately, it is no more of a burden than the extensive busing of public school children now regarded as routine in areas where it is the only way to get children to good schools.

"Under our political system, the courts have both the power and the duty to correct violations of the Constitution when they occur. We find no evidence that they have abused the power in the twenty-two years that have elapsed since the highest court condemned public school segregation.

"Indeed, the continued widespread existence of segregation suggests that, if anything, they have moved too slowly. Any measure that would require them to move even more slowly would be a perversion of our constitutional system."

former assistant attorney general picked for post by Governor Robert Ray Governor Robert Ray today appointed Thomas J. Mann, Jr. of Des Moines as Executive Director of the Iowa Civil Rights Commission. Mann, 26, is presently an Assistant Attorney General with the Iowa Department of Justice.

In naming Mann to the Director's position, the Governor said, "We believe that Tom Mann will be a leader and an administrator who will quickly earn the respect of those with whom he will work. He is a young man who is articulate, poised and intelligent. His knowledge of the law should be a tremendous asset as he copes with the responsibilities of this important post."

Mann, a native of Haywood County, Tennessee, received a B.S. degree from Tennessee State University in 1971 with a major in political science. He received his law degree in 1974 from the University of Iowa, where he served as president of the local chapter of Black American Law Students Association.

Mann joined the Attorney General's Office in July, 1974, and has handled criminal appeals cases and employment discrimination cases.

He is presently Chairperson of the Appeal Board for Integrated Services of Des Moines and vice-president of the Mu Omicron chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity.

Mann, who is single, is a registered Democrat.

Mann's appointment was recommended to Ray by the Governor's Civil Rights Search Committee which considered applications for the position. The Governor appointed the Committee after the 1976 legislative approved legislation giving him the authority to appoint the Executive Director of the Civil Rights Commission.

Mann succeeds Joseph Tate of Des Moines, who the Governor thanked for his "valuable contribution to the cause of civil rights for Iowans."

Mann will earn $18,000 in his new position. The appointment is subject to Senate confirmation.

The Civil Rights Commission is charged with investigating, holding hearings and rendering decisions on complaints of unfair or discriminatory practices in public accommodations, housing, employment, apprenticeship and on-the-job training programs on the basis of age, race, creed, color, sex, religion, national origin or disability and injunctive powers to enforce its decisions. The Commission also plans and conducts programs designed to eliminate racial, religious, cultural and intergroup tensions.

D.M. City Council Rejects Appeal for investigation

by Vance Hawthorne

The Des Moines City Council rejected an appeal from the Human Rights Commission to ask the "proper authority" to fully investigate alleged election abuses in the Georgena Alexander - Ned Childo race for the Democratic nomination to the Iowa House from District 67.

The commission extended the bid after its own investigation was halted when Director Al Correll received a flood of complaints questioning the commission's right to conduct such an investigation.

The results of the abbreviated probe of the June 8 election, in which Chido, write-in candidate, defeated Alexander, were presented to the council Monday. The 6-page report revealed that:

—of 514 absentee ballots

cast, over 300 came from one precinct. (Precinct 77, reportedly Chido's southside territory)

—a large number of ballots were made out in similar handwriting, with an "x" marked on the line designated for signatures.

—a majority of persons voting absentee were not eligible to vote absentee because they were not ill nor expecting to be away from the precinct on election day.

—people reported that persons were going door to door getting people to send for absentee ballots and then going around picking them up. Again, the majority came from precinct 77.

However, Councilman Archie Brooks said he believes there were election violations on both sides. Brooks, who earlier had

Des Moines Jobless Rate Down .2% in May

The unemployment rate for the Des Moines Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area, which includes Polk and Warren Counties, dropped from 5.4% in April to 5.2% in May—the third straight month the rate has declined. A year ago in May the rate was also 5.2%.

The number of jobless persons was estimated at 8,300 in May, down 300 from April and unchanged from the May 1975 level.

Total employment in the two counties, estimated at 152,600 in May, was 600 higher than in April and 3,200 higher than a year ago. The over the month increase in employment resulted from greater than usual gains in construction and retail trade in addition to seasonal employment increases in agriculture and recreational services.

Total civilian labor force — employment plus unemployment — was estimated at 160,900 in May compared to 160,700 in April and 157,600 in May 1975.

All Americans Must Be A Part of July 4th, 1976

On July 4, America officially celebrates 200 hundred years of its existence — or make 1976 a bicentennial celebration.

The Declaration of Independence was written and announced as the principles upon which the country would live. To me, this portion

"We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable Rights that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness" says it all.

This statement contains the basic rights of all Americans and it is now that we can look back and see just how near we have come to observing them.

Recognizing in subsequent documents that this declaration included all men, it was finally agreed that such broad terms covered thousands of minorities who were in slavery at the time.

Fortunately, as time went on there were those who believed that all men should be free and engaged in a campaign which brought on the Civil War to free the slaves and followed it up with Amendments to the Constitution (13th, 14th and 15th) clarifying their position.

I am one who feels that every American should join in making this a memorable occasion and resolve to redouble their efforts to help correct mistakes that have been made in the past.

This country has had its good days and bad days. It has fought wars against England, against Spain and other countries winning all except the last which was concluded with disgrace.

The country has withstood the depressions and profited by the mistakes that caused them. In the meantime, it has built great industries, great communities, great schools and great churches. It has led the world in war and in quest of peace. What more can a nation hope for?

Unfortunately, the country has, in the name of liberalism, allowed to grow up entirely too much irresponsibility, ill-mannered conduct and a casual attitude that tend to lower the fiber of the people in our daily lives.

Today inflation and the almost uncontrollable greed among many people to get mine by "whatever means" have gotten our economy out of control and which must be stopped if we are to keep the country on a sound basis. This can be done if the politicians and responsible citizens insist on better control of the constant rise in the price of goods and services as we experience them today.

America can rectify these deficiencies and must if it expects to continue the dominant nation it has been during these past 200 years.

City Council Action Ducks Voter Violations

Recognizing that only a profuncory investigation by the Polk County Auditor of the charges violating the election laws in legislative district wherein Georgine Alexander was the only regular name on the ballot for democratic representatives and Ned Chiodo was write-in candidate, a staff member, the Des Moines Commission on Human Rights and Job Discrimination made an investigation of these complaints. Numerous violations were uncovered.

The commission recommended to the City Council that the complaints be investigated further and the matter turned over to the proper authorities for action. The council refused, but agreed to ask a member of the legislature from Polk County to request an opinion from the attorney general as to the legality of the committee's action. This was unnecessary.

Recently, a television station reporter led federal officers to sources where food stamps could be bought illegally. They made the purchase and the victim has been charged with buying food stamps illegally. If a private citizen may point out violations of laws to enforcement officers, certainly a member of a commission of Human Rights can.

Apparently, the city council expects nothing from the commission other than talks, letters and reports.

To Celebrate or not

by Eleanor E. Tate

The question of whether Black Americans should celebrate, on July 4, 1976, the 200th birthday of the United States, has been debated time and time again.

In light of the racism and oppression that Black people have suffered in this country, probably millions of Black Americans have said no. But because of the contributions and sacrifices that Black people have made in this country, probably millions of other Black Americans have said yes.

And there are always those who have no opinion.

To get a small idea of how Black Des Moines residents feel, five residents were asked, "Should Black people celebrate the Bicentennial?"

Here are their responses:

Margaret Kirby of 1706 Twelfth St., a member of the Model City Neighborhood Priority Board: "Yes, I believe we should, although our time here has not been too much to celebrate. But this is our country and regardless of the situation we came here in and regardless of the circumstances we have to live in—this is our country. It's true, perhaps that our roots are in Africa...but I feel that we should celebrate where we were born. Basically our immediate roots are here... When you stop and think of all the contributions that have been made to build this country by Black people, this gives us a sense of pride."

Black Analysis

Benjamin Turpin, a supervisor with the Martin Luther King School recreation program: "Definitely not. It's been 200 years for the white man and 100 for us. I just get mad every time I hear this bicentennial thing. I'm getting a Teeshirt printed up that says '—' the bicentennial."

District Associate Judge Luther T. Glanton: "Yes, I think so, and that is true even though the Black folks in America have had a difficult time. But it's still our country and we should do all that we can to make it a better country."

Marsha Collier, executive director of Willkie House: "I think, first of all, that this is an individual feeling. My personal feeling is that it has no real significance. Black people have been struggling since the beginning and are still struggling pretty much against the same things—just in different ways. As far as the country is concerned, I guess that's what bicentennial means—celebration of the country, the birth of the country. I'm not so sure that it has so much relevance to Black people and their freedom in this country."

Henry Prince of 1176 Ninth St.: "Negroes always had everything in the world—why shouldn't we celebrate? I think I will celebrate, go on a picnic or something like that. Came as salves? So what? Even with what the white man has actually did, you understand, we still did try to carve this United States out. And we did that."

AN INVITATION TO BLACK COMMUNITIES THROUGHOUT THE LAND

From the Black Community of Philadelphia:

On July 4th, people from all over the United States will join together in Philadelphia to demonstrate their opposition to 200 years of violence, oppression, exploitation and racism in the United States. Some 400 organizations will join forces in the July 4th Coalition's celebration.

The demonstration will take the form of a march and rally through Philadelphia's Black community, the site of some of the nation's most extreme policies of racism and oppression, but also the source of one of the country's strongest and most freedom-loving people.

In the city where such freedom fighters as W.E.B. DuBois and Kwame Nkrumah lived and studied, and where Paul Robeson spent his last days, you are invited to participate in our proclamation for a new anti-racist, anti-oppressive society, with full equality and opportunity for men, women and children of all races.

It will be a people's anti-bicentennial celebration, taking place in a neighborhood of struggling anti-bicentennial people.

Join with us as we declare, in the words of Frederick Douglass, taken from his July 4th speech of 100 years ago: "You discourse eloquently on the dignity of labor; yet you sustain a system which in its very essence casts a stigma upon labor. You can bare your bosom to the storm of British artillery to throw off a 3-penny tax on tea, and yet wring the last hard farthing from the grasp of Black laborers of your country ... You notoriously hate (and glory in your hatred) all men whose skins are not colored as your own ... The Fourth of July is yours, not mine."

Top Soul Groups at Jazz Festival

The Spinners, The Temptations, Archie Bell and The Drells, three of the top soul groups in the country will all be joined by other soul, jazz, blues, and gospel stars in this year's Kansas City Kool jazz Festival to be held on Friday and Saturday evenings, July 9 and 10 at the Royals Stadium. Both concerts begin at 7:30 PM SHARP.

The Spinners have been on the top of the soul field for many years with hits as early as the 50's such as

"That's What Girls Are Made For" and "Love I'm So Glad I Found You." In the 60's some of the groups hits were "Sweet Thing," "I'll Always Love You,"

"Truly Yours," and "In my Diary." The Spinners have continued their winning ways in the 70's and are perhaps at the pinnacle of their careers with hit after hit such as "I'll Be Around," "Could It Be I'm Falling In Love," "One Of A Kind Love Affair," "Then Came You,"

Fair entertainment listed

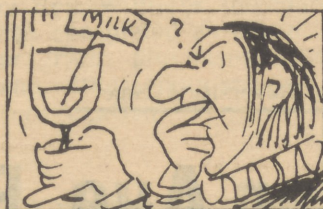

Twelve big nights of outstanding grandstand entertainment, including appearances by Lawrence Welk, the Eagles, Neil Sedaka, Johnny Cash and many other stars, plus auto races and tractor pulls, will highlight the 1976 Iowa State Fair, August 18-29.

The theme of this year's Fair is "The Spirit of Iowa '76," and features the various ethnic groups that helped settle the state. "The Spirit of Iowa Theme Center," on the main floor of the Grandstand, will become a showcase for displaying, performing and telling about the rich cultural heritage of the state. Among the many special features of the Theme Center will be a 40-member German youth group performing authentic, old-world dances daily on the Theme Center stage.

The Grandstand lineup, according to Fair Manager Jerry Coughlon, is "one of the most powerful in years, because every performer or group is well-known and currently in demand all over the country." In addition, Coughlon said, "this year's host of stars is so varied that there is something to suit everyone's preference."

The evening lineup for the Grandstand is as follows: August 18 — Opening Day: Johnny Cash at 6:30 and 9 p.m.; August 19: — Bachman-Turner Overdrive, 8 p.m.; August 20: — Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons, 6:30 and 9 p.m.; August 21: — IARA Auto Races, 8 p.m.; August 22: Neil Sedaka, 6:30 and 9 p.m.; August 23: — Isaac Hayes and Dionne Warwick, 6:30 and 9 p.m.; August 24: — Roy Clark, with Hank Thompson, 6:30 and 9 p.m.; August 25: — Lawrence Welk, 8:30 p.m.; August 26: — Tractor Pull, 8 p.m.; August 27: Freddy Fender, with Dottie West and Asleep at the Wheel, 6:30 and 9 p.m.; August 28: — Bobby Vinton, 6:30 and 9 p.m.; and Sunday, August 29: — The Eagles, at 8 p.m.

with Dionne Warwick and "The Love I Leave." The Spinners have continued to be one of the most dynamic and exciting groups in personal appearances and should be a highlight of the Festivals.

The Temptations are the essence of perfection. The group has become, over the past decade, a show business institution. Some of their latest hits include, "Masterpiece," "Papa Was A Robbin' Stone," "Shakey Ground," "Happy People," and "Sweetness in the Darkness." Their latest album "Wings of Love" is currently in the top 10 of all soul charts.

"Tighten Up," "I Can't Stop Dancing," "Never Know What's On A Woman's Mind," and the current hit "Let's Groove" are just some of the hits of still another top soul group featured on the Festival, Archie Bell and The Drells. "To promote love and joy through our music" is the singular purpose of this talented group. Last year, Archie Bell and The Drells performed before a S. R. O. crowd of 55,000 at the Astrodome KOOL Jazz Festival and their performance brought the fans to their feet dancing and applauding.

There hit-making soul groups combined with the star-studded line-up of soul kings Marvin Gaye, and Al Green, and other top artists in blues, jazz, and gospel promise to make the Kansas City KOOL Jazz Festival a highlight of the summer music scene.

called the Human Rights Commission investigation a "witch-hunt", could not be reached for further comment.

Although the council turned down the plea for support, the body did vote to ask a state legislator from Des Moines to request an Iowa attorney general's opinion on the legality of a candidate's backers soliciting absentee ballots from door to door.

Brenda La Blanc, a Human Rights commissioner, said the attorney general's decision is to be expected sometime next week. She added, "The truth will only come out if people keep pressing the issue."

"It has been said that absentee ballot misuse has been a common practice in the past, but that's no reason to let it go on happening. There are laws against this, and they must be enforced," said La Blanc.

There was some confusion over the commission's original intention at Monday's meeting. Councilman Tim Urban told the Bystander that he thought the commission was to "politicize" the election irregularities in favor of Alexander. He added that although he personally sympathized with Alexander, "the council does not have the power to act as an investigative court on the matter."

La Blanc and commission chairperson Nancy Freelan maintained that the commission's sole purpose was to get an appropriate authority, such as a state election commission, to take up the investigation where the Human Rights Commission left off.

Freelan said that she was "disappointed" with the council's "reluctance to provide leadership on this issue."

She also said the commission has sent a letter to State Attorney General Richard Turner explaining the appeal to the city council, and requesting his intervention into the alleged illegalities.

Councilman Urban said his interpretation of the commission's report was that "unethical" practices were laid bare, but not illegal practices as of yet. Because there are no lawyers on the commission, Urban said he made the motion to seek an attorney general's opinion, which will confirm or deny the allegations stemming from use of the absentee ballots.

A Little History A Black Iowan Perspective

By Ruth Ann Gaines

In this Bicentennial year, blacks across the state join together with blacks around the country in heated discussions on how extensively, if at all, we should involve ourselves in the Bicentennial Celebration. Whatever our feelings in regard to the Bicentennial might be, we can increase our black awareness by taking a momentary look at a few of the events in Iowa history that have contributed to the conditions that we experience as black Iowans today.

Officially, slavery never existed in Iowa. Although the area was not part of the American Republic when the Ordinance of 1787 was enacted against slavery in the Northwest Territory, Iowa inherited the benefits of the Ordinance when she joined the Republic through the Louisiana Purchase of 1803. Her future as a free state was largely decided in 1820 when the Missouri Compromise categorically forbade slavery in the Louisiana Purchase north of latitude 36 degrees 30'. This does not mean that there were no black slaves in Iowa. There were many slaves in Iowa during territorial and early statehood days. They were brought in by some of the white traders, government officials and miners, mostly as house servants.

The earliest records of Iowa legislation show discrimination against blacks. The members of the first territorial assembly met at Burlington to draw up a body of laws, they passed a law which virtually prohibited the immigration of free blacks into the territory. Two years later, they expressed their conviction that blacks and whites should be kept separate in the social structure.

When the constitution of 1846 went into effect it did not permit blacks to vote, hold legislative office or serve in the state militia. At the constitutional convention of 1857, it was again agreed upon that blacks be denied suffrage. The suffrage disqualification kept blacks from holding office and serving on juries.

But the 1857 convention did make changes in the bill of rights giving blacks some legal status and a measure of security. A blacks testimony in court was to be considered as good as that of a white person; blacks could not be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; and the right of the accused to a trial by jury was widened to include not only all criminal prosecutions but also cases involving the life or liberty of an individual. This provision applied to fugitive slaves.

In the days shortly after the Civil War, blacks in Iowa were largely employed as laborers, railroad men and miners. During these days until World War I, the social pattern of Iowa blacks was one of isolation from whites. It was not until the beginning of the first World War that Iowa records show that the schools, legislature, polls and militia were open to its blacks.

By 1940, 130 professional and semi-professional blacks were employed in Iowa. The rest fell into the unskilled and semi-skilled laboring class. According to the census of 1950, the black population of Iowa was recorded under 1% of the total population. In 1950, only Polk, Lee, Black Hawk, Scott, Woodbury, Appanouse and Wapello counties had 1% or more black population. The years between 1950 and 1960 saw a large increase in the number of blacks living in Iowa, matched only by the Reconstruction Period.

During the 1960's Iowa's black population faced problems in employment, housing and public situations. The NAACP was a major instrument in getting legislation passed which eased the tension in some of these problem areas.

The creation of several human relations commissions was a positive step made during the 60's, notably those in Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, and Burlington.

Comparable to the national scene, the '60's was the decade in which blacks gained more than in any other single period in Iowa History. In 1964 Iowa devised its fair employment laws to conform closer with the 1964 Civil Rights Act, and also strengthened its antidiscrimination laws in public accommodations.

Today there are nearly 33,000 blacks living in Iowa, actively participating in every phase of society. Problems still exist for black Iowans, especially in the areas of employment, education and housing. Iowa's blacks are becoming increasingly aware of the need to band together in an effort to improve the conditions in their lives, specifically in their own black communities. If for no other purpose, the Bicentennial from an Iowa black perspective can serve as the background needed to motivate us to begin shaping a better future for blacks in this state.

South African System Offers Profitable Advantage To Foreign Industries

By Paula Baker

During the week of June 14th, violence broke out in the largest Black township in South Africa; Soweto. The violence in Soweto resulted in the deaths of over 138 Blacks and the injury of some 1,118 more Black South Africans.

The official reason for the eruption of violence in Sharpeville in 1960 was described as a protest against South African Pass Laws. The reason given for the recent eruption of violence in Soweto was a protest against the enforced use of the Afrikaans language in Black schools. The Black protests against the Pass Laws and the enforced use of the Afrikaans language in Black schools only scratch the surface of the real reason such violence occurs in South Africa.

The white South African government is based on the fear that the White minority will lose control over the Black Majority population. When whites first settled in South Africa they freely interacted with the Black inhabitants of the area, and today mixed-blooded South Africans exist as living proof of the miscegenation of races. Somewhere along the way, it was decided that mixing of the races would weaken the white races mythical "superiority" over the "uncivilized" Blacks.

The White South African government continues to follow policies based on Apartheid. The nature of the system can be revealed by reviewing the following facts about South Africa: 1) the White Boers, of Dutch Descent, are considered the superior class; they call themselves Afrikaners and speak a language made up from the basics of the Dutch and English languages; they have all the highest privileges of living, 2) the English people are also considered to be in the superior class and have all the highest privileges of citizenship; 3) Blacks of mixed-blood are classified as Coloured along with Chinese and Indians; South Africans descended from one of the eight designated African tribes are considered Black Afrikaners and have no privileges as citizens.

Every South African must carry passes that designate what class they belong to, where they are allowed to go, where they are allowed to work. For the Black South Africans the passes mean that, if caught in restricted areas, or caught in certain areas after working hours they can be imprisoned.

Coloured South African citizens are afforded limited control over their own lives and careers, while Blacks are totally controlled by federal laws. Blacks or coloureds are not allowed to own any type of weapons, and are forced to shop for food and essentials in the White cities far away from their designated living areas.

These are only a few of the bizarre facts about the system of oppression in South Africa. But probably even more bizarre than descriptions of oppression, is the reason why such a system exists in the world today. The South African system offers profitable advantages to any corporation situated in South Africa and this may be the reason that the American, British, French, Scandinavian, and European people have not seen that the system comes to an end.

Every world-wide major corporation operates plants and offices in South Africa: GE, Firestone, and General Foods to name a few, American companies which operate there, and which generally receive some type of taxbreak from the American government. The next time you pick up a light bulb, a tire, or a box of corn flakes ... think about it!

National Guard school ended

Nearly 130 Iowa National Guardsmen completed Saturday one of three special training schools conducted by the Iowa Guard's Iowa Military Academy at Camp Dodge.

Forty were commission as second Lieutenants after completing the academy's officer candidate course.

In the second school, forty-three were inducted as plebes and began a year of training in the officer course that will lead them to commission next year.

Forty-three also graduated from the academy's third course, the non-commissioned officer school. This course is designed to provide advanced leadership courses for top enlisted people in the Iowa Guard.

Among those was David A. Barker, Camp Dodge.

For those commissioned as officers, graduation means completion of a year and two annual training periods of training in a series of military orientated training courses ranging from modern weaponry to management and leadership training. The new officers now will be assigned to command posts throughout the state.

For the plebes, the completion of this training is really the beginning of a year's training that will end with their commissioning.

The non-commissioned officers return to their units after completing the intensive military administrative and management program for these top enlisted people who are charged with many of the day-to-day operations of Guard units.

The job you want may be open right now. In your local unit.

UNION BAPTIST CHURCH

MESSIAH TEMPLE

Sunday School started on time with everyone coming in with a prayer on their lips. Our lesson came from the 13th chapter of Romans; where Paul is telling the people their duties toward the State Authorities.

Devotion was lead by our precious Deacon Lewis, reading and praying in the Spirit as always. We are thankful for such a humble deacon. Deacon and Sister Lewis are an asset to the church.

Evangelist Zora Reed sang, "Because He Lives, I Can Face Tomorrow." Then the pastor came and brought a message that was very much needed for today, coming from St. John 3:6, "To Be Born of the Spirit." Everyone needs this experience to see the Kingdom of God.

We have a little four-year old boy, Marcus Lewis, who is a joy to watch as he gives the benediction.

The Book of Acts is taught every Sunday evening at 7:00. The members are now taking turns teaching Acts, because Evangelist Reed is preoccupied.

Sewing class is at 2:00 on Saturday and Prayer meeting is Wednesday at 7:00.

Reverend Jacob Reed, Pastor.

LOOK ON SPORTS

The big flap goes on over the Olympic qualifying games. I still argue that some of the athletes who have proved themselves should be included on the team without the necessity of going through three or four qualifying events and sipping the chances of injury. As it is, the United States will not be able to field its best track team because some of the best are home with injuries sustained while trying to qualify by beating the same field they had been beating all year. This may not be the way it should be, but it is what I think should be.

Our best track men who have proved themselves all year should not have to do it again. I wonder if the Europeans do that. Would they take a fellow who has proved to be the best in his event and tell him that he had to prove it once more? I don't think so.

And as I was arguing about how our athletes don't come up for more than three Olympic meets at the most, along comes this guy Davenport who competes in his fourth meet. Oh well, there has to be an exception every time.

Then there is the argument about athletes from other countries competing in America and then beating us out in the Olympics. Some people think this is wrong. A case can be made for both sides. A fellow should be allowed to compete for his school, no matter where he comes from, because that is the basic principle of college athletics. When there were not very many of those fellows competing, there wasn't much of a fuss about it.

I wonder what would happen if there suddenly developed a whole gang of football players from places that these track stars come from.

I can remember the resentment shown at the kickers who came over here and proceeded to make more money than they had ever made before by kicking a football through a goal post. But then what happened? Some American kickers began to sharpen up with their kicking and now there are quite a few of them kicking a football too. In fact, the best all around Kicker in football today is an American. So it looks as if that will be what we have to do with our track athletes if we want to keep up with the rest of the world.

As for the argument that we are training them to beat us, how many Russians come over here, and you know they are tough in all of the events. They have taken our coaching methods and developed them so they turn out good teams. What would prevent other countries from doing the same?

Americans are always looking for a buck and just any number of them would be glad to show the other fellows how it is done for a price. And with their natural talent, they would still beat us lots of times.

What was it?

Can't help but feel sorry for the people who put out a thousand bucks for ringside seats to see two great big men try so hard to avoid each other in a ring as did

Muhammad Ali and his Japanese opponent whose name I can't pronounce. But according to press reports the Japanese guy simply sat down in the ring and waited for Ali to come to him, and Ali stayed in a corner so he could grab the ropes if the fellow got hold of him.

And that went on for fifteen rounds. They called it a draw and the two fellows split around ten million bucks. The promoters should have lost their shirts if they didn't. Most people expected to see a standup scuffle with each man using what he knew, but that wasn't it.

Won't be long now. Getting the stage set for our Hilltop open meet. I have never figured out why we have to come on so strong as the deadline nears in order to get things under way. We might have a smaller draw because of the Hawkeye tournament being held this time around, but I think we will have close to our usual number of around three hundred.

A fellow asked me the other day why we didn't have more black players in the thing. We would like to have more in it, but we can't drag them in. The entries are open to anyone who wants to get in, and there just aren't many black players doing that. Maybe they don't feel they will have a chance but several black players have won titles in the thing.

In fact for a while it looked as Esther Myers owned the women's singles title.

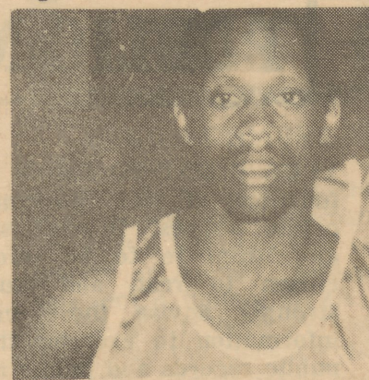

I think that black players have won or finished second in most of the events over the years and that isn't bad when you consider the number of black players who are playing the game and who get in the meet.

And, do you know? I never did get any reason why the picture of Jim Dent was left out of the news media last week. There was a small head shot of him in the evening paper and that was it.

Sort of an afterthought, wouldn't you think? Maybe next time they will do it up right if there is a next time.

Super Star Plays Free

Nate (Tiny) Archibald, easily one of the world's highest-paid athletes, will wear the Lord Calvert uniform in July and August as he plays for free before predominantly minority-group audiences in New York. In the six-team Robert Douglas Pro League, where top stars play for nothing and fans pay no admission, Archibald will lead the Lord Calvert Superstars. Super John Williamson, who with Julius (Dr. J) Erving led the N.Y. Nets to an ABA title, heads the Passport Scots. Harthorne Wingo is one of the Vitalis Groomers strong forwards. Archibald, 1976

Justice N.C. Style: Rev. B. Chavis and Wilmington Ten

by Angela Y. Davis

Rev. Ben Chavis and the Wilmington Ten are facing a total of 276 years in North Carolina's infamous prisons. It seems that this is the price North Carolina is demanding for their participation in organized protests against racism in the schools of that state.

Their 1972 conviction on conspiracy and arson charges was recently affirmed by the Court of Appeals. By June, the case will have reached the North Carolina Supreme Court. If the high court refuses to overturn their conviction and revokes their $500,000 bond, not only their freedom, but their very lives will be in danger.

Rev. Chavis is a twenty-eight year old ordained minister, affiliated with the United Church of Christ. During most of his mature years, he has been a prominent leader in North Carolina's Black movement. Presently he is the field director of the Washington office of the United Church of Christ Commission on Racial Justice and a vice-chairperson of the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression.

In 1971, when the Wilmington incident took place, Rev. Chavis was a field organizer, based in the Raleigh-Durham area, for the Commission for Racial Justice. In February, he was invited by ministers and Black community leaders to assist with the emergency situation in Wilmington, which had developed around a local movement against racism in the high schools.

A year later, Rev. Chavis, eight students and a white woman community worker were indicted. They were charged with arson, conspiracy to assault emergency personnel and criminal responsibility for the damages resulting from the vigilante siege.

The Wilmington Ten indictment was returned in March, 1972. During this time, so many charges were lodged against Rev. Chavis that he now confronts the absurd prospect of a two-hundred year prison term.

He is convinced that without the protests of a strong people's movement, there will be no hope for him, his co-defendants, JoAnn Little or any of the countless victims of injustice in the state of North Carolina.

The National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression is organizing Wilmington Ten Defense Committees throughout the country. For information on how to join this effort, contact the Alliance at 150 Fifth Avenue, Room 804, New York, New York 10011 (212) 243-8555.

CARD OF THANKS

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Carl C. Turner wants to share this thought with you. Perhaps you sent a lovely card or sat quietly on a chair; perhaps you sent a funeral spray, if so, we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words that any friends could say; perhaps you could not come at all, just thought of us that day. Whatever you did to console our hearts, we thank you so much whatever the part.
