Pioneer in Civil Rights Struggle Dies at age 70

Shad Polier, a pioneer figure in the legal struggle for civil rights, died last week in New York at the age of 70.

Mr. Polier, a prominent lawyer and leader of the American Jewish Congress, first became involved in civil rights when the Scottsboro case erupted in 1931. Profoundly disturbed by lynchings which had occurred in his home town of Aiken, South Carolina, while he was a college student, he joined the defense team in the famous case of the Scottsboro Boys - nine Blacks sentenced to death on charges of raping two white girls in Alabama.

Mr. Polier argued this landmark case twice before the Supreme Court, and won reversals on grounds that the defendants did not have adequate counsel when they were first tried and that Blacks had been deliberately excluded from the jury.

In 1945, at the request of his father-in-law Stephen S. Wise, founder of the American Jewish Congress, Mr. Polier reorganized the legal action programs of the Congress and founded its Commission on Law and Social Action. This Commission conducted the legal battles of the American Jewish Congress against anti-Semitism, discrimination, segregation, racism, and every form of prejudice.

In 1948, Mr. Polier personally brought suit against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, charging that the firm's Stuyvesant Town Development in New York City was guilty of discriminatory practices in not admitting Blacks. That suit, and a legislative drive by the American Jewish Congress that followed, eventually led to fair housing laws in New York and the nation.

In addition to holding various positions of leadership in the American Jewish Congress, Mr. Polier also served on the executive committee of the NAACP Legal and Educational Defense Fund, and as trial counsel for the National Labor Relations Board.

Mr. Polier also wrote and edited a weekly bulletin on civil rights and liberties put out by the American Jewish Congress.

Maude White, former Division Director of Affirmative Action for the Iowa Civil Rights Commission, was fired recently for "insubordination" by ex-commission Director Joseph Tate. Tate's decision was made on his last day as head of the commission.

Tate and several others have claimed he was railroaded out of his job because he is Black. However, White, a Black woman, says, "The firing was not based on race."

Saying that she was "shocked" upon reading the termination notice that was hand delivered by commission staff lawyers late afternoon on June 30, White said she had been receiving "extreme harassment" from Tate during the past year to pressure her to resign as affirmative action director.

White said it was her understanding that Tate decide to fire her "in a fit of anger." She believed the last minute ouster may have stemmed from the fact that she did not sign a petition supporting Tate in his bid to remain Commission director. Tate could not be reached for comment.

Although hired in 1973, White received no evaluation until after her termination in July of this year, yet she had received periodic raises and had also been promoted.

Also, despite the insubordination charge, White contends that she has no idea of the specific reasons for her dismissal

President Ford Accused of Out-wallacing Wallace

Roy Wilkins, Executive Director of NAACP charged President Ford with "out-Wallacing Gov. Wallace" in his repeated attacks on court ordered busing to desegregate public schools.

Responding to what he felt was strongly racist statements by the President's chief council, Philip W. Buchen, Wilkins said that the President was deliberately undermining civil rights laws and court orders to enforce those laws.

In the New York Times story, Buchen was quoted as saying that Ford "really dislikes busing as a remedy" because he felt that "it is now causing more problems than it solves."

Buchen was also quoted as saying, that blacks would not particularly be interested in an "intergrated atmosphere" if they could be assured of living in a "good atmosphere."

The New York Times story, which was written by Philip Shabecoff, said the Ford's position on desegregation "should have come as a surprise to no one" because of the President's past stands as a Michigan Congressman.

The following is the text of Wilkins' statement;

Assuming you were correctly quoted in today's New York Times by Philip Shabecoff, I submit the following response: Whether President Ford intended to or not in his quest for the Presidential nomination he has emerged as out-Wallacing (Gov.) Wallace as one who would turn back the clock of civil rights. The only difference between Candidate Ford and Wallace is that Wallace would stop the civil rights program before legislation is passed; while President Ford presently undermines deliberately present civil rights laws and court decisions by preventing

Operating In A War Zone Is Dangerous

Thinking of those people who are shedding tears because the government of Angola tried, convicted and executed some of the mercenaries who came over to fight against the forces of the present government, I am reminded of an incident when my mother was asked to make a contribution to help pay the debts of the then president of the National Baptist Convention who was killed in an accident enroute to make a speech at a Republican rally. An usher reminded her that the minister died in the service of the Lord but she disagreed and said "he was up in the air looking for money."

Those mercenaries from America went to Angola to fight for pay. They must have known the risk they took on the battlefield whether carrying a gun or delivering some food to the mess hall. These men were in the war zone serving on one side of the conflict and good sense knows that the directions bullets go strike in different direction.

(Since the trial the man who recruited these mercenaries stated that they were in Angola five or six weeks and took an active part in the conflict. He waited until the trial was over to correct the statements of the defense stating that they were in Angola only four or five days and took no part in the conflict.)

Sure I am sorry for the members of the family of these men. Their grief is great but it did not come while these men were making money.

I am fully in accord with reasonable efforts to settle the problems of the newly activated governments in Africa. I am interested in securing peace in the Middle East. But all governments must cooperate with each other but with an even hand and not all the goodies on one side.

Apparently, all sides are doing things that are against the best interest of each other. But I do not support those people here and abroad who refuse to abide by the rules they have made and yet are glorified by us when they break them.

Representative Jordan Electrifies Democratic Convention

Representative Barbara Jordan, Democrat of Texas, the first Negro to address the Democrat convention as a keynote speaker, did a commendable job Monday night.

A lawyer, she has worked her way through the political ranks up to that as a member of congress and generally has acquitted herself very well.

Representative Jordan dealt heavily upon the moral, spiritual and economic conditions of the country and pledged that the party would reverse this trend.

She did not dwell on personalities or any section of the country or the ills we suffer. Possibly, because we are all in it together. She did, however, challenge elected officers to carry out their responsibilities to the public and stand as examples for young people to follow.

Possibly the most potent statement was a criticism of the attitude that is being built up in America which polarized groups, that work for their own interest at all times even though it may not be for the good of the country or that of varying groups. This, she said, weakens the whole structure of the country and keeps the public in turmoil from day to day.

Representative Jordan drew thunderous applause that any politician would welcome even though she is not a candidate for any office that the convention has to offer.

This Conduct Hurts The Civil Rights Commission

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission has gotten off to a bad start by slapping the face of its new director and by discharging an employee without notice or without a right to be heard at the time it was done.

Conduct of this kind is bound to keep the Commission in an uproar that negatives good work and smacks at a desire to make a farce out of the Commission.

JORDAN RECEIVES THUNDEROUS APPLAUSE AT CONVENTION

by Vance Hawthorne

If you happened to doze off during last Monday's opening session of the 1976 Democratic National Convention amongst the series of dull and repetitious speeches, all you missed was a bit of history.

Barbara Jordan electrified and hypnotized a restless, milling convention crowd as well as millions of television viewers nationwide with a stirring performance of verbal excellence in the first keynote address ever by a Black American.

On this night, all the party celebrities and power brokers had to take a back seat to this young Black U.S. Representative from Texas. The speech had to be comparable to Frederick Douglass' infamous speech to Congress in the mid-1800's as far as impact goes.

Jordan's speech (when she was finally allowed a chance to speak after a spontaneous, genuine and thunderous ovation that lasted nearly 10 minutes) presented a stiff challenge to the Democratic Party and this nation to uphold the ideals it has claimed to have stood for.

Opening her remarks with a reference to Langston Hughes' classic poem "A Dream Deferred," Jordan told the crowd, "More is required of us than slogans, handshakes and press releases. We must hold ourselves accountable."

Black Analysis

Perhaps she was dropping a subtle reminder to the Democrat's 1976 nominee Jimmy Carter, who has promised never to tell a lie. He also has pledged to name Blacks to posts in his cabinet and other high-ranking positions in a Carter Administration if he is elected president.

Many felt that Jordan herself was more than deserving of a vice-presidential slot if not a spur-of-the-moment choice for the top spot on the ticket after the memorable speech.

But that was mere wishful thinking resulting from a temporary high that was triggered by Jordan's eloquent message. Another place, another time, maybe.

Even as her address was being played down by the television networks, nothing could erase the picture of natural leadership Jordan displayed.

Whatever the future holds in store for Congresswoman Jordan, however held in check by age-old prejudices and snobby chauvinistic attitudes; and no matter what the history books record about the "Carterized" 1976 Democratic Convention — it will be best remembered in the hearts and minds of many as a proud, historic moment for a Black woman from Houston, Texas.

Census Bureau to take Employment Survey here

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the work week of July 19-24. Rex L. Pullin, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Kansas City, announced today.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 70,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the Nation.

For example, in May the survey indicated that of the 94.6 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 87.7 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 7.3 percent, down from 7.5 percent in April and substantially below the recession peak of 8.9 percent reached in the second quarter of 1975.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

The interviewer who will visit households in this area is: Frances Warner, 754-34th St., West Des Moines, Ia. 50265.

N. Carolina Inmate Dies

A Scotland County Correctional Center inmate, 29 year old William McLaughlin, died after unsuccessfully seeking medical attention for pains of the chest and stomach.

McLaughlin was allowed to see the unit physician, Dr. Womble, only after he had filed a grievance complaint.

Dr. Womble had refused at that time to transfer him to a prison hospital for diagnosis and treatment. Four days afterward William McLaughlin collapsed and was finally removed to Central prison. He was pronounced dead at 9:30 that evening.

Dr. Helen Othow, co-chairperson of the North Carolina Alliance and sister to Rev. Ben Chavis, one of the Wilmington Tenn. defendants, urged public attention focused on the situation at Wagram, calling for a public inquiry into the death of the inmate and into the medical care of inmates at Wagram.

The unit physician for the prison is available one day per week and then only available to inmates who have been able to sign up in advance of the scheduled visiting hours. It is reported that physicians are sometimes available as infrequently as once a month. A march for Human Rights and Labor Rights on Labor Day, September 6, is scheduled to be held in Raleigh. It is hoped that the March will bring together thousands of North Carolinians and concerned individuals and organizations from across the country in a peoples campaign to halt the "barbaric" conditions found within the prison systems throughout North Carolina.

Calls for full Political Participation in South

Atlanta, Georgia—Governors of ten southern states have issued Proclamations designating "Voter Registration Month" and urging all unregistered persons of voting age in the South to register and vote in this Bicentennial Year, according to the non partisan Voter Education Project (VEP).

"The call for full political participation by ten southern governors is an unprecedented expression of leadership which we hope will have a positive effect throughout the region," commented John Lewis, executive director of the Voter Education Project, the regional organization which initiated the activity. "Our greatest task now lies in the implementation of the Proclamation at the local level."

Lewis noted that the southwide call was a "unanimous expression of concern" on the part of the seven Democratic and three Republican governors. Included in this action were: George Wallace (D) Alabama; David Pryor (D(D), Arkansas; Reubin O'D. Askew (D), Florida; George Busbee (D), Georgia; Edwin Edwards (D), Louisiana; James Holhouser (R), North Carolina; James B. Edwards (R), South Carolina; Ray Blanton (D), Tennessee; Dolph Brsicoe (D), Texas; and Mills E. Godwin (R), Commonwealth of Virginia. No proclamation was received from Governor Clifton Finch (D) of Mississippi.

Although each of the ten Proclamations differ slightly in wording and emphasis, all recognize the need for registration as an affirmation of the principles of democracy celebrated in this Bicentennial Year, according to a VEP representative. Each Proclamation noted the fact that the national mood of voter apathy and declining rates of voter turnout were serious problems in need of remedy. The month of July, 1976 was designated as "Voter Registration Month" in eight of the ten southern states. Georgia and Texas had earlier proclaimed "Voter Registration Month" in their respective states.

The Voter Education Project (VEP) is based in Atlanta, Georgia and operates programs of voter registration, citizenship education, technical assistance, and research of minority politics throughout the South. VEP's nonpartisan programs are supported by tax-exempt contributions from foundations, unions, businesses, religious organizations, and individuals.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA PLEDGES HALF MILLION

Alpha Kappa Alpha, the oldest Black-oriented sorority of college-trained women, has pledged a half million dollars to the United Negro College Fund.

The first $100,000 will be presented at the sorority's 47th national convention at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York City from July 18-22. The $400,000 balance will be presented during the next four consecutive years in payments of $100,000 each. Miss Bernice I. Sumlin, Dayton, Ohio, national president of the 70,000 member organization, said, "The financial condition of Black colleges and universities is at an all-time low."

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority believes in the promotion and preservation of our educational heritage; therefore, this gift is timely and necessary to keep open the doors of our Black educational institutions."

Citizen Citizens Patrol Blocked by Minneapolis Officials

Officials of Minneapolis, Minn. have recently come under fire when they blocked the efforts of organizations from the predominately black northside to organize citizens patrols in the face of increasing "terrorism, vandalism and racist hate campaigns" that have beleaguered the city for many weeks.

The most recent act in blocking the citizens organizations was Mayor Charles Stenvig's veto of the Minneapolis city councils proposal to give city aid to the patrols by providing gasoline for the patrol vehicles.

Spokesmen for the social organizations remained confident that they could overcome these obstacles and were continuing with their plans to organize the patrol.

"In this year of the Bicentennial," Paul Lorman a representative of one of the community organizations involved in the patrols commented, "it seems strange that what Governor Anderson alluded to in his July Fourth speech as justice and liberty for all of our citizens and not for just some of our citizens, is not a reality here, and that our Minneapolis officials have not come to grips with this fact, but are perpetuating the status quo through benign neglect."

Residents had complained that the only arrest in connection with the wave of disorders were said to be of persons from one of the organizations involved in planning the citizens patrol who were reported to have chased others with baseball bats.

The action, said one northsider, was not a patrol matter. "We don't even have a patrol."

Social agencies often respond to appeals for help from residents who are being threatened or harrassed, which was the case in this instance, as the police are "obviously" reluctant to respond to such calls. A Minneapolis paper reported that, "the incident is thought to be one reason why the police department" declined to enforce northside citizens patrols.

Police Chief Johnson remarked that the decision not support the citizens patrols had been made before the incident had occurred. Seemingly at odds with the Police Chief, the Mayor of Minneapolis was quoted as saying that he would not support the transfer of police duties to "unsworn personnel."

Chief Johnson said that the department does not oppose private citizens patrols, but opposes only official endorsement of them.

"People have a right to organize and check their own neighborhoods," Johnson commented.

The Police Chief denied the reports of increasing disorder on the predominately black northside. Remarking that the only incident was the shooting up of four cars in one night. No arrests had been made in connection with the shootings.

Business in the Black

By Charles E. Belle

NASHVILLE — Black people make up over a third of the population of the state of Tennessee. Until recently they were unable to reduce the raspy joblessness among their numbers. But since the bouyant Honorable Ray Blanton has been Governor, the number of blacks in high state positions has at least doubled in the first two years of his administration. There is more to come.

The governor gave a gala gathering which attracted 101 United Nations ambassadors to sample southern hospitality Tennessee style.

This was the first time the United Nations entire body had met outside of New York in U. N. history. Tennessee was not to be out done by this auspicious occasion. The Grand Ole Opry, which has been on the radio air wave for 50 consecutive years every Saturday night, broke tradition and brought out the talent for the Monday night visit of the UN to Tennessee.

Governor Blanton and the businessmen committee for the affair got good moral support from Isaac Hayes, regional chairman of the committee. The program was to put Tennessee's face before the international community for the purpose of commerce.

Mr. Hayes, who was present along with two of Tennessee's 16 black assembly persons, was convinced, as was the Governor, that the visit would lead to an increase in international trade and employment for the people of Tennessee.

The UN which was represented by Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and U.S. ambassador William Scanton, former governor of Pennsylvania, was actually returning to its roots for the visit.

The late Secretary of State Cordell Hull was one of the original founders of the U.N. A Tennessee native who received a nobel peace prize for his efforts in the establishment of the United Nations.

Nobody gave the late W. C. Handy, the father of the Blues a note for his Beale Street Blues or St. Louis Blues which he wrote, or even mentioned Meharry Medical School during the U.N., visit.

Governor Blanton did give me the key to keeping blacks happy in Tennessee. His Honor said, "For every 100 jobs we get in Tennessee, that means 20 jobs for blacks." The black state official on the trip claimed you can check that with Ray Mills, Tennessee's state Affirmative Action Officer.

Then when I heard the much heralded Charley Pride sing at the Grand Ole Opry, I knew why so many people in Tennessee are proud of their state. They got a program for putting blacks and whites on the payroll. (NNPA)

Potentially Lethal Gas Found in Cigarettes

Vinyl chloride, a colorless, potentially lethal gas used to produce plastics, has been discovered in cigarette smoke.

Although the gas was thought to be exclusively man-made and created deliberately for manufacturing purposes, the fact that it has been found in a natural plant such as tobacco raises the possibility that the gas may also be breathed into the lungs when other plant materials are burned.

The most important deliberate use of vinyl chloride is in the manufacture of polyvinyl chloride, which is the basis of widely used plastic products such as phonograph records, toys, upholstery coverings, and meat wrappers. Polyvinyl chloride was used briefly to make plastic containers for alcoholic beverages until amounts of vinyl chloride were found which had seeped from the containers into the beverages.

The production of vinyl chloride and polyvinyl chloride, a post World War II phenomenon, has been growing for the last 20 years. Not until the 1970's was it discovered that long-term occupational exposure to the substances could cause a rare and almost inevitably fatal form of cancer of the liver. In 1974, the federal government set standards for use of the gas.

125 Attend McDonald Family Reunion in D. M.

In one of the most memorable and meaningful events of the summer, a Family Reunion was held the weekend of July 4 here in the city.

The majority of the McDonald Family were Des Moinesites. The reunion was represented by the West and East coasts, the South, North, and Midwest.

The event began in January of 1976, when Alma Morris called the members of the family in the city together for an informal meeting for the purpose of deciding in a Family Reunion.

One reason for having the reunion was in memory of the deceased members of the family. (From a family of 12 (8 girls and 4 boys) the only two surviving members of the McDonald Family are Ethel Baxter, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Marshall McDonald of Sacramento, California). The group liked Mrs. Morris' idea, and thus, the first McDonald Family reunion — held in our fair city — was on its way. As time went on, the anticipation and enthusiasm grew making this event more fun.

A brief resume of the activities for this event follows:

Friday evening, July 2: found out-of-town relatives coming in the city via plane, bus, and automobiles — and in-town relatives meeting, and fellowshiping with relatives known and unknown.

Saturday July 3: Out-of-town guests were the guests of the Des Moines residents to breakfast, dinner, and snacks at the home of one of the local family members;

Saturday evening, same day: with the complete family gathered — dressed in party attire, an evening of fun and games was held at the Model Cities Senior Citizens Building where prizes were distributed for the youngest, oldest, and family member who came the farthest distance.

Sunday morning July 4: the family — of approximately 120 people — gathered and sit in a body to enjoy the services held at the Corinthian Baptist Church by Pastor, Rev. Frederick W. Strickland; the family was very impressed with the services; after church, a caravan of family members journeyed to one of Iowa's most beautiful State Parks-Jester Park, where they enjoyed a catered picnic dinner.

On Monday July 5: the family gathered at Des Moines Greenwood Park for a farewell picnic, and the planning of another such event to be held in two years in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Extended courtesies were shown the visitors.

Unicef Senior Officer Speaks at YWCA

An Investment of 15c will prevent Vitamin A Deficiency Blindness.

That was one of many attention grabbing facts given by Dave Burgess, Senior Officer of the United Nations Children's Fund, better known as UNICEF when he visited Des Moines last Friday, making a short appearance on the Mary Brubaker Show and then speaking to a small group of Church Women United members at the YWCA.

With the world population topping 4 billion as of March of this year the problem of World Hunger looms ever larger, and the question of "What Can We Do About World Hunger?" must be faced and solutions sought.

Unicef has a unique approach to the problem. It deals not in cash but in training and equipment. Of the budget in the field 1/3 of the money goes into the training of local people and 2/3s into the purchase of local equipment. Unicef brings Literacy, Nutrition and Hope. Literacy is not just the ability to read and write, but the ability to measure, count, follow directions, so you can grow food and not get cheated.

The most important training provided by Unicef involves the teaching of basic hygiene and sanitation and nutrition overcoming in the process all sorts of mythology. You can imagine the problems of sanitation when you realize that only 75% of the villages have a source of pure water and one of Unicef's most important jobs in helping to bring pure water to the other 25%.

Unicef puts the emphasis on children. In some developing countries 50% of the citizens are 16 or less and these presently dependent children hold the key to any nation's future.

Consider that malnutrition before the seventh year causes irreversible damage to the body, brain and eyes. One Vitamin A Capsule every six months until the age of seven will prevent that blindness at a total cost of 15c.

Unicef is supported by voluntary contributions from 130 countries. 103 countries receive aid from Unicef and for each dollar received put up $2.50 worth of equipment and personnel. Individuals may contribute by the purchase of Unicef cards and stationery. In Des Moines Carmen Kinker, 1718 45th 277-7466 and Roma Colton, 902 East Sheridan 262-5244 have a supply on hand and will welcome your patronage. For more information call Gladys Burkhead, 255-6666 Unicef Chairman for Des Moines Area Religious Council.

Burlington

A surprise Birthday Party was held this bicentennial year, Saturday July 3, 1976 for Mrs. Leala Bland, Rock Island, Illinois. The celebration was held at the home of Ms. Ida Bland, Rock Island and was hosted by Joni and Doni Bland and Renee Turner. Leala is 75 years old.

There were 32 present which included her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Her very special friend Carrie Rummels joined Leala in the celebration. Mrs. Bland's granddaughter, Sheila McKinley from Maywood, Ill. also came down for the celebration.

After playing games, refreshments were served and Leala opened up the many gifts she was showered with. These gifts included jewelry, money, pajamas, hose, placemats, candy and many lovely cards.

Jerry Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Edwards, Davenport, is home on leave from Seattle, Washington. Jerry will be here until July 12. Jerry is serving in the Military Police section of the Armed Forces.

On June 13, the St. James A.M.E. Church of Burlington observed its Men's Day Program with a recital by Mr. Williams. Mr. Williams' Burlington Recital included duets with Mr. Shardrick Boone in arrangements by the O'Neal twins, James Cleveland and Andrae Crouch. Mr. Boone is Director of Music at Clinton's Second Baptist Church.

After the recital, Rev. and Mrs. Willard Luttrell gave a dinner reception for Mr. Williams and Mr. Boone in their home.

On June 11, the Layman's Organization of Bethel

A.M.E. Church presented Raleigh Williams, Baritone, in recital. Mr. Williams came to Clinton from Lakeland, Florida where he studied with New York City Opera Mezzo, Beverly Wolff. Mr. Williams received under graduate degrees in music from Florida S and M and Florida State University, and a Master of Music Degree from the University of South Florida, where he studied with Everett Anderson.

The recital given by Mr. Williams was varied and unusual as his program included selections from opera, European Art songs and all forms of Afro-American Music. The last section of the recital program was a group of contemporary gospel songs in which the audience and church choir participated.

Raleigh is now a member of Bethel S.M.E. Church and is Director of Music.

Clinton's Bethel A.M.E. Church will present its choir in an afternoon concert of Gospel music, Spirituals and Black poetry in tribute to Richard Allen and the African Methodist Episcopal Church in America as a Bicentennial offering. Rev. Nick Penny, pastor of Bethel, will provide narration and historical readings on Richard Allen and the S.M.E. Church, as well as selected readings by James Weldon Johnson and Paul F. Dunbar.

The choir under the direction of Ms. Elizabeth Fisher and Raleigh Williams will be accompanied by a vocal percussion and string ensemble.

The program will also feature Mr. Shardrick Boone, tenor, of Lakeland, Florida, who is presently studying voice at Talladega College, Talladega, Alabama. The event will take place on July 25 at 5:30 p.m.

Links Tackle wide Range of Problems

Elliot Richardson to Speak
An ambitious new program to put more black women into business and to develop their leadership potentials will be explored when one of the nation's leading black women's organizations meets in Seattle, Washington, July 13-17.

The Links, Inc., an organization consisting of prominent, professional and civically-active women, will gather at the Washington Plaza Hotel in Seattle for their 20th National Assembly Meeting.

Where the modern woman is heading, the business opportunities for minority women and how best to channel young people constructively will be topics high on the agenda for the 750 persons attending.

Prominent figures who will take part in panels, address the meetings or speak at luncheons will include Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, Vernon E. Jordan, Jr., of the National Urban League, Christopher F. Edley of the United Negro College Fund and Mrs. Margaret Bush Wilson, Chairman of the NAACP Board of Directors.

Mrs. Pauline A. Ellison, of Arlington, Va., National President of The Links, will preside at the sessions. Working meetings will be held mornings and afternoons, with guest speakers at special luncheon gatherings.

During the Assembly, The Links will also make a presentation of a check for at least $100,000 to the United Negro College Fund, their prime charity during the past two years.

WILLKIE HOUSE INC.

Dyanne Webster, Willkie House Drama Coordinator, will be presenting a impromptu play based on the adaptation of "Tell Pharaoh" by Lofton Mitchell. The play will be presented Sunday, July 18, at 6:30 p.m. in Good Park. It is just one of the features in the "Art in the Park Festival" to begin at 1:00 p.m. that afternoon.

The participants will be exhibiting a chronological perspective of Black peoples plight from Africa to America and some events leading up to today.

"because I have never seen my personnel file." Federal laws state that employees cannot be denied access to their personal records.

White had obtained counsel and is appealing the decision. She said she expects to hear something within the next 30 days.

"There are some basic problems in terms of civil rights within the commission itself that should be looked into," said White. She did not wish to elaborate on the details "at this time."

White says she was not the only recipient of pressure from Tate. "The four other professional members on the staff suffered from his harassment, and they all resigned—one by one," said White. The four did not sign the petition in support of Tate, either.

White said that she had developed a file on Tate's alleged intimidation and presented it to the commission's staff layer. Tate was well aware of the report according to White.

White says that Tate was trying to paint her as "incompetent." She insists there is no basis for the charge.

Upon being appointed the state's first affirmative action director ever in February of 1973, White said she designed a system for Iowa Employers which, she feels, if adequately implemented, would greatly cut down job discrimination.

The ex-Division Director said she frequently worked 12 hour days and often brought work home to do. She has taken no vacations in her three-and-one-half years as chief EEO officer and has worked holidays and weekends "to help make an honest showing for the commission," said White.

Her duties were to "provide technical assistance, spelling out all policies and procedures to Civil Rights Commission employees, instructing them on how not to discriminate in employment practices," White said. She also filed a comprehensive report to the governor each year.

White, who is also president of the Des Moines Chapter of the NAACP, said Tate's "vendetta" against her extended into public meetings of the NAACP. She says she was "continually harassed" by Tate and said he once attempted to get a move started to unseat her as head of the chapter.

"Philosophy and Sex" Offered as Drake Mini - Course

Kirkpatrick is Black Presidential Candidate

Former leader of Deacons for Defense, Frederick Douglass Kirkpatrick, is the National Black Assembly's 1976 Presidential candidate.

The Assembly said it hoped to get Rev. Frederick Douglass Kirkpatrick on the ballot in six states and the District of Columbia.

During the Assembly's third national convention, held last March in Cincinnati, efforts were made to draft U.S. Rep. Ronald Dellums (D-Cal) and Georgia State Sen. Julian Bond as the Assembly's Presidential candidates.

While expressing sympathy with the Assembly's goal of making an "impact from the left" on Democratic and Republican Parties, both Dellums and Bond declined the nomination. Before Kirkpatrick's recent selection, several noted Blacks were mentioned as possible nominees, including civil rights activist Dick Gregory, Gary Mayor Richard Hatcher, and U.S. Rep. John Conyer (D-Mich).

The National Black Assembly is the organization which grew out of the first National Black Political Convention, held in Gary in 1972.

We reject as preposterous the idea advanced by President Ford that if free to live where they choose blacks would not prefer an integrated atmosphere or area. The ghettos in which blacks have been contained were not self-imposed but resulted from deliberate government policies which Mr. Ford would reinforce. Mr. Ford has raised the greatest confusion over the phony issue of busing of school children to eliminate unconstitutional segregation, which is far from an equal education required by the Brown opinion. Although the President wisely corrected the idea that he condemned Brown, he nevertheless undermines its principles by attacking the remedies needed to give it meaning.

The backsliders and interpreters are having their day contested every foot of the way by those who believe differently. We don't expect that the President of the United States would take sides. After all the people, conservatives and liberals alike. We still ask, "Why did this issue of busing arise now?" A denial has come from the White House but that is no answer.

The East University Church is on the move for God. We were glad to have our pastor to return from North Carolina, where God used him in a great way in one of the greatest revivals that he has ever conducted.

On Sunday morning our pastor fed us from the word of God from Joshua 24: 13. His subject was "Making a choice." Oh how we enjoyed the words from the Lord. Bodies were heal and blessed. When our pastor pray's for you, you can look for what you asked God for and get it!

On Sunday night we had a visiting pastor from Jamaica, and he really did preach. God used him to heal the sick. Rev. H. Nicholson is a man of God and the pastor of the Ebenezer Church in

ALLEN ASHBY with a LOOK ON SPORTS

When I sat down at this desk, I was as mad as a beaver on a flat prairie. Those varmints in the city recreation department had told us that we didn't have a date for our 28th annual Hilltop Open tennis meet. The dates had been published in the daily papers in March along with all of the other state meets, and came out on just about everything that came out of the Missouri Valley news and Iowa Tennis Association news. So, how come? The man said there had been a breakdown in communications and he had us for the wrong date which conflicted with the Iowa Open meet in Cedar Rapids. It seems that the recreation people had scheduled the city playground meet on what we thought was our date. To say I was mad was putting it mildly.

The three of us, Chet Williamson, Cecil Brewton and I met for a while Sunday and we had no good words for the boys downtown. But, after all the cussin and fussin was over, we were faced with two alternatives. Try for another date or call the whole thing off.

As I wandered around town Monday morning, I met about a dozen white people who had heard of our problem. I explained to them what our choices were. And, do you know, that to a person, they said, "For God's sake, don't cancel it." That took away some of my bitterness, and I thought that if I could get the date we had agreed on in our meeting, things might not be so bad after all. Then I could think clearly.

And it all came down to the director's meeting in Iowa City in November. There we were given the reasons why the president wanted us to move our meets back one week.

The Hawkeye had reentered the picture and there were a couple of other meets that were new on the scene. Everybody agreed, so I, wanting to be cooperative, went along with the program.

Now, if I had stood my ground, and refused to change our dates, I might have been able to get the rest of the people to see the light. So, if I had been stubborn, the vacuum would not have been there for anybody to step into. And, technically, they were right. We had no substantiation for the dates of August 3 through 8th.

So, I talked it over with the proper folks and drew up a letter stating that we wanted the dates of August 17 through the 22, and was assured of them.

In spite of the fact that Chet is still breathing fire, and Cecil wants to slice someone's head off, I am not mad now, just glad that we came out of it with a chance to have a good draw. Maybe I am too easy, do you think?

Norton Better Shape Up

I watched Kenny Norton punch out a fellow in ten rounds last week in what he described as a tuneup for the champion, Muhammad Ali. As I watched him on the tube, I thought he was hardly fast enough to have much luck with the champ, unless Ali has gone back a lot. Maybe he will show more in September, and he better unless he wants lumps on his head.

Then, according to the champ, comes George Foreman and that is that. This Foreman guy isn't too fast, but he is big and strong, and can hit a man in the seat of the pants and kayo him, so Ali better not get one bit careless or there will be a new champion.

People We Meet

I was walking out of a place the other day when I heard my name called. I looked around, and wasn't sure I knew the fellow. He asked if I remembered him. My reply was, "Of course, Who are you?"

It turned out that he was Moe Shackleford who was a pretty fair Golden Gloves boxer in the days when you had to be tough to make the team. Moe was good, but he was travelin' in the company of about a dozen fine fighters who later did well as pros. He was a light heavyweight and the guy he had to beat was just about the best light heavy who ever boxed around these parts. Went to Chicago and drew raves in the Marigold Gardens, so you know he had it.

If he had gotten down to a middleweight, he would have had to get past the guy I called one of the finest boxers pound for pound I ever saw around here, Charley Boston who was about the only pipe smoking tennis player I ever saw, also.

But it was good to see the fellow again, and it brought the days when fellows like him and ones I have mentioned, along with Ozzie Lewis and Morton Graves used to love to train, and a few older fools like I was used to enjoy scuffling with them. Fun? then, yes.

IMPORTANT ASPIRIN SUBSTITUTE

A drug prescribed for treatment of pain from Arthritis may be the first non-narcotic candidate to replace aspirin as a pain reliever for toothaches and dental surgery, according to a study at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

"Researchers are looking for more non-narcotics that would be better analgesics (pain relievers) than aspirin, and from our recent study Ibuprofen appears to be such a drug," said Dr. Stephen Cooper in a study released recently.

Ibuprofen, known by its brand name Motrin, could be the first non-narcotic that is as safe or safer than aspirin that it also more effective, Dr. Cooper explained.

Aspirin is believed to be the most frequently used pain reliever. Dr. Cooper said aspirin also is commonly recognized as the most effective non-narcotic pain reliever on the market. Motrin is an anti-inflammatory drug like aspirin. It was marketed recently as a nonsteroidal agent for arthritis. Dr. Cooper and his associate in the study, Dr. Stephen Needle, said "Ibuprofen was shown to be significantly more effective than aspirin and its higher level of pain relief lasted for a longer time." S. B. A. Assisting Women in Business

Kansas City— Today, more women than ever are going into business. The U.S. Small Business Administration, as the nation's advocate for the ten million small business owners, provides assistance for those planning to go into business as well as existing business owners.

One such example of SBA's full range of services leveraged for the small business community is the "Women In Business Forum," a national pilot project scheduled for Thursday, July 15, 1976, at the Trade Mart (the former Municipal Airport site) in Kansas City, Missouri.

This dynamic forum will provide attendees with a unique opportunity to obtain up-to-date business assistance, gain information from leading experts in their respective business fields on how to start and stay in business, and will feature a nationally-recognized keynote speaker at the luncheon. The $12.50 registration fee (15 at the door) will include admission to all activities, forums, and the luncheon.

Other federal agencies participating, either on panels or one-on-one counseling sessions, include: the Department of Commerce, the Department of Labor, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Federal Energy Administration, Environmental Protection Agency, General Services Administration, and the Internal Revenue Service.

SBA in developing the program has compiled a series of "how-to-do-it" topics highlighting the most frequently asked issues by potential and existing women in business. Topics include: Tax Information For Your Business; Available Employment Assistance Programs; How to Sell to the Federal Government; How Exporting Can Be Profitable for your Business; What Federal Agencies Affect your Business; New Ideas in Financial Management; How Businesses Succeed; What is Cash Flow; Protecting Your Business From Crime; How to Develop Adequate Capital For Your Business; Positive Attitudes in Business; Going Into Business, Is It Worth It.

For more information, contact: "Women In Business Forum," Small Business Administration, 911 Walnut, Rm 2300, Kansas City, Missouri 64106; or phone (816) 374-5288 or (816) 374-5311.

Potential or existing women in business may register by sending their check for $12.50 to: "Women In Business Forum," Women in Business Registrar, P.O. Box 15263, Kansas City, Missouri 64106.

Southern Illinois U. Compiles Anthology of Black Music

Washington, D.C. — Growing interest in musical compositions by black Americans has created a need for a critical anthology devoted to this large body of work. The National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) is helping to fill the need with a grant of $93,666 to southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

The grant will enable Dr. Samuel A. Floyd, Jr. of the music department at Southern Illinois to prepare a six-volume collection of musical compositions by black American composers, spanning the years 1750 through 1975. When the anthology is completed, students of black American music and American music in general will have a valuable reference and study tool.

The six-volume anthology will contain popular and religious sheet music; opera, oratorio and choral music; instrumental solos; chamber music; music in the jazz idiom; and symphonic and band music. Each volume will include commentary on the musical scores in the form of short statements of biographical, historical, and cultural interest, followed by a short musical analysis.

Drive Safely

Proclaiming July as American Bicentennial Safer Driving Month, Governor Robert D. Ray emphasized the importance of complying with the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit.

"The first year of the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit saved twice as many lives nationwide as the total number of Americans killed in the Revolution," Ray said.

He added that the month of July is likely to see the heaviest travel of any month in the last several years because of all the Bicentennial observances scheduled for the month.
