Artist Jimmy Payne Directs Gateway Dancers

Guest artist, Jimmy Payne arrived last weekend to conduct classes with the Gateway Dance Theatre.

Dancers of varying experience and ability were unanimous in their enthusiasm and praise of

Mr. Payne's gentle direction and encouragement. The complexities of African and Afro-Cuban dances became clear under the expert direction of their instructor. Hard work was a pleasure and a challenge.

It is Mr. Payne's long list of credits that attract attention to his age. He was born in Panama of Cuban and West Indian parentage, educated in the West Indies and at New York City College. He conducts a school of African and Calypso dance as well as jazz and tap dancing.

Mr. Payne choreographed and directed for ten years the Herod's Court sequence in the Chicago Passion Play produced by Willard Saunders Jones. Mr. Payne is at present working on a religious production entitled Jubilation with sixteen dancers and four singing groups. Spiritual and gospel songs are accompanied by African drums.

On the subject of ethnic focus, Mr. Payne explained, "Ethnic is limiting to a certain life style which can be destructive if you do not concern yourself with other people's culture. Dance and music are universal".

Abdul Khaalis Charged With Kidnaping

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, leader of the Hanafi Moslems who held 134 persons hostage last week, was booked Monday on a charge of armed kidnaping, an offense that carries a maximum sentence of life in prison.

"You hate me, you hate the ground I walk on, but I don't hate anyone," Khaalis told photographers as he left his sect's headquarters to go downtown for the brief booking procedure. "You ought to pray to Allah that nothing ever happens to me," he added. "If I die, it all comes down."

Khaalis and 11 of his followers were arraigned Friday after the hostages were freed from three different places where they had been held for 38 hours. In the negotiations that led to the surrender, Khaalis was promised he would not be formally booked until later and that he would remain free on his own recognizance at least until a grand jury returns an indictment.

Smart Serves The Community

Beginning this issue the New Iowa Bystander is launching a series of articles to honor local members of the Black community who are actively involved with the needs of their community and, more importantly, involved with people in the community.

For the first article of this infrequent series, the Bystander would like to honor the talents and energy of Linda Smart, a television producer and model from Des Moines.

Linda, who was born in Des Moines 26 years ago, is currently employed by KCCI-TV. Since joining the staff of KCCI in November 1975 Linda has become the Assistant Producer of the Mary Brubaker Show, Producer of the Community Calender, Producer for "Church of the Air", and Fashion Coordinator for the KCCI station.

An example of her many talents may be had by examining her duties for the Mary Brubaker Show. In her role as Assistant Producer to Mary, Linda lines up fashion for the show, pre-interviews guests for the show to make sure they will be at ease on camera, and serves as substitute hostess when Mary is out of town.

In addition to all her duties at KCCI, Linda finds time to work as a professional model. She also donates her time to such local charity organizations as the YMCA and YWCA, the Willkie House, Easter Seals, and Veterans Hospitals.

She loves to work with children, patiently and lovingly trying to teach them professional modeling techniques.

Linda has served as a judge for the Miss Iowa Contest and helped to coordinate the Gateway Queen Contest. She also coordinated a fashion show for Young Attorney's Wives last month at Adventureland.

She is currently heading up Fashion Productions at Valley West Mall, the first Black to hold that position.

Linda is single, the daughter of Herbert and Audrey Smart of Des Moines. Her father acts as the head of Security at the V.A. Hospital and her mother is a nurse.

In addition to her talents in so many areas, Linda impresses people by her warm bubbling personality which has brightened the day for many and has won Linda many friends.

Linda hopes soon to open a modeling school in which she plans to teach such intangibles as poise and charm.

Although her schedule is full and getting even fuller, Linda plans to continue her service to the Des Moines community. Perhaps her true role as a model is providing an example to others of someone who is doing things for others in her community.

VIEWS and REVIEWS by James B. Morris

A Disasterous Venture

The siege in Washington, D.C., involving a group of Hanafi Muslim gunmen, was a serious and unfortunate situation. Not only because of the dangerous possibilities of these men, but also the safety of the lives of people who were held captive and had no way of knowing whether they would ever leave their captors alive or not, hung in a balance.

Heralded by the news media as a religious war they conducted their operations just as massacres have occurred in religious wars as well as civil wars in the past.

Seldom have Negroes been involved in this type of operation and yet we realize that various groups have attempted to accomplish their ends by massacring those who stood in their way. We had it with the Indians in their effort to repel the white settlers. We had it with labor wars and still do it in some instances, all of which are designed to put fear in the hearts of other people.

It is difficult to understand what these men hoped to accomplish by their actions and yet some of their demands were met. Unfortunately, complying with demands in such cases tends to make others feel that they can try the same thing and have their demands met also.

Apparently, these people were mostly unemployed and spent their time agonizing against the people they blame for their condition. No doubt if they were occupied with productive labor these things would not arise for idle minds are dangerous among any people.

Housing Prisoners a Continuous Problem

A committee/appointed to investigate and make recommendations concerning penal facilities in Polk County, particularly the County jail, reported last week to the Board of Supervisors.

In keeping with past reports, prime recommendation was that the jail should be torn down and replaced by facilities designed to care for prisoners serving different sentences. What should be done with prisoners while a new jail is under construction apparently was not taken under consideration.

Another suggestion included a facility which would combine the city jail and the county jail under one roof. This has been successful in many places. The jail in Salt Lake City is pointed to as a model.

Then too, we are saddled with a jail, a courthouse and the old post office building all owned by Polk County. It will be difficult to pull together all these facilities. The cost would be prohibitive. Undoubtedly, the Board of Supervisors will take a long look before taking on any such project.

Most of these committees forget that prisons are constructed to house law violators and their safety, as well as the employees, must be taken into account. The report also said that the Polk County jail was no place for a human being to live. True, it is an old building, but like most such structures, is sound. Certainly, the prime effort should not be directed toward providing parlors and other fancy living conditions where the members of these committees live.

No doubt means must be found to deal with the constant rise in prison population, but we must not forget that people are in prison for punishment and they themselves can do a lot to determine their length of service, in many places, and also take advantage of facilities available to assist in making their stay conducive to help rehabilitate themselves.

It seems that like inflation more people are being committed to institutions. It will continue as long as little effort is made to teach two and three year olds how to live with each other and the necessity of being law abiding citizens. After they become twelve and thirteen their ideas are pretty well set and in most cases the chance of rehabilitating even young violators, have not been very successful.

Whatever program the authorities provide for future prisons effort must be made to include some recreational facilities, some work where they can learn trades and, also, complete their education, which in so many cases, is lacking.

First Annual Unity Summit

Dear Mr. Morris:

I would like to thank you for the assistance that you have extended us so far in our efforts to organize the 1st Annual National Grassroots Unity Summit in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, August 25-28, 1977. We would also like to extend you a personal invitation to attend this worthwhile conference.

The assistance that you provided is helping us with the development of our contact list for organizations and individuals interested in unity and concerned about the various problems in our communities, both local and national. We also expect to be doing face to face organizing within the next two weeks.

We in Black colonies all across these United States are faced with many of the same problems, i.e., no jobs, no money, poor housing, poor health; you can almost name the problem and we as a community are faced with it. Detroit, Chicago, Memphis, New York Cleveland—no matter which city, in what state, we must begin to see our common bonds.

We have been struggling for over 400 years trying to rid ourselves of these burdens, using numerous strategies and tactics. Most times we run into a stone door. But we should all realize that every door has a key. Unity is our key.

This unity must start locally in each community and spread like wildfire until it is national in scope. The 1st Annual National Grassroots Unity Summit is one way to spread this ancient seed of unity. But local unity among various groups is the crucial step because we could meet nationally forever.

But it useless without local success. Historically, the failure of national organizations has been too little emphasis on local affairs. United Black Community Council (information enclosed) has been working to achieve local success for four years. And we have had successes and failures, but we realize that the struggle continues. We locally say "Community Control Before the Year 2000 A.D."

Any further assistance you can provide us with will be sincerely appreciated. More information will be forth coming and if you have any questions, suggestions, or criticisms, all are welcome by calling (414) 265-3556 or by writing: National Grassroots Unity Summit, 2636 North Third Street, Milwaukee, WI., 53212. I find it very easy to understand why some young minorities can point to the standards which embrace the rightness of whiteness concept.

In the recent selection of the all Metro Basketball Boys Teams (First, Second and Honorable Mention) whose choices are made by the Metro Coaches, it raises a very serious question as to the type of criteria used in the selection of these young men.

How can two young men from the same high school (Valley), both guards, both juniors with the black player having a higher scoring average than his teammate, only to receive honorable mention while his white teammate with a lower scoring average was elevated to the prestigious First Team.

The rationale is not clear. Historically, most First and Second Teams have had a quota of one black player per team, with Honorable Mention being used as the catchall for the balance of black players.

You need to make an honest selection based on overall talent and then spell out in publication the qualification that is used in arriving at your consensus.

Stand Firm On Boycott

EDITORS NOTE: The following editorial is reprinted from the New York VOICE, one of the nation's leading Black newspapers, of March 4:

STAND FIRM ON BOYCOTT

We applaud the news that the Carter Administration will support passage of a bill barring American companies from participating in the Arab economic boycott of Israel, but hope that pressures from the Arab nations and their friends do not convince the President to soften his stand. In reversing the policy of the Ford Administration of looking the other way while pretending to be indignant, President Carter appears to be intent on ending this discrimination.

We have been reading countless stories in the past three-and-a-half years, or since the oil embargo of 1973, about the various ways the suddenly wealthy Arabs are using their money to influence world policy. We saw the French Government collapse in the face of such pressure and release Abu

THE POWER & THE GLORY

By Dr. G.E.A. Toote

The U.S. Supreme Court has moved to its most conservative, restrictive Civil Rights posture of the decade, and seriously impeded the progression of Civil Rights. It has denied the responsibility of the suburbs to affirmatively share in solving the inner cities problems in housing, education, and employment. TWO SOCIETIES

The National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders forecast a nation of "two societies, one black, and one white, separate and unequal."

THE SUBURBS

Suburbia houses the middle-class influx of white liberals, who fled to avoid the problems of city living.

Their governments argue that they did not create the problems of the cities, and that exclusionary zoning ordinances are a traditional means of protecting the quality and character of a community.

But in reality, they represent the citizens who rather than seek solutions to the problems of the city, migrated.

ETHNIC PURITY

The Supreme Court sustained the right of the all white Chicago suburb of Arlington Heights to enforce one family dwelling restrictions on two acres of land; and the continuation of its pattern of residential segregation.

The ethnic purity philosophy espoused by President Carter during the campaign has now received Supreme Court approval. Black America can anticipate a reluctance by the Carter administration to use federal agencies affirmatively, where ethnic interests are involved.

HOUSING IMPACT

The responsibility of housing the poor will be limited to communities with a social conscience. The all white ethnic character of many neighborhoods will be preserved.

LEGAL IMPACT

The legal test used by the court makes litigation of Civil Rights cases based on discriminatory conduct more difficult to prove. Minorities must clearly show exclusive discriminatory motive, rather than disproportionate results.

The test urged by Justice Thurgood Marshall in the dissenting opinion, was the effect, or ultimate outcome of conduct.

MUSHROOMING OF EXCLUSIONARY ZONING

If there are other reasons to justify the discriminatory action besides bias, the conduct is now permissive, or not inherently unconstitutional.

America can anticipate a mushrooming of exclusionary housing and zoning ordinances. Housing for the poor will be isolated to geographic pockets of instant ghettos of longing.

Areas where budgets for education are based upon real property taxes will continue to have an inadequate budget for education.

Funding for community services, such as sanitation, police and transportation, financed by the local tax base, in cities with an imbalance of the poor, will suffer the most. They will be unable to provide the quality of services required.

This new policy enunciated by the Supreme Court will limit the ability of lower courts to provide remedies also in the areas of education and employment. THE WAY OUT

Congress and particularly members of the Congressional Black Caucus, should be bombarded with mail, demanding the immediate introduction of legislation to protect the rights of minorities and the poor, against exclusionary laws that limit the long accepted right to live anywhere in our nation.

Freedom of access denied to one class of America, is denial of freedom to all Americans.

Daoud, who was reported to have been the mastermind of the 1972 Munich massacre.

With so many of these wealthy Arab nations engaging in political blackmail, buying off those they can and intimidating others, a strong stand must be taken in opposition.

Israel was abandoned in 1973 by many of her former friends. Only a few courageous nations, most notably the Dutch, resisted. It is time for more countries to step forward and tell the world that money is not the determining force in world affairs.

It is essential that we not allow the Arab nations to fan the fires of religious prejudice that always seem to be smoldering, waiting for a sudden wind.

Cedar Rapids Lose Weight At Summer Camp

Want to lose weight, have fun and gain self-confidence? Then come to Camp "I Can," a week long summer camp for overweight teen girls ages 13 to 16.

Camp will be Sunday June 15th at 3 p.m. through noon Saturday June 18th at the Wapsie Y facilities in Coggon, Iowa. This second weight control camp is being sponsored by the Cedar Rapids and Dubuque (Northeast Iowa) Extension Service areas according to Susan Uthoff, extension home economist in Linn County.

Camping and craft fee is only $57.00.

Twenty-six campers participated last year and had fun learning how to lose weight while swimming, hiking, playing tennis, archery, canoeing, doing crafts, learning grooming tips and clothing selection along with fun nutrition talks and games that helped them realize that they could be attractive persons.

The success of last years camp was great and the follow-up on the campers has been encouraging. Emphasis this year will again be on proper diet, changing eating habits, exercise and improving self-concept.

Last years campers voted enthusiastically for the total program so it is being offered again this year.

For more information and applications, contact Rhoda Barnhart, Cedar County extension home economist, Tipton, Iowa 52772.

Crime Control Takes Police and Public, McGee Says

"If we can cut off crime while it's still a small tumor before it gets large like other cities" Milwaukee can avoid many of the problems seen elsewhere, Michael McGee of the United Black Community Council said in an interview on Sunday.

McGee spoke on police-community relations on WISN-TV's "Affirmative Action" program. Questioned about UBCC's "Project Respect" anti-crime effort, McGee criticized both Milwaukee police department methods and Chief Harold A. Breier.

He cited extended waits for police response to inner city burglaries. Police priorities require "faster response for bank robbery or other crimes against property rather than citizens."

UBCC has tried "a number of times" without success to contact Breier to seek police cooperation with their anti-crime efforts, McGee said. "Milwaukee needs a police chief with communicativeness, one who listens to complaints of citizens. Under the present system, Chief Breier causes a lot of the problems."

When citizens suffer abuse from police officers, he added, they ought to feel they can complain to higher-up but this is not now the case. On the failure of police minority recruiting attempts, McGee remarked, "The image of the police department recruitment of minorities will have to go hand in hand with a community relations program."

Asked by host Hampton Pearson to comment on why there's such a high rate of Black-on-Black crime, the UBCC spokesperson cited economic depression to unemployment as a major factor. "The young high school graduate with no job and no outlook for a job strikes out at the person closest to you ... it's hard for a Black person to go to Whitefish Bay and commit a crime — he'd be noticed immediately."

Black and white elderly are the easiest target and most victimized, McGee noted.

Another important factor, McGee said, is "The breakdown of families." He added, "There's not the level of discipline there was ten or twenty years ago. When young people are exposed temptation today, they don't have enough strength to resist ripping someone off. The United Black Community Council wants to give them the inner strength to resist."

McGee is one of six local persons who have gone to court to obtain police surveillance files maintained on himself by the Special Assignment Squad. Pearson asked McGee what the files showed him:

"Anyone who's in the public eye has a file," he remarked, "and is liable to be followed around."

An estimated 500 page of documents, he said, indicated he has been under surveillance since 1971 when he received an honorable discharge for Vietnam military duty. They begin with his involvement with the Interested Veterans of the Central City, now called the National Association of Black Veterans and continue through this year, he added.

McGee's files also record his two years with the Black Panther Party.

Vance Asks $100 M For Power Transfer In Rhodesia

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will ask Congress today to set aside $100 million to be used, in part, to help transfer power in Rhodesia from the white minority to blacks. Sources say the request is a result of an ongoing U-S review of policy in Africa.

The money would be part of a three-front administration effort to bring pressure for change in Southern Africa. The black-white conflict has caused riots and guerrilla warfare.

MESSIAH TEMPLE

Everyone of us must give an account of our lives before God, and He will be looking for sin. Evangelist Zora Reed brought us the lesson on, "The Seven Great Sins" last Sunday. Any of these sins can cause you to step over the line and go to death spiritually:

1. Sinning away our days of grace
2. Sin unto death
3. Blasphemy of the Holy Spirit
4. Mark of the beast
5. Sin of a reprobate mind
6. Sin of spiritual deception
7. Sin of stubbornness, rebellion, & willful disobedience

Sunday school is at 10:30 with worship services at 11:30. The Book of Acts is every Sunday evening at 5:00. Prayer meeting is every Wednesday evening at 7:00.

REMEMBER: It is better never to have been born than to die and lose your soul.

Reverend Jacob Reed is Pastor.

UNION BAPTIST CHURCH

Last Sunday morning Deacon Eugene Wilson offered a most inspiring morning prayer. Rev. A. Crawford prayed for the sick and shut-ins, and Pastor Thomas preached to "The Danger In Ignoring God".

At 4 p.m. Dedication services were held for the Senior Choir and The New Creation choir. The choir members were stunning in their maroon long dresses with flowing full sleeves and the young gentlemen were handsome in their tuxedos.

Sister Loretta Reeves and members of the Richard Allen Chorus sang beautifully.

Sunday March 20th at 5 p.m. the Senior Ushers invite you to a Country Western Musical by the Rea Borne singers of Des Moines, they compose and write their own songs. Deacon Tom Smith, President, Clara Wade Chrm. Think About It: An Upright Man Can Never Be A Downright Failure."

Paternity Suit Filed Against Marvin Yancy

A Chicago elementary school teacher has filed a paternity suit against Marvin Yancy, husband of Grammy Award-winning singer Natalie Cole and a Baptist minister in Chicago.

Phyllis Hogan, 26, is charging Yancy fathered her son, Marvin Jerome Yancy Hogan II, born Jan. 26, and seeks child support.

Ms. Hogan was engaged to marry Yancy Aug. 7, 1976, but he told her the wedding was off last July — approximately 20 days before he married Ms. Cole, July 31.

"I had gone through the process of sending out invitations," she said, noting that 75 of the 200 invitations had been mailed. "He never really talked to me and explained the situation (about the break-up)."

She said the break-up was "a very traumatic experience," adding that the wedding dress had been ordered, a caterer scheduled and invitations and matches printed even though only about $200 had been spent.

Because of her pregnancy and plans to marry Yancy, Ms. Hogan said she didn't return to work last September, intending to do so after the baby was born the following school year.

Isleys Win Battle Over "It's Your Thing"

The long and drawn-out court joust between Motown Records and The Isley Brothers over who owns the rights to the smash 1968 hit, It's Your Thing, has finally been settled by a federal court jury in New York.

The jury determined that

During her pregnancy, she said, she received general assistance from the state but since the child's birth she has been living with a sister because she hasn't applied for public assistance and no other money is coming her way.

"I am not going to (apply for assistance)," she emphasized. "because it's too embarrassing and it takes too long."

For that reason she is seeking child support. "I would rather have a definite amount coming in so that I wouldn't have to call and tell him that the baby is sick," she said. "I didn't have him by myself and I am not going to take care of him by myself."

When contacted the Fountain of Life Church for a reaction to the suit, Yancy said, "I am shocked by it. My lawyers are looking into it. I don't want to damage her (Phyllis') reputation or cause the child any harm because I don't want any scars on the child. I am going to try to resolve it. Through personal conversation, I thought it had been resolved. My wife (Natalie) is with me, my family and my church are with me and above all, God."

the Isleys had indeed recorded It's Your Thing after their contract with Motown had terminated, contrary to Motown's argument.

Further details of the court action were not announced.

POINTER SISTERS

Bonnie Leaves Pointer Sisters For Songwriting

One again the Pointer Sisters are three. No, June has not decided to leave the fold one more time; this time it's Bonnie.

Bonnie, who stood out as the comic of the group, has decided to spread her wings by leaving the group so that she can devote more time to songwriting.

Last year, too, the soulful group that did much to revive the 1940s sound in music was three for a short period of time.

June left the music arena after suffering acute exhaustion. She returned not too long ago.

Sue Marvin Gaye For $50,000

Marvin Gaye musically asked "What's Going On?" and apparently some of his musicians have an answer; he owes them money. In a suit filed in Los Angeles Superior Court, members of his group have charged that Gaye owes them a total of $50,000 for recording sessions and live engagements.

The suit was entered by the American Federation of Musicians, AFL-CIO. As of press time, the singer had not been served the papers and was unavailable for comment.

Willie Bobo's Music Grows and Changes

Willie Bobo is an explosive talent. Like all truly original artists he refuses to be categorized and his amazing abilities seem to have no bounds. Willie's live performances are legendary — he is a total entertainer with that rare ability to completely captivate his audience. His incredible percussion work and on-stage style make him a joy to see and hear.

Willie's musical blends of Latin, Afro-Cuban, Jazz and Rock forms have placed him in the forefront of contemporary progressive musicians. There is little that can be said about Willie Bobo that can adequately describe the energy and innovation he brings to everything he does. Willie's music speaks for him, and his newest LP on Blue Note Records says it all.

The dynamism of his exuberant percussion and timbali work has been captured beautifully on 9 numbers ranging from ballads to hard rock. Produced by Stan Silverberg and Willie Bobo, "Tomorrow is Here" exemplifies the spirit and drive that characterizes everything Willie Bobo does. It is a complete musical experience.

Willie Bobo was born William Correa of Puerto Rican parentage, in Spanish Harlem. By the time he was 15, he was doing work and performing with Perez Prado, Cuba's Mambo king.

At nineteen he joined one of the hottest Latin bands of all time, Tito Punte's group, where he stayed for over four years. A long period of session work followed, and a list of his associations during this time reads like a musical Who's Who.

Jazz greats like Miles Davis and Gil Evans. Legendary figures such as Pee Wee Russell, Stan Getz, Cannonball Adderley, Hugo Montenegro and Thad Jones as well as a host of rock sessions including Buddy Miles and Rod Stewart. Cal Tjader, Jimmy Smith, Gabor Szabo ... the list goes on and on.

In 1965 Willie recorded his first hit, "Spanish Grease" and when he formed his own group the first club to headline him was Count Basie's in New York.

Willie Bobo

The only constant in Willie Bobo's life is change. His music grows and changes with him, always vibrant, always unexpected, the man's energy and talent are limitless; as is the joy of listening to him.

“What is A Black Leader?” On Black Journal March 20

BLACK JOURNAL POLL:
Black Leaders Don't Need
White Support To Be Effective

NEW YORK — Black leaders in America are more diverse, better educated and more affluent than ever. The number of Black leaders is expanding as the barriers to full equality crumble.

And the nature of that leadership is changing, too. “The leaders of the 60s are either off the scene, deceased or, like Julian Bond, have changed their revolutionary rhetoric and status for responsible roles,” BLACK JOURNAL's host and executive producer Tony Brown says. “Those who persisted and got trapped with a radical label have been abandoned by a Black community moving from revolutionary rhetoric to a quest for justice under the law.”

The next edition of BLACK JOURNAL, “What Is a Black Leader?” examines the status of Black leaders among both the Black and White communities of America, and how the concept of Black leadership has changed over the last few years.

Produced by WNET/13, New York, BLACK JOURNAL's “What Is a Black Leader?” will be distributed nationally by the Public Broadcasting Service to its member stations on Monday, March 21, 1977. (Important: Please check local PBS station schedule for correct area broadcast time. In New York, WNET/Channel 13 will broadcast BLACK JOURNAL one day earlier, March 20, 2:00 p.m. and on Monday, March 21, 10:30 p.m.) BLACK JOURNAL is produced with the assistance of a grant from Pepsi Cola Company.

Georgia State Legislator Julian Bond, newly-designated head of the NAACP Benjamin Hooks, and General Daniel “Chappie” James, commander-in-chief of the North American Air Defense Command, discuss the impact of Black leadership with Tony Brown.

Although Julian Bond believes that Black leaders have less impact on the views of the Black community than in the past, he still believes they have a definite effect. “We still probably follow leaders more so than any other ethnic group with perhaps the exception of American Jews ... And that's good and bad. It's bad in the sense that we ought to be able to make up our own minds about what we want to do, and we ought to have some collective sense without this topheavy direction as to how we ought to behave.”

Benjamin Hooks, who was the first Black member of the Federal Communications Commission, said that being a Black leader dealing with Black issues led to problems with the White press. “I think that after I was appointed to the Commission, they tried, the press really tried to kill me,” he said. “All they would ever say about me in effect was I'm a dummy, because the only thing I can talk about is the Black issue.”

General Daniel “Chappie” James rejects the idea of “Black leaders.” “You are limiting yourself any time you decide to be a Black leader, any time you decide to be a White leader, any time you decide to be a Catholic leader,” he said. “... My Mom used to say there's two Negroes we can do without ... the first one and the only one. She said, ‘I'm looking forward to the day when all Blacks are doing so many things that are noteworthy that we'll no longer be newsworthy.’ Well, I think we're getting there now ... I think that we need to get out of that mold of being a Black leader and opt for the whole piece of the pie because it's out there.”

The BLACK JOURNAL Poll, which consists of two samples — Ebony Magazine's 100 Most Influential Black Americans and another 100 Black leaders selected by BLACK JOURNAL — found that 54% of the Black leaders polled do not think they set the trend for the opinions of the Black populations.

However, the two samples do believe that Blacks would be better informed by knowing the opinions of Black leaders — 97% of the Ebony sample and 95% of the BLACK JOURNAL group.

Both samples rejected the notion that a Black leader can be most effective if he/she has more influence among Whites than Blacks — 68% of the Ebony sample, 74% of the BLACK JOURNAL sample. One hundred percent of the Ebony sample, and 95% of the BLACK JOURNAL sample said that the opinions of Black leaders are not given adequate coverage by the White Press.

Both groups were asked to name the most able Black leaders:

Rawls Stars in 1st TV Special

Lou Rawls, recording, nightclub and international concert star whose gold records and albums span the spectrum of contemporary music from rhythm and blues to pop, will be showcased in his first television special, THURSDAY, APRIL 21 (11:30 p.m.-1:00 a.m., EST), on the ABC Television Network, it was announced today by Bob Shanks, Vice President, Specials, ABC Entertainment.

The Chicago-born singer-entertainer's latest album, “All Things in Time,” brought him a platinum record, signifying the sale of 1 million copies. The album's single, “You'll Never Find Another Love Like Mine,” won the American Music Award for Best Soul Single. Two of his albums, “Dead End Street” and “Natural Man,” have won Grammy Awards as well as gold records.

In addition to his great singing success, Rawls has thrilled nightclub and concert audiences around the world with his dramatic soliloquies, such as “An Old Man's Memories,” “Southside Blues” and “Street Corner Hustler Blues.”

Rawls' engaging personality and humor have made him a popular talk show guest, and he recently served as co-host, with Helen Reddy and Glen Campbell, of the “American Music Awards” presentation on ABC.

■ Obliging Fans: Lou Rawls takes time out from a recent sellout performance that broke all attendance records at Memphis' Hilton Hotel to autograph the playbill for entertainers Charlie Rich and Carla Thomas. Rawls shared the show's billing with Nancy Wilson.

The special, to be taped in a studio and on location, will feature guest stars and will highlight the many facets of Rawls' talents, including — in concert segments — his remarkable rapport with an audience.

LOOK ON SPORTS

The college basketball season as well as the high school schedules are winding down and in a couple of weeks it will all be over but the shouting. In the college ranks one of the four teams I picked to make it to the finals, Tennessee, fell by the wayside. But I still have three left in, and as tough as things are, it is a pretty fair guess to have that many survive the first round. For this year there isn't any single team such as Indiana or the UCLA teams of John Wooden that could be called a cinch for the top honors. I don't know if the UCLANS can make it all the way or not, but they have a good shot at the final four. Of course, they could go off as they have done on occasion and fail, but it is hardly likely. At the beginning of the season most pickers thought Michigan was a shoo in for the national title, but folks found out that the Wolverines could be had even with Green in the lineup, so now they are hedging their bets. Notre Dame was supposed to go far after beating UCLA at Pauley Stadium, but they proved to have feet of clay, and they had to scuffle for a spot. Looks like a great couple of weekends left. Texas Southern won one section of an NIAA meet, and one of the other schools could grab a section of the NCAA meet for small schools.

Here in Iowa the girls had their shootout, and they nearly tore down the Vets Auditorium last week, and this week it will be the boys and everybody will be watching to see what Lincoln's Frank Smith can do. If he goes what most people think true to form, he could lead the school to the title. I am told the guy makes moves that are so outstanding, and is so strong under the boards that some people think he is over the age limit. But, I would bet my last clean shirt that if he is over the limit, that some local school would have blown the whistle. Actually, some kids have their full physical development by the time they are sixteen or seventeen. I know boys who were as big and as strong at sixteen as they were at twenty eight. Smith could be like that. I want to see how he makes out in college wherever he goes. Then there is the case of Moses Malone at seventeen playing with the pros in the ABA and now in the NBA. And he can play with the big boys. I have seen boys as young as fifteen who had all the moves and could play for anybody, but they aren't interested in school. They prefer the playgrounds of Chicago, Milwaukee, or maybe Minneapolis. Instant athletes, I call them. When our National Junior Tennis league youngsters met some of those kids in the national meet that they used to have, they couldn't believe how fast the kids could pick up on the game. But that was probably their only interest, and they worked at it. Then you add that to the quick physical development, and you have something.

One final basketball note. I am always amused by the post game interviews with the winning team coach. He always tells what he did to make the difference even though the score was closer than ninety nine is to one hundred. I always believe that about the only real strategy that the teams employed was to try their damdest to get more points than the other team.

By the time this comes out Jimmy Jones will be in the ring with former heavyweight champ George Foreman with maybe the winner to get a shot at Muhammad Ali's crown. Jones could pull what some experts could call an upset. The guy can be hard to hit, and is a good counter puncher. I think that the longer the thing goes, the better are the chances of Jones for a decision. Foreman has never had to fight the distance before, and could have trouble pacing himself. Then it hurts a fighter more to miss his best shots than it does to take one from the other guy.

If George missed a few of those mighty wallops he could get tired, and then could be in trouble. So, I would say that if George doesn't do it in a few rounds, like five or six, he could be in for a long evening. Then Ken Norton will test Duane Bobbick later on. Bobbick is the fellow they have been bringing along so carefully that I'm surprised that they let him in the ring with Norton, unless they saw something in the last fight Ken had that they could use. Sometimes that happens. Max Schmeling saw something about Joe Louis, and nearly decapitated Joe.

Then Louis and his handlers studied the fight pictures and saw something about the German and put him in the hospital. So Bobbick may know something we don't. But if he doesn't, he will wish he did.

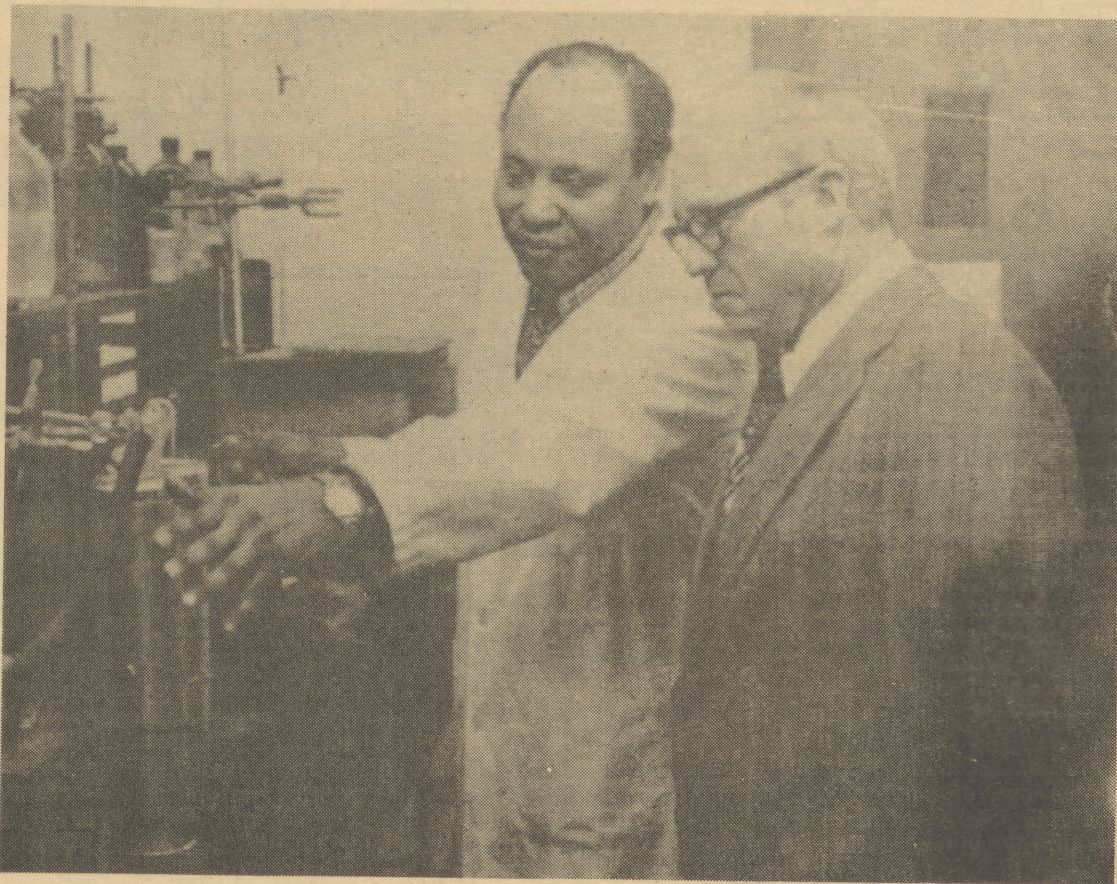

And, speaking of boxing; do you know that I missed my March 5 date at Gateway to see the boxers. When is the next one, fellows? On my word, I will be there. Just got so involved in some other things that I forgot about it.

NATIONAL CHAMP — Anthony Callahan, right, of Covington, LA, flashes a broad smile as he is presented first place trophy, after being declared National Champion in the boy's 16-18 year-old category, of the Pepsi-Cola / NBA Hotshot Basketball program.

Anthony and five other youngsters, three girls and two boys, each won a four thousand dollar scholarship from Pepsi-Cola Company, as grand prize in the national competition. Making the presentation to the 16-year-old Covington High School youth, who represented the New Orleans Jazz team, is Ray Pelleteri, Athletic Administrator, New Orleans Department of Recreation, which coordinated the Hotshot program in the New Orleans area.

More than 2½ million youngsters participated in this, the first year of the Hotshot program.

Schocler, Jr., chairman of the department. Mims visited the campus of the university recently to present a check for a $1,000 grant from Western Electric to the university.

Only Dream In Town

By MARVIN S. DENT, JR.
1977 New York Times

I have always been impressed, Arthur Ashe, with your "tunnel vision." Your open letter to black parents should earn you indubitably the myopic championship of our time. It was significant that your observations were realized in your sophomore year at the University of California, Los Angeles. It seems that you were not aware of the reasons why you were there or how you got there.

You were there because you were handpicked to play tennis. Unlike Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (who like yourself was well-read but went to UCLA to play basketball), you participate in a sport that requires money. Even though you do not mention it very often, you got there on the aid of black money first, and black sacrifice.

We agree that emulation is part of our culture, regardless of color or ethnicity — but to what degree? Let's examine.

If you could take a plane ride over medieval Europe at about 2,000 feet, you would discover that in every village the largest structure would be the house of worship, most likely built on the sweat of the peasants. Take that same ride today, but not at 2,000 feet because you might hit the contemporary houses of worship — the Astrodome, the Superdome, the Kingdome.

These places are built for the gods to play, and if we are part of this culture there is no escape from some influence. What kind of influence? Blacks do not support any of these stadia on a large scale; in fact, most are being built in white suburbia. Blacks generally are not moved by whether the Buffalo Bills won or lost. Their question is, "Did O.J. dance?"

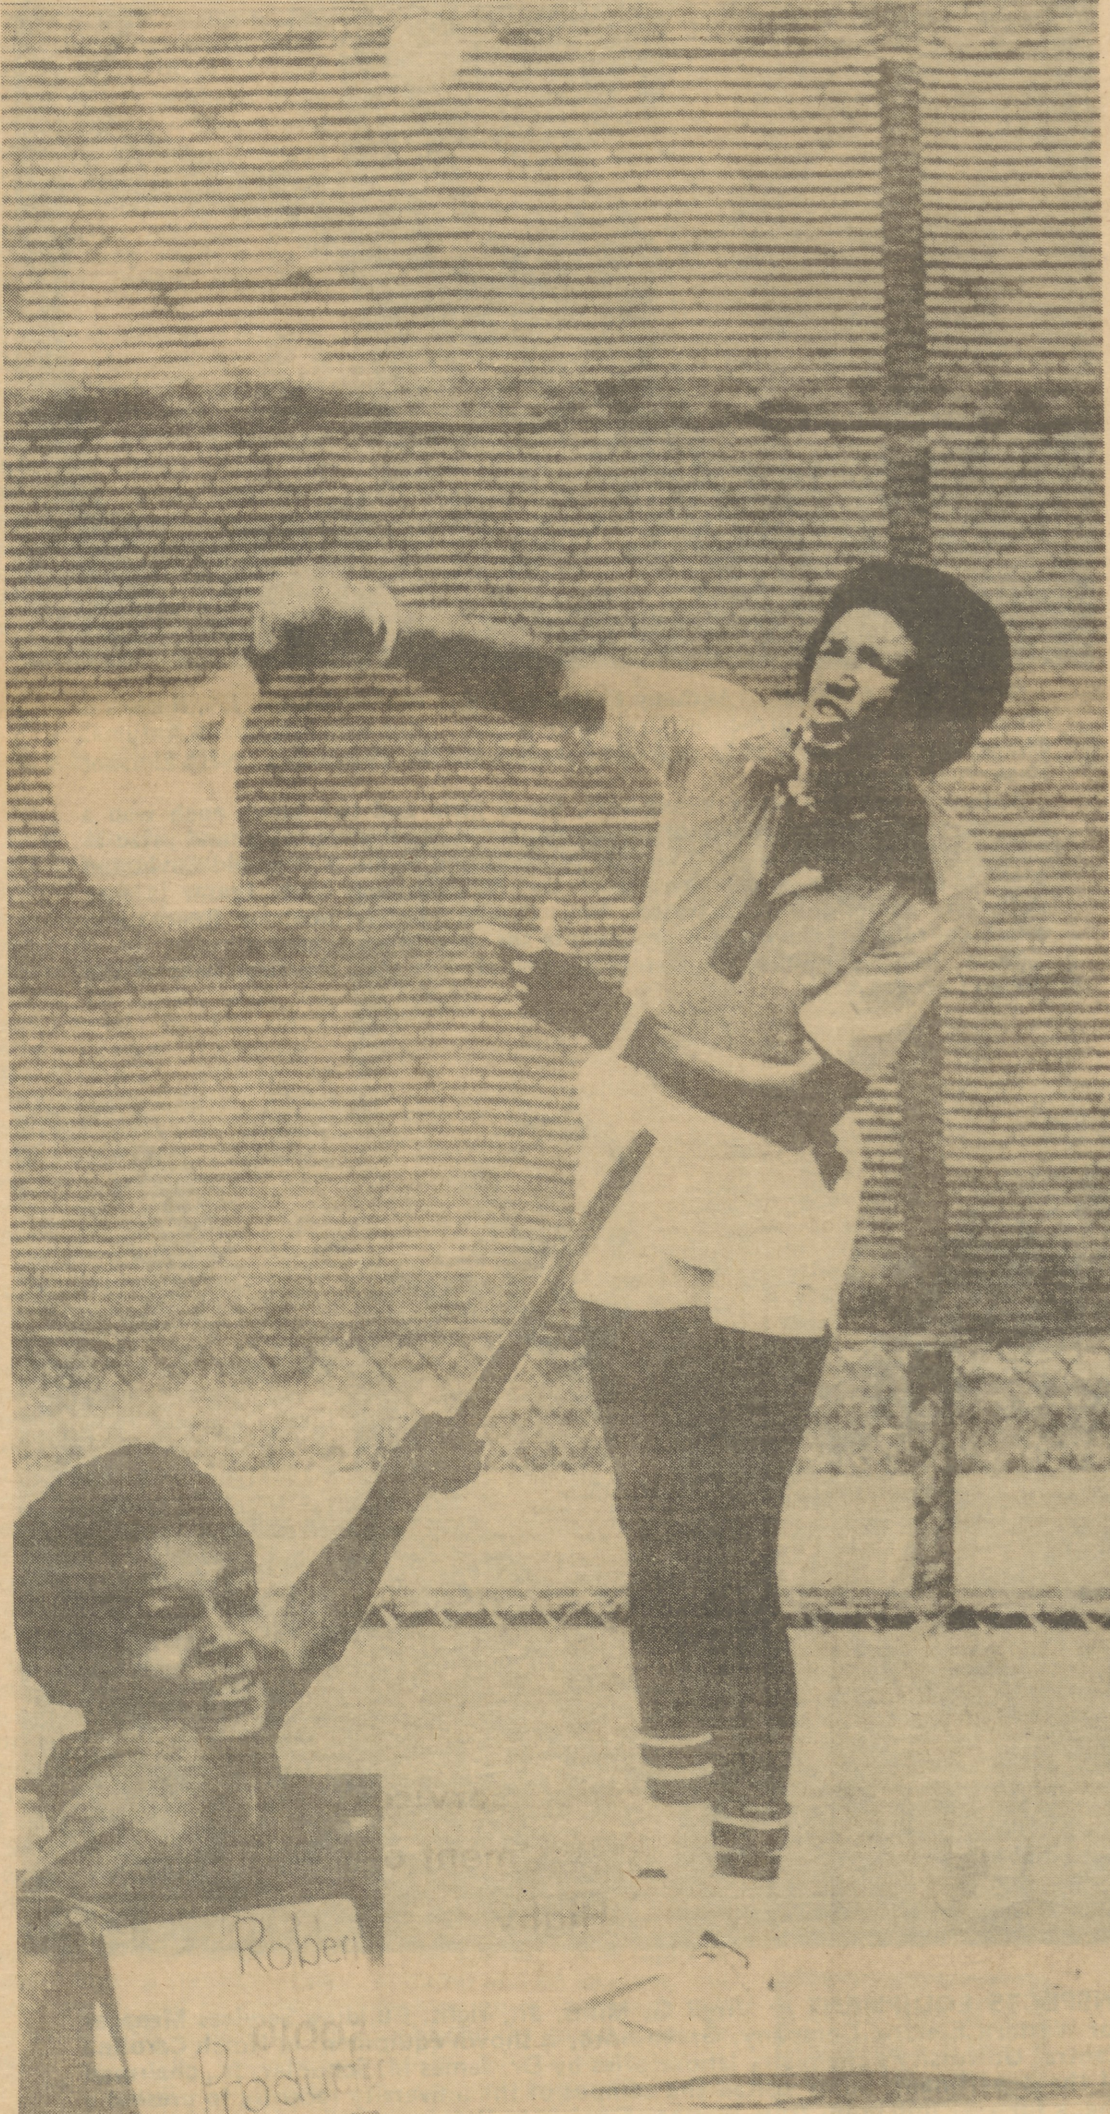

What you refer to as the Impossible Dream is the only dream in town. That dream is to aspire by whatever means possible. For obvious reasons, blacks choose the areas requiring the least amount of capital input — sports included.

Yes, the reason the door closed behind you was because it takes money to become a tennis or golf professional, a lawyer, doctor or engineer. If you read every book in the library, it will not remove the racial prejudices that exist in the labor unions that control construction work. Blacks have to sing, dance, run and jump just to get an education, and we have just emerged from a time when blacks were "employed" in colleges rather than enrolled.

It would have been heart-warming to hear you advise the young artists to negotiate for medical or law-school funds when their bodies were up for hire.

STUDENT EARNS SCHOLARSHIP: The second of the two 1976 NAACP Region IV Scholarships was presented during a recent dinner-meeting of the officers of the Denver Central Branch of the NAACP.

Others at the presentation included, from left: Ina Boon, director of Region IV Branch- NAACP; Mrs. Sylvia Morgan, Cheri's mother; Mrs. Menola Upshaw, first vice president of the Denver Central Branch; and Gene Howell, member of the national NAACP board and president of the Denver Central Branch.

The Kraft/NAACP Region IV Scholarships were awarded to two branch members (the other recipient was from the St. Louis branch) who brought in the most new NAACP youth memberships during the year, and who became actively involved in the planning and execution of a successful Voter Registration - Education Program.

Cheri did an outstanding job for the Denver Branch in these two important areas. Cheri started school earlier this year at University of Colorado, where she is majoring in business.

Prominent Kansas City Dentist Shot

BY EDDIE REESE

Authorities are listing no apparent motive in the shooting death Wednesday of a prominent dentist at 4310 Indiana.

Dr. James A. Diggs, 38, 2805 Wyandotte, was shot at his office shortly before 10 a.m. by a young black man who had waited to see him.

When Diggs returned to his office, he indicated to his receptionists the man had asked for penicillin. The gunman, according to a witness, was told by Diggs that he didn't have penicillin available but he was supplying the assailant with information of where penicillin could be purchased, when without harsh words or struggle, the man pulled what police believe to be a .38 caliber handgun and fired once striking Diggs below his right eye. Officials assume the gunman fled on foot.

Mr. Diggs was pronounced dead at the Truman Medical Center at about 10:30 a.m., the 21st homicide for the year.

The gunman was described as mild mannered, between the age of 18 to 22, 5 feet and 9 inches tall and approximately 140 pounds.

Ten detectives from Crimes Against Persons Unit has been assigned to the case. One suspect was arrested but released.

Dr. Diggs, a native of Providence, Rhode Island, opened his present location in December, 1969. He had served as Dental Officer with the U. S. Air Force, Whiteman Air Force Base from 1964 to 1966. He was a Captain.

Mr. Diggs attended grade and high school in Boston. He also attended Boston University for three years before leaving to enter dental school. He took several continuing education courses after completing his Doctor of Dental Surgery Degree at Howard University.

In addition to his private practice here, he was dental consultant for Headstart, HEW, parttime general dentist, Wayne Minor Neighborhood Center and was in associate practice with Dr. Frank J. Haugh, Jr.

He was a member of the American, National, Missouri State and Midwestern States Dental Associations and the Greater Kansas City Dental Society. Mr. Diggs served as president and secretary of the Heart of America Dental Society.

He was listed in Who's Who for the state of Missouri in 1974 and was appointed by the Greater Kansas City Dental Society to serve on the flouridation committee to encourage forced legislation for the statewide flouridation for Missouri. He was chairman of the statewide Council on Dental Care, a member of the NAACP, YMCA, Boy Scouts of America, Optimist Club International and Western Highlands Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Digs is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lequetta Diggs and two sons, all of the home.
