Case Involved Practice of Texas Teamsters Local — Justices Vote 7 to 2

U.S. Supreme Court Says Seniority Held Legal If No Race Discrimination Shown

News Briefs

PARIS FRANCE—Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Monday the United States will play an active role in narrowing the gap between rich and poor nations, but warned that changes will take time and can't be brought about by industrial nations alone.

The speech, made at the 27-nation Conference on International Economic Cooperation, disappointed delegates from 19 underdeveloped countries who are seeking immediate changes in the international economic order.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—President Carter has expressed his approval and endorsement of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund's three-year plan to raise $18.5 million in funds in a meeting at the White House with top-level LDF officials.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Hamaas Abdul Khaalis and his 11 Hanafi Moslem followers, facing dozens of charges, including murder and armed kidnaping, are going to court in the most celebrated and potentially longest criminal case ever tried in the capital's local courts.

CHICAGO—Chicago's Afro-American Patrolmen's League, needs a lot of help from its friends in the form of financial donations.

The League is $150,000 in debt and it is trying to raise the money through on the street fund drives and by collecting dues from more of its members. One drive raised $5,000 in one week. AAPL Executive Director Renault Robinson said only 700 of his organization's 2,000 members pay dues regularly.

NEW YORK CITY—Willie Mays, baseball's superstar who won the hearts of fans for two decades in the major leagues, lost his attempt to avoid paying back alimony to his former wife, Margherite Mays Sewell.

By a vote of 7-2 Tuesday, the U.S. Supreme Court decided seniority systems that perpetuate the effects of past racial discrimination—placing minorities at a disadvantage to whites in the competition for better jobs and other benefits—were not necessarily illegal.

The court also said as long as there is no intent to discriminate, employers and unions may continue to use the seniority systems.

The case developed from a 1971 government suit against T.I.M.E.- D.C. of Lubbock, Tex., a nationwide trucking firm, and the Teamsters which represented a large proportion of its 6,472 employees.

The court said Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 does not prohibit the use of "bona Fide" seniority systems that perpetuate effects of discrimination that occurred before the law took effect in 1965.

However the court said retroactive seniority can be awarded to minority employees who prove other members of their race were victims of discrimination since passage of the Civil Rights Act.

After the Civil Rights Act became effective in July, 1965, the court ruled a lower court to which it returned the case may award retroactive seniority to the victims, even though the seniority system makes no provision for such relief.

The court also presumed every Black and Hispanic who applied to be a line driver is entitled to relief and employees who can prove they would have applied but for discrimination also are presumptively entitled to retroactive seniority.

Justices Thurgood Marshall and William Brennan dissented.

Law Suit Attempts to Stop D.M. School Desegregation

A lawsuit was filed Wednesday in an attempt to stop the Des Moines school desegregation program slated to start this fall.

The suit filed against Supt. Dwight Davis and the Des Moines School Board is financed by two anti-bussing groups: Citizens for the Advancement of Rational Education (CARE) and Keep Education Neighborhood Oriented (KENO).

The suit contends the Des Moines School Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable manner when the board adopted the desegregation plan. The petitioners claim the desegregation plan is "illegal and contrary to law and an imminent threat to the physical and emotional health, safety and welfare of the affected children."

The plan calls for about 1,500 elementary school children to ride buses to different schools this fall. The plan merges five predominantly white schools with four predominantly black schools and closes one school with a large minority enrollment.

The suit seeks injunctions to stop the mandatory busing of students out of their neighborhood; to stop the merger of the attendance areas of Casady and Monroe, Edmunds and Jefferson, and King and Perkins elementary schools; and to stop the school district from seeking, receiving or spending local, state or federal money to finance the desegregation.

The suit, filed by four parents of children affected by the plan, claims the school board unreasonably and arbitrarily yielded to pressure from the U.S. Office for Civil Rights rather than contest the complaint in the courts. The suit claims the desegregation plan was not the result of reasoned judgement because the school board acted out of fear of the federal agency.

Civil Rights Public Hearing

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission will hold a Public Hearing in the Linn County Court House, 3rd and Bridge, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, at 9:00 a.m. o'clock, on the 8th day of June, 1977.

The case involves alleged discrimination by reason of age, in employment, termination.

RETURNING TO BUILD A BETTER BLACK COMMUNITY.

VIEWS and REVIEWS by James B. Morris

Ambassador Young Gives African Leaders Sound Advice

During the course of the visit by Ambassador Andrew Young to a number of African states, the problem arising in Rhodesia and South Africa was given the greatest coverage.

His heralded visit to South Africa and Rhodesia drew considerable unfavorable publicity to his proposed appearance in those states and planned restrictions on the organizations and tribesmen to whom Young would be permitted to speak. Much to their surprise, not only did Young appear before the natives, but also businessmen of South Africa. He was soundly praised for his attitude and cooperation in advising a tranquil relationship between the whites and blacks in each of these countries.

Young had some sound advice to those African leaders who take the position that the transition of control of government in Rhodesia and South Africa from whites to blacks should come immediately, otherwise, they were prepared to go to war against these countries.

This, Young said, would be suicide for the natives and that a peaceful settlement would do far more good than an attempt to accomplish an objective for which they are not prepared.

This is sound advice. Young knows that even though blacks outnumber whites by ratio of 7 to 1 the blacks are not prepared militarily to compete with the modern weapons of war possessed by these two states.

The campaign being carried on by the Carter administration directed at doing away entirely with racial segregation in all walks of life, has put life in the efforts of those people and organizations like United Nations which have longed criticized nations denying a large portion of its citizens the ordinary rights accorded the dominating population of those countries.

Follow the Law and We Save Time, Money and Rights

An article by Gale Kimser, professor of Law at the University of Michigan, in the Des Moines Tribune, May 31st, discusses the "Inadmissible Confessions and the Williams case". In the course of the article he quoted from the late Supreme Court Justice, Felix Frankfurter, who once said, "a shocking crime puts law to its severiest test."

This is all the federal courts said in overturning the original trial of Anthony Williams in which they decided not the guilt but rather the legality of the proceedings conducted by the court and the law enforcement officials in the first trial.

As bad as the offense appears, I am fully convinced that Williams will receive a fair trial because not only our courts generally follow the law even in cases involving offensive facts, but also the county has provided adequate counsel who seem to believe in leaving no stone unturned that adequate defense will be had for Williams.

Inflation Needs Immediate Attention

During the campaign last fall, President Carter and Vice President Mondale promised that their first effort would be directed toward putting the unemployed back to work.

This has been slow, much because the administration is tackling a number of problems that are important to the employment situation as well as diplomatic and environmental protection.

These are important, of course, but it seems to me that the administration has lost sight of the tremendous inflation that almost crucifies the paycheck of most people whether they go to the market to buy groceries, to the builder to construct or repair a home or to educate their children and keep his home from falling apart.

The fellow who makes the minimum wage of $2.30 an hour is competing for goods and services with a person who makes $9.00 or $10.00 an hour and is placed in a position where he must deny himself even the barest necessities of life.

This country cannot afford to continue the constant rise in prices which other countries have found wrecked their economy and caused many people and governments to lose what they have made as the prices in those cases fall to nothing and their currency is almost useless.

Energy: A Minority View

By Bayard Rustin
President, A. Philip
Randolph Institute

Mr. Rustin, an eminent black spokesman and board member of Americans for Energy Independence, defines the need for growth against "naive idealists" whose "pastoral fantasies" would deny the social and economic benefits of technology not only to our racial minorities but to entire populations in the Third World.

"Rising Tide Lifts All Boats"

The no-growth philosophy also has disturbing implications for future relations between the developed Western nations and the less developed countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America. Whether or not one believes that America must take the lead in the establishment of a "new world economic order," the events of the past decade have made clear America's vital interest in advancing the economic development of the Third World.

According to the opponents of growth, economic development in the Western world is gained at the expense of the underdeveloped nations, and further economic growth in the Western nations will only exacerbate the division between the rich and poor nations. In fact, the economic development of the Third World is inextricably tied to continued high rates of growth by the Western nations, the United States most particularly.

Indeed, although many Third World spokesmen publicly gloat over the troubles of the U.S., in private they express deep concern about the slow pace of economic recovery and look forward to the return of Western economic health. Unlike the anti-growth proponents, they still adhere to John F. Kennedy's dictum that "a rising tide lifts all the boats."

The adversaries of growth also have a view of their doctrine's impact on democracy that can charitably be called disingenuous. One hears a great deal of talk about a future in which economic structures, and thus political structures as well, will be decentralized and made more responsive to the individual. The stoppage or slowdown of growth, they insist, will usher in an era of more citizen participation and increased control by individuals "over the decisions which most fundamentally affect their lives." In fact, no-growth would have precisely the opposite result.

Democracy and personal freedom have been enhanced by industrial civilization. The struggle of minority groups for genuine equality was made possible by such developments as modern telecommunications and transportation networks.

Beyond this, technology and growth have opened the doors to a real democratic sharing of opportunities that were traditionally restricted to the affluent and highly educated. Increased opportunities for education and leisure have opened the way for millions of Americans of all races and classes to participate in the political system, not simply by voting, but by actively campaigning for various candidates or causes.

Energy for Jobs and Housing

I am not suggesting that modern society is an utopia; a visit to any inner city will dispel any sense of complacency we might have about the need to continue the struggle for reform and change. But the most essential social changes that are necessary to bring about social equity and racial advancement are not in the direction of a pastoral or communal fantasy world.

We are going to need jobs, and not merely jobs in low-paying, labor intensive fields. We are never going to solve our youth unemployment problems by supplying make-work, menial, deadend occupations for a generation of young people who have come to expect a decent standard of living and opportunities for advancement. Nor are we going to provide decent housing for present and future generations without the development of new technologies and expansion of the energy supply.

It is going to take economic growth, and lots of it, if we are to realize the ideals of equality, cooperation, and economic justice which fired the American struggle for racial change. This will demand that we remove the current roadblocks which stand in the way of energy development. Of course there is a need for research and development into new sources of energy.

But the imperative of social equity cannot wait for the time when solar energy is available on a mass scale. To build housing, provide meaningful jobs, and make our society run efficiently for the masses of people we must also expand the production of electrical energy from traditional energy sources.

The opponents of growth and energy development have at times made some telling criticism of the way our society operates. But their remedies contain the seeds for economic stagnation and social and racial turmoil. This society was built on growth. Its greatest accomplishments, which include bringing a decent standard of living to millions of working people, could not have occurred without growth. If we are going to meet the very severe challenges of the future, we cannot turn our backs on the very reason for our past success.

American Institute of Parliamentarians

A Greater Des Moines chapter of the American Institute of Parliamentarians is being formed Sunday night, June 5. The meeting, to be held in the executive offices of the AIP, 206 Liberty building, 6th and Grand, will begin promptly at 7:00 p.m.

The AIP is dedicated to the improvement, education, and training of parliamentarians. It also provides training for those who preside over lodges, clubs, or fraternities. The knowledge of proper business procedures help speed meetings and helps avoid confusion and misunderstandings.

Membership is open to anyone without regard to race, creed, sex, or age. For further information call Les Dahms, Chairman pro tem, 282-7930 or 287-2470 or Jean J. Babcock Secretary pro tem, 266-6530.

The World of Work

by:

Richard V. Clarke

So much attention has been focused on the growing numbers of women in executive positions that most people think there has actually been more progress than there is.

It reminds me of the period when blacks were just beginning to break into corporate jobs. Only a handful were involved, but it seemed that every day there was a press release announcing someone's appointment, a picture to go along with it so you'd know he was black, and newspaper and television ads showing well-dressed, executive-type blacks boarding planes or using some expensive cologne.

That's what we're seeing now with women, whose entrance into corporate ranks is still relatively small. From all the ads showing women bosses dictating to their male secretaries, rushing into board meetings, or studying papers at enormous desks, you'd think every major company is just loaded with female top brass.

Like the song says, "It ain't necessarily so."

Once the novelty angle wears off, women may find themselves in the same position as black men, whose entrance into middle management ranks did not lead to higher and higher positions.

And, as happened with blacks, women may be the victims of cynicism among corporate executives, who hire them for middle level jobs on the assumption that they will quit after a few years to have babies or move when their husbands transfer to new jobs. One executive is quoted as having said that he prefers women executives because they will work harder for less and pose no threat of competition for the really important jobs requiring longevity and personal influence with the corporate elite.

Another aspect of the rise of women in corporate jobs is the hidden secret that black women's gains have been limited. White women and black women alike have been victims of gender discrimination and now that sex-based bias is lessening, contrary to the two for one theory, black women remain subject to radical discrimination — the double jeopardy of being black and female.

Sometimes I think that the way the executive job pie is being split is a deliberate attempt to foment friction among the three most affected groups — white women, black women, and black men. I've often encountered resentment by individuals in one of those groups directed against another of the groups. I've met black men convinced some black women executives is getting a job that should be his, black women angry about white women's promotions, and white women threatened by black competition for the jobs she wants.

Everyone is so busy protecting their own newly acquired turf, they fail to see that white males still have preference for all the jobs that count.

It's a tangled situation and often a sad one. Sad, because each group ought to be treated fairly in the distribution of executive positions. Sad too, because of the element of manipulation and bad faith on the part of so many employers.

Those corporate executives who think women are a temporary phenomenon and will retreat into blissful motherhood, leaving the top jobs to them, are going to be proved wrong. Women, like blacks, are here to stay. The rewards of executive level jobs — and I don't just mean financial rewards — are such that talented women are going to continue to fight for them.

Affirmative action for groups left out in the past — and that includes women, white and black, and minorities — can't be subject to mindless fads and stereotyped thinking.

There is all too often a cynicism about equal employment opportunity, even in the most progressive companies. There is a feeling that affirmative action is a bookkeeping device, an exercise in juggling numbers and bodies to the minimum level required to satisfy federal compliance reports.

But it isn't. Affirmative action hiring is on one level a remedy for years of being included out, and on another level, a practice designed to strengthen the corporate workforce by bringing in fresh new talent and new people that can renew corporate thinking and make it more responsive to a changing society. That's why fads and cynicism subvert both equal opportunity and corporate self-interest.

Ruling on Williams Trail Evidence Made

Polk County District Court Judge James Denato ruled Wednesday that the body of Pamela Powers would have been found by police even if Robert Anthony Williams had not led police to its location.

This crucial ruling opens the way for the introduction of much of the prosecutions evidence against Williams who is accused of the murder of the 10 year-old Powers girl on Christmas Eve, 1968.

William's 1969 conviction for the murder was overturned this year by the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled William's right to counsel was violated during a car trip from Davenport to Des Moines, when he was convinced by police to lead them to the Powers girl's body.

William's defense lawyers sought to suppress all evidence referring to the condition and discovery of the body but Judge Denato

MOTORCYCLE SAFETY: VISIBILITY CAN MEAN SURVIVAL — Anyone who mounts the saddle of a motorcycle has got to think about survival. Accidents — bad accidents — come easy for the cyclist. He has all of the hazards of automobile travel plus several of his own.

In addition, when an accident occurs it is likely to be spectacular and the injuries severe. The cyclist doesn't have the built-in protection of an automobile, imperfect as that is.

A prominent middle-aged man in an eastern city decided to abandon the bumper-to-bumper rush hour scene in favor of a motorcycle with its convenience and economy. It was no one's fault, really, and it was a low-speed accident. But that split second when the auto driver couldn't see the motorcycle in the intersection left the cyclist a mass of broken bones. After months in the hospital he recovered enough to return to work, but he will spend the rest of his life knowing pain in his deformed and crippled body.

Visibility is very important. That's the message government and private industry safety experts are sounding to try to prevent such accidents: if you get on a motorcycle be sure the cars and trucks on the road can see you.

During the day, bright-colored clothing and even headlights may help. At night they suggest lavish use of retro-reflective material on clothing and sides of the motorcycle (in addition to headlights, of course). This is the same material that is used to produce the highway and street signs that "light up" at night.

The safety helmet continues to be the best single factor in cutting the death and injury risk when accidents do occur. (And they do occur: 328,000 in one year recently, with 2,410 fatalities).

So important is the safety helmet that nearly every state has passed strict laws requiring their use. It was too late, however, for one young man — let's just call him Jimmy Jones — who was a passenger on a motorcycle ride home from a nearby college town in a southern state. The driver died instantly; Jimmy lay in a coma for weeks, awakening finally with severe brain damage. He lives in apparent good physical health, but the once-promising young man will eventually move into an institution after his parents can no longer care for him at home.

In his case, the helmet would have reduced the risk dramatically and might have saved his companion. Individuals and special groups in some states today are trying desperately to get the compulsory helmet laws repealed. Traffic safety experts estimate that in one state which still lacks helmet laws, there will be 600 motorcycle fatalities this year, 150 of which would be prevented with helmet use.

There are other protections recommended by injury control specialists:

* Goggles or face-shield, to improve vision and protect against flying gravel, etc.

* Tough clothing to help absorb the scrapes, scratches, cuts and bumps — leather jacket and gloves, sturdy trousers and footwear even in hot weather.

* A vehicle equipped with rear view mirror and windshield.

These protective measures together with good driving skill and judgement can let the motorcycle be a convenient, fun, economical AND safe way to get around.

Business in the Black

Pan American Airline Aids U.S. Job Market

William T. Seawell, chairman of Pan American World Airways, is a big chested, silver-haired strapping chief of the U.S. major flag carrying airline. Pan American, while it inaugurated overseas scheduled service under the American flag some 50 years ago, even today accounts for some 45 percent of the operations of the U.S. flag system.

The flag system designates the airline which flies from its home country to foreign soil on a scheduled basis. Pan American, which serves approximately 20 cities in the United States and its territories and 80 cities in foreign countries, not only enriches lives of those who travel, but creates domestic jobs, according to the senior officer of the organization.

The former Air Force Brigadier General stated at the Commonwealth Club of California in San Francisco's famous Palace Hotel that travel is one of the most enriching of life experiences. However, while both the automobile and the airplane have together made this experience available on a grand scale to American's at home, it has been the airplane alone that created mass overseas travel.

In 1975, the most recent year for which figures are available, some 41 billion dollars were spent on foreign travel. This was the second largest item in world trade. These dollars are destined to create American jobs in Pan Am figures in any U.S. economic planning. William T. Seawell, states clearly, for today's America, jobs are a foremost national priority.

Pointing out that by general public and political agreement the country is better off if those jobs are provided by the private sector. Since further benefit for the country comes from those jobs involved in export programs that earn significant amounts of foreign exchange for us to spend Seawell says over the years the airlines of the United States have brought into being huge manufacturing programs that have created jobs for hundreds of thousands of Americans.

This involves, of course, the purchase made in America airplanes by both US airlines and foreign-flag airlines. Here the Pan Am ace pilot is talking about the Boeing build 747 and not the SST so shunned by pseudo liberals. The Pan Am order for 747's, the order that launched the wide body programs for passengers and packages, was the largest order for one type of aircraft in the history of commercial aviation, better than half a billion bucks, baby.

590 MILLION DOLLARS

While Seawell went on singing the praise of the airline industry cutting the cost of travel and therefore stopping inflation in mid-flight. Indeed, Pan Am's fares have increased at a consistently lower rate than the consumer price index. That is, in constant dollars a ticket between San Francisco and London costs less than it did in 1974.

This writer was, however, much more impressed with the new hiring program for stewards and stewardess. In fact, here is a suggestion that some of you wishing to fly and/or find jobs jump at the chance to get on board this sensitive and secure airline.

THE POWER & THE GLORY

By Dr. G.E.A. Toote

Stereotyped

Too frequently critics of unemployment cite the large number of blacks and women on the unemployment lines. Little care or sympathy is given to the individual who's ability to pay bills, purchase personal items, and provide for family needs are reduced or negated.

Utophia

In Washington, D.C., maximum unemployment compensation benefit is $148 a week. The average claimant collects benefits for about 26 weeks.

Many of the clerks in the unemployment office take home pay is less than the maximum amount payable to the people they serve.

The District of Columbia is one of the most liberal unemployment jurisdictions in the nation. Since 1975, it has borrowed $49.4 million from the federal government to maintain the high benefit rate for unemployment compensation.

The maximum waiting period for a person who voluntarily quit their job is ten weeks. A person arrested and free on bail is eligible for benefits.

White Collar

Unemployment computer printouts indicate that 19 percent of the recipients of unemployment payments last February were professional, technical or managerial unemployed.

Blacks In Insurance

Although the insurance industry in Iowa can provide a rewarding profession, many black agents in Des Moines say success comes only after hard work and unwavering dedication.

"The probability of success is moderately low due to the ease of entry," said F. E. Billingsly, who for 2½ years has sold life and health insurance for several companies headquartered in Illinois. "It doesn't take anything to enter. But you have to be conscientious and have a genuine interest to and for people" to remain in the field.

Billingsly, 45, said he's not a "captive agent." He sells insurance for Franklin Life, Illinois Mutual and several other firms, "tailoring the product to the needs of the person."

No "specific education" is required to become an insurance agent, Billingsly said. However, he added a person must have a "basic business awareness" and dedication.

There are no firm statistics on the number of insurance companies in the state, but the Iowa Insurance Department said there were 52,878 agents, as of May 1. According to unofficial estimates, there are only about 20 black insurance agents in the capitol city.

Types of insurance cover a wide range of areas, including health, automobile, homes, apartments and property.

To become an insurance agent, a person first must approach a company, which usually conducts various checks into the individual's background. If the person is accepted, the company then requests a license from the state. A person must pass a state test before the license is issued.

Patience and perseverance are other qualities necessary for insurance agents, according to Quincy Southers, 33, an agent for Massachusetts Mutual.

"It takes 18 hours a day. A person really has to be goal oriented," said Southers, who is considered a veteran in the field. "It takes a lot of blood, sweat and tears for success. It takes about five years to start breaking into your own."

Southers, a Des Moines native who has been with Massachusetts Mutual four years, sells life and health, tax shelter annuities, disability insurance. His specialty is in estate planning and business insurance.

Estate planning, according to Southers, is the coordination of personal assets so that in the event of death, there will be a will and trusts providing money for burial and income for the family.

Larry E. Conner, 26, an agent for Allstate Insurance Co. said he would recommend the profession to "individuals who like people and don't mind working throughout the day."

However, Conner said many people have misconceptions about both insurance and insurance agents.

"Most black people know they need life insurance, but they feel they should wait until they are older and more stable. But it only takes a minute before you are uninsurable," said Conner, adding he first thought agents had to "go door-to-door."

According to Conner, having "on-the-job insurance" is only the beginning. He said a person must realize that once employment is terminated - either through retirement, dismissal or resignation - the insurance stops. Having personal insurance should be a priority with everyone, he said.

Conner sells multi-line insurance, ranging from automobile and home owners to accident and health. He said the various types of insurance keeps him "flexible" and "tends to keep customers for a longer period of time."

Conner's background exemplifies the fact that no specific education is required to become an agent. A graduate of Texas A & M with emphasis in biology and zoology, Conner said his original plans were to become a doctor. He later switched to veterinarian science.

"I had no idea I'd be selling insurance, but I like meeting people and I like to talk a lot," he said.

Even Garen Franklin, 27, a native of Lawton, Okla., said he worked his way through school selling biblical literature and other publications. He said he began working with Central Life Agency about 1½ years ago because "he believes in the product and the substantial need for life insurance." He had been a client of the company nine years before actually selling the insurance.

Franklin said he sells mostly personal life, disability, mortgage cancellation and retirement income insurance.

Agents may employ various techniques to sell their products, said Franklin. However, he said he "doesn't use pressure" and does a lot of "prospecting to find people."

"I don't mind sitting down and explaining things," said Franklin. "You have to have the ability to communicate to people from all walks of life. It takes a number of years before you can work a specific market. Few people are born salesmen."

Hawthorns Graduate From Universities

Venita D. Hawthorne graduated summa cum laude from Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo., on Saturday, May 21, at the 111th Commencement exercises. In achieving the highest plaudits colleges bestow on undergraduates, Miss Hawthorne accumulated a 3.8 grade point average in her four year stint towards her bachelor of arts in journalism degree.

Attending the ceremonies were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hawthorne Jr., her sister, Valerie, and two brothers, Victor and Vance.

A 1974 graduate of North High, where she served as co-editor of the school newspaper and section editor of the yearbook, Miss Hawthorne enrolled at Lincoln University as a National Achievement Scholar. On that basis she was named a Presidential Scholar by Lincoln U., which awarded her a four-year full scholarship, as long as she maintained a B-average in her studies.

While at Lincoln U. Miss Hawthorne worked on the school newspaper, The Clarion and radio station, and was selected as editor-in-chief in her senior year. Also she was a member of the Student Government Association, serving as one of 15 representatives at the Black Expo in Chicago, Ill., in her sophomore year.

A member of Phi Delta Chi, national honorary journalism fraternity, she represented Lincoln U., at the 3-day National Communications Conference in Washington, D.C., late in February 1977. She was also named to Who's Who in American College Students for 1977 and was awarded a plaque.

Last summer she was accepted for two internships but selected Better Homes and Gardens published by Meredith Corp., Inc.

After a two week vacation in Des Moines Miss Hawthorne will go to Topeka, Kans., where she will work a summer internship on the Topeka, Gazette.

D. Vance Hawthorne, received the bachelor of arts degree in journalism from the School of Communications at Howard University, Washington, D.C., on Saturday, May 14. Attending the 109th commencement ceremonies were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hawthorne, Jr., his sister, Valerie, and brother, Victor, a 1975 graduate of Howard U.

A 1971 graduate of North High, Mr. Hawthorne attended the University of Colorado at Boulder before dropping out a year, then transferring to Howard, where he specialized in investigative reporting.

While attending Howard U., he wrote for the school newspaper, The Hilltop, and worked as its feature editor during his senior year. He also was one of six students (and the only one from Howard U.) attending colleges in the nation's capital, to receive a $1500.00 scholarship from that city's chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national honorary journalism fraternity.

Last summer he worked on an internship with Better Homes and Gardens at Meredith Corp., Inc., and as a free lance writer for the The New Iowa Bystander.

In addition, Mr. Hawthorne was one of two journalism students selected to attend with full press privileges, Second World Black and African Festival of Arts and Cultures (FESTAC), in Lagos, Nigeria from Jan. 31 to Feb. 15, 1977. He wrote extensive articles on his African experiences for the campus newspapers and other weeklies, including the Afro-American.

After a two-week vacation at home, Mr. Hawthorne left for Washington, D.C., Monday where he will work a summer internship in the office of the nationally known syndicated columnist, Jack Anderson.

You May Qualify For Free Medical or Dental Health Care

You May Qualify for FREE Medical or Dental Care!

The Des Moines Health Center is one of those rare animals in today's world — a totally free service for those who need it. Established in Des Moines in 1919, the Health Center offers free dental and medical care to families unable to pay for such care, and also free dental care for qualified adults. The services are currently limited to individuals and families living or working in Polk County.

The Health Center houses three (3) separate clinics. First is the medical clinic providing immunizations, physical examinations, vision and hearing screenings, and day to day sick care for all eligible children from birth to eighteen years of age. As an added service, the medical clinic also offers free eye care to eligible children and their parents.

The second clinic is the children's dental clinic providing a full range of general dental services to eligible children from three to eighteen years of age. The services are prevention oriented, and it is expected that parents will bring in their children every six months for check-ups. As a community service, the Health Center offers free dental check-ups to all children of families living or working in Polk County regardless of income, although a family must be eligible to receive any further dental work found necessary in the check-up. An additional service of this clinic is a program of limited financial assistance to low income families whose children come to our Center and are in clear need of brace work.

The third clinic is the adult dental program, again providing a full range of general dental services, up to and including full mouth dentures. The emphasis of this clinic is saving teeth whenever possible. The services are open to all adults, parents and non-parents alike, who qualify by income, and live or work in Polk County.

The Des Moines Health Center is anxious to provide the services of its three clinics to as many people in need of them as they can reach. The Center is open 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, and encourages you to call them at 244-1181.

KCCI-TV Special On B.T. Washington

A half-hour special on the life of the slave who became a great educator and statesman will air on TV-8 on Wednesday, June 8th 6:30 to 7:00 PM. The program is a part of an "American Lifestyle" series and is hosted and narrated by Hugh Downs.

Each program spotlights the life, times, and historical background of a famous American and his imprint left on this country. Other

Dolls

Bob Smith of rural Battle Creek has put a lot of work into his hand-carved dolls. He has carved around 60 dolls and has five wooden dolls that are about five-eighths the size of an average person. They weigh 15 pounds and stand 39 inches tall. He also makes the outfits that the dolls wear and even cuts the dolls hair after he has fitted her with a Hong-Kong wig. The dolls outfits include dresses, skirts, sandals, clogs and earrings. —Ida Grove Pioneer Record.

programs are about Eddie Richenbacher on June 22, and Alexander Graham Bell on July 6.

The story of Booker T. Washington starts at the site of the slave cabin where he was born and where his worth was recorded in his owner's ledger as being $400. It ends in the chapel of Tuskegee Institute, near his grave, long after the world had recognized him as an invaluable human being, a man of iron determination and immense abilities. In between are the places and people who touched him and, in turn, were touched.

Check Canner Before Using

Just as your car needs a check-up before taking a long trip, your pressure canner needs a careful pre-season inspection.

"You must check it for safety's sake — to be sure the canner is safe to operate and the food processed will be safe to eat," says Linn County extension home economist Susan Uthoff.

"The pressure gauge must be accurate to get the required processing temperature to kill dangerous microorganisms," she says.

If you have a dial-type pressure gauge, check the pointer. Is it loose or does it move back and forth when the cover is tipped? If you answered yes to any of these, your gauge must be replaced.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) says if you dial gauge is off five pounds or more, you need a new gauge. Some manufacturers may have different suggestions. USDA does say if the gauge is off by four pounds or less, you can correct the processing. If the gauge reads two pounds too high, process at 12 pounds instead of the usual 10 pounds. Likewise, if the gauge reads two pounds too low, just process at 8 instead of 10 pounds. As a reminder, tie a tag on your canner stating the reading you need to get the correct pressure.

If you have questions, stop by your county extension office and pick up the free publication, "Care for Your Canner," Pm. 623.

Tips on Make-up

by
Claudia Shepherd

PART I: The Inner You

Applying make-up is far more extensive than just buying cosmetics and using them properly. Beauty begins with the inner you. Before anyone can be attractive, they should feel attractive. This consists of dealing with your most private thoughts about yourself:

1. What do you feel is attractive or unattractive about you? (Be honest)
2. Do you analyze your negative thoughts?
3. How do you feel around others?

If you are one of the very lucky people who feel that you have everything going for you, you needn't bother to read on, but if you feel you would like to improve your image it might be wise to take a few things into account. What ever you think is attractive, accent it, bring it out. If it's your facial features, make them stand out more. If its your figure, wear clothes to show it. On the other hand, the things you feel are unattractive, and you can't improve them through exercise or make-up, don't put emphasis on them, just concentrate on your more positive features.

The things you feel are negative about your personality, work on improving them. Begin by thinking about the good things in your life. Whether they are big or small, think about them. Find good traits in others, this must be done before you find the good points about yourself. When others criticize you, listen, but don't let it change you if you feel it was destructive rather than constructive. Take a few minutes out of the day to pat yourself on the back for accomplishments you've made and by the same token, compliment others on their achievements or successes.

When you are around others, you should not compare your looks or status with theirs. This can keep you on the defensive end. It is important that you remain yourself. Have your own goals set, stick with them and be proud of them. Others can tell if you are secure or insecure. Confidence begins from within and reflects out. If you feel cool and confident, others will see you this way. Smile and remember that make-up includes your entire self and only works when you let it. Reflections of beauty are seen through make-up, not in it.

NEXT WEEK: Part II, Selection of Make-up.

(A brief description of the author)

Claudia is a Des Moines girl. She has had charm and modeling courses and modeled for several Des Moines stores and community groups. Claudia has always loved working with make-up techniques and was offered an interview with Ebony Fashion Fair for which she turned down to pursue a degree in child psychology. She is always willing to help anyone who is concerned about good grooming and self-awareness.

She is presently employed full-time as a secretary for D.M. Apprenticeship Outreach Program and attending Drake University. Ms. Shepherd said her long range goals are to open up a modeling school in Des Moines.

Musical comedy set for Drake

"Dames at Sea," the campy, 1930s-style, rollicking hit musical comedy, will be presented dinner-theatre style Friday and Saturday, June 17-18 and 24-25, in the Olmsted Center, 29th Street and University Avenue.

The Olmsted Buffet will begin at 6 p.m., and the musical will begin at 8. Dr. Gary Hobbs, associate professor and chairman of the Department of Theatre Arts, directs the production.

The comedy was written by George Haimsohn and Robin Miller. Jim Wise wrote the music. The recent off-Broadway production of "Dames at Sea" brought fame to its star, Bernadette Peters.

Among the cast members is Randall Herbst, junior, 4615 Valdez Drive, who plays the lead male role.

To make reservations or for more information, telephone the Olmsted Center at 271-3986.

Plant

Mrs. Otto Phelps of Colesburg received a Mother's Day gift of a Christmas amaryllis. The Christmas amaryllis is a bit mixed-up because it is now in full bloom with bright orange blossoms. The amaryllis was given to her by Maj. and Mrs. Fred Phelps of California—Guttenberg Press.

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority

Each year Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Phi Chapter sets aside a week during the month of May to emphasize scholastic achievements, educational opportunities, and the encouragement of higher scholarship for the youth of our community. This year the week designated was May 23 thru 27, 1977. To epitomize the effort, a program was held at Martin Luther King Elementary School, May 26, 7:30 p.m., at which time a total of $2500 in scholarships were awarded to the following individuals: Pamela Bruce, Vien Dao Doan, Jonetta Cameron, Emmitt Johnson, Jr., David Jones, Karen Rollison, Lafe Fowler. The occasion was also honored with Mrs. Frances Hawthorn, Education Coordinator, Edmunds Elementary School, as keynote speaker whose presentation was on the gifted child.

Cynthia Lynn Robinson

June Graduate

Cynthia Lynn Robinson, formerly of Des Moines and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Robinson, Jr., was graduated from Robert E. Peary High School in Rockville, Maryland on June 10.

Cynde has been selected for membership into the National Honor Society and in the fall will begin studies toward a degree in nursing at Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, North Carolina.

Her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Robinson and maternal grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude J. Harris, reside in Des Moines.

Mrs. Dora Drew Of Washington, D. C. A Holiday Visitor

Mrs. Dora Drew of Washington, D.C. was in Des Moines last week visiting friends and relatives. She is the former Dora Newcomb of this city and is the widow of the late Howard Drew, a former outstanding athlete at Drake University. They lived in New Haven, Connecticut following their marriage.

Strokes & Folks

by Edna Griffin

I Have a Dream

I, too, have a dream. It is two parts in color! First, that our memorials to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. will recall the heroic efforts of both black and white youth in the Freedom movement, especially black youth in the South. That's the first part of my dream.

The first part of my dream is NAACP planning and organizing of a two-prong campaign to elect a Black city council person and another Black person to the school board providing Mr. Gentry has officially decided against running for re-election. Such efforts, I dream, would be a living memorial to Dr. King, Jr., as well as an example to whole state in making Dr. King's birthday a continuing inspiration to us all.

If you share the dream, do you suppose we could each buy an NAACP membership and get one friend to do likewise? We would be in on the planning and decision making. Can we stop grumbling about the past, face the present and do a bit of planning for the future!

My quota for the membership drive is ten. I'll be seeing you before June 15th.

Aquarium show at Valley Mall

The Greater Iowa Aquarium Association will host an Aquarium Show June 10 through June 12 at Valley West West Mall. Over fifty aquascaped tanks will be displayed in the center court of the Mall, lower level. Sizes will range from 10 gallon to over 35 gallon tanks.

Hundreds of tropical and exotic fish will be displayed including both fresh water and salt water varieties. Members of the Aquarium Association will be present to answer any questions regarding care of both fish and tanks alike.

The show will be open during mall hours Friday 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Sunday 12 noon to 5:30 p.m.

Sports open to women at DMACC Boone campus

Women registered at the Boone Campus of Des Moines Area Community College will have the opportunity to participate in intercollegiate sports for the first time starting this fall.

Action approving the expansion of the sports program to include women's athletics was taken at the May meeting of the board of directors and is in compliance with Title IX.

Byron Hamilton, dean of the campus, says that programs will be developed in the three sports approved by the board: golf, basketball and softball.

Athletic Director Harold Johnson says that the move by the board has been well received in the community. "Athletics is a part of the college here... a tradition. Judging from the enthusiastic backing of the men's teams I anticipate that women's intercollegiate competition will generate a lot of interest also."

He says that present plans are that Dick Tays, who has coached two consecutive men's championship golf teams, will also coach women's golf. (The men's team will be competing in the national tournament at Ft. Myers, Florida, early in June. Members of the team are Roger James, Mike McCutcheon, John Roan, Bobby Tays and Dion Schrack.)

You don't have to break into your nest egg to create great casseroles when you cook them with economical eggs.

EGGONOMICAL CASSEROLE

- 9-10 slices white or whole wheat bread, thinly sliced
- 1 cup cooked, diced ham or other meat
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 1/2 pound mozzarella cheese, shredded
- 6 eggs
- 1-3/4 cups milk
- 1/4 cup Bourbon or other whiskey
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- Dash cayenne

Cut bread into quarters. Arrange half the bread in the bottom of a shallow 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with half the ham, onion and cheese. Repeat layers. Combine eggs, milk, Bourbon and seasonings. Pour over layers. Let stand 5 minutes, or longer, if desired. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375° F.) 30-35 minutes or until puffed and golden. Makes 6 servings.

This golden, delicious dish can help you have elegant meals without shelling out a lot of gold.

Graduation Around The World

What's the best way to reward a new graduate, now ready for bigger and better things?

At one time, among the Parintinin Indians of South America, it was with a new bride, awarded to the brand new warrior after his coming-of-age ceremony. The Tacuna Indians, also of South America, gave the initiated a sniff of tobacco and a formal introduction to the tribe's sacred trumpets. Their neighbors, the Carari, felt that what a man needed on such an important day was a drink—a heady blend of charred fish, game bones and ashes.

Our own graduation ceremonies are probably descended from those of the Middle Ages. The mortar board is said to symbolize the quadrivium, the four-subject curriculum of ancient universities. Another theory is that the shape protected wearers from the rain. The gowns worn at commencements were originally devised to keep English dons warm during lectures in dank halls.

A custom common around the world is to give the new graduate a gift. One that many modern American graduates would appreciate is a new sound movie camera that can shoot Super 8 sound movies even in dim light. Though low priced, it has automatic exposure and volume control.

LEAVING COLLEGE OR ENTERING THE TRIBE
a graduate gets gifts around the world.

It's called the XL/2 Sound and comes from GAF with an omni-directional microphone that can produce excellent sound quality.

Whatever a graduate receives—and wherever and whenever the graduation—the gift is a reward for having mastered the knowledge each culture considers most important.

A Poem For Memorial Day

Gone are the days when my heart was young and gay.

Gone are my friends to a better land I know.

Around the world the tears of time is falling

And for the love and lost these human hearts are calling

To age and youth let gracious words be spoken.

Upon the wheel of pain, so many weary lives are broken

The sunset tints will soon be in the west.

Too late the flowers are laid then on the quiet breast.

And when the angel guides have sought and us their hands shall link the broken ties, and heaven and home shall brighten all around us.

Living History Farms Events

Council On Black Child Development

Washington, D.C.— The National Council for Black Child Development will hold its Fifth Annual National Conference from June 8-12, 1977, at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The theme for the conference is: "Black Children and Their Families—Then—Now—Making Decisions—Movin' On!"

Recognizing that a concerted effort will be required to improve the life chances of Black children and youth, this conference will also focus on improving communication and coordination between diverse groups in the Black community. "We anticipate that individuals from organizations representing the rich diversity of the Black community will attend this conference," commented Mr. Littlejohn. "It is our hope and expectation that through the exchange of ideas lasting coalitions will develop," Mr. Littlejohn continued.

Safety Tips For Push Mowers

Mowing the lawn with efficiency and safety is in your power—if you use your power mower right. Here are some basic safety tips on using a push mower from experts at the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute.

DON'T BE ALL WET—Make sure grass is dry when you mow it.

1. It's essential to read the owner's manual carefully before using the mower.
2. Keep children and pets away from the mower area.
3. Wear sturdy shoes and close-fitting slacks. Never operate the mower in bare feet or sandals.
4. Never adjust or leave the machine without stopping the mower and disconnecting the spark plug.
5. Don't mow wet grass. It can cause you to slip and lose control and blades and discharge chute to clog.
6. Steer the push mower across slopes, never up and down. Always watch your footing, especially on slopes.
7. Follow proper mowing patterns to avoid cutting the cord with an electric mower.
8. Make sure to keep the mower flat on the ground to protect legs and feet. Never lift, tilt or pull it toward you.

Follow these tips and you'll be mowing yourself to safety.

June Tips For The Green Thumb

By Mohamad W. Khan County Extension Associate

Now that the garden is growing vegetatively, June brings much physical work and satisfaction — keeping the pests and diseases under control and harvesting the early vegetables and fruits.

If the weather stays dry, continuous watering is also an additional chore. Mulch, however, is an important aid in suppressing weeds and holding moisture. It is important to water thoroughly and wait until it is dry before watering again. This method is much better than frequent sprinkling. On the other hand, fertilizer should be used little at a time and frequently for the crops that need it.

Be aware of any signs of disease organisms or insect activity. Daily observation is necessary since many fungus diseases can spread over night. Besides, an hour of work daily will not only take care of the insects and diseases but will also control the weeds.

Since this month brings relatively warm weather even the most tender plants can be planted outdoors. These include peppers, eggplants, geraniums, begonias, fuchsias and impatiens. Fast growing annuals such as zinnias, marigolds, cosmos, sweet alyssum and sunflowers can now be sown outdoors.

Strawberry plants can be started by placing the runners in small pots filled with soil and buried to their rims in the ground. The runners are then pegged down to the soil in the pots. If these young rooted plants are set out in August they should produce fruit next year.

Summer flowering bulbs and other specialized underground parts can now be planted. Among these are caladiums, tigridias, begonias and amaryllis. Also continue to make plantings of gladioli at two-week intervals until the end of this month. The beginning of June is excellent time for setting out dalias. Cultivate them periodically until they are established, and mulch them before the weather becomes excessively hot.

Roses should receive their second feeding of fertilizer at the time they are coming bloom. It is also preferable to grow roses in slightly acid soil — a PH ranging from 5.5 to 6.5. Potted roses may still be planted, but avoid disturbing the root system. Stake heavy flowering peonies to prevent wind and soil damage. When cutting blooms allow two or more leaves to remain on the stalk of the peony. All faded blooms on perennial flowers and shrubs such as roses, peonies and lilacs, should be removed to prevent seed formation.

Energy Conservation Seminars Start May 26

The first session of a three-month Energy Conservation Seminar series was presented Thursday, May 26, 7:00 p.m., at Des Moines Savings' Westown branch office, 1661-22nd Street, West Des Moines.

The seminar series is designed to inform the public on a wide range of energy-related topics, including: selecting and installing insulation, energy efficiency of air conditioners and other major appliances, alternative energy sources, and more. The emphasis will be on the individual homeowner, and what he can do to improve the energy efficiency of his home.

Each seminar topic will be presented on four successive Thursdays at locations throughout the Des Moines area. The schedule for the first seminar, "Introduction To Energy Efficiency In Your Home", is as follows:

Thursday, June 9 — Brody Junior High School (Auditorium)

Thursday, June 16 — Hoyt Junior High School Cafetorium)

All seminars start at 7:00 p.m.

The Energy Conservation Seminars are sponsored by Des Moines Savings in cooperation with Iowa Power, the Iowa Energy Policy Council, and the Des Moines Public Schools Department of Community and Adult Education.

Rogers to Conduct Recording Workshop

Long Beach, California: After addressing two special assemblies at Franklin Jr. High and Poly Tech High in the City of Long Beach, California, and being made aware of the genuine interest expressed by the students to learn more about the recording industry, D. J. Rogers, has consented to conduct a series of recording technique workshops for the interested students.

Primarily, these recording technique workshops will be geared for the upper class students majoring in music, and will be conducted at the Total Experience Recording Studios located in Hollywood, California.

The workshop sessions will consist of explanation of studio microphone placement and mixing board techniques. Additionally D.J. Rogers, will intercede in getting other name recording artists and producers to address the groups during these workshop sessions, an impart to the students other informations about recording that could be very helpful in their learning about the recording industry.

The participating students will be under the supervision of their respective teachers during each workshop session they attend.

Regarding this student project D. J. Rogers stated, "right now the program is in the experimental stages and hopefully it'll work. If it does come off right, and I see that it's really helping the students in a meaningful manner, I'll certainly be glad to expand it and make it available to more high schools and their interested students."

Scholarships Given In Miss Black Teenage Pageant

Danville, Va.: "We are proud of the fact that throughout America, we have 52 young people enrolled in colleges and universities because of their participation in the Miss Black Teenage World Pageant," so says Ronald Charity, President and Founder of Pageants Unlimited, Inc., the organization that produces the Pageant. PUI is seven years old while the Miss Black Teenage World Pageant enjoys its 5th year of operation; after having presented its finalists in excess of $475,000 in college scholarships over those five years. Charity says, "if we do nothing else in life, we've provided a vehicle of expression and a chance to get a college degree to a number of black teenagers, our life has been worthwhile."

Charity continues, "the colleges and universities across the country have been outstanding in their support of our pageant program through these scholarships over the past five years. Because of the scholarships, many teenagers have been looking for the same kind of support from business organizations and have not found it. Hopefully, they will recognize the value of our programs as the colleges have done, and then we will be in the position to do a top flight job of presenting our teenagers to the audiences of the world.

The 1977 Pageant, "An Afro-American Odyssey," will be held in Roanoke, Virginia July 22 through 30.

The Roanoke Opportunities Industrialization Center and the Burrell Memorial Hospital Association are co-producers of this years pageant with the proceeds being donated to open the Burrell Memorial Hospital Emergency Room. Burrell Memorial Hospital is a 92 bed community hospital with 60% of its staff being black and living in the community.

The MBTW Pageant is open to teenagers, from around the world, 15 to 17 years old. The Pageant competition includes, Sportswear, Creative Expression, Talent, Eveningwear and Personal Projection.

Deadline for entering the Pageant is July 1, and persons interested in entering should write Pageants Unlimited, Inc., P.O. Box 1139, Danville, Virginia 24541.

Questions & Answers for Vets

Q — I completed six months training on active duty with the National Guard. Am I eligible for Veterans Administration hospital benefits?

A — National Guardsmen who complete active duty for training are not eligible for VA hospital benefits unless they are disabled from disease or injury incurred or aggravated in line of duty.

Q. Both my neighbor and I are 100 per cent service-connected disabled. He and his wife receive $785 from the Veterans Administration each month. Why do my wife and I only get $750?

A. — Your neighbor receives an additional $35 because his wife is in need of aid and attendance.

Q — I am a veteran who has been awarded disability compensation rated at 40 per cent from the Veterans Administration. What is the advantage of receiving benefits under the VA's vocational rehabilitation program?

A — While in training and for two months after rehabilitation, eligible disabled veterans may receive subsistence allowances in addition to their disability compensation, plus tuition, books and fees.

LOOK ON SPORTS

With the city high school sports program being what it is, a fellow would have to be twins to see everything going on. I missed the Metro track meet because of tennis. In doing that I missed one of the best high jumps in a few years.

Mark Williams tied the mark of 6-4 set in 1971. But as I look at the summary of the big one, Mark ran into a few jumpers or else it was a day when everybody was jumping well, and didn't make it. That's the breaks, Mark.

Last week end I had to choose between the boys track meet and the boys state tennis meet. It happens that I know a little more about tennis than I do track, so I went where I could see more of what I knew was going on. There was a pleasant surprise at the meet. A young fellow named I think, Clark Gregory, brought the South Tama team to the finals of the small school doubles finals. He said he has been coaching three years at the school and had encountered no problems that he couldn't handle. This was the first time he had brought a team to the finals. I saw him play in the Iowa Open at least once, and he said they got rid of him quickly.

He also had the problem of not having enough time to teach his kids on a one on one basis, which seems to be common to most high school coaches, and I wonder if it is of some college coaches who can't afford large staffs.

Last year I met the young fellow from Africa who played for Iowa City, and I hoped to see him again, but he either had gone home or else didn't get to the finals. There wasn't one black player in the thing, or else I didn't see him. But then I wasn't looking for blacks as such.

With the tennis programs going on around the state, some of the kids in big cities will come up and they will have to be counted when they talk of tennis players.

I never forgave Ron Maly for his constant dwelling on the fact that Mark Morrow would be the first black to win the singles title. I believe that pressure did him in in his junior year, although he would never admit it. It was a load in his last year, but he made it. He said he had injuries and illness that caused him to miss a few matches. In fact, the whole Iowa team had illness problems, or Mark thinks they might have done lots better. Forgot to ask him what his record was, but maybe he might not have told me.

Watching athletics around the city, one can't help but reflect on the days when there wasn't as many programs going on as there are now. And it seemed that blacks were excluded from most of them then. I don't know if they just didn't want in the various leagues or if they were barred. Most of the black teams played semi pro ball and they made a little money each time they went out.

In those days every buck counted, so maybe that was the reason why no blacks got in any of the leagues.

In basketball we had a few really good players, but not enough to have a chance with the beefed up teams in those leagues. But we finally got a ball club together that won the YMCA league going away.

But come tournament time the other clubs went out and got players off the different schools, not excluding Drake, and our club had tough luck.

Of course most of the semi pro athletics were reported in the daily papers in a special section and sometimes the paper sent out people to cover what they thought was an important contest. But now there is so much going on that there doesn't seem to be room in the papers for those things.

Then there aren't the semi pro clubs that there were then. We blacks had our own teams and sometimes our own leagues. Now you can't tell what blacks are playing on the teams unless you know them personally or go out to the games.

There are a few old timers like Bud Collins who are trying hard to hang onto the concept of all black teams, but they just can't corral all of the good black players in any sport, and because of their early training in different little leagues, it is hard to find any sort of a club that doesn't include at least one black player, and that is the way I think it should be.

While we are talking tennis, there seems to be quite a flap going on over the football game between Iowa U. and Iowa State. I wonder if you have seen some of the bumper stickers that are out now. Better get your seat now if you want to be on. one of what will have to be the most emotional games ever played around these parts. September will be around sooner than you think.

During the 1912 Olympic games in Stockholm, Max Klein of Russia and Alfred Asikainen of Finland engaged in a middleweight grappling contest that lasted nearly 11 hours.

Ali to Wed

Heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali will marry Veronica Porche, the mother of his year-old daughter, Hana, on June 19 at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

Wedding arrangements were made by Porche, whose family lives in Los Angeles, Calif. It will be the third marriage for the 35-year-old fighter and the first for Porche, a fashion model in her mid-20's.

Ali has four other children by his second wife, Kalailah Ali, formerly known as Melinda Ali.

Donell McDougale

Named to NAIA Baseball Team

An Iowa Wesleyan College junior, Donell McDougale of Chicago, was named to the N.A.I.A. District 15 baseball first team. McDougale played shortstop for the Tigers this past season. He led the Tigers in hitting with a .327 average and stolen bases with 11. He tied for the team leadership in runs scored and triples. He also had the lowest at bat-strike out ratio, striking out just four times in 52 at bats.

A two year letter-winner at Iowa Wesleyan, McDougale graduated from Dunbar Vocational High School in Chicago in 1975. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory McDougale of 5310 S. Princeton, Chicago.

EAST TAKES 2nd IN METRO

(Highest Finish in Metro History for East)

by Jock Johnson

Brad Brown, top mile man in Metro

Keith Gates, East's
star sprinter

The East High Track team left Williams stadium, going to Drake Stadium with one thing in mind, to win the Metropolitan Conference Championship. This year's track team has been the best in recent years: they won two major track meets this spring, the Valley Relays and the Urbandale Relays. And also they made a better showing in the Drake relays than any other metro school by placing in the medley relay and the 440 relay, with Keith Gates taking 4th in the 100 yard dash and Brad Brown placing in the one mile run.

Now it was time for the big test, and East went into the championship favored by a small amount. East had been weak in the field all year and this turned out to be the hold back. East led by Keith Gates and Brad Brown was fantastic on the oval, Gates winning the 100 yard dash in 10.1 and running a fine leg on the 440 yard relay. He also qualified for the 100 yard dash in the state meet. Keith resides with his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. George Tywater and will be attending Waldorf College next fall.

AMERICA'S HERITAGE

Gold Mine Ingots

Sutter's mill was a familiar name to the forty-niners who rushed west to find their fortunes but they never heard of Pueblo Viejo, Carlin, or Similkameen. All are among 50 leading gold mines of North America featured in a new collection of ingots called The Official Gold Mine Ingots. The Franklin Mint has been authorized to strike a limited edition of ingots in 24 karat gold.

The 50 ingots in the collection will represent leading gold mines of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic—the five major gold producing nations of North America.

The name of each mine will appear on the obverse of the official ingot, and the reverse will bear the name of the owner/operator of the mine and an engraved map indicating where that mine is located.

Each ingot weighs at least 40 grains of 24 karat gold; the complete set contains more than 2,000 grains.

The ingots, priced at $37.50 each, will be issued at the rate of one a month. A collector's chest, made of polished hardwood and leather and fitted with a transparent security cover, will permit display of the ingots when locked for protection.

Rev. Heath Resigns Shiloh Post

Pastor W. S. Heath

Rev. William S. Heath was called as supply Pastor on Dec. 31, 1959 where he served 2 months. On Feb. 25, 1960 he was asked to accept the call of Pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church.

He has been a loyal and faithful Pastor. There have been many additions to the church through Baptisms and by letter. Where there was a human need he was there to do what ever was helpful. Under his leadership the church was completely remodeled and refurnished.

A special call meeting on Aug. 21, 1976 where the Deacons presented the resignation of Rev. William S. Heath because of health reasons and the persistence of his doctor. This was recommended to the church by the Deacons Board. Everyone present regretted the need for him to resign.

In appreciation of his services, the vacancy will not be filled for a period of one year, starting Aug. 21, 1976. This was acceptable to everyone present. Go With God.

MESSIAH TEMPLE

"And if it seem evil unto you to serve the Lord, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Reverend Jacob Reed, Pastor of Messiah Temple, brought us this timely message last Sunday. The Lord is a jealous God and will not be served by someone who is trying to split his time between God and idols. The Lord wants us to serve Him with our whole heart, mind, body, and soul. The choice is ours to make, and God rewards us

"Youth Day" will be held on June 12. We regret our scheduled speaker, Mr. Robbie Smith, will not be able to speak to us. We have engaged Mr. Odell McGee, a Drake Law School graduate, who was recommended to us by Mr. Smith, to be our guest speaker for Morning Service on Youth Day. Young people of the church will be in charge of the entire service. The Mapleleaf Children's Choir will be singing.

Our "Annual Mother's Day & Father's Day Breakfast" will be held on Sunday, June 19th at the church. Men of the church will be in the kitchen. All members and their families are cordially invited to attend.

MT. OLIVE BAPTIST CHURCH

Preparations are underway for the observance of the 27th Anniversary of our Pastor and wife, Reverend and Mrs. H. R. Fields.

The following services are planned:

Saturday, June 4 - White Elephant Sale, featuring Door Prizes of cash and jewelry. Sale to be conducted at the home of Mrs. Roberta Pack, 1112 - 8th Street, 4:00 p.m. until sold out!

Sunday, June 5, 6:00 p.m. - Old Ship of Zion, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Vernice Bragg. Narrator will be Dencie Drain; vocalists from throughout the city will participate.

Sunday, June 12, 3:30 p.m. - Reverend Harold Reynolds, Faith Temple, Omaha, Nebraska, will be giving a sermon for our June graduates. Reverend Reynolds is a dynamic speaker, and he will be bringing his family along to provide the music for this service. COME OUT.

Sunday, June 19, 3:30 p.m. - The men of Mt. Olive will be presenting a Fathers' Day program. Let's give them our support.

Sunday, June 26 (time to be announced later), a presentation entitled "Women of the Bible" will take place with participants from various churches involved.

Sunday, July 3 Reverend Colbert, St. John Baptist Church, Omaha, will start off a week of services in honor of our pastor.

We are looking forward to seeing many of you in attendance at these planned services. We, at Mt. Olive, invite you to share in the occasion of our pastor's 27th Anniversary.

Jehovah's Witness Convention Here

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York has completed arrangements for a series-of 108 conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses this summer in the United States.

G. McKay, Jr., spokesman in Des Moines said the local congregation will send 900 representatives to Des Moines, June 16-19. The meeting is scheduled for the Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

McKay said the theme of the conventions this year is "Joyful Workers."

McKay also said that 8,500 are expected to attend the four-day assembly.

McKay added that nearly 1,000,000 persons are expected to attend 108 conventions in 63 cities this year.

"We expect attendance figures to exceed 1976 totals," he said. "Last year 2,333,115 delegates were present at meetings in 56 countries throughout the world."

McKay said the program is divided into four parts including family life, productive work in a troubled society, emphasis on the Witnesses' house-to-house visitation program and impressions on coping with the problems affecting youth and adults. The highlight of the convention will be the address, "How God's Kingdom can Benefit You," by R. J. Hurst scheduled for Sunday, June 19, at 2 p.m. The public is invited.

EASY SPINACH STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1-1/2 pounds medium to large fresh mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice

About 1 cup soft bread crumbs, divided

1 package (12 oz.) frozen spinach souffle, thawed

Rinse, pat dry and remove stems from mushrooms. Brush outside portion of caps with melted butter mixed with lemon juice. Place on a shallow baking pan. Sprinkle inside of each mushroom with 1/2 teaspoon of the bread crumbs. Fill caps with spinach souffle; sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350° F.) until golden, about 15 minutes.

Yield: About 30 stuffed mushrooms.

Two Blacks Named To White House Bd.

President Carter recently named two Blacks to the President's Commission on White House Fellowships and announced the selection of two Blacks as White House Fellows.

A citizen of American-Mexican origin also was among the recipients.

President Carter selected Walter G. Davis, Director of Education, AFL-CIO of Washington, and Carl Holman, President, National Urban Coalition, Washington, to serve as members of the President's Commission on White House Fellowships.

Blacks announced by the President as being chosen as White House Fellows were Joseph B. Anderson, a U.S.

Army Major from Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, and Beverly J. Hawkins, a Public Administration Instructor at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

Nelson A. Diaz, Executive Director of the Spanish Merchants Association and a Mexican-American, of Mt. Holly, New Jersey, also was chosen.

The Fellows were chosen from among 1334 applicants and were screened by 11 regional panels. The President's Commission interviewed 37 national finalists before recommending the 14 persons to the President. They begin their year of service on September 1.

The White House

Fellowship program was established in 1964 to provide outstanding young Americans with firsthand experience in the process of governing the Nation. They are given educational assignments with the Vice President, Cabinet members and members of the White House staff.

They also participate in an extensive seminar program that includes some 300 off-record sessions with top government officials, scholars, journalists and leaders from various other segments of private life.

Retires

Rev. Laurence B. Hawes final sermon is scheduled for Sunday, June 12 at both the Millersburg United Methodist Church and Union Church in South English. He is retiring after 42 years in the ministry. He is building a retirement home for he and his invalid wife in Olin.

30 NOSTALGIA CORNER

Buffalo Bob Smith, Howdy Doody and Clarabell celebrate Howdy's Doody's 30th birthday and the program's return to television. When the original show was in its heyday in the 1950's, Buffalo Bob could see the cue cards. "Today," he says, "I'd need cards with letters nine feet tall, if it weren't for my soft contact lenses."

Nearly all the "old gang" are back, and so is Clarabell's famous seltzer bottle. With his soft contact lenses, Buffalo Bob can see even when Clarabell douses him with seltzer water. Buffalo Bob says: "If I had to wear glasses on the set, I'd be wiping them off during the whole show."

Buffalo Bob puts on his soft contact lenses.

Serious problems in school-age parenthood

A recent national study concludes serious problems often occur in children born to teen-age mothers.

The study, conducted by Sociologist F. Ivan Nye of Washington State University, focuses on the problems of teen-age pregnancies of married and unwed mothers, and the need for health and sex education along with family planning.

Planned Parenthood of Iowa concurs with these findings and has made this their number one priority. Executive Director of Planned Parenthood, Beverly Birkley states, "Our society pushes children into early sexual activity, but we don't give them the knowledge or the health care they need for their own protection."

During 1975 there were 2,357 births to Iowa mothers aged 12 to 17. 967 of these children were born to unwed mothers. Another 4,220 children were born to mothers 18 and 19 years of age. Iowa's total birth rate during 1975 was 41,360. These are the latest figures available from the Iowa State Department of Health.

The findings of the study indicate the death rate for babies born to mothers under 15 to more than twice the rate for babies born to mothers aged 20 to 24. The study also says there is a high rate of mental retardation, birth defects, epilepsy and birth injuries among children born to mothers under age 20. The Nye study indicates a variety of other problems including possibly lower I.Q.'s and increased child abuse and neglect for these children.

Important problems for the teen-age mother herself were also cited by the study stating these mothers tend to drop out of high school (thus receiving a minimal education), have a higher suicide rate (seven times higher than teenage girls without children) and live below the poverty line often times on welfare.

The Nye study also emphasized extensive psychological and socio-economic problems induced by the father involved, the grandparents and society in general.

Convent life since '47

THE CATHOLIC MIRROR, Thurs., June 2, 1977

A gracious lady departs with end of an era

by Mary Jo Glanville

DES MOINES — The closing of school this week marks the end of an era at a stately old home on Grand Avenue. For 30 years, Elizabeth Jones has been cooking the meals for the Sisters at St. Augustin's Convent. A good friend of the school children, she has dried their clothes when they got caught in a rainstorm and prepared sandwiches when lunch pails were left at home.

Within the next two weeks, however, the 70-year-old layperson and six Sisters living in the convent will pack their belongings and move out of the house. The convent is being closed because of the declining number of Dominican Sisters who live there and teach at St. Augustin's grade school.

WHILE the Sisters who lived in the convent moved each year, Elizabeth has been a steady employee since 1947. When she applied for the job, she was 40 years old, but had only become a Catholic the year before. As a convert, she found the Sisters willing to answer her questions and give her reading material about her new religion.

Elizabeth believes the Catholic faith offered an enrichment that she didn't have before. Her conversion began while she was working as a cook for a Catholic family. She picked up a rosary one day and discovered The Lord's Prayer on it.

AS SHE LEARNED the joyful, sorrowful and glorious mysteries, she realized they told the story of Jesus' life as it is told in the Bible. Having read the Bible since she was a child, it was easy for her to learn the rosary.

Since becoming a Catholic, Elizabeth witnessed many changes in the Church. She accepted all of the changes with an open heart.

"The main thing is to love God and do His will," she said. "If you are doing a good job, you know you are doing His will."

Elizabeth enjoys the modern Masses with guitars and folk music, but she also likes the traditional services.

"If the priest believes that the way he's doing it is the way God wants him to, then I like it," she continued.

VATICAN II also affected life at the convent. Before the changes, holidays were the most memorable days there, according to Elizabeth.

"Every corner of the house was decorated. Everyone had something to add to it. I even trimmed the turkey. Even now, when Sisters are able to go to their homes for holidays, we have joyous celebrations," she added.

The school and students have changed too. Before an addition was built on, Elizabeth would take care of students who became ill and needed a place to lie down. Even this spring, she was asked to dry the clothes for two girls who were caught in a rainstorm during the school picnic.

SHE ENJOYS watching students grow up. She has even seen some of them return to enroll their own children in classes.

But that is over now, and Elizabeth is looking for a new job. In spite of many invitations from many Sisters, who have lived at St. Augustin's, to come to their convents, she will spend several weeks with relatives before making a decision where to go.

Five plays to be given at Drake this summer

Five new plays by faculty and students in Drake University's Department of Theatre Arts will be presented this summer by the College of Fine Arts' Summer Repertory Company. All performances will be free and open to the public.

The series will begin with the production of three one-act plays written by students, "Dies Irae" by Wim Coleman, "The Average American Superman" by James MacNerland, and "Our Little Home" by James Uhls.

They will be presented at 8 p.m. June 3, 5, 8, and 12 in The Studio of the Harmon Fine Arts Center, 26th Street and Carpenter Avenue.

"Dies Irae" is about a failed and aging artist in conflict with his domineering sister. "The Average American Superman" is a farce that deals with the comic book hero's life. "Our Little Home" is a satirical view of parenthood in TV-immersed middle America.

The two full-length plays are "Bugs" by Dr. William S.E. Coleman, professor of theatre arts, and "The Magic of Love" by Dr. Gary Hobbs, associate professor and chairman of the Department of Theatre Arts, and William Golay, a May graduate of the College of Fine Arts.

"Bugs" will be presented at 8:30 p.m. June 4 and 11 and at 8 p.m. June 6 and 9 in room 044 of the Harmon Fine Arts Center, and "The Magic of Love" will be presented at 6:30 p.m. June 4 and 11 and at 8 p.m. June 7 and 10 in the Studio of the Harmon Center.

"Bugs" is a science fiction farce projected into the future when a private bedroom is open to government investigation.

"The Magic of Love" is a fairy tale musical inspired by "Love's Best Doctor" by Moliere. Dr. Hobbs, a specialist in theatre for children, wrote the book and Golay the music and lyrics. This is the first original production for both of them.

The Drake Summer Repertory Theatre Company annually presents a number of productions each summer to the Des Moines community free of charge. This series is a landmark because of the original productions, which, Dr. Hobbs said, is resulting in a concentrated interaction between writers, actors, directors, and designers during the summer interim period between now and mid-June.

Although admission is free, seating is limited. Reservations should be made by telephoning the Drake Fine Arts Box Office at 271-3841.

Free Hearing Tests Available

A free hearing screening test program is now being conducted in Des Moines and the suburban areas.

Anyone who has access to the metropolitan Des Moines telephone system can receive a private hearing screening by dialing this number: 244-8513.

The test, called the "Dial-a-Hearing Test", takes 90 seconds. It is operating 24 hours a day in a large-scale effort to detect hearing loss.

The test is being conducted by the Des Moines Hearing and Speech Center and the Sertoma Club of Des Moines, a service organization.

In this test, a person who dials 244-8513 will be given spoken directions on a recorded tape. There will be a series of eight tones, four for each ear. The taped message then will state: "If you fail to hear eight tones, you may have a hearing problem. Check with a qualified physician or make an appointment for a complete hearing evaluation at the Des Moines Hearing and Speech Center, 244-1181."

The listener is not required to say a single word. The calls will be counted but not monitored.

If any hearing difficulty is noticed by the caller, the next step would be to arrange for a much more thorough hearing test.

Anyone who is totally deaf cannot be helped by the Dial-a-Hearing Test.
