Local NAACP Branch Intervenes In Des Moines Desegregation Case

A long-time supporter of desegregation efforts in the capitol city, the Des Moines Branch of the NAACP this week petitioned the court for permission to intervene in support of school desegregation plans by the Des Moines School District.

The NAACP said in its petition, "its members support the desegregation plan of the Des Moines School Board ... and oppose the position" of four persons who filed a lawsuit against the effort. The action was the first official endorsement of the plan by the NAACP.

The Des Moines Branch

NAACP is representing Pamela M. Williams, William M. Smith, Phyllis Saunders, and Richard E. Rinehard.

Two anti-busing groups filed a lawsuit June 1 in Polk County District Court against the school district to prevent the plan, which officials said would be put into effect in September. The organizations are Citizens for the Advancement of Rational Education (CARE) and Keep Education Neighborhood Oriented (KENO). The suit seeks temporary and permanent injunctions against implementation of the school district's plan. A hearing on the lawsuit was set for June 22.

However, the NAACP wants to further school desegregation and to protect "the civil rights of those whose rights would be violated if the Des Moines School Board plan is not implemented."

Joining the group in its petition were four residents, who said they have children who would be affected by the busing plan.

Last Sept. 20, the U.S. Office for Civil Rights charged that seven Des Moines elementary schools are segregated, which prompted the school board to map out its desegregation plan for this fall. The federal agency recently approved the plan.

Under the proposal, students of five predominantly white and four heavily black schools would be combined. One school with a large minority enrollment would be closed. Eleven of the 50 capitol city elementary schools would be affected by the plan and about 1,500 students would be bused, officials said.

About 13.1 of more than 38,000 students who attend the city's public schools are members of minority groups. The plan calls for 33 per cent or less of minority

ICBO recognized NBN for its outstanding contribution to the black community and its unique access to the black consumer market as the first line-connected, nation-wide, black-owned radio network in the nation.

Looking on, center, is Malcom L. Corrin, ICBO president, and Coy Eklund, right, president, Equitable Life Assurance Society, and dinner co-chairman. ICBO is funded by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) as a Business Development Organization (BDO) to provide management and technical assistance to minority firms, assist them with capital acquisition, accounting and other business assistance services.

NAACP Supports Andrew Young

NEW YORK June 7 — The NAACP today extended its full support to U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young who has come under increasing criticisms for his comments on white racism.

In a telegram to Mr. Young, NAACP Executive Director Roy Wilkins said that the Ambassador was speaking the "brutal, unvarnished truth about the role racism has played in shaping America's institutions and attitudes." A copy of the telegram was also sent to President Carter.

Also signing the telegram were NAACP Administrator Gloster B. Current and General Counsel Nathaniel R. Jones. The text of the telegram is as follows:

Talking Sense

"We think the American people should be appreciative of the fact that a spokesman is talking sense to the world and saying things which essentially are true and must be said.

"You are speaking the truth — the brutal, unvarnished truth about the role racism has played in shaping America's institutions and attitudes. So infected is this nation with the virus of racism that it appears to be a natural condition.

ATLANTA, GA. — Despite a continuing increase in the number of black Southern officeholders, blacks still are underrepresented in the region, the Voter Education Project (VEP) said Saturday.

The number of black officials in the South has jumped nearly 3,000 per cent — from 72 to 2,129 — since 1965, but the seats held by blacks in 1977 represent only 2.6 per cent of the 79,000 offices in the 11-state area, a VEP spokesman said.

CHICAGO, ILL. — Police fired the shots that killed two 25-year-old Puerto Ricans near the start of two days of rioting in the Humboldt Park community, police Supt. James Rochford said Tuesday.

The shooting occurred at a Puerto Rican day parade in Humboldt Park after police moved in to make arrests. Officers said there was rowdiness from members of youth gangs and some of those in the crowd were drunk.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A national organization espousing Nazi doctrine won an important legal victory in the Supreme Court Wednesday when the justices voted, 5 to 4, that Skokie, Ill., cannot bar the group from publicly demonstrating.

DES MOINES, IA. — The victim, Robert L. Caldron, 30, of 1327 Clark St., was killed in a house at 4315 Parklawn Drive owned by Willis E. Dobbins, 43, according to Polk County Medical Examiner Dr. R. C. Wooters.

Dobbins, who has been charged with murder, was being held in city jail early today in lieu of $100,000 bond, police said.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. — Black Panther Party founder Huey Newton, now 35 and living in exile in Cuba, will return to the United States to stand trial, his attorney says.

Charles Garry, home after a week-long visit with Newton in Havana, said the Black Panther leader "intends to return in a couple of weeks and stand trial."

He would not discuss reports that authorities are negotiating specifics for the return of Newton, who jumped bail in 1974 while awaiting trial for murder. "He feels that he was railroaded," Garry said in explaining his client's flight.

Summer Jobs Provide Good Experience For Students

Schools all over the country have graduated thousands of students most of whom will be seeking jobs either to further their education or to put into practice the things which they spent years in preparation.

More will be seeking jobs to further their undergraduate work for today the cost of education is so high that every member of the family needs to help carry the load of living expense.

It is valuable that students find summer work for it gives them an opportunity to gain experience, not only physically but mentally, and makes them realize the value of the money they make.

The Federal government, states, counties and cities are providing work for many of these youngsters. Private funds and the ordinary business community are both making contributions to this program.

Today, the unemployment rate remains high, thus many students who have spent years in preparation for their life's work find it difficult for jobs to come by.

Experience has shown that most of these youngsters who really want to work can find some type of job even though it is different from what they trained for. It often happens that by taking a job below expectations often proves to be a stepping stone to even better things. There are agencies available to assist in meeting these needs and there is no excuse why any students should pass up an opportunity to use their services in order to secure employment.

Impractical Suggestions On How to Save Energy

The administration is making considerable efforts to conserve energy but most of the suggestions that have been advanced met a stone wall.

The idea of tax breaks for those who own or buy small cars smacks into the hands of foreign car makers for it is they who have shipped most of the small cars to this country that are seen on the highway today. The automobile industry in this country will not buy this.

Now, the new suggestion is to give business people a tax break who pursue energy preserving methods and also the homeowner who makes additions to his home that will help save energy.

Just what method of enforcing all of these proposals has not been made known. But safe to say, judging from all the new agencies that have been created in the past and which require large numbers of employees to enforce them, you can imagine what will happen trying to track down all these people who save energy either by business methods or improving their homes.

All these suggestions run counter to the proposal to reduce the number of employees on the federal payroll. It seems to me that the administration needs to do more thinking, not only about saving energy, but also how to do it without flitting away a lot of unnecessary money to get the job done.

Loose Methods of Spending the Taxpayers Money

The 1977 Iowa Legislature will reconvene June 21, for the purpose of ratifying a wage agreement recently concluded by arbitration because the state and the unions could not agree.

The regular session formally adjourned last week, even though most of the legislators had gone home several days before. This was due to the law requiring officers in the legislature and some of its committees to clean up many details that remained and which were not completed because of the jam which always arises at the end of a session.

It seems to me that we are making government more complicated everyday and which adds the taxes that people must pay to keep them going.

Surely, this experience will teach the legislature and the union wage negotiators that they must complete their agreements during the regular session so as to prevent the cost of an extra session, designed to pick up one item, and which costs lots of extra money.

Young Is American Asset Lowenstein Tells Jewish Leaders

"Nobody agrees with everything Andy Young says, but the overall impact of his statements is a great plus for our country's standing in the world."

This was how Allard K. Lowenstein, U.S. Representative to the United Nations Human Rights Commission, described the American Ambassador to the United Nations in a speech this week to leaders of the American Jewish Congress in New York.

"Andrew Young is one of America's greatest assets," Mr. Lowenstein said. "He has succeeded where most of his predecessors in the past have failed — to demonstrate to the world what our country is really all about. He has made clear that we are open to new ideas, that we are flexible in our approach to other countries — including those that may disagree with us — and that America is prepared to return to its traditional commitment to human rights after the dreadful detour of the past decade."

"There is a growing sense now in the world that the United States is ready to take the risks inherent in breaking out of the old diplomatic mold into new ways of dealing with other states and new solutions to issues that have divided us from those countries."

"By his candor and openness, Andy Young has told the world that the Carter Administration is determined to reduce human suffering and that we have the courage and wisdom to open our ranks to all who would join us. This is no small achievement."

"Those Americans who found Daniel Patrick Moynihan a refreshing and unfettered soul at the UN should be especially appreciative of Andrew Young's plain speaking. The extraordinary effect of his independence and his spontaneity has been to restore faith in America and in our willingness to approach old and difficult problems with an open mind and a generous heart."

"Thanks in large measure to Andy Young and to the support he's received from Jimmy Carter, there is a new and healthy perception of what our country stands for among people and countries that had almost stopped looking to us for leadership."

SCLC Favors Ambassador Young's Racism Comments

Southern Christian Leadership Conference Acting President and Board Chairman Dr. Joseph E. Lowery has wired President Carter giving full support to United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young "in his efforts to sensitize our nation and the world to the devastating effects of racism — conscious and unconscious — in our society."

Dr. Lowery said, "We cannot eliminate what we refuse to admit exists, and the fact is that racism is firmly entrenched in subtle and overt ways in all our economic and political structures."

"Andy gets wide publicity on what blacks have said and known forever," continued Dr. Lowery, "that all whites are influenced by an historical racist posture toward nonwhites, particularly toward blacks."

"Racism must be exposed, identified, and recognized as a destructive force before we can effectively pursue the goals of peace, brotherhood and justice."

Lowery accused certain elements of the press of using Young to try to create a political crisis for President Carter by making a headline of every comment uttered by Ambassador Young.

Lowery went on to say, "S.C.L.C. commends Vice President Mondale for his forthright statements regarding majority rule in southern Africa to Prime Minister Vorster of South Africa last month in Geneva. It is impossible not to notice that much of our press downplayed our Vice President's statements while at the same time sensationalizing Young's statements about racism which have been forthright, courageous, and above all, truthful."

NAACP Asks High Court To OK Special Programs For Minority Admissions

NEW YORK — The NAACP maintained in a brief filed with the U.S. Supreme Court today (June 7) that special admission programs to place minority students in educational institutions is permitted under the Constitution and the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Affirmative action programs such as that at the University of California Davis Medical School have been upheld by the courts under the Fourteenth Amendment, the NAACP maintained. These interpretations of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act have supported the concept of "race conscious remedies" for desegregating educational institutions.

The NAACP's position was set forth in an amicus curiae, or friend of the court, brief that was filed with the Supreme Court in Washington in the Allan Bakke case.

The case arose as a result of a suit that was filed by Mr. Bakke, a white applicant to the university's Davis Medical School. He contended that he had been denied admission even though minority students who were less qualified were accepted.

The California Supreme Court subsequently upheld

Mr. Bakke's claims by ruling that the university's special admissions program was unconstitutional. The university's Board of Regents later responded by appealing the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The NAACP brief said that the civil rights organization was interested in the case because, a Supreme Court's affirmation of the California decision "will in all likelihood put an end to the recent efforts of some institutions of higher learning to voluntarily and effectively desegregate their facilities."

Fundamental to the Bakke case, the NAACP said, is that no black or Chicano medical student would have been admitted to the school if Davis had adhered strictly to its regular admissions program.

There has been "no dearth" of qualified students, the NAACP said, but all of them would have been screened out by the regular admissions criteria. It was in anticipation of this situation that the Regents approved the special admissions program for admitting qualified minorities who were disadvantaged, the NAACP maintained.

The NAACP said that "there is now a general consensus that the 14th Amendment was originally a measure designed to facilitate the movement of former slaves into the mainstream of American life."

Sunnyside Camping Opened June 5

Camping at Sunnyside for an all-time record number of summer campers opened June 5 at the 80-acre Central Iowa Easter Seal facility.

Approved by the American Camping Association since it opened in 1961, Camp Sunnyside provides recreational, residential camping for seven age groups from eight to over eighty. Young Iowa adults, aged 18-23, attended the opening camp session, June 5-11, followed by the 12-to-14 year-olds June 12-24. The third session, June 26-July 2, is planned for those 45 years old and older, and the July 3-15 session will be held for eight to-11 year olds. Camping for other age groups will continue through August 13.

Fees at Camp Sunnyside are $120 plus $5 registration for the 12-day children's sessions and $60 plus registration for the six-day adult sessions. However, because of the high cost of other medical and rehabilitation needs, over 75% of the campers cannot afford to pay even a portion of the fee.

Brockmann also pointed out that the actual cost of camping for the handicapped at Sunnyside is $20 per day; the difference between the fee and the actual cost is paid by Easter Seals from contributed funds.

For additional information concerning Camp Sunnyside programs for the handicapped, financial sponsorship of local campers or arrangements for a group tour of the facility, write Easter Seal Society of Iowa, P.O. Box 4002, Des Moines, Iowa 50333.

700 Public Service Jobs Filled In Two Weeks in Four States

More than 700 unemployed workers were hired for public service jobs in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska during the first two weeks since President Carter authorized expansion of the program, a U.S. Labor Department official said today in Kansas City.

Richard G. Miskimins, regional administrator of the Department's Employment and Training Administration, said the hirings represent the first step toward the goal of doubling the number of workers in public service jobs by the end of the year, to about 725,000 nationwide. State and local government prime sponsors — 23 in this four-state region — run the program with funds allocated under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The new public service jobs differ from those authorized prior to the expansion in that workers will be employed only on projects of a fixed duration of up to 12 months. Miskimins said that continued economic recovery should enable the workers to move to non-subsidized jobs when their projects are completed.

Prime sponsors may approve work projects in state or local government or in community service agencies. Most jobs will be filled by economically disadvantaged persons or members of groups that have had higher than average unemployment rates, such as Vietnam-era veterans and young people.

Speaking on behalf of the legal department of the NAACP in New York, Nathaniel R. Jones pledged the "full resources" of the unit for the defense of the Wilmington 10 recently.

Similarly, Black leaders in North Carolina government, business and educational circles including Floyd B. McKissick of Soul City and Asa Spaulding, retired head of N.C. Mutual Insurance Company have spoken out in recent days questioning the fairness of the handling of 10 civil rights workers currently incarcerated for a total of 282 years.

Generally, it appears that even the most conservative segments of the Black population are beginning to take up arms over the miscarriage of justice being perpetrated by the court system in North Carolina.

All this increased support for Rev. Ben Chavis and his 9 co-defendants, who were convicted in 1972 on alleged arson charges, has been brought about because of the most recent denial of their motion for a new trial by a N.C. Superior Court Judge.

Last month the "10's" defense counsel, James Ferguson presented substantial evidence in a post-conviction hearing proving in the eyes of most that the 1972 conviction was obtained thru bribery, coercion and other illegal tactics used by the original prosecutor, Jay Stroud.

Testimonies at the two week hearing included those of former prosecution witnesses Eric Junious, Jerome Mitchell and Allan Hall who all recounted committing perjury at the 1972 trial in exchange for promises of money, light sentences in unrelated criminal matters, jobs and a mini-bike (actually received by Eric Junious).

Mr. Jones of the NAACP characterized the judge's ruling as "hardcore discrimination", saying that "Anytime a court in the face of the kind of evidence presented refuses to grant a new trial, he is compounding the original injustice".

Drawing a standing ovation from 500 persons attending a statewide NAACP meeting in Raleigh, N.C. he further went on to criticize the Carter administration for its attention to international human rights while ignoring the human rights violations in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

Seen as a negative blow to the civil rights movement in this country, several black leaders in N. Carolina have begun commenting on the case as well. Howard N. Lee, secretary of natural and economic resources has begun discussing avenues that might be taken saying, "I am deeply concerned. The hearing left me with many doubts about the guilt of these people".

Floyd McKissick, head of Soul City further commented, "I for one am thoroughly convinced that the people received a raw deal". It is suspected that the opinions of these black leaders will probably place additional pressures on N.C. Governor, James Hunt to issue executive pardons of innocence which would end this 5 year ordeal.

Meanwhile as the previously conservative factions have begun to come out, traditional supporters headed up by three major organizations the National Wilmington 10 Defense Committee, the United Church of Christ and the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression have stepped up their efforts to seek intervention into the case by the U.S. Justice Department—Civil Rights Division, headed by Drew Days, former NAACP lawyer and to seek a stated position from President Carter.

On June 1st demonstrations were conducted in front of federal buildings, including the Justice Dept., in several cities throughout the nation calling for intervention. More activities of this nature are being planned, "until the freedom and exoneration of the 10 is realized", says the National Coordinator of the Defense Committee based in Washington, D.C.

enrollment of any elementary school. Currently exceeding that figure are Casady, Edmunds, King, Logan and Moulton.

About 16 buses would be purchased for desegregation-related busing.

School officials said more than $1 million probably would be spent in desegregation money. The U.S. Office of Education is being asked for $677,840 and the State School Budget Review Committee will be asked for permission to increase the district's budget by $343,745 to help finance the program.

Robert Wright, chairman of the NAACP's Legal Redress Committee, had said prior to filing the petition, segregated schools violate "the basic objective of a democratic education for all children."

Members of the legal regress committee represented by Robert Wright, Chairman, and Naomi S. Mercer signed the petition for the branch and, also, Nathaniel Jones, of

New York, general counsel of the NAACP is included as one of the counsel for the plaintiffs.

Williams' Trial Delay

The Cedar Rapids trial of Anthony Erthel Williams was delayed until July 5 by Polk County District Court Judge James P. Denato.

Williams is accused of the 1968 Christmas Eve slaying of Pamela Powers of Urbandale. She was abducted from the YMCA in Des Moines where she was watching her brother participate in a wrestling meet.

The delay was requested by Williams' lawyers who requested more time in order to have time to exhume the body of a former YMCA janitor, Albert Bowers. The defense attorneys want to perform scientific tests on the body to aid in Williams' defense.

Bowers was killed in an auto accident in 1971 in Minneapolis where he is now buried.

Young Children Collect Awards

Milton Young, Jr. Lori Ann Young Debbie Young

Decorating walls is no problem for the children of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Young, Sr., of 2707 High Street, who have been the recipient of so many awards that they each decided to display them on their bedroom walls.

The Young children have been receiving awards for their various achievements in school for as long as their parents can remember.

While Milton, Jr. was a sixth grader at Lillian Edmunds School he received a Medal for Citizenship. Through the years and even today, a ninth grader at Callanan Junior High School he continued to receive ribbons for his participation in track. Among his additional certificates are Most Outstanding in industrial arts; Best Citizen Certificate; a Super Speller Award; and an Honor Roll Certificate.

Lori Ann, a music and drama lover, received a medal for her participation in music while at Edmunds School and still continues to receive certificates among which are: Drama Night Presentation; Most Improved Student in French; Super Speller Award; Outstanding in the Tour Group, a certificate for her achievement in Homemaking, and one for her participation in Softball. She is also a ninth-grade cheer leader at Callanan Junior High School.

Debbie, a 12th grader at Des Moines Technical High School can add to this list her awards and certificates. She, and a group of 150 black students, recently received a Certificate of Achievement given to her by the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity — a citation for having maintained a B+ Average for her past three years in school (This ceremony was held at the Des Moines Hyatt House).

Last semester, she was named to the Honor Roll at her school, and received an Athletic Certificate and Letter for her participation in Cheerleading, there. She was recently chosen from a group of students to attend the Des Moines Area Community College, Urban Campus, where she is currently attending a class in Health Services for a period of time after which she will complete this training with on-the-job experience at one of the local Des Moines Hospitals.

previous Presidents and their attitudes toward racial problems in this country is essentially correct. We of the NAACP tried to alert America to the Nixon anti-black strategy in 1970. Mr. Nixon, by his appointment of strict constructionist justices to the Supreme Court, espousal of benign neglect attitudes, the use of code words separating black and white Americans on school desegregation issues, weakening of enforcement of civil rights laws by administrators in the Justice Department, HEW and other departments, turned back the clock on racial progress. The fruits of those seeds are being bitterly tasted today by black workers and minorities in search of decent housing.

This Nixon course was followed by Gerald Ford as he injected anti-busing rhetoric into his Presidential primary campaign in 1976. Your aggressive efforts to improve American-African relations have certainly aided our country in reestablishing credibility with African nations, and will, if continued, immeasurably assist our country if the President accedes to your posture in dealing positively and properly with South African apartheid, Rhodesian majority rule and other issues in the United Nations over which our nation has vacillated in the past.

"The simple fact is that you are saying no more than the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders said about white racism in 1968. 'Race Prejudice has shaped our history decisively; it now threatens to affect our future. White Racism is essentially responsible for the explosive mixture which has been accumulating in our cities since the end of World War II.'

"Black Americans are proud of the fact that we have a spokesman at such a high level willing to speak the truth. We hope that the enemies of racial progress will not sway the President from his support of a spokesman who does justice to the American cause in the eyes of world opinion."

Equal Opportunity For White House Staff

President Carter has instructed all senior staff members who make employment decisions for the White House staff or the Vice President's Office to "take all steps necessary to recruit and hire qualified individuals from groups which have historically suffered discrimination."

The instructions were included in a memorandum outlining equal employment opportunity guidelines for the offices of the President and Vice President Mondale.

The memorandum said that it is the general policy

"of the President and Vice President to insure that (1) all personnel decisions affecting their staffs are made without discrimination based on race, national origin, sex, religion, age, or physical handicap, and (2) qualified individuals from all backgrounds are employed in the White House office and the office of the Vice President."

The legal counsels of the President and Vice President were designated as directors of Equal Employment Opportunity for the respective offices.

Water Conservation Tips

There are several ways in which water can be conserved. Two of the most obvious ones are to eliminate watering of lawns and washing cars.

* Most lawns lie dormant without water and turn green again after a few rains. Outdoor watering takes five to 10 gallons a minute.

* Cut water used by automatic dish washers and clothes washers by cleaning only full loads. Dish washers use about 15 gallons a load; clothes washers 30 to 60 gallons a load.

* Wash dishes with five gallons instead of 20 by not letting the water run.

* Fill and seal a plastic bottle with water or sand and place it in the toilet tank. This measure works on the same principle as placing a brick in the tank and would reduce water consumption each time and toilet is flushed.

* Use a pint of water or less to brush your teeth by not leaving the tap running which takes two gallons or more.

* Use a gallon or less to wash your hands by filling the basin instead of using two gallons or more by letting the water run down the drain.

* Shave by filling the basin and using tap water briefly to rinse, rather than using three to five gallons by letting the water run.

* Use only five gallons of water as compared to the average 25 to 50 when taking a shower by turning off the water while soaping up, then turning it back on to rinse.

* Put 10 to 12 gallons of water in the bathtub instead of 36.

Tips on Make-up

by
Claudia Shepherd

Part III

Application of Make-Up

Before using make-up your skin should be in good condition. Our skin is endowed with natural oils to keep it young looking and protected against ordinary abuse, but sometimes it may become dry. This is when moisturizers can be of help. Washing your face too much can be as bad as not washing it enough. To prevent natural chemicals and oils from being destroyed, washing your face in the mornings and at bedtime should be sufficient. After washing, a good moisturizer is beneficial. If you can't arch your own brows, a good beautician can. This helps your appearance before applying make-up.

The following steps can be used when applying make-up:

1. Cleanse face and neck thoroughly and apply moisturizing cream.
2. Use cover-stick on dark blemishes and blotches.
3. Dot liquid foundation on side of your forehead and rub outward with cotton swab or fingertips. Do the same thing on the other side of your forehead until the entire areea is covered. Next, dot one cheek rubbing upward, do the same with the other. Avoid the area about 1/2 inch around the eyes. Dot your chin and rub upward to the right and left.
4. Put powder on lightly rubbing in the same direction as when you applied the liquid foundation.
5. Put on eyeshadow (lighter than your skin) under your brows and under the eyes lightly. Put rouge on the cheekbones lightly.
6. Make a thin line with eye liner right above each eye lash. Start from the inner corner to outer corner. (If you wear false eye lashes, put them on first).
7. Fill in eyebrows if they are uneven.

RWE Jones, a Pioneering Black Educator, Retires

by Andrew Harris

GRAMBLING—As an educator, the name Ralph Waldo Emerson Jones belongs etched in the pages of history alongside such great black educators as Booker T. Washington, Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, Dr. Joseph S. Clark, Dr. Mordecai Johnson, Dr. Benjamin Mays and Dr. Felton G. Clark.

Firmly established as one of the pioneering giants of black educational progress, Dr. Jones, in 51 years at Grambling State University (41 as its president), built small Grambling College from a desolate shanty of weather-beaten buildings to a burgeoning physical plant of high rise buildings whose estimated worth is nearly $40 million; built the student body from under 100 to a still growing 4,000; and increased the subject matter and course study to such proportion that Grambling, located in the rolling clay hills of North Louisiana, is renowned internationally as a distinguished center of learning.

But aside from his acumen as an educator, scholar and academician there is a side to Dr. Jones that is uncommon in scholars and academicians.

Dr. Jones is also Grambling's baseball coach.

Or, at least, he was until the conclusion of the past season.

Dr. Jones, who has probably spent a longer unbroken tenure as head of the same institution of learning than anyone in history, retires as president of Grambling on June 30, pushing aside the cap and gown and the baseball flannels which have made him immortal in the realm of black higher education institutions.

The past baseball campaign—a successful one—was the last hurrah for the grand old gentleman, the final fling in a colorful baseball coaching career which has spanned four decades, spawned over 800 victories since World War II and produced several major league players.

The G-Men posted a 19-16 record this season, raising Dr. Jones' career totals to a most lofty 815-218, a figure which will easily rank him among the winningest coaches in college baseball history.

Several of Dr. Jones' proteges have gone into professional baseball. Among them to make the major leagues are Ralph Garr, Chicago White Sox; Tommie Agee and Cleon Jones, New York Mets; Matt Alexander, Oakland A's; John Jeter, Pittsburgh Pirates; and Ezell King, Baltimore Orioles.

While only six of his players have spent considerable time in the major leagues, the list of great Grambling diamonders is endless: Mackie Freeze, Ben Gipson, Moses Wright, Rudolph Jackson, Jesse Applewhite, to name a few of older vintage. Of more recent times there has been Ben Williams, Alex Pero, Bunny Hudson, Mike Cummings, Frank Patterson and Ralph Russell.

The list could go on and on.

The interesting thing about his coaching career is that he has often been more than a teacher of the fundamentals, a planner of strategy and a flasher of signs. He has been a father figure and chances are great that he has given his players more lessons on life than he has on how to hit breaking pitches.

President Jones is a man possessed with an infectious kind of warmth. He has been described as the kind of "grandfather everyone wishes they had."

Hardly any hoopla or flower-giving fazes him, though. He takes it all in stride maintaining that anything he does is all a part of a day's work.

"I have some very fond memories of Grambling. I guess there are some things I will never forget — and some people. I suppose if I had to do it all over again there isn't very much I would try to change. It has been an experience that I will cherish," he gushed recently in a rare reference to his time at Grambling.

"I don't have any favorite players or favorite teams. They are all my favorites and just having the opportunity to work with so many fine young men is its own reward. I think I'll miss being out there on the field with them, but they all know that ole Prez is right there with them. At least, in spirit."

"Prez", as he is called by practically everyone who knows him, still remembers all of his old players and can still recall students and events from years back with relative ease.

Prez says he still coaches some of his past players who are now in professional sports, telling them when he sees them in the off-season what they did wrong when he last saw them performing on television.

An avid baseball fan, it is not uncommon, either, for him to watch two television sets at the same time if two baseball games featuring Grambling players are showing simultaneously.

A native of Lake Charles, La., Dr. Jones came to Grambling when the college's founder, the late Dr. Charles P. Adams, sent for the Southern University graduate to help him build Grambling into a college which would provide educational opportunities for the deprived youngsters of North Louisiana.

Folklore carries it that when Dr. Jones bounded from the train in the town of Grambling he was greeted by the physically imposing Dr. Adams (who stood a robust 6-foot-10) that he was not "the man I sent for."

Dr. Adams, in all of his wisdom, was sadly mistaken in this instance. History would prove later that no man could have been more right for Grambling.

What's Your Name?

A name is a tag that identifies you in your immediate family. Soon it identifies you in your immediate community, your church, your school. As time passes, you, yourself, give meaning to your name.

Let's look at the name George Washington Carver. Carver was the master's name. It tells us that the master came from a line of men who were carpenters, or men skilled in cutting or carving. George Washington tells us the slave chose the name of the first president of our country.

The name George Washington Carver today means scientist, the discoverer of the uses of peanut oil.

Let's look at the name Rice. My grandfather, chose Rice as his last name because it was his favorite food.

Did you know that in ancient times people in the western world had one name. John, James, or perhaps William. It was their trade that identified them from other men.

Their sons were originally called, John, the son of John or James or the son of William. The shorthand for this became Johnson, Jameson, or Williamson. The custom of having two or three names became the style in imitation of the rich who, in turn were imitating the nobility.

The longer the name, the more important the person. Three names are the custom in America. Occasionally four. It may well be that the name Haley will appear in the name of his descendants for a few generations until some child rebels and changes the custom.

Parents go through a period of identification as "the mother of" one child or another. Father's become known as "the father of" their sons, most often in sports.

NAME CHANGES

People change their names for several reasons. Divorce, marriage, names that are difficult to spell or pronounce, names that make the owner uncomfortable. These are some of the legally accepted reasons.

Children sometimes try out new or middle names in place of their first name. This is because we go through periods when names go out of fashion.

Names like Harriet come to mind. A daughter cannot accept, even as a middle name — Harriet, or even the initial "H" in honor of her great grandmother. Harriet was my idea. Sons named after their fathers often wish to be called something else other than "Junior".

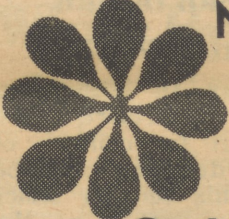

The awareness of family names that once meant "owned by" caused a response in the sixties of many people taking African names.

The use of African names and the renunciation of Christian religion began with the Black Muslims in our country. It is not clear to me whether these two ideas go together. My problem with both of these ideas is they tend to divide the Black community.

Kalonji Lumumba Saadiq, born Clyde De Patton, has announced himself a candidate for the city council. I am glad to see someone stepping forward. I am, however troubled by the recently changed name. It made you a stranger to me until it was explained, "That's Clyde De Patton."

I spoke to a good friend about this name change business and got my head handed to me. Guess what? I shall be voting for at least one Black candidate and giving a hand in the campaign of two, Kalonji Lumumba Sadiq, and Bob King.

Disco 9000
to Premiere
In Chicago

Hollywood, California: In an official statement to the press, Demetris Johnson and Robert Paul Ross, producers of "Disco 9000", announced that their motion picture will have its world wide premiere in Chicago, Illinois on Friday evening July 1, 1977 at the Chicago Theater.

The youthful and enterprising entrepreneurs who financed the entire production of the first disco music oriented film, have stepped up all efforts with their promotion and press directors to stage one of the biggest and brightest premieres ever to hit the windy city.

John Poole and Jeanie Bell, stars of "Disco 9000" will head up a group of actors and actresses in attendance for this premiere. Johnny Taylor, Columbia recording artist, who scored the soundtrack for this motion picture and debuted as an actor in a special guest appearance, is also expected to attend. Tentative plans indicate the possibility of the producers transporting to Chicago a bevy of disco dancing beauties from the famous Hollywood penthouse Disco 9000, where the film was actually shot.

Reports from the Chicago Theater where trailer highlights of "Disco 9000" have been previewed by audiences viewing "The Greatest", which is currently running in its fourth week, indicates that "Disco 9000" will be well received upon its opening.

1500 Attend Women's Fete

Indian, Mexican Americans, Chicanos, Blacks, and Japanese Americans were among the 1500 delegates attending the three day conference last weekend of the Iowa International Women's Year at Veterans Memorial auditorium. Eight busloads from many parts of the state arrived Saturday morning, June 11th.

Thirty five workshops offered information and opportunities for discussion of what every woman needs or wants to know. Among most interesting titles was, "I DIDN'T ASK TO BE BORN" - "I'M NOT YOUR SLAVE" AND OTHER LOVE STORIES FOR MOTHERS.

Workshops addressed the problems of single women, the middle years, childcare, homemakers and the law: protected or neglected?, the problems of women prisoners. The Gay - Straight Dialogue workshop provided many people their first opportunity for face-to-face conversation with an acknowledged Gay person.

Workshops were repeated twice each day to provide wider choices of attendance for the delegates. Films were shown throughout the two day session, Friday and Saturday, with chances to have re-showing on Sunday until noon.

The weekend conference enjoyed a wide variety of entertainment ranging from Yoga, poetry, barbershop quartets, to the Gateway Dance Theatre of Des Moines.

Saturday evening Dr. June Jackson Christmas, psychiatrist and commissioner of New York City Department of Mental Health spoke. Her question to the audience was, "Where are the unwanted, the uninvited, and the uninvolved?"

Dr. Christmas emphasized the need for greater involvement of rural women, particularly the poor of both the rural and city. It was her opinion that Blacks were losing ground after the upsurge of the 60's at all levels.

"Internationally, nationally, and locally, the problem may be defined as a relationship of oppressor and the oppressed," Dr. Christmas explained. The Commissioner said, "The Gateway Dancers are doing what we have been discussing here this weekend".

Ada E. Deer, elected by the Menominee tribe, Chairperson of the Menominee Restoration Committee, was one of six distinguished women invited to address a plenary session.

Patricia T. Carbine, editor and publisher of Ms. magazine spoke at the Saturday luncheon on the topic, "As Others See Us".

Dolores Huerta, first vice president, United Farm Workers of America, was speaker for the "unwanted and uninvited" referred to by Dr. Christmas.

The caucus of Black Women was instrumental in the election of eight representatives of minorities out of the twenty-two elected national delegates to the convention in Houston, Texas in November. Vina Scott, Waterloo; Mori Constantino, Ia. City; Irene Munoz, Muscatine; Felicia Mullin, Sioux City; Rebecca Motley, Cedar Rapids; Bertine Motley, Cedar Rapids; Rose Granado, Sioux City; Willie Stevenson Glanton, Des Moines; Adeline Wanatee, Sioux City; and Beverly Smith were elected as alternates.

Evelyn Davis

A flag was presented (in absentia) to Mrs. Evelyn Davis, director of Tiny Tot Day Care, for her contributions to peace and justice at the Iowa division of International Women's Year, 1977 convention.

SHEAFFER RELIES UPON UTILITY SERVICES

Every day industries and homes depend on utility companies to operate efficiently.

Sheaffer Pen recognizes its need for electricity, gas and water. Without these utilities there would be little production and little job security for its employees.

Last year, Sheaffer's average for electricity, gas and water was $35,000 a month. In comparison, the average monthly cost of these services for homes in Fort Madison is approximately $70.

Sheaffer Pen urges its employees to conserve energy both at home and at work. Throughout the Sheaffer facilities bulletins are continuously posted to remind employees that 1) lights should be turned off when not used, 2) all temperature controls are sealed by Maintenance personnel to maintain a nominal room temperature, 3) all windows and doors shall be kept closed, and 4) all production equipment, processes and services will be turned off or placed on standby to minimize power consumption when not in use.

As Fort Madison's largest industry, and the only Sheaffer factory in the United States, Sheaffer Pen realizes the urgency of conserving energy. Only by working together to conserve will we continue to receive the utilities we all depend on.

LOOK ON SPORTS

This is the week when we look for things to write about. First, did you see the times in the national AAU track meet out on the West coast? The 400 meters went so fast that the sixth man did a 46 while all the others were around 45. Time was when 46 was a world's record, and 47 which didn't even qualify would have been a great winning time. The hundred meters was the same way, close to 10. A seven foot high jump didn't mean a thing, and neither did a twenty five foot long jump.

The marks were so far out that one wonders what they would have been with all of the gang there. MC Tear, Glance and the rest. Maybe they were there and didn't qualify. Competition was so rough that lots of good men probably didn't meet the standards.

Then there was this high school kid breaking the long jump mark of Jesse Owens. And here in our state meet, one had to jump better than 6½ feet to place in the high school meet. I would guess that they have so many of these meets involving grade schools and junior highs that the kids are getting better as they come along.

Lots of kids we know didn't get their first real taste of competition until they got into junior high school and in lots of cases high school.

Here in Des Moines, we helped our youngsters along by having what we called a city wide track meet just about each Memorial Day. This was open to everybody from eight to eighty, and I don't recall that we divided them off into too many classes.

Athletes from high schools and Drake ran and jumped against the kids who never got out of the seventh grade, and sometimes the result would be surprising, although it was hardly ever a surprise to us who ran the meet, because we knew what these kids could do. Some of our best varsity athletes finished second and maybe third in some of the races.

But there were never any surprises in the hurdle races because you had to have them to practice on. But I like to think that our Crocker Y meet as we called it then was the forerunner of these junior meets and other such meets as they have now.

I recall one fellow who walked from West Fifteenth to the East High Stadium that was on East Eighteenth and Lyon, finished second in the hundred yard dash, and ran on a winning relay team. Do you know of anybody who has that much desire to run today? And, oh, yes, he walked back to the West Side from the meet after it was over, carrying his ribbons as if they were gold medals.

Did we have better black athletes than we do now? I don't know, but we had kids who really wanted to compete, and they were really tough when and if they got to high school. Maybe the kids today have it too easy.

TENNIS, ANYONE?

For about five years I have been serving on the board of the National Junior Tennis Leagues. This is the setup devised by Arthur Ash to bring tennis to the inner city and underprivileged kids. The thing really took on and grew until we had more kids than we knew what to do with. Then, I think it was to avoid the argument of discrimination, the gates were opened to kids from all segments of the population. Well, the kids from the upper middle classes and such really came on. As I look at the program here in Des Moines, I don't see too many underprivileged kids and kids from the inner city. Maybe this is because we don't have them as much as we think we have.

Last week I volunteered to get around and see if I could recruit some players for the NJTL for around Good Park and East High. To date I have had about as much luck as I would have drawing to an inside straight, and maybe not as much.

As for Good and this may go for East High area, too, there just aren't the kids around there that there used to be. Time was when one had no difficulty rounding up from a dozen to twenty kids to play any game you wanted to promote. But they are not around now. The kids that we used to get have grown up and moved away from the neighborhood with their children, so they never get back to the place any more. Their kids play in the new neighborhood, and Dad makes maybe as much money in a day as I used to try to take care of a family with what was a week's wages. How times have changed.

Then I wonder if the kids are interested in the game as we were? We promoted the game with matches exhibitions, and we were around there most of the time ourselves after work so the kids got to want to try the thing. It rubbed off on some of them. The Knox Brothers, the Holt Brothers to name a few.

I really don't know what it will take to get tennis back at the park as a major sport. Oh, the courts are being used all the time, in spite of being run down, but our gang is conspicuous by their absence. I hope the NJTL can pick up this slack. I shall see what I can do.

Palmer In D.M.
Exhibition June 27

Golf's greatest ambassador, Arnold Palmer, has scheduled an informal clinic and a 9-hole exhibition/benefit in behalf of the Des Moines Center of Science & Industry, Monday, June 27th.

The exhibition, which will be played at the Des Moines Golf & Country Club, is sponsored by United Airlines in conjunction with their 50th anniversary of air service to Des Moines. Palmer is the golf tour representative for United Airlines.

According to exhibition co-chairman Ken Brown and Fred Morgan, the Palmer exhibition will start approximately 3 p.m., and will be followed by a private club house reception in the DMG & CC main ballroom. Tickets will be available at most central Iowa Golf Pro Shops and downtown retail outlets. The exhibition marks Palmer's third visit to Des Moines and his first tour of the Country Club course.

Palmer's association with aviation and United Airlines is not merely a coincidence. As a boy in Latrobe, Pennsylvania, young Arnie would wander up to the community's airfield, located within a mile of his home, and sit around a pot-bellied stove with the area's pilots, listening to them talk about flying.

In the mid-fifties, prior to his ascendancy as the world's top golfer, Palmer began dabbling in flying instructions, then pursued it seriously in 1958 when he flew his first solo flight.

As his success on the tournament trail picked up immensely, beginning in 1957, the demands on his time for personal appearances and business involvements increased substantially. He started flying to exhibitions and other appearances — by himself on the shorter hops — and with another pilot on the longer trips.

He bought his first airplane in 1961, a twin-engine propeller model, and earned his private license the same year.

Then at the pinnacle of his success, Palmer found flying his own airplane much more of a necessity than a luxury he enjoyed.

He entered the jet age in 1966, purchasing a twin-engine jet model, and two years later acquired a Learjet.

Holder of both a multi-engine and an instrument rating, Palmer is fully rated by the Federal Aviation Administration to fly as command pilot in the complete series of Learjet business jets.

He has some 5,000 total hours of flight time as a pilot, including more than 2,500 hours of Learjet time. His Learjet averages approximately 300 flight hours per year with Palmer in the cockpit. A charter service, Arnold Palmer Aviation, logs several hundred additional flight hours annually.

Last year Arnie and a crew of three set a round the world speed record of 57 hours, 25 minutes and 47 seconds in a private business aircraft, lowering the previous mark by nearly 29 hours. The 22,975 mile flight, which included nine goodwill stops, was an official bicentennial activity, recognized by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

Now an 18-year veteran pilot, Palmer is considered the world's most prominent pilot-athlete. His Learjet carries the distinctive registration "NIAP." It's often been seen in person and on national television streaking across the skies at conclusion of major golf tournaments.

Palmer has been quoted as saying if his career had not inevitably turned to golf, he likely would presently be earning a living in aviation — and loving it.

Palmer, whose boyish charm and faculty for miraculous comebacks sent professional golf into a multi-million dollar spiral in the 60's, still continues to capture the greatest support and share of tournament galleries. Arnie started his rise to fame with a brilliant come-from-behind victory in the 1960 U.S. Open Championship at Cherry Hills in Denver. He climaxed the next 10 years with 3 Masters Championships, two British Open victories, 58 tournament triumphs and selection as the "Pro Athlete of the Decade" in 1970.

During that same period, Palmer created a new breed of fans who dubbed themselves "Arnie's Army" — a nation-wide following who stormed the courses — running, pushing, yelling and exhorting their idol to fresh heroics. Today, although his charge has subsided, his fans have not. While younger tour golfers succeed in capturing the tournament championships, Palmer still

SCIENCE CENTER ...
A NATURAL TIE-IN
FOR UNITED AIRLINES
50th ANNIVERSARY

According to United Airlines City Manager, Clark Gwinn, the selection of the Science Center as the fund raising focal point for United's 50th Anniversary tied in perfectly as the airliner searched for a worthwhile cause. Clark described it this way:

"On July 1, 1977, United Airlines will celebrate its 50th year in Des Moines. To commemorate this milestone in commercial aviation, we wanted to do something special. We felt it was important to return something to the community in appreciation for their support over the years."

"Arnold Palmer's association with United provided a unique opportunity to generate public interest and at the same time, provide a fund raising opportunity for a worthwhile cause. The tie-in with the Science Center was a natural as aviation and science go hand-in-hand."

"We, at United, have been delighted with the enthusiasm shown by the Science Center members and believe this will be an excellent fund raising event as well as an entertaining program."

MESSIAH TEMPLE

"Revival Within" was the lesson Reverend Jacob Reed brought last Sunday. His text, Acts 1:12, was used to show that a revival is something that happens within each person. A revival is not worked up from the earth, but is sent down from heaven in the form of the Holy Spirit.

The most important thing in a revival is prayer. Jesus prayed before He did anything, and we must take Him and His close walk with the Father as our example.

Sunday school begins at 10:30 with worship services at 11:30. Prayer meeting is every Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. The Book of Acts is taught every Sunday evening at 7:00.

Many people who successfully overcome a problem like alcoholism find strength and comfort in the Bible. The Bible helps them to find new wells yet untapped of inner integrity and self-understanding.

The 11th step of the Alcoholics Anonymous program calls for seeking "through prayer and meditation to improve our conscious contact with God." To better understand your own strengths in dealing with similar problems you can read a booklet entitled, "I Am An Alcoholic." Louis Cutwright Is Watchtower Convention's Volunteer Director

How do you get 2,500 people quickly as temporary help for free? That is Louis Cutwright's job for the Watchtower Convention in Des Moines, June 16-19.

Louis is Volunteer Service Director, and in many ways the entire convention organization depends on him and his staff. Without volunteer help the cafeteria could not serve the 27,000 meals required at this convention; the cleaning department would not be able to sweep, mop, empty trash and otherwise maintain the spic and span reputation Jehovah's Witnesses have; supplies could not be trucked; equipment could not be installed; and instead of a flow of 10,000 people in and out of Veterans Memorial Auditorium there would be chaos.

Where does he find the help? "We send letters out to the congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses in this area and let them know our needs. Often whole families will volunteer to work together to clean a section of the auditorium each day after the session. Those with special skills usually volunteer to help."

"Do you get all your help that way?" we asked.

"No, but we get about half that way. That's enough to start the convention. Then, during the convention we get the rest. It's surprising how many are willing to spend some of their time to make the convention a success. But Jehovah's Witnesses like to get involved. We believe our Christian life is one of service to others."

Lou himself is very much involved with Jehovah's Witnesses. He became a Witness in 1958 and is now an elder in the Murray Hill congregation in Des Moines.

A native of Des Moines, Lou married on the East Coast and moved back to Des Moines in 1972 because, as he says, "I wanted to raise my family in this atmosphere. We enjoy it here very much." Lou works at the Des Moines Area Community College where he teaches a course in diesel engines and heavy equipment.

But, his great love is his religious work among the people of Des Moines.

"Leading a calm and quiet life can lead to indifference. I don't want to fall into a lull, so I stay quite busy." For Lou, staying busy means going from house to house to talk to people about the Bible. A strong family man himself, Lou's goal is to help strengthen family ties by means of Bible principles. "When I sit down and study the Bible with people, I first help the husband see his position in God's eyes, that he is the head of the household and responsible for that family." He believes that the father is the key to family cohesiveness.

Lou and his family are looking forward to the convention. "It will build us up spiritually and give us a stronger appreciation of how the Bible applies to our lives." Lou is especially pleased that the theme of the convention is "Joyful Workers' District Assembly".

"We may get 3,000 volunteers this year," he said with a grin.

Public Television Broadcast of Muslim Leaders Speech

NEW YORK — Public television will broadcast live coverage of the Honorable Wallace D. Muhammad's speech to the New York membership of the World Community of Islam in the West at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum, Sunday, June 19.

The coverage will be part of a two-hour special, "Al'islam: The American Muslims and Their Leader." The program will use Muhammad's speech as the centerpiece for an examination of the World Community of Islam in the West, and how it has evolved from the Nation of Islam — what the press refers to as the "Black Muslims".

Wallace D. Muhammad took over the spiritual leadership of the Nation of Islam in February 1975 after the death of his 77-year-old father, Elijah Muhammad, who led the movement for more than 40 years.

"Al'islam: The American Muslims and Their Leader" will be hosted by Sandra King, a reporter for the Newark (N.J.) Star-Ledger, who has covered the Muslims for several years. Newark has one of the most active Muslim mosques in the nation.

In addition to the live coverage of Muhammad's speech, "Al'islam..." will also feature a pre-taped interview with Muhammad, and interviews with authorities on the Muslim movement.

The special will include a panel discussion on the changes that have taken place since Wallace D.

Muhammad became leader two years ago. Dr. Naim Akbar, an Islamic scholar and personal aide to Wallace Muhammad; and Dorothy Fardan, a Muslim instructress who was one of the first white Americans to join the World Community of Islam will participate.

Many changes have taken place in the religion since Wallace Muhammad became its leader. On June 16, 1975, he announced that whites would be able to join the movement for the first time. Previously, the religion had advocated separation of the racess.

"Now we are evolving to where the Nation will be open to all without regard to race, color, or creed," he said. "There will be no such category as a White Muslim or a Black Muslim. All will be Muslims. All children of God."

The movement also has encouraged its members to participate in politics and elections, which previously had been barred by Elijah Muhammad. Membership today is estimated at about one million members.

People United For Rural Education group formed

A group of Iowans met on June 7, 1977, to initiate an organization named People United for Rural Education.

The goals of P.U.R.E. are to promote the qualities that have been inherent in rural education and to pursue educational excellence that will enhance rural community life. The activities of P.U.R.E. will include a monthly newsletter to help in the understanding of what rural schools are doing and the problems they are facing. Emphasis will be placed on the values that come from our present educational system and how they can be maintained.

The information assembled will be shared with our legislators to assist them in making wise decisions for the educational future of our children. Rural people need to have a voice in the current proposals for educational legislation that will be considered soon.

In addition to the newsletter, workshops will be held to encourage interest in and action for rural education. If you are interested and would like to participate in this movement, contact the following for further information. Write to: P.U.R.E., Rt. 3, Alden, Iowa, 50006. Interest Rates Up For Loans

The federal interest rate on government-backed home loans has been increased from 8 to 8.5 per cent.

Max Cleland, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, said the new rate, established for Federal Housing Administration loans by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, also applies to Veterans Administration home loans.

Cleland said the increase, effective May 31, was necessary to bring government rates in line with other competitive rates in the mortgage and financial markets.

The rate change does not affect existing VA home loans. Once a loan is made, the interest rate remains the same for the life of the loan, he said. Also unaffected are rates for VA mobile home loans, which are for shorter terms and lesser loan amounts.

SOCIAL SECURITY

A cost-of-living increase in monthly social security benefits will be included in checks delivered on July 1, according to William R. Durst, Social Security District Manager in Des Moines. The increase will amount to 5.9 percent for most people getting social security payments. The automatic cost-of-living provision was added to the social security law in 1972.

"People getting social security checks don't have to do anything to get the higher payments," Durst said. "The increase will be added automatically."

The increase is based on the rise in consumer prices from the first 3 months of 1976 to the first 3 months of 1977. With the cost-of-living increase, average social security retirement payments to retired workers will go from $221 to $234 a month. Average social security disability payments to disabled workers will go from $248 to $262 a month. Average social security survivors payments to widowed mothers or fathers with two children in their care will go from $517 to $547 a month.

Social security pays monthly benefits to over 33 million people. The payments are funded by social security contributions from employees, employers, and self-employed people.

Employees and employers contribute 5.85 percent each of the first $16,500 of yearly earnings from jobs covered by social security. Self-employed people contribute 7.9 percent. "Those figures remain unchanged," Durst said.

Social Security checks are usually delivered on the 3rd of the month. When the 3rd falls on Saturday or Sunday, the checks are delivered the preceding Friday. July 3 is on a Sunday this year, and the checks will be delivered Friday, July 1.

The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.
