Minority Business Students Told Hard Work Success Key

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The M.B.A. degree is a tool that must be tempered with dedication and hard work to forge a successful career in business, minority students entering the Consortium for Graduate Study in Management were told here recently.

"I have known M.B.A. graduates who have had impeccable school credentials yet they floundered because they did not have the ambition to succeed," said James H. Corrigan, president of RJR Foods, Inc.

The Consortium is a business-sponsored program that offers financial assistance to qualified minority students who wish to achieve an M.B.A. degree. Since the unique program was started in 1966, about 500 graduates have entered the business world.

"Competition for responsible positions in business is much keener than ever before," Corrigan told the Consortium during its annual orientation program at Washington University. "This means individuals must contribute 100 percent if they are to earn greater responsibilities and advancements."

That the M.B.A. degree can open doors is a well-known fact. Corrigan cited examples of five Consortium graduates who now hold major managerial positions with widely diverse firms. All of the graduates started out in entry-level positions and achieved steady advancement through their own efforts, not only MBA

Anti-Busing Suit Hearing July 8

U.S. Magistrate Ronald Longstaff Wednesday set two hearing dates and said a decision will be made before Aug. 29, the first day of school, on the anti-busing suit filed against the Des Moines School District's desegregation plan.

Longstaff met with lawyers involved in the suit and set the first hearing for July 8, when U.S. District Judge William Stuart will hear arguments on whether the suit filed against the school district will remain in federal court, which the school district has requested, or will be sent back to Polk County District Court, where the suit was filed.

to be included as a defendant and Longstaff said the federal officials will be named defendants if Stuart rules to keep the suit in federal court.

This question of additional defendants is important because if the desegregation plan is rejected by the court, the school district will be forced to break a pledge made to the federal government, thus be liable to be sued by the government.

By making the government a co-defendant it would not be able to take legal action against the district.

Attorneys for the two anti-busing groups which filed suit to stop the desegregation plan oppose the move to put the suit in federal court.

If Judge Stuart decides the case should remain in federal court, a hearing on the temporary injunction request by the anti-busing groups to prevent implementation of the desegregation plan was scheduled for July 25.

Attorneys for the school district are also seeking to have the United States, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano and two U.S. Office for Civil Rights officials named as co-defendants in the suit.

A U.S. Justice Department Attorney told Longstaff the federal government desires

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Small businesses are facing payroll and investment problems because the federal government has been late in making contract payments, according to Senator Bob Packwood (Rep., Ore.).

Gladys Bogar, 39, of 1236 Tenth St., the head nurse at the home, said she heard a banging on the front door in the early morning hours and said she refused to let a man November's attack by blacks on a group of white Marines.

A group of attorneys aiding the defense of 14 blacks named in similar charges said Jones pleaded guilty in a pretrial agreement.

"It is understood that the agreement reduces the possible sentence from 21 years' confinement to less than six months," according to a news release from the Pendleton Legal Defense. Military juries determine sentences after they are told of such agreements.

Dr. Lenhart, Man Who Can Be Counted On

Reverend James W. Lenhart, who has served as pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church is retiring.

During his service in Des Moines he has been an outstanding champion of human rights along with other affairs in the city.

As one of the leaders of the Des Moines Council of Churches while city and county officials were asleep or dancing around with low cost housing, Oakridge was built by the church organization.

It provides 300 units and while experiencing difficulties in the early going, the management, under the direction of Sister Margaret Toomey, has succeeded in making it a creditable project.

Rev. Lenhart has not hesitated to speak out and to participate in movements for the betterment of both the high and low in the city. In many instances he has been criticized and as he states often took the heat from some he thought were among people who should participate in these responsibilities.

It seems that we seldom have men with courage to do the thing that is right. I often remember such men as Dr. Charles Medbury, Rabbi Gene Mannheimer and Rev. G. W. Robinson, Rev. Ben Bobbitt and Rev. Stoddard Lane; also such men as Harvey Ingham, Casper Schenk, George Webber, H. T. Steeper, Cliff Sampson, Marvin Schmitt, S. Joe Brown and also leaders of the campaign who led the fight against the Klu Klux Klan, Robert Bannister, Sol Schuerman and Herb Mulock, manager and others.

All of these men lived when it was not easy to stand up and be counted or to use the words of President Harry Truman, "who stayed in the kitchen when it got hot".

The campaign to eliminate violations of civil rights, the desegregation of the YMCA and the YWCA, the opening of more jobs, the hiring of Negro teachers all came as a result of efforts of these men in cooperation with many others.

Dr. Lenhart, while arriving in Des Moines as these conditions were well on the way to improvement, recognized that it still required leadership to see that these things are maintained and still required men with courage to support them.

We need more ministers, businessmen and just plain people who are interested in the continued struggle for human rights. Certainly, Des Moines has lost one who did not hesitate to speak up and to act when the occasion arose.

Join the Wrong Group

During the time when schools were segregated in the South, many Negro youngsters rode miles for their classes, often passing white schools that taught the subjects with credits, to one where a sufficient number of children attended poor schools.

Even today, a very large number of white students in Iowa are being bused many miles to attend consolidated schools since the day of the one room school house has passed.

During the bitter struggle carried on in the South to integrate the schools many Negro youngsters had the courage to go to these white schools under difficult circumstances in order to do their part in demonstrating that desegregation could work.

Even today, in such places as Boston, many are taking the heart because they realize that somebody must "break the ice" if the job is to be done.

Recently, a group of citizens has filed a lawsuit seeking an injunction to prevent the school board from carrying out its desegregation plan adopted last fall. The object of the desegregation program is to scatter the Negro population so as to assure equalization of education facilities in all parts of the city.

The record shows that segregated schools have always been subject to poor facilities, generally the least experienced teachers and passive effort made to assure that the students who graduate have qualified to do so.

Among the plaintiffs in this case are several Negro families who feel that the plan is wrong and that the situation should remain as it stands today. This they have a right to do.

We have never known a group of whites to include Negroes as plaintiffs in any cases involving business or civic matters. Neither have we known Negroes who have been associated with any of these people in a business venture.

And while these Negro families feel that their cause is right in this instance I find it difficult to agree that they should be used to help pull the 'hot potatoes' out of the fire for these people who, in the long run, not only oppose the program which the school has adopted, but are not interested in anything else that these same Negroes are doing.

MOTORCYCLE GANGS

The news story about the Iowa park ranger threatened by a motorcycle gang sounds like a step back into the last century. But in the wild west the solution would have been brutal, with pointless killings. We're not suggesting a modern day posse but we have law officers who could have taken time off from giving speeding tickets. The gang was in the picnic area for the whole weekend, so there was time to get there. In fact, there's still time to arrest the gang members from Waterloo. Threatening to kill park rangers is against the law, and it's the kind of law that should get top priority.

APARTMENT TAXES

If apartment owners didn't pass the cost of property taxes along to the tenants, the owners would lose money. So the renters pay the taxes, indirectly. But there's no deduction on their income tax, no homestead or soldiers exemption to ease the blow, and certainly no ag land tax credit.

The number of renters is growing rapidly because house prices in the city have forced many people out of the market. They need a break, similar to the homestead exemption. Otherwise, the exemption will be just another device to make moderate income

Executive Council Holds Equal Opportunity Fete

The Federal Executive Council, an organization composed of Federal agencies within the Des Moines area, held its second annual Equal Opportunity Award Luncheon on Thursday, June 23, 1977.

This luncheon was to honor the Federal employees who have contributed the most to the Equal Opportunity effort during the past year. The keynote address "The Importance of EEO in the Federal Community", and award presentations were made by the Adjutant General of the State of Iowa, Joseph G. May. Black Jurist Replies to Columnist: We Must Continue to Support Israel

Editor's Note: The following article was written by the noted California jurist, Earl B. Gilliam, Judge of the Superior Court of San Diego, in reply to a column by Sherman S. Skeete in the San Diego Voice News & Viewpoint. Judge Gilliam's article appeared originally in the Voice News.

I was disturbed by the March 2 editorial by Sherman Skeete and wish to reply and give the readers some additional viewpoints.

In 1948 the United Nations established the State of Israel. Ralph Bunche, the mediator for the U.N. at the time, stated in October 1948 that "472,000 Arabs have left Israel in the past year, while 140,000 Arabs stayed." It is a fact that at the time of the establishment of the State of Israel, Israel asked the 472,000 departing Arabs to remain and become Israeli citizens. They chose to leave, however, and they and their descendants constitute what is presently termed "Palestinian Refugees" to whom Mr. Skeete referred to as the thousands of displaced persons.

Israel, on the other hand, took into its boundaries people from all over the world, 600,000 of them Jews from the Arab countries.

Mail-a-book service to homes

A library in your mail box? Yes, that is exactly what the Central Iowa Regional Library System provides for persons who are not able to get to a library.

A catalog of books available through the Mail-a-Book Service can be obtained by calling the Central Iowa Regional Library service at 287-3102, or by writing to them at 4235 Fleur Dr., Des Moines, Ia. 50315.

Best sellers, popular reading, old favorites, large print books, mystery and suspense novels, westerns, science fiction, humor, historical novels, biographies, sports, religion, reference, travel and education — these are just some of the subjects covered in books that are available through the Mail-a-Book Service. If they don't have a book listed that you want, just tell them and they will try to get it for you.

Rather than placing their refugees in camps and making them wards of the United Nations, Israel took in the impoverished Jews and set about educating and setting them. Their high rate of illiteracy, the total unfamiliarity with western ways and democratic traditions presented serious problems to a new country which it is still trying to work out to this day. But there was never any question about the acceptance by Israel of their fellow Jews and the fact that they were welcome in the Jewish homeland. The contrast with the behavior of oil-rich Arab countries toward their Palestinian Arab brothers is striking. Arab leaders created the refugee camps which have become breeding grounds for misery and terrorism.

Mr. Skeete stated that "the recent Arab oil squeeze is nothing to what can happen in the months ahead" and warned that "continuance of playing favorites could bring this country to its knees as a nation dependent on Arab oil." The fact is that the energy crisis is upon us, regardless of what happens in the Middle East. Experts predict that world oil reserves will be severely depleted by the year 2000 and the need for alternative energy sources is vitally necessary.

Mr. Skeete writes of the need for Israel "to sit down and arbitrate outstanding differences." Since 1949, Israel has tried to negotiate directly with any or all of its neighbors, but Israel's overtures have continually been rejected. The Palestinian issue may be one central problem in the Middle East but the fundamental problem is the unwillingness of any Arab country to recognize the existence of the State of Israel and to end the state of war that has officially existed since 1948. The destruction of the State of Israel is one of the basic points in the charter of the PLO. Israel has repeatedly indicated her willingness to use the return of the post-1967 territory as a negotiating factor for peaceful and secure borders.

We must not forget that both Israel and the countries of Black Africa are have-not nations, both of which desperately need American aid if they are to survive. It is urgent that America continue and maintain to meet human needs in Israel as well as in Africa. The investment of Jewish effort in turning a desolate, primitive part of the world into an oasis of greenery and productivity has provided a model for under-developed nations everywhere.

Speaking recently of the relationship between Israel and the United States, Congresswoman Barbara Jordan stated: "We have common ties that will not be severed. They cannot be severed. We have a special relationship which must be nurtured. That relationship, very simply, is rooted in our common belief in democracy. That relationship is rooted in our willingness to preserve, protect, and defend democracy wherever it is. And it is in Israel...We have a moral commitment to the State of Israel which is a strong one. The firmness of that moral commitment, the deepness which we feel morally, makes it possible for us to fill our economic and military commitments (to) help those to grow stronger." No country in the world yearns for peace more than Israel, but Jewish history has taught the Israelis to be eternally vigilant.

The Roy Wilkins Column

The Supreme Court of the United States ruled on May 31 that discrimination which placed black workers at a disadvantage in the competition for better jobs and other benefits is not necessarily illegal. The high court held, in effect, that discrimination which was legal before July 2, 1965, the date that Title VII of the Civil Rights Act became effective, was still legal.

The court said the system allocates "the choicest jobs, the greatest protection against layoffs, and other advantages to those employees" who have been "line" — over-the-road-drivers for the longest time. Nearly all line drivers are white.

The case decided upon by the court evolved from a government suit against a nationwide trucking firm headquartered in Lubbock, Texas, and the Teamsters Union, which represented the Lubbock firm's employees.

"The NAACP is closely examining this and other recent decisions and new strategies to deal with them will be announced at the St. Louis convention," declared Nathaniel R. Jones, legal counsel to the NAACP.

In the same statement, Mr. Jones said the Court "has retreated yet another step" from the nation's promise to create quality of opportunity. "The interpretation makes second-class citizens out of minorities whose mistreatment led to the enactment of the 1964 Civil Rights Act by the Congress," he said.

Justice Potter Stewart, who delivered the majority opinion, wrote about men who "brought the cold numbers convincingly to life." As such (as examples of discrimination) there are 1,828 line drivers and only 13 minorities. These were hired after the court action.

One of the men denied jobs was George Taylor, who was told by the terminal manager, "I foresee a lot of problems ... with Caucasians. I don't feel the company is ready." Taylor made a second request, but never got the job or even an application form. Feliberto Trujillo in Denver was told that he had one strike against him: "You're a Chicano."

While these two men were rejected, the company was hiring hundreds of whites as line drivers. The justices Thurgood Marshall was joined by Justice William J. Brennan, Jr. in a dissenting opinion which accused the majority of "radical reconstruction" of congressional intent. They said "Equal opportunity will remain a distant dream" for minority workers.

For years the problem of employment of blacks has been a thorny one, running into the hundreds of millions dollars of lost pay by blacks. Some idea of the total amount may be gathered from the fact that the Negro earns in family income only 59 per cent of the average white family income. In dollars and cents that means, try as he might against the obstacles in his path, the Negro worker is only able to receive 59 cents to every $1 of white family income.

The court voted 7 to 2 that regardless of the discrimination "proved" in court, they would find in favor of seniority in good order. Coupled with the Arlington Heights, Ill., housing case, in which the court said that intent to discriminate must be proven, there is no doubt where the Nixon court is going on race discrimination.

Commerce Sec. Sets Plan To Aid Minority Businesses

Secretary of Commerce Juanita M. Kreps today announced an agreement providing for a major national effort to insure minority business participation in the $4-billion Public Works Law of 1977 program.

Two Commerce Department agencies, the Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) and the Economic Development Administration (EDA) will identify, encourage and assist minority firms to participate in the public works program, which calls for 10 percent, or $400-million, to be expended for minority business enterprise.

OMBE will assist EDA, the program manager, in publicizing the public works funding plan in minority communities through its national network of non-profit, community-based minority business development organizations. OMBE and EDA will bring minority-owned firms together with EDA public works grantees.

In making the announcement, Secretary Kreps said: "This agreement represents President Carter's commitment to make the Federal Government more responsive to the needs of the American people. We have now put into legislation, our guarantee to have minority businessmen and workers share in the benefits of government programs."

EDA Assistant Secretary of Commerce Robert T. Hall and Dr. Randolph T. Blackwell, Director-designate of OMBE

joined with Secretary Kreps in signing the agreement.

Hall hailed the agreement as "a new step forward" in Commerce interagency cooperation for effective administration of Federal programs. "We are looking forward to working closely with OMBE on this project," he said.

Dr. Blackwell said the agreement "marks a new, significant national cooperative effort." He said that the "practical, foreseeable result will be more profitable business for minority firms across America."

The Public Works Law of 1977 was enacted by Congress to stimulate business and provide more jobs at the regional and local levels. It is a part of President Carter's economic stimulus program.

Fowler Works as Film Processor for KCCI

There's a new face around the film processing department at KCCI-TV.

Richard Fowler, 22, joined the Channel 8 team about six months ago, working behind the scenes processing film, television slides and black and white prints. Prior to his job at KCCI, he worked parttime from April to November, 1976 for WHO-TV.

"I really like working for KCCI. There's more of a variety of things to do," said the Des Moines native.

"I had no experience in film processing until I worked for WHO," Fowler continued. "I was taught the basics of film processing and now I can do a variety of things. I've even learned how to shoot a 35mm camera."

A graduate of Des Moines Technical High School, Fowler said he took courses in radio and television, which "is where I really started getting interested in communications." His interest in the field continued when he joined the U.S. Navy and trained as a radioman while stationed in Santa Barbara, Calif.

"I used to listen to LA soul stations and they really turned me on. I like to communicate and thought broadcasting would be the best way," he said.

After a 1½ year stint with the Navy, Fowler entered the Don Martin School of Communications in Los Angeles, Calif. where he trained for four months.

Fowler's future plans include obtaining an FCC license in September. He said the license would enable him to operate an amateur radio station. Eventually, he'd like to "get something on cable, like Soul Train."

He already has begun efforts to make his dream come true. He occasionally produces disco shows for Black Pride, Inc. and last Feb. 28 had a disco on the Mary Brubaker Show.

Bob is currently the Chairman of the Central Advisory Board for Community Development, he has supported housing upgrading, jobs programs for the unemployed and minority workers, supportive programs for senior citizens, the neighborhood foot patrol, recreational facilities for youth, meals on wheels, day care services for children, and upgraded streets and sewers.

A lifelong Des Moines resident, Bob King is fifty-one years old, married for more than thirty years to the former Rebecca Nipper.

Part IV: Good Skin Care Suggestions

If you're the average working person, you probably don't have the time or money to go to skin care specialists all the time. It is easy to take good care of your complexion right at home.

Good eating habits are always a main factor in good skin care. Greens are usually on the menu at one time or another and they are one of the best vegetables for your complexion as are all other vegetables. Pork is said to cause skin problems and it might be wise to stay away from it for other reasons such as high blood pressure too. Sea foods, especially sardines (if you can stand the smell) are very good for youthful looking skin.

Many times the skin becomes dull and unglowing. Sometimes this is caused by dead surface skin. You've probably heard of gentle facial massage equipment advertised on T.V. and in magazines or you could have one. One of the best methods to rid your face of dead surface skin is to use a soft wash cloth.

When washing your face make circular motions, applying pressure, especially in areas around the nose and mouth where most of the skin collects. This takes away most of it. But remember each person has a different skin type and some can not stand hard rubbing. You would be the best judge of this.

As you grow older the elasticity in your skin becomes loose and the facial muscles tend to relax. To improve these problems, it is good to use some type of skin tightener (mask). There are many types of peel-off mask creams on the market. But if you want to use natural methods, apricots (yes apricots!) are very good.

After washing your face, rub the juice from the apricots on your face. Let it set from 5-10 minutes. Rinse with warm water then cold water. Put on some baby oil. Try it, and see if you notice a difference.

Melanin (the colored element) in our skin helps to protect it from wrinkles and old age lines. Scientist say that the more melanin the better it is protected from aging. Melanin also collects and stores sunlight energy. There is no limit to the advantages of melanin. Check it out in the June Ebony, page 124. Let's not forget that our skin keeps everything in tact.

Well, this is the final article for "Tips on Make-Up". I have enjoyed sharing my thoughts with you and I hope you got something out of them. Remember, you look as good as you feel. Have a beautiful summer and take care.

TV SHOW TO FEATURE CHILD CARE, MIGRATION

The kind of care Iowa children receive affects everybody, not just their families. After all, these children will grow up to be Iowa's leaders.

Child care in Iowa is one segment of a two-part half hour television program produced by the Cooperative Extension Service at Iowa State University to be presented June 27 at 6:30 p.m. on WOI-TV.

The other segment deals with the current national trend of big city dwellers to seek a more satisfying life in a rural area, such as in Iowa, according to Regina B. Fineran, extension home economist.

She said this program is one in a series Iowa's extension service is producing to keep viewers up to date on some current issues that affect them. Upcoming programs include transportation of Iowa's people and products on August 1; a two-segment program for September 5 covering energy use with household equipment and community housing; and energy proofing the home for October 10.

Child care in Iowa will focus on children under age five and the kind and quality of care available for them on a regular basis. It will feature both licensed day care centers and family day care homes.

Fineran said some of the locations to be shown in the television program include the Union County Day Care Center in Creston, the Webster County Day Care Center in Ft. Dodge, and a federally funded family day care program in Davenport called KIDS Incorporated.

Iowa Child Abuse Lines Now Open Nine Months

On any average day in Iowa five children are reportedly abused... burned, beaten, starved or sexually assaulted by their parents.

"Those are only the reported cases of abuse and even those figures indicate a tragedy," said Iowa Public Safety Commissioner Charles Larson.

The Iowa Child Abuse Line has been in operation for nine months and has received calls involving over 1200 children.

Reports of child abuse peaked in May with 233 children reportedly abused. The lowest month of reported child abuse was in December with 132 cases.

There have been calls from nearly every county in Iowa and sometimes the calls are from the mothers and fathers themselves who call in to find out where they can go for help.

Calls can be made anonymously and callers who give their names are protected from any civil and criminal liability.

The Child Abuse Line is maintained by the Iowa Department of Social Services and the Iowa Department of Public Safety's Communication Division. Public Safety's Radio Communication Division answers telephoned reports and reports them to the Iowa Child Abuse Registry.

The Child Abuse Line dispatches messages immediately to professionals on the staff of the Social Services Department who handle cases on an individual and personal basis.

Major Jack Beaman, director of Communications Division, said that one of the best things about the service is that it can receive calls 24 hours a day and 365 days a year, but he added, "Child abuse is something you don't like to admit even exists and it's harder to force yourself to get involved, but these kids are defenseless and need help."

Abuse has been reported concerning children from three weeks to seventeen years old.

To report suspected cases of child abuse the toll-free numbers are 1-800-362-2178 and 1-800-362-2179, and in Des Moines the number is 281-3240.

Commissioner Larson concluded, "Persons who know of possible child abuse cases should remember that they may be the only ones able to prevent further abuse."

IT'S STRAWBERRY TIME

Intricate looking, yet easy to fix, is this Strawberry Waffle Loaf. These unusual waffles, made with cornstarch, are layered with sliced and sweetened fresh berries and Birds Eye Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping. While the strawberry season is still going strong, try the waffle loaf for excitingly different company fare.

STRAWBERRY WAFFLE LOAF

- 3/4 cup butter or margarine
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 4 eggs
- 3/4 cup cornstarch
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 pint strawberries, sliced and sweetened
- 1 container (4-1/2 oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed

Cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs alternately with cornstarch and flour, beating thoroughly after each addition. (Mixture will look curdled.) Add almond extract. Bake two 9-inch square waffles in preheated waffle iron. Cool on rack; cut each waffle in half. Place one waffle half on a serving platter and spread with half the strawberries, reserving a few for garnish, if desired. Then top with another waffle half and spread with half the whipped topping. Repeat layers, ending with whipped topping. Garnish with reserved strawberries. Chill at least 30 minutes; cut in slices. Makes 8 servings.

Malombo, New Sound in Music

NEW YORK CITY — Malombo is an African sound that Phillip Tabane hopes the American musical public will soon become accustomed to. As a young South African musician he hopes the meaning of it, "spirit," is one that will prove contagious for record buyers.

Here for the second time in four years, the soft-spoken, physically slim guitarist from Johannesburg, South Africa, is confident that his blending of the Third World and the New World rhythms will be tomorrow's fad. Why? Because it's a fusion of African, Soul and Jazz.

Signed to a contract with Atlantic Records, Tabane says the essential ingredient of his music is the drums. "For time immortal the drums have been used as a means of healing and communication," he said.

"Unlike many African groups that have come here and played listening music only, ours can be danced to because of its enthusiastic feeling. I am sure your discos will find our 'Malombo' album enjoyed by their dancers."

Completing the trio are Gabriel Thobejane, drums, and Beki Mseleka, keyboard. Most of the tunes used by them are originals they've composed, featuring the singing of Tabane in Venda, Pedi and Shangaan, the language of three African tribes.

Manager of the trio Peter Davidson, who first came here several years ago as the road manager of the popular Hugh Masekela. It was he that persuaded them to Americanize their sounds slightly and make another attempt to seek fame on these shores.

A WARM-WEATHER TONIC

Where did tonic water come from? What does the name mean?

The other name for this popular mixer, quinine water, tells the answer. During the 19th century, Englishmen working in the tropics attempted to protect themselves from malaria by taking quinine.

To make the quinine palatable, they combined it with spirits, particularly with gin. It was then they discovered that gin and tonic went together to form a very refreshing healthful drink.

Today's tonic waters are refined and delicate enough to let subtle flavors show through—so say the makers of Beefeater, the imported London-distilled dry gin.

"Give your gin-and-tonic the same advantage you give your martini," they advise, meaning that we will enjoy the subtle taste of Beefeater in this favorite summer drink as much as in the classic year-round cocktail.

And whatever became of malaria? Fortunately it has been effectively treated with new knowledge developed during the Second World War. But a taste for that refreshing combination remains. Thus the popularity of today's gin-and-tonic.

Newspaper Publishers Assoc. Notes 150th Year of Black Press

The 37th annual convention of the National Newspaper Publishers Association celebrated 150th Anniversary of the Black press in America last week in St. Louis.

Dr. Carlton Goodlet, president of the association, in the welcoming ceremony asked Pres. Carter to wage his campaign for human and civil rights with deeds as well as words.

Goodlet spoke from the steps of the old U.S. Courthouse in St. Louis, the site of the appeal in the notorious Dred Scott case, in which the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1857 that a freed slave who returned to a slave state was still a slave.

Goodlet, who publishes the San Francisco Sun Reporter, asked Carter to appoint more Blacks, Spanish-speaking Americans, women, Asian Americans and American Indians as federal judges, attorneys and marshalls.

"The integrity and confidence in our system of government, of, for and by the people, and only be maintained with a judicial establishment with such broad-based representation," he said.

Martha (Bunny) Mitchell, Pres. Carter's special assistant, addressed the convention on Thursday and praised the black press and challenged publishers to encourage young blacks to join their business. She said the black press has more impact on the black community than is normally realized. "The white media perspective has always been a general one. The real source of meaningful news is from our own community newspaper," she said.

The first black newspaper in the United States was the Freedom's Journal, founded March 16, 1827, in New York by Rev. Samuel Cornish and John Russwurm.

The Iowa Bystander one of the nation's oldest Black newspapers, was founded in 1894.

Carter Proclaims Black Press Day

President Carter proclaimed Friday, June 17, as Black Press Day, urging all Americans "to reflect upon the contributions of the Black Press to the realization of the principles upon which our Nation was founded."

The Proclamation was issued on the occasion of the 150th Anniversary of the Black Press. The President also called upon Americans to support the National Newspaper Publishers Association "in its efforts to assure that America's Black Press achieves its full potential."

The text of the President's official Proclamation states: "The patriots who founded this Nation understood that the enjoyment of the liberties they fought to secure would depend in large measure upon a free and vigorous press.

For the past one hundred and fifty years, the voice of America's Black Press in support of individual freedom, dignity and equality has served as a constant reminder of the importance to our society of the cherished right of freedom of expression.

"America's Black Press serves a population of more than twenty-five million Black Americans in cities throughout the Nation and has been a major factor in their advancement. In a larger sense, however, the Black Press serves all Americans by reminding us when we need to be reminded of those principles upon which our Nation was established.

"Since this Nation's first Black newspaper was founded in 1827, the Black Press has had to overcome seemingly insurmountable problems to achieve the respect and strength it commands today.

That it has done so, while remaining faithful to the highest standards of professional journalism, is a tribute to the dedication, responsibility and zeal of its members. As we continue our efforts to make equality of opportunity a reality for all Americans, we can take comfort in knowing that we can count on the Black Press to provide us with guidance, insight and wisdom in the days ahead."

An old-time photo of the Jordan house at Grand Avenue and Fuller Road, as it appeared in earlier days. The West Des Moines Historical Society has launched a campaign to raise money to restore the home as it appeared in the 1800's. Jordan, a prominent West Des Moines pioneer and politician, built the home in two stages during the 1850's and 1870's. The Historical Society hopes to raise $20,000 to purchase the home and $30,000 to make the necessary repairs on the house.

Fund drive underway to save Jordan home

The West Des Moines Historical Society has launched a fund-raising campaign to save the Jordan Homestead on Fuller Road near Grand Avenue.

The two-story white frame once-elegant house was built in the 1850's by James Cunningham Jordan, a prominent pioneer, rancher and politician.

Jordan, was a prominent agent in the pre-civil war slave underground railroad. He was a close friend of Abolitionist John Brown and it is believed that the Jordan home was a station for runaway slaves on John Brown's underground railroad.

Jordan, moved to Iowa in 1846. He provided the area's first school in 1849 and was instrumental in moving the state capitol from Iowa City to Des Moines. He was the founder of Jordan Cemetery still in operation in West Des Moines.

Jordan served two terms in the Iowa Senate in the 1850's and one term in the Iowa House in 1879. He was also a Polk County Supervisor. Jordan died in 1891.

His home was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in December, 1973. It is a spacious structure with Italian, gothic and classical motifs. There are six rooms and a fireplace on the first floor and eight rooms on the second floor. The basement contains two unfinished rooms with a brick fireplace.

Last September the West Des Moines Historical Society obtained a year's option on the decaying house from the Iowa Church of the Nazarene, the present owners of the property. They must raise $20,000 by Sept. 28 to buy it.

The historical Society would like to restore the site to its original appearance in the 1800's. For the present, the house must have a new roof to protect the interior. Other repairs indicated include wiring for safety only, chimney, foundation and window repair, plumbing and heating revision, painting and possibly extermination. Reliable inspections have determined that the house is structurally sound.

So the W.D.M. Historical Society hopes to raise $20,000 for the purchase of the house plus $30,000 for the necessary repairs to the house.

Bonnie McFadden, President of the W.D.M. Historical Society reminds residents that contributions to the campaign are tax deductible.

It is the Society's hope that the house can be purchased and plans for it include furnishing the first floor and two rooms on the second floor as they were in Jordan's time. The remaining rooms on the second floor would be used to exhibit other items related to the history of West Des Moines.

Persons wishing more information on the campaign can write to the West Des Moines Historical Society, P.O. Box 343, West Des Moines, Iowa, 50265 or call Bonnie McFadden, 277-9723.

Old Begonia

Mrs. Dorance Day of Clear Lake has a begonia whose mother plant has been handed down in the family more than 80 years. In 1890 the mother plant was brought from Illinois, and the plant has remained in the Day family ever since.

The plant was visible in Dorance Day's parents wedding picture, taken 70 years ago. The Days have had the plant for four years, receiving it from one of her aunts. They call it "Grandma". —Clear Lake Mirror-Reporter.

Group Promotes Intelligent and Sensitive Black Films

The Toussaint Group, Inc. is determined to prove there is a profitable market for intelligent and sensitive Black films.

Gordon R. Watkins, President of the Toussaint Group, a New York based, Black owned film and videotape production house, announced today that with the commercial success of vulgar Black exploitation films and television productions, distributors and motion picture companies have lost interest in funding productions which present positive minority images.

Mr. Watkins stated, "This is the media age — many of society's mores are drawn from television and motion pictures on a scale never before known to mankind. For many people, their vision of the world comes directly from the television set.

"Unfortunately, most of the productions shown on commercial mass media present distorted pictures of Black lifestyles, values and historical contributions. These distortions cause a very faulty Black image perception that hurts us all. It makes it more difficult for us to live together happily."

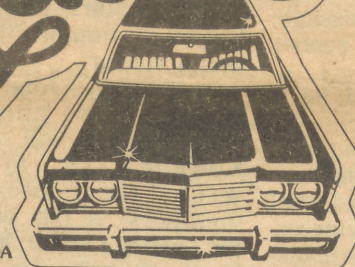

The Toussaint Group, Inc. is actively soliciting letters and petitions to have concrete evidence of a multi-racial audience for intelligent and sensitive Black films and television production in order to change investment attitudes.

September Set As Sickle Cell Month

Los Angeles ... For the second consecutive year, September will be observed as National Sickle Cell Month, it was announced by Dr. Charles F. Whitten, President of the National Association for Sickle Cell Disease, Inc. (NASCD).

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors, it was decided that continued education and awareness programs needed to be projected as sickle cell disease is still a major health problem in the black community. The NASCD is a nation-wide non-profit corporation with 59 affiliate chapters dedicated to providing leadership in educating the public about sickle cell disease and providing comprehensive sickle cell disease programming.

Events marking September as Sickle Cell Month will include the third annual national tribute dinner on September 21; selection of a new poster child for 1977-78; Sickle Cell Sunday, September 25, with a nation-wide appeal conducted through the churches, and an all-media education awareness campaign.

During the September Sickle Cell Month last year (1976), Ella Fitzgerald was honored with the NASCD Award of Distinction at the national dinner, and the 1976-77 National Sickle Cell Poster Child, Bridgett Carlette Earby, was received at the White House by President Ford.

In further Board action, final plans were made for the 5th annual National Convention of NASCD which will be held October 28-30 in New Orleans, Louisiana. It will be hosted by the New Orleans Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation, Inc.

The second topic deals with the problems and crises shared exclusively by middle-aged adults.

The third topic is the relationship between the two older generations — some of those tough in-law problems.

The fourth is an attempt to promote better understanding of the aging process.

LOOK ON SPORTS

So the Cleveland Indians followed the usual procedure after a vote of confidence. They fired Frank Robinson. "For the good of the team." Front offices don't very often take into consideration the circumstances surrounding the poor play of a team, and this goes for college coaches, too. Some of Robinson's key men were injured, and that didn't help him any. But the things that made his tenure difficult were the bush performances of a couple of players. Second guessing the manager behind his back. I have always argued that most second guessing is done by people who want to look smart at the expense of someone else.

For instance. You are engaged in a game that depends on guessing strategy. There are two moves to make, and you must choose one. You pick and it doesn't turn out right. So Mr. Second guesser promptly tells everybody how dumb you were for making that move when the other move was the one. He would have done the same had you taken the other move and it turned out wrong. Once, caught in a situation like that, I asked the guy what he would have done. He thought a while, and said "I wouldn't have done what you did."

The best one I have come on about such people involved a high school quarterback who called a pass with his team six points behind. The thing was intercepted and run back for a score that put the game out of reach. Next day the quarterback met one of the people who was at the game the night before. "Bill, I don't think I would have called that pass last night if I had been you." Bill said, "yes, and if I had had from last night till now to think about it, I wouldn't have called it either."

Oh, well those are the things that make the life of a manager tough. It is always easier to fire the head man then it is to get some new players or maybe fire the whole club.

I am waiting for the day when some club owner comes out and replaces his whole team.

But then Frank knew that he would be fired some day as does just about every baseball manager, and a few football coaches. I wouldn't shed any tears over his departure, because from the stories that got out over the wire, the players had lost their rapport with him, and that is just about always fatal.

And Maury Wills wants to tackle the job and leave a comfortable broadcasting booth for the woes of a manager. Robinson may have had his trials as a black manager, but he had a lot more as just manager than he ever did as a black manager. I don't think he ever got around to those problems.

Tennis

While baseball is being discussed around places, the Hawkeye junior tennis tournament is going on at Birdland and Waveland. This is a meet you have to play in, in order to qualify for the Missouri Valley meet. You have to reach the quarter finals to make it.

As I write this, Kathy Trotter has come to town with her group from Omaha. Don't know just how they did, but I would guess that Larry Station has or had the best chance to make it. The folks from Omaha came here a couple of years ago, and when they left, vowed to come back ready. They have kept their promise pretty well.

But as I watched the Hawkeye go off so smoothly, I couldn't help but wonder why we have had such a hassel with our Hilltop meet. Do you suppose anybody has been putting us down? I would guess our troubles to a change in personnel in the recreation department. Up to 1976, we had people on the inside at the city hall, and about all we had to do was get to a telephone and make our wishes known. But this new bunch that is in charge now couldn't care less about our club or meet.

The Hawkeye folks happen to be some of the prominent business people around town, and then the Des Moines Tennis Association was supposed to speak for all of the tennis players. Hilltop? Who they? This is just my version of how we have come upon our troubles. Maybe you have a better one. If so, I would like to hear it.

And over the week end, Royal Madison was in these parts to visit his parents in Colfax. While he was here he got into the tennis meet at Marshalltown, playing in the men's 45 doubles with John Milton. John says that the pair got to the finals and upset the number one seed. Then Royal took time to go visit his parents, and promised to be back at four. John says they haven't seen him yet.

Last Sunday was a terribly hot day, and Royal was likely tired. He realized that he would have to play that doubles match and then drive back to Chicago that same night. Not being a youngster, Royal probably figured the doubles match could go, because he had to get back to the Windy City in time for work Monday.

What would you have done?

PADDLING WITH THE PRO

Called "paddle" by enthusiasts, platform tennis is similar to lawn tennis, but it's played with a 14-ounce paddle and a softer, sponge rubber ball. Like any sport, "paddle" requires skill and practice. Lucky youngsters in New York City got both as part of a 24-week training program at the Apple Platform Tennis Club, taught by experts like Dick Squires, above. Sponsored by Uniroyal, maker of PRO-Keds, the training program was held in conjunction with the New York City Parks Department Junior Tennis Development Program. It's one way to keep youthful athletes paddling in the right direction.

Midwest District is comprised of 32 individual clubs in the five state area.

The 1977 UGA Midwest District Tournament director is Raymond Tolliver.

During their two-day stay in Kankakee, the UGA golfers will be headquartered at the Kankakee Holiday Inn, just east of the City off I-57.

A press conference will be held at 11:00 a.m., Friday, June 24, at the Kankakee Holiday Inn to describe details of the Midwest Tournament.

Sheep dog trials at History Farms

The Iowa Border Collie Association will conduct the annual Sheep Dog Trials on Sunday, June 26, at the Living History Farms. The event will take place at the Walnut Hill site east of the 1870 barn.

The trials will demonstrate how well trained dogs can gather up scattered sheep and keep them together and drive them wherever directed by their handler.

Ribbons will be given for winners of the trials. Novice classes will begin at 11 a.m. and advance trials at 1 p.m.

The Living History Farms are open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily with the 1840 and 1900 Farms going about the farm work just as it was done in those times. The 1900 Farm housewife cooks every day on the cob and wood stove and in her spare time tears rags into strips to be braided into rugs.

Instruments

Orville Grim of rural Morning Sun has a large assortment of string instruments. He has 46 varied and interesting musical instruments. Older and more unusual instruments include a cello, origin unknown, estimated 100 years old, and from the same source, a Swedish violin with a maned lion, instead of a scroll neck, with inlaid mother of pearl and colorful flag in patriotic scene, on the back. — Morning Sun News-Herald.

The principal address of the convention, "How God's Kingdom Can Benefit You," was delivered by R. J. Hurst of Illinois.

Speaking to an audience comprised of all age groups, young and old, and of all races and national origins, Hurst made it clear that a change in world government is needed and is coming.

"What a blessing it would be to live in peace and security, without any fear of crime or violence of any kind," he said in his opening remarks. "Surely all of us here today would welcome such a world—a world where all mankind, whether black, white or yellow, would live as one united brotherhood, with everyone joyfully serving for the common good."

because they are highly educated, Corrigan said.

The key word in the business community is competition — both internally for the promotions and externally from competing companies.

Because of this competition, businesses are rejecting the idea that the senior employee or the "nice guy" gets the promotion, Corrigan stated. In most major American corporations such as R. J. Reynolds Industries, Inc., which owns RJR Foods, the individual who can produce will get the nod.

"Companies want people who produce and get the job done. They need people who apply themselves and are committed to getting results," Corrigan said.

That attitude also means that color or sex is no longer a factor for increasing numbers of companies, Corrigan added.

"Judging a person by color, sex or creed probably still exists in some places," he said. "Where it does" exist, I doubt if you would consider working for that company."

The Consortium itself is a sign of the attitudes of the 180 major corporations who contribute to the program to bring minorities into business management.

"Why do we invest time and money on the minority program? Because we feel minorities are a group of individuals who offer the greatest untapped potential for executive talent within the business world," Corrigan said.

Corrigan stressed that there are opportunities for

M.B.A. graduates coming out of participating Consortium schools. The largest number of openings within the next two years likely will be in financial, accounting, and marketing fields, according to Corrigan.

"When comparing companies for employment, starting compensation should be less important than finding the type of position and company that best suits your interest. If you have found all other factors that fit you, the money will be there," Corrigan said.

96th ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Baptists of the GARBC variety will meet in their 46th Annual Conference June 27 through July 1 at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines.

7,000 Baptists

The General Association of Regular Baptist Churches will have approximately 7,000 representatives in attendance at the annual meeting.

Sessions of the conference will run from 8:30 a.m. each day through the 7:45 p.m. service. The public is welcome to attend.

1,500 Churches

The General Association of Regular Baptists is a fellowship of fundamental Baptist churches in 46 states. Total churches as of June 1976 stood at 1,528.

235,000 Members

Total membership in Association churches is near the 235,000 mark. Average per church is 153. A tally of church rolls this summer will likely top that figure.

$68 Million

In the fiscal year May 1975-April 1976, congregations of Regular Baptist churches gave nearly $13 million to missions, over $46 million for current operations and almost $9 million for new buildings, for a total of $67,907,259.91.

Average giving per member, according to reported figures, is $247.

JUNE 27 - JULY 1, 1977 DES MOINES, IOWA

THE POWER & THE GLORY

By Dr. G.E.A. Toote

The majority of illegal aliens in the United States come from Latin America and Caribbean countries whose populations are mushrooming, and economic stagnation or the lack of economic growth fails to provide adequate income.

Even with our high rate of unemployment and inflation, America represents available employment in labor intensive industries where cheap wage rates prevail.

Cleaning women in America make three times the wages of Mexican factory workers. Lionel J. Castillo, the new Commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service has publicly expressed doubts whether Americans are willing to relocate and accept low pay to take advantage of the jobs that usually employ illegal aliens.

The work he refers to as labor intensive is hard, fast unskilled, physical work; such as janitorial workers, maids, dishwashers, landscapers, and unskilled factory employment.

Immigration officials calculate that a million jobs are now being held by illegal aliens; 335,000 in agriculture, 300,000 in hotels, restaurants and service employment, 215,000 in light industry, and 150,000 in heavy industrial jobs.

President Carter assigned Cabinet responsibility for recommendations to ameliorate the social and economic unemployment crisis caused by illegal alien employment.

Labor Secretary Marshall and Attorney General Bell propose limited amnesty for aliens (primarily Mexicans). They recommend that illegal aliens in the United States five years or more, be given status as permanent legal resident aliens, and that they be free to have their families and dependents join them.

The admission of families of illegal aliens could prove to be a formidable number of people. It is estimated that each illegal Mexican now living in the United States has an average of five dependents now residing in Mexico.

Will the federal government deal with the problem of the illegal alien politically or objectively?

If illegal aliens are taking jobs away from Americans, they are negatively impacting upon our national unemployment problem. If, however, they are taking jobs no American wants or will accept, they are contributing to our economic development and growth.

The hispanic vote is significant in America. As a regional block vote in specific states, it would have meaningful impact in the next presidential election.

Be sure not to miss the 5th Annual Ice Cream Social at Mid-City Library on Sunday, June 19th at 4:00 p.m. Many groups will be selling food, crafts, rummage and other items.

If you haven't signed up as a contestant for the ice cream making contest, call the library, 283-4593, at once to register for the contest; really great prizes will be awarded for the best home made ice cream.

During the afternoon there will be special live entertainment and band music. At 8:30 p.m. Part I of the film, "Roots" will be presented in the library parking lot; it will last four hours; chairs will be provided and refreshments will be available. (In case of rain, the movie will be shown at the Old Dowling Gym at 1000 College).

The second and third parts of the film will be shown on Sundays, June 26th and July 3rd at 8:30 p.m. All free; bring the whole family!

The last segment of the film, "Roots", will be shown in the parking lot at Mid-City Library at 1305 University on Sunday, July 3rd at 8:30 p.m.

Another movie, "Lassie's Great Adventure", will be shown at 10:00 a.m. on Thursday, July 7th at the branch library.

Youngsters aged 8 to 16 may sign up now (call 283-4593) for the Checkers Tournament to be held Monday, July 18th at 10:00 a.m. Prizes will be awarded. All events are free.

Patrons are reminded that all libraries in the Des Moines Public Library system will be closed Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 2, 3 and 4 for the holiday.

Voter Education Project Supports Universal Voter Registration Act

Atlanta, Georgia — The Universal Voter Registration Act should be passed immediately by Congress because it will greatly benefit working Americans, minorities, and poor people who must travel long distances to register to vote, an official of the Voter Education Project (VEP) said today.

"Under existing regulations, rural residents are often required to travel over 50 or 60 miles round-trip just to register," explained Archie E. Allen, administrative director of the South-wide organization which has helped over two million blacks become registered voters in the past 15 years.

"Working people find it difficult to leave their jobs to meet the inconvenient and limited registration hours in most American counties. We need the universal registration system so people can register when they vote and so they won't be penalized time-wise or financially for exercising their citizenship rights."

"In the past 18 months, the

New York, NY — Today, defense attorneys for the Wilmington 10, along with the United Church of Christ Commission for Racial Justice, filed petitions with North Carolina Governor James Hunt, requesting a pardon for the ten civil rights activists convicted in 1971.

According to Chief Defense Counsel James E. Ferguson, "By filing the petitions for pardon, essentially what we are doing is adding a new dimension to the case and putting it squarely in an arena where the Governor can take into account all of the factors involved in this case."

"Based upon the manner of the convictions, the recantations of the witnesses, the promises and inducements made for their testimony based upon the clear implications this case has for race relations in the state, the implications that it Voter Education Project has assisted voter education and registration efforts in 150 southern cities, towns, and counties," said Allen. "Too often our efforts were hampered by the refusal of local registrars to appoint deputies and to extend registration hours to evenings and weekends. The Universal Registration Act would enable millions of Americans to register with ease for the first time."

No evidence exists to support the contention that the Universal Registration bill would open the door to voter fraud, the VEP official stated, citing the examples of Wisconsin and Minnesota as two states where registration on election day has resulted in increased voter participation.

"We are hopeful that Congress will expedite consideration of this important measure and will act in the best interest of the American people by passing the Universal Registration Act," said Allen. "This single, simple law will benefit working people, minorities, and poor people

Letter to Carter For Wilmington 10 Adopted by NCARL

The following letter to President Carter asking him to use his influence on behalf of the "Wilmington 10" was adopted by the 18th annual meeting of the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation.

NCARL, a national civil liberties education and action organization, led the successful campaign to end the House Committee on Un-American Activities in 1975, and the opposition to the S.1 bill in the last Congress, charging that the effort to reform the federal criminal code would seriously damage individual rights.

Among its national Vice-chairpersons are such civil rights leaders as Georgia Senator Julian Bond, John Lewis of Atlanta and Anne Braden of Louisville. NCARL hopes that its statement of support for efforts to win freedom for the Wilmington 10 will raise public and press support for this campaign.

Dear Mr. President,

The 18th annual meeting of the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation takes note of the fact that despite your stated concern for human rights in other countries, you have not spoken out on, or responded to the case of Reverend Ben Chavis and the "Wilmington 10."

We, along with other national and international organizations concerned with freedom and justice, consider this case to be one of the most glaring examples of the deprivation of rights of Black Americans today. It is an indication that Blacks and other national minorities, particularly in the South, continue to be imprisoned and brutalized when they work for equality and justice in our country.

The 18th annual meeting calls upon you, Mr. President, to use the power of your office to direct the Justice Department to bring this case to an end through court action, or to see that the Governor of North Carolina, Mr. James Hunt, grant pardons of innocence to the imprisoned Wilmington 10. We also call upon you to instruct the Justice Department to bring federal criminal charges against the federal and state officials who conspired to harass, intimidate and imprison the Wilmington 10 on fabricated charges.

In the light of your stated commitment to human rights, to justice in the South, and to common decency, we urge you to take action on this gross violation of human rights. (Unanimously adopted, June 12, 1977)

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT J. HAVIGHURST
