Secretary Kreps Announces Local Allocations Under Federal Program

Secretary of Commerce Juanita M. Kreps has announced planning allocations of funds for more than 10,000 eligible areas and applicants under a $4 billion Federal local public works program.

This is the first step in the program that is a major part of President Carter's economic stimulus package and will create private sector jobs in areas of high unemployment through the construction of needed public facilities. The first project approvals will begin late this month.

The planning targets announced represent a further breakdown of State allocations announced May 16. Mrs. Kreps said, "The identification of area and applicant planning targets will assist State and local governments to set priorities for projects to be funded beginning in June under the Public Works Employment Act of 1977."

The Secretary also emphasized the special steps being taken by the Department to ensure implementation of the legislative requirement that at least 10 percent of each grant under the program goes to minority businesses. "As a result of the comprehensive procedures devised to carry out this mandate, I am confident that minority business enterprise will benefit significantly from this program," she said.

The local decision-making facilitated by today's allocations is a key component of a new approach designed by the Commerce Department to produce a more equitable and predictable distribution of public works funds," Mrs. Kreps said. "Other elements of the new procedure include targeting funds to areas of greatest unemployment, advising applicants in advance of what they can expect under the program, reducing previous funding inequities among different areas and types of applicants, and decreasing the administrative workload for both applicants and the Federal Government."

Mrs. Kreps explained that the Department is considering an earlier $2-billion round of the Local Public Works program and of establishing planning targets. Thus, funds approved under the first round were subtracted from an area's total under a $6-billion program in arriving at the planning targets.

The job-creating program, which will be administered by the Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration, provides grants for 100 percent of the cost of local facilities, such as public buildings, water and sewer lines, industrial sites, and roads. Mrs. Kreps said that emphasis will be placed on accelerated project starts to take advantage of the current construction season. In every case, construction must be underway within 90 days of project approval.

"As President Carter indicated when he approved the Public Works Legislation last month, this program combines job creation with the provision of useful public facilities in areas suffering from the prolonged recession and eroded tax bases," Mrs.

Kreps said. She added that the needed facilities will be a legacy to future generations and in many cases serve as foundations for community development.

Resubmission and application forms for the program are being distributed this week to areas and applicants that received planning allocations. Applicants will complete these forms and submit them to EDA's six regional offices as soon as possible.

Former Managing Editor Assumes Post With DOT

Bob-E Epps

A former managing editor of The New Iowa Bystander has recently joined the staff of the Iowa Department of Transportation (DOT) in Ames.

Bob-E Epps started work on May 31 as Supportive Services Coordinator in the Contracts Office. In her work, Epps recruits minorities, women and disadvantaged persons from around the state to fill positions with highway construction contractors.

Epps also recruits persons to attend construction training schools in Des Moines and Omaha. She then helps them find jobs with highway contractors in the state.

There are approximately 25 minority contractors in Iowa which are relatively new in the business. Epps assists them in obtaining and satisfactorily completing highway construction contracts and subcontracts.

"I took this job because I like challenges and it offered one because, previously, it had only been held by men," Epps said. "This is a people-oriented job and I am people-oriented. As a journalist I've learned a lot about people — how they will react to things and sometimes how they think."

While working with The Bystander in 75-76, she started the "Who's Who" column and "Cook's Nook." During that time she also increased circulation and reestablished some advertising accounts.

Epps has worked as a news reporter for five radio stations and two television stations. She still does freelance voice production work for advertisers, and interviews for IPBN and Hawkeye Cable Vision.

She graduated from the University of Northern Iowa, Cedar Falls, in 1973 with a double major in speech pathology and broadcast journalism.

Epps and her husband, Herschel, live in Des Moines with their two children, Shaun, age eight and Dawn, age 1½.

Hopes for Improved Stability for NAACP

The closing of the annual meeting of the NAACP in St. Louis brought new leadership to the organization.

From the time that it came apparent that Roy Wilkins, who had led the organization successfully through dangerous periods, would be retiring there has been considerable confusion and jockeying by members of the staff for the position.

Then too, the organization suffered a terrific blow in connection with the lawsuit in Alabama that threatened the existence of the organization because the large financial obligation hanging over their heads. It threatened them for many months.

For years, the NAACP has conquered wonders. Negroes are doing things today which earlier backers did not expect in their lifetime. Because of this contribution the improvement of the economic and social status of the Negro has enabled many to amass considerable fortunes. But sorry to say, many of these same people have not supported the NAACP financially forgetting that there are many from whence they came that are in need just as they did in earlier years.

Some of the past supporters of substantial years have come under fire because of their lack of interest when the problem for which they fought over the years continues to exist. Peculiar criticism was made of the Jews, one of whom was the organization's founder and others have given it substantial support over the years. I am not in agreement with this criticism.

Considerable criticism is directed against labor. Over the years the organization has generally aligned itself with labor and together backed Democratic candidates and administrations throughout the country. And while labor leaders work with the organization and call for equal employment and enforcement of civil rights laws, the message has not gotten down to the local unions even though laws have been passed and units set up to enforce them. It often seems that business and labor talk out of one side of their mouths to one group and a different conversation to another.

Many Negroes complain of discrimination and have not made an honest attempt to secure for themselves the benefits which these laws provide.

It seems to me that a great many jobs which Negroes have filled in the past have gone to others, many of which, have increased salaries and made more attractive. This is particularly true in the building trades.

An excellent example of this is the construction going on across from my office at this time. So far I have seen no Negro employees on it and yet it is a project sponsored by businessmen who solicited funds from all class of citizens in order to finance this construction (I happen to be one who responded to the cause which is a matter of community responsibility.) Now that the NAACP is headed by one with wide experience gained in the religious, legal, business and government regulation new spirit should prevail and the organization taken on new life. After all it takes a lot of money to operate the NAACP and a large membership to back it up.

It is hoped that the deviseness which has characterized the organization will disappear so the news media will find other than doom to talk about the organization as they did during the recent session.

Overcrowded Shopping Areas

Des Moines and its surroundings have overbuilt shopping centers with the result that some are hunting for business.

Des Moines shopping area does not have the population to continue these centers and yet operators continuing to build them apparently without regard to fact that the situation is saturated at this time.

The same situation seems to be coming up with reference to airplanes coming into this area.

Heretofore, two lines, while overcrowded at times, gave Des Moines substantial service to all parts of the country. Much depends on the type of lines that are brought into the city for if they are capable of giving good service they will survive, but others will find themselves in the same position as the shopping centers.

The addition of new lines means addition to airport facilities which were completed only a short time and Des Moines will be pushed to enter into another period of remodeling at this time.

Public Health Training Amendments Proposed

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare today proposed amendments to the Regulations for conducting the Public Health and National Health Service Corps Scholarship Training Program.

The program, authorized under Section 225 of the Public Health Service Act, provides financial support to students of medicine, osteopathy, and dentistry, who in return are obligated to serve after graduation in a health manpower shortage area through the Public Health Service.

The proposed amendments would incorporate into the Regulations the program's policy of granting priority in selection to eligible applicants who are American Indians or Alaskan Natives. The amendments would also add to the selection criteria, consideration of an applicant's community background, career goals, graduation date, and specialty preference, and would clarify how deferment requests are considered.

The notice of proposed rulemaking, published in today's Federal Register, also includes other programmatic and editorial amendments. A 45-day period is allowed for public comment. Comments should be sent to the Director, Bureau of Health Manpower, Health Resources Administration, 3700 East-West Highway, Hyattsville MD 20782.

The program is administered by the Student Assistance Branch, Office of Program Operations, Bureau of Health Manpower. The Bureau is part of the Health Resources Administration, one of six Agencies of the Public Health Service.

Why is there no earthquake station

All humans gamble with their lives to some extent. We know there will be earthquakes, but they are so rare, we do not have a local earthquake station. We do have fire stations because we know there will be a certain number of fires.

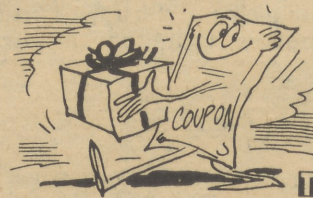

We also know there will be 850,000 deaths caused by heart attack and stroke this year, says the Iowa Heart Association.

There are precautions people can take regarding heart attack and stroke, much as we close match book covers before striking. The precautions against heart attack and stroke deal with "risk factors" which are every bit as sensible to observe as fire safety regulations.

The risk factors are cigarette smoking, lack of exercise, improper diet, high blood pressure and obesity. A person who ignores all these factors is gambling against tremendous odds. There are many people who smoke up to two packs of cigarettes a day, eat foods high in cholesterol and saturated fats, get very little moderate exercise, are overweight, and fail to control their high blood pressure with readily available and effective drugs.

Whatever age, sex or race you are, your lifestyle can be altered to cut down the risks. Just as the combination of all the factors may be deadly, the absence of all the factors can mean a longer and more productive and enjoyable life. How? Quit smoking, begin a proper diet, exercise moderately, watch your weight, and have your blood pressure checked. Take this advice from the Iowa Heart Association — "WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE!"

INGENIOUS IDEA

The next time you accidentally drop a family size soft drink bottle, it might not shatter like it used to.

BETTER BREAK—Plastic coating prevents glass bottles from shattering when they break.

That's because it might have an exterior coating of a transparent plastic film so strong that the glass fragments are retained. Bottles coated with the material combine the best properties of glass with the toughness and breakage protection provided by the plastic film.

The plastic, made from "Surlyn" ionomer developed by the Du Pont Company, protects the consumer by limiting the spread of glass in the event of breakage. In fact, "Surlyn" is so tough that it also is used as a protective cover on most golf balls.

Use of the plastic film also helps conserve energy by reducing the amount of glass needed in the manufacture of a bottle.

What it all amounts to is another way scientific advances have come up with advantages all of us can appreciate.

Bell Responds to Pleas from Congressmen in Wilmington 10 Case

Two weeks ago sixty members of Congress headed up by Rep. Don Edwards asked U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell to become more involved with the resolution of the Wilmington 10 case. Bell was asked to file friend of the court briefs with the North Carolina Appeals Court and the U.S. Federal District Court where the 10 defendants have been awaiting a decision on their habeas corpus petition for the past 17 months.

Edwards, chairman of the House Judiciary

Subcommittee on Constitutional and Civil Rights case as a "terrible sore". They cited President Carter's campaign promise that, if elected, he would "not tolerate the kind of racist injustice that has so often put civil rights leaders in prison."

The sixty congressmen also asked Bell to recommend a pardon to Governor James Hunt, an action Edwards and others are planning to do.

Attorney General Griffin Bell responded a few days ago to the sixty congressmen by saying that a review team headed by Drew Days, chief of the department's civil rights division, has been set up "to determine the appropriateness of department participation..." It has been learned from a Justice Department lawyer that filing a brief with the federal court in Raleigh is being considered.

Rep. Edwards says that he is "pleased and optimistic" after reading Bell's letter. Imani Kazana, National Coordinator of the Wilmington 10 Defense Committee, said, however, that she is not pleased citing that Mr. Bell's staff has been toying with this issue since February 2nd. "we are looking for some decisions and concrete action, not further study. The lives of 10 innocent people are slowly being destroyed."

Supporters have recently been very critical of President Carter's stand on human rights saying that he needs to apply his position at home first beginning with the Wilmington 10 case. The actions of the congressmen come as a result of three former prosecution witnesses having stated publicly and under oath that they lied at the 1972 trial at the urging of the state prosecutor, a violation of federal civil rights laws.

Good Food Preparation

That upset stomach, tummy ache, or "a touch of flu" can come from causes other than food poisoning bacteria, but for up to 10 million Americans each year, food is the source of the affliction.

The U.S. Center for Disease Control has found that many of those illnesses were caused by eating perishable foods in which the poisoning bacteria were present. In 80 to 90 percent of those instances, the blame could be laid to poor practices in food preparation.

Young children learn many of behaviors by observation — watching Mom and/or Dad at their regular work. That means you may teach a lifelong set of food preparation practices and not be aware that you're teaching.

Here are some safety practices that can be taught by example, which means always following them so they become the right way to do it:

1. Always wash your hands and check for clean nails before starting with food-handling tasks.
2. Use clean utensils — spoons, forks, etc. — in the food instead of hands, when that's possible.
3. Clean the working surfaces, keeping them well-scrubbed.
4. Wear rubber gloves or apply clean bandages to cuts, sores, or boils if you have them but still must prepare food.
5. In setting the table, handle the items away from the surfaces that food will

CLEANERS CAN BE DANGEROUS

When it's time for cleaning—be it spring or any other season—it's also time for safety. That's because many household chemicals cleaners—especially those in aerosol containers—can damage or destroy eyesight.

- Wear safety goggles when cleaning walls or woodwork as many cleaners contain potent ingredients.

- Always note which way the nozzle is pointed when using a spray can, warns The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

- Store cleaners like those for windows and drains in a place inaccessible to children. Never put them in soft drink or milk bottles which a child might mistake and drink or shake.

- Don't throw aerosol cans in incinerators or trash fires. They might explode.

- Should chemicals get in your eyes, flood them with water immediately, continue for about 15 minutes, and call a doctor.

Johnny Brown Believes, No Biz Like Show Biz

Entertainer Johnny Brown confers with Lafayette Jones, marketing manager for Hunt's Manwich, over the full-page color ad which will appear in the August and September issues of FAMILY CIRCLE, McCALL'S, LADIES HOME JOURNAL, REDBOOK and EBONY Magazines. Brown appears in the print advertising for Manwich as well as the TV commercials.

"I love show biz...everything about it and I consider myself very lucky. I've been a regular on four TV series, have done nightclubs, Broadway, films... everytime I get a job, I thank God. I really feel that I'm lucky to be working. Today, young people take these things for granted."

This is the serious side of Johnny Brown speaking — the versatile comedian, actor, singer, dancer, songwriter. Television audiences remember Johnny as a regular on "The Leslie Uggams Show", "Rowan & Martin's Laugh-in", "The N.B.C. Folies", and "Sammy & Company".

"Ever since I was a little kid, I had two loves — entertainment and boxing. I wanted to do both, be a middleweight champ and also a singer. Things opened up in show biz first, so I went in that direction. I had a natural talent, studied classical music, started recording for Columbia Records and went into nightclub engagements. Then around 1961, I met Sammy Davis, Jr."

In addition to the variety of television shows he has appeared in, Johnny has done his share of commercials, the latest being for Hunt's Manwich, America's No. 1 selling Sloppy Joe sauce. "A sandwich is a sandwich, but a Manwich is a meal."

"I've done a lot of commercials, but I've never gotten as much recognition as with Manwich. I was at Disneyland recently, and people came up to me and said, 'Hey, Johnny, what's a Manwich?' I get that all the time. In nightclubs, it's almost like a password."

What kind of advice does he give to young people who aspire to get into show biz?

"It doesn't matter who you are, get a solid education. You look at me and I'm a finished product. The dividends are paying off now, but I've been in this business 27 years. So many young entertainers are ripped off. People ignore the fact that show business is a business and you have to conduct your affairs accordingly."

"If you love it, take it up as a hobby. If anything materializes, then pursue it. There are a lot of ups and downs in this business, and there are no guarantees. Look at it this way. You've got a chance of one in five million to become a superstar. Education is the most important thing because with it, you've really got something to fall back on."

Brown is a regular on "Good Times" and there's a possibility of a feature film if he can work the production schedule around the TV show.

He's also in the process of writing a one-act play, a cookbook, and he's experimenting with a musical comedy.

As if these creative projects weren't enough, he also has the Johnny Brown Celebrity All-Stars Basketball Team which is compiled of sports figures and TV and film celebrities, with such people as Kent McCord of "Adam 12", former Laker Rudy La Russo, and Tommy Davis of Dodger fame.

"We play basketball for two reasons: we enjoy the game and we help raise funds for worthwhile causes. For example, we've done benefits for the John Tracy Clinic in Los Angeles, which helps meet the needs of the deaf, and the American Cancer Society. For the past five years, we've raised $200,000 for underprivileged schools to help them purchase band uniforms and sporting equipment."

The Brown Family is definitely a show biz family. Johnny's wife, June, was the road manager this past year for Lola Falana while his daughter, Sharon, age 15, has been understudy to the lead in "The Wiz". A show biz veteran for 11½ years, Sharon has done Broadway, television and modeling.

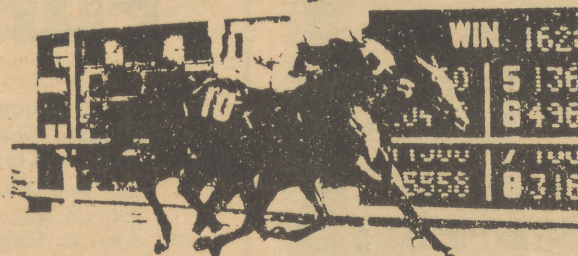

"We emphasize discipline in our family... we don't spoil the children and we have no prima donnas. Our seven-year-old son, Johnny, Jr. hasn't yet decided what he wants to do."

"As a performer, I owe the public some of my time. If this infringes on some of my privacy, then it is a small price to pay. If I had to do it again, I'd do it the same way. I'd choose this business because I love it."

Dayton Celebrates Ohio Players Day

Two years ago, the Mayor of Dayton and other State and Local politicians gathered to honor the numerous charity and community services the musicians of the OHIO PLAYERS band have given the Dayton region. The aid hasn't stopped — nor have the honors, and recently, for the third consecutive year, Dayton, Ohio celebrated Ohio Players Day.

Highlighting the festivities were Mercury Records' executives, Jules Abramson, Senior Vice-President of Marketing, and Charlie Fach, Executive Vice-President and General Manager, who presented the group with yet another gold album for their chart-busting disc, entitled appropriately enough, "Gold." Bill Hayward, National Director of Promotion and Robin McBride, International and Midwest Director of A&R of Mercury Records were also on hand to present a Golden Microphone Broadcasting Award to the group's leader, Clarence Stachell, who was named Mercury Records' "Man Of The Year."

Over the past few years, the OHIO PLAYERS, many of whom are Dayton natives, have made a concerted effort to share their good fortune with worthy local causes. Substantial contributions have been donated to Barney's Children's Medical Center Fund and to the building fund of a church whose sanctuary was condemned.

Recreational equipment has been donated to the Dayton Rehabilitation Center, the Juvenile Detention Center, and the Dayton Mental Retardation Board. The OHIO PLAYERS sponsor players of a different sort, too: several local baseball teams. A travelling art exhibition from the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. was recently brought to Sinclair Community College through the efforts of the group, and uniforms were purchased for the Colonial White High School Band, in addition to numerous other projects.

The group's latest album is entitled "Angel," and the OHIO PLAYERS, for many worthwhile causes, are indeed angels.

Phil Donohue, Chicago-based talk-show host, returned to his native Dayton to interview his fellow home-town boys. He also had the Players on his show two years ago at the first Ohio Players Day celebration.

Carolyn Stachell and LaDon Williams, wives of two of the Players, helped form the Ohio Players Womens Auxiliary Club and received Merit Awards for the work they have done.

Plans were also announced for next year's celebration of Ohio Players Day, plans which include a talent search, contests, and a Dayton Mayfair Ball for charity. Both the group and their wives have demonstrated that they haven't forgotten their roots — and Dayton has gratefully acknowledged their concern.

GLAUCOMA: A THREAT TO YOU?

It has been called the "sneak thief of sight"—with good reason. Glaucoma, the second leading cause of blindness in the country, usually works slowly and painlessly and the victim may not be aware of any symptoms during its early stages.

And yet the good news from The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, which sponsors a Glaucoma Alert Program, is that glaucoma—which accounts for 14 percent of all blindness in the U.S.—can be medically treated and arrested.

Since nearly two million Americans over age 35 suffer from glaucoma, it's important that people in this age range have an eye examination once every two years. The test for glaucoma is done with a device called a tonometer which simply and painlessly measures eye fluid pressure in only minutes. If the disease is discovered early enough, it can generally be controlled with medication, although some cases require surgery.

Bill to Strengthen SBA Supported by Burrell

(Washington, D.C., June 29, 1977) ... Appearing before joint subcommittees of the U.S. Senate today, Dr. Berkeley G. Burrell, President of the National Business League, announced support for the Small Business Investment Policy and Advocacy Reorganization Act of 1977 (S.1726).

"The bill touches upon two of the fundamental issues confronting the small business community and its relationship to the federal government - investment and advocacy," said Dr. Burrell in remarks to the Subcommittee on Economic Growth and Stabilization and the Subcommittee on Government Regulation and Small Business Advocacy.

According to the NBL President, the availability and cost of capital has been a traditional nemesis for small and particularly for minority businesses.

Dr. Burrell pointed out that 64% of all minority firms are concentrated in retail trade, 94% operate as sole proprietorships and most are located in depressed inner city communities. It should be no surprise that minority business suffers from a capital shortage.

"For minority business firms to achieve business parity by the end of this century, requires an investment of more than $440 billion in minority business enterprise," said the NBL President. "But in its entire history the SBA has approved less than $24 billion in loans."

The NBL President emphasized that one of the keys to increased productivity throughout the economy is increased development of minority business.

"Our gross national product is deprived of billions of dollars annually as an acknowledged consequence of the underdevelopment of Black and other minority communities. Since full utilization of our economic resources is one of the essential ingredients for a sustainable rate of growth, the underutilization of resources in the minority business sector is at variance with the needs of the nation."

In considering such facts, Dr. Burrell emphasized that a defined policy outlining government's role in stimulating investment and other capital resources for the small and minority business community is both appropriate and desirable.

"What's needed is a coherent federal policy that places particular emphasis on strengthening the role of small business in the fabric of our national economic life," said Dr. Burrell.

The NBL President pointed out that the bill, in strengthening the role of the Small Business Administration by elevating its administrator to Cabinet rank, was a step in the direction of meaningful assistance to small business in general and minority business in particular.

Dr. Burrell strongly endorsed the called-for annual Small Business Investment Policy Report in the proposed legislation. The report would be issued by the President. Dr. Burrell felt such reports should contain an assessment of the unique problems of minority firms in meeting their investment needs and offer substantial recommendations toward solving those problems.

However, the NBL President was quick to point out that the bill, in establishing a Small Business Economic Council, omits from Council representation the small business and minority business communities. To rectify this omission, he called for participation on the council by small business representatives and specifically by the Director of the Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

In his testimony Dr. Burrell emphasized the importance of developing and maintaining pertinent data on the economic status of small and minority business as a basis for future strategies. The NBL

President pointed out how little we realize that small business constitutes more than 96% of all American business firms, accounts for 55% of the nation's private, non-farm employment and produces 48% of the gross business product.

Hearings on the bill, co-sponsored by Senators Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Thomas McIntyre (D - N.H.), represent the first time that the Joint Economic Committee and the Select Committee on Small Business have jointly considered legislation regarding small business.

Dr. Burrell appeared before the subcommittees on behalf of the National Business League and its National Council for Policy Review.

NBL, founded in 1900 by Booker T. Washington, is the nation's oldest national business organization and serves as the national advocate for minority business enterprise.

Researcher Edgar Goff and Mildred Simpson, librarian of the Margaret Herrick Library of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, examine materials donated to the Academy's new Black American Film History Collection. One of the first items in the collection is a broadsheet from the Vernon, a 1930's-vintage Black night club in Los Angeles. The broadsheet promotes Sonny Clay's Syncopators and the Vernon's "Creole Follies, with the Niftiest Chorus of Creole Cuties in Town." The papers and other material related to the life and career of first Black Oscar winner Hattie McDaniel were donated by Goff to the Black American Film History Collection.

Establish Black American Film History Collection

The first permanent collection of material related to Blacks in American motion pictures to be established by a major film-related institution has been announced by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The initial acquisition in the Black American Film History Collection, which will become part of the Academy's Margaret Herrick Library, is material related to the life and career of actress Hattie McDaniel.

McDaniel, who appeared in 74 films between 1932 and 1949, was the first Black to win an Academy Award, a supporting actress Oscar for her portrayal of Mammy in "Gone With the Wind," released in 1939.

The Hattie McDaniel Collection, containing clippings, letters, still photographs and other material related to Ms. McDaniel and other entertainers in her family, was donated to the Academy by researcher Edgar Goff, McDaniel and other entertainers in her family, was donated to the Academy by researcher Edgar Goff, McDaniel's grandnephew. Goff will also serve as a special advisor to the Margaret Herrick Library in matters related to the Black American Film History Collection.

The establishment of the new collection is one of a number of activities and projects being carried out as part of the year-long celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Academy.

Materials donated to the Black American Film History Collection through the Academy Foundation may be tax deductible.

Considered to be the finest library of its kind in the world, the Margaret Herrick Library contains more than 10,000 books, periodicals and pamphlets on motion pictures; over 500,000 still photographs; files on more than 40,000 films; thousands of film posters, glass-mounted slides and other artifacts; and a number of studio and personal collections.

The library is open Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is located in the Academy building at 8949 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. Telephone 278-4313.

Awards

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Carter has announced that he is awarding the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, to the late Rev. Martin Luther King, jr., and Dr. Jonas Salk.

The citation called King, the civil rights leader who was murdered in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968, "the conscience of his generation," adding: "A southerner, a black man, he gazed upon the great wall of segregation and saw that the power of love could bring it down."

The award to Salk, who developed the polio vaccine that bears his name, said: "Because of Dr. Jonas Salk, our country is free from the cruel epidemics of poliomyelitis that once struck almost yearly. Because of his tireless work, untold hundreds of thousands yearly. Because of his tireless work, untold hundreds of thousands who might have been crippled are sound in body today."

The Medal of Freedom is presented to persons who have made special contributions to U.S. security or national interests, to world peace or to cultural endeavors.

LOOK ON SPORTS

The big league pennant races are getting down to where it counts.

In the National league, the leaders all season long seem about to come back to the pack. The Cubs are having a big losing streak, and they are probably beginning to look back at the other guys, which is nearly always fatal. In the American league, the White Sox were about to go into a dip, but seem to have battled back and might make things tough for the rest to catch them.

As one manager put it, "When the grass turns brown, the ones who belong on top will be there, and those who don't won't." So, maybe we are in that stage of the game.

But what about the L.A. Dodgers and the Reds? They both have teams capable of winning it all in their divisions, so what will happen to one of them? The Dodgers are a mile and a half ahead of the Reds, and the only way the Reds can catch them is to beat them in head to head competition, something they haven't done yet. Just breaking even won't get it. And so now, I have become a baseball expert. But that is the way I see things in the two leagues.

I think this came about because of a discussion a few of us had about the rundown on one hundred years of Wimbledon tennis. One fellow said he thought it was a shame that Althea Gibson and Arthur Ash weren't given more recognition for being the first blacks to play there. I didn't care if they didn't, just so they got mentioned for what they did at the meet.

I must be about the only black in the country who thinks like I do, but I haven't really subscribed to this first black theory. I realize that lots of blacks are denied chances because they are black, but the ones who make it aren't there because they are black, but because they are good, and would be where they are even if they were green or any color.

This brought up baseball, and the fellow said that Satchel Paige was denied his chance because of his race, which is true. But so were several other great players. Now just about every white person who follows baseball knows about Paige, but how many of them ever heard of Bullet Rogan or Andy Cooper or Chet Brewer, not to mention John Donaldson? All these fellows were in the class with Satchel, and given a chance would have made it in the majors. Paige made it because he was good, and somebody had the guts to give him a chance because he was good. But followers of the old Negro league will tell you that the guys I have mentioned were up there too. If this doesn't make sense to you, remember that I could be wrong as two left feet, but that is my story.

I watched Mark Morrow make it to the semi finals in the Hawkeye tennis meet last week end. A fellow sitting next to me remarked that Mark had great potential if and when he learned to control his temper. I asked how many of the players out there did do that. It seems that they all got mad at one time or another.

But while Mark was having his troubles, there was a couple down at the other end playing as if they really enjoyed it. Jock Johnson, who has been playing tennis about three years and not in very fast company was having the time of his life in the mens doubles. He vows to get into more of them and do you know, the fellow just might upset someone, because he never gives up and really hates to lose.

Getting back to Mark, I would have to credit him with an assist in the defeat of Bruce Naegle, number one seed, in the semifinals. Mark carried Bruce two tough sets in that hundred degree heat while his opponent didn't have too much trouble. Well, Bruce just couldn't take two tough matches in that heat, and that helped do him in.

Mark has a couple of years left at Iowa, and may become number one before he gets out of there. And if he gets there he will do it because he plays the best tennis and not because he is black. He will be the top player who happens to be black.

The big surprise I got at the Hawkeye meet was the interest shown in our Hilltop meet which comes up next month. Looks as if we will have a good draw no matter what.

You can now enjoy consumer electronics for economy as well as entertainment. The U.S. Department of Labor Consumer Price Index shows that while the American family's living costs have more than doubled since 1950, the average cost of a portable radio has dropped by 22 percent and a television set by more than 35 percent since that time, while portable tape recorder prices have dropped 8 percent since 1962.

If you pre-select the material you're recording, you can purchase a tape that exactly fits the length of your selection.

Q. My husband and I keep our life insurance policies in a safe deposit box. My brother says we should keep them at home. What's your opinion?

A. We think your brother is right. Keep them at home where your family knows where they are. There's no need to keep life insurance policies in a safe deposit box, because duplicates can be requested if they are lost or stolen. Besides, a beneficiary might have to obtain the permission of tax authorities to open the box and this could delay payment.

But keep a list of the policy numbers and the company names in a separate place from the policies themselves.

Care about children?... about your community?

School board members represent a unique feature of our American heritage—the public school system with a local governing body of lay citizens, responsive to voters in the community. School board members face long hours, big challenges, difficult decisions for no reward but the satisfaction of knowing that, on behalf of their community, they guide the development of its most cherished asset, our young people. It is not an easy task. It is a significant role.

Candidates for school board elections must file nomination papers between July 11 and August 4. Information on how to become a candidate, and what is expected of school board members, is contained in a free brochure, "Care about children?", available from your school board secretary. Or write your name and address on this advertisement, and send it to us.

THE NEW FRIENDSHIP C.O.G.I.C.

On last week we were blessed to have Elder R.D. Davis from East St. Louis, Ill. to speak for us, it was another holy ghost time and souls were refreshed.

We are looking for another great time in the Lord this Sunday our pastor will be bringing the message, and praying for the sick. If you have a problem or sick come on out and let God man of faith and power pray for you and you too can be set free like hundreds of others.

At 7:00 p.m. THE GOSPEL SONG WRITERS of Des Moines will be at the New Friendship church in their first musical since their new release. I have heard others sing but when I heard this group, these men were drawn together by their love for spiritual music. From the beginning it was obvious that these men had the talent from which success is made. These natural talents plus their willingness to rehearse many, many hours to perfect their performance has brought them to be the number one quartet in Iowa.

They will be at New Friendship church Sunday, July 10th at 7:00; come and hear these men plus the three choirs at New Friendship. What a good way to spend a Sunday afternoon, 1700 West 16th Street, Des Moines, Iowa.

MESSIAH TEMPLE

Reverend Jacob Reed and Evangelist Zora Reed brought us an outstanding message from Micah 6:8. "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" It is an eternal blessing to be here at Messiah Temple watching these two preach the same sermon together. They preached on "Walking WITH God." They told us that walking with God implies at least three things. The first thing is Companionship. One scripture asks the question, "How can two walk together unless they agree?" So we must agree with the way Jesus wants to do a thing. Second, they told us that walking with God we must have "Fellowship." In I John 1:3, it says "Our fellowship is with the Father, and with His Son Jesus Christ." God is the one who supplies us with enabling grace to go forward. And third, they told us that walking with God means "Progress." Walking is a regular, uniform motion, step by step, each one in advance of the last. It is not a rush, a leap, but a steady progress from one point to another. God never goes backwards and if you stay with God, neither will you. The only thing that can break your fellowship with God and hinder your progress is SIN.

Our pastor and his wife do everything together, and we are grateful for their leadership. They told us that heaven was a Holy place and you have to live a Holy life on earth to live in heaven. Those who do not live a Holy life on earth will NEVER live in heaven.

Sunday evening Evangelist Reed brought us a lesson on "A Good Woman." The lesson came from Proverbs 31:10-31. This lesson encouraged the listeners to hear and yield themselves to the Lord.

Messiah Temple is once again having a church picnic at Grandview Park on July 9 at 11:00. Fellowship with God and His saints is truly enjoyed when we get together. We are holding a rummage sale at the church on 2603 Center on July 30. Come and see if there is a picture or something you can use.

REGISTRATION HOMEBOUND TRAINING PROGRAM

Registration is currently being accepted for the two fall sessions of the Homebound Training Program, vocational education for severely handicapped adults. The two sessions, September 6 - October 7 and October 17 - November 18, will be held at Camp Sunnyside, Easter Seals' 80-acre, barrier-free facility located north of Des Moines.

Sponsored by the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Iowa, Inc., in conjunction with Rehabilitation Education and Services Branch (RESB) of the Iowa Department of Public Instruction, Iowa's Homebound Training Program offers a special opportunity to severely disabled Iowa adults to learn a skill.

Under the guidance of Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor Richard Sartori and an experienced professional teaching staff directed by Fred Kelly, trainees learn to produce quality, saleable items.

Any persons, 18 years or older, whose handicaps prevent their working outside their homes are eligible for Homebound Training. Classes are offered in ceramics, woodworking, leather crafts, weaving, silversmithing, sewing and needlecrafts, and chair caning.

The Program, which is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation (CARF), emphasizes total rehabilitation for each individual. During the five-week sessions, trainees attend classes five-hours daily, live in comfortable cabins, and enjoy family style meals in the Main Lodge. Assisted by attendants and a 24-hour medical staff, trainees enjoy planned recreational and social activities.

Fees for the training program and equipment to be used in the home later are paid by the sponsoring agencies or, occasionally where possible, fees may be shared by the trainee. Homebound Training Program Director Carol Hirsch emphasizes that no person is ever turned away due to inability to share costs.

Further information pertaining to the Homebound Training Program, or any other programs offered at Camp Sunnyside, may be obtained by calling collect, Richard Sartori, (515) 289-1933, or by contacting the nearest Easter Seal Regional Office.

The Answer Crusade By Rev. H. L. Thompson

"Something very unusual and interesting beginning here Sunday night, July 10, at 7:40 P.M. — something you will not want to miss," said Rev. H. L. Thompson, whose crusade will be held at 12th and Forest.

We are all aware of the upsurge of traumatic events that constantly shake our world daily. Things are happening so rapid, it's hard to keep up with them. The energy crisis is mounting. The increase of crime and terrorism is alarming. Inflation and unemployment are rising. Earthquakes and destructive storms are devastating. Air pollution and water contamination is appalling. New weapons of war and nuclear warheads are frightening. Today, people are asking, Why? What war and nuclear warheads are frightening. Today, people are asking, Why? What are the deep and hidden meanings behind the events of our age? People want to know. They want answers to solve the mystery of life and the puzzle of this confused world.

It is our pleasure to bring THE ANSWER CRUSADE to Des Moines, a unique series that presents answers to problems and questions of our age, from an accurate and ancient source. It begins here Sunday, July 10, at 7:40 P.M., at the Canvas Cathedral, located at Forest Avenue and 12th Street. We are presenting answers to questions you have wondered about all your life. Enclosed is a program showing the different subjects each night, Sunday through Friday.

I want to personally invite you to come and witness for yourself this exciting program with each subject graphically illustrated in a double-screen multi-media color-slide presentation. I have been speaking for ten years throughout much of America and hold degrees in history, Biblical languages and theology.

This is something you must investigate for yourself. Our opening subject sheds light on the energy shortage and reveals something more important and serious than the fuel shortage. Find out what it is on opening night, July 10.

We feel that this program is so important that we are giving a beautiful free gift to each person who attends opening night, and a free Bible (called the Basic Bible, that has special study helps) if you will attend at least twelve nights of the entire series (they don't have to be consecutive). Of course, there will be music that warms the heart and stirs the soul. So bring the whole family to the Canvas Cathedral and find the answers you need.

Special lunch rate for more students

More Iowa children will become eligible for free and reduced-price lunches when schools open this fall, according to Vern Carpenter, director of the Department of Public Instruction's (DPI) Child Nutrition Programs Division.

The new income scale effective July 1, 1977, recently published by the Secretary of Agriculture, increased eligibility by about 7 percent above last year.

Under the previous income scale, children from a family of four were eligible for free meals if the family's gross income was below $7,130.

Under the new scale, children in the same size family will be eligible if the gross income is under $7,610.

The number of free and reduced-price lunches served children in Iowa's Schools this past school year averaged about 80,000 a day, an increase of 11 percent over the previous year. Iowa serves about 19 percent of its lunches free or at reduced prices.

All public and nonpublic schools in the lunch program offer both free and reduced-price lunches. The maximum charge for a reduced-price lunch is 20 cents.

EDA Grant Goes to Los Angeles

Approval of grants totaling $3,747,275 to conduct an adjustment program for the revitalization of an inner-city area to protect 3,100 jobs in Los Angeles, California, was announced today by Robert T. Hall, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development.

The Los Angeles City Economic Development Office applied for the grants from the Economic Development Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The funds will be used to preserve the city's historic wholesale cut flower market and to plan a consolidation and expansion of the wholesale produce market. The program is designed to stimulate the revitalization of the central city business area by providing improvements that will encourage private investments. It also is designed to create and retain jobs for inner-city workers.

Included in the EDA grants are:

— $3,000,000 to construct pedestrian malls, sidewalks, curbs, gutters and storm drainage facilities at the flower market. Wall Street, between Seventh and Eighth Streets, will be repaved and an overhead bridge and parking lots will be constructed. Administrative space for the Los Angeles City Economic Development Office will be constructed at the site.

— $747,275 to plan the consolidation and expansion of the Los Angeles Wholesale Produce Market. The plan will consider an improvement and expansion of the Terminal Market at Seventh and Central Streets through a consolidation with the Central Wholesale Market at Eighth and Central Streets and the City

Market at Ninth and San Pedro Streets.

On announcing the grants, Hall said, "EDA is pleased to join as a partner with Los Angeles in carrying out this revitalization of an inner-city business area. The project also indicates the confidence of private businessmen in central city business districts and the desire to provide employment for inner-city workers."

"This program will demonstrate to the nation that wholesale markets can be restored, and it should serve as a model to other cities to plan similar restorations."

City officials estimate that the jobs of 600 workers will be preserved through the restoration of the flower market and those of another 2,500 workers at the expansion of the wholesale produce market.

EDA approved the grants under Title IX of the Public Works and Economic Development Act authorizing funds for special economic development and adjustment assistance.

The preservation of the flower market will include the rehabilitation of existing structures to be financed privately at an estimated cost of $8,804,500.

RETIRE RICHER!

Bankers Trust
Individual Retirement and Keogh Plan accounts
now earn a big 7³/₄ % interest!

We want to help you have more money available for your retirement years. So we've just increased the interest paid on IRA's and Keogh Plans from 7-1/2 % to 7-3/4 %. And with daily compounding of interest, the effective annual yield is now over 8%.

This increase can mean up to thousands of additional dollars to you when you retire.

If you work for a company with no retirement plan of its own, you're eligible to open an Individual Retirement Account. Each year, you may deposit up to 15% of your income, or $1,500*, whichever is less. Your money will earn our new higher interest, and neither the money you deposit nor the interest earnings will be currently taxable.

If you're self-employed, you may open a Keogh Plan account, and deposit up to 15% of your annual income, or $7,500, whichever is less. Keogh Plans earn 7-3/4 % interest, too. And neither the money you deposit nor the interest earned is currently taxable.

Then, when you retire, as early as age 59-1/2, you can begin withdrawing the funds you've accumulated. You pay taxes only on the amount you withdraw each year. Chances are, you'll be in a lower tax bracket, and will be required to pay less tax. When you reach age 65, your tax burden will be reduced further.

Sound complicated? It's really not. A Consumer Banker at any Bankers Trust location will be glad to sit down with you and discuss your personal needs. There's no obligation, of course.

No matter how many years until your retirement, now is the time to open your IRA or Keogh Plan account at Bankers Trust, so your retirement funds can begin earning our new higher interest rate. With your regular saving and our higher interest, we can help you enjoy a richer, more fulfilling retirement.

* $1,750 for families where only one spouse works for pay.

 Federal regulations require that a self-employed person establishing a Keogh Plan for himself must also open a Keogh Plan for each permanent, full-time employee, and contribute to it in a proportion equal to his own contributions.
