A Cedar Rapids physician, a West Des Moines school board member and a recent Iowa State University graduate from southwest Iowa were appointed to the State Board of Regents last week by Governor Robert Ray. "They bring talent, energy, and a fresh perspective to their new responsibilities," the Governor added.

Introduced by Ray at a special conference in his office were:

—Percy G. Harris, M.D., of Cedar Rapids. Dr. Harris, 49, immediate past president of the medical and dental staff at St. Luke's Hospital, has specialized in family practice medicine in Cedar Rapids for 19 years. He has served as Linn County Medical Examiner since

News Briefs

AKRON, OHIO (AP) — A black man who neighbors and relatives said had been subjected to 2½ years of neighborhood racial prejudice fatally shot himself accidentally while running after someone who fire-bombed his house.

Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall says government efforts to end discrimination are expected to meet greater resistance in the future as more women and minorities set their sights on management positions.

Said Marshall: "We've gone through most of the easy cases now. The time you really begin to get the greatest resistance by management to equal opportunity is when women and minorities go after management."

MEDFORD, MASS. — Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Johnson of West Medford, Mass., never thought they would hit it big in a lottery. But after winning small sums from time to time, the young couple, both 30, are set for life.

Chandler is the recipient of $100,000 a year for life — courtesy of the Massachusetts State Lottery. It was the biggest award ever given in a state lottery. In case something happens to Chandler, his wife, Mara, is guaranteed $2 million.

Oakland, Calif. — Charging that federal agents plotted to kill his wife and ruin the Black Panther Party organization, former Panther party leader Eldridge Cleaver is suing the government for $5 million.

Cleaver's suit charges that a meeting of his wife, Kathleen, and her companions was made to coincide with the arrival of police at the Cleaver home Aug. 25, 1975.

Atlanta, Ga. — Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson says there is a systematic effort underway to eliminate Black law enforcement officials.

Speaking to the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives in Atlanta, Gibson says grand juries, congressional investigations and the news media have been used to attack Black lawmen.

The only way to stop the attack, Gibson told the gathering, is to inform the public about the plight of the nation's Black lawmen.

Chicago, Ill. — Unless a probate court judge substitutes sympathy for a rule of reason, the $1½-million Friendship Medical Center built in Chicago in 1972 on the business acumen and medical genius of the late Dr. T. R. M. Howard will change hands from Black to

Bankers Life Loans Yvonne Gates to Drake

Through a unique employee loan program, The Bankers Life has loaned Yvonne Gates, assistant underwriter in its pension department, to Drake University for one year to serve as coordinator of the Employed Minority Women Project in the Community Career Planning Center for Women.

Although The Bankers Life has loaned its executives to various community service projects for up to three months, this is the first time a departmental employee has been loaned, according to Robert N. Houser, president and chief executive officer of the insurance company. It is also the first time one has been loaned for such a length of time.

"The company sees significant potential value through the successful completion of Mrs. Gates' 12-month project with the center," Houser said.

Iowa Short Cut In Federal Funds

An article appearing in the Des Moines Sunday Register indicates that, "Iowa taxpayers continue to send far more money to Washington than Washington sends to Iowa. And the federal government spends less money per person in Iowa — $1.01 a year — than in any state except Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan."

"Those are the findings of a new study by the National Journal, a magazine of politics and government."

It is difficult to reason that even though Iowa has a fair amount of industry and excellent agricultural crops, many states that have almost equal amount of industry and agriculture and large amounts of government installations are located in them which get by with far below Iowa.

An editorial appearing in the Des Moines Tribune last week said that a department of the federal government advertised for bids on a product. A Massachusetts company was the low bidder; an Alabama company was the high bidder. All bids were thrown out and new specifications provided. The job was readvertised and on this occasion the Alabama company was the low bidder.

It seems to me that this type of business should not be permitted. Congress is spending a lot of time hammering out ethics of conduct of its members. Legally they are overseers of all departments of the government because funds for their operation must be voted by Congress. And this is why some states are receiving more from the government by far than they return.

Why Spread the Community College

The Des Moines Area Community College which, is situated near Ankeny, has an excellent facility providing most subjects given in an undergraduate college and also a trade school designed particularly to accommodate drop outs and also people who are not prepared financially to attend a four year college.

Moved by a constant protests from many students living in Des Moines, the school is seeking a more adequate facility to accommodate them here.

It seems to me that if the college expects to build a large facility in every city which its jurisdiction covers it will weaken the main college and add expense which the idea of a community college does not anticipate. There is no reason why transportation facilities at a reasonable cost could not be furnished those students who do not live near the campus. It is being done by students living in other communities of the college area and nothing is being said about it.

Mayor Olson has suggested that several acres of ground in the Model Cities area be sold to the college at a very nominal price for the construction of a facility there. Others members of the council disagree.

It seems that we have enough facilities in Des Moines that pay no taxes and the construction of such a facility as contemplated would add to the already burdensome taxes we pay. The original idea in clearing the land was to make it possible to produce more tax revenue. Such a non-paying facility would not help in the least.

Another Silly Battle At Kent College

The riots and killings at Kent College during the 1960's should be a matter forgotten, especially, in view of the fact that lawsuits against law enforcement officials and the state have gone for naught indicating that those who participated in the riots were the ones who caused the trouble.

Now, the school is planning to construct a gymnasium in the area where the riots occurred. Like the 1960's a lot of silly people are protesting the construction and are going so far as to disobey the orders of the Court which provided that they should remove their camps from the grounds.

I have never felt that those students should have gone so far in the beginning by throwing rocks and sticks at the law enforcement officers to the extent that it became necessary to use their guns in order to protect themselves.

The Constitution provides for free speech and free assembly, but when it gets to the place citizens disregard the law then necessary action should be taken to curtail such activities.

Time For Thoughtful Citizens To Consider The Schoolboard

July is the month when citizens who care about the local school system should be in touch with persons who may run for election or re-election to the school board, says T. E. Davidson, executive director of the Iowa Association of School Boards.

School elections are September 13 this year, and candidates must file nomination papers between July 11 and August 4.

"This is a very appropriate time for citizens to encourage the candidacy of persons they would like to see stay on the school board, or run for vacancies," Davidson said.

"School board members struggle with hard decisions and frustrating restrictions from state and federal authorities. They commit considerable amount of time and energy to school board matters, for a three-year term. Like other public officials, they are likely to hear most often from persons who are unhappy, or who are promoting special interests. At this time, when many incumbents are considering whether or not to run for another term, it would be good for them to hear from a broad cross-section of the community they represent."

"In communities where there will be a vacancy on the school board," Davidson added, "it is timely for thoughtful citizens to look around for people whose judgment they trust, people who will represent the community as a whole and not some narrow special interest, and encourage them to run for the school board.

"School board members are entrusted with one of the most important responsibilities in the community—making education available to its young people. It is important to recruit good candidates, who are open-minded, willing to listen and learn, and sensitive to the needs of children and young adults."

School board members serve without pay. Neither they nor their spouses may be employed by the school district. There is no limit on re-election. Nominating petitions are available from the school board secretary, who also has copies of a candidates' guide published by the state association.

D.M. asks halt to lawn watering

Des Moines Water Works officials Tuesday asked Des Moines and suburban residents and businesses to stop watering lawns and washing cars.

Communities affected by the voluntary conservation plea include Des Moines, West Des Moines, Clive, Windsor Heights, Johnston, Urbandale, Pleasant Hill, Norwalk and Saylor Township.

West Des Moines does not receive their water supply from Des Moines, as do the other suburban communities, but W.D.M. city officials agreed to co-operate in the conservation measures.

West Des Moines gets almost all of its water from wells but the city does have an agreement with the Des Moines Water Works to take up to 5 million gallons daily from Des Moines' supply.

Des Moines Water Works officials said the emphasis is on anti-waste rather than anti-use. The request to not water lawns is because the water is consumed, while household uses, such as showering and toilet flushing, return water to the river through the sewage treatment plant.

Tuesday morning there was no water flowing over the Des Moines Water Works Dam on the Raccoon River which means that Des Moines is pumping out practically all of the water flowing downstream.

On Monday some water was released from the Dale Maffitt Reservoir located in southwest Polk County. The water was released to supplement the Raccoon River supply. No water was released from Maffitt Reservoir on Tuesday.

Des Moines received a permit from the Iowa Natural Resources Council this week to begin taking water from the Des Moines River and Tuesday pumps were being readied to begin pulling water that has backed up from the Des Moines River into the Raccoon River.

Exceptions

An exception to the watering ban was made for watering trees, shrubs and new lawns which otherwise might die and result in an economic loss to the owner.

Officials would give no indication on how long the water ban would be in effect. But state officials recently predicted that the drought Iowa is now experiencing could continue for as long as 18 months.

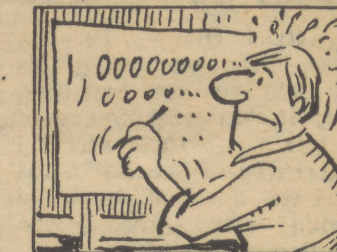

Rationing

If the drought worsens, Des Moines may face mandatory water rationing, said Water Department officials. But the water shortage would have to become very severe before that would happen.

If the situation becomes worse, water department officials are prepared to release more water from the Dale Maffitt Reservoir into the Raccoon River. But Des Moines Water Works officials hope they won't have to deplete the reservoir's supply because it is the city's only emergency supply of drinking water. It cannot be easily replenished because its drainage basin is small.

The National Weather Service in Des Moines has measured only 10.95 inches of moisture since the first of the year. This is nearly seven inches below normal. Des Moines received only about an inch of rain during the entire month of June, which was about 3.6 inches below normal.

The term "Googol," for 1 followed by 100 zeros, was invented by a famous mathematician who took a term supplied by a very young nephew.

Realty Is Her Business: Meet Beatrice Knox

by Ms. Stephanie L. Michael Young, enterprising and aggressive are some of the characteristics of a new Des Moines realtor at Calvert Realty Inc., located at 5005 Douglas.

Nineteen-year-old Beatrice Knox has recently passed her realtors examination and has achieved the position of a Realtor Associate at Calvert.

Knox who has worked her way up from a salesperson at Calvert, is attending Grandview while selling homes. She feels at this point in her young career, she wants to expand her personal touch with people and get the total feel of the realty business.

"Home is where the Heart is," is Calvert Realty's motto and that's where Beatrice Knox says she's headed. Knox says she helps individuals buy and sell their homes to their specific satisfaction and approval. At present Ms. Knox has four clients and has only been in the realty business for about two months.

Knox says she is ambitious and enjoys her work, but she is the type of person that likes to work behind the scenes. And that is very obvious in the many activities she is involved with for Youth at Corinthian Baptist Church.

Beatrice Knox comes from a family of enterprising business people. She has helped her family for a number of years with Knox Cleaning Service Incorporated at 1554 Ohio Street.

In the future Ms. Knox says she wants to own and operate her own realty business in the Des Moines area. She says she will continue to go to school and work as a realtor, so her skill can advance and she can apply academics as well as practical application.

Beatrice Knox explained that she plans to stay here in the city and help other young blacks establish real estate businesses and other firms.

Beatrice Knox, Des Moines realtor, puts up a "For Sale" sign in front of a house — then proudly puts a "Sold" sign out which indicates the house will be off the market.

ST. LOUIS, June 28, 1977 — At the "Tribute to Roy Wilkins" program during the 68th Annual Convention of the NAACP, the President of Kraft, Inc., Arthur W. Woelfle, joined more than a dozen nationally prominent individuals, including Dr. Lloyd C. Elam, President of Meharry Medical College and a Director of Kraft, in paying respect to Wilkins.

Shown here speaking to the audience of about five thousand, Woelfle said:

"I am honored to tell you that there are those of us in the management of American Industry who have every reason to believe that the NAACP will succeed; and, toward that endeavor, we are committed to doing our part. So, Mr. Wilkins, I am happy to tell you that, as you come to the end of your magnificent tenure, we have resolved that this great organization, to which you have given so much, will move forward with our support!"

MUCH OF OHIO'S SCHOOL AID LAW HELD CONSTITUTIONAL BY COURT

Washington, DC — Portions of an Ohio statute authorizing the state to provide non-public (including church-related) schools with books, standardized testing and scoring, diagnostic service, and therapeutic and remedial services have been ruled constitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court were those portions of the Ohio law relating to instructional materials and equipment and field-trip services.

"In order to pass muster," Justice Blackmun wrote in the majority opinion, "a statute must have a secular legislative purpose, must have a principal or primary effect that neither advances nor inhibits religion, and must not foster an excessive government entanglement with religion..."

Redlining Committee Meeting

A young woman wants to purchase a house. After approaching several lending institutions, she discovers the loan was denied, not on her credit rating, but on the location of the house, the near north side.

A middle aged couple living near Harding Junior High needs to borrow money for home improvement for their home. Despite their job security and good credit rating, their home was denied a second mortgage.

An apartment owner, after several denials, was granted a mortgage on his building on the near north side.

However he encountered more problems when the building needed several repairs to make it habitable. His home improvement loan was approved, on the condition that he sell the property.

Redlining is the practice by lending institutions of making unfavorable loans in older neighborhoods, which causes them to deteriorate. Citizens for Community Improvement of Des Moines, a group of neighbors concerned with the betterment of their neighborhoods, would like to stop redlining and start the process of re-investment in the older neighborhoods.

The Redlining Committee of CCI will hold an open meeting with Savings and Loan institutions Tuesday, July 19 at 7:00 p.m. at Edmunds Elementary School (1601 Crocker). Comments from all attending are encouraged. Those needing rides are encourage to call 244-3761.

Two Optional High Schools in D.M.

The Greater Des Moines Education Center is an optional high school within the Des Moines Public School system. There are two centers — north and south. The north center is located at 1452-2nd Ave. and the south center is located at 1961 Indianola Road. Both centers offer the required high school courses as well as a wide variety of elective and mini courses. In addition, the south center offers an industrial arts program, which is open to both north and south center students.

The center does differ from the traditional school. Each student works and progresses at his/her own rate of speed.

Individual courses may be started at anytime and completed at anytime during the school year. Also, the school does not operate on a semester basis thereby allowing students to enroll at anytime during the school year and complete graduation requirements anytime during the school year.

Students attend during the morning or the afternoon session — but not both. This schedule helps the student who may hold a full or part-time job.

Two diplomas are offered at the center. They include:

1. The Adult Education diploma (issued anytime during the year)

2. A student may receive a diploma from the home high school provided they received at least 2 units of credit from that high school.

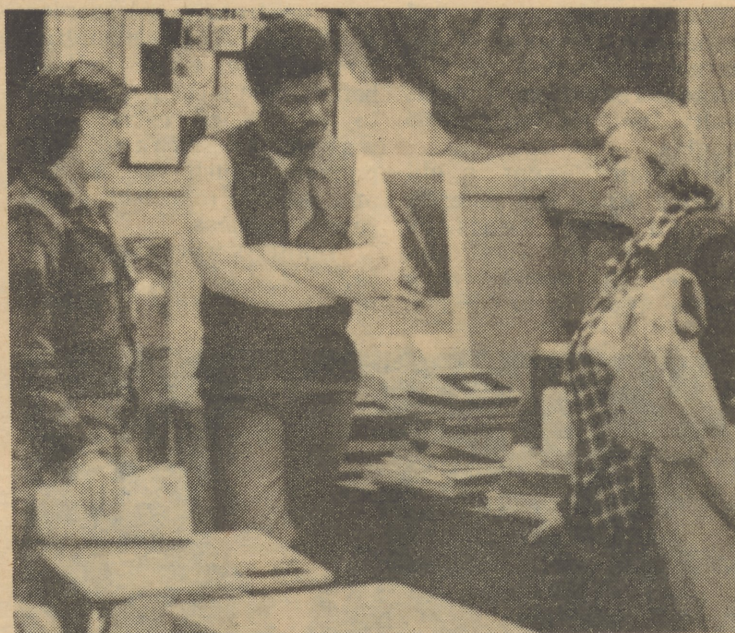

These diplomas are issued only in June or the end of summer school.

The center does have a work supervisor and job placements are possible for the students at the center. Students, who are employed, can earn up to 2 full units of credits through on-the-job-training, which can apply toward the 16 units required for graduation.

To be eligible for free enrollment, students must reside in the Des Moines school district. Students living outside of the district and/or 21 years of age or older must attend on a tuition basis. Enrollment is voluntary, because it is the student's choice and learning is individualized often on a one to one basis.

All additional services that are provided by the Des Moines school district are also available to the students of the Greater Des Moines Education Centers.

The NAACP Is Doing Its Thing

by Stephanie L. Michael

Last week the Des Moines Branch of the NAACP sponsored a social hour at the Urban Lounge located at 2424 Harding Road, from 6 to 9 p.m.

And the social gathering was a success.

More memberships were pledged to the NAACP and people were given the opportunity to see what the organization is all about.

NAACP President Vincent Chapman called upon Iowa residents to help the organization get the respect it deserves by challenging issues in the Des Moines community that need to be challenged. He told the audience that former FCC Commissioner Benjamin Hooks will be the Chairman of the National branch soon and ready to lead the way. Chapman said that Ben Hooks will be the keynote speaker for the NAACP Freedom Fund Banquet to be held in September at the Hilton Inn.

Black candidates who will be running for city council positions in the fall who were at the gathering were recognized. The two present were Kalonji Lumumba Saadiq and Bob King.

NAACP members stressed that more activities will be held to pull the organization and Polk County community residents closer together. Members from the youth organization were popping in and out during the session talking with young people possibly interested in the group.

The Des Moines Branch of the NAACP are making their move in 1977 and showed their sincerity July 12th showing what they were really like in "an organization for the people."

Morehouse Pres. Delivers Honorary Liberian Lecture

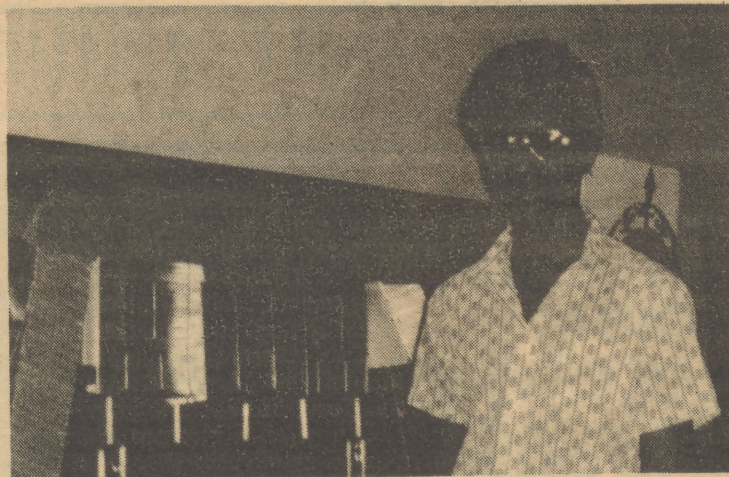

Dr. Hugh M. Gloster, President of Morehouse College, has just returned to Atlanta after a three-week visit to West Africa, where he gave the Fourth Annual Samuel Z. Westerfield Lecture at the University of Liberia in Monrovia.

Dr. Westerfield was U.S. assador to Liberia at the time of his sudden death in 1972, and the University of Liberia has established a lecture series in his honor because of his many contributions to the welfare and progress of that African nation.

Dr. Gloster's topic was "African Higher Education As Seen by an American College President." In his address he complimented African universities upon their rapid progress despite colonial rule and economic disadvantages. He advised that African universities should give priority to training specialists in medicine, agriculture, teacher education, engineering, business and African studies.

In conclusion, Dr. Gloster emphasized that stronger ties should be developed between African and Afro-American universities through the establishment of faculty and student exchanges and the offering of programs in African and Afro-American studies.

Wyatt's Celebrate 30th Anniversary

A 30th Wedding Anniversary Party was held on Wednesday, July 6, at the West Park Care Center for Dea. Hurley Wyatt, who is a resident there, and Mother Mae Wyatt, in celebration of their 30th Wedding Anniversary.

We wish to sincerely thank our Pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Parrish, officers and members of Maple St. as well as our many friends for the blessings bestowed on us on our 30th Wedding Anniversary.

A special thanks to Sis. Thelma Horton, Sis. Lois Mitchum and Sis. Rose Edmonds for the beautiful refreshment table. Thank you to Mother Mary Smart and Delores Sims for handling of the gifts. Also a big thank you to Sis. Alberta Hunter and the Mapleleaf Choir who sang so beautiful. Sis. Exie Marshall gave a beautiful solo "How Great Thou Art" and Sis. Lillian Haynes gave a most interesting and appropriate reading. We had remarks by our Pastor and some of our many friends who thought enough of us to come out and help us celebrate. Thank you is not enough for those who took time out to make it a lovely affair. Dea. Wyatt and I will always cherish the many lovely gifts received. The cash gifts will go for a new chair for Dea. Wyatt.

Again, we thank you from the bottom of our hearts. May God Bless each and everyone of you.

Start collecting for winter bouquet

Now is the time to gather flowers for a winter bouquet, says JaneAnn Stout, extension applied art specialist. With careful drying methods you can save them for months to come.

Pick the flowers when they first come into bloom. If you wait too long, they won't keep their colors as well.

And choose a few different kinds of flowers, drying a dozen or so of each. This will give you some extras to experiment with and offer variety for mixed arrangements.

Before you dry them, wipe off any surface moisture.

And you may wish to replace the stems with florist's wire, says the Iowa State University specialist.

Then either air-dry your flowers — hanging them in small bunches, heads down, in a dark, dry place — or bury them in a one-to-one mixture of borax and cornmeal. The petals will feel crisp when properly dried. This should take one to three weeks, depending upon the size of the flowers.

With careful drying, you can have arrangements of asters, marigolds, daisies and other colorful blooms to brighten your winter months.

Minority Firms Urged To Participate In $4 Billion Jobs Program

Robert T. Hall, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development, today urged the Nation's minority business community to participate in the $4 billion Federal Local Public Works Program.

Hall said the program is aimed at creating jobs through the construction of public works projects in areas of high unemployment. He said the Public Works Employment Act of 1977 provides that at least 10 percent of the funds be spent with minority contractors or in the purchase of goods and services from minority firms.

"Thus, we have an injection of $400 million or more for the minority business community," Hall said. However, since the projects are to be built by private contractors under competitive bidding, the Commerce official emphasized that minority firms should take the initiative and seek out opportunities to participate.

Hall said the law requires prime contractors who are not minority group members to certify that at least 10 percent of the value of their contracts will be channeled into the minority business community — either through sub-contractors (which may be negotiated without competitive bidding) or the purchase of goods and services.

Hall heads the Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration, which is conducting the Local Public Works Program. The program provides at least $30 million for the construction of public works projects in each State.

Eligible applicants are presently identifying projects funding under the program, and EDA expects to complete project approvals in August. Construction on all projects must begin within 90 days after approval.

EDA is working with the Commerce Department's Office of Minority Business Enterprise to facilitate minority participation in the program.

Minority firms interested in obtaining business under the Local Public Works Program should contact their nearest EDA regional office, Hall said, or the Economic Development Administration, U. S. Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C. 20230.

EDA's regional offices and the areas they serve are:

Regional library provides answers to unique questions

Any library patrons who live within the ten Iowa counties comprising the Central Iowa Regional Library System have a ready access for finding answers to their questions whether they concern art, history, or more practical matters. Shirley Shisler, head of the reference department of the Des Moines Public Library which serves as resource center for the Central Region, described some of the many searches she and her staff have completed recently.

Speaking at the workshop for librarians and trustees of that region held at the South Des Moines Public Library recently, she discussed the difficulties of tracing half-brothers and sisters of the Indian Chief John Ross, born in 1790, until the Library School at the University of Iowa discovered a genealogical chart. The school also was able to supply the name of the dog on the TV show "Petticoat Junction" and to furnish information concerning the 1936 Nash in answer to its having a dual ignition. The number of women actually named in the Bible, 189, was readily answered.

To help with a program topic of the most unusual books ever published, answers supplied included lists of imaginary books, books bound in human skin, books fatal to their authors, and scented books. An Oxford University catalog was located to help another determine the cost of a year at Oxford. A source for patterns for the decorative item, Chrismons, was suggested to another patron, and books were found on antique inkwells and depression glass for another.

But a request for a map of the townships of York County, Pa. in 1830 was not supplied as none exists, nor could directions for building a dog house be supplied until the size or breed of dog was known. No one found the answer under which phase of the moon it is easiest to quit smoking.

Residents of Boone, Dallas, Greene, Jasper, Madison, Marion, Polk, Marshall, Story and Warren Counties who have queries are encouraged to go to their local libraries for information.

Fiberboard fire hazard

State Fire Marshal Wilbur Johnson today warned that companies or persons (such as lumberyards, contractors, and building supply companies) who sell or store insulating fiberboard impregnated with creosote may encounter a fire hazard with the material. According to Johnson, sheets of the material were found smoldering in a lumberyard in Marshalltown yesterday. The sheets were in a tightly-clamped stack.

an insulating product, it does not allow the heat to dissipate and pyrolysis (chemical decomposition of matter through the action of heat) results. Because of the chemical reaction within the stacks of fiber board, the temperature inside the fiberboard continues to build up and the fiberboard becomes charred, the ignition point of the material is lowered, and combustion can result.

The fiberboard is normally used in new construction. "The brand of fiberboard found smoldering in Marshalltown was Celotex, but other manufacturers produce similar products which could pose a similar problem," Johnson said.

Because the fiberboard is

Johnson recommends that persons having any of the creosote-impregnated fiberboard in stacks inside or near buildings remove them to an open area to avoid structural fire loss.

Public Service Job Training In Pleasant Hill

A good example of how Public Service Employment (P.S.E.) is being conducted in the Des Moines area is the project now underway at the Iowa Operating Engineers Training Site at Pleasant Hill. A contract between the Operating Engineers and the Central Iowa Regional Association of Local Governments (CIRALG) is providing jobs for disadvantaged persons who would otherwise probably be unemployed.

Recruitment for the positions was done with the help of the Apprenticeship Outreach Program. Applicants were certified by Job Service of Iowa as being eligible for the project as required by P.S.E. regulations.

The P.S.E. participants will become familiar with the operation and maintenance of all types of heavy construction equipment at the training site. It is planned that these participants will be transitioned into apprentices at the end of their P.S.E. involvement. Employers will be getting qualified personnel to operate and maintain their expensive equipment and the otherwise unemployed person will have a chance to do meaningful work at decent wages.

ALLEN ASHBY with a LOOK ON SPORTS

There was quite a bit of news in the sports pages this week, but the bit that caught my eye was the fact that Bruce Foxworth won the national amateur clay court tennis singles title. He also claimed a share of the doubles crown. Last year he won the national class A NIAA singles title so he might be what the tennis writers are looking for.

When Foxworth and Juan Farrow played here a couple of years ago, Farrow was looked upon as the next black star. But then after seeing both of them play, I thought that Foxworth had the greatest potential. Besides, he was bigger and seemed more powerful than Juan.

Funny that he doesn't get any more ink in the dailies than he does. Do you suppose that the school he plays for has anything to do with it? He attends Hampton, a predominately black school. In fact, he helped them to win the national NIAA team title last year. So if the writers who are looking for "another Arthur Ash" will get the dust out of their eyes, they might have it in the person of this young man who was all manners and personality when he was here.

The fellow everybody thought might be the man, John Lucas of Maryland, turned to basketball. He played team tennis in the WTT league. I know he played at least one match, but I don't know how many more he played.

He also played in the NBA, something it was said that couldn't be done because the two sports were too demanding in themselves.

But he had said long ago that they didn't need to look for him to go on the pro circuit, because he would never take the stuff that Ash did when he first broke in, and sometimes puts up with now. For instance, when Illie Nastase called Ash a "bloody nigger," (some said he did and some said otherwise) Ash said he didn't hear it.

Well, Lucas would have probably tried to rearrange the handsome features of the guy. And for that matter I am sure that Foxworth would have taken a swing or two at him also. That would have come under the heading of unsportsmanlike conduct, and may have got the fellows fined, but they would have probably paid it. And the next time anybody said anything that so sounded even remotely like that word around Nastase, the Rumanian would have likely taken off.

The first time Illie tried those tactics on Ash and beat him out of the national championship he got all kinds of feature stories in magazines and newspapers. But now it has become obnoxious and the tennis officials are getting weary of it, but it draws people who come to see the next display of whatever it is. And you would be surprised how many young players imitate those tactics. This is probably the reason for the rules pertaining to sportsmanlike conduct and the possible loss of points, games and matches for flagrant misbehavior.

But the guy still gets by because there is too much dough involved and too many people come to see him play. It would do tennis good to really come down on Nastase just once. Fining him a thousand dollars out of a twenty five or fifty thousand buck purse is like fining me fifteen cents on payday. I like to think that our Hilltop meet was in the vanguard of this rule binge, when we tossed out a couple of fellows who were having a cussing match and we had nothing to go on in the book, but we just thought something had to be done, and we haven't had any problems since.

But back to Foxworth who is the son of Bob Foxworth, a former light heavyweight contender at a time when the woods was full of good light heavies. I shall be watching to see what he does after he gets out of school. He could probably make it as a pro, at least make a living even if he didn't hit the top ten which changes from week to week.

In our local athletics we looked for some sign of some of the softball players we used to see in the city meet. Looked for Moe Eubanks, who may have retired, but maybe not, Bud Collins. We did see Sy Forrester and the other half of the battery, Steve Forrester.

But if one doesn't get out to the games, he could miss a lot of the fellows because they are really spread around now. Not confined to one team as the old Hottentots and some of the other clubs used to be.

And then I noticed that Matt Campbell got in the Masters golf meet. He finished down the ladder, but at least, he survived the cut, and wasn't last on the list. As Bill Russell would put it, "He wasn't good, but he wasn't bad. And do you know, we will likely have a bigger draw for our Hilltop than people think."

We will lose some old standbys. Harold McCullom who has played in every one of our meets will miss this one. You see, Harold sells trophies, and we have bought our trophies from another company for years. Well, Pete Mazula buys Harold's trophies, so I would think that Harold would naturally go up there to Cedar Falls. So would I under the same circumstances.

Morgan-Grambling Football Returns to Yankee Stadium

Morgan State University and Grambling State University, predominantly black schools, will meet in their annual football clash at Yankee Stadium, September 17. The time of the game has not been determined at this time.

The modern Morgan-Grambling football feud started at Yankee Stadium in 1968. Since that time the two teams have waged gridiron wars in four of the world's most celebrated sports palaces.

In addition to Yankee Stadium, the game has been played in Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh, Robert F. Kennedy Stadium in Washington, D.C. and last year the two squads jetted across the world to play in the first Annual Pioneer Bowl in Tokyo, Japan's Korakeun Stadium.

Before Yankee Stadium seating was reduced, the annual Bear-Tiger tiff attracted 64,204, 60,118, 65,055, 64,970 and 64,317 spectators. This year's game is expected to bring 57,000 fans to Bronx, New York.

Ticket prices will be $25, $15, $10, $8, and $6, and can be bought by contacting Morgan State Athletic Department, Hill Fieldhouse, Room 311, Baltimore, Maryland 21239 or calling 301/444-3050.

SATW Board Chairman Hank Bradshaw presented the annual award which was accepted on behalf of the Living History Farms by Farms President Bill Murray, originator of the Farms idea.

"Connie Awards" are given yearly for conservation, preservation and beautification of our country's treasures. There are usually about 50 nominees.

Living History Farms includes model farms that actually are operated in the manner of early day farming in Iowa.

MESSIAH TEMPLE

The Lord blessed Messiah Temple to go once again and worship in the Holy Spirit with Bethlehem Baptist Church in Perry, Iowa. Reverend Green gave a soul-stirring message on listening to the Lord. His text, Luke 10: 38-42, was the story of Martha and Mary.

Mary chose the good part that can never be taken away; she chose to listen to Jesus Christ. We have a choice to make, too. Let's put down our burdens and cares and listen to the voice of Jesus. Thru Him is our peace and salvation.

Everyone enjoyed our annual church picnic as the Word of God was read and prayer of praise was lifted on this occasion. Everytime we come together, we remember to ask for the Lord's guidance and praise Him for all He's done.

Tax Advice To Summer Employees

If you're a student with a summer job, it's possible you can avoid the income tax hassle.

Cindy Needles, extension consumer specialist at Iowa State University, says a single student who expects to earn less than $2,950 this year should fill out a W-4E form rather than the standard W-4 form. The W-4E is a request for an exemption from federal tax withholding.

When the W-4E is used, federal taxes will not be withheld, resulting in a larger paycheck. In addition, you will not have to fill out a federal tax return or wait until next year for the refund of taxes not owed in the first place.

If you are not sure which form you filled out when beginning your job, check with your employer. If the standard W-4 was used, you can change to a W-4E. It's worth taking the time to make this change because it will increase the amount of your paycheck.

Needles cautions persons who think they will earn more than the $2,950 minimum to use the standard W-4 withholding form. Otherwise, one may end up owing taxes next spring with no money to pay them.

needs of 3,000 currently employed minority women in the Polk County area and develop ways of helping them upgrade their careers.

"The Bankers Life believes," Houser said, "that through sharing information gleaned from the study with area educational institutions and employers, more far-reaching and positive changes can be made in recruiting and promoting minority women and designing in-house training programs."

Mrs. Gates will also conduct workshops designed to help minority women upgrade their managerial skills.

She attended San Jose State University, San Jose, Cal., and received a B.S. degree with distinction in business administration from the University of Nebraska at Omaha in 1973. She has been with The Bankers Life since 1974.

She is a fellow of the Life Management Institute and corresponding secretary and a director of Blacks in Management.

She and her husband Bennie have two sons, Stuart, 7, and Justin, 4.

Mrs. Gates' work in the Community Career Planning Center for Women is being underwritten through a $19,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and the Iowa Community Service and Continuing Education Program.

The center is sponsored cooperatively by Women's Programs in Drake's College for Continuing Education, the Des Moines Junior League, the Des Moines Volunteer Bureau, and the Des Moines YWCA. It is located on the Drake campus at 1158 27th St.

The center, the first of its kind in the Des Moines area, was opened last October 1. It makes available a library of career, educational, and volunteer information for use at the center; a resume filing service; lists of current job openings; and materials on how and where to apply for employment.

The center also provides current information on educational and training programs available at post-secondary institutions in central Iowa. The center also plans workshops and seminars for its clients in its offices and at other Des Moines locations.

Nell Bowers is director of the center. Its hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays.

proclamation makes possible the expeditious issuance of permits to obtain water from alternate sources to protect the health and safety of residents of communities in the State.

The Des Moines Water Works is one of the utilities who have made application to obtain water from an alternate source.

It is to the interest of citizens of the Des Moines Area, both individually and corporate, to practice voluntary water conservation. Inserts in water bills have indicated ways of saving water. Further, car washing in driveways where the water is evaporated and lawn watering should be totally eliminated.

An exception is being made at this time for watering those things which would have substantial economic value such as shrubs, trees, flower beds and golf greens.

With the cooperation of the citizens of the community it is hoped that mandatory water rationing will not become necessary.

The Des Moines Water Works is joined in this request for conservation by the following: City of Windsor Heights; City of Johnston; City of Clive; City of Norwalk; City of Urbandale; City of Pleasant Hill; City of West Des Moines; and, Polk County Rural Water District No. 1 (Saylor Township).

Lafayette, Ind. — More than 60 "experience groups" will focus on various aspects of the changing role of men in the church at the national United Methodist Men's Congress here, July 15-17.

John Lundy, a staff member of United Methodist Men in Nashville, said, "Men recognize that women have much to offer the church as astute business persons and administrators. Many men also welcome the chance to perform new roles which have not been traditionally assigned to them, such as work with preschoolers."
