Meeting

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission has scheduled to hold its regular monthly meeting on August 17, 1977, Wednesday morning at 9:00 a.m. in the Commission Conference Room — Suite 340, Liberty Building, Des Moines, Iowa.

The public is cordially invited to attend the Iowa Civil Rights Commission meeting.

Republican, she replaces Gretchen Lee of Dubuque.

Reappointed to the Commission were:

—Harriette Bruce, 51, of Des Moines, coordinator of the Head Start program for the Des Moines school system. Mrs. Bruce, a graduate of Drake University, was hired as the first black teacher in the Des Moines schools in 1946. She is a former secretary of the Des Moines Association for Childhood Education and is a registered Republican. Mrs. Bruce was appointed to the Commission in 1975 to fill an unexpired term.

—Evelyn R. Villines, 47, of Des Moines, director of development for Iowa Lutheran Hospital here. Ms. Villines is a former executive director of the Governor's Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped. She was named to the Commission in 1975 to fill an unexpired term and is a registered Democrat.

All four appointments are for four-year terms ending in 1981 and are subject to Senate confirmation.

Julian Bond Attacks Carter

Georgia State Senator Julian Bond joined other black critics of President Jimmy Carter saying Carter reneged on campaign promises and ignored the "powerless and the poor" particularly blacks whose votes were crucial to his election.

"We are such fools for fads, his newness captured our imagination," said Bond. Bond actively campaigns for Carter during the last days of the election, but he said Monday black leaders were mistaken to support Carter "who knows the words to our hymns but not the numbers on our paychecks."

Bond's criticism was similar to that expressed by Vernon Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League.

"Vernon Jordan was echoing what was already said by NAACP leaders in St. Louis in June and by a lot of other blacks. It's not just that President Carter broke his promises but that he never really made enough," he said.

sickness of racism," responded Saadiq. "Please do not imply that I am racist."

Later Saadiq demanded a public apology from LaVine and said he will ask the U.S. Department of Justice to investigate his charges of the police department racism.

Kalonji Suggests Blacks Narrow Field

At-large Des Moines City Council candidate Kalonji Lumumba Saadiq, also known as Clive DePatten, suggested this week the black candidates for the council seat decide which one among them will represent the black community and the other candidates support that one.

Saadiq said there is a chance if more than one minority candidate runs, the votes will be split among them and none will survive the Oct. 18 primary election.

There are now four black candidates running for the at-large council seat now held by Russ LaVine. Saadiq, 1654 16th, Malcolm Hogan, 4302 Wakonda Parkway, Harvey Johnson, 1503 Walker, and Rev. George Parrish, 1315 10th, are the black candidates seeking the seat.

An unofficial pre-primary election held in local churches was proposed by Saadiq as the means to narrow the field. The candidate with the most support would receive the backing of the others, he said.

Another alternative would be for the candidates to decide among themselves which would be the most powerful candidate.

At the city council meeting Monday, Saadiq accused the Des Moines Police Department of racism, setting off a heated exchange between himself and LaVine.

LaVine said the charges by Saadiq were "unsupportable" and said Saadiq is "racist" in his attitudes toward whites. "You are as racist as anyone I've seen," said LaVine.

"Please, Mr. LaVine, don't cast me into the

News Briefs

Washington, D.C. + Charles T. Duncan, 52, dean of the Howard University Law School, became the first black to be elected to the board of directors of Eastman Kodak Co. Duncan is a graduate of Dartmouth College and Harvard University Law School. He formerly was an assistant U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia.

Washington D.C. - Sen. Edward M. Brooke (R., Mass.), is leading the attack on Congress for exempting itself from federal civil rights laws enacted in the last 13 years.

"It is abundantly clear that substantial job discrimination exists on Capitol Hill," Brooke said, adding that employees have no recourse for their complaints because Congress is exempt from civil rights laws.

Dawson, Ga. - Former Dawson, Ga., police officer William M. Rucker dropped a bombshell during the first week of the pre-trial hearings on five youths accused of murder when he offered his testimony.

Buffalo, New York - Although a recent Gallup poll reported that All-pro Buffalo Bills running back O.J. Simpson is the No. 1 hero of school boys, 10-year-old Jeff (Little Hammer) Williamson disagrees. Photographed publicly for the first time with his father Fred (Hammer) Williamson at the JET/American Airlines Celebrity Tennis Classic in Los Angeles, Little Hammer said emphatically: "Fred Williamson is my No. 1 hero."

Roy Wilkins, retiring Executive Director of the NAACP, receives the National Guard Eagle Award from BG. John B. Conaway, deputy director of the Air National Guard, during military ceremonies at the recent NAACP 68th Annual Convention in St. Louis. The Eagle Award is the National Guard's highest honor.

General Conaway, who made the presentation on behalf of MG. Lavern E. Weber, Chief, National Guard Bureau, paid tribute to Wilkins for "...distinguished leadership of the NAACP in seeking to achieve human dignity, freedom, and opportunity for all Americans."

Some Church Leaders Dare In Support of "Law and Order"

The Des Moines School Board is fortunate to have the sound support of the school busing program and the decision of U.S. District Judge Stewart by Bishop Baurice Bingham of the Catholic Diocese of Des Moines who has announced that Catholic schools should not register students in their schools who come for the purpose of avoiding the busing program; also, his requests of the priests in the churches in the diocese that they should announce the support of the program from their pulpits the following Sunday.

The head of no other religious force has made such announcement even though Des Moines is a headquarters of the Methodist Church in Iowa, some of the Baptist Churches, the Episcopal Diocese, the Christian Churches, Presbyterian and Lutheran and others, either that are headquartered here or have large number of churches in their denomination.

Like any law or regulation, there are some members of all churches who may oppose the busing program, but the fear of dissident members or their contributions should not deter any Christian leader from supporting the laws of our country. Even though the program was adopted by the majority of the school board, it is in keeping with the rules and regulations of HEW which are laws just the same.

There are too many people, even our media in Des Moines, that take the ridiculous view that integration is only for the purpose of having a black child sit next to a white child in class. Of course, this is entirely erroneous for the original opposition raised against school segregation were based on the inequalities of facilities and qualified teachers along with the fact that such association enables students of each race to become acquainted with each other and understand that they are all born the same, but difference arises in economic opportunity and training under which students are brought up. Then too, we can never have an intelligent understanding of each other without the association that youngsters are brought up in school and as they follow their life work.

Over the years the State of Iowa has made great contributions to the enjoyment of Civil Rights and equal opportunity in the schools. In 1917 the army chose Des Moines as the site for the 17th Provisional Training Regiment for training Negro commissioned officers because it determined that Des Moines was the type of community that would be a favorable host to such a large number of new Negroes at one time. The army also followed the same course in World War II, when the Women's Army Corps was established at Fort Des Moines.

These large additions to Des Moines caused few problems and, in a way, helped to improve race relations in the city.

I believe that the church and other religious groups should add their support to the school board for any new movement needs friends in order to help it survive. It makes no difference whether the majority of the school board favored, or disfavored school busing as the Civil Rights Commission and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have the authority to require that no public school system become a segregated institution.

HEW Challenges Construction Industry On Employment of Women

Department of Health, Education and Welfare has told the construction industry to hire women for a minimum of 3 1/10% of their work force in the first year after the proposal became effective and 6 9/10% in the third year.

In the past, when the question of racial quotas in labor, education and other fields was raised Negroes opposed it on the ground that it would place a limitation on the number of workers on any project. Both quotas and other methods seem to make very slow progress in the construction and some other industries at this time. Today, Negroes working in the construction industry are few and far between. This is particularly true in Des Moines and, as stated in this column before, construction work at the new Civic Center and state office buildings are glaring examples.

If this HEW rule succeeds it will be rather interesting to see if this same rule can be applied to minorities in the construction industry.

Nobody should be discriminated in employment if he is qualified to carry out the responsibilities of the job. However, with the large continued unemployment rate and the further addition of women to the employment role it would be difficult for the country to prevent further increase in the amount of unemployed and the continued entry of foreigners into the labor market further complicates this situation.

BLACKS, POOR, LOOK FOR SIGNALS

The speech I made to the National Urban League's Annual Conference analyzing the Administration's policies and expressing black disappointment with the record to date was based on my talks and travels all over the country, and much of what I said has been said by others as well.

The President appeared before the same Annual Conference the next morning and gave an effective defense of his Administration, as did a number of Cabinet officers and other key figures in Washington.

That kind of public dialogue is an important phenomenon. It put some neglected issues back into the field of public discussion, where they belong. And it informed the Administration that a significant part of its constituency is unhappy with its performance to date.

When the dust had cleared and all sides made their case, the situation facing black people was unchanged and the analysis I made of the Administration's first six months was unaltered.

The basic outline of that analysis is this: The Carter Administration was elected largely through capturing solid black votes. Those voted were elected largely through capturing solid black votes. Those voted were given on the assumption that campaign promises of full employment and urban revitalization would be fulfilled. To date, despite some significant steps in HUD's block grant program, in youth employment, and other areas, black expectations have not been fulfilled.

A basic reason for this may be that priorities are askew. Instead of full employment, balancing the budget by 1981 has become the top priority. Energy, controlling inflation, and government reorganization have all been given greater urgency than a national urban policy, national health insurance and other basic human needs programs.

A case may be made for the importance of the items the Administration has chosen to make its priorities, but to the degree that emphasis on balanced budgets restricts its ability to inaugurate needed social reforms, the hopes of poor people will be frustrated. I understand the need for balanced budget, but human needs must have priority.

And if the price of balanced budget is continued joblessness, poverty and urban deterioration, then we're only laying the groundwork for possibly insoluble social problems in the 1980s.

The positive changes that took place in the 1960s were arrested for much of this decade. To some degree those gains have helped foster expectations on the part of minorities and the poor that must now be satisfied.

LETTER TO EDITOR

My name is Robert Goode, 29 years of age. I have been incarcerated 11 years of a life sentence in the Southern Ohio Penal System for a crime I never committed; the wheels of justice has turned slow for me. My long isolation from society has caused me to lose contact with friends I once knew, for many years I did not enjoy liberal writing privileges and couldn't write to anyone as I can now. I have applied for executive clemency asking the governor to commute my life sentence if granted I will be eligible for parole in the near future. I would feel very optimistic and inspired to come home to warm and welcome friends to help me adjust to a modern sophisticated society which I have been shut away from.

I don't have an animosity, bitterness or hostility housed in my heart I just want to live and love. I want to make this a better world to live in I don't want to see others abused mentally and physically as I have because of abject poverty and being under privileged. I want a friend race, age, creed, or nationality is not important to me, it would be a great inspiration to find a warm letter in my cold lonely prison cell. I would appreciate very much if you would print this live ad.

How To Save a Dying Neighborhood

Editors Note:

The following story appeared in the San Bernadino Precinct Reporter and deals with a problem Des Moines is now facing, — the deterioration of neighborhoods. There are many reasons for this deterioration such as lack of loan money for home repairs, increased crime, businesses moving out of the area. This is one way a large city acted to break the cycle of deterioration and to bring money and people back to the area.

People who live in the Elmhurst section of Oakland, California are mostly poor, black, under-educated and generally under-privileged.

Until recently, one of their bigger problems was that their neighborhood was declining rapidly into a slum. Houses were decaying, and landlords weren't bothering to make essential repairs; many properties were vacant.

Businesses were deserting the neighborhood, taking job opportunities and access to shopping and essential services with them. Even government services — garbage pickup, street repair, police protection — seemed to be declining.

Then in 1972, Elmhurst was chosen as the site of the Oakland Neighborhood Housing Service, Inc (ONHS), a private, non-profit corporation set up by the Federal Home Loan Bank as a pilot program to test a new theory about slum prevention.

"The theory," explains Mary Lee Widener, a founding Director of the Oakland-NHS, "was that a neighborhood declines because of disinvestment."

Disinvestment means simply that nobody is willing to put money into the community — residents, businesses and other private investors, and even government stop spending in the area.

"It doesn't matter whose fault it is, who pulled out first," says Ms. Widener. "What a Neighborhood Housing Service has to be concerned about is getting all three to start putting money into the community again."

In the past, it is believed, government programs that put large amounts of public money into decaying neighborhoods failed because nothing was done to encourage reinvestment. Housing was built or repaired and then, because no other steps were taken, it was allowed to decay again.

In 1973, the ONHS set up shop in a small house in the neighborhood, and with a staff of three and a modest $50,000 a year budget, got to work.

The savings and loan industry was among the first representatives of the private sector to respond. Twenty-one separate California savings and loan associations are now major financial supporters of the project. They provide the bulk of the OHNS's administrative budget by refinancing mortgages or making home improvement loans for families referred by ONHS. Banks, credit unions, and several private foundations have also contributed to the project.

The city cooperates by providing extra services, including weed clearance, demolition of vacant property, creation of parks in the neighborhood, and extra police protection.

Participation of residents and property owners has been brought about by careful, methodical work of the ONHS staff and some volunteer helpers.

ONHS workers visit each home in the area, first to make themselves and the services they can provide known to residents, and, later, to help organize city code inspections, rehabilitation loans, and participation of residents in neighborhood-wide self-help activities.

The program has proved spectacularly successful, both in revitalizing Oakland and in convincing powerful government and private interest that such programs should be implemented throughout the United States.

In Elmhurst, by July, 1976, 210 families had become ONHS clients. Of them 160 were found to be in need of financial and/or rehabilitation counseling and willing to accept it. Of these, 94 have begun OHNS assisted rehabilitation.

"Already," says Ms. Widener, "the neighborhood is becoming a safer, pleasanter, healthier place for people to live and raise their families. Most important, vacant houses are becoming attractive to potential new residents and new businesses are beginning to open."

Michael A. Durkin, Vice President of American Savings and loan people got involved because it seemed to us from the start the project had merit.

"The changes in the community are certainly visible to me. The condition of the property and the spirits of the residents are quite obviously evidence that the Service is working. It's very exciting to be a part of something as successful as this."

Experts on the problems of neighborhood redevelopment are convinced that the project there is an unqualified success that can and should be emulated elsewhere.

To that end (and as a result of similar successes with a few other pilot projects) a Neighborhood Housing Services of America, Inc., has been established under the direction of the Urban Reinvestment Task Force, a partnership between the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The task force provides technical assistance, and sometimes grants, to local entities interested in establishing a NHS. Once the program is operational, task force involvement ceases, except as requested.

Already, NHS programs are in operation in 19 American cities and programs are being developed in 13 more.

The Elmhurst project is being expanded to include another adjacent neighborhood.

Dean Cannon, Executive Vice President of the California Savings and Loan League said recently, "We are proud of the participation of many of our member associations in this very productive program. It is good to know that partly as a result of the Oakland project's success, savings and loan associations throughout America are interested in being part of the worthwhile efforts of Neighborhood Housing Associations."

Fuel Bill Assistance Available

1,000 households in the Polk county area, have applied for fuel assistance through the Special Crisis Intervention Program administered by the State Office for Planning and Programming.

Low-income families may receive up to $250 in financial assistance if, because of unpaid fuel bills, they may be unable to obtain heating fuel. Those low-income families able to prove dire financial need as a result of having paid fuel bills may also receive assistance.

The State Office for Planning and Programming encourages those residents who wish to apply to do so by August 22, 1977 to insure that there is time to process their application before the program ends on August 31, 1977.

It's The Smallest

The smallest continent is the Australian mainland, with an area of about 2,940,000 square miles.

The smallest known star is called LP 327-186. A "white dwarf," it's 100 light-years away, with a diameter only half that of the moon.

The smallest amount of natural gas on reserve in a long time is what we have now. Domestic supplies are dwindling. Proved reserves are at their lowest levels since 1955 and some industries have been suffering shut-downs because of shortages.

With increasing costs, it's senseless to waste energy.

So we've prepared a new booklet — "The Do-It-Yourself Energy Inventory" — which shows how wisely, or wastefully, your home uses energy. The booklet tells how to audit your home to spot energy "leaks" ... and how to plug them up.

The Energy Inventory is easy, and takes only a few minutes to do. The whole family can join in, and it will give each family member a better idea of the importance of using energy wisely.

Tyrone Brooks Chosen Outstanding Young Man

Tyrone Brooks, National Communications Director of The Southern Christian Leadership Conference and a 14 year veteran in the Human Rights Movement has been chosen Outstanding Young Man of America by the Outstanding Young Men of America and the U.S. Jaycees jointly.

Brooks was notified by letter from Mr. Doug Blankenship, chairman of the Advisory Board of Outstanding Young Men of America who stated: "This is an honor of which you can be very proud, and we want to extend our wholehearted congratulations to you. A man of your character is truly an asset to his family, as well as to his community, state and nation. On behalf of myself and the entire Board of Advisors, I extend our best wishes for your continued success".

Tyrone Brooks is 30 years old and a native of Warrenton, GA, who met and became a follower of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., in 1963 and decided to dedicate his life to the struggle for Human Rights. He is presently (an Executive staff member), National Communications Director of Dr. King's organization, The National Southern Christian Leadership Conference based in Atlanta, GA, located at 334 Auburn Avenue, NE 30303, (the street Dr. King was born on).

Tyrone has held numerous positions in the human rights organization, first serving as volunteer field worker in his hometown of Warrenton and Middle, Georgia. Later, when he was hired officially by SCLC, he was appointed field secretary in 1967. After serving in that position, he became Executive Director of Atlanta's SCLC working alongside State Representative, Hosea Williams.

And in 1973 he was appointed to his present position by Dr. King's successor, The Rev. Dr. Ralph David Abernathy.

Young Brooks has been involved in controversy since his inception into the Human Rights Movement. He has been jailed many times throughout the nation fighting and crusading for justice and equality for the poor (both black and white).

In 1975 he resigned from the board of directors of Opportunities Industrialization Centers of America (O.I.C.) because the organization gave an award to Alabama Governor, George Wallace.

In 1974 he was criticized by National SCLC Executives for his going to jail and supporting Rep. Hosea Williams (Atlanta SCLC chapter president), in the movement to "get rid of former police chief of Atlanta, John Inman". This movement led to the appointment of A. Reginald Eaves, the first black commissioner of public safety in Atlanta's history.

Also, in 1974 he organized and conducted SCLC's movement in Woodland (Talbot County), Georgia which forced the local power structure to give up half the jobs and appoint political positions to blacks. The county now has a black school superintendent, (3rd in the state), black city councilmen, black policemen, blacks on the county grand jury, and on the school board.

Ask any black in the county and he or she will tell you, it was the movement in 1974 led by Tyrone Brooks that brought all this about. He had to go to jail in Talbotton (the county seat), so it wasn't as easy as it seems.

The longest period of jailing for Tyrone Brooks was in Covington, GA in 1970 when he led a movement protesting discrimination against blacks in the public schools. He along with Robert Johnson, Lloyd Jackson, Joe Lightfoot, Forrest Sawyer, and other local leaders were jailed for 45 days.

Tyrone was also jailed in 1968 in Washington, DC with Dr. Ralph Abernathy and Hosea Williams while participating in "The Poor People's Campaign", (the last project organized by Dr. King before his assassination on April 4, 1968, in Memphis, Tennessee).

On going to jail so much Brooks says, "You have to be willing to go to jail for Freedom and Human Rights because sometimes it becomes absolutely necessary, and I don't like for people who are afraid of going to jail to participate in direct action with me because you never know what might happen".

It is serious business, you could be injured or even killed and you must understand this when you join the movement." But as Dr. King always said, "If a man or woman hasn't found something worth dying for, then that person is already dead or isn't fit to live."

Some of the major projects Tyrone is conducting at this time at National SCLC are: "The Pensacola case", which involves the murder of 5 black Atlantans in Pensacola, Florida in December, 1974; "Operation Military", which deals with the plight of black servicemen who feel they are victims of racism and discrimination; "The Wilmington 10 case", which involves 10 civil rights workers serving 282 years in North Carolina for civil rights activities; An alleged lynching in Hawkinsville, GA in April of this year, "The Rommie Loudd case", in Orlando, Florida, involves Rommie Loudd a retired black professional football player, who organized a professional football franchise, (The W.F.L. Florida Blazers) who was set-up, entrapped, and framed by the power structure of Orlando, Orange County, and the Orange Osceola State Attorney's Office on trumped up charges.

In March of this year Tyrone made his first try for political office. He missed winning a seat in the Georgia House of Representatives (missed the run-off by 91 votes). But he isn't quitting, he's expected to run again because he has kept his political organization THE PEOPLE'S CAMPAIGN intact.

In addition to all these activities and projects, he still has found time to organize and develop his own National Public Relations Consulting Firm. It is named TYRONE BROOKS & ASSOCIATES, with headquarters in Atlanta, GA. He serves as president and chief executive officer. He plans to help the black business person and the Black Press get a larger piece of the advertising dollar. He is single and has lived in Atlanta for the last 10 years.

Carter Supports Andrew Young

President Carter was recently asked about the effectiveness of United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young during the ABC-TV News Interview with Harry Reasoner and Sam Donaldson.

Here is the text of his response, as reported in the official transcript on August 10:

"MR. REASONER: There are a lot of ways that friends can get you glory or get you in trouble besides improprieties. How do you feel these days about Andrew Young?"

THE PRESIDENT: The same as I have always felt. I think that there is now and will be a growing realization of the value of Andrew Young to our country, both his work in the United Nations and also his work among the developing countries of the world who in the past have been turned away from us almost unanimously.

There has been a time in years gone by when in the very crucial international organizations we couldn't get 20 percent of the older nations to support our positions even when we thought we had the right positions.

Now I think there is a growing feeling among those small and poor and weak countries that they can trust us for a change, that there is someone in our government who can listen to them with an open mind, represent the best interests of the United States and still represent their best interests as well.

College Courses On T.V

Been yearning to go back to school with your children or grandchildren? College courses are readily available to you this fall via television, with University of Mid-America courses.

"This is a very good idea," writes a UMA student, "and useful to people like myself who have a little time and the desire to learn, but are unable to fit a regular college class into our lives because of the time and distance involved.

Andrew Young is intelligent, courageous, articulate, and accurately represents the position that I and the Secretary of State and others have evolved for our country and is building up trust in our country among the nations who didn't trust us before.

He is a great national treasure, in my opinion, and he has my complete confidence and I think I have his complete confidence.

I might say there has never been any difference of opinion on basic issues among Andrew Young, the Secretary of State, the National Security Council or myself."

Beginning in September, "The Age of Uncertainty" (a history of economics by John Kenneth Galbraith); "Japan: The Living Tradition;" "It's Everybody's Business"

(an introduction to business); "Dimensions in Culture" (an adventure in anthropology); and "Roots" (Afro-American History) will be broadcast once or twice weekly.

$17 Million Here For Youth Jobs

The U.S. Labor Department today issued estimates totaling $17,290,512 for youth employment programs in the four-state region administered from Kansas City.

The estimates went to the 23 state, county and city governments acting as prime sponsors for programs being conducted under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. The funds are for two youth programs authorized by the youth employment act signed by President Carter on August 5.

Youth Conservation and Improvement Projects will provide jobless youth with employment through well-supervised work on projects that produce tangible outputs and benefits to their home community. Eligible youth must be 16 through 19 who are in school or out of school and having difficulty getting work.

Youth Employment and Training Programs will provide predominantly low-income youth who have severe handicaps in obtaining jobs with work and training opportunities that will help their job and career prospects. Activities authorized include work experience, on-the-job training, classroom and other training, career counseling and job placement services.

The funds announced today are not actual allocations, but are estimates to be used by the governmental units in planning the two youth programs in their areas. However, five percent of the employment and training funds is being made immediately available as grants to the prime sponsors to pay for planning the two programs.

A separate grant goes to State Governors for planning state-wide youth employment and training programs.

High Blood Pressure: Need for Awareness

Almost everyone of us knows someone who has high blood pressure. Many of us have it ourselves. But few of us are aware of its significance. To doctors, hypertension, the medical term for high blood pressure, is a silent killer. Since it has no usual symptoms, most of its victims don't know they have it. If left untreated, says your Heart Association, hypertension can take years off of a person's life and can cause heart attack and stroke.

High blood pressure still remains a medical mystery to researchers; in 90 percent of all cases, doctors can't pinpoint the cause. The Heart Association estimates that 23 million Americans have this silent and mysterious disease. Of that number, only half of all the hypertension victims know they have it. Surveys have indicated that only 10 to 20 percent of the population with high blood pressure receives adequate treatment.

This disease is a contributor to two major killers in this country — heart attack and stroke — which together claim nearly 900,000 lives each year. In spite of these grim facts, there's a bright side to the outlook on high blood pressure. It can be easily detected by a simple, harmless and inexpensive test. Once found, it usually can be controlled with drug and diet therapy.

Research, along with intensive community education and hypertension screening programs, are top priorities of the Iowa Heart Association. If you would like further information on high blood pressure, write: Iowa Heart Association, 3810 Ingersoll Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa 50312.

American Jewish Congress Supports Medicaid Abortions

The American Jewish Congress this week called on President Carter "to examine your conscience and to have the courage to change your mind" on the issue of Medicaid reimbursement for voluntary abortions.

Mrs. Leona Chanin, co-chairman of the Congress' national governing council, made public the text of a telegram to the White House declaring that the President's position was "so contrary to every public position you have taken in the past, so inconsistent with the compassion you have demonstrated for the victims of economic and racial injustice, that we are at a loss to understand your recent statements."

(On July 12, President Carter conceded that denial of Federal aid for physical education, political science, professional studies, psychology, religious studies and speech.

Most of the classes are scheduled for 6 and 7 p.m., though others will start as early as 4 and 4:30 p.m. The only Saturday class is in speech, "Intermediate Film Production," 8 to 11 a.m.

The classes are open to Iowa State students as well as persons who wish to commute from surrounding communities. Participants may enroll in undergraduate and graduate courses with degree or non-degree options.

Classes for the fall program begin: Thursday, Sept. 8, for Thursday and Tuesday-Thursday classes; Monday, Sept. 12, for Monday and Monday-Wednesday classes; Tuesday, Sept. 13, for Tuesday classes; Wednesday, Sept. 14, for Wednesday classes; and Saturday, Sept. 10 for Saturday classes.

Applications and a complete list of evening classes and other information may be obtained from Office of Admissions, Room 9, Beardshear Hall, Iowa State University.

abortions would discriminate against poor women but said that "There are many things in life that are not fair" and that the Government should not attempt to make opportunities precisely equal when morality was at issue.)

"By denying federal aid for abortions performed for indigent women, the Government places itself in the position of countenancing and participating in a cruel act of discrimination against the weakest segment of our society. By imposing the religious beliefs of a minority of Americans on all the people, the Government impairs the basic rights of the poor and the powerless to religious freedom, to privacy and to equality.

"You have said in defense of your posture on this issue," Mrs. Chanin wrote, "that there are many things in life that are not fair. But that is no reason to support legislation which will make life even more unfair, more bitter, more ugly for the poor."

"Mr. President, in your election campaign and in your inaugural address you gave the American people reason to believe that you approached your office with a commitment to human decency, a sensitivity to human needs, a vision of human dignity. We are profoundly grieved to tell you that the bright promise you placed before the American people has been tarnished and stained by the attitude you have expressed on abortions for the poor.

"We implore you to examine your conscience and to have the courage to change your mind."

FACTS & FIGURES

From 1912 to 1960 the U.S. House of Representatives had 435 members. With the admission to statehood of Alaska and Hawaii two more representatives were added, but today because of reapportionment there are 435 once again.

The federal government regulates the price of interstate natural gas, preventing suppliers from selling it in other states unless they are willing to sell for a price set by the government. From 1964 to 1969, one-third of the gas reserve additions in the lower 48 states were discovered in the non-price controlled intrastate market. By 1970, 69 percent of the new gas supply was dedicated to this market.

On the average, the federal government pays out about $45 billion to state and local governments.

Health Dept. Rules On Vaccinations

The Iowa State Department of Health today filed emergency rules enabling persons who are inadequately protected against six immunizable diseases to be provisionally enrolled in elementary or secondary schools until the beginning of the second semester of the 1977-78 school year and in licensed child care centers until Jan. 1, 1978.

The rules were filed to enable parents to have time to comply with the requirements of the mandatory immunization law which became effective today. The law requires parents to assure that their children are adequately immunized against polio, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, measles and rubella before enrolling them in a school or day care center.

The law covers all children in day care centers or in kindergarten through 12th grade, not just kindergartners and new enrollees, according to Norman L. Pawlewski, Commissioner of Public Health. Children or their parents will be required to submit evidence of adequate immunization each time they enroll. Pawlewski said girls 12 years of age and older will be exempted from the measles and rubella requirements and that other medical and religious exemptions are permitted.

The Iowa State Department of Health currently is establishing a statewide records system, and school officials are requested not to develop record systems of their own as they may conflict with the regulations. Schools, day care centers and local boards of health will be required to issue reports detailing the immunization status of children.

STRAWBERRIES STAR IN CONSERVE

The red, red strawberries are ripe, and abundant again—the signal for you to find new ways to enjoy them in the form of new delicacies as well as to make your fond favorites!

Made with powdered fruit pectin, fully ripe strawberries, a medium orange and finely chopped walnuts, Strawberry Orange Honey Conserve uses one cup of honey to three cups of sugar. The flavor is subtle, and the taste sublime.

STRAWBERRY ORANGE HONEY CONSERVE

2 cups prepared fruit (about 1-1/2 pt. fully ripe strawberries and 1 medium orange)
1/4 cup finely chopped walnuts
1 cup honey
3 cups (1-1/4 lb.) sugar
3/4 cup water
1 box (1-3/4 oz.) Sure-Jell fruit pectin

First prepare the containers. Use only containers 1 pint or less in size that have tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald and drain containers and lids; or use automatic dishwasher with really hot (150° or higher) rinse water.

Then prepare the fruit. Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1-1/2 pints strawberries. Measure 1-1/2 cups into large bowl or pan. Section orange, discarding peel, seeds and heavy part of membrane. Dice orange sections. Measure 1/2 cup and add to strawberries with nuts.

Then make the conserve. Thoroughly mix honey and sugar into fruit; let stand 10 minutes. Mix water and fruit pectin in small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir into fruit. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals will remain.) Ladle quickly into containers. Cover at once with tight lids. Let stand at room temperature until set (may take up to 24 hours); then store in freezer. If conserve will be used within 2 or 3 weeks it may be stored in the refrigerator. Makes about 6 cups or 6 (8 fl. oz.) containers.

Amnesty International Askes Gov. To Release Wilmington 10

Amnesty International today, Tuesday, August 9, 1977, appealed to United States Governor James B. Hunt of North Carolina to grant a free pardon to the group of prisoners known as the Wilmington 10, who were sentenced in 1972 to up to 34 years imprisonment on charges of "unlawful burning" and "conspiracy to assault emergency personnel".

The charges arose from racial disturbances in Wilmington, North Carolina, in February 1971, during which a fire broke out at Mike's Grocery, a white-owned store. The 10 people eventually convicted of this crime were Benjamin Chavis, Marvin Patrick, Connie Tindall, Jerry Jacobs, Willie Earl Vereen, James McKoy, Reginald Epps, Wayne Moore, Joe Wright and Ann Shephard Turner. All the prisoners are black, except Mrs. Turner who has been released on parole.

The prisoners were released on bail in 1972 and 1973, pending appeals against their convictions, but were re-imprisoned in February 1976 after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear their appeals.

Amnesty International believes that the imprisonment of the Wilmington 10 is due to their political activities and their ethnic origin. AI adopted all 10 prisoners as prisoners of conscience after learning that the main prosecution witness, Allen Hall, had retracted his testimony against them and had stated that he was induced to testify falsely by promises made to him by the prosecuting authorities.

Subsequently, two other prosecution witnesses - Jerome Mitchell and Eric Junious - also retracted their testimony. At a post-conviction hearing, which took place in Burgaw, North Carolina, in May this year, all three witnesses repeated their retractions in open court.

Bolivian lawyer Dr. Luis Reque attended the post-conviction hearing on behalf of AI. In the conclusions to his report he stated that "...there is reason to believe that the Wilmington 10 have been denied a fair trial. The just solution to this unfortunate situation would be for the Governor of the state of North Carolina, the Honorable James B. Hunt Jr., to grant them a pardon of innocence".

$10 M. Available For Training

The U.S. Department of Labor today announced that $10,440,100 is available to state and local governments in Mid-America for a skill training improvement program (STIP).

Richard G. Miskimins, regional employment and training administrator, said the funds are available to the 23 state and local governments, or groups of governments, which administer programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

STIP, a 250 - million - dollar program nationally, is intended to provide high-skill training to low-income and unemployed workers, in occupations for which there is a demand in the private sector.

While only prime sponsors under Title I of CETA may apply, Miskimins said they may subgrant or contract all or part of the program operations to other organizations that are capable of providing services.

Wilmington in 1971.

Last May, a superior court judge denied the group a new trial despite the testimonies of three former prosecution witnesses who stated under oath that they lied for the state at the 1972 trial. The nine black men are serving prison terms averaging more than 28 years. Ann S. Turner is now free on parole having been convicted of a lesser charge.

Pardons At Hand For Wilmington 10,

Ms. Imani Kazana, National Coordinator for the Wilmington 10 Defense Committee commented today that she feels that "pardons for the Wilmington 10 are close at hand." "Pressure is mounting from all directions on Governor Hunt (N.C.) I believe that he is beginning to realize that time is running out for him to take action before the federal government takes action against the State".

Ms. Kazana's views come as a result of a series of positive developments in this five year old civil rights case. Within the past several days a U.S. Justice Department spokesperson, John Russell, told reporters that Attorney General Griffin Bell's office had been in contact with Governor Hunt asking him to "give serious consideration to the pardon request." Bell's actions are a result of a letter signed by 60 members of Congress urging federal intervention in this case.

"Certainly Governor Hunt realizes that the Justice Department would not make such a request if it did not have the evidence to back it up," says Kazana. A meeting between the Governor's office and representatives of the Justice Department is to be scheduled soon.

With talks beginning to assess the human rights clauses of the Helsinki Accord, Governor Hunt has also been constantly reminded that failure to remedy the Wilmington 10 case is bringing embarrassment to the country as a whole.

Writing to Governor Hunt recently, Congressman Charles B. Rangel (N.Y.) pointed out, "it is important that the U.S., as it purports to champion human rights both here and in other countries begin to preserve the civil rights of our own citizens if we are to avoid challenges of hypocrisy by both the countries who support the new Administration's position and those who have voiced their criticism."

Governor Hunt has also been under increased pressure to grant pardons of innocence from a variety of political and religious groups throughout the State of North Carolina. He recently met with defense attorneys and the families of the "10" following a 125 mile march through North Carolina organized by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

In expressing optimism, however, Ms. Kazana indicated that hers and other support groups are continuing the effort to gain additional support for Rev. Ben Chavis and his 9 co-defendants. "Part of the battle in getting Governor Hunt to act is letting him know that the effort is growing, that people are concerned, and that he will be ruined politically if he fails to grant these pardons".

The Wilmington 10, nine young black men and one white woman, were convicted in 1972 of burning a grocery store. The charges stemmed from a school boycott and other racial demonstrations in

Paul Collins Critical of Revlon Ad Campaign

Internationally, acclaimed artist, Paul Collins, just returned from being honored in Batherst, Gambia Africa where the government named a street on his behalf has given a critical review of the "Polished Ambers Collection" by Revlon Cosmetics.

Collins is the artist and co-author of the book Black Portraits of an African Journey, which won the Mead Book Award. In 1973, Collins observed first hand the occupation of Wounded Knee. He lived on the Pine Ridge Sioux Reservation, where he painted a moving series on the American Indian entitled "The Other Voices." His most noted endeavor has been the creation of a 18x24 mural commemorating the life and career of former President Gerald Ford, which is permanently installed in the Kent County airport in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Upon Collins' return to the states, he commented on Revlon's attempts at the Black consumer market. He stated, "Revlon's attempt to emphasize the black woman and the beauty that is Africa is a cheap shot and a shallow campaign at best."

From their folio one can see that Revlon obviously thought that black culture did not deserve the research in black history - of African history - that would make the entire campaign more relevant and more authentic.

Why has Revlon, all of a sudden, sought to involve itself and its products in black culture? We all know that they have never shown this kind of concern in the past. Could it be that it is the green which is motivating Revlon to become part of the black culture?

It is truly a mistake for Revlon to think that black people are so naive that they will think that this is truly an honest effort for Revlon to become involved in African history. Black women are not so foolish as to believe that a few new colors of eye shadow will better the health and well being of the black woman in the United States.

This folio is a cursory attempt to define African culture and beauty. I am qualified to discuss such matters because I've lived in Africa for many years — painting and studying the land and its diverse history. As a black man and artist, I am offended by Revlon's cursory attempt to manufacture symbols of Africa that are thrown over the necks and worn over the bodies of "Black" models.

It is clear that because of a lack of understanding and lack of empathy and a lack of indepth research Revlon feels that - Jewelry + Cloth + "Black" Models = African culture and history. This is truly a cheap shot for such a prestigious company. One has to believe that the only reason that such a well known company would be part of such a cheap Madison Avenue hype is that the Revlon Corporation sees black women as a new way to change the "Polished Ambers" into gold.

It seems rather odd that with all the history, beauty, culture and elegance that abounds in the heart and soul of Africa that Revlon is just now taking note of such a storehouse of pulchritude.

Revlon is not successful in its bid for capturing the black market. Black women should not be hoodwinked by this company's advertising campaign and their "Rent a black model for a day" strategies. Hopefully black women will continue to support the black companies that have based their products on the continuing needs of black women, whatever their skin tone or hair texture.

It is important when buying a product to understand that this is a way of approving of a company, their products and philosophy. We should understand where our loyalties and priorities are and continue to support the companies that have been relevant and pertinent to black people for years. We should support the companies that have consistently and persistently worked to satisfy the needs of black women.

Revlon ends by telling black folks that by their gazing into African history and seeking the variety of skin tones and different assortments of Africans, that now Revlon seems to have been entrusted with the "Great Secrets" in cosmetics that will make a black woman beautiful.

I pose these final questions - Where was Revlon 20 years ago? Weren't the needs of black women just as valid then as now?

One of the key phrases in Revlon's campaign is evolution. If this evolution is so continual and obvious — why then, is this well established company, just now noticing this rich legacy and heritage that has evolved from Africa to todays black women?

NSCA Requests Jordan To Broaden Leadership

The National Student Coalition Against Racism expresses our complete solidarity with the criticism of the Carter Administration raised by Vernon Jordan Jr. at the annual conference of the National Urban League.

Already NSCAR has submitted a resolution FOR FULL EQUALITY NOW to the national conventions of the NAACP, Operation

PUSH, The Coalition of Black Trade Unionists, and the Urban League calling for an open democratic conference of the Black community. The favorable response to this resolution indicates that many people see the need for relying on no one but ourselves to achieve lasting social change.

A leadership meeting of the Black movement should lay the basis for a larger conference that would include many civil rights groups from across the country that have been grappling with the very same problem — the best way to fight back.

NSCAR believes that the leadership meeting should also include students. Students have historically been a major component in the fight for social change. In the 60's there was the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee that helped lead the fight against Jim Crow segregation.

In the early 70's, it was students that built the mass demonstrations in opposition to the role played by the U.S. government in Vietnam. Today, NSCAR has been in the fore-front of the battle for school desegregation, building opposition to U.S. support of apartheid and many other anti-racist struggles.

NSCAR feels that we can make an important contribution in a leadership meeting of the civil rights movement, and we will do whatever possible to help make it a reality.

OIC Presents Petition To Carter

Today, OICs of America appealed to President Carter to continue and enlarge his support of OIC's national self-help program for the poor.

The Appeal was made by more than 700,000 Americans. The petitions were presented to the White House by Reverend Leon Sullivan, who founded OIC fourteen years ago. The Appeal was read by Reverend Roy Allen, Pastor of Chapel Hill Baptist Church in Detroit. It states:

WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, REQUEST THAT MINISTERS OF THE NATION PRESENT THIS APPEAL, FROM THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES TO OUR PRESIDENT, WITH THE PURPOSE AND HOPE THAT OPPORTUNITIES INDUSTRIALIZATION CENTERS (OIC) OF AMERICA, WITH ITS JOB TRAINING AND JOB CREATION PROGRAM, BE TUILIZED TO THE FULLEST POSSIBLE EXTENT TO ASSIST HIM IN HIS ENCOURAGING AND HOPEFUL EFFORTS TO HELP THE UNEMPLOYED AND

UNDEREMPLOYED OF AMERICA."

Rev. Sullivan was joined by over 30 ministers from throughout the United States, representing the hundreds of clergymen of all faiths who organized the collection of petitions in all areas served by OICs. OIC, started by Rev. Sullivan as an outreach of his ministry to poor blacks in North Philadelphia, has maintained close ties with the church as it has spread throughout America.

As stated by Reverend Roman, National Appeals Coordinator and Presiding Pastor of Canaan Baptist Church in Philadelphia, "Our mission here today is an extension of the spirit, philosophy and self-help concept of this movement."

Reverend Cecil D. Gallup, also of Philadelphia, described the background of the Appeal. He indicated that "The OICs of America National Board of Directors, at its biannual meeting held in Washington, D.C. earlier this year, in response to remarks made by Rev. Sullivan concerning unemployment and underemployment in America, decided to sponsor an 'Appeal to the President.' Under the leadership of the OIC National Religious Resources Advisory Council, this Appeal was circulated throughout the country for signatures."

The Appeal by OIC, signed by over 700,000 Americans, is positive in nature. It asks him, in effect, to increase his support of programs and financial resources to serve poor and unemployed Americans, and especially to use the OIC program as a vehicle for delivering manpower training and economic development activities. The Appeal reflects the concern of Americans that this successful program be continued and enlarged.

Poitier and Cosby Tidy Up For "A Piece of the Action"

They are back and they are all cleaned up. Sidney Poitier is wearing a vested suit and monogrammed shirts. Bill Cosby is clean shaven and even turns up in a striped velvet tuxedo when they go out to see a concert by the Dance Theatre of Harlem.

Those intrepid laugh merchants who set moviegoers to laughing in "Uptown Saturday Night" and repeated the ribaldry with "Let's Do It Again" have gotten a new game together. Though crooks, frankly, they could be called reluctant Robin Hoods since they rob the rich without intent of giving to the poor — temporarily.

Their newest caper is titled "A Piece of the Action" to be released by Warner Bros. in October and certain to mark another milestone in entertainment for film fans aged eight to eighty.

Significantly, "A Piece of the Action" is not a sequel to the pair of hit movies that introduced Poitier and Cosby as the world's newest cinematic comedy team. While just as fast-paced, funny and full of surprises, "A Piece of the Action" moves up several notches in dramatic content and intent, apparently in answer to public demand for movies that combine relevance with ribaldry.

According to Poitier, who directs as well as stars, it has been his intent to make a film which "deals with poignant subjects of the day with comedic overtones." A noble purpose indeed.

Thus "A Piece of the Action" deals with crime and countercrime, bridging the generation gap and human survival in a megalopolis while the reluctant Robin Hoods are involved in hilarious confrontation with a passel of underprivileged youngsters. It brings a lot of fresh, new faces to movie screens in doing so.

Half a dozen seasoned young actors, including Ernest Thomas from cast of TV's "What's Happening" and Edward Love from the Broadway cast of "The Wiz," Eric Laneuville and Bryant O'Dell, New York-born Sheryl Lee Ralph and Dianne Dxon join 20-odd other young newcomers in the cast.

Bolstering them all are Poitier and Cosby's co-stars James Earl Jones, Denise Nicholas, Hope Clarke, Tracy Reed and Titos Vandis, with Francis Foster, Jason Evers, Marc Lawrence also starring, and Ja'Net DuBois from the cast of TV's "Good Times" in a special role as Aunt Nellie.

Based on a screenplay by Charles Blackwell and Timothy March, "A Piece of the Action" is produced by Mel Tucker. Kris Keiser is associate producer.

CLEAN AS A WHISTLE - But crooked as a corkscrew, Bill Cosby and Sidney Poitier rob the rich without intent of giving to the poor in their new Warner Bros. comedy "A Piece of the Action," to be

Count Basie Honored By Sickle Cell Group

Legendary jazz giant Count Basie will be honored by the National Association for Sickle

Cell Disease (NASCD) at a benefit dinner to be co-hosted by the Sickle Cell Disease Research Foundation (SCDRF), on Wednesday, September 21.

Basie will receive the NASCD's Award of Distinction that evening, and the entertainment dinner, which is open to the public, will be held at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, Beverly Hills.

Count Basie and his orchestra have been in the forefront of jazz artistry for 42 years. The Count's driving piano style and dynamic arrangements have markedly influenced jazz musicians and such singers as Joe Williams, Frank Sinatra, and Jimmy Rushing.

Basie is being paid tribute by the NASCD and the SCDRF for his personal commitment to humanitarian causes.

The Tribute to Basie will be the third annual entertainment benefit dinner conducted by the NASCD and marks the first time that their pioneer chapter, the SCDRF, will co-host the star-studded event. Jazz greats Ray Charles and Ella Fitzgerald were previous honorees. The event annually attracts top show business celebrities, who have joined in the entertainment.

September is National Sickle Cell Month, and the Basie Tribute is just one of several activities scheduled for that month, which will include naming of the 1977-78 Poster Child, Sickle Cell Sunday, and an all-media education awareness campaign.

Sickle cell disease is a life-threatening hereditary blood disease prevalent among those with black and Mediterranean ancestry.

The NASCD is a nationwide, non-profit organization dedicated to providing leadership, coordination, standards and guidelines to 60 affiliate chapters across the United States. It also provides leadership in educating the public about sickle cell disease and providing comprehensive sickle cell disease programming.

The Sickle Cell Disease Research Foundation of Los Angeles, founded in 1957, was one of 14 charter members of the NASCD and helped provide organizational support to the founding of the National in 1971. This chapter was one of the first in the nation to originate and implement adequate testing, counseling, and education programs.

Ticket information can be obtained from the NASCD offices at (213) 713-1166, 945 South Western Avenue, Suite 206, Los Angeles, California 90006, or the SCDRF, (213) 299-3600, 4401 Crenshaw Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90043. Proceeds will benefit both organizations.

Tips For Green Thumb

Since late August is ideal time for seeding a new lawn, it is time to get started in preparing the seedbed. New lawn requires leveling with hand tools after grading and some roto-tilling. The clods and lumps should be broken up in marble size or smaller. Where a new house has been built, the top soil usually has been removed, and will need to be replaced by uncontaminated black soil. Drag or rake until the seed bed is smooth before seeding. Although not necessary, a starter fertilizer should be incorporated.

When choosing grass seeds, it is best to use a mixture instead of a single variety. A combination of several adapted varieties of bluegrass not only gives a better established lawn, but will be more resistant to physiological, insect and disease problems than a single variety. In addition, a mixture which includes a "nursing" variety such as ryegrass or creeping fescue will protect the bluegrass varieties during adverse weather conditions as well as conserving the top-soil.

Using a seeder, broadcast seeds according to recommendations on the package and water thoroughly, but slowly with a sprinkler system. It would be most beneficial to use a mulch such as grass clippings, straw, burlap or similar material to retain the soil moisture as well as protecting the young seedlings. Try to have seeding done in the last week of August or early September. At this time the soil is still warm to cause germination and establish a root system, while the air keeps cooling off, thus allowing the plants to grow vegetatively without being scorched.

For most run-down and weedy lawns, you may need to renovate by killing the vegetation, roto-tilling and reseeding. In other areas, a chemical weed control may be necessary. For control of broadleaf weeds, the use of 2,4-D or Silvex is much preferred in fall rather than in spring because of less risk of injury to ornamentals and garden vegetables. Annual grassy weeds (e.g. crabgrass and foxtail) can be treated in the spring with a pre-emergence such as Dacthal or Balan. On the other hand, perennial grassy weeds (e.g. quackgrass) cannot be controlled without killing the established lawn grass. Therefore, using a nonselective herbicide such as Vapam will kill all vegetation, thus clearing it for reseeding. One caution—the area treated with Vapam should not be reseeded before a lapse of one month's time. In this case, you may have to do a dormant seeding in November

Joint Center Head Opposes Direct Election of President

Washington, D.C. — Testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, Eddie N. Williams voiced strong opposition to legislative proposals to abolish the electoral college system in favor of a direct popular vote for President.

Williams, president of the Joint Center for Political Studies, told the subcommittee that the abolition of the electoral college at this time could very well reduce the significance of the black vote.

A Joint Center study shows that of the nine most populous states which are favored by the electoral college system, six have a black voting-age population greater than 10 percent. These six states have a total of 148 electoral votes, more than half the number needed to elect a President. In those six states, and in at least two others, the black vote has been critical in close election.

Under the current electoral system, Williams said, "the concentration and influence of black votes in major electoral states accord the black vote a measure of respect which could easily be lost under the direct popular election."

Williams added that any measure "which threatens to adversely affect the significance of black voting power is a direct threat to our community and indeed to our democratic society."

Williams noted that direct popular election is consistent with our democratic principles, including the one-person one-vote concept. However, he said, "from a practical point of view such a system might create inequities which would have a far greater impact than the remote possibility of a mischievous electoral college."

The Joint Center president pointed out that there had been only one time in history (1888) where the electoral college denied the popular vote winner the presidency.

"One instance in two hundred years hardly seems to be ample basis for a radical change in our electoral system. Nor does the risk appear to be so great as to make acceptable any undesirable side effects of abolishing the electoral college," he said.

Williams urged the Congress to continue its examination of ways to improve the procedures by which we elect our President.

LOOK ON SPORTS

We finally got our Hilltop Tennis meet out of the way, in spite of the occasional rains. Lucky for us, we didn't have anything like the usual draw, or we might have been in trouble with the juniors. They missed the bunch from Omaha, but a group from Minneapolis and St. Paul made up for that.

A Dr. Ayers brought his family to town, and they turned out to be some pretty fair players. His daughter Deanne, won the 18 year girls singles and teamed with Liz Zachary to take the doubles, in the 16 year old bracket. Her brother, Daryell won the boys fourteen and sixteen titles, and missed the boys fourteen doubles crown.

Liz Zachary from St. Paul won at least one match in every event she entered, and with Ayers wiped them out in the doubles.

Last year's finalist in the twelve year division didn't make it in the fourteens, but Doby Hicks has promised to be back next year.

The junior draw was small, about half what it normally is, but the Ayers bunch would have likely made it tough for whoever was here. I am certain they would have won a couple of titles even with a big draw.

In the adults the men's singles featured one of the finest matches of the meet in the quarterfinal round.

Ron Liezrowitz, the defending champ met Tony Smith from Denver, and that was really the final match, since we all knew that whoever won that one would go all the way. That was my fault. Players are seeded so the best ones will not meet in the early rounds.

Well, I went out to see what Mr. Smith had on the ball. Maybe it was the fatigue from the ride from Denver, maybe the fact that his partners were not in his class, but I saw him work out and didn't think he should have been seeded.

I was as wrong as two left feet. So Ron gets two legs up on the Louis Miles singles trophy and has promised to put it away next year.

The thing about the mens singles was the number of black players in there, and just about all of them either won at least one match or carried their opponent to three sets. So we make progress where it counts, in the juniors and maybe in the singles.

There was a bunch from the Twin Cities in the older divisions. Duke Green won the mens fifty five title by dusting Don Ultang. Duke last in his bid to take the forty five title when he lost to Jack Silverman in the semifinals. Sam King just couldn't get himself together, and had bad luck in all of his matches.

But Esther Snype who claims both Des Moines and Minneapolis as her home regained the women's singles crown by beating a Miss Bradford in a good three set match. This was the first time Esther had been in the finals for a couple of years, and she didn't let the chance get away. Then she teamed with Les Pearl of the Tennis Locker and staged a rousing three set mixed doubles match before going out.

The meet was made official by the presence of Bob Hudson who called the mens and womens finals. I always say it isn't an official meet in Des Moines unless Bob calls at least one match.

We lost about a third of our usual bunch, but as I look over the results from the meet we were bucking, I can think they lost some people too. This should have never happened, and maybe it won't next year. When we told people about what really happened, and why "we changed our dates" most of them got really indignant, and agreed that we had been pushed around. There were suggestions of petitions and even law suits to make sure we get our original dates.

In spite of the fact that we may have lost little dough, I am glad that we got our case before the public, and they know that we were not at fault. And I don't think the Iowa Tennis Association would like another conflict such as that one, and neither do we or anybody else. So sometimes things happen for the best.

I don't know where all the people went. There were not too many people from Des Moines at Cedar

From Goal Post to Goal Line

In the movie, "The Graduate," one of the characters leans over and whispers in the ear of the hero, Dustin Hoffman: "Plastics, my boy, get into plastics."

For Bob Jeter, former Chicago Bears' and Green Bay Packers' defensive back, a similar

"hot" tip was the source of a new business enterprise, Goal-Line, Inc.

A very good friend with a successful business of his own told Jeter, "Everything that is manufactured must be shipped in containers, from toothpicks to furniture."

This word of advice confirmed Jeter's own idea that this type of business had potential, the demand for boxes was inexhaustible, plus the fact that his friend during his work experience, had learned a great deal about packing and shipping.

Jeter teamed with Jim Wallace, then vice president of a small electronics firm, and four partners to launch Goal-Line, Inc. in July, 1975, as a manufacturer and distributor of corrugated packing and shipping boxes. Wallace, who was sales manager of Goal-Line, now shares a 50-50 partnership with Jeter.

A major corporate buyer is, of course, an important element in the success of any young firm, and Avon Products, Inc. is important to Goal-Line. Goal-Line supplies 30 to 50 percent of corrugated products required by Avon's manufacturing laboratory in Morton Grove, Illinois to ship products to representatives throughout its sales area.

Jeter expects Avon's volume to increase appreciably this year, and expects even better sales in the foreseeable future.

Goal-Line was started with a Small Business Administration Loan of $30,000 and "a few bucks" from Jeter and his original partners. Contrary to popular myths, not all professional football players end big league careers with bank accounts to support entry into the business world, Jeter emphasizes.

The company presently numbers four clerical staff and eight plant workers. The firm subcontracts with such major firms as International Paper and Horner Waldorf, both of Chicago. Small orders are handled through a jobbers company in which Goal-Line owns an interest, and maintains 30,000 square feet of space in a sheet metal plant. Jeter also buys polyethylene bags for resale from Argus Co. of Des Plaines, Illinois and polystyrene bags from Frosty Foam Co. of Antioch, Illinois.

Jeter canvasses "cold" for new accounts without much regard to self-interest because products to manufacturer ships in Falls, and none of the adult women or older girls got into our meet. Why? Don't know.

Next year if we put it on, we shall give consideration to having a mens thirty-five year division. If we can all agree on it it may come to pass. This seems to be the biggest draw in just about all of the meets around the state, so maybe we ought to try it.

And speaking of draws, the Bill Ashby doubles trophies are in danger of being retired. Arden Stokstad and Greg Russell won their second leg in the two big mugs, and they have promised to be back next year.

Another problem we may have is about our Hilltop Closed meet. It seems that Mr. Blaskovich seems to think that we are a private club using the courts for our own private ends, and he wants the public to have them.

He says "You had the courts tied up all last week, and now you want to tie them up again." I explained to the young man the nature and purpose of our program, but I am not sure it got through.

He still thinks of us as a black group working with black players only. However, by the time you read this, we may either have our permits for our closed or will have been turned down.

I think I ought to visit with the guy and take about an hour to go into the history of tennis and black tennis in this city. Do you think it would help?

MESSIAH TEMPLE

We will not make it into heaven unless we present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto the Lord. Reverend Everett Cassell spoke last Sunday the lesson God gave him. Because Reverend Cassell was obedient, the congregation at Messiah Temple was blessed to be fed by the scriptures in Romans 12.

One of the many things taught us was that a proud person cannot serve the Lord or enter into heaven. We must live peacefully at all times, and this takes a humble spirit in us. We want to thank Reverend Cassell for bringing us these truths.

We are having another rummage and bake sale at 2603 Center Street on September 2 and 3. The doors will open at 10:00 and close at 6:00.

Sunday school is at 10:30 with worship service at 11:30. Our teachers and preachers are truly anointed of God to bring us the truth of God in a way that all can understand.

Through their obedience to the Lord, we at Messiah Temple are blessed to be fed spiritually each time we meet. Bible study is every Sunday evening at 7:00. Prayer meeting is every Wednesday evening at 7:00. The congregation at Messiah Temple comes together each time in one accord, determined to meet and commune with the Lord.

Because this is our attitude, the Lord is going to bless Messiah Temple in a special way very soon. Through the grace of God we are growing spiritually so that we all can meet Jesus with joy in our hearts.

REMEMBER: You get out of the service just what you put into it.

OUTDOOR WOOD

Hints For Homeowners On Planning And Building

LEARN TO FENCE

IT'S EASY to create a charming fence for your home.

Your home can have a fine fence that's both beautiful and functional without your having to tie up a lot of funds.

You can have it built by a contractor or do it yourself. Your fence can set a mood, change an entrance, provide a handsome backdrop, control prevailing winds, reduce street noise or create a fresh-air room. A fence can keep small children from straying or protect your garden from stray pets. It can guard against pool accidents or set aside a quiet corner.

Plan your fence with an eye to the view, obstructions, winds, noise and trees. And plan to use a good wood that will last a lifetime, without making your fence an expensive and time-consuming maintenance problem. One way is with relatively inexpensive pressure-treated wood such as Outdoor™ brand wood. Impregnated with Wolman® preservative chemicals, this lumber will not decay, and wood-destroying insects won't harm its structural integrity. It can be sawed, planed, drilled, nailed and painted or stained by even the most inexperienced handyman.

Outdoor wood is produced by Koppers Company and its licensees. For fence plans and a booklet on building fences, send 25¢ to: Fences, Koppers Company, Inc., 1900 Koppers Building, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15219.

TURN YOUR CAREER INTO TWO CAREERS.

As a registered nurse you could receive a direct commission as an officer in the Army Reserve. You'll earn a good second income for 38 days of service a year. Call your nearest center to see if you qualify. It's in the white pages of the phone book under "U.S. Government."

Help solving tax problems

Having difficulty getting a knotty Federal tax situation taken care of promptly? You can now turn for help to the newly created IRS Problem Resolution Office in Des Moines.

The Problem Resolution Program (PRP) Office has been established to help Iowa taxpayers with their Federal tax problems if they feel they are not receiving prompt and appropriate attention from the IRS. The program is not a substitute for normal procedures or the tax appeals process; nor is it a substitute for deciding or resolving technical tax questions. Iowa taxpayers should seek assistance from the PRP Office when they are unable to resolve their problems through normal IRS channels, such as the Taxpayer Service, Collection and / or Audit Divisions.

Some of the types of problems that the PRP Office will handle includes billing and payment credit misunderstandings, excessive delays in obtaining refunds, failure to get a definitive answer to a question and failure by IRS to respond properly to taxpayer communications.

The system is not unique to Iowa. It was successfully tested elsewhere in the country last year and is now being used by all district IRS offices. Problems can be routed to the Des Moines PRP Office from any IRS field office or by writing to the PRP Office, P.O. Box 1337, Des Moines, Iowa 50305.
