Morris Opens Law Office

James Bradford Morris III has successfully jumped the hurdle into the world of law, although courtrooms, briefs and legal jargon are not unfamiliar to the son and grandson of two former well known black Des Moines attorneys.

Morris, known to most of his friends as Brad, passed the Iowa bar examination Jan. 12. He recently graduated from the University of Iowa law school, where he also completed his undergraduate degree and compiled some credits towards a master's degree in American history.

"Law has been a major portion of my existence," he said. "Law is something I've grown up with. It is not foreign to me and not strange that I chose to go to law school."

Morris, 29, is the son and grandson of James B. Morris Jr. and Sr. who had a joint law practice, Morris & Morris, until their deaths. Morris Jr. died of a stroke Oct. 1, 1976 at the age of 56 and Morris Sr. died Dec. 30, 1977 at the age of 87. Both elder Morris were considered outstanding attorneys. Morris Sr. also was noted for his human rights efforts and as editor and publisher of the Iowa Bystander.

So, passing the bar exam was only one hurdle, said young Morris, who was forced to take the long, tedious test twice before passing. The next hurdle is to decide whether or not to take over the law practices left by his father and grandfather, or to try to gain more practical experience by

News Briefs

Donald Nickerson, 26, Des Moines, has been appointed the first black assistant U.S. attorney in Des Moines.

Nickerson, a recent graduate of the Drake University Law School, worked briefly in the law offices of Parrish and Del Gallo. Nickerson's appointment was announced this week by U.S. Attorney Roxanne Conlin, with whom Nickerson had worked as a law clerk.

The sentences of nine imprisoned members of the Wilmington 10 were reduced this week by Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., who enabled all but one of the defendants to be eligible for parole this year.

Rev. Ben Chavis and eight other black men were convicted of fire-bombing a white-owned store in a black neighborhood of Wilmington, N.C. during racial violence February, 1971. The men also were convicted of conspiracy and other charges and received prison sentences of more than 20 years each.

Hunt reduced the sentence of Rev. Chavis, leader of the group, to permit parole eligibility on Jan. 1, 1980. Ann Sheppard Turner, the only woman and only white among the defendants, did not receive a sentence change. Sentences of the other eight men were reduced to 13 and 15 years, making them eligible for parole consideration the first of June and the last of October.

Action, a black militant organization, says the confirmation of William Webster as FBI director would be a disaster for the human rights cause because of his consistent history of practicing racism, sexism and elitism.

This Week

The Bystander this week begins three new features:

On the front page starts the "Spotlight" — a closer look at individuals active in the community.

Request More Women, Minorities As Police

City Councilwoman Elaine Szymoniak asked Police Chief Wendell Nichols to investigate new programs for recruiting minorities and women to the Des Moines Police force.

Szymoniak made the request during Monday's city council meeting when she noted that Nichols and Assistant Chief Thomas Teale will attend a conference next month in St. Louis, Mo. At the conference there will be workshops examining new program ideas and Szymoniak suggested they "look for a program to assist them to recruit minorities and women in the police force."

The councilwoman said the police force is lacking adequate representation of women and minorities although she acknowledged the reasons behind the lack of representation are complex.

Bankers Trust Gives $2 M For Inner City Loans

On Feb. 1, the Bankers Trust Co. will embark on a project to help inner city residents obtain housing mortgage loans.

President Herman C. Kilpper said the company has earmarked $2 million for the loans, but interest rates and loan requirements will be the same as other loans.

"We will help and are in the market to help," said Kilpper who noted residents should be aware the funds are available for the inner city.

Kilpper said his company has made few loans to inner city home owners in the past.

Mortgage loan data, compiled by the company, showed no loans were made for use in the neighborhoods during a six-month period in 1976.

Des Moines Mayor Richard Olson was unavailable for comment. However, officials said Olson has long fought for help in solving the city's housing problems, including deterioration of inner city housing standards. Olson recently called housing the "number one priority of this council for 1978." He also said people living in substandard housing frequently are unable to make improvements because of the neighborhoods in which they live.

Kilpper said Bankers Trust also was concerned about the problem and "have been vitally interested in the continued development efforts within the downtown area."

Kilpper admitted most lending institutions do not receive a high volume of loan applications from the inner city mostly because "I guess the visibility of any given program wasn't there," although "I would guess the willingness to make loans was there."

Kilpper emphasized the earmarked funds are only for "owner-occupied" dwellings.

IEWS and REVIEWS by Allen Ashby

GOP Woos Blacks

The Republican party seems to be trying to find some way to get a share of the black vote. They practically wrote the vote off in the 1976 campaign and really hurt themselves. Right now blacks are held to the Democratic party because of local elections and not by the top of the party.

They are refusing to vote in national elections in alarming numbers, because they can't see anything in it for them. Carter got a big black vote because of those Georgia blacks who believed in him. He had played square with them and was their man, so they sold him to the rest of the country.

Then I would guess that although the man would like to do more than he has so far shown, he suddenly realized that Washington is not the Georgia Legislature. Congress is composed of a whole lot of selfish interests and the country isn't nearly as far down the road to racial harmony as he may have thought.

So the blacks are disenchanted with him, and if they vote at all in national elections, could be persuaded to vote GOP. But that party is going to have to show something.

Trying to get a co-chairman for blacks won't do the trick. We have been down that road, i.e. putting a black in a showcase job and pointing with pride.

It has been written, and said over and over again that the gut issue with blacks is jobs. Some way to get the young blacks off the street and into some sort of useful work. Some way to bridge the gap between the haves and have nots. Nothing else really counts if the vote is to be gotten out.

I would suggest that people in both parties get into the streets and talk to the people there. Headlining leaders are great, but the man in the street needs to be heard. We as a group are weary of having people at the top tell us what is good for us and what we want. Let us tell you for once.

School Desegregation

I was interested in Superintendent Davis' proposal to go on with the present plan of school desegregation. His reasoning is good, that it would make another hassle getting organized again.

Then I have heard comment of people who are against his plan. They say that people went along with this plan in operation now because they thought it would be shelved after a while and the people I heard seem to pose a thinly veiled threat of tougher resistance to the present plan.

I have to agree with Davis. I can't think of a single instance in which blacks were taken into the main stream of anything voluntarily. Everything we have gained has been fought for, and, thank God, there are lots of fairminded white people on our side, so we were never alone.

No, I believe as Mr. Davis does, that if the present plan is abandoned for a voluntary one, that we would soon be right back where we were before this came about.

And no matter how the parents feel or think about it, if America is to hold her place in the world, the children need the contacts and association with the various ethnic and racial groups. We need to learn that we all belong to one race, the human race, that we are all here to stay, and that our paths will cross often, so we may as well get along with and understand each other.

What better place to learn this than in school, since the parents have done such a fantastic job of botching up relations with their preconceived notions and stereotypes.

Need Letter

Dear Editor:

I'm a prisoner here at Lucasville. I've been incarcerated seven years.

My current involvement while here is music, and pre-law school. I'm studying pre-law at Ohio University - I've played music for 15 years. (Flutist)

My reason for contacting you is, I wish to hear from people on the outside. I haven't any family, thus this is the only way for me to communicate outside of the prison.

Would you please print this letter in your newspaper so that perhaps I will receive some mail? I am very lonely.

I thank you kindly for any consideration given me.

A Bold New Step

By Al Parrish

Alfredo G. Parrish, a Des Moines attorney will join the Iowa Bystander staff as an editorial page writer. He is a member of the law office of Parrish and Del Gallo with offices in Des Moines, Iowa and Waterloo, Iowa. Parrish is a 1967 graduate of the University of Dubuque in Dubuque, Iowa and earned his law degree from the University of Iowa in 1970.

Before establishing his private law office, Parrish served as a staff attorney for the Polk County Legal Aid Society and taught business law at the Des Moines Area Community College Urban Campus.

The topics of his weekly editorials will be varied covering a wide range of local, state, national, and international issues.

Banker's Trust and the City of Des Moines have made a joint commitment to the Des Moines residents that could possibly be the most substantial contribution private enterprise and government can make to the citizens of its community. They have made a strong commitment to provide money to Inner City Housing. In every city across the country, the deterioration of Inner City Housing has been a prelude to urban decay. It is the nucleus of many urban problems.

This act by Banker's Trust could possibly be the breakthrough that the near north side has needed. If the loans are properly distributed, in that persons not traditionally eligible for such real estate loans would actually receive them, it could revitalize the City of Des Moines, Iowa. Further, the example set by Banker's Trust may also cause other lending institutions to follow the lead.

The City of Des Moines' commitment to use Community Development funds to support non-traditional loans is clearly a bold innovative support effort.

The next step for the citizens of this community is to support this effort and for the persons eligible for the loans to line up at the Bank's doors. An opportunity such as this should not pass without the best efforts from everyone to see a success.

Black-Jewish Relations

To The Editor:

We were most interested in the analysis of Black - Jewish relations which you recently published by Kenyon Burke.

Mr. Burke's perceptive approach to the common concerns as well as the differences of the two communities is thought-provoking. It is reassuring to note that new efforts are being made on both sides to stress mutual goals such as full employment, national health insurance, open housing, etc.

Recently a statement was issued by nearly 80 national civil rights organizations, including leading Black and Jewish groups, declaring that despite differences over such issues as the Bakke case, "we shall work together in the future, as in the past, to secure full civil rights for all our citizens."

The Black and Jewish communities both know what it is like to suffer oppression. Both are equally dedicated to lifting that yoke from every shoulder. May our combined efforts meet with success.

Sincerely,
Victoria Free

Trees Planted In King's Name

The first Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Forest in Israel has been completed with the planting of 10,000 trees in time to mark the 1978 observance of Dr. King's birthday.

The forest, a green and living memorial to the slain civil rights leader, is located in the beautiful hill country of the Galilee.

The first trees were planted one year ago in a ceremony in which 16 members of a Washington, D.C. interfaith and interracial group — the Metropolitan Ecumenical Training Center — participated. The observance included the singing of the civil rights anthem, "We Shall Overcome," led by Rev. Robert Pruitt, pastor of the A.M.E. Metropolitan Church in Washington, who recalled Dr. King's strong ties with the Jewish people and Israel.

A letter of greetings from the American Consul-General in Jerusalem, Michael H. Newlin, was read by Leonore Siegelman of the American Jewish Congress, vice-chairman of the Committee.

"The forest was donated primarily by American Jews wishing to honor Dr. King," Mrs. Siegelman said. "There is great commitment among Jews to the human rights principles Dr. King represented."

The Memorial Forest is sponsored by all the Black and Jewish members of Congress, as well as U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young.

Speaking Out

Inner city residents have very definite opinions about the controversial issue of whether the state should finance elective abortions for women on welfare.

The subject has dominated discussions in the Iowa Legislature and meetings of the Iowa Department of Social Services, as well as sparked several rallies by anti-abortion groups.

The U.S. Supreme Court actually started the ball rolling about five years ago when it ruled that abortions could be performed legally. That decision allowed federal and state governments to jointly finance abortions for welfare women. However, recently the federal government stopped providing its share of the money, leaving states with the decision to either continue the practice alone or halt funding altogether.

Raymond Knox,
1920 Jefferson

"Yes, I agree that the state should pay for abortions of women on welfare. Where else will they (welfare women) get their money from. If the women are in poor health and need to have it, where else could they get it."

Mary Taylor
1515-19th Street

"The disadvantaged people have just as much a right (to abortions) as people who have the means. I figure if I pay taxes, this is as good a cause as going to the moon."

Wayne Gardner
1810 Mondamin

"I think the state should pay for abortions for young girls who can't pay for it themselves and can't afford to take care of a baby."

Now, we can catch heat escaping from your house red-handed...

How? With "Operation Sky Scan," an aerial infrared photo survey that Iowa Power will be conducting over communities in our service territory this winter.

If you hear a low-flying plane over your house on some clear, cold night, it could be "Operation Sky Scan" shooting a thermogram of your neighborhood. Thermograms are infrared photos that actually show heat escaping from structures which are inadequately insulated and are wasting not only energy, but money.

Once the survey is completed, you'll have an opportunity to see how your home shows up on the actual thermogram photos. If you decide you need more insulation, it can be financed on your monthly Iowa Power bill.

We can't say for sure when the results of the survey will be available. But we'll be sure to let you know. Take the time, then, to check out your house. It can help you save on your heating and cooling bills.

Free Tax Help

Older and low income Des Moines residents can obtain free help in filling out their Federal income tax returns through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Program.

VITA volunteers will be available at all public libraries and Congregate Meal Sites in Des Moines and West Des Moines. The volunteers, who were trained by IRS employees, are qualified to assist taxpayers with step-by-step preparation of the basic Form 1040 and 1040A.

People seeking this type of help should contact the public library in their area to find out what time volunteers will be available. In addition, people can get advice on basic tax matters such as personal exemptions, the earned income credit and dependency requirements.

Because numerous tax requirements change at age 65 or retirement, many assistants specialize in tax return preparation for older citizens.

Des Moines — The Internal Revenue Service again this year is offering free income tax computation to qualifying taxpayers requesting this service.

Persons wishing the IRS to figure their tax should check their instructions to insure they qualify and then complete their return to the line which says "If you want IRS to figure your tax, stop here and sign below." Both spouses must sign a joint return, even if only one had income.

The IRS urges the use of the name and address label which was mailed to the taxpayers to avoid mistakes and speed processing.

Cecile Cooper, who is an outreach worker for C.A.S.I. is among this year's five finalists for the Diana award. The award each year goes to the Quad City woman who volunteers her time for the good of her community above and beyond the normal. The volunteer's contribution must in some way be unique, possibly by the obstacles and difficult circumstances over which she has triumphed.

The list of this year's entrants has been narrowed to five and these women will be honored at a dance at the Moline American Legion on Saturday, January 28th from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m.

The five are Cecile Cooper, Dorothy Barchman, and Juanita Schrihan all of Davenport, and Jean McCarthy and Rosemary Motto, both of Bettendorf. Money raised goes to the winner's favorite charity. Cecile Cooper is a reporter for the Bystander.

The Diana selection is an annual project for the Quad-City Council of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Sorority. Few women's organizations sponsor a more worthwhile project.

Mrs. Pearl pointed out that many older people eat inadequate diets, even though their diet needs do not lessen with age. The many complexities causing a situation like this can be explained because of too little energy, denture problems, difficulties encountered shopping, limited finances, etc.

Mrs. Pearl stated that worry and frustration play a significant role as a person reaches retirement age. She stressed that a high carbohydrate diet should be avoided. More important, an individual should remember that one needs vegetable fat rather than animal fat. Protein needs are not reduced with age. Rather than drinking less milk, more should be consumed. Bones become less solid and are more easily broken or subject to disease without a daily intake of milk. Space does not permit relating the article in its entirety, but Mrs. Pearl presented her thoughts in a most clear, concise and interesting

ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION GIVES $500,000 TO NAACP SPECIAL CONTRIBUTION FUND

NEW YORK — The Rockefeller Foundation has made a grant of $500,000 to the NAACP Special Contribution Fund for the support of the civil rights organization's Legal Department's school desegregation program and the organization's general work of the labor department.

The joint announcement of the major grant was made by Benjamin L. Hooks, executive director, and Dr. John H. Knowles, Rockefeller Foundation president. They explained that the grant is being made in four installments of $125,000 each from 1977 through 1980.

Dr. Knowles said that the foundation regards its commitment to the achievement of racial justice as "essential" to the betterment of American society as a whole. "We are proud to continue our support to the NAACP, which is very prominent among those organizations that are working toward the attainment of this goal," he said.

Clearly, the Rockefeller grant makes that foundation along with the continuing support from the Ford Foundation and Carnegie Corporation, the primary supporters of the NAACP Special Contribution Fund programs.

Fort Madison

Second Baptist Church had their regular Sunday Morning Services with the Pastor Rev. Davis, in charge, in the afternoon Rev. Davis and members went to Quincy, Ill. to Union Baptist Church to help install new officers.

Mount Zion Baptist Church, had their regular Sunday morning services with Rev. Dale Laster, in charge. Rev. Nathaniel Lea delivered the morning message - Trust in God - a very inspiring message, Sunday, Jan. 22nd.

These poems I put in the Bystander are very true experiences: Let us be Kind, the way is long and lonely. And human hearts are asking for this blessing only.

We cannot know the grief that men may borrow

We cannot see the souls storm swept by sorrow But love can shine upon the way today, tomorrow This is a wealth that has no measure

This is of Heaven and earth the highest treasure

To age and youth let gracious words be spoken

Upon the wheel of pain so many weary lives are broken

We live in vain who give no tender token

The sunset tents will soon be in the west

Too late the flowers are laid then on the quiet breast

Calvin Murphy Gets Award

HOUSTON, Texas — Calvin Murphy, the star Houston Rockets guard — who has counseled troubled teenagers off the basketball courts and organized the all-girl "Murphy's Marchers" twirling group to help young women raise their level of self-esteem — is 1978's first recipient of the Gordon's Gin Good Guy Award.

The Gordon's Gin Good Guy Award honors athletes and sports personalities who have demonstrated an awareness and sensitivity to others not as fortunate as themselves.

Calvin Murphy received a plaque emblematic of the award between halves when the Rockets played the San Antonio Spurs. Gordon also donated some $200 worth of sporting equipment to Murphy's favorite charity.

ALLEN ASHBY with a LOOK ON SPORTS

It would have to seem that Iowa State has the best basketball club in the state, regardless of how the series between the top three came out. But one of my detractors cautioned that maybe the Cyclones are playing the worst half of the league first, and will get theirs when they meet the top contenders.

Kansas certainly belongs in the top half of anybody's league and they gave the ISU boys trouble in double hand fulls. But the fellows didn't let that defeat crush them, and came back and took one on the road, so maybe they are for real. They won't win the league title, but they could have the best record for Iowa State is several years and possibly ever.

Iowa U. is still having that one hot and cold game. One just can't tell where to place them, because they are capable of knocking off a top contender one night and the next night looking as if they had never seen a basketball.

I would place them somewhere near the top of the second division with maybe a .500 conference mark. They really expected to do in Northwestern, but the Purple threw up a zone defense, and if a team can't shoot over that defense, that team is in trouble. Maybe when the Northwestern guys come to Iowa, if they do, the Hawks will get even.

And Drake. We listen to comments around town by the curbstone experts. Some say the coach has the material, but can't coach, and some say he doesn't have it. But observation and experience tell me that with the right players, Joe Blow could be a successful coach, and without them, forget it, no matter who you are.

I have to turn to baseball to drive home my point. When Casey Stengel was managing the Yankees, he was the greatest manager in the game. Then when he went to the Mets, there was no instant turn around. In fact, Casey never got them out of the cellar. And when the next manager got some players, he became smart, too.

Maybe sometime in the near future, Heavyweight champ Muhammad Ali will defend his crown against a fellow who was a rank amateur a couple of years ago. From the press releases, the Great one is fat and out of shape, and isn't willing to work hard at getting back in shape.

So it would seem that he is ripe for the big upset of the decade. The first fellow who goes in that ring and doesn't let Ali set his own pace will likely beat him.

If Norton had Ali set his own pace, fight when he wanted to, and coast whenever it suited his purpose. No wonder he lost the fight.

At home things are picking up. Roosevelt thinks they have a chance to upset Hoover when the two clubs meet again. They maybe could. But they have to look out for getting so involved in their case of Hoover that they don't let one of the other clubs get to them. Hoover seems to roll along winning both the close and one sided ones alike.

East, who I picked for second had better look out because they will have to scuffle to come in third. Tech comes up with a good win every so often. The Engineers seem to be working for another year, and next year will take some stopping. But don't play them too cheaply this year, or you may wish you hadn't.

I don't know about North, and maybe they don't either. I thought they had a chance to be in the race, but guess I was dead wrong. Haven't tried to scout around, and there may be some very good reasons for their slump. Valley was the pick of a lot of people to finish high in the thing, but they will have to get to getting if they do.

Another bit of interesting news was the story that one black hockey player was included on the NHL all star roster. A fellow named Boldevir. So far as I know, he is perhaps the only black in the league, and he better be good.

By the time you read this, Grambling's head coach, Eddie Robinson, will have made his pitch to become head coach of the Los Angeles Rams pro football team. He likely got an audience, but I think the best he could get would be an assistant job, if he does that.

Would I trade Grambling for that? Maybe, if there was a chance I could get the top spot after while.

Semester exams have done in my scores. Maybe next week.

Two members of Gateway Dancers (right) work with children in the Triple Treat program held Saturdays at Rex Mathes School. The program, sponsored jointly by the West Des Moines Recreation Department and the Junior League of Des Moines, is for kindergarten through third grade youth.

In addition to the Gateway Dancers, the Valley Mimes are scheduled. Dick Stromberg, Dean of Music at Grandview College will work with rhythm and music and Carol Taylor will teach puppetry and creative dramatics. The program continues through March 18 and the classes are full.

Construction Apprenticeship Training

Applications are now being taken for persons interested in becoming apprentices in the construction trades.

Each year most Joint Apprenticeship Committees accept applications for their apprenticeship programs. These applications are usually screened on the basis of aptitude, ability, appearance, mental and physical capability, attitude and prior work experience. The Apprenticeship Outreach Programs is funded to assist minorities and women to apply for these programs and become apprentices.

Applicants should be high school graduates or have a G.E.D. Certificate. It is helpful if you have had related training or education in metal or wood shops, mechanical drawing, blueprint reading and math. Good working habits such as punctuality, paying attention to foremen and instructors and the ability to accept orders, directions and instructions and then carry them out are a necessity.

Apprenticeship programs usually consist of a combination of on the job training under skilled supervision and related classroom instruction by competent craftsmen. The related training classes are usually conducted on Saturdays or at night. Apprentices are paid for on the job training at a beginning rate of 40% to 70% of the journeyman scale. Pay raises are usually given in six month intervals during the apprenticeship period which is from two to four years depending on the craft.

It is expected that the following crafts will accept applicants for apprenticeship this year: Asbestos Workers, Boiler Makers, Bricklayers, Carpenters, Cement Masons, Electrical Workers, Glaziers, Iron Workers, Lathers, Operating Engineers, Painters, Plasterers, Plumbers and Fitters, Roofers, and Sheet Metal Workers.

Interested persons should contact the Des Moines Apprenticeship Outreach Program, 1223 Sixth Avenue, Suite C, Des Moines, Iowa 50314; Phone Number : (515) 288-1938.

After 16 Years Labelle Breaks Up

New York, N.Y. — "Labelle just wasn't fresh anymore" explains Patti Labelle as the reason why the popular group broke up after 16 years.

Patti recalls the time prior to the break up of the trio. "We weren't working together. We weren't happy." Sarah Dash, one of the other two members in the group, remembers being unaware of the fact that the group was "about to bust open at the seams."

"I knew a tension was building but I thought we were just tired I never had a sense that we would break up." Says Nona, the third member. "Sure I knew some things were wrong, but aren't some things wrong in any job?"

Patti points out that the break up had nothing to do with the rumors that suggested the girls were homosexuals. She explains, "I know what I am, and I don't care for people sticking labels on me that aren't true. I sing about love between men and women because that's all I know and I wish people would quit saying otherwise."

Sarah was less concerned about what others were saying about the group. "People are always making assumptions about us ... we've yet to record anything that's about women loving women. If someone hears that in our work, then that's in their own head ..."

Nona admits that she needs the physical, emotional and sexual stimulation of others, "And yes, it can be either a man or a woman." She adds, "I don't differentiate between the two. I know love is possible between women ... possible and beautiful."

The break up came as shock to everyone, fans alike. After the split, the three women were forced to reassess their lives.

Nona's adjustment was difficult. "Emotionally I had my doubts. But here I am giving it my best shot. I need to write my music. I need to perform it ... I am discovering where I can go musically as Nona. I am finding out that I don't need two people to hold on to ..."

Sarah's trip on her own also proved to be trying in the early stages. "When I think that only a few months ago the very idea of going out solo panicked me, I gotta feel good."

working elsewhere.

"I have sentimental obligation to keep things going but I'm not sure it is practically feasible for me to do it," he said.

Morris agrees that inheriting a law practice is something that many young, starting attorneys often dream about. However, he admits that trying to fill the big, powerful shoes is frightening.

"Right now, I'm sort of in limbo on that — coming into an already established office. I'm not sure that a private practice is what I should do. I'm considering other options right now and this is one," he said.

Morris said another option was to work for the government as maybe a prosecutor "to get some experience." He plans to ponder the options "for the next few weeks" before making a definite decision.

Humphrey's Final Message to Black Press

"Continue to Work For Equal Opportunity"

MIAMI (NNPA) — "Continue to work to overcome the barriers to genuine freedom and equal opportunity for all people," said Senator Hubert H. Humphrey in his final message to the Black Press.

The message was dictated by the Senator to his secretary about 10 days before his death. It was to have been read here by his sister, Mrs. Frances H. Howard, before the Mid-Winter Workshop of the National Newspaper Publishers Association following the presentation to her of the NNPA Distinguished Humanitarian Award for her brother.

His serious illness prevented Mrs. Howard from attending the Workshop, and it was received instead by Ofield Dukes, a former assistant to Humphrey when he was Vice President. He read the message to hushed audience at the Omni International Hotel where the Workshop was held, January 11-14.

"Fear friends," the message began, "I remain eternally grateful for the strong bonds of friendship which have characterized our relationship over the years. I will never forget the firm friendship you have extended to me, particularly during the 1968 Presidential campaign.

"I can recall when we first set up the National Newspaper Publishers Association Governmental Affairs Committee, and how much we in government benefited from the candid discussions we had with leading black editors and publishers. I am aware Vice President Mondale has been contacted about re-establishing this Committee, and you can be assured I will do all I can to see that it becomes operational once again.

Addressed NNPA Last in '76
"Much has occurred since we were together two years ago in Philadelphia. We have lost some dear friends — friends who were very close to me personally. Cecil Newman of the Minneapolis Spokesman and Howard Woods of the St. Louis Sentinel. I pay special tribute to these two exceptional journalists whose style and ideals exemplified the conscience of America.

"You are now in your 151st year as an organization which has been the voice of the Black Press of America," Humphrey's message continued. "You have raised the cry for equal rights and human justice from coast to coast. Your organization has been in the vanguard of the civil rights movement. You are the backbone of black leadership throughout the country, and you are to be commended for your courage, diligence and high ideals in the pursuit of equality and public service.

"I want to talk to you tonight about the continuation of this great struggle for human rights and human dignity.

"We are all fully aware that the civil rights struggles of the 1950s and 1960s did not eradicate inequality and injustice from our society.

Meaning of Civil Rights
"That is why I believe the concept of the civil rights movement must be broadened to include the rights and opportunities that should be available to all disadvantaged groups in America. I know this is your goal as well.

"The struggle for civil rights is a struggle for the rights and privileges and duties of all Americans. And what do these rights include?"

"— The right to a meaningful life, free from poverty that today afflicts some 25 million Americans.

"— The right to full and equal protection under the law — an end to the double standard applied to many of those who are less privileged, where justice delayed can become justice denied.

"— The right to productive and gainful employment — for all our people, as a specific national goal toward whose achievement we will apply every possible private and public resource.

"— The right to economic, political and social opportunity where progress toward realizing one's full potential will confront no artificial barrier of discrimination based on race, creed or sex.

"— The right to a decent neighborhood.

"— The right to a life free from violence and terrorism.

"— The right to quality education at all levels, free from segregation.

"— The right to live in good health under a system that helps assure modern health care for all at the lowest possible cost.

"— The right to be free from hunger and malnutrition.

"— The right to a clean and wholesome environment.

"These rights belong to all American people. Without them there are no real civil or human rights.

New Dimensions
"The new dimensions of civil rights are to be found in the living and working conditions of our people."

Eastern Air Lines; Garth C. Reeves, Sr., Miami Times, then president of NNPA; Senator Humphrey; and the late Frank L. Stanley, Louisville Defender.

The first Annual Walter White Award was presented to Senator Hubert Horatio Humphrey for his historical contributions to civil rights at the NAACP Annual Fellowship dinner on Sunday, January 8, at the New York Hilton.

Walter White was NAACP executive secretary from 1931 until his death on March 21, 1955, when he was succeeded by Roy Wilkins. The award was presented by William H. Oliver, a member of the NAACP Board of Directors. Receiving the award for Mr. Humphrey was his sister, Mrs. Francis Howard.

Also participating in the presentation were Walter White's daughter, Jane (left), and Mrs. Margaret Bush Wilson, chairman of the NAACP Board of Directors.
