Poncho Nichols: Aspiring Tech Graduate

by Niambi D. Webster

Admire all the awards, certificates and photographs beamed a proud mother, Mrs. Pearlene Nichols, who — behind a big grin — diligently reminded her son Poncho Nichols of his scholastic and athletic achievements since grade school, with the quickness of an owl's sharp movements and a memory comparable to none. Mrs. Nichols displayed a very warm portrayal of a sincere, delightful and astonishing mother who raised two sons — proudly — but seeks no pay backs, embellished mother wit!

Modesty isn't the easiest manner to hide especially when your Poncho Nichols and your not born with a silver spoon stuck in your mouth, but with a mother and Creator who taught you endurance, will power, self-determination and above all things faith.

Poncho began his interest in serving others and setting examples for those who followed him at a very early age. His concern grew when he became involved with Cub Scouts, Boys Scouts Troupe 184 and Eagle Scouts. In 1973 he was one of the recipients of the God & Country Award, he was also chosen Honor Scout of the Month and he has prided himself by earning 51 merit badges — all Troups sponsored by Salvation Army Temple Corps.

While in elementary school he developed an interest in music and consequently took viola and guitar lessons. He continued his joy for music throughout his high school years and he also learned to play the tuba and tenor saxophone. He received solo festival ribbons in Jr. High.

He played Little League football and baseball. He attended Irving Jr. High School, in addition to playing junior basketball, he wrestled and was undefeated in the City Wrestling Tournament 1974-75.

During junior high he was an honor roll student 7 out of nine times.

Poncho expressed his strong belief in God, and through His power he has been blessed. He attends Kyles A.M.E. Zion Church, where he has sung in the Junior Choir and served on the Junior Usherboard. Poncho attended Tech High School, as did his brother eight years ago, Danny (Cochise) Nichols. His desire to play football was not stifled because he wasn't huge, but as Poncho confirms, "I'm solid!" and big certainly does not spell bad! As an incumbent sophomore, Poncho played and lettered in Varsity Football. He received a Merit Award for his contribution. Then he went to Portland, Oregon, where his brother and his family lives, and went to Benson Poly Technical High School and lettered one year in wrestling.

Then in his junior and senior year, he returned to Des Moines to play football for Tech and was on the all Metro Honorable Mention in 1976-77, and was chosen as the Defensive Captain and Team Captain.

He also, lettered in Track in his junior and senior year at Tech.

In his junior year at Tech he enrolled in the Jr. ROTC, he performed on Blackman's Rifle Drill team; he spent a week in Quantico, Virginia for Marine Corps basic training school in April of 1977.

As I interviewed Poncho his mind reverted back and forth to preparations for the State of the Union Address to the Tech High Senior graduating class. Poncho was elected Class President and reigned over Senior Activities, by assisting in preparation and the actual implementation of programs.

Poncho became heavily involved in Student Government in his senior year and he was elected Student Council Home Room representative, he served as Student Council Vice President and was a delegate on the Inner City Student Council.

He was chosen Athlete of the issue in the "The

More People Eligible For Food Stamps

You may be eligible for additional food stamps as the result of the recent court decision in Aiken v. Obledo regarding emergency issuance of food stamps.

For several years, food stamp offices have been allowed to issue food stamps on an emergency basis — without first requiring full proof of need for stamps — to households with little or no income (usually less than $90 per month).

However, before food stamp offices would issue these stamps, they did have to either contact a person who was not a member of the household in order to get some confirmation of the household's need for stamps or have the household itself provide proof of its need. And no household was allowed to receive these emergency stamps more than once every six months.

Now a Federal court has ruled that it was not legal to limit a household to emergency stamps only once every six months or to require confirmation of the household's need before the emergency stamps could be issued.

So, if you applied for

IEWS and REVIEWS by Allen Ashby

HOW MUCH LONGER WILL THEY BE THERE?

I see people seem to be doing their grocery shopping just about anywhere but the Hinkey Dinkey Store on Nineteenth and Carpenter. You can tell it if you are a regular Hinkey Dinkey customer because there just isn't the volume of business that there once was. I got curious and began to ask people why this was so and got some answers.

Lots of folks seem to think that meats that haven't been sold in the other stores are sent over to this one. The vegetables in this store are about on a par with the other ones, but the meats just don't seem to be like that, or at least the customers say.

This has been denied by the management several times, but the rumor just will not die.

Some say that the checkout girls, especially the older ones, seem too arrogant and too inconsiderate of the people, especially the black ones. Personally I have good rapport with everybody in the place from the managers to the sackers. I would like to think that the public must share some of the blame too.

Sometimes people come into the place and are already upset about something and are ready to take it out on the store personell. This doesn't absolve the store at all.

Another reason given for avoiding the place is the presence of too many police. I think this is the only supermarket that I know of that has a uniformed policeman on duty day and night.

People resent this and some are probably imagining things when they say the fellow peeks at them if they come into the store and go into some place like the beer section or such.

Two guys told me that they had driven up to the place and seen two squad cars and several policemen and figured that there was trouble or that there was going to be, and so they kept on to another place.

Now, the presence of two squad cars is a regular happening at least twice a week and sometimes oftener. And nothing has happened to bring them there.

But if the store should close, where will people go who depend on it because they can't get around to go to outlying stores? Several times the managers have thought about closing, but changed their minds I don't think the Hinkey Dinkey people are running a store just to accommodate people who don't have cars, so I suggest that people who can had better begin to go into the store more often or the blow will fall sooner or later.

In fact it probably may no matter what we do.

CONVERSATION WITH A WHITE POLICE OFFICER

Look out world its finally happened. After nine years of hostility between the Police Department and myself, after numerous beatings, acts of harrasment and watching the police department commit many crimes against Blacks, other minorities, and poor whites, I have finally met one police officer that is a decent human being. I'm not saying that there aren't more I just haven't met any.

A number of community residents, including two of my closest partners had been telling me for quite some time that Officer Thomas Van Baale or Tom as he is called by community residents "is a cool dude". I must admit I was impressed by his sincerity even if at times his attitude was paternalistic towards "the Blacks".

We met at four o'clock Wednesday morning in front of my house. I was sitting in my hot-rod convertible contemplating an upcoming police relations meeting sponsored by the Urban Community Broadcasting Company where I'm employed. He drove past me, did a u-turn and drove up facing me. He said he knew my car and thought someone was tampering with it.

We cautiously entered a discussion about the problem of police - community relations. We discussed the stereotyping of police officers, the stereotyping of Blacks, why there were so few Black officers, the role of Black officers, the role of concerned white officers and last but not least we discussed the anti-Kalonji mania that pervades the police department.

It is thought by some that I'm out to get police officers. I had to make it very clear that I will not start trouble, but by the same token I will not run from trouble. If I see the police getting out of line I will move to address their mis-conduct. I also made it clear that I have changed very little from my days as a Black Panther. The only difference is that I'm older, wiser, and more willing to judge police officers on their own merit. It must be understood that if the police revert to the tactics of "69" that myself and numerous others will also revert to the tactics of "69".

All in all it was a very productive discussion. I am pleased that I've met an officer that is not a pig, and is concerned about the residents of the Model Cities area. But before we take to the streets and march in jubilation we must understand that Tom is only one man and we still have an entire institution, of which Tom is a part that is racist in nature and structure, and operates on the whole contrary to the best interest of Blacks and other minorities.

Tom may indeed be a "cool dude" but it will take more than one "cool dude" to change a police department that discriminates against hiring minorities, pressures Blacks off the force, and operates without a basic, humane understanding of this social system which undereducates, underemploys and degrades Blacks by creating a situation where individuals are forced to commit crimes.

NEW DAY BEGUN

Our First Racial Problem

The excerpted comments from the New York Daily News story about the feelings of white girls at the Eisenhower Middle School in Roxbury, NJ, toward a Korean classmate who ran away because of racial taunts went like this:

"Chink," Ruth said casually yesterday morning as she and the two other 13-year-olds shared a Salem cigarette behind a garage a few blocks from the school. "It's like 'gook.' It's just a word."

"My mother says we shouldn't have said that to Youn Ja," Pauline said as she passed the cigarette to Karen. "She says they're clean people." Six years ago, Pauline's family lived in a two-family house on East 45th Street, in East Flatbush.

Pauline remembers that when the first black family moved onto the block, her mother told her to walk on the opposite side of the street. "Don't see many niggers here," Pauline said yesterday. "We got two, maybe three. And two of them are light skinned."

"My mother says it's a good experience for me to go to school with black kids," Karen said. "But she doesn't want too many. That's why we left the Bronx. Too many. The whole school was going black."

For blacks who have been spat upon, beaten, jerrred and otherwise violently abused, as they desegregated public schools in the north (remember Boston?) and the south (also Little Rock?), the experience that prompted 14-year-old Youn Ja Canfield to run away from home in April was mild by comparison. The psychological injury, however, was just as severe.

Eisenhower's principal Robert Adams referred to the incident as "our first racial problem." In view of the deep-seated racial feelings that Youn Ja's classmates revealed, however, Mr. Adams seemed more to have been saying "Our first racial problem that came to national attention."

Youn Ja, taunted by the girls chanting "chinky chink," the ultimate in a continuing series of attacks, ran away from home in desperation and holed up in a cheap hotel in New York's sleazy Times Square for three days. In view of the tragedy that has befallen other young runaways who sought refuge in the area, it was a miracle that she survived. With her savings depleted, and reading about the anxiety of her parents in newspapers, she telephoned home and was joyously welcomed back.

No doubt, her classmates learned a valuable lesson about racial hatred. The files of the NAACP are filled with cases like Youn Ja's — the difference being that the young black victims stoically tolerated the abuses in the hope of making America a better place for everyone to live.

Those predominantly white schools where racial passions are just as intense, and even more so, within the hearts of young Americans, should learn a lesson from Eisenhower's experience.

Human Rights Hearing

The Des Moines Human Rights Commission will hold a public hearing on the case of James Washington vs. the City of Des Moines.

Mr. Washington originally filed a case of discrimination against the City of Des Moines citing discrimination in the areas of race and disability.

The Commission found "Probable Cause" to support his allegation of discrimination in the area of disability. It found "No Probable Cause" as to his allegation of race discrimination.

The Commission was unable to conciliate the matter and voted to proceed to a public hearing.

The hearing will be held in the City Council Chambers, City Hall, East First and Locust Streets at 9:00 a.m. on Wednesday, May 31, 1978. Representing the Human Rights Commission will be Attorney Anna Shinkle, and representing the City of Des Moines will be Mr. Gene Olson.

The meeting is open to the public.

Learning Abilities of School Children In Inner Cities Slowed by Pollution

By Sherman Briscoe
NNPA Executive Director

SAN FRANCISCO — School children in inner cities, where most minorities reside, may become slow learners because of air and noise pollution surrounding them.

That is the view expressed here last week by U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) officials and other speakers during a two-day Western workshop on "The Environmental Impact of Pollution on Minorities."

The workshop, the first of four to be sponsored by the National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) under a grant from EPA, was designed to make minority press personnel more aware of their common concerns with pollution, and indicate what must be done to reduce or eliminate pollution in their communities.

These workshops will attempt to point out that minorities especially suffer most from the effects of pollution, and they must organize and join environmentalists in solving these problems. The other three regional workshops will be held later this year in Atlanta, Chicago, and New York City.

The 30 publishers, editors and reporters from western Black, Chinese, Hispanic, Japanese, and Native American newspapers and magazines were told that the air pollution problem is caused mainly by heavy commuter automobile traffic and industrial emissions.

"This concentration of carbon monoxide," said John Tucker, an environmental engineer with the Denver EPA office, "enters the blood stream of inner city residents. It is especially harmful to youngsters and could seriously slow the learning abilities of school children," he added.

Dr. Richard Procunier, chief of EPA's Noise Control Program in its San Francisco region, pointed out that noise pollution — which is also concentrated in the inner city — can cause extreme reactions such as retarded learning of school children, moodiness, argumentativeness, and high blood pressure among the total inner city populations.

Paul Wyche, Senior Minority Affairs Coordinator in EPA's Office of Public Awareness in Washington, D.C. told the group that though "EPA has been a white middle-class agency that has not been as responsive to the needs of minorities as we should have been in the past... we are committed to changing that... But you, the press had your constituents need to hold our feet to the fire. I believe we will be responsive," he said.

Not only must EPA be made responsive, state and local agencies must be challenged as well, asserted Paul Cobb, executive director of Oakland Citizen's Committee for Urban Renewal and president of Blacks for Employment and Environmental Force.

Cobb's group is currently involved in a California state project to "turn Oakland into an urban forest" by planting thousands of trees in vacant lots and along city streets. "The trees will reduce pollution and make the city a healthier place for everyone... It will provide jobs for young people and increase their awareness of, and responsibility for, their environment."

"By 1985 there will be over 100 new environmental job categories created with job titles we have never heard of," Cobb said, and we need to make sure our young people are aware of this and receive the training in school that they will need to get those jobs.

In closing I say again that your compassion, help and sympathy would be gravely and very much appreciated. Thank You.

Sincerely

A FORGOTTEN HERO

Edna Griffin

The Ziegfeld Follies TV drama last Sunday night illustrates rather well my point about Bret Williams. True enough, the story was about the famous producer, Florenz Ziegfeld. Failure to even mention the important role of our Forgotten Hero, Bert Williams, in the two million dollar TV version is one more example of our history falling through the cracks of time, technology, and circumstances. Perhaps that's why the week ahead was looking like a down hill rainy disaster for me. So bad, I find myself searching for more pleasant memories and better times.

I notice - take time to look at elementary school patrols I've been passing three times a week for almost a whole school year. Childhood memories of unsmiling, business-like adults remind me that's what I must look like to the little people across the street.

My thoughts drift to a petite young Nebraskan who identified herself to me in Rocky Flats, Colorado. Mary shared the surprising news her father is a candidate for the Nebraska legislature. There are two Iowans who would vote for Merle Hansen if only it were legal. He speaks up when and where it counts. Rocky Flats brings to mind the rare pleasure of visiting with young students on our way home to Iowa. I very much miss opportunities to 'rap' with the younger set of eighteen to twenty-five, give or take a year.

Coffee after a swimming class provides opportunities to visit with mothers of children less than high school age. Three tickets for overtime parking in this same week really cured my case of the blues.

The week is ending so much better than it began. I heard about Mark Williams, a Roosevelt senior, jumping 6'6" in a recent competitive meet. Listening and looking at his proud father caused the sun to shine.

Today I received a call bringing to my attention a bit of news that sent me in search of Leroy Owens, Jr. a graduating senior at Tech High. We sat and talked on the front porch of his home on 17th Street.

Leroy carefully identified himself as Leroy Owens, Jr. and shared with me a Tuesday of a lifetime, May 23, 1978.

This is the story of a young man receiving five honors and recognitions for four years of steady trying. Four years of part time work during the school year and full time each summer. The next time my mouth flies open to say, "Young people today —", may my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth.

Leroy received a plaque and a Register and Tribune scholarship of $250.00 to be applied on tuition of any school of Journalism of his choice. He has chosen to study at Iowa State University, Ames, Ia.

Leroy shared with me that he graduates in the top 15% of a class of 326. Leroy will be one of forty wearing the honor cord Wednesday night at commencement exercises. On the same wonderful Tuesday, the Iowa State Bar Association presented an American Citizenship Award to him which includes a certificate and pin.

It is my understanding the Superintendent's Award is the most prestigious in the Des Moines Public School System. This award is presented in each core area of study.

Leroy served a one year internship at WHO and explained he was one of two students to receive the Superintendent's Award in his core area communications. On that same occasion, classmates gave, as a token of their affection, a special plaque in appreciation of Leroy's production of a fundraising "Gong Show" for the class.

It became clear to me during our visit that Leroy is dependable and loyal to his friends and classmates. If I included the names of all who received awards, my Folks and Strokes would cover a half-page. Their names and pictures have or will appear in the news section of The New Iowa Bystander.

Congratulations and good fortune, Leroy. Thank you for our visit. It's been a long time since I sat on the front porch with a young man.

"HOLY GHOST TEMPLE" CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

Bishop O. J. Johnson

Bishop O. J. Johnson, Sr., who six years ago, absented himself from the parent body, of the Church of God in Christ to establish a corporate body on his own has now returned to the parent and he and his church has been refellowshipped into that church of which he has been a part for many years.

Bishop Johnson a theologian, scholar preacher and teacher — in his own right entertained the idea that as leader of his own corporate body, he could succeed — and he almost did, but not quite.

The reason, lack of workers that were willing to launch out on the Missionary Field. Oh, he had plenty of workers alright — but everyone seemed to be content to just sit, and tell the story. So the Bishop decided — what's the use.

I might as well come on in. So about a month ago the Bishop contacted Bishop Bassett of the parent body of the Church of God in Christ and told him his story — they held a business meeting and Bishop Johnson and his entire church were reinstated and given the right hand of Fellowship so the church marches on.

THE MISSION AND PURPOSE OF THE CHURCH

by
Rev. Lewis E. Grady, Jr., B.S., M. Div., Pastor of
St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church, 1201
Day Street, Des Moines, Iowa.

The Church has always played a vital role in the black community. For years the black church has been a beacon of light for the socially and economically oppressed.

The African Methodist Episcopal Church was founded in 1787. The Black people belonging to the Methodist Society of Philadelphia convened together in order to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from the unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of worship, and even pulled them off their knees while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seats.

For these and other acts of unchristian conduct, they considered it their duty to devise a plan in order to build a house of their own in which they could worship God under their own vine and fig tree.

Each local Church of the African Methodist Episcopal Church shall be engaged in carrying out the spirit of the original Free African Society and out of which the A.M.E. church evolved, that is, to seek out and save the lost and serve the needy through a continuing program of: (1) preaching the gospel, (2) feeding the hungry, (3) clothing the naked, (4) housing the homeless, (5) cheering the fallen, (6) providing jobs for the jobless, (7) administering to the needs of those in prisons, hospitals, nursing homes, asylums and mental institutions, senior citizen's homes, caring for the sick, the shut-ins, the mentally and socially disturbed, and (8) encouraging thrift and economic advancement.

The Church should focus its attention beyond the walls of the local institution. It should constantly reach out in a spirit of love, empathy and compassion for the wretch of the earth. The church should not be alienated from the problems of the world. I sincerely believe that God speaks to the world through the church.

Many of the failures of our community are the results of our attitude toward the church. The church is an altruistic institution, but many of us have made it very ego-centric. Our motto: God our Father, Christ our Redeemer, Man our Brother, could truly be the key to Universal peace.

ALLEN ASHBY with a LOOK ON SPORTS

One of the pleasant things about writing this bunch of drivel is that once in a while some fellow comes up to me and says, "I was there."

That happened last week. I had written about the late Jack Johnson, and a fellow asked me if I had written that. "Now, what in the hell have I done?" I thought. I answered yes, and he told me that he had used to hang around that gym that I was talking about when he was a boy. Said that Johnson used to see them peeking over top windows and throw things at them. He told me just where the place was. I wasn't sure because that wasn't exactly yesterday when I had seen the gym.

We had quite a conversation during a bowling match and it turned out that he had known a friend of mine, Chet Brewer who he said was past his prime when he had known the guy.

But it reminds one that it really is a small world and that one never knows when events and times will catch up with one.

I was glad to see Leon Spinks beat the drug rap, and I was wrong because I said the news would be tucked away on an inside page. That makes me a bit more inclined to believe fellows who say they know the fellow.

They had said that he didn't use drugs in any form, and what a blow that would have been to them. Don't know why there was such a thorough search of Spinks and his car unless there had been some word passed around that he was into drugs.

But then it seems that most celebrities are given a good going over whenever they are stopped by the police. Maybe the thought of busting this big fellow makes them do it.

Usually it means a news story and names in the paper. If the police are wrong, they apologize and that is that. Lots of times the cops are right and the one they stop is guilty of messing with the stuff, and sometimes they are wrong.

Anyhow, I am glad Spinks got out of that one. However, he still has to face driving charges. Now, if he could appear in court with a valid driver's license, my hat will go off to him.

People are asking me when Arthur Ash is going to play again as if I had a pipeline to his actions. I know only what I read in the papers, and we heard that he plans to try to get ready for Wimbledon.

But the man is crowding 35 if he isn't already three, and hasn't played much in at least two years. So he shouldn't make many waves in that big fast field. Be nice if he could, but don't bet on it.

Lots of things happened over the weekend. The Metro track meet was run off, and Tech put together back to back titles, a first for anybody.

Alonzo Moore established himself as one of the best hurdlers if not the best and you have to hand it to the Engineers relay teams, because they really hung in there.

And while this was going on, Roosevelt's Mark Williams made himself look like one of the favorites for the state high jump crown. The fellow set a new Metro record, breaking the one he shared with another jumper.

Maybe we ought to see what happens at the state meet. With Central Davenport, the Waterloo schools and the bunch from Cedar Rapids, there just might be some fireworks.

Iowa U had said they thought they could finish around third place in the Big Ten tennis meet and they did just that.

Mark Morrow finished the year with a winning record, so maybe he will get into some meets around here this summer. He has a leg on our Hilltop singles trophy and one on our doubles trophies. Both of these could go this year.

Ron Liesrowitz has two legs on the singles mug and is spyching himself up to retire it this year.

Arden Stokstad and Greg Russel have two legs on the doubles trophies and would like to take them home.

Carter Award From Black Group

Washington — President Carter for the President Carter has received the coveted Equal Employment Opportunity Award from the National Association of Black Women Attorneys.

The award was announced during the association's 5th annual convention in Washington.

White House senior aide Bunny Mitchell accepted the award on behalf of the President at a convention banquet.

It was formally presented by Mrs. Wilhelmania Rolark, association president. The award honored

President Carter for the "appointments of black women attorneys in your administration."

President Carter has been committed to the appointment of qualified black women in government positions.

Mrs. Rolark said the President's achievements in appointment of black women to government positions should not be overshadowed by polls which seem to indicate a decline in the President's popularity.

She also expressed support for the President's recent statements concerning the responsibilities of lawyers in America to provide service to less privileged citizens.

HELP AS I SEE IT

You don't have to be at my door for me to know that you are my FRIEND ... for I know if troubles come, you'll be there. You have pained when I pained because being as sensitive as you are, there's no other way. Sometimes I talk ... talk ... talk to ease my frustrated state. You listen ... listen ... listen until all pain is gone. In whatever situation I involve myself, you want to know WHY ... WHEN ... WHERE ... GOOD... BAD, and only a FRIEND would care. You become totally committed. Mobility becomes unbearable at different points, but, you seem to possess the ability to instill the extra ounce of strength I didn't know I had. The problems of day to day living can be very tedious but a FRIEND MAKES IT LESS STRENUOUS. Thru my FRIEND, I have learned to "cope" ... remembering my FRIEND is uncaring to whatever others may think or say concerning me. In reality, what else matters? Thru life a thousand associates. How many real FRIENDS?

THINK

Without sleepless nights
Without anxiety,

Your college roommate in Wichita.
Your sister-in-law in Kansas City.
Your girl friend in Chicago.

A 5-minute long distance call can make any of these wonderful people smile for just $1.50 or less. It costs so little to call anyone in the 48 states when you dial direct without operator assistance after 5 PM weekdays. And long distance is even less on weekends. So go ahead. Smile America, make someone happy today—by long distance.

He was also chosen by the Downtown Kiwanis Club as the "Kiwanian of the Month" in January 1977.

He was also chosen by Tech Student Body as the Homecoming King, "Mr. Engineer" at the peak of the football season in 1977.

We get to the point where words cannot describe an individual, especially one whom forever stives and is willing to take time to learn and give. While Poncho was in Portland, Oregon, still a lad of his youth, he organized and coached a Little League Baseball team.

Poncho will attend Central College in Pella. He was an upward bound student in 77 and enjoyed the learning experiences, improved his reading and study skills and was afforded the opportunity to take college courses. This gave him an idea whether or not he would benefit from a college education, and he triumphed with his decision.

He participated in AAU and intramural Upwardbound track meets, wrestling and the upward bound Olympics. He will attend Central this summer as a Bridge student in the Upward Bound Program. He plans to go out for track, football and wrestling. He wants to obtain playing experience and eventually transfer to a major college and eventually play pro ball. He has the skills, knowledge and determination to succeed.

At Central he plans to major in History and Western Civilization. His future at this point and he confirms that he shall never lose his desire to teach for he has already laid the foundation." My three main goals at this stage of my life are: to complete my college education, play pro football and settle somewhere in a community in which I can serve and raise a family. My church activities have varied, but I will definitely remain active in the church," explains Poncho.

"Memories Light the corners of my mind..." Poncho has the fondest memories that should be admired and respected by all who are fortunate to make his acquaintance.

Poncho Nichols was active in wrestling and football in high school.

Bubbling Brown Sugars

ISN'T SHE LOVELY. Bonnet and daisies, ruffles and ribbons adorn the natural loveliness of five year old Torri Langford as she positions herself for her tap performance to the tune of "Helena Polka." REGARDING YOUR RECITAL A DRESS REHEARSAL FOR LIFE

As you smiled so gloriously, gleaming,
May life continue to be a pleasantry for you.
As you stood before the crowd straight, outright,
May you face the world with the same prominent posture.
As you stepped with precision, assuredness,
May you meet life's challenge with an equal element of confidence.
As you paraded so proudly, prestigiously,
May you pass through the shadows of life with those same gallant strides.
As outstanding as you were that night,
May you continue to be as radiant among the many.
As the tears of joy flowed down my face,
May you continue to fill me with streams of elation.
As when I first met you,
May you someday understand the inspiration that you are to me.

GONNA BE GOOD, TOO. Four year old, Mali Reed smiles sweetly as the camera captures that memorable moment, her debut in "Stars of Tomorrow." Cherubically, Miss Reed "toed" her way across stage before the enthusiastic crowd at Veteran's Memorial Auditorium where the recital was held on May 5, 1978. Miss Reed is the daughter of George and Kimberly Reed.

HIGH SCHOOL DANCE. Sixth grader, Yolanda Elliston briefly poses before the camera after her dynamic performance to the recent rock hit, "High School Dance." May 5, 1978 marked her debut in the "Stars of Tomorrow" dance recital held at Veteran's Memorial Auditorium. Presently, Miss Elliston is a Betty Hill jazz dance student, although her rhythmic career began when she was a three-year-old lead mascot for the Elk's Drum and Bugle Corps. She is the daughter of Gary and Dianne Elliston.

FANCY DANCER. With effervescence, four year old Ayana Michelle Williams poses prior to her tap performance to the rhythmic beat of "What Did The Blue Jay Say." With dazzling dignity, Miss Williams "shuffled and stepped" across stage to mark her second appearance in the "Stars of Tomorrow" Recital. She is the daughter of Michael and Bobbretta Williams of Des Moines.

GONNA BE GOOD. Standing in first position, four year old, Delaney Dixon, patiently pauses before the eye of the camera. Miss Dixon performed an agelic ballet to the melody, "Gonna Be Good."
