Judge Glanton—Balancing The Scales Of Justice

Luther T. Glanton

One of the last vestiges of racism and one of the most insidious in America is prejudice against people of color in the criminal justice system. The Judiciary has many times been accused of handing out various and inaccurate brands of "justice" to Blacks.

Because of the few numbers of judges from minority groups, city, district or federal level, when we come across one, particularly as well-known, oft-quoted, controversial and outspoken as Judge Luther T. Glanton, Jr., we flock to such a man for help, opinions and simply to draw from his wealth of knowledge of the law and human nature. My husband and I thoroughly enjoyed and learned a great deal from the interview given to me at the Judge's home last week (also gained a few pounds from his lovely wife, fellow lawyer, Mrs. Willie Stevenson Glanton's scrumptious dinner, I fear).

The Judge enlightened me with so many concepts and revelations I felt this interview would be a particularly enjoyable one to my readers.

As to his roots, Judge Glanton told me he originally hailed from a small town 30 miles east of Nashville called Murfreesboro. He graduated from Tennessee State University in Nashville and received his law degree from Drake here in Des Moines. He spent his entire young life in Tennessee and only came to Iowa in 1939 to attend law school — then of course found himself the only black student here.

I asked the Judge how he became interested in the law. "My major advisor at Tenn. state was a Drake Alumnus", he reminisced. "I was in debate in college and my advisor felt I would do well in law and INSISTED I come to Drake — which is an excellent law school for the practicing lawyer." He laughed when he told me, "I only had $35 when I got here so the Dean had to let me in... Glanton later studied at the Sorbonne for six months in the city of lights, Paris in 1943.

Speaking of travel, I remembered a time the Judge spoke at Irving when I was attending that Junior high and told us about a trip to South Africa for the State Department with Mrs. Glanton. He lamented, that in Johannesburg, "... they wouldn't even let us off the airplane". When I queried about the fate of the blacks in South Africa, the Judge seemed hopeful.

"They're going to have to ease up because of world pressure — in a few years South Africa will be the place for the Black." Glanton was similarly optimistic for blacks in America's South when he told me about the unusually high number of blacks on supreme court benches in the New South.

Who was this forementioned advisor who had possibly changed the judge's life? "Merrill Epps was his name," Glanton smiled, and he often told me ... 'the man who makes no mistakes does nothing — too many loses his job'. Richard Nixon maybe? Where did he meet his sweet and lovely wife, Willie? "In 1948 in D.C. while attending an NAACP conference I met her (long story

City Recognized For Citizen Government Participation

The City of Des Moines has been selected as one of 31 communities across the country that have developed exemplary methods for making citizens part of governmental decision making. According to a report prepared for the U.S. Office of Housing & communities employ "processes that are noteworthy in part or in whole ... which other communities may wish to emulate" in carrying out their Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program.

Urban Development (HUD), the 31

Each year HUD allocates CDBG funds to communities for the rebuilding of urban areas and to preserve and revitalize urban neighborhoods. This year Des Moines received 5.4 million dollars in Block Grant funds.

Des Moines has been receiving CDBG funds since 1975 and the roots of its citizen participation process are in the City's six "Prime Service Areas." Each of these areas in Des Moines has an elected citizen board which is responsible for defining needs in the neighborhood and for making recommendations to the Central Advisory Board and the City Council about how federal dollars should be spent in Des Moines neighborhoods.

The study completes a year long analysis by a

Washington D.C. consulting firm of 105 communities receiving Block Grant funds. Descriptions of the Des Moines Citizen Participation Process as well as the other 30 communities are contained in a catalogue of "Citizen Participation in Community Development", published by the U.S.

Government Printing Office. Reference copies will be available for review from the City's Office of Neighborhood Development.

Brody Jr. High Students See "The Wiz"

by Connee L. Bowman

Last week a group of Brody Jr. High School students attended a special morning showing of the movie, "The Wiz" at the Plaza Theater at Merle Hay Mall. This was made possible by arrangements with the management and the title I office of the Des Moines Public Schools.

I had the experience of accompanying my class and Pat Matthews, community consultant for the Drake Teacher Corps Council also attended. (Pat and I have associated together since I have participated on the Community Council for the Teacher Corps as a representative at-large). She was certainly welcome as the only other adult with a group of 35 students. Several hundred other students from the Des Moines schools were present.

This was a very interesting experience for me because I had taken the time before Christmas to acquaint my class with some of the music and characters of this Black version of the "Wizard of Oz". I have a special section of a bulletin board devoted to the characters, "the tin man" (played by Nipsy Russell) "the lion", (played by George Ross) and "the scarecrow" (played by Michael Jackson).

We spent some time listening to the songs and students developed an intense interest in "The Wiz" long before we realized that it would be possible for us to enjoy the movie as a group. It happens that I had seen the movie earlier this fall in Minneapolis. Previously I saw stage versions of "The Wiz" in San Francisco and Minneapolis. So my enthusiasm was well established.

In case you don't know, "The Wiz" stars Diana Ross, as Dorothy. Richard Pryor plays "The Wiz" and Lena Horne plays Glinda. Many other outstanding Black performers have roles as dancers or musicians as well as actors in this musical.

Some critics have panned "The Wiz". Most acclaim it an eye-catching feat of musical-fantasy with exciting costuming and technical innovations. The cast includes dozens of musicians on violins, brass, woodwinds and keyboard as well as percussion, guitar, banjo and polyphonic synthesizer.

So for anyone who sees it there is an extremely broad musical experience. There is a children's choir of over two dozen voices as well as an adult choir of more than three dozen singers. I felt that it was a wonderful opportunity for Black students to see an essential Black The Wiz

IEWS and REVIEWS by Allen Ashby

The Iowa State Legislature opens its show again. We wonder what they will do that will affect most of us. For a certainty some taxes are going up, such as gasoline and cigarettes. What about our social programs? Will they be cut back under the guise of fighting inflation. Nobody expects them to do much more than hold their own.

I don't think there will be anything that will have much impact on the black population any more than it does on the rest of the people. In looking over the legislators, I didn't see one black face. Al Garrison of Waterloo might have made it back if he had run again, but he might have had a tough fight. Our man, Bill Richardson, was in trouble from the start.

But if anything should come out of this session that will leave its mark on blacks, please don't come yelling and screaming. I don't suppose more than twenty percent of all the black voters in the state went to the polls. Maybe it was less than that here in Des Moines.

If you listen to the people who yell on street corners, they try so hard to wake people up, but as you talk to the blacks, they couldn't care less about what the people in the Statehouse do. A lot of them don't bother to read the papers when the legislature is in session.

Why? I don't know. I know that there have been times when I got out and dragged voters to register and then as a follow-up, asked them if they voted. Some lied and said yes, others had a variety of excuses. Forgot all about it, had to work. I am registered now, I'll do it next time. And so it goes. And so it goes.

I just wonder if that is a sample of what we will see in 1980 during the presidential campaign. If that had happened in 1976, Gerald Ford would still be President. As it was, probably less than thirty percent of the blacks voted, and unless President Carter changes his mind about cutting back on programs designed to help black unemployed, thirty percent probably won't bother to go to the polls in 1980. They are turned off by the constant talk about creating some unemployment. If it is unemployment they want, all they have to do is go to the ghettos and look at the thousands of black teenagers who have dropped out of school and who have given up looking for a job. And if the unemployment rate climbs much more, so will the figures in the black column.

So the blacks reason, why bother to vote? We are going to get in the neck any way we turn. As I see it, Mr. Carter is working to build a coalition of conservatives and moderates to offset the loss of the black vote he is sure to have in his next race. Then he could maybe do as the Republicans do. The black vote didn't go for me, so I don't owe them a thing, 1952, here we come.

With all of this reverse discrimination, lack of proof of intent to segregate and the rights of other people to say and do what they want to, because we can things have just begun to heat up. And there is a new dimension. Those blacks in the top echelon who have moved out of the ghettos and now don't relate to the little fellows except at election time. So we won't be as united as we were in the sixties and such. What will happen? I wish I knew.

Thoughts and Comments

By James B. Morris III

I must confess to you that this week I have not been stimulated sufficiently by any one issue to try to write a column around. I am an individual who tries to keep informed of happenings on the local, state, and national levels by means of the broadcast and printed media, so my failure to find a particularly interesting issue is especially maddening.

My attention has, however, been focused upon the state of the American economy and its ramification on Iowans by a copyrighted edition of the Iowa Poll included in this week's Des Moines Sunday Register. Although not confined to the special position of blacks in the economy, that section, along with information gained from other sources, will provide the backdrop for my discussion. More specifically, I think that a discussion of current attitudes on the tax revolt and their impact upon the thinking of Iowans.

Proposition 13, a proposed state constitutional amendment which appeared on the ballot in California last spring, has not, as far as I can tell, had more than a minimal effect upon state and local government programs. Although some discontent emerged after the immediate ramifications of the amendment were felt, most of the programs which economists and politicians had warned would be drastically cut back or eliminated are still in operation.

Looking at the situation from almost a year later, we can see that discontent which led to the localized rebellion against higher taxes in California has become a national issue aimed not only at tax reduction, but also against unbalanced budgets and unchecked spending. In California, where residents rebelled at the idea of raising taxes at a time when the state was running a five billion dollar budget surplus, the issue was clearcut. In other states, like Iowa, the issue is less defined but the impulse is clearly present.

As taxes continue to rise, Americans, as polls have shown, will continue to have less faith in government and the way its money is spent. Most polls have indicated that a majority of these questioned favored government services as they are presently constituted, with the possible exception of welfare. Governments on all levels, it appears, will have to learn to live on less, regardless of the discomfort. California was in a good position to make a painless adjustment to the radical new limitations, but that is not true of all governmental units that have felt the pressure.

Of the states that have followed the lead set by Proposition 13, most have chosen a much more moderate measure, and those who have adopted measures as stringent as those in California, the primary impetus was spending rather than tax reduction. And the Kemp-Roth bill in Congress, which sought a 1/3 cut in federal income taxes, was not broadly supported and did not make the trip to the President's desk. In Iowa, which has not yet felt the need for a tax reduction or spending limitation measure, most people would be willing to pay increased state taxes to provide more money for a few programs, but not for many others.

Speakin' Out

Black Exodus: The continuing flight of Des Moines Black Youth

Oh sorrow of sorrows, how long will my people be forced to suffer ... I had a fitful night of sleep last night as I tossed and turned pondering the answer to this question. How long, Oh Lord, how long?

For years I have felt that Afro-Americans could write a holy book based upon our experiences here in America. With the mass persecution of our forefathers during slavery and the current selective genocide being carried out against our genuine leaders (witness Malcom X, Martin L. King, Fred Hampton, George Jackson), and our continued oppression we have quite a story to tell.

I remember as a Black Panther we studied Mao's principle of protracted struggle. Why were we studying Mao instead of our own history? Why, hell, after 400 years of protracted struggle against our oppressor we could teach Mao some things!

Such a holy book of our struggle would have to include a chapter on Des Moines and Iowa. The very fact that we are represented fifteen times our population percentage in the state in the prisons alone warrants this.

As you may recall, I appeared on the Mary Brubaker Show. One statement I made caused quite a stir. That was that Blacks are forced to flee Des Moines, and most of the successful Blacks are imported. My appearance on the Mary Brubaker Show prompted the Des Moines Tribune to do a feature story on me.

In last night's Tribune the same reporter that is doing a story on me wrote one about the street gang called the Cleatons. He did this while compiling information for the story on me.

I am personally offended because he tries to make it appear that he is "in" up on the "Block". Nowhere did he state that I arranged the interview or the fact that I had to calm the irate folks that were about to run him out.

He could not have gotten in there if it weren't for me and I doubt if he knows anyone else up there that is "in". Let him try going up there again.

Other than that it was a "fair" story and he told it like the gang told it. The "Block" is a prison and Des Moines is hell on a Niggah's ass. Two other articles lent credence to his article. One was about a Black suspect wanted for armed robbery and the other one was about all the Blacks that are going to the penitentiary as a result of the latest drug raid. Unfortunately very few people read between the lines and raise these questions: Why were all those busted Black?, and, Why are all of those Blacks involved with drugs? Even fewer still could answer these questions. Because of the oppression of Black folks in Des Moines, Drugs are one manifestation of the lifestyle of oppressed Blacks and Drugs are used to cope with this oppression.

How long, oh Lord, how long? When I was growing up I enjoyed the companionship of my brother and sister and my cousins. Now we are all broken up just as the system of slavery broke the Black families up centuries ago.

My brother and sister live in Oakland, Calif., where the sons and daughters of many of Des Moines Black families live. My sister found no opportunities here and my brother was overtly forced to take his family and flee. He had no other choice.

Out of seven cousins two are left in Des Moines.

January 15 marks the birthdate of Dr. Martin Luther King. President Carter will fly to Atlanta to commemorate the occasion. I think it is a good time to remember where we were coming from and what we, as black Americans, were about 11 years ago in comparison to 1979.

I recall the black revolution of the 60's and its heroes — Angela Davis, Eldridge Cleaver, Huey Newton, Malcolm X, Ron Karenga, Stokely Car, Michael Leroi Jones and of course, Dr. King. Some of these have changed philosophies, "gone over to the other side"; become conservative, become jokes — Cleaver in particular, or were murdered. I remember the slogans — Black is Beautiful; Black Power, Black Pride — Say it loud . . . and so on. I remember the organizations — SNCC, Core, US, the Urban League, NAACP, Black Panther Party and many more. Some have lessened in strength and power, some have gained, some have changed philosophies or gone out of existence.

America was ripe for all the above — Black youth and college bound young people needed strength, pride and encouragement about themselves and their race. Particularly after the 50's. Seeing all those police dogs and fire hoses chew and break limbs of black men, women and children who only wanted to ride on a bus; eat at a lunch counter, drink at a fountain, use a restroom. More importantly — to buy a home, get a good job, have their children educated in the manner of white children and not have some red neck cracker meet them at the door of a church or a voter registration booth and say "No niggers allowed".

Eisenhower was a racist president — he rued the day he appointed Earl Warren to the Supreme Court; he did not want to send troops to Little Rock to protect black youngsters from Klan like activity; he said to associates . . . "I don't think white parents should have to worry about their little girls sitting next to some big dumb Negro in school" . . . Joe McCarthy ran roughshod over whites rights as well as all others. The fifties unlike 'Happy Days' were as crummy for blacks as ever.

We needed the 60's. We needed to discover reames of black history, which had been "lost, stolen or strayed"; we needed black heroes and heroines; we needed Afros and to throw away our Nadinola and pressing combs.

I even think in some cases, white America needed to see Newark, Chicago, Detroit, Boston and Watts go up in flames to understand the unhappiness, frustration, poverty and racism that was destroying the minds of blacks.

The 70's is a boom and a busy period for blacks — "it is the best and the worst of times" — We are confident and making strides in education, employment, housing and integrating social clubs and organizations. We have black faces in all fields of endeavor, business and industry and employment. But perhaps we are becoming too complacent. The old fire and spark of the 60's is gone. Black legislators are going down the drain. My teenage students have never heard of Malcolm X or Angela Davis. The term nigger is coming out of young black mouths far too much. Too many blacks bask in living in all white, sterile upper middle class neighborhoods and forgetting their poorer brethren in the 'ghettoes' of the land.

Remember Dr. King's words: we can't be 'free at last' till all blacks are "free at last". From Johannesburg to Watts to DC to Uganda to London to Rhodesia to North Carolina. There are still black political prisoners — witness the Wilmington 10; there are still blacks in hunger and need. There are still black children who will never do well in school because of prejudiced teachers, administrators, IQ and standardized tests and because of poverty and lack of support from home.

We have learned from the sixties and the loss of our liberal white and sacrificing black leaders. Dr. King's death may have ended the civil rights movement per say, but the struggle of people of color to live happy and decent lives against so many and sometimes subtle forms of racism goes on.

Getting Ahead

Robert V. Morris

In this country there exists a false sense of security. The well-off or comfortable group in American society stays secure because it is relatively insulated from problems below its social level. Nowhere is this more evident than in the leading form of entertainment for American society, the television industry. Many of the prime-time television shows cast just such a comfortable format. Self-deception is evident in nearly every part of American society. Put simply, many people see what they want to see, read what they want to read, and hear what they want to hear. People also tend to categorize things too generally.

One particular area infested with this disillusionment is education. Many blacks and whites are guilty of such thinking. Many people believe Affirmative Action has gone too far, some not enough, and other think that it is fully established and functional.

Exactly what is the status of black students, both affirmative action and non-affirmative action admittees? Are we making significant progress? If so, how? If not, why not? Is the socioeconomic advancement of blacks making a difference in education? Are black students being discriminated against in educational institutions, and if so, to what degree? Are many black students functionally illiterate, and unprepared for competition with whites? Do promising black high school students do well at the college level? What can black parents do to prepare their children for a more successful life? An attempt will be made to answer these and more questions in this weekly column.

There have been many psychological studies and much research done on the black student. However, I feel that the interviews for such studies lack the warmth and inner feelings that can (hopefully) be achieved by a person in the same situation.

These articles will be written and researched with the help of my assistants, all of whom are fellow undergrad students at the University of Iowa. I believe that the University of Ioa is a logical place for this column to originate because it is truly representative of the major universities of the nation. These universities, with their large admittance of out-of-state students, make for interesting research. The geographic, previous educational, and socioeconomic differences of the students permit a researcher to study a very diverse group.

This column will provide an up to date, realistic look at the various levels of black life, socialization, and education leading up to the college level, and beyond. It is important that I establish this series not as a social column or a spotlight on students, but as an attempt at revealing a truth that many people don't want to see. The articles will go phase by phase, the first being a statement on present educational status; the following, an overall view of how this state has evolved.

Much of the impetus to create this series of articles has come as a result of feedback received from many people who heard my speech at the NAACP Freedom Fund Banquet last August. These people were very concerned about the status of black educational aspirations in this country.

Hopefully, these articles will help black parents, and people in general to understand how to better prepare their children and themselves for life ahead. For if we are ever to have a more just society, it will be brought about through education via a generation by generation process.

THOUGHTS AND COMMENTS J. B. MORRIS

In the edition of the Iowa Poll published in the Des Moines Sunday Register this week, those polled showed a strong inclination to bolster mental health and law enforcement programs and a less clearcut urge to provide more money for the improvement of existing highways and local schools. But they strongly disapproved (by nearly a 2-1 margin) for increased tax payments to support programs for Aid to Urban Areas, both of which have a direct effect on

SPEAKIN' OUT KALONJI SAADIQ

My only male cousin left informed me last night that he was thinking about moving to Kansas City because he could not find a job and his wife who was the only Black where she worked was fired for "not being in the Christmas spirit".

That would leave me with one cousin, a female and we would be the only representatives of our generation of family in Des Moines. I already have one cousin in Kansas City, one in Detroit, one in Oklahoma City, one in Los Angeles (L.A. also has a little Black Des Moines), and one that is in Fort Dodge for "correctional" purposes.

How long, oh Lord, how long? How long will my voice crying out in the wilderness fall upon deaf ears? How long before the plight of the oppressed is seen by those who have eyes but see not? How long before those who have eyes and ears and can see and hear, but voices that speak not, speak out? How long before those who breathe but are dead to world are raised to life?

And you the reader, how long will you read and perceive not? How long will you remain passive neither affirming nor challenging the validity of my words? How long before we work together to change Des Moines so those who have been forced to flee and long to be reunited with their families can return?

the percentage of minorities in this state which depend on general programs in these areas for their sustenance.

With the upcoming convention of the Iowa legislature and the beginning of the lengthy process of determining the state budget for the next couple years, that poll might seem to indicate to legislators that Iowans are no longer interested in supporting programs which primarily benefit the disadvantaged. But think about the breakdown of those polled before you condemn them.

As one might expect, people living in cities or urban areas were more willing to support ADC or urban revitalization than those in small towns or rural areas. Farmers are more willing to spend money on the improvement of existing highways upon which their livelihood may depend. Those making less than $10,000 per year are more inclined to raise ADC payments than those making $20,000 per year or more but they are so inclined on that issue alone. Age also has a substantial impact on the responses, more so than the kind of self-interest which would seem to explain most of the other responses.

Most younger voters were in favor of paying higher taxes to support programs like ADC and Urban Revitalization, in sharp contrast to those over age fifty who strongly opposed doing so. It would seem, from this, that the tax reduction and spending limitation movement which has spread throughout the nation, has had little or no impact on the attitudes of Iowans.

If my memory is not failing me, previous polls in the Register and others which have sampled Iowans' attitudes on these issues have shown nearly the same thing. Self-interest is still the primary motivating factor in forming Iowans' attitudes on these issues, and this poll would seem to back me up. The fiscal conservatism which has followed closely on the heels of Proposition 13 has not had much of a tangible effect upon the way these issues and programs are seen by Iowans.

I don't think Iowans are any more or less interested in supporting these programs than they were before Proposition 13 was even considered. In a sentence, then, I think it reasonable to conclude that, at least in some ways, Iowa (as indicated by the attitudes of its residents, on a few broad issues) is no worse a place for blacks and other minorities to live and develop socially and economically than it has been at any time in the past.

And, when you consider the fact that economically, minority Iowans are in as good or better position than those in other states with a substantially higher percentage population and lower standard of living, Iowa (as expressed in the attitudes and prejudices of its people) is not such a bad place for us to work and live.

Folks and Strokes

Edna Griffin

The first of the year West Germany, Britain, and France urged the United States to sign the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the USSR (Union of Socialist Soviet Republics). They represent the two most powerful nations in the world today.

The "T" in SALT stands for Talk until officially approved by the US Senate. Then "T" stands for Treaty. You will recall that the American people were given the impression that all was in order and agreed upon by the two great powers. The news came from the USSR that the US had added another last minute condition to be met by the USSR before agreeing to accept the provisions of SALT. This last minute condition was rejected. The USSR accepts no responsibility for Cuban policy in Africa.

Senator John Culver appeared in an interview on the Mary Jane Odell Program Tuesday night, Jan. 8th. The senator explained to all who were listening why SALT is of utmost importance to Americans as well as the other peoples of the world. These are some of the reasons mentioned by the senator. The United States already has enough nuclear power to kill 61 billion people 15 times. Three nuclear bombs are made each day in the U.S. Our country is capable of manufacturing bombs 316,000 times as powerful as the one dropped on Hiroshima.

The important point is if we make 'em, we'll use 'em! A budget of 126 Billion dollars for "defense" is the most important cause of inflation. None of this hardware creates a single useful item for the American people. It creates jobs, did you say? There is something wrong when the price of a job is a choice between quick or slow death for the employee and/or his family.

I don't know how you feel about such a choice or such a chance. It does seem to me that the time is now to stir ourselves to put the weight of government on the side of peace with an agreement to limit the production of arms.

The $126 billion for defense could also produce jobs to improve life instead of causing death and destruction. There would be national health insurance for all the people. There would be adequate care for all the aged, there would be money to pay for as many teachers as are needed to relieve over-crowding still remaining in some classrooms, money for inspection and repair of defective dams existing in America. Many of us know of more important needs than 204 submarine warheads, don't we?

Everybody has an equal stake in the need to save our planet from destruction regardless of class, race, nationality, or political party. Even the manufacturers of armaments have to be crazy to risk blowing the planet from underneath themselves. What will they do with their profits?

Senator Culver does not get upset like me and rant and rave. He was able to calmly tell us a few important reasons for signing the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty. The Russians are ready to sign. They refuse, however, to meddle in Cuba's foreign policy in Africa. If the Cubans live with Guantanamo U.S. base in their country, surely, we need not commit national suicide because of invited Cuban troops in Africa.

The first thing we need to be is a registered voter. Why? Because we've got to let our senators know we want — and mean for them to vote for SALT. If you're not a registered voter, your senator doesn't have to pay attention. Support a senator like Culver who respects the voters' capacity to understand, regardless of party differences on controversial matters. Write and tell Senator Culver, if you heard him. I am assuming you appreciate learning how to stay alive.

I felt sufficiently inspired that I got out my big Jobs And Freedom, August 28, 1963, March On Washington button and wore it while writing this column. Crazy? Maybe — but I don't really think so. I talk to myself because I'm alone quite a bit. I haven't reached the stage of answering myself. o.k.?

To tell the truth, I've got a wonderful idea. If I can catch up with a "peacenik" or two or three, I'm suggesting the preparation of a thank you letter to Senator Culver for his efforts to help keep peace in the world. If you think peace is important, sign.

You have seen what happened to one of the finest members of the senate, an Iowan. We should have saved Senator Dick Clark from the "Right to Lifers". Not enough people went out to vote. I'm talking to my people now. Be willing to circulate such a letter in your church at what you will decide is a proper time. It isn't in keeping with spiritual moments to treat the messenger at your door as a stranger. O.K.?

Tolson's Family Reunion

The 98th Family Reunion of the late Colonel Green Tolson and Mollie Belle Tolson was held on New Years Day at Lincoln Post No. 126, 1625 8th Street, Des Moines, Iowa.

Mollie and Colonel Tolson, devoted Christians, decided to set one day aside to offer praise and thankfulness to God for his blessings and as a means of giving each of their children back to God.

The Reunion began on New Years Day in commemoration of the anniversary of Colonel Tolson's birthdate. Their first born son, Elmer (eldest of ten children) was one year old at the time. This Reunion has been observed by their children and their descendants faithfully these many years.

Each year the Reunion begins with Devotional Services. Brother Arthur and Sister Lora are in charge of the services. They are the survivors, the ten children, Relatives and friends join in with songs, prayers and testimonials. After worship service an elegant buffet dinner prepared by Oakley's Catering Service was enjoyed.

Guests present: Rev. and Mrs. H. R. Fields, Rev. George Parrish, Rev. Guy Sanders, Mrs. Ruby Cooper, Mrs. Beatrice DeVan, Mrs. Willa Rice, Mrs. Inez Searcy and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Schaffer.

Relatives present: Mr.

and Mrs. Arthur Tolson, Mrs. Lora Tolson Warden, Mrs. Lola Mae Jones, Mrs. Gertrude Madison, Mrs. Helen Dukes, Mrs. Vera Rowland, Mrs. Wanda Madison, Rev. and Mrs. Henry Simmons, Rev. and Mrs. Willie Bumpus, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Daniels, Mrs. Geraldine Daniels and children, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Peggy Spates Johnson

I'm sure some of you recall catching the original version of the film INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS when you were youngsters. Being frightened out of your wits and being afraid to sleep by yourself was a prerequisite for a good scary flick in those days.

The remake currently playing at the Sierra III theatres is an enlightening and occasionally frightening experience. This film has gotten excellent reviews from the country's major film critics. I didn't think it was THAT good but it was an interesting little shocker.

The film seemed very long when actually it was not. The actors were uniformly talented and lent a warmth and believability not seen in most low budget sleepers. This little movie has turned into an unexpected hit. Don Siegel the "Dirty Harry" director concocted the first version while another unknown, heaven forbid, I forgot his name, molded the '78 outing.

The plot itself baffled me in spots; alien beings from a dying land invade other solar systems — alas ours, too, and take over the bodies and psyches of humans by producing exact duplicates of people. These are born (literally) from huge pods as the unfortunates sleep. The copies have no emotions, no feelings and will follow orders, ala the 3rd Reich, to the tea.

Some humans catch onto the scheme which is being carried out by high level government officials. Unfortunately by the end of the film — well, I'll let you see for yourselves. This is not really a horror film — science fiction is more an accurate description.

As an old scary movie buff I do bemoan the lack of really good horror or science fiction films on TV or in the theatres. There were sections of BODY SNATCHERS that were genuinely frightening: such as the escape scenes from a changed and automaton public; the horrible transformation of humans into robot-like creatures; a terrible looking human/dog mutant; and the actual birth process of the robots from a vegetable pod.

Donald Sutherland and Brooke Adams make a believable and charming team of sensitive and concerned humans fighting against the invading onslaught. Sutherland no matter how weird the script manages a credible performance in all his films. Adams, a newcomer, (See "Days of Heaven", if it ever comes to the Big D) has a spontaniety and a natural charm the camera captures and loves to play with. She has a pleasant but forgettable face but she does have talent.

San Francisco with all its tragic violent and bizarre real life goings on is the setting for the film. There were questions at the end of the film that nagged at me — why did the heroine fall asleep when she knew it meant her doom? Where was the pod that got her and how did it track her down when the pods were inanimate objects?

How much of the world was involved — even with some slow spots and questions unanswered, films such as these whose basis is life from beyond, are truly more frightening than say, Dracula, the Mummy and Frankenstein simply because maybe there are some folks out there watching and waiting and the Body Snatchers could possibly someday come and snatch us (smile).

Look, Therefore, To This Day

By
Lynda Walker-Webster

Do You Make A Good Member Of Your Organization?

Have you ever arrived at a point where you feel that you are on the brink of short-circuiting yourself out with all of your involvements, activities and obligations?

Our entire way of life evolves around commitments in one form or another!

Whether we willingly join, are invited to become a part of, or are elected to serve on or with any organization, ... once we have said "yes" and have accepted the responsibility to fill that slot, we indeed have an obligation to that organization.

So often in our communities, we see a certain breed of person who seems to be found serving in many varying capacities on private and public sector boards, in civic, community and church organizations. And, they seem to wear each hat quite well, ... as though each organization were their only involvement.

Word travels throughout many circles about dedicated people. Boards are often eager to seek out these people. And, they always seem to say "yes, I will!" I admire these people. They seem to be able to keep their activities in such organized perspective of one another.

... Then there are those individuals who truly have the best interest of each organization that they serve with at heart, but they just have spread themselves so thin that no one organization really benefits — really benefits — from their participation ... only in number, ... on a paper. Yes, there are "miracle workers"; however, who, while they are spread thin, seem to leave equally large deposits of contributions with every organization that they serve with.

BUT, my greatest pet-peeve lies with those individuals who belong to organizations, boards, committees, or any group, and, ... who are either there in name only, ... or, only come when major decisions are about to be made, or when there is a bit of social activity about to happen.

It is impressive certainly to say that you serve on various boards and committees. Or even to say that you belong to a specific social club or community group. It is nice to include on your resume or profile, a long list of such involvements. But, so many times, this is such a farce!

Individuals too often use this impressiveness as a tool to look good to others. However, if a few phone calls of verification could be made, the results would not quite be impressive at all.

A board or group may be based around a number totalling ten. That group then is dependent upon those ten members to attend, participate or contribute in the service and work that that organization is established for.

Our churches especially fall heavy victim to this! Various church boards, church clubs, choirs, etc., are often used to operating on a skeleton attendance ..., except of course when folks are aware of a hot issue that is about to surface, or a big event.

When individuals continually miss meeting or rehearsals it not only inconveniences and often cripples the group as a whole, but it often prevents a strong and viable foundation to exist.

A few absences are almost expected. In the event of a conflicting time schedule, illness, or some other sound and viable reason, a short simple telephone call would make others feel that you respect your position, or your organization enough to let them know that you cannot be present. It makes people feel better. Not to mention that you owe it to your group!

However, if your reasons for not attending are due to such reasons as, "I forgot that we were to meet last night", "I was too tired", ... or "I didn't feel like listening to all that arguing", "They don't do anything anyway", or "I wanted to watch Monday Night Football", then what you need to do is to do that organization and yourself a favor and get out! Let someone else have a chance to contribute. We keep tapping into the same people when there is, indeed, an abundance of resourceful people who would serve if they were asked. They might be honored to serve.

It's like the proverbial little red hen who tried unendingly to seek out help to plant the harvest. No one had the time or wanted to help. However, when it came time to reap and eat of the harvest, suddenly everyone was willing to be a "Johnny On the Spot".

People are much like that. Often they can't find the time to contribute toward the work that goes into planning or decision making, but when there is such a favorable end result or a victory, everyone wants to take the credit. Or what about the choir ... when the same ones can't find the way to rehearsal but somehow when it is time for performance they all show up. It's inevitable.

Many organizations can never be as strong as they would hope to be, not as long as we have fair-weather members. On the other hand, if organizations would enforce their by-laws, regulations, fines, etc., they would benefit as a result.

I would rather have a committee of seven, with seven good members, than to have a committee of ten, and have only seven always attend.

We should each do an inventory of our involvements. Assess our time, our value to that group, and our contribution. And then be honest with ourselves and make a determination whether we should continue our participation or give it up.

... But too often is the case that our egos will not permit us to do anything other than hold on to that slot ... it's a pity, though, that our conscience can't give us a good hard kick in our ego! That might prompt us to take a good look at ourselves, and where we're at.

Does your organization benefit by your membership? Or, does it suffer?

around you.

We were blessed to be led in devotions by Marva Frazier and Alfred Washington. The children here at Messiah Temple are being trained in conducting services and everyone is encouraged to participate in the shared blessings of the Holy Spirit. There is much more joy and peace of mind in the sharing of the body of Christ than there is in isolating yourself from others who may need your help, for it is in the pulling away from helping others that you pull away from God.

Sunday School is at 10:30 with worship services at 11:30. We are studying the book of Acts in our Wednesday evening prayer service at 7:00. Join with us soon as we share the Word and Spirit of God.

Reverend Jacob Reed, pastor.

REMEMBER: We feel that when you need to isolate yourself from others, you are isolating yourself from God.

THE NEW FRIENDSHIP CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

We, the members of the New Friendship COGIC are rejoicing in the Lord of our salvation. We are yet praising the Lord for how he blessed our souls during the first week of 1979, in our New Years Revival which was conducted by Pastor Daye and Mo. Alexander. Truly the Lord met us each and every night.

We are rejoicing over the two souls that came to Christ and the rededication of the Saints at New Friendship.

On Sunday morning, Pastor Daye, fed our souls from on high, speaking on Pentacost, the effects it will have on your life if you fully give yourself to the Lord. The Youth Choir sang out of their souls. An altar call was made and souls were blessed.

On Sunday night, we praise God for our YPWW session where we had about 25 in this session. Also on Sunday night our evangelistic service was carried out by Elder J. Broadus and truly the Lord came and blessed our souls.

Pastor Daye is yet helping over to Jacobs Temple and he was there on Sunday night.

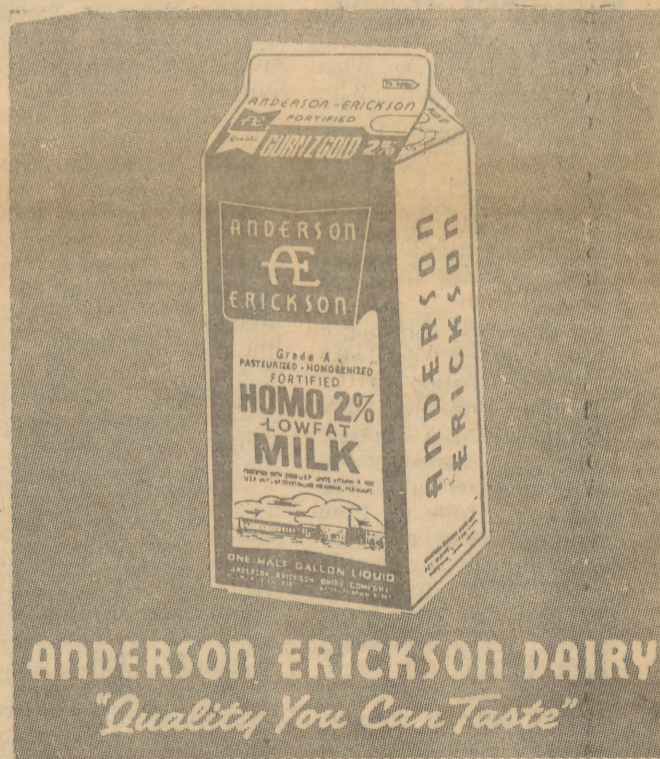

On this coming week, Tuesday night is Bible and Prayer Band at 7:30 p.m. Come on out and let us study the word of God together. On Wednesday the YWCC will meet in the home of the President, Sis. R. Kaiser.

On Thursday evening at 6:30 p.m., the Youth choir will meet at the church. On Friday night is Family night, Pastor Daye is asking all members of New Friendship to please be present.

On Saturday, the Usher Board will have a Bake Sale at Hinky Dinky at 19th and Carpenter. Usher President is Sis. D. Bogaard. On Sunday afternoon, the Usher board will host a service; Rev. W. Jamison and Shiloh Baptist Church will be with us at 3:30 p.m.

Please come and fellowship with us. If your soul is weary and you don't know which way to turn, try Jesus. In this day of confusion, turmoil and strife, remember, Christ is the answer for the World today.

BBQ and Chicken dinners at the Church on Saturday, January 13, 1979. Mo. L. Jenkins and Sis. M. Moore in charge.

Spirit Is...

Being aware that our Father knows the things of which we are afraid—the terror by night and the arrow by day, that makes us aware and often finds us without a vital, ready faith.

On a Friday night in November, bright licking tongues of flame bursting out windows, walls and doors let a sleeping neighborhood know there were terrible happenings in a church nearby—St. Paul A.M.E., Des Moines. The Pastor, Reverend Lewis E. Grady, was awakened by a call of distress—the tragedy that struck his church.

The Iowa Inter-Church Forum Workshop had finished its opening session in Newton, Iowa and most persons attending had retired.

A 45 minute drive brought Reverend Grady to the site. Need there be excuses for tears at a time like that?

Spirit is... calling members of the congregation at that early hour of the morning, not only for personal consolation but a call to rally together. Rally, we did.

Spirit is... the officers of the church meeting that morning to make plans to move on—with prayer.

Out of the meeting a place to worship was offered for the following Sunday morning. The congregation met at Willkie House whose Director, Mrs. Marsha Collier, is an officer of the church and opened its door to us. Further plans, calls to newspapers and radio stations to reach the membership so they would know the church was moving on despite the tragedy.

Hymn books were salvaged, soot cleaned off. The ministerial robes were gone—that was of mere importance.

Spirit is... the Pastor preached and everyone sang. The choirs had no robes either—they were burned up.

Spirit is... the members came, praying for the loss. The vans brought the children to Sunday School and all others who wished transportation, and wished to keep up the spirit. Sadness was evident, of course, but courage and faith in St. Paul did wonders.

Spirit is... Marsh Houston, named Fire Adjustment chairman, was already at work assigning his committee members to specific jobs. The Royal View Manor opened its doors to St. Paul also for a morning service. At all times, the attendance was high.

Spirit is... the Ministerial Staff, associates Reverend Felix Dickerson, Reverend Lloyd Watts and Caesar Smith. They gave their pulpit service in assisting the Pastor. The Presiding Elder, Reverend Richard D. Smith Sr., offered his help and gave up a Sunday at a scheduled church to bring uplift to St. Paul in his sermon—"Hold Hands—We Shall Overcome".

Spirit is... Mrs. Dorothy Campbell, an officer who offered her home for the temporary office so the business of the church could go on as usual. Mr. Larry Carter took the task of heading up the Fire Fund Raising Committee. Mrs. Catherine Williams, chairs the Individual Gift Unit.

Reverend Grady thanks all the fine persons who have made contributions. Also the churches who offered and gave help. He feels all St. Paul is pledging to help the church to be in even better condition physically, and spiritually than ever before. He further states the insurance is adequate but additional expenses must be covered by members and friends for contents and deterioration of interior areas.

Spirit is... the families joining during this low period and others coming.

The rebuilding of the structure walls, offices, etc. is well on its way. Three weeks of full time labor has resulted in new walls, and replacing of electrical system. Our hopes are high for the day we will see new office equipment, carpeting, robes, and the marching down the aisle once again to the singing of "Holy, Holy".

The celebration of the birth of Christ was carried on the lower level with a play by the Sunday School children—encouraged by the Superintendent Ernest Dash. The Director of Music, Mrs. Lauretta Reeves planned a Hanging of the Greens/Carol Sing. She also suggested a "Bank of Poinsettias" donated by classes. These poinsettias were given to the sick and shut-ins on Christmas eve. No dampening of spirit here!

The Layman's Program committee set out for that first day back in the sanctuary by planning a special service on that morning. The day we shall praise God and say "Hallelujah" for His goodness.

The Spirit is... the awareness we have that perhaps adversity might increase our capacity for greater humility in giving of ourselves for an even greater St. Paul. Courage grows from hearts—not from numbers.

Alberta Bates, St. Paul A.M.E., Commission on Public Relations.

HOLYHOST TEMPLE CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST NEWS

Bible Study was held Tuesday eve. with Evangelist Eugene Price in charge. Topic was "The End Speaks" Ref. Habakuk 1:2-4. Main thoughts—tho he tarry long, yet will he come. Be ready and wait for the end.

Outstanding comments were made by our Pastor - Bishop O. J. Johnson. If you are blessed to live another year, what are you going to do with it? Are you going to take a firm stand for the right or walk in the same old paths? Will you speak the truth in your heart always and obey every word of God & do it. Consecrate, dedicate, anchor, launch out into the deep. Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth. Swear not - Joel 2:1 - 2nd Thes. 14:15. It's running time now. Don't let him catch you with your work undone. Let Christ be in you the hope of glory. Resist the lust of the flesh. Speaking of writing the vision and making it plain Ask yourself the question What's wrong with me now? Don't settle for I'll get by or I'll make it.

Pastoral nite was held Friday nite with Bishop O. J. Johnson in charge. The subject of his sermon was The Lord is the strength of my life. Ref. Ps. 27:1 Romans 10:12-Ps. 107-1 at the end of the sermon.

Evangelist Price read a letter from the National Bishop Patterson concerning the great progress of the Saints Center.

Sunday School was held at 10:45 a.m.

Sunday with Evangelist Eugene Price in charge and Evangelist Geneva Johnson assisting. Subject - Becoming a New Creature in Christ Jesus. Ref. Romans 8:14 - Eph. 2:1-10 2nd Cov. 15:17 - Becoming new creature means being against all unrighteousness. It means not fighting Women Co-laborers in the gospel but sin. Remember the Harlot, "Mary Magdalene carrying the great message to the disciples, 'He is Risen!'"

Traditionally many will not go in them selves and will not let others go in. Don't be workers of inequity Remember in that day some will say "But I was a Bishop - But I was a teacher. But I was a Catechizer—the answer came back "I don't know you!"

We should all be a child of God by faith in Christ Jesus.

Seek the old paths and walk therein. The kingdom of God is righteousness and peace and joy in the Holyghost. It's not fine cars, motels, hotels, airplanes, clothes, etc.

Sunday eve service was held with Bishop Johnson in charge. He said, "Have compassion for one another.

If God so loved us we ought also to love one another. Finally—be ye all of one mind. 1st Peter 3:8 Christ is not divided. We believe in sanctification. God is call for togetherness. God's church and people are not divided. We advocate and believe. We can live a sanctified life and at least be born again and saved by the blood of Jesus.

develops) and took her away from my Alpha rival'. They were married three years later in 1951. The Glanton's are the parents of one son, Luther III who is now 22 years of age.

Because the Glantons' home is one of the more magnificent structures in Chautauqua Parkway, I asked him his opinion of the future of the area. "It can become a ghetto if people don't prevent it," he warned. "Particularly real estate agents who seem to steer blacks here." As District Court Judge of the 5th Judicial district, and a democrat, were there any racial or political considerations in his appointment? He answered quite frankly, "I would have become a district court judge much sooner if I were not black" he told me. "Ray didn't let blackness stand in the way".

The judge praised Governor Ray's liberal racial record and told me he hoped Ray would indeed seek the '80 Republican presidential nomination.

I went on to question Judge Glanton on the possibilities for success for the average black person in Des Moines. "Not easy but possible — you have to work hard," he told me. Is there competition between the 14 or so black lawyers we counted up together, in Des Moines? "Yes, but no more so than between white lawyers", the Judge felt.

As you all have probably heard, a certain judge, Norman Elliot, is charged with referring to Glanton as "a nigger", a charge he has denied and that is now being investigated. All the Judge felt he was at liberty to say was that they had indeed served on the same bench and ... as his father had told him ... sticks and stones may break your bones but ... so we can deduce verbal attacks or supposed ones have not caused the Judge to lose much sleep.

I asked Glanton if Iowa's judges were generally liberal or conservative regards racial matters to which he answered: "The vast majority of them are color blind" an answer which indeed startled me. Then if judges are not racists in the main, how about law school admissions? There he told me, "Some were yes, Drake is very liberal about admitting blacks — but when I first came I couldn't stay in the dorm, the cafeteria was off bounds, nor could I frequent restaurants in the area. Also I was almost prevented from attending the law banquet."

How about the bar for blacks — was it as tough as I'd heard? The Judge responded, "... it is easier here in Iowa than in some other states — there is less prejudice — many do come here for they feel they have a better chance of passing."

Of course I had to discuss the ill fated Bakke decision with him. Like myself the Judge said, "I don't like it — it has racist connotations — it can be a shield for those who want to deny equal opportunities for blacks." Speaking of the Supreme Court did he know Thurgood Marshall? "Yes, the Judge brightened, "He is a good friend of mine and an excellent lawyer and a super judge... no, he doesn't comment about the conservative bent of the court now but I can tell it upsets and worries him."

Besides his service to Iowans on the bench the Judge is active on multiple boards and committees such as — Omega Psi Phi, secretary of the executive committee of Goodwill of America, past president of Des Moines Goodwill, executive board of the Red Cross, Blacks in Management, and Organizational Industrial Center.

Does he have time for any hobbies or recreational pursuits? "Yardwork is about all I have time for ... but that is time consuming," he told me, I agreed noting the expanse of lawn surrounding his lovely home.

Last, noting that unfortunately some blacks resent other blacks in positions of power, did the Judge bristle at possibly being referred to as an Uncle Tom by some malcontents? He stated emphatically, "I try to get along with ALL people and work with whites and the system but not to go along with the system." His advice to young blacks was to ... "work hard, be honest, don't have a chip on your shoulder, don't believe that all white people hate blacks — they don't!"

And then warned us all — "20 years ago, whites had a paternal attitude toward blacks but now — they look upon us as adults. The days of 'you owe this to me because my ancestors were slaves' is over."

If the judiciary was populated by the likes of Luther T. Glanton justice would indeed have her scales balanced and that blindfold she wears would remain intact. We do all long for that day and Judge Glanton is in the forefront of that struggle.

Rev. Turner delivered a very touching and inspiring message last Sunday. His topic "Move the Cause that makes you sin."

On Sunday Jan. 21, at 3:00 p.m. Rev. Harvey Lee Turner will be installed as pastor of Second Baptist. Rev. Lionel Davis will deliver the message the 11:00 a.m. service and Rev. Charles Threadgill Unity Baptist Church, Savanna Ill. will deliver the afternoon message for the installation service.

From the Pastor: But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint; Isaiah 40:31. We at Second Baptist ask you to remember the everywhere;

Work To Do
Dear Lord, throughout this busy day
How shall I find the time to pray?
How can I possibly afford
To pause and have my soul restored?
I'd like some leisure time with you,
But there is so much work to do!
When I had voiced this fervent plea

I seemed to hear God

answer me:

"My child, for every common task you have my help, if you but ask.

You need not seek a place apart to ease the longing in your heart. Remember, God is yearning too, to share in all the work you do." Bro. Walter Burk is in the hospital very ill. Please pray for him.

ALLEN ASHBY with a LOOK ON SPORTS

Football is about to bow out, and basketball takes over, but here in Iowa wrestling stands right beside basketball. But first things first.

As the cage season got under way, I thought Drake might have a good year while I figured Iowa and Iowa State to be not quite so-so. Well, the Bulldogs are stumbling, trying to get it together, and State has its problems. The Hawks are off to an amazing 14-2 mark and have made it 14 in a row. But it is a long season, and fortunes that began so high can dip just about as fast.

When Drake dusted Iowa and Iowa State, I thought they were for real. But since then they have taken their lumps and have had to scuffle to get wins over teams that, to put it kindly, are not the strongest. But the coach seems to think his team has the potential if they can get organized, and refuses to give up on them.

Coach Nance seems to think that his Cyclones are capable of playing better than they have shown so far. They hit a streak of it against Nebraska last Saturday. Now if they can sustain that spurt.

Meanwhile, Lute Olson is experiencing a pleasant surprise at the performance of his Hawks. True they have won two games on the road, but they haven't come to the rugged part of the league. Illinois, Michigan State and maybe Ohio State.

Then there is a chance that Indiana can get untracked and become a factor in the conference chase. So it wouldn't pay to get too excited just yet. It does look as if Iowa will finish higher in the race than people thought they would, but where is anybody's guess. Maybe if Lestor is able to get on the team, they could wind up in the first five.

Drake and Iowa State? Not quite in the cellar, but not far from it.

Picking the number one cage basketball club is just about as tough as picking the national champs in football. The two wire services seemed to reach an agreement with one picking Alabama and the other USC. But how can they do that when USC beat Alabama. For my money, the number one team is Oklahoma. If they had a playoff with the bowl winners, I think the Sooners would come out on top.

Iowa proved that they are number one in wrestling. The dual meet with Iowa State drew its usual capacity crowd, and they all expected to see a cliff hanger of a dual. But the Hawks ran away with that one, and now State is waiting for the next shot at them in Ames.

Here at home the Metro conference race settled down to a race between Dowling and Lincoln with Hoover and Roosevelt in the role of spoilers. Tech got off to a good start, but found rough going with the top half of the league and now is one jump above .500. But, as we said before, it is a long season and we shall soon see who is really who. East seems to be the top team in the girls race, and might win the state. It might be good if the Scarlets lost a game before the tournaments so they won't have to carry all that pressure of an unbeaten record. That has tripped lots of good teams. And North got into the win column. Great.

And now back to football. Did you notice the number of black quarterbacks playing college ball this year? The guy from Houston will have to be given a shot at a spot in the NFL. But maybe they will carry him as Pittsburg has carried Tony Dungee of Minnesota and the Chicago Bears have done with Vince Edwards.

Back to our scores.

Black History Minutes

by Connee L. Bowman

(Black Americans have been contributors to the American Science and Industrial scene in spite of the general pressures of racism and discrimination. In order to pursue scientific endeavors a cultural environment which is stimulating and the opportunity to spend large amounts of time in scientific pursuit are necessary for most persons with scientific talent. This was seldom the case with Black Americans. In spite of this Black Americans have been able to achieve in science and industry).

GRANVILLE T. WOODS (1856-1910) (Prolific Black Inventor)

Granville T. Woods was born in Ohio in 1856. His parents were free at a time in America when most Blacks were the property of whites. Young Granville was fortunate also because his parents sent him to school from time to time. His education was brief because his labor was needed to help support the family. But a little education was a lot for a Black youngster in 1860 America.

Young Granville managed to find work in a railroad machine shop. Here he had the job of operating bellows to keep a forge hot. He met a master machinist who was willing to teach him about machines. In fact, young Woods paid most of the money he earned for his "tuition". But he was fascinated with machines and he wanted to learn. He left the machine shop after working for several years at the age of 16. He went to Missouri where he obtained work as a fireman and received a promotion to engineer within a few months. He was only seventeen years old and one of the youngest engineers in the United States.

He later became interested in electricity shortly after it came into being as an outstanding source of energy. He began reading all the books he could find on electricity. At the time Blacks could not borrow from Missouri libraries and libraries in other Southern states. So Woods had to depend on the generosity of white friends to secure books for him. He later went East and secured training in electrical technology in New York.

After working for a time as an engineer on the British steamer called "Ironsides", Woods went to Cincinnati, Ohio where he set up his own company for manufacturing and selling electrical equipment.

His first invention was non-electric and it was based on what he had learned from years of working for railroads and steamship companies. It was called a steam boiler furnace. Later most of his inventions were electrical. About 10 years after Alexander Graham Bell had presented his telephone, Woods obtained a patent on a new kind of telephone transmitter. During his lifetime career, he received more than 36 patents for his inventions. These included the boiler furnace (1884), and the automatic air brake (1902). Some of his electrical inventions were bought by the American Bell Telephone Company. General Electric Company was also interested in his inventions and purchased several of them.

His most important invention was probably the "induction telegraph". It was very useful because it helped to improve the safety of the railroad. In order to protect his patent rights, Granville Woods survived 3 patent suits. Two of these were bought by Thomas Edison. After Woods won the patent suits, Thomas Edison tried to offer him a job and offered to buy his company. Woods had a strong sense of independence and he refused both offers. He later became known as the "Black Edison". A newspaper called "The Cincinnati Sun" stated:

"Granville T. Woods has invented a new system of electrical motor for street railways. He has also invented a number of other electrical appliances. . . they think have found Edison's successor."

Because of Woods genius, everyday life was improved for millions of Americans. People rode street cars and subways which were run by motors invented by Woods. The streetcars were running with electricity assisted by electricity transfer instruments invented by Woods. The street cars could stop with much more safety as a result of Woods' air brake invention. Thus the talent and genius of Granville T. Woods contributed to the growing applications of electricity in American life. It must be admitted that electricity has helped to make life easier here in America and elsewhere. Granville production and majority students could enjoy an inter-cultural experience.

T. Woods contributions in electrical inventions were an important part of the progress that was made in American life and industry.

We had seats at the back of the theater. This was very convenient for entering the theater and leaving. I had student group leaders who helped keep the class together. Students were allowed to bring their own snacks and bag lunches. It was a pleasant surprise for me to see my students thoroughly engrossed in the movie.

I had introduced them to the songs: "Ease on Down the Road" and "I'm a Mean Ole Lion" (my favorite). I observed many of them singing with "Ease on Down" and "I'm a Mean Ole Lion". I had told them ahead of time that my favorites were "I'm a Mean Ole Lion" and "You Can't Win".

When these songs came on the screen several students turned around and smiled at me. My students had been given an informal report form on which they could write some of their impressions of the movie. In fact I had a student read the questions while we were riding on the bus. So they were prepared to watch and listen.

I would like to share some of their responses with you. Question:

Who was your favorite character and Why? I liked the tin man because he tried to be nice and wanted a real heart. . . . The tin man - Nipsy Russell was a good actor and dancer. . . The munchkins - there were so many of them and they loved Dorothy.

. . . The lion - he wanted Dorothy to like him. . . The dog - he was so faithful - always following behind. . . The scarecrow - he was a brave man and he knew a lot although he was abused by the crows. . .

The scarecrow - he learned how to dance down the road after he had been hung up. . . The flying monkeys - they were really something on the motor cycles. . . All the witches - they were all special and different. . . Dorothy - she was determined to get to see the Wiz.

Question: What was the main idea or lesson in the movie? The tin man was a real man - even though he was made of tin. . . It's not easy to be a lion. . . You don't have to go so far from home to find friends. . . Witches can be helpful and friendly. . . Dorothy found she had a good home after all. . . Dorothy had something in common with her friends. . . They all went looking for somethings they already had. . . Sometimes it is good to go home and then come back. . . The Wiz wasn't so great after all, and so on.

The Wiz is still playing on Broadway along with several other Black musicals. I can assure you it is not just a movie for children but for the young - at - heart also. If you see it, you will probably come away with several songs ringing in your heart and ears and most especially you will remember the words:

Don't you carry nothin' That might be a load. Come on, ease on down, Ease on down the road!
