Josephine Jones — An Enduring Part Of Our "Roots"

Josephine Jones

Any chronicler of black history, particularly Alex Haley can tell you the importance of our senior black citizens as a wealth of valuable and beautiful knowledge about our past and a source of inspiration for our future. These older men and women are often shuttled away and ignored when they should be treasured and looked upon as oracles of knowledge. They have endured racism in its most ugly, virulent and many times violent forms and survived. They can tell us stories to make our blood curdle and tales of our ancestors we never could find in history books. Numerous white authors have copied these stories whether they be folk tales or authentic history and became rich and famous such as Joel Chandler Harris. I was so pleased to talk to a lovely lady the other day who is a prime example of a fighting black woman who has lived through many struggles and trials and triumphed — Mrs. Josephine Jones. Contrary to stereotypes Mrs. Jones has never retired to her rocking chair with her needlepoint and I could never envision her doing so. As a member of the Woodlawn Willkie Board and the executive board of the Willkie House she has continued as a viable member of the community. Mrs. Jones told me she has been a Des Moines resident for the past 50 years but spent most of her young life in Kansas and attended Washburn College in Topeka where she majored in music. Her list of contributions to Black Des Moines have been numerous over the years — she supervised youngsters at the old Negro Community Center; she was also a girl scout leader there; for 25 years she worked with the Community Chest and was selected to be an area captain director after canvassing many miles door to door; she is a member of St. Paul AME church and a charter member of the Hostess Club; she helped organize in '45 the first gospel choir there and is the only charter member left of the Woodlawn Willkie Board. Just what were the functions of the board I asked her? "Everything to improve the area such as emergency grants, small loans to community members for home

Elected Head Of Central Advisory Board

Robert King, 503 S.W. Emma, was elected chairman of the City's Central Advisory Board at the Board's first meeting of 1979. King has been a member of the CAB for the past six years and has served as chairman since 1975. Other officers elected were Vice Chairman, Betty Jane Mash, 1422 Hutton, a CAB representative from the City's Logan Prime Service Area, and Secretary, Rosemary

Olds, 207-30th St. Olds is one of eleven representatives appointed by the Mayor. The CAB is a 33 member board that was set up by the City Council in 1971 to advise the City on the needs of

Des Moines' inner city neighborhoods. The board also makes recommendations on how federal Housing & Urban Development and Community Service Administration funds should be allocated to help solve the problems that face these urban communities.

Eighteen of the CAB's members are elected by the City's Neighborhood Priority Boards. Appointments made by these boards and representatives appointed by the Mayor to the CAB are as follows: Four Mile: Kenneth Tenerelli, Lillian M. Sims, Junior B. Choate.

Logan: Hazel McGuire, Martha Walden.

Model City: David F. Pickett, Calvin Clark, Verona Cheatom.

Pioneer-Columbus: Frank Talarico, Henry Pontious, Sam Cimino.

Southeast: Mildred Douglas, Bernice Imgrund, Harry Matney.

Jazz Musicians At Simpson

INDIANOLA, IA. — Jazz musicians Albert Collins, guitarist and story-teller, and A. C. Reed, saxophonist, will perform for a coffeehouse from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 21, at Anything ... But A Burger on the Simpson College campus.

The public is invited to attend. Tickets now are available for $1 at Anything ... But A

Burger in the Brenton Student Center.

Reed is billed as the top blues saxophonist in the Chicago area as well as the Midwest. Collins, who recently returned from a European tour headlined the Monterey Jazz Festival and the Midwest Blues Festival in the fall. First achieving popularity in the early 1960s, Collins has just released a new album.

In December, the Simpson College George Washington Carver Award was given to Lerone Bennett, Jr., senior editor of "Ebony" magazine. The college also recognized three Des Moines residents, Edna and Dr. Stanley Griffin and Mary Jane Odell for their work in race relations.

I bet that everybody who has a voice will jump on the proposition to make the birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr. a national holiday. One would think that the State of Georgia would do that much. But, evidently they don't like to be reminded of the days when King led a successful boycott against them. Old wounds die hard sometimes.

So the legislature will pass countless resolutions for the late Dr. Martin Luther King, but declare a holiday? Not just yet.

Our President jumped on the bandwagon by saying that the day should be a national holiday. That goes along with his proposed cuts to black help. Fine speeches don't cost money, and money is what it is gonna take to get black people out of the hole they are in now.

So we praise Dr. King and cut back on the help that the people need. It has always been said that changes in society that better one segment never come willingly. So the civil rights legislation and the other benefits that came with it were given up grudgingly, and even now people are trying to take them away from us.

So is it any wonder there isn't a Martin Luther King day on a national scale? How could one put pressure on whom to get such a day declared? Would it come from Congress, or could the President declare a national holiday? And if he could, why doesn't he do it? Maybe some day, as they used to tell us about civil rights. The time is not yet ripe for such a move. When will it ever get right?

I recall when we heard that same line about black school teachers in the Des Moines school system. People would say that and look wise, while I would cuss because I knew they were full of hot air. I thought that was a great program the other night, but I would much rather have had a simple declaration that this is a national holiday. A stamp won't do it. Special stamps are a dime a dozen.

But, do you know, if Jimmy Carter is reelected in 1980, he will do just that. Declare a national holiday in honor of the birthday of this great AMERICAN.

So they got rid of the Shah of Iran. I don't know too much about international politics, but I shudder to think of what would happen to a bunch of black folks who did what that Iranian mob did in California. Most of them would still be in jail, and their fines would be so high that it would take a special mint to print enough money to pay them.

But these people are protesting their ruler in their country. Well, let them go home and protest. What right did they have coming over here and destroying American property, and endangering the lives of visitors, even if they don't like them? I wonder what our government could do about it, or if they will do much.

You know what would happen to Americans who rioted in Iran. I am not advocating violence against the protesters, but I believe our government should not let people get away with such conduct, no matter how just they think their cause is.

Thoughts and Comments

There was an interesting article in this week's "Newsweek" magazine about the conditions within the country's largest state penal system and the class action suit which it has spawned. Titled 'Hell in Texas', it sets out a condensation of some of the testimony which the courts will receive when this suit, Ruiz v. Estelle, is brought to trial.

This action, brought by inmates, will attempt to bring to light the overcrowding, unsafe working conditions, brutal treatment of prisoners, denial of adequate medical care and inadequate access to courts which, they allege, characterize the penal system operated by the Texas Department of Corrections. This system of detention facilities whose nearly 25,000 residents (primarily black and latino) keep it nearly self-sustaining with their labors, has long been, in the eyes of many, a very brutal and discriminatory arrangement where non-whites are concerned.

This case, and the testimony which its hearing will cause to be brought out, will be followed with interest and I will likely follow up on it at some point in the future. I strongly recommend that you do the same.

The August / September, 1978, issue of "Juris Doctor" magazine, contained an article which detailed some of the difficulties which Third World law graduates have had passing the bar exam of many states. Titled "Minorities and the Bar Exam: Color Them Angry", the article spoke of the difficulties which a black law graduate by the name of Fred Bonner has had trying to pass the Washington State Bar examination.

The most recent issue contains a note that last October, Bonner was notified that he had failed the questioned test for the fourth time. Although he blamed himself for this most recent failure, the fact remains that the bar examinations of many states pass whites of several times the rate that they pass non-whites.

Most litigation against state bar examinations has centered on the contention that a disproportionate pass rate alone should be enough to establish a prima facie (at first sight-on the first appearance) case of unconstitutional racial discrimination under the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment. That being the case, the argument continues, the

Kalonji Saadiq

Speakin' Out

GENERAL SAADIQ: THE BIG SNITCH?

I have really enjoyed writing these articles lately. Speaking out on religious issues, national issues and trying to write my articles in a well thought out prepared manner. I almost felt like an intellectual for a minute or two, a real writer, and now that I am once again in a "crisis" situation my article will reflect my raging emotions.

General Saadiq; this is how Judge Glanton, who I have respected all my life, now addresses me. He used to address me as Doctor like he does most people. However, since taking the law into my own hands and totin' a shotgun he has given me a military title.

What military officer gets into as much trouble as I do? With the possible exception of the Iowa National Guard officers, I can't think of any. Maybe I should have joined the National Guard when I was considering it.

Judge Glanton, along with most of the other judges and the county attorney's office have been very lenient with me. They have treated me in a most just manner. For the first time in my life I have been receiving justice from the courts.

For the most part they feel I'm a bright young man and should not have to go to jail. For instance I appeared before Judge Glanton on the failure to appear charge. He gave me a one year's suspended sentence, six months probation and sentenced me to 100 hours of community service at Jobless United.

I feel he was too lenient with me. He should have made it 500 hours with the stipulation that I compile data relevant to the unemployed, and write a thesis on the subject of the unemployed. Since I am chronically unemployed and directly affected by the unemployment situation, I am going to take it upon myself to compile data and write a report based upon the data I collect.

But, at any rate, his major concern along with many other people is that I not go to jail. I thank everyone for their concern but personally I could care less about going to jail. I do my best writing when I'm incarcerated. With no worldly worries, three hots and a cot, and no temptations of the world — such as wine, weed, and women — I am free to apply myself to any task whole heartedly.

Thanks for everyone's concern, but to hell with going to jail. It is because I am not afraid of being jailed that I have the freedom to do as I choose for the people's cause.

I confess. I snitched. I told it all. The entire story is known by the "Grand" jury. They know that oppression definitely exists in Des Moines and that the seven of us in that room were all social outcasts in one form or another and that homicide no. 29 of 1978 was not meant to happen. That Miss Streeter's death was unintentional. She was a victim of oppression in Des Moines.

Miss Streeter's death weighs heavily on my conscience. I was responsible for creating the situation which led to her death! Miss Streeter a nobody, forced by oppression to being nothing more than poor white trash. Who speaks for the poor white trash, the white niggers that live among us? I do! That is another reason her death weighs heavily on my conscience. But it should also rest heavily on the conscience of Des Moines, my co-conspirators in her death. Really, what was a seventeen year old white girl doing in a house full of niggard alcoholics, so-called Black trash, fornicating with more than one man simultaneously? What situation forced her to such depths.

Yes, I am responsible for creating the circumstances which led to Miss Streeter's death but I will not allow my co-conspirators; the powers that be in Des Moines to escape unnoticed because it is they who are responsible for creating the circumstances which brought all seven of us social outcasts into the same room in which Miss Streeter was sacrificed to the gods, the powers that be in Des Moines.

Yes, I snitched. I told it all. But my people in the streets think I sold out. You may question my actions but please have faith in my intentions. Have my people in the streets so little faith in me that they think I would sell out for $15.90 which I was paid for three sessions of testimony?

Or that I am so frightened of incarceration that I would cop-out on my beloved brother who is now in jail facing life instead of doing at the most six months or refusing to testify?

My beloved brother who served five years in the notorious Illinois prison system including time at President Carter is having numerous difficulties this month. I would think he wishes right about now to be knee deep in peanuts and Georgia peaches back ... 'in the land of cotton'! First of all it was reported with dubious merit, that the unemployment rolls fell this year; but inflation steadily grew worse. This is news?

The family trying to live off a fixed income, be it ADC, Social Security, unemployment insurance, Ipers benefits, disability compensation or whatever, fully realizes the difficulties in making ends meet. When I see our IPALCO bill skyrocketing each month of the winter season I marvel as to why more poor people haven't frozen to death when IPALCO shuts them off for non payment — how can they afford it? But supposedly Big Brother at 9th & Walnut doesn't turn your heat off without numerous warnings.

I know many men have stopped searching for work: the disappointment and the blues that descend upon them after being told ... 'no, the job is filled; no, we'll call you if something turns up; no, you don't have the skills ...' are too heartbreaking. Someone tell the Carter Economic advisers that.

Secondly, Billy Carter is acting up again. Jimmy just can't control his brother and boo-hoo. It is so laughable to see the 'first brother' on TV trying to deny charges of Anti-Semitism by listing all the Jews he has stuck away in his family.

Reminds me of all the times certain Whites have told me how much they liked COLORED people. Overall I thought it was rather nice to see Brother Billy boozing it up with some black Libyans. I personally thought he was a red necked racist who wouldn't be caught dead with a black person. Can't Americans even associate with Arabs anymore — they do have all the oil.

Next, the rumble Carter started when he fired stormy Bella Abzug from her chairwomanship of that woman's advisory group, is growing. So far half the women (some powerful politically) have quit.

That was a dumb move on Carter's part. Sure Bella is brash, loud and outspoken. She is also intelligent, knowledgeable, liberal and she gets her jobs done. She also doesn't take crap from anyone. It is too bad some men cannot tolerate a woman of that order. Carter had better stop listening to the sexist likes of Hamilton Jordan and think about the '80 election just around the corner. Women do have the vote now, Jimmy.

Last, and I think least, is the embarrassing situation of a president of the USA having the whole world know his specific medical problems — particularly hemorrhoids. Not only a painful and uncomfortable malady but how indelicate of the press to splash it on newspapers and TV spots. I'm really not interested in any trouble Carter may be having with his derriere ... just his mind.

Getting Ahead

whites. Another argument calmly made by many black leaders is that poor performance may be attributed to past discrimination. I see these statements as reflecting a gross lack of insight.

Both hypotheses are obviously very generalized, and reflect a lack of understanding. The first generalization is, of course, absurd and carries no scientific validity. The second assumption is reckless because such complex problems as these cannot be defined so simply.

There are many reasons for the lack of incentive of black students. A major one is the college campus environment. Through interviews that I have conducted, it is obvious that many black students realize that the environment on the campus is academically unhealthy. In other words, in the black college community, learning is not stressed, it comes secondary to socializing and gossiping. Academic achievement is downplayed to the point of being unpopular. Believe it or not, having an A average is actually unpopular. One reason for the poor performance of proven achievers is behavior modification, i.e., peer pressure. Feeling the need to be on the social scene instead of in the library, and pressure to "fit in" is felt by almost all black

There have been many psychological studies done on this desire to fit in, or conform to peer group pressure. One of the more famous being the experiment done on conformity by Solomon Asch. In his study the subject ignored the truth just to go along with the majority. Going along with the group to be popular leads to poor academic performance by students who have the potential to be on the honor roll.

There are some black organizations that try to stress academic achievement. Also, there are workshops, but for the most part, academics are grossly downplayed. In most cases the students that do excel rake their inspiration from within. The privilege of possessing such qualities is rare. This is not to say that organizations on campus that stress academics totally do not exist. There are many white organizations that stress academic achievement, most of which are open to, or even seek out, black members. However, the main obstacle to their efforts is social segregation by race.

At the major universities there exists a huge racial block, i.e., blacks and whites are socially segregated. For the most part, blacks socialize with blacks, whites with whites; there is no major "in between." Any person who does mix is subject to sanction from his / her peers. This social segregation is no more the fault of whites than it is of blacks. In fact, blacks may be equally guilty. A well-rounded education will never be possible and interaction will never take place as long as these social norms exist.

THOUGHTS AND COMMENTS J. B. MORRIS

burden of proof should be upon the examiners themselves to show that their test criteria are valid means of measuring the degree of minimum competence to practice law and that no less restrictive means of testing for these skills. If Title VII standards and the EEOC regulations issued thereunder are applicable, as this argument contends, then it would be likely that the bar examinations in many states could be brought into question.

But the courts have thus far been unwilling to accept that argument. Generally, they have been unwilling to allow a prima facie case of discrimination to be made out by statistics (like the white pass rate as compared with that of non-whites) alone. Thus far, courts have required statistics to be accompanied by other evidence relevant to the inquiry which is supportive of those statistics. Upon the establishment of prima facie case by the plaintiff, the burden of proof shifts to the defendants to rebut the presumption of unconstitutional discrimination by showing that the selection criteria and procedures are racially neutral.

The defendants would, therefore, have to establish that the same pass-fail decision would have resulted regardless of the plaintiffs particular racial, sexual or ethnic characteristics. Although statistical disparities can be so great as to allow a discriminatory purpose to be inferred, statistics may also be used to rebut other statistics upon a showing that they are inappropriate, inaccurate, or simply not the best available evidence.

What does all this mean? It means that some bar examinations, along with many other types of competence or intelligence testing, will continue to reflect a cultural bias which works to the exclusion of non-whites. In accepting the argument (centuries old) that a national relationship exists between the examination and an individual fitness to practice law, courts in the past have been motivated as much by the historical, social, political and economic treatment of minorities as they have by reason and right.

During the Nixon era, when most challenges to bar examinations were made, the Justice Department refused to involve itself in such litigation, which is perhaps the primary reason why they have never been scrutinized as closely as were similarly challenged employment tests of the period. President Carter has been critical of the nations lawyers and bar associations for their failure to actively seek minorities, so it is likely that as bias suits are brought against such bar examinations and examiners, the Justice Department may be more willing to become involved.

But only time will tell. Although Fred Bonner has dropped his complaint against the Washington bar examination and apparently will attempt to pass the bar examination of some other state, the basic problem will still remain. What remains is the cultural bias in those tests and the difficulty which a minority plaintiff would have in challenging them, and the future of current or future minority law students and graduates remains uncertain.

Channel 11, broadcast Monday night the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra concert in celebration of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday. The occasion stirred up some mixed feelings in the Griffin household. My husband and I probably were prepared to hear a less formal program.

We were both pleased and proud, however, as we listened to Clamma Dale, a protegee, I believe, of Marian Anderson's. Miss Dale sang three numbers from the opera, Fidelio by Beethoven. I hope you are one of those who heard her. I have no words to describe Ms. Dale or her voice. Later when the orchestra was playing a rather "heavy" number, I must admit we were talking. Would you believe, the conversation was about the conductor, "Is he or isn't he, one of us?"

By the way, Clamma Dale is visibly one of us. The discussion about the conductor of the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra, Henry Lewis, was getting slightly ridiculous. My husband was so positive he could tell. I was irritated with the "I can tell" test. We argued about 'the hair test' with me pointing out there were people in the world with hair textures to match any variation we might offer!

I learned that well at a visit to the United Nations many years ago. I met a blonde, blue-eyed Sicilian. This shattered the stereotype of dark hair and dark eyes for all Sicilians!

You discover at the United Nations there is truly only one race - the human race. Just when you are sure this person is an African, the person proves to be Turkish. I examined the conductor's hair and was pleased to agree, "He's one of us". The fact is we really don't know that at all.

The Buffalo announcer interviewed a few members of the Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Fund Foundation. We paid careful attention without ever learning whether Mr. Lewis was or was not 'one of us'. We did learn that the Foundation had involved the Buffalo Board of Education, the world of Jazz, the religious community in a day long celebration of Dr. King, Jr.'s birthday. All events at the Buffalo Civic Center were free. Preparations are being made to erect a statue of Dr. King in a park.

It became quite clear that the Buffalo Foundation had really scored in getting its symphony orchestra on nationwide television. I did wish that the last number on the program might have been earlier. It was Portrait of Abraham Lincoln by Aaron Copeland. Guess What? The reading, backed by the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra, was dramatized by Eartha Kitt. She stirred the kinds of feelings and memories difficult to forget. Who can argue with the personal view, "As I would not be a slave, so would I not be a master."

I shall write to Buffalo PBN and thank them for our opportunity to hear the program. I'll send a personal note of appreciation to Clamma Dale and Eartha Kitt. To the conductor, Henry Lewis, I'll share what happened in our living room, and embrace him as a fine conductor, "one of us" or not. Maybe I'll share a copy of this column. If I do, let it be understood as a risk of being misunderstood.

Please don't desert me until I've explored this idea of needing to know when a person is "one of us-uns". I speak only for me. My need to know, for example, has to do with a need to know if symphony orchestras are still finding ways of excluding Black members. Knowing the Buffalo symphony has as its regular conductor a Black person takes on importance for me as an indication of progress.

I have read some bitter complaints in the music world about lack of performing opportunities. This is what causes me to get very close to the television set in search of a possible dark face in the orchestra. The appearance of "one of us" as conductor is truly good news. That doesn't mean I'll stop scrutinizing the Boston Pops orchestra for "one of us", however. The older generation needs reassurance, the young people need visible models of excellence. In the meantime, all performers wish to be judged on performance alone.

Until America gets free of racism, I will experience double responses - needing to know we're making progress while defending the standard of performance as the only true test. If you think I've got a problem, take a quick look at the dilemma of racists who don't allow themselves to see or hear, unless Black happens to be invisible. An occasion to laugh. An occasion to keep from crying.

Soul... Food and Thought

Aldeen Davis

I was recently privileged to turn pages of time back to a nostalgic era by attending an old-fashioned watch-meeting. It was cold and stormy on the outside but the little church was spiritually warm on the inside.

Prayers of thanksgiving, prayers of hope, prayers for strength to face another year of unknown trials and tribulations burst forth from the faithful; familiar songs — "I'll Fly Away", "I'm So Glad", "I'm On The Battlefield For My Lord" etc. rang out in glorious praise. Testimonials to the goodness and the blessings of the Lord punctuated with shouts of "Amen", warmed the hearts of all present and prepared him for the sermon to follow. At the stroke of midnight all knelt for a moment for united and personal prayer after which followed a joyous fellowship, wishing acquaintances, strangers, members, non-members, one and all a "Happy New Year!"

Small children, prevented by "Mr. Sandman" from greeting the New Year baby, were awakened to partake of the traditional New Year supper including oyster stew and black-eyed peas.

This '78-'79 event took me back to my childhood and many such watch meetings. The sound of the church bells and factory whistles that had gloriously rang in the New Year would still be in our thoughts as we departed to our various homes perhaps on new fallen snow — giving the appearance of newness and a clean page. Bright stars punctuated the black sky like candles lighting the way to promised blessings, to be enjoyed the coming year.

The motor age has robbed one of this privilege to enjoy the quiet beautiful early moments of a brand new year.

Regardless of one's church affiliation, I'm sure if you attended a watch meeting, you can't help but be blessed, and it was because I was blessed that I dedicate this column of "Soul — Food and Thought" to Union Baptist Church (and guest churches) of Des Moines, Ia.

OYSTER STEW FOR THE NEW YEAR

Combine 1 1/2 T. flour, 1 1/2 t. salt, dash of tabasco, 2 T. cold water. Blend. Stir in 1 pt. oysters and liquor, 1/4 C. butter. Simmer slowly until edges begin to curl. (5 min.)

Scald 3 C. milk, 1 C. light cream. Pour over oyster mixture. Cover and let stand 15 min. to allow a blend of flavors. Re-heat briefly. Serve in hot soup dishes with a dash of paprika.

Highlights of 1978 For The Knights Of Pythians

1978 started off with an honorary say in January for Brother Johnnie Roberson at the Hawkeye Elks Lodge Hall. Food, cheers and laughter with all of his friends and acquaintances. Brother Roberson also received many cards and tokens from many.

In February - the Pythians and Calanthians honored a Brother who has been a long and dedicated member of the Pythian organization. His name is Sam Bell. Members and friends all gathered at the Doric Lodge Hall for the special day. Brother Mack Butler, Grand Chancellor of Iowa and other Grand Officers from Waterloo were present. Also among the out of town members was Sister Lola Rhem, Past Grand Worthy Counsellor from Mason City and other out of town friends as well as members and friends from Des Moines. In March - the Pythians and Calanthians from Des Moines, Waterloo and Davenport joined the sisters and brothers in Mason City for the annual Thanksgiving Service. The B. G. Parker Lodge and Court was an outstanding host and hostess for the weekend of our gathering.

Moines. Also in June the Pythians and Calanthians had their annual family picnic at Ewing Park with games, prizes, food and fun for all.

In September - the Grand Chancellor and Grand Worthy Counsellor Convention was held at Fort Des Moines Hotel. 26 states were represented. The convention started off with hospitality with members and friends and an outing with friends at V.F.W. Hall. The guest speaker was Bro. Benjamin Hooks, our Supreme Officer. Also Ms. Shirley Steele from County Attorney Office was a speaker and both delivered a fine message.

Bro. Mack Butler, Grand Chancellor, held the president office for the council for many years. Bro. Butler has carried a fine program during that time. Bro. Butler resigned his office as President of the Council at this council meeting but still holds the Grand Chancellor office. Sister Jerry Finney, Grand Worthy Counsellor of Iowa, was elected Vice - President of the Supreme Worthy Counsellor Conference which is a two year term.

December - The Independence Lodge of Des Moines held an annual election of officers. Bro. Calvin Phillips is the new Chancellor Commander. Bro. Jim O'Daye, Past

Chancellor has given many hours of dedication during his term. The members hope Bro. O'Daye remains a faithful member in our order.

Ended our 1978 year the Pythians and Calanthians and friends had their Christmas party with music played by Lewis Patton, delicious foods, lots of dancing and hours of socializing was shared by all.

Our sick: Sister Barbara Carr - at home. Brother Bill Green - home.

Pythians and Calanthians want to thank the V.F.W. Hall, Mid City Library, Doric Lodge Hall and Hawkeye Elks for the use of their facilities for meetings and social events. Because with out them some of these things would not have been possible.

The Pythians and Calanthians hope our many friends and acquaintances have a prosperous New Year. God Bless you and keep you.

All Around The Town

Peggy Spates Johnson

When I come upon a dance troupe I have never heard of I try to reserve my skepticism and keep an open mind, knowing I am not the oracle of wisdom concerning who's who in the dance world.

As far as the group I witnessed performing Friday night at C Y Stephens in Ames; the skepticism was well justified. I was sorely disappointed in the performance, style and the atmosphere generated by The Murray Louis Dance Company. The Iowa State University Music Council usually comes up with out the ordinary and quite good dance theatres and companies. The Louis menagerie was either mediocre and very unspectacular or I just couldn't get into their style.

My companion for the evening lamented after viewing the performance when she said ... "after coming to appreciate the rigid and stringent disciplines of the ballet and other more formal modern dance companies — this type of performance seems totally loose, unorganized and even lost ..." I agreed.

The founder and namesake, Mr. Louis was a good enough performer who apparently had studied numerous years. He had good body tone, control and movement. I saw him later in the lobby and marveled at how thin, pale and limpid he looked. Also, how did he manage to keep his toupee on through all that strenuous dancing?

Seriously though, the other eight performers in his troupe were handicapped by nebulous choreography and also by weak technique. Also the style was just so vague, that it was difficult to follow — much too jerky and disorganized for me.

The one stand out was Anne McLeod — who seemed a couple notches above the rest in her energy, technique and spirit. Most of the dancers had rather strange builds for their profession — short, stocky and rather ungainly. The weather was lousy outside so maybe that justified the poor attendance and lack of response on the audience's part. But I think it was because of the strange performance of the Murray Louis Dance Company.

Mr. Louis (as it stated in the program notes) dazzled Paris in a performance with Nureyev. I still was not impressed with the evening. One saving grace — the back drops and lighting was good.

Next week — a review of the last performances of 'Dracula' from the Community Playhouse. Hopefully I won't get caught in another seasonal nightmare of a snowstorm. Whenever I review Iowa State Center performances, Old Man Winter seems out to get me.

Free Boating Class At North

A free course on boating for fun and safety will begin at North High School, Des Moines on Monday, January 22, at 7:15 p.m.

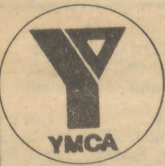

This free course is in conjunction with the Des Moines Adult Educational Program sponsored by the United States Power Squadron.

The informal lectures cover small boat handling, river markers and aids, first-aid afloat, rules and regulations, boat construction, maintenance and repair, trailering and insurance, the technical use of marine equipment and general safety for you and your family.

Good boatmen require experience and knowledge for each operator. Make this, an appointment you will long remember.

NEW FRIENDSHIP CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

The New Friendship church is yet praising God. On this last week during the snow storm, when many were not able to get to their churches, we were open and yet praising God. We yet feel the effects of our New Years revival.

We are striving on to let people know that Christ is soon to come back to gather the Saints home. We had better get our house in order if we intend to meet him in the air. On Sunday morning, Pastor Daye spoke to us from the word of God in St. Luke: 17, 15 & 16 verses, entitled "The Magnificent Minority Truly our souls were rejoicing in the work of God.

Truly our souls were blessed. On Sunday afternoon, the program scheduled by the usher board was cancelled due to Shiloh Baptist unable to come because of the weather. Pastor Jamison and Shiloh will reschedule their visit to us. On Sunday nite, New Friendship was in service with Jacobs Temple. On Tuesday Bible band will commence at 7:30 p.m. If you want to know your bible and have a live discussion, please come and be with us. Our Bible Band president is Sis. M. Moore, the teacher is Evangelist E. Alexander.

On Thursday, the Youth Choir will meet at 6:30 p.m. Friday is family nite, Pastor Daye looks for the entire church family of New Friendship to please be present. On Sat. Mo. L. Jenkins and Sis. M. Moore will attempt to have the dinner at the church that was postponed on last Saturday due to the weather.

Rib Tip Dinners will be $3.00, Chicken dinners will be $2.50. For free delivery please call the church at 243-7097 beginning at 11:00 a.m. Little Breon Daye is in a Baby contest to help the Jacobs Temple. Please help him to be crowned King.

On this coming Sunday, Jan. 21, Pastor Daye will be speaking on a subject text entitled, "The Greatest Question, Will A Man Rob God?" Malachi 3:8. We are praying for the sick and shut in everywhere. We sincerely miss our Sis. R. Kaiser who is at home recuperating from a broken leg. Also our Brother D. Hamilton is doing well at home.

how to get saved - Ref. St. Mark 16:16, 17, 18; Acts 8:37.

Evangelist Price then explained the office of the ministry. A minister can preach, teach, can be a healer thru faith in Jesus, counselor, intercessor or builder.

Most important thing in life is to preach the Gospel - which is of repentance and faith in Christ Jesus and win the souls of men to Christ.

Also, there is apostle, pastor, prophet, teacher, evangelist, helps gifts, for the perfecting of the saints.

We can be witnesses after the holyghost comes. Eph 2:4-11.

A preacher can also preach, herald, cry and proclaim. Summary - for what doth it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul.

Friday evening services were held with Bishop O. J. Johnson, pastor in charge. The subject of his sermon was "When God Speaks." Ref. Matthew 8:7, Isa. 41:17 and Isa. 57:15.

His introductory statement was a tremendous transition transpires in any event when God speaks. God's word has more power than the strength of all the men in the world.

God speaks - and my servant shall be healed - and men live - and men die - and devils are cast out. His word is holy without contamination, holy without pollution, holy without malice, holy without respect of persons. Be ye holy for I am holy, Ref. Gen. 1:3 - God said Let there be light and there was - Gen. 1:26 - God said let us make man in our image, after our likeness.

Forsake not the assembling of your selves together, so much the more as you see the day of the Lord appraoching. Go to church next Sunday. If you do not have a church home, try us.

Church is the gate of heaven. You can be saved in church and your burdens can be lifted.

Bishop O. J. Johnson

Remake the World
Shahid A. Muhamad

In the name of God, The Compassionate, The Merciful.

In last week's statement to you, I sought to emphasize the importance of God as a motivational as well as a dominating factor in our lives - and the only real solution to the problems that we face as a world, nation, state and community. There is misery and suffering in the lives of the human being today and most of us have come to accept this as a natural condition - and due to the commonality of these plagues; oft times there is a tendency on our part to confuse the normalcy of our condition with the natural.

We tend to think that because of the normal conditions of poverty, divorce, drug abuse, mass abortion, sexual perversion, discrimination and apathy that these represent a natural way of life. We accept them as such. Because of the prevalence of these conditions, they are driven deep into our minds to the extent that we willingly accept and offer no resistance against these destructive forces in our lives.

So the wife comes to accept it as natural that her husband is going to cheat on her - and in the name of conformity many mothers think its natural for her 15 year old daughter to go indecently dressed, to attend parties into the wee hours of the morning, not knowing the parents of those giving the party or where the party is being held - and that same mother will think it equally as natural when her child becomes pregnant and either aborts the baby or is hustled into a premature marital situation.

The usual reply given to these unfortunate circumstances is "that's life," as if that is the way life is supposed to be - when in fact, that is the life that most of us resign ourselves to - and because of this attitude of resignation we view our plight with discouragement and hopelessness and thus, disarming ourselves from the battle for human fulfillment in life.

In my opinion, we should go back to the basics of life. We should begin viewing each other in a human sense instead of a physical sense. Our spiritual leader, The Honorable Wallace Deen Muhammad teaches us that man means mind - all that is about a man that is a man is his mind; we are no more or no less than what is in the mind and just as you can visualize in your mind your house, your husband, wife or children that is the real world that we live in (the inner world).

This inner world is fed by the outer world - which makes it vitally important that we monitor what goes into the mind even as we watch what we take into our bodies as physical food. Woman means mind also - womb of mind, because all minds comes from the womb of a woman, instead of woman being looked upon as a sex object she should be viewed as a mind. When we look at each other as minds we begin to read just our perspectives as well as our value system.

We must return to the natural way of life.

Story Hour At The Mid City Library

These children, ages 4-6, from the Tiny Tot Day Care Center, have come to the Mid City Library for an hour of stories. Every week the library provides story telling, movies, or a puppet show for the children.

After story telling, they will check out books and then take a trip to Merle Hay's Petting Zoo.

ALLEN ASHBY with a LOOK ON SPORTS

It was some storm, but it seemed to be good for what Jim Zabel calls the three top Iowa basketball teams. They all won their games, even tho two of them were postponed for a day.

The Big Ten race is such a close deal that no one club can claim an edge over the others. Michigan State was number one, but they got knocked off by Illinois. Then the Illini got taken by Ohio State who is on top of the heap for now. The same Ohioans, by the way, did in the Hawkeyes, and both the Hawks and the Illini were saying that they should have won that one.

This close conference race is interesting and good for the league attendance, but it really messes up the ratings of the teams nationally.

Just like the Big Eight in football. The number one spot has changed every week for the last three weeks, and who is to say that the team in that spot is the best? They are sure to get it in the neck from some contender who has lost before. But it will make for a close Big Ten race right down to the last week.

I thought Drake would have to hustle to finish out of the cellar, but they seem to be much tougher than they seemed at first. Their win over Creighton made believers out of quite a few people. But the Bulldog trouble is that they seem to blow hot and cold. Now if they can keep up their hot streak. Iowa State got the kind of a game that Coach Nance thought his boys could play if they put their minds to it. Now, where will they finish in the Big Eight? Like I said, not last, but certainly not first.

And, by the way, who is the state champ? All around the country unbeaten teams are getting scarce. There is so much talent to spread around. Time was when one, or maybe not more than a half dozen schools gathered all of the basketball or football talent, and fought it out among themselves. But not now. Just anybody is liable to come up and run a rated ball club off the floor. And you will have to look to find the location of the school on the map.

And it is like that in the Metro Conference race here at home. Lincoln and Dowling were flying high in the top spots, but East set down the Railsplitters and Dowling got into trouble too. Now these two teams will be playing to see who can stay above each other. And right behind them come Roosevelt and Hoover. Roosevelt looks as if they are about to duplicate last year's trick. Wait until the tournament games to really get hot. So, instead of handing the crown to either Lincoln or Dowling, let's wait and see how this one comes out. And it might be one of the other two for the marbles.

Tech seems to have run their course. They have the stuff to surprise somebody. Remember they lost a couple of games that were closer than ninety nine is to one hundred. So, with a break here and there they could have one of the top ranked clubs wondering what happened. Looks like a merry cage season from the top to the bottom.

Watched Arthur Ash lose that three set final to John McEnroe Sunday. It was an exciting match and I thought Arthur would pull it off, but his habit of making unforced errors hurt him at the wrong time. Normally I never comment on the results of such matches, but I was struck by the way Pat Summerall kept reminding people that McEnroe had beaten Arthur easily the first time they met and Tony Trabert's explanation for that.

Then I thought that the youngster was in poor taste by saying he wished he had beaten somebody better than Ash, when it looked as if he had all he wanted out there, and from reports I get it took a late line call on what would have been a match winning shot to change things around. As I got it, the call came on a service that Ash put away and the lineman called out after the point was played. So maybe the guy shouldn't feel that he should have been playing anybody else. Would he have gotten that break against Borg or Connors?

improvement; sources of help for the elderly (such as snow shoveling) and employment services for the young," she told me. Where did the board — receive its funding besides the government? Mrs. Jones stated "... some money comes from the parks and recreation department — for the prime time center, Oakridge and Willkie House but mostly government grants." Mrs. Jones late husband, Ralph was with the post office for over 30 years and passed away seven years ago. He was an engineering major at Iowa State and in Mrs. Jones words "... a very brilliant man". She has a step daughter in Detroit and 3 grandchildren, 2 of whom are attending college now. Mrs. Jones is also a Delta Patroness — an auxiliary of the sorority I did not know existed. She also kept busy over the years teaching Folklore music at the old Jewish Community Center and the Catholic Newman Center at Drake which she laughed kept her on her toes fielding challenges from certain Drake students who felt the only indigenous music in America was NOT black in origin.

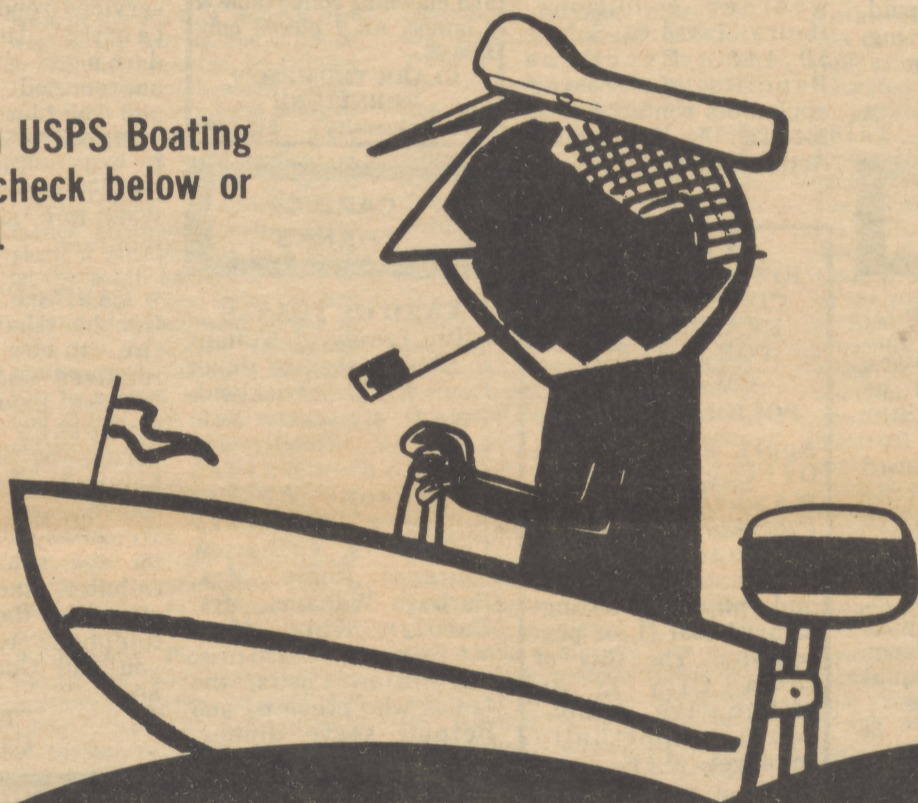

What about the Willkie House — what kind of job was it doing for black youngsters? "It is doing a fine job — when it was closed we got behind and have had some difficulty in getting back to where we were. Wes (Chapman) is a beautiful chairman — as was Gwen Fowler. There are some pretty good programs there" Mrs. Jones assured me. What were some of the difficulties she had as a black woman in a sexist and a racist society? "I was bitter toward the white race for a long time — I had 3 years of college and couldn't get a job. I applied at the Fort Des Moines Hotel in my best clothes and was told to leave by the back door, as an example. It was pretty difficult and very discouraging when I was young but my late mother always told me to never give up. Also at Washburn prejudice was very, very great. I went hungry once to apply to the quill club and my English teacher just totally ignored my application. I have talked to students attending the school now and they tell me of a positive surface but that racism is still there lurking underneath. The cafeteria was banned to blacks as another example. I really would like to leave a small fund for black students to use whenever they are in financial trouble as a rich black man helped

Hiatt Junior Writers

A Teacher That's Also A Student

by Susan Miguel
Junior Writer
Hiatt Junior High

Mrs. Griffis was born in Montgomery, Alabama. She went to a private grade school there. Later, she went to George Washington Carver High School. After she graduated from high school, she went to Alabama State University where she majored in English and psychology.

Mrs. Griffis came to Iowa in 1974 to finish her masters degree in English. Afterward she taught freshman English at I.S.U. After teaching there she left in November of 1976 to go to the University of Iowa where she taught and worked on her Ph.D. and studied Afro American Studies.

She came to Hiatt in 1977 and is teaching English. This is her first experience in teaching junior high and she likes it also. She likes teaching and helping students accomplish goals that they have set. But she likes to teach High School instead of Junior High because she likes helping them to understand life.

Mrs. Griffis has many hobbies. She enjoys reading, hunting (sometimes), fishing, swimming, singing and golfing (once in a while). She likes to write poetry and short stories, especially in the beginning of spring and winter. Most of all, she would rather sit and read instead of watch T.V. She also enjoys sports such as football and basketball.

In the future she plans to finish her Ph.D. and keep on teaching and learning more.

Blacks and Cancer

Why are cancer rates different from Blacks and Whites? Do Black children get cancer? Is cancer related to nutrition?

These and other often-asked questions about cancer causes, prevention, detection, treatment, and rehabilitation are discussed in "What Black Americans Should Know About Cancer," a new publication written especially for Black audiences.

Co-sponsored by the National Medical Association, the National Association of Community Health Centers, and the National Cancer Institute, the booklet explains what readers themselves can do to help in the prevention, early detection and prompt treatment of cancer.

A glossary of terms is included in the booklet along with a list of toll-free telephone numbers of the Cancer Information Services, which people can call if they have any additional questions about cancer.

The booklet may be obtained free of charge by writing to:

me with loans for books and things when I needed it — particularly tuition." she sadly recounted to me.

Mrs. Jones also played the piano for and taught at St. John's Vacation Bible School which she enjoyed immensely.

Last, I asked Mrs. Jones what did she think of the future of black people in Des Moines. "Some will come back into the community and some will always stick to the suburbs. We have the richest land in the city in our neighborhoods — at first we were tickled to get away from the inner city when the freeway came through and urban renewal but now after the government bought black peoples homes for nothing — 3-4 thousand dollars and are making a mint — we see we gave our precious land away for nothing." she lamented to me. We then discussed the trends of whites to move their homes and businesses back to the inner city and how we should too and also of the dangerous conservative climate in the nation as particularly seen in the defeats of numerous black political candidates. Mrs. Jones political awareness and astuteness amazed and gladdened my heart. If anyone should write a history of the black man and woman in Des Moines Josephine Jones would be a rich source of knowledge and also one of the main characters in the book.

BITS AND PIECES

Most readers search the papers for good information ... worthwhile beneficial information.

This week's column will be bits and pieces of just that. First, A Tip On Cooking Greens,

All day cooking is out says Erma Boston: Here's all you do. Wash greens thoroughly of course, cut your greens in small quantities, place in hot skillet of cooking oil (no water) season with garlic powder, seasoning salt etc., your preference. Next we replace our usual ham hocks, salt pork with plain bacon bits you get in a jar - 15-20 minutes, you've got something going for you. If you like hot pepper add it. Outa sight! I've tried it and it works.

Stress

Many of us have experienced severe stress and are really bewildered as to how to handle it. Psychologist - Authors Robert Woolfolk and Frank Richards, writers of the book Stress, Sanity and Survival, have listed several ways to combat stress, so I'll pass them on to you. Planning. Disorganization tends to bring a lot of stress. Have fun. Find a pastime which is absorbing and enjoyable to you. Be positive. Stop criticizing and look for good points in folk, it really takes less energy. Be tolerant. Avoid unnecessary competition. Compete your own skills, trying to improve them. Don't compete just for the sake of being No. 1. Exercise. Realize that you are not perfect.

Hope it works for you. Another wish for the New Year—may you have enough happiness to keep you sweet; enough trials to keep you strong; enough sorrow to keep you human; enough failure to keep you humble; enough success to keep you eager; enough friends to give you comfort; enough faith and courage in yourself; your business and your country to vanish depression; enough wealth to meet your needs; enough determination to make each day better than yesterday. Pontiac, which recently had a violent uprising against inhumane conditions which led to the deaths of three people. Oh, you of so little faith, would I do anything to hurt my brother who has "suffered enough".

No I will not let him do life in prison! I will fight for justice in his case with every weapon at my disposal. I have never been a good liar, but I am very good at telling the truth. And the truth will set him free!!!

I have fallen in love again and I really don't want to go to jail because it would hurt her, my family, friends and supporters. But if this becomes necessary, I'll do it. If it takes my incarceration to save him from doing life I'll do it!!! My conscience will not allow me to do otherwise.

This is General Saadiq's last street campaign. I promise that. I love my people in the streets but if I am to accomplish some concrete objectives I got to leave the streets alone. I am strictly a misdemeanor man.

I love being incarcerated for "Speakin' Out" but felonies are out of my line. Thank you for your support while I was in jail. Now I need your help to get justice for Freddie. I repeat: This is General Saadiq's last street campaign! Once this campaign is over I will be free to devote my energy to the formation of the Afro - American Development Corporation (ADC), which is in its initial stages.

I have been a "field niggah" long enough to never forget my roots and now its time I entered the house. But never let it be said that General Saadiq deserted his troops in the heat of battle.

This blend of aged whiskies neither overpowers the mixer nor gets lost in the drink. Soft Whiskey does what any whiskey does, only softer.
