Toni Cade Bambara Receives Simpson's Carver Award

Author Toni Cade Bambara has been selected to receive the 1979 George Washington Carver Distinguished Afro - American Lecturer Award at Simpson College, Indianola, college officials have announced.

Bambara, who also has served as teacher and consultant in many capacities, will give the sixth annual Carver address at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, in Pote Theatre of Simpson's Blank Performing Arts Center.

Sponsored by the Ethnic and Minority Studies Program, the Office of Minority Affairs and the Simpson Forum, the talk is open free to the public.

Works by Bambara include an anthology of literature by black women, "The Black Woman," which is the first of its kind. According to Dr. Regina Blackburn, assistant professor and director of Simpson's Ethnic and Minority Studies Program.

A new novel by Bambara entitled "The Salt Eaters" will be published in February, 1980, by Random House, Dr. Blackburn added.

Other published works by Bambara include numerous short stories — "Gorilla, My Love" and "The Seabirds Are Still Alive and Other Stories."

Named for the noted black scientist who attended Simpson in the 1890's, the Carver Award is intended to recognize persons for their personal achievements and their work at improving race relations in society. Recipients are selected by a committee composed of college officials and faculty members.

A graduate of Queens College, where she majored in theatre arts and English literature, Bambara holds a masters degree in modern American Literature from City College of New York. She now lives in Atlanta, Ga.

Besides theatre, her arts training includes dance, film and crafts. Her experience also includes radio and television work and many readings for schools, factories, prisons and events.

Her teaching positions have included: part-time instructor, Atlanta University School of Social Work and Atlanta Junior College English department, 1977-78; artist-in-residence, Spelman College,

1977-78; visiting professor, Atlanta University, Afro - American Studies

Program, 1975-76; artist-in-residence, Stephens College, 1975; visiting professor of the African American Studies Department, Duke University, 1974; assistant professor, English department, Livingston College and Rutgers University, 1970-71, associate

Little Miss Black Pageant October 14

The 4th Annual Little Miss Black Des Moines Pageant will be presented Sunday, October 14, 1979 at 7:00 p.m. in the Fort Des Moines Hotel.

The seven candidates and last years winner are eagerly awaiting, to display ten weeks of learning, drilling, talking and of having just plain fun.

The staff at the Mid - City Library and the pastor and members of Bethel A.M.E. Church have extended their hospitality unnumberable times, by allowing the candidates to utilize their facilities for rehearsals and meetings. Community Center facilities costs were too high, the church and library services were free.

During their sessions the candidates studied black history modeling, leadership development skills and black awareness. They were the guests of a Bethel A.M.E. Church service, where they sang, "Jesus Loves the Little Children," and they are planning a party at Happy Joe's Pizza Parlor and they will be the featured special guest on Dolph's Cartoon Corner, Friday, October 12, 1979.

The last three pageants have been very instrumental in the developmental stages of the pageant. Past experience each year has proven a very effective tool for each program. Several community residents and business' have played a total part in the development of the pageant, through financial and social contributions.

On the other hand several people have

National Achievement Scholarship Semifinalists

Names of some 1,500 Semifinalists in the Sixteenth annual (1980) National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students are being announced today. More than 60,000 black students entered the Achievement Program by taking the 1978 PSAT/ NMSQT and requesting consideration in the 1980 Achievement Scholarship competition.

The Semifinalists named today are the highest - scoring black students in each of several regional selection units (each composed of a group of states), designated in numbers proportional to a region's Negro population. Only these Semifinalists will continue in the competition for about 650 Achievement Scholarships to be awarded next spring for college undergraduate study.

In Des Moines, Julie B James from Hoover High School and Sherry

L. Haskins from Lincoln High School qualified as semifinalists.

To advance in the competition, Semifinalists must meet a number of additional requirements and become Finalists. About 1,200 Semifinalists are expected to become Achievement Program Finalists and be considered for awards in 1980.

"Having identified these highly motivated and able black youth, the program's efforts will now be centered upon increasing their educational opportunities and providing scholarships for as many as possible of the most outstanding," stated L. C. McMillan who is responsible for the general management of the Achievement Program. "It is our hope that public recognition of these young men and women will assist them in gaining admission and whatever financial aid they may need to attend a college of their choice and, subsequently, to pursue careers in which their talents can be fully utilized."

About 325 of the awards in 1980 will be National Achievement $1000 Scholarships that provide a one - time payment of $1,000 to each winner. All Achievement Program Finalists will compete for these scholarships that are awarded on a regional representation basis. The additional 325 Achievement Scholarships will be renewable awards that are either corporate - or college - sponsored and worth between $1,000 and $6,000 (or more) over four years of college undergraduate study. Finalists who are candidates for four - year scholarships must meet preferential criteria that sponsors establish.

Achievement Scholarships are financed by grants from

IEWS and REVIEWS

by Allen Ashby

The big news now is that a black high school football player was shot in Boston and is paralyzed from the neck down. Officials all over the city including the police are rushing to declare the shooting "not racially motivated."

Now, just who do they think is going to buy that line. Just like when a guy buys a house in a white neighborhood and returns from work to find it burned to the ground, and that isn't racially motivated either.

That is the really big trouble with race relations in the northern half of the country. People will file what they call reverse discrimination suits and say that race has nothing to do with it. "It's the principle of it."

Where in hell was this principle when I couldn't get away from broom pushing or shoe shining, and couldn't even think about joining a union? People all over the north just refuse to admit that they have a race problem even now.

How often have you heard some affluent person say of discrimination, "That is all behind us now. You can do anything you want to now." Even when we were schffling like hell to get into stores and restaurants and such, leaders in northern cities were saying there was no race problem in that city.

That was true of Des Moines. This city never has looked the problem of getting along between races squarely in the eye. They have skulked around it by addressing it to some of the most affluent blacks that they call leaders, and take whatever they say as gospel.

To their credit, those blacks sometimes speak out.

So it is in Boston. If when the trouble first started, there had been some determined effort to quell things, things might be different and we would not have had that shooting. But instead people ran for offices such as council and mayor by fanning the flames of discontent among whites, and now those flames have come home for all to see.

So all they can say is, "It can't be racial, when they know damned well it is."

NIGERIA: AN AFRICAN STATE IN TRANSITION

Perhaps Nigeria's greatest problem, to which the armed forces contribute heavily, is the economy. In 1974-75, when the Third National Development Plan was being drafted, it was estimated that Nigeria's foreign exchange reserves would rise annually by nearly 5 billion dollars, and General Gowon felt it was unnecessary to place restrictions on the foreign exchange process. Because of the growth potential of the economy at that time, all levels of government and many private citizens engaged in huge and uncontrolled importing. By 1976, largely because of this activity, Nigeria began to run a deficit in its balance of trade (importing more than exporting). Instead of accumulating the large foreign exchange currency reserves it had anticipated, Nigeria was forced to borrow 1.75 billion dollars from foreign financial institutions in 1978 to cover the growing deficit. During the 1974-75 fiscal year alone, for example, the trade deficit amounted to some 200 million dollars. At the same time, an annual inflation rate of 43 percent made life difficult if not impossible for the average Nigerian who got little if any benefit from the oil revenues his country was accumulating.

Public spending contracts involved commitments far beyond the revenue capabilities of Nigeria's exports, so massive reductions in spending have had to be instituted. One of the biggest items in that spending has been the armed forces.

Nigeria's 250,000 man army has been a huge and unnecessary source of public capital expenditure in the period since the civil war ended in 1970. For example, between 1970 and 1974, 35 percent of the capital expenditures made went to the military, with salaries representing nearly 90 percent of that figure. Maintenance of an army of that size is logically defensible only if the nation is at war or is threatened with war; here, however, the army serves only as a grim reminder of that conflict with Biafra in which so many died. The money used to maintain this massive and unnecessary force could better be utilized to train the people so critically needed to carry out the nation's development plans. Several years ago, it was estimated that the Nigerian governmental structure is in need of some 6,000 senior level and 1,300 middle level employees. It was also said that a critical shortage of teachers exists which may have to be filled by foreigners, as the federal government promised to provide compulsory, universal free primary education by the end of the decade. So long as a major portion of the army is not demobilized, the federal government, whether military or civilian, will not be able to deal effectively with the variety of serious social and economic problems Nigeria faces.

Thus we have seen both a history of and an insight into the future of military government in Nigeria. There is ample evidence of some of the reasoning motivating the planned turnover of power to the popularly elected civilian government on October 1st. Of the factors motivating the use of such a remedy listed at the beginning of this series of articles, characteristics of at least three of the four are present. There has been considerable division in the ranks of the military over a variety of issues, not the least of which is the advisability of civilian government itself. There is also considerable of the poor state of the Nigerian economy and the part that this unnecessarily large army plays in that condition. The resistance to military rule has also been discussed. Ethnic group opposition was the factor which was at the root of the attempted succession of Biafra from the rest of Nigeria in the late 1960's, and the organization of the Ibos in that effort is unquestioned. Further, the efforts of the political parties and other basically ethnically organized political groups to bring back civilian rule, through the press or otherwise, have also been a significant factor in that decision. When the military took power on January 15, 1966, many Nigerians felt that the army would correct the abuses of the previous civilian government. The young army officers who attempted that coup stated that it was their mission to clean up the country. But the army has been in power now for nearly 14 years, but their mission has yet to be accomplished. The underlying reason for that failure and the social discontent that has accompanied it is the deep set and widespread corruption that initially plagued the civilian regime and has continued to this day to undermine the efforts of the military government to create a means which will allow ordinary Nigerians to enjoy the fruits of their nations wealth. This proclivity toward corruption is not limited to the military, but extends to many other Nigerians, who often regard the practice as a means of sharing that wealth. This corruption, which flourished under the leadership of Gowon and has been stifled or eliminated entirely by

Our New Day Begun

Rhodesian Sanctions

By Benjamin L. Hooks

President Carter's dilemma on the Rhodesian sanctions question was understandable. Confused over the many explosive issues in the struggle for genuine majority rule in the former British colony, many white Americans (and even some blacks) simply opted for the easy course. Not only were they not interested in Africa's development in the first place, but the inclination to go to the "rescue" of the privileged white minority seemed the only natural thing to do.

So, led in Congress by such conservatives as Senators Jesse Helms of North Carolina and S. I. Hayakawa of California, they stepped up the pressure on President Carter to lift unilaterally sanctions against that troubled country in violation of the United Nations Security Council imposed economic and military embargo.

The NAACP strongly opposed the lifting of those sanctions and will continue to do so given present realities. The NAACP expressed this opposition before a hearing of the House Subcommittee on Africa on the question.

The NAACP is convinced that the so-called internal settlement and the Rhodesian constitution that was master-minded by the Ian Smith government will provide no lasting solution to the problem of white minority rule there. Likewise, the recent elections that resulted in Bishop Abel Muzorewa's election as Prime Minister was equally unfair. It requires no deep wisdom to see how flagrantly the handful of white residents in Rhodesia continue to flaunt the will of the majority citizens and the international community.

Specifically, we note that the so-called constitution which was adopted by less than four percent of the population in a white-only election last January guarantees that the European settlers will continue to control the military, the police, the civil service and the judiciary. Needless to say, these are the primary centers of power.

In addition, the allocation of 28 of 100 seats in the Rhodesian parliament to whites and the concrete guarantees of absolute veto power provided them mocks any rational claim to genuine majority rule.

The concrete guarantees given to the white four percent of the population that their control over nearly 50% of the country's prime land will continue under the interim settlement only perpetuates a grave injustice in Rhodesia.

The widely publicized steps taken last October to abolish statutory racial discrimination only ensures that another form of injustice will continue. For, replacing overt discrimination has been a system of economic and cultural requirements which effectively continue to assure racial dominance by the white minority.

In effect, the internal Rhodesian settlement is a sham and a farce. These steps very sadly represent a myopic attempt to solve a problem that demands an honest recognition of genuine realities. And these realities are that nothing short of genuine majority rule for the people of the region will provide for a lasting, peaceful settlement of the rapidly spreading conflicts there.

Americans who understand the full extent of the President's dilemma must applaud his forthright rejection on June 7 of demands to lift sanctions. He vowed as he announced his decision to "do everything I can within my power" to prevent Congress from moving on its own to lift sanctions.

Mr. Carter deserves our support. The U.S. government must be pressed to develop a meaningful and lasting policy on the continent that recognizes the interests of African nations, especially those on whom this country's actions will have a direct impact, as well as our own. With South Africa's strong support, the sanctions battle will intensify in the Congress.

For Congress to do anything other than support the President, however, would be to place the U.S. on a very dangerous and self-defeating path that will surely lead to failure similar to Vietnam.

Opinion

Edna Griffin

It cost the government $1 million dollars to build one Huey helicopter. The same $1 million dollars could build 66 low-cost houses.

The $57.6 million that it costs to build three F14 fighter aircraft could build and staff 18 health centers to treat 40,000 people.

The $300,000 it costs to train one military pilot could provide child care for 300 working mothers.

This information from the Public Interest Group in Michigan was confirmed by a report from the United Nations Association. A panel headed by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Atlantic Richfield Corporation President Thornton F. Bradshaw found that a reduction in defense outlays can benefit the U.S. economy if the money is used to meet social needs.

They cite U.S. Department of Labor studies showing that civilian spending generates more jobs than military spending. By contrast, most of the dollars spent by the Pentagon find their way into the inflated profit accounts and enormous executive salaries of a very few individuals and corporations.

"Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies, in a final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold are not clothed.... "This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children..." Dwight D. Eisenhower said that in 1953.

These are some compelling reasons we, the people of these United States need SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty). Neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union (Russia or USSR) can continue the arms race even though not a single warhead is fired. Military hardware is absolutely of no use to the worker and meets none of the needs of his/her family.

At present, 31% of every tax dollar goes to the military. The 'tax bite' will become even larger if the arms race continues. SALT II with all its weaknesses will at least provide time for the development of alternatives to war and to the arms race.

Friday, Sept. 28, I was a delegate to Community Forum, project of the Stanley Foundation, co-sponsored and hosted by the United Nations Association in Des Moines. There were four round table discussions; International Trade, Energy, Food his successors, gives some indication of the inability (or unwillingness) of the military governments to make decisions or take stands on questions crucial to the political order of the country because of it. By failing to restore the civilian government when it had been promised in the past, the military has undermined its own credibility and has thereby lost the authority it needs to be able to act decisively. Regardless of that, the Nigerian military is still, on the whole, the most potent social, political and economic force in Nigeria today, and its sentiments are the most compelling element in the country's political future. Whatever direction the political framework of the country evolves, there is no question that the armed forces will and must be behind it.

Candidates At Forum

A Community Forum to provide a full discussion of the issues by the mayoral and city council candidates as well as the candidates in the special senatorial election in district 31 is being sponsored by the Black Coalition, and will be held Monday, October 8 at 8:00 P.M. The Community Forum will be held at the Gateway Center Auditorium, 801 Forest Avenue, Des Moines.

Candidates will be allowed to respond to specific questions relating their candidacy to the interests of the black community. Following the question and answer session, the Black Coalition will poll the community residents to determine which candidates the community residents will endorse in the mayoral, council and senatorial elections.

The Community Forum will serve, in effect, as a "mini-convention." Interested persons are urged to come Gateway Center, Inc., on Monday, October 8 at 8:00 P.M.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

A Sign-up Day for Senior Citizens to obtain reduced fare MTA Bus Cards has been set for Monday, October 8 from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. at Mid City Library at 1305 University Avenue.

Social Security numbers and proof of age will be needed.

and Agricultural Policy. I chose to attend the fourth, American Business and Defense Spending. This round table was very enlightening under the joint leadership of Betty Lall, Cornell University, and A. Arthur Davis, President, Greater Des Moines Chamber of Commerce.

Prof. Betty Lall impressed me as well-informed in the area of defense contracts and their impacts on the economy. Studies show that states such as Iowa do not receive defense contracts in terms of the amount of tax dollars going to the federal government. This means a smaller number of employees are involved in the defense plants.

Collins Radio is an exception. The moving of the plant has created unemployed workers faced with moving or seeking jobs in other industries. These unemployed are faced with losing such benefits as group health insurance and other benefits provided by the company. Examples were given of displacement of those employed by sub-contractors in the defense industries.

Workers are laid off without notice when the particular contract is complete unless another has been procured. Until the peace movement tackled the problem of job security, it has been difficult to build a coalition with labor. Conversion planning is now receiving some attention from at least the leadership of unions.

Economic conversion legislation is receiving attention by those Congress people in districts with defense plants and bases facing possibilities of closing. Planning conversion in advance at the national and local level, state and national are the objectives in support of slowing the arms race. Sens. McGovern (D-SD) and Mathias (R-CT) along with Rep. Weiss (D-NY) have reintroduced the Defense Economic Adjustment Act (S 1031) and (HR 4436).

The DEAA requires preparation of alternative use plans for military facilities prior to closing and provides retraining and adjustment assistance to workers affected by layoffs.

It is, of course, understood, this new idea focusing on job security requires help in conversion by the company to producing consumer goods and services needed.

Congresspersons must be urged to support conversion to peacetime needs by those in his district, primarily, and be ready to demonstrate to the community that conversion to peace-time needs will be subsidized by national and local governments.

No longer is war a pathway to prosperity.

Vaughn Capture's First Urban Y Golf Title

Tom Vaughn former Iowa State All American, Detroit Lions football star captured the first Annual Inter - Urban golf tournament, Sponsored by the Urban YMCA. Vaughn stroked a 132 for 27 holes to edge Steve Carson and Richard Johnson by one stroke. Mike Williams marled down 4th by one stroke over Urban Executive Director Jack Johnson.

The tournament was held Sunday Sept. 31th at Terrace Hills golf course in Altoona on probably the best day weather wise of the fall season. Each player walked 27 holes to determine a champion, awards were given to the first four places.

Jack Johnson, Director of the Urban Branch, called the meet a success and plans to expand the tourney to a larger field next year. "This year was kind of a Experiment with a small field (8) I think everyone entered had a good time in the spirit of friendly competition. I plan to expand the field next year to attract all of D.M.'s finest Golfer's, I hope it will become an annual event."

The Urban YMCA's flag football league into their third week has four teams of 9 competing every Saturday morning at Good Park 10 - 12 AM. The Volunteers coach's have done an outstanding job and kids have enjoyed three prefect Saturdays to play their games.

Wrestling team will begin practicing Oct. 27th at 9:00 AM. Anyone interested in wrestling please come and join an excellent program. The team will again be coached by Vince Lewis. For further information call Walt Knox at 288 - 0131.

Jr. Pride has conducted their first meeting of the fall season. Over 35 jr. high aged youth from Calahan and Harding jr. highs participated in an tour of the YMCA and a organizational meeting. Jr. Pride has been one of the Urban Y's more popular programs for jr. high kids. They meet every Tuesday night from 7 - 8:30 PM, with activities planned throughmut the year. Any jr. high youth interested in joining call Jack Johnson at 288 - 0131. THE YMCA A GREAT IDEAL!!

The History of Halloween, sometimes called beggar's nite, because of the little masked people roaming the streets seeking treats clad in wierd garb, is the strangest of all our festivals.

The eve of Allhallows or Hallowman or All Saints Day is a solemn festival of the church, at the same time it is a nite when the ghost walk, fairies and goblins ars abroad and witchs with their broom and black cat are visible. In the Christian community Allhallows is a feast of the church celebrating all the canonized saints as well as those who have died with out receiving that honor. Outside the church it is believed Halloween is a gathering time for sanctified and unsanctified spirits. Since the church's thinking was on the spirits of the dead they found no fault in harmless pagan folk idesn — the ghost, goblins, etc.

In the early 1500's the practice of selling indulgence for the upkeep of the church by priest. and bishops was seen by some corrupt officials as a means to "grease the palm" and corruption begin to filter through the parishes. On Halloween 1517 Martin Luther posted his famous 95 theses on the church of Wittenburg attacking among other things the practice of purchasing indulgence. It was from the acts of penance prescribed by the priest in the confessional that the "trick or treat" custom evolved.

While we welcome these little masked and costumed creatures at our doors with treat in hand there was a time when a mask struck terror in the hearts of the catholic, black and Jew. The naive will tell you that an organization called Klu Klux Klan formed in 1867 was a fun and social profit group to relieve the boredom of returning Civil War soldiers. With Nathan B. Forest as its leader but the realistic knew the South was revising her strategy aiming at reducing the Negro to a sub - servient existense, to be accomplished by the boldest, ruthless operation in American history:

By stealth and murder, by economic intimidation and political assinations, by whippings, and maimings, cuttings and shootings, by the knife, by the rope, by the political use of terror, by the braining of the baby in its mothers arms, the slaying of the husband at his wifes feet, the raping of the wife before her husbands eyes, By FEAR!

A good treat for the little Halloween'ers is Carmel Apples 1 lb. vanilla carmels, 2T. water, dash of salt, 6 wooden skewers, 6 Med. crisp apples, chopped nuts. Melt carmels and water in double - boiler Stir until smooth. Add salt. Stick skewer in blossom end of apple. Dip into sirup, turning until whole apple is covered. Roll bottom half of apple in chopped nuts. Set on wax - paper covered cookie sheet. Chill.

PRAYER OF FAITH CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

"Have we got what we started with?" - Matt. 26: 41.

This Sunday was our Pastor's Wife's Day. A program rendered in honor of our Pastor's wife, Sis. M. Davis. The program was very spiritual.

Sis. Davis spoke on "Have we got what we started with?" The message she brought forward was powerful and dynamic.

Our Pastor Elder Eddie Davis and Sis. Davis celebrated their 13th Wedding Anniversary also.

Our church also attended Bishop and Sis. Basset's 3rd Anniversary at E. 17th St. Church of God in Christ. The speaker for the day was Elder Foster from Minneapolis, Minnesota.

"Lord, who shall abide in Thy tabernacle? Who shall dwell in Thy holy hill? He that walketh uprightly and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart." —Ps. 15:1,2.

Last Sunday morning, St. Paulians were privileged to hear a very stimulating sermon, "Who Is My Neighbor?" by Reverend A. I. Dunlap, Pastor of St. Matthew Church, Chicago, Illinois. Reverend Dunlap set the tone for his beautiful sermon by leading the congregation at the beginning with singing "Precious Lord Take My Hand" and at the end, "Blessed Assurance".

A Church Conference was immediately held after the morning services. It was conducted with dispatch and friendly resolutions. A Hall of Fame Church Library was established with several names entered on the roll: S. Joe Brown, Jeanne Morris, Lester Benning, Oscar Glass and Robert Dacus.

Women's Day At Corinthian

Corinthian Baptist Church, 814 School Street, Des Moines, Iowa, will celebrate ANNUAL WOMEN'S DAY on Sunday, October 21, 1979. The theme, "MINIMIZING OBSTACLES — MAXIMIZING ACCOMPLISHMENTS," will attempt to address some concerns of women (as will as men) pertaining to: spiritual wholeness; a commitment to serve; and planning for a sound future — facts and fallacies.

The two speakers for the 11:00 a.m. worship hour are: Ms. Tamera Diggs, President of the Corinthian Youth Choir and Ms. Catherine Williams, Deputy Commissioner for the Iowa Department of Social Services. Ms. Williams is a member of the St. Paul A.M.E. Church.

Guests for the afternoon (3:30 p.m.) services are the Rev. Charles E. Glover and congregation from the Mr. Zion Baptist Church in Cedar Rapids.

LOOK ON SPORTS

Well, sir, the Iowa - Iowa State game is one football game nobody will have to comment on in any weekly. There isn't one thing that could be said about it that hasn't been said.

About the only thing I might have to say is that the tone of the game was set when the Cyclones won the toss and elected to kick, thinking they could hold Iowa and get the ball in good field position. But the Hawks marched right down the field and from then on it was everything goes.

It will be hard to keep Mosely off the all - star teams unless he gets hurt or comes up with a couple of bad games. In all fairness to Iowa State, they were pretty well crippled up even before the game, and lost more valuable men during the fray.

Anyhow, the Hawks have won the rubber game and got even for the shellacking they took last year. They could win about four games before the year is over, and that would be a record. Iowa State has to get the players healthy again and they could very well slip upon somebody, not once, but perhaps twice.

Drake found out how it feels to blow a lead and lose. They were not supposed to do much with Louisville, but they had just about everybody convinced that the experts could be wrong for a half. Then the roof fell in.

Still, folks who saw it say it was worth seeing. If Iowa doesn't beat Northwestern, Coach Fry will really live up to his name.

Back at home, East kept its slate unbeaten by turning back Hoover. But they still have to get past Dowling and Valley, and both of them could be really tough. Tech won the battle for the cellar, and now you have to wonder what they and North will do. But, back to Dowling. The Maroons have begun to look like the teams that ran over the rest of the Metro for so long, so look out, East.

This isn't on football, but there were a couple of fellows inducted into the Iowa Softball Hall of Fame last Sunday. Harold Carr and Rip Collins. Carr was one of the early organizers of the Hottentots, the black team that was always in the top four teams in the state, and won the title at least once and maybe more. Collins played on some of those teams, and Carr really gained notice as an umpire in the softball league.

Did you see the fights last week? Ernie Shaver just didn't have enough left to follow up his advantage after he decked Larry Holmes. He was just too tired to do anything about it.

In my estimation, Holmes acted like a cheese champ, from the remarks he made about Shaver after the fight, and the way he kept the challenger waiting in the ring before the fight. Holmes maybe a pretty fairfighter, but he has a lot to learn about handling himself.

And whip Muhammad Ali? I am not sure he could do it now.

Dedication Set For Stone Crest Apartments

Dedication of Stone Crest Apartments, 3330 East 25th, Des Moines, will be held at 2:00 p.m., Sunday, October 7.

The apartment complex for older adults and the handicapped is sponsored by The National Benevolent Association (NBA) of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and funded by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The service of dedication will bring together national and regional leaders from the Christian Church, NBA, HUD, as well as local community and church representatives. Those attending will have an opportunity to tour the facility including individual apartments, and to interact with residents and staff.

Participating in the dedication will be several representatives from NBA including Virginia L. Hargraves, chairman, board of trustees; Paul B. Kennedy, vice president for care services for older adults; and Ronald L. Hollon, executive director, facility planning. Representing the Christian Church in the ceremonies will be Howard B. Goodrich, Jr., regional minister of the Christian Church in the upper Midwest, and Wil Dilsaver, area director of development, NBA.

Norman C. Jurgens, director, Des Moines office, HUD, and George C. Whitmer, Des Moines city council, will also have a part in the dedication.

Stone Crest participants will include Dr. Charles McKinsey, administrator; Evelyn Keeney, president of the residents' council; and H. LaVern Kinzel, president, board of directors. The invocation will be given by John Connors, elder, Capitol Hill Christian Church. The apartments are located just off Interstate 235 and East Euclid and adjacent to the Capitol Hill Church.

The complex, which opened June 1, contains 107 apartments, all of which are currently occupied. Ten are specially constructed to accommodate the handicapped. It is, according to Administrator McKinsey, an excellent example of the church and government working together to meet a common concern — housing for older adults and the handicapped.

Iowa Air Guard Goes To England

The Iowa Air National Guard 132nd Tactical Fighter Wing commanded by Colonel P. M. Thompson, recently returned from a 25 day deployment to England.

The exercise, called operation "Coronet Stallion," was a NATO assignment and a part of the armed service "total force concept," whereby selected National Guard and Reserve units are trained to move on short notice to trouble spots anywhere in the world to augment the regular forces.

The 132nd was sent to Royal Air Force Base Waddington in Lincolnshire, England, about 125 miles north of London. While there Iowa Guard personnel worked with their British counterparts.

The nearly 400 Guard members and 18 aircraft were airlifted from Des Moines and flown almost 4000 miles to RAF Waddington. Within a period of 48 hours, all personnel and equipment were on station and prepared to meet any threat of hostility, which to Europeans is very real. In all, over 300 missions were flown and the deployment was considered a success.

While the hours were long and the work hard, Guard members still found time for relaxation and sight seeing. Not only in London and Nottingham (Robin Hood's home), but also such distant places as Scotland, Ireland, Germany, Amsterdam and Paris, France.

Among the Des Moines Guard members on the deployment were Sergeant Ed Bayles, Security Policeman;

IOWA FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

The Fifth District of Iowa Federated Women will hold its eighty - third annual fall meeting at the First Methodist Church in Perry, Iowa on Monday, October 8. Mrs. Dwayne Van Oort, county chairman of Polk, announces that women from thirteen counties will attend to hear messages from their state officers and to attend workshops which will enable them to further their work in Federation.

Mrs. Ralp Cottier, Director of the Domestic Violence Center of Des Moines, will present an explanation of the Center's program. This program will help the clubs in their study of prevention of domestic violence. Domestic violence has become a growing problem in the United States and is not confined to any one segment of our society.
