Bursted Bubbles: Positive Aspects Of Loneliness

By Niambi D. Webster

"Alone again, naturally..." echoes the lyric's playing softly from your stereo as Ertha Kitt pours out her heart in sweet, mixed melancholic ranges. You sit quietly on your sofa thinking ... another evening home, alone.

At first you wondered why you said the things you did ... You really didn't mean them, yet, you knew how and what to say to make it hurt. The sting, it had to hit him hard, after all he had placed you in a light bubble daring you to burst.

It had finally happened you couldn't hold it in any longer, it had to come out, front and center, no holding back. You'd given him enough time to come in and join the floatation, yet, this time he blew too hard and over extended his bounds and landed in the wrong territory, your heart.

Bio-chemist and medical doctors insist that the function of the heart is to act as a force pump, maintaining the circulation of the blood. It keeps you moving intellectually and emotionally in different directions. Although your heart was still doing it's thing, you would have sworn on a stack of Bibles — had you been properly sworn in — that your heart had ceased all major functioning.

Ten women react to those tender and agonizing moments when faced with the decision of living with the realities of the bursted bubbles. We all generally agreed upon at least two different types of loneliness that thousand of women experience daily.

We experience loneliness even if partners, lovers, friends and live-ins are present in the home. Secondly, even with the responsibilities of one or all of the following combinations; marriage, single parent, career woman or all three, the emptiness felt at different periods in our lives still occur. Although we all associated loneliness with the inner-feelings of emptiness and the loss of or absence of a lover, the discovery of additional feelings led us to the realization that by dealing with bursted bubbles — bursted bubbles is the end of what was thought to be a complete, satisfying, unscarred and 360 degree of Utopia living — our lives did not end.

In fact, the pleasure of being able to start over, re-group and try it again, added more meaning to our lives, our values changed and our strength endured beyond conceivable relief.

THE PERFECT BUBBLES

No two women are alike. We are all different and should be loved and treated with respect. Often times we wear many hats and masks instead of make-up, to cover the Loneliness

Poor People's Congress Sept. 19, 20

The Red Rock Area Community Action Program, Inc. (RRACAP) has announced plans to conduct a statewide "Poor People's Congress" for low income Iowans. Red Rock Community Action will be cooperating with eighteen other community agencies in an effort to involve low income citizens in issues that effect their families and communities.

The project will begin with a workshop held at the United Rubber Workers Hall, 125 NW Broadway, Des Moines, Iowa, on August 12, 1980 from 6-10 p.m. At that meeting sixteen delegates will be selected to attend the statewide conference to be held in Des Moines in September 19 & 20. A federal grant has enabled Red Rock Community Action to pay delegates' expenses for the two-day Des Moines conference.

"We believe that low income Iowans should have more to say about government policies and programs that directly effect their lives," said Rev. Everett Laning, Chairman of the Red Rock Community Action Program, Inc. Board of Directors. "This project is designed to get more people involved in the decision making process and to inform low income citizens how they can make a difference."

Issues addressed at the conference will include housing, health, food, welfare, employment, utilities, taxes and elderly problems. Delegates will be trained at the community workshops to debate these issues.

"The platform that is developed at this congress will be presented to members of

Flagg Wins Council Election

Attorney George Flagg defeated five other candidates for the at-large Des Moines City Council seat up for election August 5.

Flagg of 3101 Onandaga Point, will replace Willie Glanton in the seat left vacant by the death of Russ LaVine. Flagg received 8,475 votes to Glanton's 7,192 votes. Glanton, the council's first black member, was appointed to fill LaVine's seat.

Rosemarie Ward received 1,999 votes, Robert Nuzum 642 votes, Harry Matney 505 votes and Sandra Gallahan 340 votes.

This Saturday afternoon, August 9th at 2:30, Artist Shirley Rushing, dancer/teacher/choreographer is performing at the Des Moines Art Center. Rushing's last appearance at the Art Center was with Director Rod Rodgers and Guillibeau, member of Rod Rodgers Dance Company.

The afternoon program is without charge. There will be a reception immediately following the performance, hosted by Supporting Friends of Gateway Dance Theatre.

IEWS and REVIEWS

by Allen Ashby

The race for the vacant seat on the city council is over, and Willie Glanton finished second. People who have been saying for years that no black could ever be elected to the city council are saying, "I told you so." and other people have done the usual rush act to let it be known that "racism played no part whatsoever in the election."

Maybe it wasn't the major issue, but anybody who can think knows that whenever a black candidate runs against a white field, there has to be some racism. It isn't discussed publicly, but it is there, and everybody knows it.

The big thing is that people don't very often vote for something, but against it. Thus people who didn't want Glanton on the council for whatever reason voted maybe ninety percent, while most of those who really wanted to see her elected didn't bother to vote.

And the black vote? Well, I am just guessing, but I think there are about five or six thousand black people of voting age in the city, and maybe a third of them are registered voters. Then I don't believe that more than a fourth of them actually vote, if that many do.

I recall that four years ago I personally took thirty five people to register to vote in a city election. Later I checked on them to see how many were voting on election day would you believe it? just three of them voted.

I never got so many excuses for anything as I did then. Forgot, Registered now, will vote next time, and so many more that it is hard to believe that they came from so many different people. Now, let something come up that might effect black people in the city and City Hall will be packed with black people protesting.

I am always scared that some councilman is going to ask how many of them have really voted. They would probably all say yes, and there would be no way of checking on them then. But until we all get out and vote for the things we want and believe in, we will continue to get the short end of things.

True, we are pretty well scattered around the city, but if we all voted, the increase in voting totals would make a showing. In a close race, that might make the difference.

If there was some way to vote against the city manager; I would mount a campaign against him. It seems to me that he is against just about everything that will help minorities.

Willkie House, is just one of the projects that he would cut out, in spite of the fact that it is a real factor in the neighborhood. The cry is that there isn't enough money to go around. But somehow the money shortage doesn't seem to hit the projects that Manager Willkie favors. To say that the man is anti anything might be wrong, so I will just say that he is very conservative, and wants to hang onto his job by saving the city money.

He also thinks that he can cut the people who have the least clout in the city, and thus look like a real moneysaver while making sure that the people who are powerful don't get shortchanged, no matter what the cost to the old, black and other minorities.

But if I ever made it to the council chamber as a councilman, Wilkie would have to go.

The New Immigrants: Haiti the Historical Background

The war with France had laid waste to the island and its economy. In 1795, by the Treaty of Basel, Spain gave its remaining territory on the island to France, although the on-going wars in Europe at that time prevented a formal transfer of possession.

Thus, the unification and liberation of the island took place on January 1, 1804, when Dessalines proclaimed it to be a free and independent nation. Although Dessalines, an ex-slave who was also a general in the revolution, was quickly named governor for life of the island, his aspirations of royalty drove him to assume the title of Jacques the First, emperor of Haiti, in October of that same year.

His reign was short lived, as he was assassinated on October 17, 1806, while trying to suppress a mulatto revolt. A republic was then proclaimed and Henri Christopher (1787-1820) was chosen to be its first President. Like Dessalines, Christopher quickly proclaimed himself to be King of Haiti on June 2, 1811, under the title of Henri the First.

Petion, the mulatto leader who had participated so extensively in the revolution to defeat the French, had consistently opposed Christopher and worked to defeat him, instigated a civil war between the blacks in northern Haiti led by Christopher and the mulattos of the South, which he controlled. In 1808, largely with British help, Spanish rule was restored in the eastern part of the island, and Petion was elected president of the independent republic created in that portion of Haiti. The northern part of Haiti remained a kingdom under the rule of Christopher, with the rest of the island continuing as a republic under Petion.

Christopher governed his part of the island quite brutally. He created a sort of black nobility who lived in splendor, on massive plantations, but also managed to improve the kingdoms' economy. This was, as you might guess, done at the expense of the lives of thousands of black peasants who were forced to work on those plantations. He also did much in the way of road construction, the promotion of agriculture, and the established many schools.

He turned the vast plain behind his capital of Cap-Haitien into a fertile field of sugarcane hundreds of square miles in area, and built two famous buildings which stand as monuments to his brief rule: his palace of Sans-Souci and the Citadelle Laferriere (fortress) high on a mountain top overlooking the capital city.

These accomplishments also came at the expense of thousands of poor blacks who were forced to construct and tend to them, and resentment grew within the Kingdom. Christopher committed suicide in that fortress on October 8, 1820, with mutinous soldiers almost at his door, according to Haitian legend, he shot himself with a bullet molded of pure gold or silver but this has never been factually substantiated. Interestingly, Christopher's career and demise gave the American playwright, Eugene O'Neill the theme of his play entitled 'The Emperor Jones.'

His rival, Petion, founded a secondary school in his capital of Port-au-Prince, and distributed public lands to the mulatto officers and men of the Haitian patriot army which had brought him to power, setting them up as the first small landowners, replacing the great plantations of the old regime. He died, of natural causes on March 29, 1818, still occupying the office of president.

At Petions death, Jean-Pierre Bayer (1776-1850) succeeded to the presidency of the mulatto southern Haiti, but became president of the western portion of

A Black Look At Politics

William S. Morris

Well, as most of you probably know, Willie Glanton lost in her bid to become Des Moines first black elected to the City Council. Though she was eminently qualified and experienced, Ms. Glanton was defeated by Attorney George Flagg in a relatively close race.

In a speech at the Hotel Fort Des Moines, Willie discounted racism as a factor in her defeat. Say what you will, I do believe that the "paint job", as it were, enabled many whites to rationalize voting for Rosemarie Ward, though she finished a distant third.

Indeed, I think it quite probable that, had Ward not run, Glanton would have retained enough white "liberal" support to whip Flagg. But, that remains mere conjecture at best.

The reality of the situation is that blacks and the poor must learn to work within the bounds of political conservatism. This is not to say that disadvantaged citizens should "bow down" to the policies of the so-called "fiscally responsible".

Rather, the poor and elderly must learn how to systematically attack proposals up for consideration before the Council. Minorities and citizens groups must research the policies in question, in order that their spokesmen be able to attack, point by point, the proposed ordinances and/or laws.

The best of all worlds would be the formation of research teams who could study controversial proposals before they reach the Council. This can be done in this state, it has been done in the past, and it is currently being done in Iowa City.

That city's branch of the NAACP has demonstrated how a handful of dedicated individuals, black and white, can battle discrimination and injustice, by being prepared.

Getting back to the Des Moines City Council situation, while it is evident that George Flagg is a hard-line conservative, and received most of the late Russ LaVine's southside support, I don't think he should be branded a reactionary.

Flagg is not a blatant racist, as was LaVine, but many of his views are definitely anti-minority in effect. Whatever one thinks of Flagg, he will now have to be contended with, regardless of political ideology.

But enough on the City Council and Des Moines for a while. Many political observers (myself included) have pointed to a conservative political tide sweeping the nation. Accusations of neo-fascism and reactionism have been levelled at the 1980 Republican Party Platform. The Ku-Klux Klan recently endorsed the G-O-P plank and its Presidential candidate, Ronald Reagan, as being supportive of white supremacy and worthy of a group who would destroy all citizens of color.

Despite this, Reagan has tried to appeal to black voters by offering "jobs, jobs, and more jobs". While there is certainly nothing wrong with this, Reagan neglected to mention Republican plans to reduce Federal authority in many areas most salient for blacks, the poor, and the elderly, and return supervision of these programs to the states (along with more tax revenues).

We all know that the fifty states have traditionally been the most flagrant violators of minority civil rights in this country, yet there are those blacks who (wrong-headedly) support this drive! Jimmy Carter may have his faults, but realistically he's all black Americans have this year.

Polls state that, if the election were held today,

Ronald Reagan would defeat Jimmy Carter by a considerable margin. Yet, as November draws closer, you can bet Reagans lead will shrink, and the race will be neck-and-neck, just as it was in 1976.

While I would not go so far as to brand all conservatives racists or fascists, many clearly embody the principles of hatred and disunion. Thus it is here in Iowa.

First, we lost Dick Clark in a close race with Roger Jepsen, who, while keeping a low profile on non-agricultural (farm) issues, has clearly aligned himself with senate members who have long histories (and voting records) of anti-civil rights, anti-minority, and anti-affirmative action activities.

Indeed, the likes of Senators Orrin Hatch, Barry Goldwater, Strom Thurmond and many others, conjure up visions of the Fourth Reich. Similarly, Tom Stoner, a Republican moderate, lost to the neo-conservative Charles Grassley, in the race of the G-O-P Iowa Senate nomination.

Unless incumbent Democrat John Culver goes all out, he too will be defeated. I must admit that Culver is running an odd campaign. While he must appeal to Iowa's rural voters, it seems he is ignoring traditional liberal Democratic groups like labor unions and civil rights organizations. Taking

The defeat of Willie Glanton for an at-large seat in the city council is a harsh reality to face. Let us not, however, make the mistake of blaming ourselves.

The reason or possible reasons are not that simple in my opinion. First it is reasonable to consider that this is George Flagg's fourth try. A casual remark of Councilman Flagg surfaced to haunt me several days before the special election.

He remarked that he was a long time friend and supporter of Russ Lavine. The implication seemed to be that Flagg was the proper person to replace his deceased friend. It is my understanding there were two councilmen actively supporting the Flagg campaign along with Russ Lavine's widow. That, of course, was perfectly legal.

I am suggesting that Flagg benefited from the highly organized network of Lavine supporters. Most are supposedly against "the establishment" and tainted with Lavine racism, in my opinion.

They are to be found in the city and the suburbs of both the eastside and the westside. The quiet, low key campaign, poor George, life-long friend of Russ Lavine and three times a loser, deserves the at-large city council seat. 'Later' for the highly visible, establishment-supported Willie Glanton!

It must be admitted that special local elections fail to get out the vote unless there is a highly controversial burning issue which was lacking Tuesday. Perhaps I am wrong in harboring the aggravating notion that some Blacks also assumed the high visibility of the Glanton campaign meant she had it 'made' and didn't need their votes.

There is no need to blame ourselves. I would find extreme difficulty in trying to explain to the unemployed why they should vote. We have no right to criticize until we have provided block by block organization and education on how to make your individual vote really count.

That, I think, is an important lesson of the Glanton defeat. Nothing must be taken for granted next time. Yes, there'll be a next time. We must work harder.

Thank you, Willie Glanton, for running for office. I'm sure it isn't easy. Rest and return to battle.

THOUGHTS AND COMMENTS

the island upon the death of Christopher when he reunited the two independent states. He held this office for some 23 years, being forced to resign during the revolution of 1843. The people of the eastern, or Spanish ruled part (since 1808) of the island rebelled, against Spain and declared itself to be independent in December of 1822, and Boyer led an army of 20,000 men to invade.

Boyer conquered the eastern part of the island and vanquished the Spanish from Santo Domingo, confiscating church property and again abolishing slavery, and declared the entire island to be the Republic of Haiti.

It was to so remain until a revolution began there in 1843, when the Haitians were expelled by that popular uprising and the former Spanish colony declared itself to be the Dominican Republic. It was during Boyers' presidency, on April 17, 1825, that France formally recognized Haitian independence, in return for an indemnity of nearly 100,000,000 francs, to be paid at an annual rate until 1887.

Great Britain recognized Haitian independence in 1833 and the United States in 1862, after the secession from the Union of the Southern slave states which had previously objected to and prevented such recognition.

Haitian legal codes were also drawn up during the presidency of Boyer, based primarily upon those of France, largely under his direct supervision. Twenty-two presidents headed the Haitian government between the resignation of Boyer in 1843 and the occupation by U.S. Marines beginning in 1915, the office changing hands rapidly and usually by force of arms.

At least 16 of these 22 were overthrown by revolutions or assassinated. Out of this turmoil and change, certain figures and events stand out as important. It is from this point that I will begin and hopefully finish my summation of the history of Haiti next week, and turn to recent immigration of some 15,000 to 16,000 Haitians to this country and their future home.

A BLACK LOOK AT POLITICS

by William S. Morris

someone's electoral support for granted has cost more than one candidate an election.

Keeping all this in mind, how can black, poor, and elderly Des Moines residents counter an increasingly conservative City Council? I already mentioned research and timely debate. Another thing is to keep an "eye" on suspicious Council moves. In the case of George Flagg, this becomes mandatory.

I stated earlier that he cannot be labelled a reactionary. A reactionary is a person who wants to return a country (or city) to the "good old days" of some unspecified earlier period in time.

Men like Ronald Reagan, Roger Jepsen, Charles Grassley, and George Flagg may espouse these themes, but in reality reactionism is politically unworkable in a society such as our own.

Max Weber's "Realpolitik" requires constant progress, albeit slow and planned. This is the Conservatives credo. He wants progress, but it must be orderly, planned, acceptable to the status quo power elite, and in a desirable direction.

A liberal, in contrast, wants progress for its own sake. Thusly armed, we must assign George Flagg the label of conservative. This is not to say he is acceptable to the disadvantaged; but Flagg is less vocal than his predecessor Russ LaVine, he is definitely smarter and acts more subtly. This makes Flagg even more dangerous than LaVine, as far as the issues confronting minority citizens are concerned. "Let the electorate beware."

As this is the final column in my series on politics and black people, I feel that, in conclusion and summation, an analysis of the black political scene in Des Moines is warranted.

I must, in all honesty, express a feeling of hopelessness as regards black political activity in Des Moines. One of the main weapons in the struggle for human and civil rights in this area, namely the NAACP, has been rendered virtually impotent by a veritable Pandora's box of maladies.

Indecisive and divided leadership, back - stabbing, petty squabbles, personality conflicts, socioeconomic class divisions, and not inconsiderable racism have all but ruined the NAACP in central Iowa.

To be fair, there are those dedicated fighters who constantly strive to restore the organization in Des Moines, but theirs is a shrinking number. The branch here has alienated some extremely influential blacks, and rejected potential white support.

One thing that my father and my grandparents drilled into my head was the fact that blacks in Iowa must obtain white support in order to make any significant political and social progress.

This fact is just as true today as then; the "separatists" would rather suffocate in their inadequacy and powerlessness. I called for a multiracial coalition for the purpose of political progress some months ago. Atlanta, Georgia Mayor Maynard Jackson echoed my call by citing this column at the last Des Moines NAACP "Freedom Fund" banquet.

Yet little has been done in this direction, outside of some action challenging the city's Affirmative Action hiring policy. Similarly, age prejudice has been as tough an obstacle as race or sex discrimination for those young blacks trying to forge ahead in the arena of civil rights.

Who do you think will be carrying the torch around here in the next three to five years? There are very few young black people in Des Moines willing or able to continue the "fight for freedom".

Those who show initiative or new ideas are often dismissed as "young hotheads." There are several people in the local branch who have been extremely helpful in any and every way possible to those who are trying to shape the future.

They know who they are. And there are those who would oppose and dissuade young ideas and fresh approaches, so mired are they in their own shortcomings and insecurities. Fear of being upstaged and replaced. They too, know who they are.

Well, I hope my long - windedness hasn't been too severe. I shall return to this city in three years as (hopefully) an attorney at law, to carry on the Morris tradition with my brothers. Until then intensify the struggle.

The Gentlemen-A Surprising Band

By Dartanyan Brown
Des Moines is often called the Surprising Place (that is, it's surprising that anything happens here at all.) Well the folks at the Taste of Class Disco at 2328 University have given us an entertainment surprise that nobody should pass up.

A California-based show band called the Gentlemen blew into town for a two-week engagement and if their first night's free-for-all is any indication of what's to come, you'd do well to turn off the T.V.

and join the fun. It's an 11-piece group that features four lead singers who have the ability to sing great harmonies while doing enough dancing and acrobatics to make even Michael Jackson take notice.

To be sure, the band led by manager, front man, cheerleader Kevin Thomas has toured with Roberta Flack, The Brothers Johnson and ConFunktion just to name a few.

The show starts innocently enough — a killer bass line that is going to attack your feet and then layer upon layer of keyboards, guitars (two of 'em) drums and percussion until the stage is literally shaking with the kind of funk that is liable to make you scream.

Thomas explodes from the dressing room about this time and urges the already steamin' rhythm section to even a greater intensity.

In the finest Philly-Stax tradition he urges you to let the music take you on a well-deserved trip.

Teddy Pendergrass would have been proud as Thomas exhorted the men in the audience to respect the ladies and vice versa. (somehow it wasn't even slightly corny coming from this New York native.

After the good-natured antics of Thomas he gives up the stage to the Gentlemen, four of the most talented singers, dancers and showmen that Des Moines has seen this year.

Their performances of songs by the Jacksons, The Whispers, Shalamar and others is first class and if you can get past the good looks and incredible choreography, you're going to notice some great singing, especially first tenor Ken Townes who is stratospheric.

We've all heard the stories about how good entertainment never gets support in Des Moines. Now you have a chance to do yourself and the Taste of Class Disco a favor. Drop on down and check out the Gentlemen and the band OZ (pronounced Ohhh, Zeee)

Considering the fact that they blew the roof off the place on Monday night with a typical early week non-crowd of 30 folks they just might commit mayhem with a full house. Let's find out.

Seek Flakes Burrell Art Works

After nearly two years of getting over the passing of her son, Mrs. Pricilla Burrell still faces the vivid memory of Jerry "Flakes" Burrell. Why? Because he was a bundle of talent. He shared his artistic abilities to all who desired his teachings. That's why several community agencies, personal friends and acquaintances still request the various artistic painting, African sculptures and drawings created by Burrell.

Mrs. Burrell has also received a number of requests from agencies regarding the "Black History Book" of articles and materials on blacks in Iowa, compiled by her late husband, Fred "Bubba" Burrell.

"Everybody wants me to donate, they don't consider the fact that I still have four kids. My grandchildren have grown up on Bubba's book and when I'm gone, both he and Flakes work will be divided evenly among them and my children."

It's a legacy, one that has been in Mrs. Burrell's family for nearly thirty-six years and she isn't about to give it all away just for the asking. History must be preserved, rather it's contained within the family for viewing amongst the relatives and displayed in art fairs throughout the year, it must be kept.

Blacks must strive to record daily the events and honors bestowed upon their family and in certain circumstances the defeats and deaths. Several blacks have tried to trace their roots, but most have been unsuccessful because, no one bother to keep records.

Instilled in the paintings and artifacts of Mrs. Burrell's home and many others who have Flakes' works, is history. Rather it be members of his family or friends, Flakes has captured the suffering, joy and beauty of Iowa as well as Schenectady, New York.

Bernice Johnson Reagon, Cultural Historian of the Smithsonian Institute, recently contacted Mrs. Burrell, about writing an article with reproductions of his works in one of the publications of the Institute that feature the work of Black and African artists. Flakes was a "guiding spirit" to community artist in Iowa and Schenectady, New York where, he served as an Art Co-Cordinator for the New York State Council on the Arts at Hamilton Hill Drop-in Art Center.

Flakes also worked on murals inside and out at Carver Community Center and continued painting at the O.D. Heck Rehabilitation Center in addition to structuring a fifteen foot woodsculpture for Hamilton Hill Park.

He was the organizer and founder of the annual Third World Arts Expo that occurs each Spring in Des Moines, sponsored by the Y.M.C.A.

Mrs. Burrell is delighted to be able to continue sharing Flakes gifts to the world.

However, she does not want his works to be exploited for personal profit merely because he was a free spirited person and would have donated any of his works for a good cause to anyone.

The first atomic bomb deliberately dropped on people fell on Hiroshima, Japan, August 6, 1945. "Thousands were killed instantly. More thousands were fatally injured, and the homes of a quarter million people were destroyed within seconds" — (Hiroshima Diary, Michihiko Hachiya, M.D.)

A Hiroshima Memorial will be held August 8th, 5-6 p.m. at the Japanese bell, south of the State House in the flower garden. Guest speaker will be Senator John Culver, Poet Curt Sytsma, music by guitarist Connet followed by Ass't. Professor Phyllis Griffin from Northwestern University reading excerpts from Hiroshima Diary.

August 9th, there will be an ecumenical service at the Central Lutheran Church E. 9th & Des Moines St., followed by a candlelight procession to the State House Gardens Japanese bell.

This week has been "down hill" all the way. My foster son, accompanied by his girl friend, arrived unannounced from Minneapolis to borrow money!

I left home but forgot I was on the agenda of the city council meeting. My name was announced all over the place! How can I tell the real reason?

I can't remember what the rat race was about Tuesday. Wednesday I was at the dance rehearsal at Irving Multi-cultural Center. It was most important that I cover the Black Coalition meeting at the Urban Campus. I didn't make it!

I've been up all night telling my sad story for Bystander readers and must not go to bed until after delivering copy for Art Center program notes concerning Artist Shirley Rushing's appearance. After that, I'm taking time out to sleep. Don't call me, I'll call you!

Now I am remembering about Tuesday. I was very upset about the defeat of my favorite city council candidate! The week isn't quite ended and there has been one bright moment of total pleasure.

I was privileged to observe a dance class at Irving Multi-cultural Center. Guest Artist Shirley Rushing is the kind of instructor that gives you the feeling that you are capable of doing what ever she asks.

I sincerely wish every parent, every senior citizen could see our children accepting the challenge of this unique summer opportunity! Everyone would be as proud as I am of their talent and progress. A little jealous, maybe, of their limber muscles and their graceful movements.

Tonight I must visit the instrument classes. There hasn't been time until tonight but I am most curious about what's happening in the wind instruments and piano class. Tonight will be my very first experience. Do you suppose it would be possible to try out the drums in the percussion class when no one is looking? Next week, I shall admit to nothing — that is about drums.

I'll see you at the Art Center Saturday afternoon!

A GREAT DAD IS 81!!! was the theme for a surprise birthday party given for Willie C. Turner of Mason City, Iowa, by his children and his wife Maybelle.

The date, July 26, 1980, marks the day a family which hadn't been all together (always missing a brother or sister) for 11 years, came together with many close friends and neighbors to celebrate the glorious occasion — the 81st birthday, July 24, 1899, of the special man from St. Joseph, Louisiana.

The family set for a portrait in the morning and then proceeded to Parker Woods for the party, as one child exclaimed, "this sure is hard keeping this a surprise from daddy!"

Banners, posters, T-shirts and the attitude of the whole family expressed the theme throughout the day — A Great Dad is 81!, a touching prayer was given by Willie Turner and everyone set down to feast in the mid-afternoon.

When Willie was asked, "What's the key to live to be 81?" He replied, "My mother always told me to be kind to others and treat them like I want them to treat me. I've always tried to do this."

Indeed Willie has done just that and his many friends and relatives can testify to it. Especially his family, which he is so proud of and says, "I tried to give them everything they needed and sometimes everything they wanted." When looking at his children and their accomplishments you know they were disciplined and taught well by him.

Clarence Turner, Construction Engineer, Jackson Construction Co., Ames, Iowa

Dr. Deborah Turner (Schoelerman), University of Iowa Hospital — Iowa City, Iowa

Darlene Turner, Co-owner D&D Associates, Des Moines, Iowa

The celebration ended on a glorious note and everyone parted full of happiness and very tired. Willie Turner prayed for a safe trip home for everybody and the family thanked everyone for participating and sharing in the love they have for Willie Turner.

Rev. Lewis E. Grady, Jr., Pastor
"Whatever the care which breaks thy rest,
Whate'er the wish that swells thy breast;
Spread before God that wish, that care,
And change anxiety to prayer."

Anon
"The Importance of Church Leadership".
Last Sunday, Rev. Grady's message was directed to the officers of the church. It was to make them aware that their efforts should be directed toward the business of bringing the Kingdom of Heaven here on earth. How using the teachings of Our Lord and Jesus Christ can make life here on earth as the peripheral life in the Kingdom of Heaven.

It was an emotional setting to observe loving parents and relatives accepting the duty and honor of guiding their off-springs toward a Christian life at the Baptismal Ceremonies. Those baptized were: Miss Darcey Ellen Perry, daughter of Mrs. Rickey Ellen Madison; Lawrence M., Eric M., sons, and daughter, Brandie M., children of Vivian and Lawrence W. Young, Jr.

Please make known your interest in attending the Annual Conference at Madison, Illinois, August 14-17, at the church office. Reservations for bus travel is needed.

COMMUNITY COGIC

Well ... look who vacationed from Iowa to California!!

Our own Rev. and Mrs. David Crane visited their son Ronald Winfrey his wife Lorrie, and their two children, in Harbor City, California. Upon first arriving, their day consisted of a bar-b-q with a host of relatives and friends at their son's home. And each day thereafter was a pleasurable one.

The Rev. and Mrs. Crane visited his niece, Arnevia Harris, who resides in Los Angeles, her mother, Elvodia Denton, who motored in from Blythe, California, and many other friends and family. This was only the beginning of many dinner partys in their honor. They subsequently attended another dinner party at the home of Mr. Alvin Winfrey of L.A.

Among the dinner guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter and daughter, who were onetime residents of Iowa, but have since become residents of L.A. (Mrs. Edward Carter — Janet — is the daughter of the late Mrs. Sister, Polly Brown.) Mr. and Mrs. William Bragg, of Denver, were also onetime Iowa residents. (Mrs. Bragg — Sandra — is also a daughter of the late Mrs. Polly Brown.)

Jerry Vaughn, of Denver, is a grandson of Mrs. Polly Brown. Also included were Mr. and Mrs. Tony Winfrey of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Winfrey of Des Moines, Iowa, who were also on vacation; Mrs. Frances Jackson and Mr. Douglas Hern of L.A., and many other friends. He also visited his son's wife's cousin, Wilbur Sanders, at the Veteran's Hospital in Westwood, California. Reverend Crane prayed for Mr. Sander's speedy recovery from triple heart by-pass surgery.

On Sunday they attended the reception of their step-grandson, Roni Hardy, and his wife, Jeri. They then motored on to San Diego to visit with Rev. Crane's sister, Geneva Stewart, who has for the last several months been in very poor health. While there, the Rev. and Mrs. Crane visited his daughter and her children, whom he hadn't seen in several years, in Riverside, California.

After visiting with many family members and friends, they rested back at home in Harbor City, California, and visited a few local beaches before returning to Iowa ...

G R E A T E R FRIENDSHIP CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

HOLDS REVIVAL
Last week was memorial week for Greater Friendship. Our Pastor, Bishop Johnson who was once a great Evangelist himself could get no one to come and run a revival for us.

He decided to put on a revival himself with the assistance of Missionary Bettie Frazier and Missionary Florence Waltz and others. The meeting was approved by the Lord.

The church was revived, the sick was prayed for and God also improved conditions. Also 4 souls came to the Lord on bended knees and wanted to be baptized.

Bishop Johnson along with Evangelist Eugene Porce took them to the water and baptized them. All of which we thank the Lord.

NEW BETHANY CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

We, at New Bethany, have been praising the Lord all week. Our pastor, Elder A.E. Johnson and family had just returned from vacation with a glorious message. The subject, entitled, "take off the weights" was spiritually uplifting. We, as christians, sometimes serve the Lord with weights. These weights are referred to as everyday problems and concerns which prevent us from living in the Lord's perfect will. We must realize that a race is set before us which we should run with patience. (Heb. 12:1) The key to winning this race is enduring to the end which does not necessarily mean being the fastest runner.

Due to Convocation Week, no services will be held at our church throughout this week. Services will be conducted at East 17th and University location. God bless all.

Bishop A.B. Carter Sr. (pastor)

The ushers (Jr. Deacon Chris Jon White and Deacon Warnell Ziegler) rolled out a snow white runner down the aisle before Bishop Carter Sunday morning, as he was ushered down to the pulpit wearing a white silk African robe brocaded in silver and hand made by an African Bishop who flew from Lagos, Nigeria in 1978 to be appointed by Bishop Carter.

WHO WAS IT THAT PRAYED FOR YOU! THAT LOVED YOU SO MUCH THAT THEY PARTITIONED GOD WITH TEARS! THAT YOU MIGHT BE SAVED?? WHO WAS IT? CAN YOU REMEMBER THE PERSON WHO SAW YOU OUT LOST IN SIN AND SHAME, AND TOLD YOU ABOUT THE LOVE OF GOD ... he admonished the saints to THINK BACK, and remember the old bridge that brought you across ... remember from whence you came. Every one of you are saved by somebodys prayers. Who was it that prayed for you? Who partitioned GOD in his glory and prayed and cried until he had mercy on YOUR soul? You are not here just by accident, you didn't just come by salvation ... So don't forget the one who pointed you toward Christ. So my text is LOOK UP AND SEE JESUS!

After a dynamic message that stirred the very soul of the congregation, the presence of God filled the room, and all men were called forth, and anointed as Deacons. Holy Communion was served on Sunday night thus culminating a glorious PASTOR's day. And on Sunday night a mini musical was given in his honor under the auspices of assistant pastors sister Linda Carter was Mistress of Ceremonies. A lovely scars. Our roles are already defined for us at birth, domestic duties and occupations are typed differently from men.

There are also restrictions placed on our social life. We are taught that to be a lady we must sit with our legs closed, avoid using profanity and speak and/or talk when told. Often, we are earmarked as sex symbols and if we don't stop to analyze the situation, we become victims of circumstance, by readily exposing our legs, breasts and navels.

To a woman it's exposing our God given beauty or simply keeping up with the latest fashions. A lot of women go on crash diets, because they're made to feel that 'thin is in'. No one wants a fat woman, but, men must be taught that 'beauty is only skin deep'.

So there you have it, the image of the perfect woman, thin, quiet and covered. Enclosed within all of the above characteristics of the perfect bubble, one will usually find lonely women. It doesn't matter if you're a newly wed, or have been married over three years, going steady, engaged, or a single parent, it's high time that you examined some of the frustrations, blocks of communication and experiences of isolation from loved ones that cause us to place ourselves into perfect bubbles. We become emotionally upset and seek refuge through means that are unhealthy.

So you're perfect, or so he says. Your like a big bubble floating in space, warm, sensitive and strong. Ensconded between your warmth lies the beauty of peace. One harsh move will puncture your structure, shatter the glass you've erected in your life. Strength can be characterized in your manner, movements and in your disposition.

Yet, you're drifting away, your sending the bubble roaming into space. But there's no escaping life, sometimes you have to explode when forced to relieve built up tension, it has to come out somehow or you'll become a bundle of nerves.

From the dissolution of intimate relationships, misunderstandings with children, to family conflicts, you are left alone to cope with the situation, in your own way. You can't afford to solicit professional advice. You don't want to hear "I told you so" from mom and dad and you shutter at the remarks made by friends. It's time to steal away in quiet, and examine the situation.

To be continued next week... attitudinal situations experienced by different types of women; career minded, the college students and housewives.

CARD OF THANKS

The Pastor and members of Bethel Baptist Church of Perry wish to express their gratitude to Elder LeRoy Johnson of the Church of God In Christ, Fort Dodge Iowa. In regards to the very spiritual service on Sunday afternoon, July 27. Speaking on the subject "Down But Not Through," Elder Johnson brought a powerful message. Sis. Johnsen presented an inspirational solo also their choir rendered several musical selections.

This service was a request, due to the wonderful and uplifting service, their church held last July 25, 1979 at Bethel. Indeed, wonderful afternoon of Praise Expressions.

May God continue to bless you in all services presented toward Kingdom Building — Thanks to the committee in charge which helped to make the program a success. We appreciate all whom were present.

LOOK ON SPORTS

Our Hilltop tennis tournament closed Sunday with a rousing mixed doubles match between Nancy Land and Alan Reed against Bill Sitter and Maureen Fitzgerald with the verdict going to the latter.

Most of the matches were tough and closer than the score sometimes indicated. In the mens singles Randy Krecji of Cedar Rapids made his third try for the title, and it looked as if he had it as he raced through the first set at 6-0. But Kevin Parks did a complete turnabout and did Randy in 6-1, 6-3.

Esther Snype renewed her lease on the womens singles by taking care of a pair of youngsters, Nancy Land and Fitzgerald by identical scores with all sets going 6-4. A coach for the girls was muttering to himself, "She shouldn't beat those girls." But, Coach, as long as Esther can dictate the type of game she wants to play, she will beat them.

Duke Greene of St. Paul showed why he is the public parks champ in the 60 division by racing through the 55 year division without losing a set. He played John Milton in the finals. Milton thought he had the game to bother Greene, but he must have left it home.

Esther Snype had a busy day. She appeared in three matches, her winning singles effort, and the womens doubles that she won with Sue Silcott. Then she went out with Sandra Hickman of St. Paul and got dusted by Laura Williams and Pat Carroll 6-1, 6-2.

There was quite a group of players from the Twin cities, and most of them gave a good account of themselves, winning at least one match. I didn't try to count the number of blacks, but the surprise team was that of Mike Wald and Vic Smith. They reached the semifinals of the mens doubles and gave the ultimate champions, Krecji and Bill White, all they wanted before going down.

But this was the biggest number of blacks in the thing since the early fifties. Maybe I was seeing things but the large number of blacks seemed to almost turn the thing into an us against them, something I am sure nobody connected with the Hilltop wants after all these years.

We had a smaller draw than usual, and because of this sometimes stretched the rules to try make things easier for some people, both black and white, and wouldn't you know it; they often took advantage of this to make our job that much tougher. That won't happen again.

We also batted a thousand on the help we were supposed to get for the meet. Bob Hudson agreed in June to umpire the final matches in men singles. But Bob is a busy man and didn't have to be in town last week end. The city was supposed to have chairs for the linemen and fix up an umpire stand. Well, as I said, we batted a thousand because not a damned thing turned out in our favor.

Except for the fact that lots of people must have prayed and done anti rain dances to keep old J. Pluvius away until Sunday night, and for that we are grateful.

For the first time in years there were no blacks in the juniors and the surprise of the meet was a boy from Boone named Courter who wasn't seeded and who sneaked up on the field and grabbed the boys 14 doubles and singles.

A new traveling trophy, a mixed doubles one, was brought up for this meet. This is the Kizzie Strothers trophy. Kizzie has always been one of the main workers in the Hilltop, willing to do anything she might be asked to do to help. This has to be won three times, and if it lasts as long as the Bill Ashby doubles cups did, it will outlast the club and tournament.

Even though our draw was small, we had some quality tennis in all divisions including the juniors. We also got lots of talk about making our entry deadline about three days before the meet, and maybe we should at least talk about it, since it came from so many different people all of whom are tennis players.
