Drake Students Take Petitions To King Birthday Rally

Greg Jones and Don Mays, Drake seniors boarded the midnight Greyhound bus Tuesday to catch the Chicago Birthday Special for Washington, D.C. In appreciation of two years of volunteer service given at the Irving-Nash Multi-cultural Center, the young men were selected to deliver a scroll of more than three thousand signatures collected in the Des Moines area in support of the Stevie Wonder rally to make January 15th, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday a national holiday. Stevie Wonder will receive all petitions and present them to U.S. officials.

At a press conference announcing the Birthday Rally, Stevie Wonder said, "It is important that we, as Americans, have a day to reflect on the goals of our Constitution and remind ourselves of our responsibility to make those goals and basic principles become a reality in our lifetime. The goal of peace, unity, and brotherhood" (and sisterhood) "are something we've heard on countless occasions"

Wonder continued.

"Most believe it can never happen. Our purpose (in marching Jan. 15th) will be to exert some positive energy and to tell those of us who think it can never happen; that it can."

Congressman John Conyers (Rep. Michigan) wrote in the Congressional Quarterly, "By its approval (of the holiday), Congress would have made the most positive statement it can; that the sectional and racial chapters of America's history have been closed forever."

In a statement read by Martin Luther King III representing Mrs. Coretta Scott King, he said, "Our reasons for supporting a January 15th holiday go beyond personal reasons because we believe that a national holiday in honor of a Black American will help improve race relations, a burning need during these troubled times."

"But," he continued, "a Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday means even more than commemorating the contributions of Blacks to American society. It would serve as an annual reminder that non-violence can make the promise of democracy a reality."

The overloaded switchboards with calls to Congressman Conyers in Washington and to the Johnson Publishing Company's Black radio station in Chicago indicate that the number of marchers January 15th will approximate those attending the Jobs and Freedom March in 1963.

The flood of inquiries required the services of Offald Duke and Associates, a public relations company owned by Mrs. Lisa Bass to assist in organizing the march, return thousands of phone calls to supply necessary information across the country.

The Birthday Rally will begin at the Capitol, proceed down Constitution Ave. to Washington Monument where Stevie Wonder will play. The three speakers will be Congressmen Conyers and Robert Garcia. Martin Luther King III is the third speaker. The proceedings are expected to be on nation-wide TV.

Cathrine Williams Retires From State Social Services Post

Catherine Williams, deputy commissioner of the Iowa Department of Social Services (DSS), has announced that she will retire Jan. 23 to devote full time to consulting.

"I'm retiring from the position of deputy commissioner in DSS, but not from 'the world of work.' As a partner in Johnson, Williams Associates consultants in social and management systems, I will continue to use my knowledge and experience, particularly in areas which affect minority women. In addition to my consulting ventures, I will teach at the Drake Women's School next semester and plan to write a book on human services.

"As a strong advocate for the family I hope that the department will continue to press for community-based services and support for children and adults within that setting. Dr. Reagen (Commissioner, Dept. of Social Services) is providing leadership and vision for the department. I leave confident that human services are in good hands."

Williams has served the State of Iowa for 32 years in almost every aspect of human services. She supervised child welfare programs for Polk County and later was responsible for all state-wide child welfare training. She was director of state adult and family services, director of all state public welfare programs and was appointed deputy commissioner in 1975. Williams also served as acting commissioner from March to September, 1979.

Her responsibilities as deputy commissioner have included supervision of the Iowa Veterans Home, the offices of personnel and training, volunteer services, public information, appeals and fair hearings as well as assisting the commissioner in the total operation of the agency.

A graduate of Cortez Peters Business College in Chicago, and Drake University, Williams earned her masters degree in social work from the University of Iowa. She has completed post graduate study at Drake, the University of Iowa, Upjohn Institute and in Washington, D.C.

The deputy commissioner, a member of seven professional associations, has served as a consultant to many national groups, most notably the National Governor's Association, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and the Urban Institute. She has served as secretary to the National Council of State Public Welfare Administrators of the American Public Welfare Association.

Williams is active in 13 civic organizations, and currently serves on the Des Moines Planning and Zoning Commission. She was named Iowa Social Worker of the Year in 1980 and was inducted into the Iowa Women's Hall of Fame in August, 1980.

"Catherine is an extraordinary person who has dedicated her life to making things better for troubled Iowans," said Commissioner Reagen. "She is directly responsible for many progressive legislative actions over the years, especially in programs for battered women and the organization of a state-wide emergency plan during the food stamp crisis last summer. I am hopeful," Reagen concluded, "that through her consulting work, Catherine will continue her service to this agency and to the State of Iowa."

A dinner to honor

Williams is being planned. Co-chairpersons are Cecelia Johnson, Executive Director, Des Moines Human Rights Commission, and Larry Jackson, DSS field operations director. Persons who would like information about the dinner should contact the Iowa Department of Social Services, Office of Communications, Hoover State Office Building, (515) 281-3147.

NAACP Concern Over Economy

Benjamin L. Hooks, Executive Director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People— at a weekend meeting of more than 200 of his officials from around the nation—

said he was "tremendously pleased and gratified over the huge turnout of state conference presidents, major branch leaders, field staff and board members."

The conference, he said, "generally expressed an overwhelming concern and anxiety over the frightening economic conditions that minorities and the poor are experiencing in this country."

Hooks noted that in addition to inflation and unemployment being of major concern in the Black community, "other factors contributing to the heightening anxiety were the defeat of several liberal senators whom Blacks had come to rely on over the years; a suggestion by South Carolina Senator Strom Thurmond that the 1965 Voting Rights Act be repealed; and the recent attacks on CETA, food stamp program and affirmative action machinery

Thoughts and Comments

By James B. Morris III

The question presented for the Court's determination was:

Had the defendant, as a common carrier of passengers, the authority to establish and enforce regulations depriving an individual of color of the privileges and rights accorded to white persons travelling upon its steamers, and to enforce rules whereby the former were required to submit to treatment and accept accommodations different from those of the latter, or, more briefly and in a word, are the rights and privileges of persons transported by public carriers affected by race or color?

Counsel for the defendant claims that carriers do possess such authority, and that distinctions on account of race or color may be made by them in discharging their obligations toward their passengers. The Court, however, disagreed. They felt that plaintiff was entitled to the same rights and privileges while upon the defendant's boat which were possessed and exercised by white passengers.

The Court began by saying that the doctrines of natural law and Christianity (?) forbid that rights be denied on the ground of race or color, and this principle has become incorporated into the paramount law of the Union. This principle of equality is announced and secured by the very first words of the Iowa Constitution which relates to the rights of the people, in language most comprehensive and incapable of misconstruction ("All men are, by nature, free and equal" of Art I, Section 1).

The fourteenth amendment to the U.S. Constitution affirms this doctrine, and the Civil Rights Act of 1866 specifically applies this principle of equality to every right arising in the affairs of life. They continued that the language is quite comprehensive, including the right to property and all rights growing out of contracts, and that the right of the passenger under a contract for transportation with the carrier is included therein.

Counsel for the defendant argued that the rights claimed by the plaintiff, for the deprivation of which she prosecuted this suit, are social in nature and are not, therefore, secured by the constitution and statutes, either of the State or the United States. The Court agreed that although social rights and privileges are not within the protection of the laws and constitutional provisions in question, but felt that the rights and privileges which were denied the plaintiff are not within that class. She was refused accommodations equal to those enjoyed by white passengers, although she offered to pay the fare required of those who had the best accommodations the boat had.

She was not objectionable in character and deportment, they continued, but the advantages of the contract made with other passengers was denied to her. Her money would not purchase for her that which the same sum would entitle a white passenger to receive. They concluded that in these matters her rights of property were invaded, and her right to demand services to which she was lawfully entitled was denied. Therefore, plaintiff could not, by any regulation or custom of defendants' steamboats, be deprived of any right to accommodations to which she would be entitled under such customs, but for her color.

The Court went further to say that the conditions of the ticket for transportation had no relation to plaintiff's right to a seat at the table, but pertained exclusively to transportation. Her dinner ticket gave her a right to dine in the cabin on an equality with other passengers. She could not, they felt, have been lawfully removed from the seat she occupied on account of her color.

Defendant's counsel argued that because the plaintiff had procured her dinner ticket through deception and without the knowledge of the officers of the boat, she had no rights other than those given by the transportation ticket. The Court, however, noted that it does not appear that the rules and customs of the boat required tickets to be purchased in person by the individuals using them, or that a tickets not thus obtained conferred no rights upon the party acquiring it. Having obtained the ticket in a manner not forbidden by the regulations of the boat or by law, she was entitled to all rights which it would have conferred upon a white person if obtained in the same way.

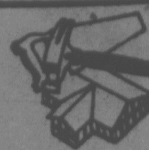

The Court thus concluded that:

(1) Under the laws and constitutional amendments to the State and federal government a person of color is entitled to the same rights and privileges while travelling as a white person is, and cannot be required by any rule or custom based on distinction of color or race to accept other or different accommodations than those furnished to white persons;

(2) A rule or custom of a steamboat requiring persons of color who are passengers thereon; to be excluded from the regular table and take their meals upon the guards of the boat or in the pantry, is not a reasonable one and cannot be reformed; and,

(3) That because of the defendants' officers' forcible removal of the plaintiff from the first class dinner cabin, they were liable in an action for damages from that assault and battery.

KEEPING THE DREAM ALIVE

By Don McEvoy

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

Most Americans believe that the segregation system in the South was instituted immediately at the end of the Civil War and the abolition of slavery. The historical facts are different from this common misconception.

The truth of the matter is that the cessation of hostilities was followed by approximately three decades of Reconstruction, during which time the emancipated slaves experienced relative freedom. Many became landowners, were elected to public office and enjoyed the first fruits of their newly won liberation. Constitutional amendments were enacted that limited the powers of the states to deny individuals the freedoms guaranteed by the national charter. The Federal Government was active throughout this period of transition.

In the mid-1890's, the era of Reconstruction came to an end as the Federal Government withdrew its oversight. Almost immediately, the states of the old Confederacy began to enact laws that mandated the separation of the races. During the decade of 1895-1905, the superstructure of Jim Crow was erected. The gains of the past generation were wiped away and segregation was codified into law. It took more than half a century to undo the damage done in that short period.

The past 25 years have been the most significant period of progress in race relations in our history. In fact, I think it a period unmatched in the experience of any nation in recorded time. Despite the continuing presence of both individual and institutional racism in this country, America has moved farther in a shorter period of time than almost anyone would have dreamed possible. A latter-day Rip Van Winkle who fell asleep in 1960 would not believe his eyes if he awoke today.

But all this progress notwithstanding, I feel the earth rumbling beneath my feet. Both houses of Congress pass a rider to an appropriations bill that forbids the Justice Department to effectively pursue school desegregation. Senator Strom Thurmond, soon to be chairman of the Judiciary Committee, suggests that it is time for the Federal Government to cease monitoring the performance of states in regard to the Voting Rights Act. Others are saying that it is time to junk affirmative action programs in employment and education. Humane social programs of recent years are in jeopardy.

Are we about to experience once again a withdrawal by the national Government from its commitments to equality and justice? Is the second period of Reconstruction at an end? Will the decade of the '80's see us turn again to a denial of basic and fundamental human rights of those who are not in the majority? We dare not permit that to be.

Stevie Wonder Receives Support For King Rally

WASHINGTON — Response to entertainer Stevie Wonder's call for a national march here on Jan. 15 to support congressional legislation for making Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday a national holiday has been "enthusiastic and widespread."

Stevie Wonder says he is tremendously pleased with the response of "people of good will" to join him in Washington on Jan. 15 to help achieve a goal "in the best interests" of all America.

A national mobilization office has opened in Washington at the National Press Building, Room 880. The phone number is (202)393-2324.

The marchers will assemble at the foot of the U.S. Capitol, at First Street and Constitution Avenue, at 9 a.m., with the march beginning at 10:30 a.m. The march route will be west on Pennsylvania to 15th Street, N.W., and south on 15th Street to the Washington Monument grounds, where a noon ceremony will be held.

According to march coordinator Ofield Dukes, local coordinators are working in more than 20 cities to arrange bus transportation for groups to come to Washington for the march.

"Calls have come from people in all parts of the country about supporting the objectives of the march," Dukes said. "For those persons who cannot attend the march, we have asked them to sign petitions in support of the King holiday bill."

Petitions and other background information on the march can be obtained by calling the mobilization headquarters.

Among participants in the program will be Stevie Wonder, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., who has sponsored the King holiday bill since 1969, Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., who served as floor leader for the bill in 1979, and Martin Luther King, III, who will represent his mother, Mrs. Coretta Scott King.

At the same time as the Washington march, Mrs. King will be leading the annual silent march to the gravesite of her late husband.

Mrs. King said she was "tremendously pleased" that Stevie Wonder has taken the initiative to sponsor the Washington march and has promised to continue to work after the march until the King birthday bill is passed.

Together, We Love Together, We Serve Together, We Build.

If Jesus took a holiday, what would we do? Who would we?

- 1) Fool?
- 2) Take our burdens to?
- 3) Ask to help us?
- 4) Have to ease our bodily pain?
- 5) Help us make it through the day?

The Scriptures tell us we can rely on God for...God does not break his promises. And, he promised never to leave us alone. We're able to take our burden to the Lord, and leave it there.

According to Pastor Jones' Sunday sermon, "If Jesus took a holiday" we could not make it. Think about it!

Members are reminded the Quarterly Conference will be held January 31.

Saturday, January 17, the Sr. Usher Board will sell chicken dinners in the church lower level. Donation for each dinner is $3.00. All monies raised will be contributed to the basement wall repair fund. Plan now to have your lunch Saturday at the church. Time: 1:00 p.m.

A. L. Waring "Keeping Fit" for God is as necessary as in the athletic world, if one expects to win or compete for the incorruptible crown. This was the message given by Rev. Grady last Sunday. Your body is the Temple of God and must not be fatigued or abused to become spiritually fit. A buffer zone must be created by prayers, renewal of spiritual commitments to God and man, and compassion to ward off the nagging problems of the world.

"Our Finest Hour" is Rev. Grady's topic sermon next Sunday.

The Laymen's Program for the year was presented and approved for the coming Conference Year. Saturday, February 14, a banquet will be held. There will be two seminars on the A.M.E. Discipline. The Lay Day Program will be held in June. And, a Recreational Fellowship Picnic has been planned.

You can't hurry God, oh no you just have to wait. You have to trust him ... and give Him a little time ... no matter how long it takes ... for he's a God that you can't hurry ... but He'll be there don't you worry. He may not come when you want Him but He is right on time ... Bishop Carter came forth on Sunday morning singing this song and he preached a dynamic sermon on the wisdom of Solomon. King Solomon was not just an ordinary man ... oh no! he said, He was in a class all to himself ... but when the queen of the South came to see him she said, when she heard of Jesus ... One greater than Solomon is here ... Oh Solomon had three hundred concubines and seven hundred wives ... But Jesus was still greater than he ... Solomon in all his wisdom couldn't heal anybody ... Jesus is all wisdom ...

Card Of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS
The family of Mr. Leon P. Brown want to share this thought with you.
Perhaps you sang a lovely song,
Or sat quietly in a chair;
Perhaps you sent beautiful flowers,
If so, we saw them there.
Perhaps you sent or spoke kind words
As any friend could say;
Perhaps you were not there at all
Just thought of us that day.
Perhaps you prepared tasty food,
Or maybe furnished a car;
Perhaps you rendered a service unseen,
Near at hand or from afar.
Whatever you did to console the heart,
We thank you so much—whatever the part.

Friend Allen;

I read with interest, your column of December 4 regarding the Duran-Leonard fight. I saved the clip and re-read it to-day which brought about the reason for this letter.

Your experience, when your "stomach rebelled" during the football game, may be what happened to Duran — Although I admit there is logic in what you say, lets not overlook the fact that Leonard began to turn on the heat before the fight had reached the half-way mark.

The crisp sharpness Leonard began to show began to wear down Duran and he knew the end was near. After all, let's not forget the fight was only half way over and Duran, who may have felt a stomach disorder (which I doubt) developed a fear of what was in store for him if he continued.

In my opinion Leonard is an all-time great and deserved something better than a guy quitting. And, he did quit. People who have spent many years in the sport think Duran quitting did a disservice to Leonard and the sport of boxing.

Cordially,

OCCUPATIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL GAINS BY BLACK WOMEN WHO MAINTAIN FAMILIES SHOWN IN CENSUS STUDY

Black women who maintain families with no husband present made substantial gains in occupation and education during 1970-79, according to a study released today by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census.

The number of these women in professional and technical occupations and in clerical jobs increased threefold during the period, the survey study shows. Further, the total in managerial and administrative posts appears to have increased. At the same time, the proportion in service jobs -- a traditional job for them -- decreased from 51 to 36 percent of all Black women who maintain families without husbands.

The number of such Black women with high school educations increased by 133 percent
