Leaders Discuss Political Failures Of Black Candidates

A panel discussion last week analyzing the political failures of black candidates in past Des Moines-area elections yielded support — and hope — for forging the permanent political machinery necessary for more successful candidacies in the future.

Four panelists took part in the event held Wednesday Jan. 14 at Willkie House as part of the week-long 30th anniversary activities.

They were: Nolden Gentry, lawyer and a member of the Des Moines School Board; Glynn Jones, a member of the Woodland-Willkie neighborhood priority board; Willie Glanton, lawyer and unsuccessful candidate in a special election last office to fill the seat of late City Councilman Russ LaVine; and Kalonji Saadiq, who has run for a variety of offices, including the city council and U.S. Congress.

All agreed that an organization was needed that would serve as a planning body to garner support not only for black candidates, but any candidate the community might wish to endorse.

Gentry said when a gathering of community leaders and residents convened at Willkie House last year to identify and plan strategy for a replacement for LaVine in the wake of his death, "it was almost too late."

"We need an umbrella organization already geared up when opportunities (like LaVine's sudden death) come to pass," said Gentry.

He urged that community members not limit their participation in that facet of politics. He said getting involved with neighborhood priority boards and other bodies that have influence on how government funds are distributed, and attending the Polk County Board of Supervisors meetings are important.

Gentry stressed that participation in school board meetings, where vital decisions are made affecting the lives of school children, is perhaps one of the top priorities for concerned citizens to undertake.

Gentry said he sees few black faces at the meetings when decisions such as the closing of neighborhood schools are on the agenda. If community members do not attend, "the decisions will be made (without you)." He said more participation would have significant impact on those decisions.

Glanton said the fact that the black community here is split into two east and west side geographic locations is not a problem. Political clout won't be diluted if a coalition of the communities is created where both factions organize separately

Black Publisher Gives Local Black Business Group A Boost

Earl G. Graves, Publisher, Black Enterprise magazine, spent January 15, 1981 in Des Moines adding strength to the Minority Business Association's "THRUST '80" program. Mr. Graves worked diligently throughout the day with corporate leaders in the community and Governor Ray to muster support for this initiative.

Muhammad Abdullah, President of the Association, believes that Graves' effort will do much to bring about the materialization of goals set by the organization for 1981.

Mr. Graves' activities culminated with a very inspiring speech at the business group's Annual Meeting.

Five awards were presented at the Annual Meeting to recognize significant contributions that enhance growth among minority-owned enterprises.

Northwestern Bell Telephone Company of Iowa received an award as the company that has the best minority-vendor program among private-sector companies.

The Iowa Department of Transportation was recognized by the business group as having the most aggressive affirmative action program for minority vendors among public-sector entities.

The award to a financial institution for having the most favorable capital access program went to West

Des Moines State Bank.

Special recognition was given to Dr. Prem Sahai as the Most Valuable Person to minority entrepreneurs for his notable contributions to many minority businesses.

The Outstanding Minority Firm of 1980 award went to Gassberry Car Services.

The officers of the Minority Business Association (MBA) elected to serve during 1981 are: Henry J. Holland, Jr., Executive Director; Muhammad Y. Abdullah, President; Darryl Green, 1st Vice President; Leon Creighton, 2nd Vice President; John A. Jewett, Jr., 3rd Vice President; George Reed, Secretary; Paula Jackson, Treasurer.

Iowa City Council Passes Affirmative Action Policy

IOWA CITY, IA. — The Iowa City City Council, on Tuesday, January 13, passed a new, comprehensive Affirmative Action policy which was applauded by a local Civil Rights group.

The Council, in a unanimous 7-0 vote, approved the new policy and thus ended a ten-month heated struggle with the local NAACP chapter.

The new policy charges the City government with the responsibility for producing "an environment in which a program of equal opportunity and affirmative action can be achieved, and in so doing, eliminate artificial barriers to equal employment opportunities within the personnel system of the city."

The latest policy also commits the City Council to provide sufficient resources for the development and implementation of the Affirmative Action policy as well as a subsequent "program" to be written by the Human Rights Director. The Council will also evaluate their own decisions in terms of their impact on Affirmative Action objectives.

The City Council will also ensure that the City

Manager and the Boards and Commissions of the City understand that continued evaluation of their performance will include emphasis on their affirmative actions and results.

Under the new policy, the City Manager is directed to take overall responsibility for implementation of the policy. The City Manager shall also guide and support the efforts of the Human Relations Director in order to achieve a viable affirmative action program in Iowa City.

The Affirmative Action policy also contains a Policy Statement and Program Guidelines, Responsibility for implementation, Dissemination, Establishment of Goals and Timetables, On-going progress reports, Grievance Procedures, Plan Review, Recruitment funding, and addition to the City Ordinance.

Though he had previously criticized the city's old policy as "vague and ineffectual," Robert Morris, president of the local chapter of the NAACP, lauded the new policy.

"THE IOWA CIVIL RIGHTS ACT OF 1884 AND THE AFTERMATH"

The Iowa General Assembly enacted a Civil Rights Act in 1884, which declared that

"... all persons within this State shall be entitled to the full and equal enjoyment of the accommodations, advantages, facilities and privileges of inns, restaurants, chop houses, eating houses, lunch counters and all other places where refreshments are served, public conveyances, barber shops, bath houses, theaters, and all other places of amusement. Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section by denying to any person, except for reasons by law applicable to all persons, the full enjoyment of any of the accommodations, advantages, facilities or privileges enumerated herein, or by aiding or inciting such denial, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

Prior to 1892, however, it did not include restaurants, chop houses, eating houses, lunch counters, and all other places where refreshments are served, as well as bathhouses. The Act was patterned after the Federal Civil Rights Act adopted on March 1, 1875. A few states in the northern, middle western and far western states also adopted similarly worded statutes (18 in all).

Between 1884 and World War One, only three cases dealing with civil rights and alleged violations of the Iowa Civil Rights Act reached the Iowa Supreme Court; they were State v. Hall (1887), Humburd v. Crawford and Hunter (1905), and Brown v. The J. H. Bell Company and J. F. Lane (1910).

I will discuss each case in sufficient detail to allow you to see the trend in the Iowa Supreme Courts' approach to the issue of civil rights in general and the Iowa Civil Rights Act in particular. It will, however, be necessary to look to a case decided by that Court in 1885 which, although decided after the passage of the Act, whose cause of action arose before the act had become effective.

Bowlin v. Lyon, which was ruled upon by the Iowa Supreme Courts during the December term of 1885, involved a suit to recover damages by a black due to his exclusion from a skating-rink, kept and operated by the defendants. The question presented by the record, according to the opinion, was "... whether the refusal by the defendants on the occasions mentioned in the petition to permit plaintiff to enter their skating rink was a denial to him of a privilege which he had the right, under the law, to enjoy..."

The Court began its answer by stating that if the defendants had the right to deny plaintiff admission to their skating rink, that this right must be based upon some consideration upon which they might have denied any other man of like character admission to it. The allegation of the petition was that defendants operated the rink as a place of public amusement, but it was not shown that the business of operating is carried on under a license or privilege granted by the state or the municipal corporation in which it is conducted, or that it is in any manner regulated or governed by any of the police regulations of the city.

As a general rule, the Court stated that the law does not try to govern regulate the citizen in the conduct of his private business. In all matters of mere private concern, it continued, he is left free to deal with whomever he pleases, and make such bargains as he is able to make with those with whom he chooses to deal. There are classes of business in the conduct and management of which, regardless of the fact that they may be conducted by private parties for profit, the general public has such an interest that are properly made the subject to regulation by law, and that those engaged in them are subject to restrictions and limitations which do not apply to those engaged in other sorts of business.

The basis for these regulations and restrictions is that "... persons engaged in these vocations (for example, innkeepers and carriers of passengers) are in some sense servants of the public, and in conducting their business they exercise a privilege conferred upon them by the public, and they have secured to them by the law certain privileges and rights which are not enjoyed by members of the public generally ..."

The power which grants such a license represents each member of the public in making that grant, and each member thereof, with reference to those privileges which accrue to the public under it, must be upon an equal basis with every other member of the public.

The Court continued, however, that defendants business was not of such a character. The public has assumed no control of regulation thereof, they continued, and it does not appear that this is a business in which the public would have such concern. It is essentially a private business and it will continue to be so unless the public chooses to regulate it. Defendants were using their own property in conducting business, and were doing so according to their own ideas.

When members of the public entered their building, they did so by permission of the defendants, or under a contract with them. When the defendants invited members of the public to go to their property, they offered simply to extend to them permission to enter, or to contract with them for that permission.

As the place belonged to them, was under their exclusive control, and was a private business by nature, the Court concluded, it cannot be said that any person has the right to demand admission to it. The defendants had the right, then, to withdraw the invitation, either as to the general public or as to particular individuals thereof. This right to deny admission to the plaintiff is not based upon the fact that he belongs to a particular race (obviously a joke), but arises from the consideration that neither he, nor any other person, could demand as a right under the law that the privilege of entering the place be accorded to him.

Next Week: Cases decided under the Iowa Civil Rights Act of 1884.

The D.M. Tribune caption over the January 15th national holiday rally in Washington, D.C. indicates, "Thousands participate in King march". The story made page 11 but it was a fair piece of reporting.

It is my impression that radio, especially Black stations and TV did much through interviews and announcements to stir interest in the Stevie Wonder rally to rekindle interest and active support for making Dr. King Jr's birthday a national holiday.

I must admit that I was quite unaware of Rep. John Conyer's efforts in Congress to get passage of a bill to make Dr. King's birthday a national holiday until I read of Stevie Wonder's call to rally in Washington. It was, personally, an exciting moment that brought back long forgotten memories of the 1963 Jobs and Freedom March where I and my daughters heard Dr. King, Jr. deliver I Have A Dream.

Equally vivid in my memory is the march to Washington Monument with a delegation from Georgia. I still remember their leader with his hat tilted back on his head, pouring heart and soul into his dream of freedom, echoed and supported by the most beautiful harmonizing I heard in a very long time. It makes me sad not to be able to say who they were or where in Georgia the delegation came from.

This week there were some grade school children on TV explaining who Dr. King, Jr. was and what his Dream meant to them. All of the children were born long after the great Jobs and Freedom March.

That makes those present at the March, 1963 history — living history, I must believe. We are that important link between the past and the future of all young people, Black and White Americans.

This fact, in my opinion, is why a national holiday, January 15th is really important. The day will remind us how much progress we have made and how far we must travel to make The Dream of peace and brotherhood (and sisterhood) a reality in a world without an unthinkable war. Effort, in my opinion, is the only meaningful tribute we can pay Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

These are some possibilities for improving Iowa efforts for a national holiday, Jan. 15th. A committee in the Black community could come together to write an updated petition to continue the signature collection. It seems to me possible to seek sponsors of such a petition among religious leaders of all denominations. Perhaps this is an idea that should be brought before the Ministerial Alliance as a beginning.

There is a need to give special attention to the areas from which both our U.S. representatives and senators are elected. It is likely college students would be interested in helping as well as certain local people in

Even though the word "leadership" did not appear in the English language until around 1800 there has always been a need for leaders. The tribal chief knew this in the fatherland and as displaced persons we needed leadership and had this need fulfilled by strong and assertive ministers, tho' illiterate they were looked upon as leaders during the days of slavery.

Leaders developed with each age — 1787 found Prince Hall organizing the oldest Black social group in America the masons, Richard Allen in 1816 refused to suffer the indignities of the St. Georges Methodist church congregation and organized the first African Methodist Episcopal church, in 1829 David Walker advocated violence in his published "Appeal".

Nat Turner believed himself to be called by God to act as the black man's prophet and led a unsuccessful insurrection in 1831, but in 1839 Cinque, a African slave, who knew only three English words — "Give us free", led the successful Amistad Mutiny.

Fredrick Douglas in 1841 said, "Whites cannot be free while making the Negro a slave." In 1843 Sojourner Truth added womens rights to the same plea. Harriet Tubman often called Black Moses because of her success in leading the oppressed to the promise land of the North. 1895 found Booker T.

Washington whom many believe to be the black man's greatest leader, admonished the Negro to "Let down your bucket where you are."

1903 a new decade and a new voice W.E.B. DuBois a tireless fearless leader who's blunt anger emphasised his plea for economic democracy, in 1925 A. Philip Randolph who believed in union there was strength and organized the sleeping car porters. In 1955 a man with a dream emerged in the form of Martin Luther King who along with Roy Wilken, long time executive secretary of the NAACP, believed in passive resistance but admitted that NAACP membership was becoming restless over the slow pace of Civil Rights proceedings.

Silas Ewing Recognized At Awards Banquet

In a massive outpouring of support, some 200 persons jammed the Iowa Room of the Hotel Savery last Friday evening in an awards ceremony for Silas Ewing.

Ewing, who heads the personnel and management consulting firm Spence, Ewing & Associates Inc., recently resigned his position on the state parole board, citing personal and business reasons.

Within days of his resignation, media reports surfaced alleging that Ewing misused his position on the board for sexual favors and that he was under investigation by state agents. No formal charges have been filed, however, and investigators have been tight-lipped about reports they are probing Ewing and or the parole board as a whole.

The incident has refueled beliefs in the community that blacks in key public positions are increasingly coming under attack by forces in the city in an attempt to discredit them.

Ewing was presented one award — a plaque with a silver dollar-studded gavel — from the Minority Coalition of Iowa. It read: "For outstanding service and dedication to all Iowans seeking justice and understanding."

Another award, from the Black Caucus of the State of Iowa Democratic Party headed by attorney Thomas Mann, read: "Thanks Si. We will miss you."

All facets of the community, the public and private sectors, black and white, attended, including an aide from Gov. Robert Ray's office; officials from the Polk County attorney's office; several district court judges; noted lawyers; officials from the Des Moines Area Chamber of Commerce; state attorney general's office and Des Moines School Board representatives and several Des Moines policemen.

Said one longtime friend of Ewing's: "I know Si's character, commitment and integrity. (The allegations) are a terrible thing to happen to a man who gave faithful service to the down and out. The news reports were based on innuendo and cloak and dagger tactics... but there are two sides to this story and another side is being told tonight with this tremendous show of support for Si Ewing."

Herman Wrice, a marketing consultant from Atlantic, Ia., and a friend of Ewing, said: "This is a time for us to stand up and be counted instead of standing back and saying 'Oh, that's too bad.'"

Wrice said Ewing has always had an "open door policy" while on the board and has never objected to "being awakened at night with phone calls or being stopped on the street" by people seeking information in connection with his parole board duties.

"He could've hid himself away like a lot of people would have," he added.

Ewing appeared overwhelmed by the support. Barb Freeman, administrative assistant for the parole board, typified the mood of the affair when she approached Ewing, tears in her eyes, kissed him on the cheek, and said, "We'll miss you."

a particular area of concentration. Both Senator Jepsen and Senator Grassley are very much in need of attention. I cannot speak about U.S. representatives from Iowa at this time.

Some of my more radical friends cannot see the importance of this particular concern on a scale of one to ten. They ask: what's a birthday got to do with unemployment, inflation and racism?

My answer is, the movement for this national holiday is our North Star of hope. Through this experience of working together, it is possible to develop the skills necessary for effective work in such difficult areas as unemployment, welfare, and racism. May I suggest that it's work that gives talk meaning. O.K.?

People are very much needed to provide opportunities for others to sign our petitions. It is a pleasant and surprising experience. People are needed to collect signatures at NAACP monthly meetings, sororities and fraternities, lodge meetings, and social clubs.

the polls. Often whites would vote by candle light in the dark of the morning, when Negro voters came the polls were closed. In 1890 the plan was disfranchise, so the South came up with literacy, property, and poll taxes. Along with a "grandfather" clause, thus successfull eliminating the Negro (and poor white) as an active element in the political life of the South.

Now there are fewer impediments to voting because of the Negro's participation in both federal and state government. Until 1957 there was no legal way to protect the right to vote. The Civil Rights Act of 1957-60 gave the Dept. of Justice this right with the signing of voters rights by Pres. Johnson the literacy test etc. was outlawed.

Even though the 1870 15th amendment assured Negroes and poor whites the right to vote the fight has not yet been totally won, but the ground work has been laid, by providing new tools.

The South dies hard — three young men (Jew, White, Negro) attempting to register voters in 1964 were murdered in Philadelphia, Miss. by white segregationists.

A lot of coffee is served on election night while waiting for returns but the only good coffee is made in this manner: 1/2 C. coarse ground coffee, 68 oz. C. cold water, pinch of salt, 1 egg shell. EPISCOPAL DIOCESE OF IOWA ENDORSES MOVE FOR REV. MARTIN LUTHER KING HOLIDAY

January 14, 1981 — The Rt. Rev. Walter C. Righter, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Iowa, said "The effort to establish the birthday of Martin Luther King as a national holiday is an appropriate effort. It transcends any racial, or national limits and helps us with a profound understanding of the meaning of Christian Life." Bishop Righter made his statement in response to the current petition drive in Iowa being conducted by Edna Griffin.

Bishop Righter also expressed the hope that members of Congress from Iowa would support the effort.

Both the Anglican Communion, headed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, London, England, and the Episcopal Church, whose leader in Iowa is Bishop Righter, have recognized Martin Luther King and his birthday.

The American Episcopal Church, at its 1979 General Convention added Martin Luther King's birthday, January 15, as a day when he and what he represented is remembered in prayer.

With 70 million members world-wide, the Anglican Communion commemorates the memory of Martin Luther King in its Chapel of Twentieth Century Martyrs in England's Canterbury Cathedral.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Robert Runcie, will visit Des Moines and Ames on May 6 and 7, 1981.

There is unity among all cross-sections of black lives and faiths, when the life and goals of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. is the common denominator. This was noted by some two hundred people celebrating Dr. King, Jr.'s birthday, last Thursday, at St. Paul Church.

The rousing songs of the Richard Allen Chorus and the beautiful solos of Sisters Shirley Harper and Linda Walker Webster set the tone of Rev. Grady's message, "The Finest Hour", last Sunday. Our lives are rejuvenated by listening to the Word of God; singing His praises; and extolling His goodness and mercies. All, because we have a God of the living, and, not of the dead. Among our visitors, were: Atty. Charles Knox, of Chicago, Ill., Mr. Paul Daniels, of Washington, C.C. seeking a church home, and, our own church daughter, April Harper, of Lakewood, California.

This Sunday, will be Missionary Emphasis Day. It will be conducted by the William Sampson Brooks Society, Unit No. 1, the Young Peoples Department, and the New Life Ensemble.

Please have all Organizational Reports in to Sister Alberta Bates for the Third Quarterly Conference, Saturday, January 31st at 6:30 p.m.

NEW FRIENDSHIP CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

We are yet praising God from whom all blessings flow. In such times as these, we all need to get closer to the Lord. Trouble, tribulation, inflation, crime etc. is turning the world upsidedown, and the only hope that we have as people of God is in Christ Jesus.

Pastor Daye and the congregation of New Friendship do extend their heartfelt sympathy to the family of Mr. Dallas Hamilton in the death of his father. On Sunday morning, the message delivered by Pastor Daye was entitled "I know What Prayer Can Do." Matthew 21:23 ... We praise God for his word which will always stand.

On Sunday afternoon, some of the members journeyed with Pastor Daye to Ft. Dodge, Iowa to Calvary Memorial COGIC, Elder Leroy Johnson, pastor; where Sis. C. Daye had conducted a workshop in music and presented the Calvary Memorial Choir in concert. Truly God did come in and bless, the choir sang until the spirit of the Lord fell upon all of them.

FROM THE PASTOR

And walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given Himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savour. Ephesians 5th Chapter: 2nd Verse.

HEAVENLY TEMPLE COGIC NEWS

2110 Carpenter Avenue Des Moines, Iowa 50311 Pastor Bishop A.B. Carter Sr.

Bishop Carter taught out of the Holy Scriptures in a mighty way Sunday. His subject was IN MY FATHERS HOUSE:

And he told of the House not made with hands eternal in the Heavens ... He spoke of how it is written "Eyes have not seen and ears have not heard neither has it entered into the hearts of men the things the Lord has in store for THOSE THAT LOVE HIM! ... many of you may say, I LOVE THE LORD ... but what did he say to the disciples? IF YOU LOVE ME, KEEP MY COMMANDMENTS ... A N D M Y COMMANDMENTS ARE NOT GRIEVOUS ... In My Fathers house ... is Joy ...

He said, there is peace ... and there is no need for light, for there is no night there, no sorrow ... and all tears shall be wiped away ... that time is a lot closer than you think saints, ... he said to an audience full of friends and members ... will you be ready when he comes back?

Are you preparing to go to that place not made with hands? Or will you be one of those who will stand before GOD saying Lord I healed the sick IN YOUR name ... cast out devils in your name, and in your name did many wonderful works ... and He will say ...

Depart from me you worker of iniquity ... I know you not ... for I was hungry and you gave me no food ... naked and you clothed me not ... sick and in prison and you visited me not ... It is written that the wicked will say ...

Lord when saw we thee hungry, or sick and visited you not? or naked and clothed you not? then will the Master say in as much as you did it unto the least of these my little ones ... you did it unto me ... There shall be weeping ... and gnashing of teeth) ... Then let us prepare for his coming Saints ... said the Bishop ...

Let us work while it is day ... for the night cometh. When no man can work ... yes night is coming in all of our lives ... we will go to bed one of these nights, for the last time, for we will wake up in eternity ... ETERNITY ... SAINTS ... that is a long long time ... where will you spend it???

Think of your ways, ... If a mans ways please God, He will make even his enemies to be at peace with him ... think ... on your ways ...

Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify the father which is in Heaven.

MAY GOD BLESS YOU ... and may Heaven smile upon you is my prayer ... see you in church Sunday ... where you are warmly welcomed, and are free to sing your own songs and testify to the glory and honor of God.

Bring ONE SOUL to GOD this year ...

PROGRESSIVE MISSIONARY BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. R.B. Knox, pastor - Phone: 288-0074 or 282-2810, 1700 - 16th Street, Des Moines, Iowa 50314

This year January 15th, brought our remembrance to a great man, one whom I had the privilege of knowing and working with. As we sat and listen to the songs and watched the films looking back upon those great days we had worked together for the sake of freedom, I tried to think about the beautiful jolly days of the prime of life and when he and I was in the same city, on the same program, and at the same church.

I remember that very well, and listening to those great words of encouragement and inspiring thoughts as we were both in Brooklyn New York, but then my mind comes back to that Saturday of April 19, 68 when I looked at the bulletin.

It had on it "I have a dream". That dream was one filled with hard work, and disappointments. Freedom can never be won without a life being lost, for man to win freedom he must also learn how to die.

In order for man to have the true dream of this great man Dr. King, whose dream was filled with admiration, and with courage, it was also filled with independancy, which most of us fail to move forward on. When a man's dream becomes filled with the characteristics of Christ this is the only time (and not until then) that he can use these great words, "I have a dream".

Notice the impact of that dream, he had a dream that his family, his four little children would one day live in a nation where they would not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the contents of their character.

A man might have an idea but he can not have a dream unselfishly, that will join all men and brothers together and say he will be free at last, only if he have the character of Christ and the over - shadowness of his life.

Until men be captured by that mine which is in Christ Jesus, and that faith, and that bravery, he will not be able to be free and he will die without a dream and with no hope for his eternal soul.

The only way that we can move forward is to find the peace of this mantle of this great man and take a hold like Dr. Martin Luther King or we may be pointed out to lead the children of Israel to the promise land, but we must not be afraid to die. Freedom means something; having a dream and making that dream come true.

Dr. King declared that his dream had come true, he also declared that God had allowed him to go to the mountain top and see the promise land and he was satisfied that his eyes had seen the glory of God. He is free, he found his freedom and he is free at last with Christ.

Local Girl Scouts Attend Program In Minneapolis

Sixteen members of Moingona Girl Scout Council recently represented their local Girl Scout organization at a national program conference in Minneapolis, November 15, 16, 17, 1980. Both adults and girls attended, with teenaged Cadette and Senior Scouts making up about one fifth of the total.

Centered about the theme "Where the Future Begins: Girl Scouting in the 80's", the conference presented an overview of the totally revised and updated program for Girl Scouts aged six through seventeen.

Lonetta Johnson, a Cadette Scout from Troop No. 1049, Des Moines, gives an account of some of the things she did at the Conference. "We arrived in Minneapolis about 12:00 noon on the first day of the Conference. Right away, we went to a workshop. There were many workshops being held the entire time we were there.

One day we attended an International Luncheon and a program was presented by the television people that showed how certain television programs related to some of the new Girl Scout badges.

Our free time was spent shopping, visiting with friends and taking part in recreational activities. It was a good trip; I enjoyed the workshops that I attended and learned a lot.

It was also a good experience to be away from home, feeling independent and being responsible for paying for my meals and trying to spend money carefully. The Girl Scout Council gave each girl $60.00 for meals and I came home with $14.00.

Thank you, Moingona, for this pleasant experience."

"then come together and map out priorities in order to improve life for both groups."

She said both groups could function independently of one another.

Saadiq said the proposed organization should analyze those state and city offices black candidates are capable of winning. He said it also could sponsor debates on election and community issues "to spark interest in the candidate's campaign and enlighten his or her constituents."

Saadiq also suggested that 1981 is the year to challenge the State Legislature about how lawmakers draw precinct and ward boundaries that fragment the power base of blacks. Legislators are scheduled to map out new district lines this year.

Gentry added that those who draw the lines don't care about minority representation. He recalled when black state representative June Franklin was elected to the House in the Sixties, boundaries were redrawn that ultimately led to her defeat.

He said the community's best interests would be served if candidates ran at large, combining the unified vote of the east-west side residents with the broader support of whites as a formula for victory.

He said candidates would be smart to work with the churches, which he identified as the strongest source of power at the community's disposal.

Glanton stressed that in close elections, voting as a bloc could be the decisive factor to tip the scales toward a candidate supported by the community when a minority is not running.

She added that leaders should become more actively involved with energetic youth "who are not experienced and need the benefit of strong, able and intelligent leadership."

She urged listeners to include youth in their activities, encouraging them to become leaders, and to show them how.

Saadiq, citing how a band of youngsters assisted Glanton's campaign by distributing more than 5,000 leaflets, agreed with her suggestion, saying youth are a willing resource to be tapped.

Gentry followed suit, asserting that young adults and children "need to be exposed to things that affect their lives so they might better understand how important decisions are made" and how those in power can be influenced to be more sensitive to the needs of the community.

Looking toward the future, Jones pledged to work on the Woodland-Willkie board for the needs of the elderly and the community as a whole.

Saadiq said he sees the election of Ronald Reagan and other ultra-conservatives to positions of power in the nation is the jolt necessary to unify blacks here and nationwide.

Glanton said she saw a pattern of growth for the community during her campaign and she foresees no retreat on those gains.

Crawfords Celebrate 35 Years Of Marriage

Rev. & Mrs. A.C. Crawford were married in their comfortable apartment, on December 21, 1945, with the late Rev. Lee Alexander Garrett, the participating officiant. Rev. Crawford, is the busy and very energetic assistant pastor at the Union Baptist church, at E. University & McCormick. Mrs. Dorothy Crawford is a former member of the Mt. Hebron Baptist church, formerly located in W.D.M., where she was very active on the church usher's board.

Rev. Crawford went on to pastor at the St. John's Bapt. church, on Maury St. Mrs. Crawford, then joined her husband in his ministry at the said church, where they both worked untiringly. After some time lapse, Rev.

went to several other pastorates; one of the most notable was at the Morningstar Baptist church, where Mrs. Crawford has rendered Price-less service to the pastor, congregation and various civic organizations throughout the city of Des Moines.

She is well known for her tireless efforts in all the various church denominations regardless of affiliation.

On Dec. 21, 1980 these two shared the joy of 35 years of wedded bliss, with a lovely open house celebration, attended by scores of their many friends, made throughout the years. The elaborate table decor, consisted of a floral centerpiece of jade - green and coral - presented to them by Mrs. Bernice Hall a friend of long - standing.

Mrs. Raye Galbreath, a friend of many years acted as the super - hostess aide to the Rev. & Mrs. Crawford. She was the instigator and decorator for a lovely jade green and coral sequined money tree, that became covered with "green" leaves as the the afternoon wore on. The repast consisted of sparkling punch, individual tea - cakes, assorted mints, and assorted nuts.

The guest list of those in attendance is as follows: June Smith & family, Lucian Wyant, Rena Johnson, Odell Henry, Mrs. Richard Daniels, Ernesta Manson, Madge Gaiters, Mr. & Mrs. Harold Ridge, Viola Cooley, Mr. & Mrs. Bobbie Holmes, Robert & Mable Jackson, Mrs. George Tywater, Pauline Gilbert, Larry and Linda Jenkins, Leola Withers, Mr. & Mrs. Leonard Wade, Karin Cunningham and children, Barbara Estes, Doloris Heath and granddaughter Dana.

Mr. & Mrs. Henry Griffith, Rebecca Shields, Gillie B. Reed, Mr. & Mrs. Charles Swink, Mr. & Mrs. Howard Brown, Mr. & Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. Phyllis Brown, Mr. &

Mrs. Frank Bailey, Mrs. Mary Clark, Mr. & Mrs. Wm Carter, Mrs. Susie Shelton, Mrs. Evelyn Davis and daughter Sherri, Mrs. Lucile Gordon.

Mr. Charles Watkins, Mr. & Mrs. Tom Smith, Rev. and Mrs. Alex Crawford, Jr., Rev. & Mrs. George Parrish, Rev. & Mrs. Robert Hamilton, Rev. Harvey Goudeau, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Green, Mabel Pomerantz, Leslie Ann Pomerantz, Susan Pomerantz Sponden, Debbie Sue Pomerantz Young.

Rev. and Mrs. H.R. Fields, Rev. & Mrs. Larry Harris, Rev. & Mrs. H.I. Thomas and family.

Many friends were unable to attend the festive occasion but were participants in absentia. They were Louise Brannon, the Langston Abbotts, Willa Carmichael, John & Doris Woods, Hucey and Alice Hart, Estes & Son Funeral directors, Arthur Galbreath, Odella Daniels, Rev. & Mrs.

Fred W. Strickland and from the many members of Morningstar Bapt. who could not attend a very generous purse from the membership.

This was the first 35 years, and from all their friends and acquaintances, may you have another 35 — just as fruitful as the first 35 were.

From the Iowa Senate

Julia Gentleman

Budgetary matters already dominate legislative interest as we enter the second week of the session. There is considerable activity in the appropriation subcommittees, as each group, comprised of both House and Senate members, reviews the current fiscal year (1981) to determine if additional cuts should be made, and if so, where.

The task of making selective cuts is a prerogative reserved to the General Assembly, through its appropriation authority. During the interim when the national and state economy faltered, the Governor made across - the - board cuts amounting to 4.6% of the 1.8 billion dollar budget. There is some question now whether these reductions will be enough to assure a balance in the state treasury by June 30.

The state controller thinks there will be no need for further cuts, while the fiscal bureau director projects at least a 14 million deficit. These calculations are of course dependent upon differing projections of state revenue, which in turn are helplessly dependent upon the health of the economy in the months ahead.

And so for the next 2 weeks before the Governor delivers his budget message dealing with fiscal years 1982 and 1983, the subcommittees will be examining each department and agency to see if there is further fat to be trimmed that will translate into dollars saved, with a minimal dislocation of services delivered. No easy task.

The Mental Health and Corrections Appropriations Subcommittee on which I serve has been looking at the Governor's economy task force recommendations as a source of savings. We are hearing the Department of Social Service's accounting of which ones have been implemented through their actions, which ones with which they disagree and why. Some of the recommendations will require legislative action.

After January 29 when the Governor delivers his message, these committees can begin the even more challenging work of developing the budget for the next 2 years. One thing appears certain. The legislature is sensitive to the already beleaguered taxpayer, and is fiercely committed to the state living within its means.

Jo Ann Trucano

Representative
62nd District

Assistance for the cost of winter heating will be available to low - income Iowans this year, according to Representative Jo Ann Trucano, Republican from the sixty - second District. Administered through the local Community Action Agencies, the federally funded Low - Income Energy Assistance Program will provide $32.7 million to low - income Iowans for the 1980 - 81 heating season.

"I wish to remind the citizens of my district who are worried about high heating bills and low - incomes that they should apply at their local Community Action Agency," Rep. JoAnn Trucano stated. The program is on a first-come first-serve basis and the local Agencies began taking applications the week of December 15, 1980.

"Thus far we have been fortunate," Rep. Trucano noted. December has been a mild month. However, this weather will not hold indefinitely. Heating costs will be high. The program is not intended to cover the entire heating bill. It will provide much needed assistance to many qualifying Iowans."

According to Rep. Trucano, people living in Polk County should contact one of the following for further information.

other cities in Iowa, particularly in Des Moines, who's policy, he remarked, was "ambiguous and unworkable."

While stressing it was now crucial for the city to implement the new policy through the development of an effective program, Morris said he had confidence that city officials would carry through with the project. He also stated that the NAACP would not only assist the City with minority recruitment, but will also continue to monitor the efforts of the city government to ensure the development of a functional and efficient program.

The Affirmative Action dispute between the city of Iowa City and the local NAACP began last April, when the NAACP presented a prepared statement before the City Council, voicing their concerns over the nonexistence of an effective City government Affirmative Action program, and its detrimental effects on minority employment and promotion practices by the City. A ten-month period of controversy followed with firings, resignations, and consistent heated exchanges in the press.

An Affirmative Action Task Force was appointed by the City Manager in May, which consisted of City department heads and members of the Human Relations Department and the Human Rights Commission. In August, one member of the Task Force publicly criticized it for "going nowhere!" and characterized the force as an attempt by the City Manager to "white-wash" the issue. In November, the Task Force released the new policy which went, virtually unchanged by the City Manager, before the City Council for passage.

Morris concluded that, "this was a very gratifying accomplishment for us, especially considering that this was totally our issue from the beginning on. We raised it, fed it, and pushed it through in a city that is only 2% black. We are quite satisfied with the progress thus far."

Free Tax Help For Elderly, Low Income Residents

Low income and elderly residents in the Des Moines area can again obtain free help in completing their Federal income tax returns through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Program and Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE).

The VITA and TCE Programs are sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons and the Internal Revenue Service. Trained VITA and TCE treatment of pension benefits, credit for the elderly, medical deductions, and other matters.
