NAACP's Hooks Reacts To Reagan Economic Message

While the NAACP has not had an opportunity to examine Mr. Reagan's economic message in detail, NAACP Executive Director Benjamin L. Hooks, said, "We have heard enough to arouse serious concern over the direction and intent of the new Administration's program—as stated in his recent economic message broadcast to the nation.

"That program appears to come down heavily on so-called 'social programs' that profoundly affect the needy, the poor and the working poor, where blacks are disproportionately positioned in our society. It centers on threats to eliminate food stamps, or make their acquisition more difficult for those who are already experiencing unnecessary difficulties in securing them. Its stated aim is to severely curtail financial support to students.

"We do not accept the notion that President Reagan's election was a clear and certain mandate from the American People to eliminate the bedrock social programs which were so carefully put in place over the past four decades.

spending is a national disgrace.

"Cutting the budget by 10 or 50 billion dollars will not necessarily slow the pace of inflation or provide jobs for the over-increasing jobless. It is our hope that as the budget cutters engage in their business of fiscal surgery they will also apply surgical knives to the waste and bloat in defense where so much of the nation's precious resources are squandered.

"These are some of our tentative views. Within the next few weeks after we have had the opportunity to examine Mr. Reagan's economic message in detail, we will issue a more definitive report setting forth our objections and recommendations," he promised.

"It is important to note that there is no proven connection from an economic viewpoint between cutting or balancing the budget and reducing inflation. An unbalanced budget has not been the sole or even the major cause of inflation in our country. It is thus important that we not get caught up in the theory that simply cutting the budget will, in and of itself, reduce inflation or produce jobs," he said.

Friendship Force Exchange Announced

Des Moines area residents are being sought to participate as either Ambassadors or Host Families for the seventh exchange trip with a foreign location scheduled for July 30th to August 13th.

Ed Mann, Exchange Director, announced that Cardiff, Wales has been selected as exchange city for the trip. Normally the Friendship Force does not announce the exchange location until Ambassadors and Hosts have been selected.

An exception to the policy was made on this exchange trip due to a special Friendship Force trip made to Cardiff in 1980 by 254 Des Moines area Ambassadors to promote the Friendship Force concept and generate participation interest in the program. As a direct result of the 1980 trip, the City of Cardiff did put together a program for an exchange trip to Des Moines.

The purpose of the Friendship Force is to foment international understanding through person to person contact and the establishment of lasting international friendships. During the exchange, participants will live in host homes and share in the host family's daily life.

While the Des Moines Ambassadors are in Cardiff, a like number of Cardiff citizens will be in Iowa. Visitors stay half the time with one host and then have the option to stay with another host family or utilize that time for personally planned trips in the exchange country.

Participation in the program is open to all Iowa residents. Those individuals wishing to be Ambassadors that do not live in Des Moines or the immediate surrounding area are required to arrange for a Host Family on their behalf in the Des Moines area as a prerequisite for acceptance.

Host Families will provide room and board for the number of foreign Ambassadors they elected to house. The Host Families are also

"We do not accept the notion that defense spending is a sacred cow which shall be immune from budget cuts and close scrutiny. Cost overruns in defense are scandalous. The awarding of no-bid contracts is unconscionable and the fraud of waste in military

Neighborhood Development Sponsors Spring Garden Project

The City's Neighborhood Development offices are again taking applications for the Spring City-Wide Garden Project. The Project — which the City has operated since 1977 — provides seeds, plants, and tilling without charge to elderly, handicapped and low-income residents of Des Moines.

Every month rising food costs take a bigger bite out of family food budgets; the garden project offers residents a chance to bring food costs down by "growing some of their own."

Last year over 1,800 gardens were grown throughout the City; six of them were community gardens maintained by neighbors on large vacant lots. City officials estimate that the average garden would yield about $100 in fresh produce or over $180,000 of fresh food city-wide.

Although the City receives a small grant of CSA funds — $5,000 for some tilling costs — the success of the project is due to the generosity of private, religious and business groups in the City, as well as the time volunteered by residents in packaging seeds, filling orders and tilling gardens.

Some $5,000 in seeds, plants and materials was donated to the project last year by local concerns, with another $5,000 in cash donated made by some 17 religious and business groups. City officials expect participation this year will be even larger.

Elderly, handicapped and low-income residents should apply for the program at any of the following Neighborhood Development Site Offices:

Four-Mile, 3711 Easton, 283-4096.

VIEWS and REVIEWS

by Allen Ashby

ALLEN ASHBY

I would have to think that the sudden disappearance of my written words from this paper must have left some of you wondering. Well, I decided to let you know just what happened.

On the morning of January 13, I was headed home to get ready to go to Dunlap School, when I got a crushing pain in my chest so severe that I had to stop the car and rest a few minutes before proceeding home. When I got home, the pains didn't slack up any, so I thought I had better get me to a hospital. The only one I knew anything about was Broadlawn, so I jumped into my car and headed out there.

Now, I realize that was a dumb stunt. But I have been saying for sixty years that God protects fools, drunks and children, so when he saw me that morning, He must have known that I belonged in one of those groups, so I got to Broadlawn safely.

Over the years I have been hearing about how long people have to wait out there, so I was surprised at their speed. They had my problem diagnosed and me on my way up to the intensive care unit in the time it would have taken some hospitals to check my ID and my credit rating.

And once there, it seemed that just about all of the nurses were making sure you didn't want for anything. I began to think I had a special nurse, and maybe I did in that unit. For the first time in my life I was waited on hand and foot, and I didn't know what to do, so I decided to take things as they came.

After two days and nights up there I came down to the regular wards. I was feeling so good that I put myself right back up in the IC unit. I acted as if I had never been sick and that was wrong. It was three more days before they let me out and when they did, it was with a warning to take it easy, which I did. I stayed in the regular wards twenty one days and all the while I received care that had to be as good as that given in any other hospital anywhere. I was put through a course of exercises and taken for walks that helped put me back on track.

Now, about my heart attack. I am sure I must have had some warning that I failed to recognize or ignored. I am not a doctor, but I can't believe those things sneak up on one without some sort of warning.

One thing I learned in that place. Dr. Welby's Sanka Coffee isn't what the TV commercials would have you believe. You know, in the commercial, the real coffee drinker takes one sip and becomes a Sanka drinker forever. Well, I took sips for days, and I haven't become one yet, even if I do have to drink the stuff now.

The big shock to me was the reaction of the people who learned that I was in the hospital. I believe I got at least a hundred cards, some flowers and plants.

Honestly, I didn't know that many people were interested in what happened to Mrs. Ashby's second son. I will never be able to answer all of them, so I will take this chance to say thanks to all of you. Visitors and people offering prayers and I felt like staying up there a while longer and seeing what would happen. But, no, I was too glad to get out of there.

Now I am not out of the woods yet. I have embarked on a walking program that started with a quarter mile daily and increased, so now after about four weeks, I am up to a mile and three quarters daily. In a couple of days I will try a mile and a half for an increased speed. They tell me that is one of the best exercises a heart patient can take.

I have been in athletics long enough to know to follow orders, because it is a theory of mine that most athletic contests are lost because someone didn't follow instructions, and didn't do what was supposed to be done or did what wasn't supposed to be done. And I believe that a lot of us lose out to our troubles and ailments for the same reason.

I have lost lots of games because I couldn't play the game I was trying to play, but I lost very few because I didn't follow the rules or didn't know them, and I surely don't intend to lose this, the biggest game I was ever in, because I blundered. They will get me some day, but they are gonna play it to the end.

Is there a chance that I will be around tennis this summer? I am making plans that way, and hope to see you out there. However, I have given up on the Drake Relays and Iowa football games. There is no way I can climb all those stadium steps and the big hills to the parking lot and not be in trouble. It isn't very often that I write about myself, but I thought you ought to know.

Thoughts and Comments

By James B. Morris III

The black population in Iowa were, along with their Southern counterparts, victims of violence and intimidation after the Civil War ended. Not only were they subject to a new economic peonage in the postwar decades, but the white supporters who earlier had expressed so much interest in their plight showed a marked lack of interest in their current circumstances. For example, white-controlled newspapers in Iowa, during the late 1860's and throughout the decade of the 1870's, carried extensive coverage of organized activities and individual happenings within the black community, but as the emotions of the Civil War era cooled and blacks assumed various roles (primarily menial) in the everyday life of communities, the special interest and ready sympathy disappeared.

As the black population in Iowa increased and the degree of economic competition increased with whites, the number and importance of items devoted to happenings in the black community decreased. The nature of news about the black community also changed, reflecting the growing opposition of white Iowans to their black counterparts which was rapidly developing.

By the late 1880's and throughout the 1890's, white-controlled newspapers showed only infrequent reports which appeared nearly always in the section or pages devoted to crimes - murder, theft and rape. If black organizations were involved in worthwhile educational or other special projects, newspaper readers were seldom told of it. Honors bestowed upon black Iowans were largely ignored; when President Benjamin Harrison appointed Alexander Clark to be the American minister (ambassador of a sort) to Liberia, the white-controlled press completely ignored it, and left their readers equally ignorant of his death some months later. Although some may feel this example not to be representative of the trends and problems which black Iowans faced between the end of the Civil War and the First World War, I feel it quite representative of the change in majority sentiments during that period, which was reflected in the legislative and judicial output of the time.

Although a Civil Rights Act was passed by the Iowa legislature in 1884, its judicial interpretations from that time until the beginning of the First World War, the rulings of the Iowa Supreme Court reflect the biased and narrow outlook which white Iowans espoused during the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Nationally, the situation was no different. The U.S.

Supreme Court, made up primarily of Northern Republicans, strongly supported the growing national opinion that black Americans were not entitled to the same civil rights as whites. In one 1883 decision, the Court sanctioned the segregation of blacks by individuals in all states. In the 1896 ruling of Plessy v. Ferguson, which upheld the constitutionality of state laws providing "separate but equal" accommodations for blacks, a precedent was set which greatly aided the spread of segregation on public carriers and in public places throughout the country.

Lower federal courts and the Interstate Commerce Commission had already approved such segregation and, as one lower federal court decided, "equality of right does not mean identity of right." In the Plessy case, the majority upheld the Louisiana state segregation statute, declaring that the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution "... could not have been intended to abolish distinctions based on color, or to enforce ... a co-mingling of the two races upon terms unsatisfactory to either."

These color lines, which had before been primarily informal, were formalized into state statutes and city ordinances of every conceivable kind following that decision. Against this national background of segregation; black Iowans were, although granted by the Legislature and the State Constitution the rights and privileges full citizenship in 1868, no less segregated and subjugated than the black populations of other states with formal legislation on the subject.

March 8, 1857 New York City women garment and textile workers marched in protest against a 50-60 hour work week. Think for a moment what a working woman's life six days each week, no vacation with or without pay. Supper to prepare after a 10 to 12 hour day. Children and husband to care for. On the seventh day there was the family wash. Women workers had no rights an employer was bound to respect. This was the situation six years before the Emancipation Proclamation freeing the slaves in the United States. This, then is a bird's eye view of the reasons women marched March 8th, 1857.

Most, if not all, the women marching March 8th, 1857 were Jewish immigrants from Russia and eastern Europe where there was much more political awareness of economic classes and their meaning for the poor. This may well explain the excitement in Europe at the news of working women in America marching in protest against working conditions.

Fifty one years later, March 8th, 1908 American women marched for the right to vote. Two years later in 1910 100 women from 17 countries attended an International Conference of Socialist Women in Copenhagen Denmark. The delegates voted to call March 8th of each year International Women's Day in honor of the American women who marched in 1857. I hope this quick glimpse at a small bit of woman history helps to better understand what women's liberation is really about today.

It is estimated that women earn 65 percent of what men earn. On March 3 the Service Employees' International Union, AFL-CIO and Working Women announced a major drive to organize 20 million office workers. Working women is an independent organization of 10,000 working women with chapters in 13 states. The coalition between Working Women and the Service Employees' International Union makes collective bargaining with a company legal.

Coalition is without question the key to getting equality for women. The coalition of Working Women and Employees International Union to organize office workers is a good example of women and labor working together. I am glad to see organizations led by women for women's rights. Men in labor unions listen better to what women have to say. The Coalition of Labor Union Women (CLUW) and Women For Racial and Economic Equality are the two best known organizations using the new approach to the organization of women, including minority women, Black, Hispanic, and Asian. These organizations cooperate and support labor ... Such coalitions have put the first working woman on the AFL-CIO Executive Council in the history of U.S. Labor.

The labor movement in America has always depended for success in organization drives, especially in the South. The problem has been women were not included in decision making. Women's organizations give support to women members of locals where they tend to be overlooked.

Soul... Food and Thought

Many little boys enjoy playing cops and robbers and grow up with the desire to be policeman, G Man, F.B.I. or what have you. These jobs seem to hold more attraction now that TV has glamorized the private eye — Barnaby Jones, Kojak, Hawaii 5-0 but what about the little black boys and girls who also dream of an exciting life with the CIA or being a private eye like Jim Rockford?

After all Charlie has no black angel, Gregg Morris was only a back up man in Mission Impossible, Bill Cosby had a token script in the I Spy series and J. Edgar Hoover was adamant in that there would be no blacks in the FBI as long as he was at the helm.

But the truth is that blacks, both men and women make excellent undercover agents and have played a major role in our countries destiny and the shaping of her history as far back as the Rev. Mar. A slave named Pompey was largely responsible for Anthony Waynes capture of the Stony Point, N.Y. fort in 1779. Feigning ignorance, he obtained the British password and helped a detachment of Americans overpower the British lookout.

James Armistead, considered by some to be the greatest of Negro spies helped trap Cornwallis. Gen. Lafayette told Armistead to go into the Cornwallis camp and learn his strength and battle plans. Armistead was so successful the Gen. Cornwallis asked him to spy on Lafayette. The Negro spy shuttled between the British and American camps, carrying false information to Cornwallis and bona fide information to Lafayette.

Mary Bowen a former slave became a spy in the Jefferson household working with a Miss Van Lew who was considered a "silly old woman" because of her innocent ways. But with Marys help at getting information from the men who conferred with Jefferson, Van Lew was able to pass the information on to Gen. Grant.

And last but not least was Mary Louvestre, a dressmaker and trusted slave who was able to get into the chief engineers office in the Confederate Norfolk Navy yard and copy secret designs for the ironclad MERRIMAC. She took the plans to Washington and gave them to the Union thus giving them the knowledge needed to complete the MONITOR.

THE ELDERLY AND THE COLD

If you haven't spent much time around elderly people, it may surprise you to learn that it is difficult, if not impossible, for some of them to shiver — even when extremely cold — says a University of Iowa gerontologist.

"Inability to shiver leads to hypothermia, which means low body temperature," explains Dr. Ian Smith, UI professor of internal medicine and geriatrics specialist.

As we age our bodies deteriorate at the rate of close to one percent every 10 years. Deterioration means that the function of our organs peaks at age 30, and they gradually lose their functional abilities thereafter. Thus, by the time we are 60 we have deteriorated about 20 percent, he says.

Inability to shiver is one form of bodily deterioration affecting our nervous systems as we age.

To overcome this inability to shiver, older people should dress warmly in winter weather, keep their heating thermostats at a comfortable temperature and, if possible, be physically active, Smith advises.

Older people who live alone would be wise to avoid colder areas in the house. Because of their already lower body temperatures they might go into a coma if not discovered promptly should they happen to fall.

Smith also cautions older people to dress appropriately and not go alone whenever venturing outdoors in winter. Being accompanied by another person may avoid the possibility of lying undiscovered in the cold following a fall, and possibly going into shock.

If these words of advice are heeded, an older person should have no problem enjoying winter as much as younger people do, the UI gerontologist concludes.

April 19: Deaconess Council here at 2:30 p.m.

Sermon was preached by Rev. John Williams titled "Hold to God's Unchanging Hand." Scripture background Matt. 28:18.

Thought for Today: Be strong and of good courage: be not afraid, neither be dismayed, for the Lord your God is with you wherever you go.

NEW FRIENDSHIP CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

We are praising God for the message of inspiration delivered by Missionary V. Miller of the Calvary Memorial COGIC in Ft. Dodge, Iowa who was visiting our church on Sunday morning. She is our District Mission President. Her daughter Sis. P. Avery was also with her. Truly she did make our hearts glad. During the altar service, a young man gave his heart to Jesus with her ministering.

There will be no service at New Friendship the week of March 9 - 15 as our State Ministers and Workers meeting is convening. But on Saturday March 14 beginning at 11:30 AM, delicious Chicken and Rib dinner will be available in our Church Dining Room. For more information please call 243-7097.

Please remember, the L. Jenkins Memorial Banquet is scheduled for 5 p.m. on March 28, 1981. Also on March 29, 1981 there will be a skating jamboree at the Terrace Skating Rink beginning at 7 p.m.

ST. PAUL A.M.E. CHURCH

1201 Day Street
Rev. Lewis E. Grady,
Jr., Pastor

"One holy Church, one
army strong,
One steadfast high intent,
One working band, one harvest-song,
One King omnipotent."

S. Johnson
Rev. Dr. Joseph Allen
Parker, Detroit, Michigan, graced our pulpit last Sunday. He preached from the Book of Psalms, 98:1, "O Sing unto the Lord a new song, for he hath done
marvelous things..."
Even though this Psalm was written to celebrate Israel's deliverance from Babylonish captivity, it can be understood prophetically of the redemption of the world by Jesus Christ. This is the Lenten Season. We recognize the marvelous things of our Lord. He causes us to sing anew, as we become strong in His protection; as our hearts become responsive to Him; as He lets us discover His universe; as we learn that He can redeem us, no matter

how low we may sink;
and, are given hope.

Also, in the atmosphere of the Lenten Season, St.
Paul will be celebrating a "born again" feeling with Rededication Services,
this coming Sunday.
Come one, come all to sing a new song!

The Adah Johnson
Missionary Unit No. 1
primed this new feeling, last Sunday, with hosting a "CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP - WITH LOVE".

Isn't it exhilarating and rewarding to have found a "brother" from your efforts through God?

Public Relations Director.

A Female Focus On The Issues

Peggy Spates Johnson

A sound hooray for Polk County Attorney Dan Johnson's decision not to retry the Kings. I'm sure they have gone through enough misery without another public display of the Des Moines power structures' attempt at a "legal lynching."

In the past ten years, not one case that ended in a hung jury had been retried. This one would have looked very suspicious and racist if it had. I hope the Kings and Al Parrish manage to obtain some financial retribution from Younkers for dragging their names through the mud for six months.

It seems dangerous in Des Moines if you're black and have any type of political power or social clout; especially if you try to keep Model cities money in the hands of the poor, elderly and people of color in our community rather than downtown Des Moines redevelopment.

As you probably noticed, close to 350 Des Moines public school employees are about to get the ax. It is sad parents have no control over the funds allotted for education. The minds of the young are a precious tool and I have to see larger classes and fewer teachers in the Des Moines system.

You know Iowa has one of the best school systems in the nation and one of the highest literacy rates. I'd be sorry to see this changed. Get on the backs of your legislators folks, if you are interested!!!

Ole Ronnie is backing a $35 billion increase for defense spending, but heaven forbid any extra funds going to our schools and dedicated teachers. I guess it is easier to pay for the instruments to kill people rather than educate them. I only hope that my family's move to Houston this summer finds the schools not in the financial predicament that we in Des Moines seem to be in.

Last, I hope you checked out the articles on Black Youth and Black Women in last Saturday's Tribune, these were right on target in documenting the tough time black youth have in surviving in white America.

Still it went onto point out in the article on minority women, how the Black woman has always been the cement that holds the black community, family and culture together.

G. E. WELCH REGISTERED COMMODITY BROKER

Granville E. Welch, an Omaha resident since 1975, recently received his license as a registered Commodity Futures broker and has established trade as an Granville E. Welch account executive at the Omaha office of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, and Smith, Inc.

Mr. Welch came to Omaha as a grain merchandiser for Pillsbury Company in October, 1975, and performed at that job while mastering the art of trading grain commodities such as corn, soybeans, and wheat. During the past six months he has completed the training, testing, and residency necessary to obtain a license under the auspices of the Federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

As a Merrill Lynch broker he will advise customers in their purchases and sales of such commodities as gold, silver, grains, livestock and treasury bills, which are traded in futures exchanges in New York, Chicago, and Kansas City. His customers are two types 1) businesses, which use futures contracts in marketing their regular inventory of products; and 2) individuals interested in high-risk money-making opportunities, who speculate in the price movement of such commodities.

Mr. Welch, a native of Des Moines, Iowa, served in the United States Air Force prior to attending Drake University, where he graduated with honors while obtaining a BS/ Education with majors in history and economics. There he won a Danforth Fellowship which assisted in his graduate studies at Drake.

While attending Drake Mr. Welch was active in his native community in several organizations. He organized the North Des Moines Youth Corp, a group in which youngsters supplemented their regular school studies with intensive lessons in reading, mathematics and cultural awareness. He also served as Chairman of the Des Moines Black Organization where he stressed the merit of black citizens conducting cultural festivals and political seminars. This organization conducted such activities regularly with the objective of generating funds for donation to breakfast programs and neighborhood scholarship committees.

Upon graduation from Drake Mr. Welch was a teacher of American History, African History, Economics, and political Science at Roosevelt High School in Des Moines, where he also served as head cross country coach and assistant track coach.

In assuming this position with Merrill Lynch, Mr. Welch acknowledges that he especially desires to attract business from the Omaha black community, and explains that commodity futures speculating, while extremely risky, may in instances return several times more than investments in stock market or real estate transactions.

Welch resides with his wife Marvel, and two sons, Cameron and Grant, at 4463 Ellison Avenue.

Meet Shelley Duvall, Popeye's girlfriend Olive Oyl

Shelley Duvall plays Olive Oyl in the motion picture "Popeye."

She is a natural for the part because she is so tall and skinny.

In fact, when she was growing up, her friends called her Olive Oyl.

Shelley, who is now 30 years old, was born in Houston, Texas.

She started acting 10 years ago when she was a science student at a junior college in her hometown.

Shelley got her first break in Houston. She gave a party for a friend who was having an art exhibit. The guests included three people who worked for movie director Robert Altman. Instead of buying a painting, these three guests became interested in Shelley. They asked her to try out for a part in a film that was being shot on location in Houston. She auditioned and won the role.

Robin Williams and Shelley Duvall in a scene from "Popeye."

Since then Shelley has appeared in seven movies directed by Altman.

Shelley has also been on TV in "Cannon," "Love American Style" and as a guest hostess on "Saturday Night Live."

She has homes in both New York City and Beverly Hills.

Kissing the Blarney stone is an old Irish custom

To kiss the stone, first you have to lie flat on your back.

You bend your head back so that it is upside down. Then you kiss the stone. Someone has to hold your legs because there is a crack between the floor and the stone.

The Blarney stone is in a tower in Blarney Castle, near Cork, in the Republic of Ireland.

Today many tourists visit Blarney Castle in Ireland to kiss the Blarney stone.

There is an old belief that when you do kiss the stone, you will be given the "gift of gab." You will be able to flatter people into believing what you say.

There are many stories about how this custom started. One story goes:

Once a king saved the life of a small fairy who was drowning. She wanted to thank him in some way.

When he said he wanted nothing, he stammered.

The fairy knew then that he did indeed need the gift of being a good speaker.

She told him to go to the highest tower in a nearby castle and kiss a certain stone.

When he did, he became an outstanding talker.

The fairy asked the king to keep the stone-kissing a secret, but he did not. He told all of his people.

Another story is that many years ago Queen Elizabeth I kept getting letters from the Lord of Blarney Castle.

These letters did not answer the questions she asked him. He rambled on, really saying nothing. One day she got so angry that she cried, "This is all Blarney; what he says he never means."

Still another story is that the Lord of Blarney Castle used to flatter his enemies so they would leave without attacking.

Neighborhood Questionnaires Distributed

Beginning next Monday, March 16, some 2,000 residents of the city's prime service areas will receive a questionnaire seeking their views on how conditions in their neighborhoods could be improved.

The questionnaire is being issued by the city's neighborhood priority boards in order to gather additional information on the concerns of their neighbors.

The boards will use the results of the questionnaire — along with testimony given by residents at open neighborhood hearings (May 4-8) — to draw up a list of needs and priorities for their areas.

The priorities will be finalized at the annual neighborhood priority board planning conference May 9, and will be used in making recommendations for the expenditures of federal community development block grant funds the city expects to receive next year.

The questionnaire will be dropped off at a sampling of prime service area homes by outreach staff of the city's neighborhood development site offices, and will be picked up by the outreach workers by Friday, March 20.

Residents who receive a questionnaire are encouraged by their local board to fill it out in order that the needs of the area can be as representative as possible.

A Great Day for the Irish

from The Mini Page by Betty Debnam © 1981 Universal Press Syndicate

St. Patrick's Day is March 17

There are many statues of St. Patrick in Ireland. He started over 300 churches and brought the Christian religion to over 120,000 people.

St. Patrick is the patron saint of Ireland.

Hundreds of years ago he brought the Christian religion to that small island.

Many legends have grown up about St. Patrick. One story is that, as a young boy, he was kidnapped from his home in England or France. He was sold into slavery in Ireland and spent six years herding sheep.

He escaped to France, where he became a monk. He had a vision to return to Ireland.

Today there are no big snakes in Ireland. Another legend is that St. Patrick charmed all of them and led them down to the sea where they drowned themselves.

March 17 honors the date of his death.

The Leprechauns

The Irish love to tell tall tales about fairies. The leprechauns are the most famous. These tiny little men are the shoemakers for the fairies.

The story is that every leprechaun has a little pot of gold. If you see one of these little men, you can have his treasure if you keep both eyes on him.

If you glance away, the leprechaun will vanish. At least all of them have up until now!

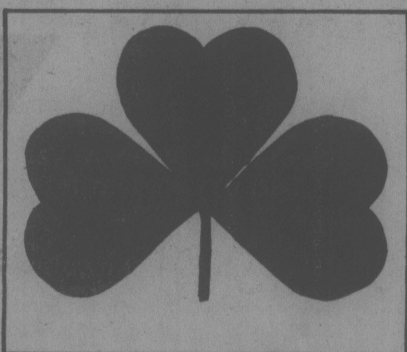

The Shamrock

The shamrock is the national flower of Ireland, England and Wales.

The story is that St. Patrick brought this clover-like flower to Ireland.

There are many shamrock farms in Ireland. Shamrocks are shipped all over the world, especially around St. Patrick's Day.

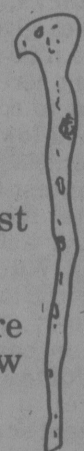

The Shillelagh

The shillelagh (she-LAY-lee) is a wooden stick that the Irish sometimes carry as a cane.

These sticks got their name because at one time they were made from oak trees that grew in the forest near the village of Shillelagh.

The first shillelaghs were used as weapons. One blow could kill you.

Today's shillelaghs are used as canes and souvenirs.

At one time, Ireland was one country ruled by England. Today, it is divided into two parts. The smaller part is Northern Ireland. It is a part of the United Kingdom and is closely tied to England. The larger part is called the Republic of Ireland. It is free from outside rule.

Are you Irish? Millions of Americans have Irish ancestors. Here is a list of some of the most popular last names in Ireland.

LOOK ON SPORTS

Well, Iowa lost the Big Ten cage championship themselves. That was what they had to do. I have heard all sorts of excuses; tired, after the two pressure games at Purdue and Indiana. They won those two and probably figured they had it made. Coach Olson probably said it when he said that teams were placing more importance on the NCAA playoffs than they were conference titles. Indiana probably got right just in time and will likely be very hard to stop in the big meet.

This is the first time in a long while that there is no real favorite in the meet. Nobody knows who to even try to pick for the final four. Some of the outstanding teams are playing each other in order to get to the final showdown. It looks like Oregon State has about the best road to the thing, and I wouldn't know who else.

Iowa, should they win their game with Wichita State, will have to get past the defending champs Louisville. Those guys got off to a bad start, but they seem to have hit their stride now, and could wind up in the showdown. Iowa had a good record. Any time you win twenty one games and lose five, you have done well, but today success is measured by did you get a post season tournament bid.

I wouldn't be surprised to see some coaches who have marks like fifteen and maybe eight get the ax because the record wasn't good enough. And then I can't see why the teams have to go through a long conference season and then have a tournament at the end. The championship apparently doesn't mean much unless you win the tournament. I would guess that this is another way to raise more money, and it does.

Even though Iowa didn't win the conference cage title, the winter wasn't a total loss. Their wrestlers have a good chance to win the national team title and won more matches in the Big Ten meet than any other school has ever won, and their swimming team took the conference title, beating Indiana for the first time in so many years that people have forgotten when the Hoosiers last failed to win that crown.

By the time you read this Drake will have been to Minnesota and won or lost, but they got a post season game, so whatever happened, the Bulldogs are happy.

And we have the high schools here for the next two weeks. In the last four or five years Polk County has been well represented in the girls and now we have a small chance at an all Metro final. But don't bet on it, even if it would be nice.

The Golden Gloves came and went. I had planned on going to the matches, but things didn't work out right for me. They talk about champions and record holders, but there is one guy who has been around the Gloves as a fighter and in the last twenty years as an official; maybe it has been more than twenty years. And he still has the record for having won the most fights as a professional and amateur of anybody in Iowa.

I don't think anybody will come close to that mark of more than two hundred wins and just seven losses, and at least two of them hometown decisions in which he beat the socks off the other fellow. You'd think some enterprising writer would do a story on Morton Graves. Maybe I'll try to get someone on him, because his is a story worth telling.

He is in the B'nai B'rith Hall of Fame, and I bet most people don't know that. So I think he should be recognized and that people should know about him. Maybe now, with the added space in the Register sports, they will get lots more things in the sheets.

I had to wait all weekend until Monday morning to learn how Davis Cup Captain Arthur Ash made out with the Mexicans. He had said that he thought the doubles team of McEnroe and Fleming was the better team, he wanted his number one singles player rested for the fifth match that might come up and it did.

Mexico's Rameriz was tired from a tough doubles match and a singles match before that and McEnroe blew him off the court. Now if we can get past the Czechs.

Poor People's Congress

Evonne Johnson, Chairperson of the Des Moines Poor People's Congress delegation, was elected Vice - Chairman of the statewide Poor People's Coalition.

This coalition, comprised of the chairpersons and vice-chairpersons from the 19 Community Action districts in Iowa, met in Waterloo to draw up by-laws, which will be submitted to the 300 Congress delegates for final ratification.

Other officers elected were: Shirley Koslowski, Chairperson, Waterloo, Iowa; Jackie Gott, Recording Secretary, Swaledale, Iowa; John P. Megivern, Corresponding Secretary / Treasurer, Denver, Iowa.

The purpose of the Iowa Poor People's Congress encompasses awareness of issues, working for legislative and administration change in those areas affecting poor people and achieving self-sufficiency of the poor in Iowa.

According to Ms. Koslowski, "The day was most productive. Never before has it been crucial that poor people become involved as it is now in this era of inflation and budget cuts. I look forward to the challenge."

Persons interested in working with the Iowa Poor People's Congress should contact the City of Des Moines' Office of Neighborhood Development.

Finally, the multi-talented and multifaceted show biz couple, Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee have their own TV program, now on IPBN Saturday nights at 6:30. Unfortunately many Americans do not take advantage of the rich harvest of talent on our educational networks and miss a number of fine programs.

Blacks should indeed support this extraordinary couple and their weekly guests. Those of you who have small children who watch THE MUPPETS at 6:30 Saturday nights on Channel 11, I hope you own two TV sets so the small fry will not scream when you turn off Miss Piggy and Kermit.

Last Sunday night we finally got to see RAGING BULL. I say finally because when we were in LA for Christmas, the film had been playing for a while. We didn't have time to see it then and I had no idea it would take two months to come to the "hinterland" of Iowa. Go see this film — it is worth your money!!!

Martin Scorsese's direction, the cinematography, editing and musical score are all fantastic! The story of middleweight champion Jake LaMotta is vividly brought to the screen by the dynamic portrayal of Robert DeNiro. If this man does not win the Oscar in three weeks, there is no justice in Hollywood.

Cathy Moriarty and Joe Pesci also are excellent, in supporting roles. I had never heard of the self-destructive LaMotta who temporarily took the crown from Sugar Ray in the fifties, but this film captures his tragic and indeed "raging" life in a brutal and graphic way.

The fight scenes are the best ever captured on film — lightning seems to strike every time a punch is thrown. In the end you feel an emptiness for this man who destroyed lives around him as he fought battles as ruthless in life as those in the ring.

Last, for those of us who saw THE WIZ at the Civic Center last month, we indeed witnessed a very second rate show. Particularly in comparison to the quality production a year and a half ago at CY Stephens. THE WIZ is one of the best musicals ever from the Broadway stage; the type of rare production where almost every tune and character is memorable.

But the "National Modern Dance Company" were such rank and youthful performers they seemed almost amateurish. The dancers kept tripping and losing their balance and the extras kept looking bored.

I hope that show didn't poison the minds of its audiences against the Charlie Smalls musical in general. I think only the youngsters in the audience seemed to bubble over the show.

ENTERTAIN AT DINNER PARTY

BLACKS URGED TO RETURN TO FARMING
WASHINGTON, Feb.
23 — Blacks should hold on to their farmland, according to O.C.
Simpson, research
director at Prairie View
A&M University, Texas.
Speaking at the Black History Month
observance at the U.S.
Department of Agriculture Feb. 18, Simpson deplored the loss of farmland and said the United States, with its small-acreage farmers disappearing, faces a food crisis in the coming century.

"We must urge farmers to expand and produce more food," he said. "Farming today can be a profitable business." He cited fish farming and raising dairy goats as examples of non-traditional farming that could be profitable.

Simpson said each year the size of individual farms get larger but the total amount of farmland grows smaller. "The small acreage farmer is leaving the land.
Especially the black farmer. In 1920, there were 926,000 black farmers and farm workers but in 1974 there were only 45,594."

"It's important to remember that the future of our country is not in a moon program but in a soil program to produce more food for the earth's millions," he continued.
Urging blacks to return to their agricultural heritage, Simpson said:
"We don't make any more land, despite our advanced technology."
