

WATERLOO PROPOSES FAIR EMPLOYMENT ORDINANCE

Looks Like Kefauver Is Okay on Civil Rights

Chicago (ANP) — According to the past record of Sen. Estes Kefauver, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, he's O.K. on civil rights.

Here is his record on the race question:

On July 4, 1956, Kefauver was reported as saying that some recent criticisms of the Supreme Court "are truly subversive of our form of government." He declared that "the shrill, strident voices of those who seek to undermine the rule of law cannot go unanswered."

Referring to the Authorine Lucy case, Kefauver said: "I have nothing but criticism to make of the mobs that have come about in connection with the University of Alabama matter."

"I can't feel that the majority of people in the South want to challenge the Supreme Court."

On February 13, 1956, he was reported as saying that he favored withholding federal aid from schools that defy the Supreme Court. He also said at the same time that he favors changes in the criminal code that would permit the FBI to investigate mob violence in the South.

At Norfolk, Dec. 22, 1955 Kefauver received enthusiastic support from the Los Angeles Tribune, a Negro newspaper.

It was also reported that Negro leaders in San Francisco were "tremendously impressed" with the Senator following a closed meeting with him.

Charles Taylor Family Wins by Cooperating

The Charles Taylor family have proved to our community that any goal sought for can be obtained by the co-operation of all the members.

Mrs Martha Louise Cheatham Taylor, mother of the family, graduated Aug. 7, 1956 from the School of Practical Nursing in the College of Nursing at the State University of Iowa. She enrolled in the course Sept. 18, 1955 and remained for one year.

Subjects covered in Mrs Taylor's course were medicine, sociology, physiology, psciatry, anatomy, nursing care, public relations, obstetrics, and orthopedics. The class of seventeen from which she graduated was acclaimed an honor class for it was the first class that every student who enrolled remained to graduate.

Coming home every weekend except during the time preceding semester examinations, Mrs Taylor did as much of the basic housework as could be done besides studying for her classes. Mr Taylor and their two children, Eugenia Louise, 13, and Charles D. III, 7, worked together as a close unit to keep routine things as normal as they were regularly run. The school year offered no great problems to them. Mr Taylor served as chief cook and the children helped where ever needd so they found it unnecessary to employ a housekeeper.

When asked about her feelings concerning the University of Iowa hospital Mrs Taylor stated, "It was wonderful experience working with such a great staff of people in such a large, but well organized hospital. It was grand to see people working together unaware of race, creed, or color but aware only of the goal they had in common.

Mrs Taylor formerly worked at St. Francis Hospital for 3½ years and at Schoitz Memorial Hospital for 1 year. She is the second person to become a practical nurse in our community. Mrs Naman Hickey, 307 Oneida Street, also an Iowa University graduate, was the first.

The staff of Schoitz Memorial Hospital was commended by Mrs Taylor for their help and encouragement preceding and during her year of study.

"For anyone that has a family the sacrifice can be made. Nothing worthwhile is accomplished unless there is a sacrifice made. It can be done," stated Mrs Taylor. She will take her State Board test to become a licensed practical nurse, Sept. 7th in Des Moines.

Give Main Points of Effort To Curtail Discrimination

PROPOSED FAIR EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES ORDINANCE — BE IT RESOLVED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF WATERLOO, IOWA: Section 1. FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF POLICY.

Baptist Laymen of the Nation Eye Denver Confab Sept. 5-9

Denver, Col. (ANP) — The National Baptist Laymen Convention will meet at Central Baptist Church in Denver, of which Rev. W. O. Mays is pastor, Sept. 5-9.

The session will attract more than 5,000 laymen from the various churches throughout the nation in study course classes set up for Baptist laymen. Courses will include classes in Christian Stewardship, Introductory to the Bible, Program of my Church, Music in Christian Education, Youth Work in the National Baptist Convention, Planning for Young Adults in the Church, Men's Work in the Local Church, The Work of the Ushers, Developing Home and Family Life through services and projects, Pioneer Trails of the Baptist Family and the work of church officers.

John C. Bold of Denver, general chairman of the local laymen's Committee, states that the committee has completed all plans for the entertainment of the convention.

COSMETISTE CLUB

The Cosmetiste Club No. 2 attended the National Beauty Culturist League Convention and Institute on July 29 Aug. 9th. Mrs Alice Martin, Sumner Street, Mrs Louise Whitehead, 733 Willow Street, and Miss Joy Lawrence, 92 N. Barclay were graduates of the institutes and received their diplomas. They also received certificates for a hair tinting course by the Miss Cloird Co. Many new ideas were learned for making mi-lady beautiful.

Plans are now being made to attend the clinic in Des Moines this fall. Mrs Leola Anderson is also a member of the National Beauty Culturist League. The convention will convene in New Orleans next year.

a) The State of Iowa, through Article 1, of its Constitution, proclaims that all persons are by nature free and equal.

b) There is, therefore, no basis for discrimination in public or private employment. Such discrimination, with consequent arbitrary denial of job opportunities to large groups of inhabitants of this city, foments strife, creates unrest, disturbances, disorders and group tensions, and substantially and adversely affects the general welfare and good order of the City.

c) Job discrimination tends unjust to condemn large groups of inhabitants of this city to depressed living conditions, which breed vice, ignorance, disease, degeneration juvenile delinquency and crime, thereby causing grave injury to the public safety, general welfare and good order of this City, and endangering the public health hereof.

d) Experience has proved that legislative enactment prohibiting job discrimination removes some of the sources of strife, unrest, poverty, disease, juvenile delinquency and crime, and would directly promote the general welfare and good order of this City.

e) This Ordinance shall be deemed an exercise of the police power of the City, under Sections 366.1 and 368.1, Code of Iowa, 1950, for the protection of the public welfare and the health, peace and good order of the inhabitants thereof.

The proposed ordinance is soon to be considered by the city Council and is receiving wide support from labor organizations. For years young men of color have had to leave Waterloo to find jobs suitable to their capabilities. Some of the young men that have left our city in recent years in search of better employment are Walden Baskerville, Scott Mountjoy, Sidney Garrison, Clifford Smith, Jr. and Othello Tanner. All of these men are veterans and some are disabled veterans of World War II and would be a welcome addition to our community.

In the interest of fair play and to build a greater and better Waterloo the Waterloo Star asks all city council members to give this proposed ordinance a favorable decision.

Ike Says GOP Created On Equal Rights Belief

San Francisco (ANP) — Declaring that the Republican Party was created 100 years ago "in a devout belief in equal justice and equal opportunity for all," Dwight David Eisenhower Thursday night accepted his second GOP presidential nomination with a pledge to continue the progress made by his administration during the past three years in the field of civil rights.

"The Republican party's record on social justice rests not on words and promises, but on accomplishment," the President told 15,000 cheering follow Republicans in his 4,000-word acceptance speech. He added:

"The record shows that a wide range of quietly effective actions, conceived in understanding and good will for all, has brought more genuine — and often voluntary — progress toward equal justice and opportunity in the last three years than was achieved in all the previous 20 put together.

Mr Eisenhower pointed up specific GOP accomplishments as the "elimination of various kinds of discrimination in the armed services, the District of Columbia, and among the employees of government contractors."

"In all existing kinds of discrimination there is much to do," he said. "We must insure a fair chance to such people as mature workers who have trouble getting jobs, older citizens with problems of health, housing, security and recreation, migratory farm laborers and physically handicapped workers.

"We have with us also problems involving American Indians, low income farmers and laborers, women who sometimes do not get equal pay for equal work, small businessmen and employers and workers in areas which need special assistance for re-development."

In his characteristic earnest and friendly manner, the President hailed the Republican party as the party of the future, adding that the party and its platform are right for 1956 because they are in tune with the future.

In naming the party with which he became identified four years ago as the party of the future, Mr Eisenhower gave five reasons as follows:

1. It is the party of long range principle, not short term expediency.
2. It will do thing that need issues of today and tomorrow, rather than those of yesterday.
3. It draws people together, not apart.
4. It will do things that need to be done soonest.
5. It is completely dedicated to peace.

Mr Eisenhower followed Vice President Richard Nixon in accepting the party nominations. Both were received tumultuously.

Sermon of The Week

Dr. D. O. Bell, Pastor
 Mt. Carmel Baptist Church
 CLIMBING THE HEIGHT WITH JESUS

And after six days Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John, his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart and was transfigured before them and his face did shine as the sun, his raiment was white as the light. And behold, three appeared Moses and Elias, talking with him. Matthew 17,1-4.

Life is man's greatest gift. All he has done or will ever do, are the results of life. The finer struggle but pressed forward with Jesus, charmed by the magnetism of the lofty skies. Up in those storm heights, where the lightning plays, and where the thunder rolls and wobbles against the vaults of the black, up there where human tracks are seldom seen, up there in the high mountains where Jesus leads.

To climb those height, it takes faith. Faith in self, in manly and womanly human qualities. Faith in man's ability to be a man, in spite of himself, faith in him who leads the way, because he never loses the way although the hedges and highways which leads to the hills are encumbered with many things which might cause despair and cause one to be lost. Realizing that this is a lifetime job, the top is not reached overnight. It takes rough sledding and long faithful climbing to reach the top.

We must be careful in climbing to be sure that our feet are on solid ground so as not to slip and destroy ourselves on those winging snags. Then it takes patience to wait for the skies to clear, for sometime the dark clouds will slip over the sun and you cannot see your way. It was a great day when Jesus took the disciples to the mountain with Him. It was an opportunity of their lives. They saw and witnessed many thing that thrilled their hearts. They saw Jesus at his best.

They saw the two great dispensations which were subject to the Gospel. They saw Moses who represented the law, Elijah, the prophets. They saw in what direction man's affections lead when he said. Let us build three tabernacles. Peter now speaking. They saw God's disapproval of man's attempt and the personalities of Jesus manifested. The universal religion. Jesus took Peter, James and John to the heights to witness these wonderful experiences and to see the glory of God in the face of his son.

points of life are brought out by the association with people of noble character and high purposes.

A highly trained and skilled musician can wrest from the instrument more beauty, harmony and pleasing moments than one untrained. A highly trained craftsman can get greater results from the use of his tools, than one of less training. A well trained artist, by the means of deep imagination and the strokes of his brush, can squeeze more beauty from a sunset, a forest, a rainbow, a dew drop, a wheat field, a laughing brook, a bird winging his way through the twilight of a dying day, than one of lesser skill. Thus to bring out the finer points and greater character, one must associate himself with men and women of noble purpose and high aims, those who are climbing toward the heights.

While walking these dusty plains of life, and meeting Jesus, He invites us up with Him into the mountains of high thing with high hopes high dreams and high expectations in order to show us something unusual about himself and the glory of others. He walks the plains where humanity dwells, where the dust of adversity blows, the lightning of hate and distrust plays along your path, but at the same time, his aim is like the travelers compass in that, it always points to the hill. If man, while doing his work and living his life, will join the company with Jesus, he will find himself standing on the summit of conquest and victory.

When you travel with the king and by His orders, you find yourself on the mountain far above the dark valleys of doubt and careless living and ask yourself in the words of the poet, "How I got over."

Those who shrank not from the heights of the hill, nor staggered by the rigor of the

Over the Back Fence

With Bob

Well, my dear friends, by the grace of God, I am here again. And in these days of reckless driving, and reckless living, that's about all that can account for my being here. FLYING WITHOUT WINGS

I was walking down the street the other day, and a fellow passed me like a jet plane on wheels. He was driving like he was going to an accident. And theres more fact in that statement than fancy. TO THOSE THAT DRIVE

I beseech you, please drive carefully. You may not care very much about your life, but there are those who are very much concerned about their. And remember, the life you save, may be mine. ABOUT "THE BACK FENCE"

This is one thing I would like to have understood. "Over The Back Fence" column. I never will indulge in anything that will bring hurt or harm to anyone. I write about worried people, only when I have something humorous or laugh provoking, that they, themselves would like to see in print. Their private life and business is their own. As for digging up dirt — that is not my business. It is my desire to bring a little laughter and cheer into people's lives, and maybe give a little bit of inspiration and advice. But when this column begins to hurt anyone, or cause friction, thats when I'll tear down "the old back fence." AT THE END OF THE ROAD

They've bagged the old fox at last. He ran a long time, but they got him. It wasn't an easy task. They laid all sorts of snares for him, set traps, spread nets, dug pits, and figuratively laid in wait with shotguns, rifles, and slingshots, but all of that wasn't necessary. A sweet voice, and a soft smile, thats all it took to get him. ITS ALWAYS THUS

A certain fellow, when alone, can stay out until 3 o'clock in the morning, but when he's with his better portion, he's ready to go in at 10 p.m. ON THE SQUARE

You go thru life playing square with everybody, and then you suddenly discover that everybody's "playing you for a square." EUREKA

A great mystery has been solved, We now know why a certain gentleman objects so strenuously to his girl friend going into any of the so called "joints." He's afraid she might run into him there. THE DOG'S ME-OW.

The reason some folks feel like a dog all day long is because they were catting around all the night before. JUST LIKE A DOG

One day I found a little dog lying in the road, hungry, dirty and cold. I took this little dog into the house, bed it, bathed it and wrapped it up in a warm, clean blanket. After it had gotten warm and full, I reached out to pat it on the head, and the rascal bit me. There are some people just like that dog. STILL SPEAKING OF DOGS

Another fellow I know, stays in the doghouse so much, he gets nervouse everytime he passes a telephone pole, fire plug, or a tree. WORD FROM THE WISE

I was in my favorite soft drink emporium, Newbauer and Crowther, the other day, doing some free magazine reading, when Brother Carl Newbauer, the esteemed proprietor came up with these words of wisdom.

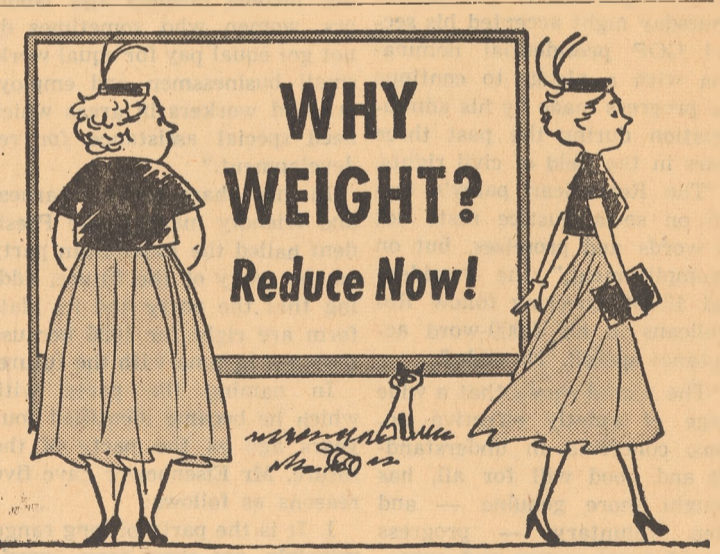

"Always keep an eye on your enemies, and two eyes one your friends, especially your best friend."

So right, my friend, and let me add this little bit of wisdom. Never be misled by sweet words or flattery. You know, sometimes when your good friends are patting you on the back they're just feeling for a soft place to stick a knife.

THANKS PAL, THE FELLOW SAID

A certain fellow took a certain girl from another fellow, and it wasn't until three month later that he realized what a powerful favor he had done for the guy. Now he wishes someone would take her from him. Sorry, pardner, but you'll just have to suffer.

BEATING THE GUM

By Bill Brower

Boston (ANP) — The Boston Red Sox, despite the antics of Ted Williams, the pride of this city, is one of three major league teams which persist in the lily-white complexion of playing personnel. The others are the Philadelphia Phillies and the Detroit Tigers.

Currently, a weekly newspaper is carrying on a campaign for tan players in Philadelphia. The Tigers, who will soon be under new ownership, will have to be given another look later.

But here in the cradle of liberty, the refusal of the Bosox to give players of technicolor hue a true tumble is puzzling. Before the Braves packed up and moved their ball club to Milwaukee in 1953, the color line had been bridged. Sam Jethro had spent four seasons with Lou Porini's team, the first year (1950) winning plaudits as National League rookie-of-the-year.

Then Luis Marquez was drafted from Portland of the Pacific Coast League in 1950, and played a couple of seasons in Beantown. When the franchise change was made, the Braves had some fine-looking prospects in their farm organization, notably Hank Aaron and Billy Bruton.

The Red Sox apparently have never been serious about acquiring a tan player. Perhaps that is an unjust statement. There was a bit of baseball scuttlebutt a couple of seasons back that Thomas Yawkey's Millionaires were willing to part with $200,000 for Charlie Neal, the Brooklyn rookie whom many experts predict will become the best second baseman in the game. Neal hasn't made the experts look like shining prophets. But give him time.

As a matter of fact, the reported $200,000 offer might have been no more than a feeler. The Red Sox, according to reports have been interested in several other tan players. But that interest invariably fell short of actual acquisition. Bill Greason was one such prospect. In 1953, Greason was setting the Texas League abaze with his work on the mound. It was said that Boston was willing to put a tidy sum on the line for his services, but Oklahoma City owners held out. Anyway, Greason wound up in the Cardinal organization.

The Sox actually had a look at Jethroe, Marvin Williams and another darkhued prospect in 1945. The third young man was Jackie Robinson. After a try-out, the players, then performing in Negro loops, went back to such teams as the Cleveland Buckeyes, the Philadelphia Stars and the Kansas City Monarchs.

We know what happened to Jackie Robinson. As aforementioned, Jethroe eventually made the majors. Williams dropped into baseball obscurity.

At one time it appeared that Joe Cronin, general manager of the Hose was showing some genuine enthusiasm for a Negro prospect. The player was Piper Davis, formerly with the Birmingham Barons.

Davis was given a trial with the Scranton team of the Eastern League on some sort of provisional basis. When time came for the Sox bosses to do or don't, they didn't. Piper was cut loose. He headed for the Pacific Coast League and continued to enjoy a successful baseball career.

It might be a little hard to get a true bill returned against Yawkey, Cronin and whoever — before Cronin it was Eddie Collins — on the hard fact that they are color conscious. All Bostonians know, there ain't none of us that there team. And many of them, judging from the intelligence gleaned the past few days, are wondering why.

great baseball, but they didn't convince anyone at the game that they were ready for Class D classification.

All of you sport fans, let's attend the remaining home games of the WATERLOO WHITE HAWKS.

Waterloo Giants
Stop Old Timers

The Spirit of Baseball will never die as long as the Old-time baseball players will come out of retirement to challenge the present day players. This is what happened the other Sunday at Furgerson Field: The Oldtimers were made up of such Old Stars as Jackie Lewis, age 55 who played second base, Louis Burkett, 54 in right field, Phil Burkett, 42, on first base, Clarence Benjamin, 47, in left field, Louis Beaman, 41, in center field, William Burkett, 40-year old left-hander, and the indestructible 63-year old "Babe" Hooseman as pitchers. However, the Oldtimers needed and got good support from three younger members of their team — John Hollingsworth, 27, Dick Vanarsdale, 26, and 30-year old C. Austin. It was a well played game, considering some of the players haven't played the game for 20 or more years.

I was talking with the manager of the Old Timers, Ernest Weems, and he said, "If I could recall back 20 years, my boys would be more than a match for this team of youngsters" Oh, yes, the score — Waterloo Giants 15, Oldtimers 1.

THE WATERLOO COLORED ELKS SOFTBALL TEAM won the final game from Top Hat Tavern, in the Y.M.C.A. Open Softball League. The battery of David Grayson and John Hollingsworth sparked the team to a 11 to 5 win. Pitcher Grayson allowed only four hits, while hitting a double to drive in two runs to help his own cause. Hollingsworth not only caught a splendid game but hit a home run to bat in three runs for the night. The Waterloo Elks, by winning this game, won fourth place in the standings.

Thursday Night
Double Header

The game that the Waterloo White Hawks played against Burlington last Thursday night, drew a 1,000 plus crowd. It was a good ballgame with Waterloo exploding for 6 runs in the first inning. Burlington fought their way back to a 8 to 6 ballgame, then Waterloo finally won 11 to 7.

Waterloo's center fielder, Jim Lyn, made several fine catches in the field and got a hit to bring in a run. The other team had two tan boys playing. Doc Connors, short stop, drove in 2 runs with two hard hit singles. George Altman, a promising young left fielder, also had 2 hits for the night — a home run and a single, but each time, he hit the ball well. We should hear from these two boys for a long time to come.

The second game of the doubleheader was played by two colored teams — the New York Black Yankees and the Indianapolis Clowns. The Clowns put on a good show before the game started. The Shadow ball act, and "hidden ball" trick were much to the amusement of the crowd. There was the first baseman "Nature Boy", a mid-get, and Ed Haman, the well-known clown, to keep the people's minds off the game. I believe that the boys on both teams are capable of playing

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Johnson

Miss Dorothy Self, daughter of Mr and Mrs James Self, 517 Newell Street, became the bride of Leslie Lee Johnson, son of Mrs Clare Johnson, 912 Oneida Street, Saturday evening at Payne Memorial A.M.E. Church.

Seven branched candelabra flanked the altar of the church with baskets of mums, lilies, and gladiolas completing the arrangement. Nuptial music preceding the ceremony was provided by Mrs Elizabeth Backstrom, pianist and Miss Patricia Sanders, vocalist.

Rev. George T. Stinson, Jr. officiated at the ceremony which began at 7:30 p.m. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr James self. She carried an arrangement of red roses with white ribbon trim.

For her marriage the bride chose a floor length gown of imported hand clipped chantilly lace and tulle over satin. Fashioned with a fitted bodice of lace accented by a high Queen Anne collar appliqued into a sheer yoke of tulle. And long tapered sleeves. The full gathered skirt of tulle had two matching panels of lace cascading down the front. The fingertip veil of imported silk illusion edged with matching lace and caught to a coronet of pleated tulle and lace and embroidered with pearls.

The attendants wore identical waltz length gowns of shades of coral and blue in crystallette. Fashioned with fitted empire waistlines and soft draped shoulders. Full swing skirts with a matching panel down the front of pleats. They wore matching sheer clips in their hair in rosette fashion.

Miss Samella Sanders was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs Olabelle Reed and Miss Dorothy Bobo.

The maid of honor was attired in a pink gown and pink plateau and carried blue carnations in a colonial bouquet while the bridesmaids were identically gowned in cotillion blue and carried pink carnations. They wore blue plateaus.

The groom was attended by Mr Wilbert Hill as best man. The ushers were Paul Perkins and Sam Kincaid.

Following the ceremony the reception was held in the church parlors. Decorations and table settings carried the brides colors of pink and blue. Hostesses were: Mrs Jerome Gordon of Leavenworth, Kansas, aunt of the bride; Mrs Betty Phillips, sister of the bride; Mrs James Self, Jr, sister in law of the bride and Miss Carol Dunn. Mrs Rex Bell was in charge of the guest book.

The bride, who attended Iowa State Teachers College, Cedar Falls, is employed at Brooks Apparel Shop. Her husband is employed by D-X Sunday Oil Co. They will reside at 221 Cottage Street.

old Nixon accepted the plaudits of the delegates who saw in them the hopes and ambitions of a century old party which had known political despair for 20 years before 1952.

After a triumphal reception by the convention, which gave them unanimous nominations the night before, the President and Mr Nixon launched the Republican Party on its second hundred years with a prediction of victory in November.

TEEN CHATTER

by Yvette

Hi Fellow Teensters: The editor contacted me and stated that we can have our own teenage column in the Waterloo Star. I'm certainly thrilled about it and I know you are too. After all we are an important part of this community and we like to express ourselves too.

Say! have you seen Phillip Graves lately? Well, if you haven't I'd better prepare you. He hasn't been scalped and is not a victim of some horrible accident. He's just sporting the still popular "Mohawk" hair cut. It's certainly an eye catcher. In fact, it's hard to remove your eyes from it.

Vincent Lewis, who's spending his summer vacation here says that New York has everything, yet he seems to find a lot of amusement around our Waterloo belles.

TEETH ARE THE SUBJECT OF THE WEEK

Paul Perkins is still crying about his $6.00 filling that was broken. Paul says that food was his downfall.

Marie Graves has a new gold tooth. Marie says that she's starting a new fad.

James Derden, Jr., has a new false tooth. He just smiles broadly when asked what happened to the original.

SOMETHING TO THINK OVER

Now fellows and girls something has reached my attention and only we can clear it up. I visited the Bell's Lunch Shop operated by Mrs Julia Brown the other day. I talked with several of you asking where you spent your time and what you did for recreation. Well, I got the same answer from most of you. Like me, you make Mrs Brown's restaurant your headquarters for recreation. Then some of you proceeded to tell me that we need a larger place to take care of the youth in our community. I agree that we do need a larger building in which we can get together and spend our leisure hours. But let's stop and think just how dull it would be if we had no place to go.

Mrs Brown provides a decent place for teens to go and secure refreshments, listen to our favorite records, and even dance. She doesn't allow profanity of any kind or disorder.

We teens had better stop and think about giving Mrs Brown the respect due her. The little money that she gets from the pop, candy, or ice cream sales doesn't half repay her for the time that she gives allowing us to just stand around and gab or dance or occupy stools and booths without even purchasing one thing.

It is up to us to correct the past behaviour of our group. Let's show the community that we can appreciate the fact that we do have one place suitable for the teen-agers and conduct ourselves in a manner befitting the future citizens and leaders that we are destined to be. And maybe someday we will have more recreation facilities.

Well, this is all for now. Watch for me in our next issue.
YVETTE

Mrs James Tanner was hostess at a breakfast Wed. Aug. 22nd at her home, 2809 Lafayette Street. Guests were Mrs Nozella Nolan, Mr and Mrs Hugh Clayton of Jackson, Miss. and Mrs Margaret Harvey of St. Louis, Mo.

Take Vacation
Trip to Canada

Our first stop was at Ann Arbor, Michigan, just in time for brunch at the home of Mr and Mrs Clay Owens. On to Detroit, where we spent a day with Mr and Mrs F. Franklin.

Then, we went up into Canada, spending our first night in a cabin on the banks of the St. Lawrence river. In Quebec, the only walled city in North America, we saw many attractions that are unmatched in Canada.

Back in the U. S., we took a quick tour of Boston, where we saw Paul Revere's house, the old North Church, and other historical sites for which Boston is famous. We spent two days in New York City and saw the Yankees vs Tigers baseball teams in action.

We spent 9 days in Washington, D. C., with the sister of Mrs Pugh, Mrs Irene Johnson and brother, Mr Henry Trent. These days were highlighted by an evening at Arundel-on-the-Bay, Maryland, for an evening of fun with Mr and Mrs Paul Houghton. Many courtesies were extended to us.

Leaving Washington, D. C., we were in Cleveland the next morning for breakfast. We stopped in Chicago two days with Mrs Harmon's sister, Mrs Julia Phillips. Then we came back home to Waterloo.

(This trip was taken by Mr and Mrs Lamar Harmon, and Mr and Mrs Willie Pugh.)
