Psychological Unreadiness Is No Excuse for Failing to Integrate

Washington (ANP) — "Psychological unreadiness" cannot be used as an excuse for failing to integrate schools in any community, according to the United States Supreme Court.

This conclusion was reached last week when the high court refused to interfere with a lower Federal court ruling ordering admission of Negro students in an all-white high school in Mansfield, Texas.

The high tribunal declined to comment on its refusal to review an appeal by the Mansfield school authorities that the community was psychological unready for racial integration.

The local authorities had offered that argument as a basis for their unsuccessful attempt to have the Federal district court in Texas to dismiss the desegregation suit.

The suit was filed by W. D. Jackson in behalf of his son, Nathaniel Jackson, and other colored children of Mansfield who were forced to travel all the way to Fort Worth to attend a Negro high school there.

The Board of Trustees of Mansfield Independent School District contended that "desegregation could not be accomplished over night." They claimed that they were making every effort to adjust the community to the transition. They were making an intensive study and would make an adjustment as soon as time and circumstances will permit.

In reply to a question raised by the Court of Appeals for the Fifth District, Superintendent R. L. Huffman stated that the board had passed a resolution that schools would be kept segregated during the year of 1955-

56. This decision was based upon discussions between members of the board and citizenship of the town.

He argued that the court had ruled that they be given a reasonable length of time to meet the different requirements, and they would not have enough time on that short notice from May 17, 1954 until May of 1955, or between May 1955 and September 1956, to carry out the mandate of the court.

Insisting that the suit was premature, the school board urged the Federal court to dismiss it.

In spite of this request the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit ruled that the colored children had "the right to admission to and to attend, the Mansfield High School on the same basis as members of the white race."

This decision remained in effect after the high court refused to interfere with the lower court's ruling.

Otis Hardy Weds Mildred Beaman Jewish Group Wants to Halt Illegal Actions By Citizens Councils

In an afternoon ceremony on Sunday, Dec. 23, 1956 at the home of her sister, Mrs Mildred Lorraine Beaman, 727 N. Barclay Street, became the bride of Mr Otis Hardy, 324 Cottage Street.

Rev. L. J. Jordan, pastor of Union Baptist Church performed the ceremony. Mrs Edwin Hollins served her sister as matron of honor and Mr Edwin Hollins was the best man.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was served to 25 guests. Hostesses were: Mrs Charles Webb, Mrs Pauline Johnson, and Mrs Hollins. The wedding cake which carried the bride's colors of pink and blue was by Mrs Hollins.

Mr Hardy is an employee of the Rath Packing Company. The couple reside at 324 Cottage Street.

Jewish Group Wants to Halt Illegal Actions By Citizens Councils

Washington (ANP) — A Jewish group has urged the Justice Department to halt illegal actions by White Citizens Councils. The B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League approved a resolution last week pointing out that "it was evidence indicating illegal and subversive activities by some council."

B'nai B'rith, a Jewish service organization, in its 43rd annual confab, said in a resolution that "some White Citizens Councils have made it their illegal purpose to deprive American citizens by force and violence of their constitutional rights to equal protection of the law."

The organization said the councils were doing this while avowing to fight racial desegregation.

Mrs Gaylord Washington, 125 Halstead Street, spent the holidays visiting her aunt in Chicago, Illinois.

SMITTY'S PUNCHES

By WELLINGTON SMITH

"Intolerance towards the Negroes in the United States is perhaps the acme of the racial intolerance of modern nationalism." This telling statement comes from American historian and former Ambassador to Spain, Carlton J. H. Hayes.

Collective peoples inevitably have a common hate — a common scapegoat, so to say. Satan always conjures up some minority, often a race, to which he directs the hatred of proud men.

In America it has been the Catholic, the Jew, the Irishman, the Italian, or as Hayes says, the Negro who has suffered the brunt of the high-minded American's hatred and mistrust.

Being hated, however, is not of itself shameful. Christ was hated and mistrusted, so were His disciples throughout the centuries. Lincoln was hated, remember, hated unto death. It is not the hated who are wretched, it is those who hate.

Lincoln expressed thoughts along this line once. In a letter to Joshua F. Speed, dated Aug. 24, 1855, he told how he felt about anti-ism which was present in the hearts and political movements of Americans then (and even today).

"As a nation," he wrote, "we began by declaring that 'all men are created equal.' We now practically read it 'all men are created equal, except negroes.' When the Know-nothing's get control, it will read 'all men are created equal, except negroes and foreigners and Catholics.'"

Then he goes on to say, "When it comes to this, I shall prefer emigrating to some country where they make no pretense of loving liberty — to Russia for instance, where despotism can be taken pure, and without the base alloy of hypocrisy."

Being hated, though, is no more a sign of virtue than being deprived of wealth. So those who are hated must counteract hatred with love.

The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, who heads the Montgomery, Ala., Improvement Association, conducting the bus boycott there, has written in a recent "U.S. News & World Report" article that the Negro must, in his struggle for common respect, act respectfully toward those who hate and mistreat him.

"The Negro came to feel that he was somebody," the Rev. Dr. King wrote about the Negro's progress in America. "His religion revealed to him that God loves all of his children, and that every man, from a bass black to a treble white, is significant on God's keyboard."

He continued, "In our struggle for justice, we have refused to succumb to the temptation of becoming bitter or indulging in a hate campaign."

Striking a similar note, Willa Strong, principal of the L'Ouverture High School in McAlester, Okla., told an Emancipation Day Observance audience in McAlester:

"The saving influence of Christian ideals must be deep within us . . . Let us never forget that 'the prayers of the righteous availeth much.'"

SPORTS

"With Mac"

The biggest news in the Sports World at the moment is probably the Jackie Robinson retirement. Jackie was traded from the Brooklyn Dodgers to the Giants last month. At that time, many Brooklyn fans were surprised, many more angered, because of this transaction.

When thinking of baseball itself, and of Brooklyn, one immediately thinks of Jackie Robinson. Jackie, the first Negro to play in organized baseball in the modern era, came up with the Brooklyn Ball Club in 1947. From that year until the past World Series, Robinson has made the headlines of the many papers throughout the land.

Robinson was probably the most discussed player during the last 20 years. Even in retiring from the game which did so much for him and other members of his race, he has caused his name to be printed thousands and thousands of times; commented on pro and con by every sports' writer in the country.

When news of the trade came out, we started to look up some of the known Brooklyn fans of this community to see how they felt about this deal. One fan stated that he had been a Brooklyn fan every since they brought him up from Montreal, and that he thought that as long as Jackie could carry a bat up to the plate, the Brooklyn owners should keep him in one capacity or another.

I also heard another "die in the wool" Brooklyn fan say that since Jackie started with Brooklyn, Brooklyn has won the National League championship six times out of ten, and also won one World Series. He also said it will be interesting to see how many more they will win without him in the next ten years.

Jackie Robinson, a man of destiny, whether he was the first of his race to play in the national past time, or whether he spoke his mind on any subject, always manages to grab the headlines.

The Brooklyn Organization is a large one, probably has made more money in the last 10 years than ever before, but the novelty of seeing Negroes playing baseball in Brooklyn has long passed, and therefore, the organization must look for a new attraction. Although Robinson was, and is now, a great ball player, they know that his years as an active player are limited to one or two years at the most. Brooklyn fans didn't fill the stand this past year as they did when Robinson was a novelty to baseball. Therefore, they saw an opportunity to get something for him in a trade to the Giants before it was too late.

Jackie Robinson, on the other hand, said that he had been trying to find the right job opportunity for himself with security for his family after his playing days were over. This opportunity came just before the trade was transacted. Robbie, on the same hand, was smart enough to quit while he was on top, and if he sticks to his retirement from baseball, the followers of the sport will only remember him as a great competitor — the boy who took so much to make baseball really a democratic sport in America.

CLEVER BIRD

A wise old owl lived in an oak; The more he saw the less he spoke; The less he spoke the more he heard; Why can't we all be like that bird.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

We are standing on the threshold of a new year. We have no sure way of knowing what lies ahead, but we have put the past behind us, and we are facing the future with courage, hope, and determination. For some of us, 1956 was a year of triumph and happiness, for others, it was one of disappointment and grief. But all these things are now but a memory. So off with the old, on with a new. And a happy and prosperous New Year I wish to you, and you, and I do mean you

SWEET DISILLUSIONMENT

A certain young fellow, going around with a certain young lady, states that he is going to get married. He says that he is tired of being a bachelor, He need a companion, a help mate — someone to cook his meals, and sew the buttons on his shirt — — — I appreciate the position he's taken, but if he marries that young lady, he won't have to worry any more about buttons being sewn on his shirts — — — he won't have a shirt to sew a button on.

ALL IS CONFUSION

So many couples are getting tied and untied around here lately that I've stopped wondering about who is who but who is whose!

HAVE YOU SEEN HER?

There's a new girl in town. And boy' is she ever. She's a dream doll in a drape shape — and so delectable.

JOHNNY ON THE SPOT

Waterloo has an official host. He greets all the new girls when they come to town.

He lays for every visiting Jane, and catches them soon as they step off the plane.

AND I DON'T MEAN

ELVIS PRESLEY

Lately, one of Waterloo's better known young men has been singing that new song hit, "Come Back To Me Baby."

EXPLAIN THIS MYSTERY

Why is it that the good people, can get some of the worst breaks, while some slicker gets all the gravy. You can work yourself to death for your race and community, and no one thanks you. You are just an idealistic fool,

If you are a woman, and are good to your man, he'll take advantage of you, and probably will give all of his money to some silly little skirt, who loves no one, and is true to nobody but herself.

If you are a man, and are good to a woman; if you give her your love, slave for her, and help her when she is down, and every one else has turned their backs on her, when she gets on her feet, and gets a little money, she'll more than likely throw you overboard, and take up with a scoundrel who wouldn't give her a plugged nickel, but will beat her, and take every penny she has. But that's life, I imagine.

WANTED: A MAN

A certain cute young lady requested that I insert an ad in this column to the effect that she wanted a boy friend. She specified certain conditions. He must be nice, a good ballroom dancer, can't be mushy; he must be considerate, have an appreciation for music, and must be able to anticipate her moods and desires. He must like the taste of Tabu lipstick, must be dependable, and a one woman man. He must be between sixteen and sixty, and have a variety of tastes, such as bowling, skating, and making love. (That's what the lady say) He must be trustworthy, not an unnecessary liar and he must be single. I think the Lord's going to have to get busy and make a man. What this girl wants, there isn't any such person. But this is a cute little girl and I sort of wish I fitted the bill myself.

NEW YEAR'S SHENANIGAN'S

They say that whatever a person is doing on New Years Day, they'll be doing all year long. Well a lot of folks were doing things I'd hate to be caught doing at any time. There were parties all over town, and a lot of people in order to get into the spirit of the occasion were filling themselves with assorted spirits, from 20 to 90 proof. There are a lot of them who still don't know that its 1957.

After everything was over some people couldn't find their hats, some couldn't find their coats, some couldn't find their wives, and husbands. Most of them woke up the next day with a good fat headache. But there were a blessed few who were at church praying, and the good Lord knows, the rest of the people need those prayers.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

There is an old saying that quotes thusly; "Never run after a street car or a woman. Another will be along presently." Yes, but it might not be going your way.

With this thought, I leave you.

Tally, ho!
