Hanafi Witness Mistakes U.S. Marshals For Killers

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- A government witness of the Hanafi Muslim murder trial damaged the government's case when he mistakenly pointed out three U. S. marshals as men he saw at the scene of the crime.

The miscue by Arthur Beards, 61, a maintenance employee at a synagogue across the street from the house where four children and three adults were slain, will make it difficult for prosecutors to obtain convictions against the five Philadelphia men charged with the murders.

It was the latest unexpected turn of events in a trial full of surprises, emotional outbursts and demands for dismissals and mistrials.

The day before Beards' testimony trial judge Leonard Braman refused to voluntarily step down on demands of the five Black Muslim defendants who called the whole trial "political" and said Braman couldn't be fair because he was Jewish and they had "irreconcilable" religious differences with him.

In his testimony, Beards told the court that in the afternoon of the slayings, Jan. 18, 1973, he had emerged from Tifereth Israel Congregation with coworker Susan Weinstein in time to see a group of men running down an alleyway.

Assistant U. S. Attorney John F. Evans then asked Beards to survey the courtroom and point out anyone he recalled seeing at the scene.

"That fellow right there," Beards said, pointing out an embarrassed U. S. Marshal sitting behind the defense table. He went on to misidentify two other marshals in the courtroom as well as one defendant, Theodore Moody, 28, for an average of one in four. The prosecution was not pleased.

Hopes Dashed For Early Sickle Cell Cure

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- (NBNS) -- Hopes have been dashed for finding an early cure for treating sickle cell anemia with massive infusion of the chemical urea into the bloodstream.

The discouraging word came following the completion of a two-year experiment using patients at several major university hospitals.

"All participating institutions used the same criteria for selecting patients, defining sickle cell crises and evaluating results of therapy during the first 24 to 48 hours. There were no striking differences in benefit. The results were less than satisfactory," announced Dr. John Hercules.

Hercules, sickle cell research project officer for the National Heart and Lung Institute, had some encouraging words about another chemical -- cyanate -- which he said displayed moderately good results with some patients. He said the possibility of a large scale

Minorities Hold 20 Per Cent Of Federal Jobs

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- Minority Americans now constitute slightly more than 20 percent of the employees of the Federal Government.

According to new figures released by the Civil Service Commission, the federal employment rolls included 515,129 Black Americans, Spanish-Americans, Oriental Americans and Indian Americans on May 31, 1973, or 20.4 percent of total federal employment.

Most of the minority employees still are concentrated in the lower-paying grades of the federal service, although the Civil Service Commission said the greatest percentage gains have been in the middle and upper grade white collar jobs.

Minority employment in Grades one through four, paying from $5,017 to $9,358, now constitutes 28.3 percent of the total work force at these grade levels.

Minority workers in Grades five through eight, which pay $8,055 to $14,341, now constitute 20.5 percent of the total in these grades.

In grades nine through 11, paying $12,167 to $19,072, minority workers constitute 10 percent of the total. In Grades 12 and 13, minority workers now hold 5.8 percent of the total number of jobs. These jobs pay from $17,497 to $26,878.

In grades 14 and 15, paying $24,247 to $36,741, minorities hold five percent of the jobs.

In the supergrades, 16, 17 and 18, paying $32,806 to $36,000, minorities hold 3.5 percent of the jobs.

EEOC Takes Full Responsibility For Job Bias Suits

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission takes full responsibility March 24 for federal suits to force private employers and unions to end job discrimination.

For the past two years the Justice Department has had concurrent power with the EEOC to take employers and unions to court to require that minorities and women be given equal opportunity in hiring, in promotions and in rates of pay. Prior to that time only the Justice Department to go to court on job bias complaints. EEOC had to refer its cases to Justice and there were complaints that Justice was not very aggressive in following up in court.

Congress then decided to give EEOC authority to go into court on its own and phased Justice out over a two-year period.

Now EEOC will go it alone with a new director, Philadelphia lawyer John J. Powell, Jr., and a budget increased to $56 million for the coming year, compared to $42 million for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Recently the Justice Department won a large consent decree against Georgia Power Company. The company was ordered to pay $2.1 million in back pay and other compensation to 500 black employees, to compensate them for benefits lost through past discrimination.

EEOC's use of its new powers has been encouraging to civil rights advocates, although it has yet to come up with results as spectacular as the Georgia Power case. The agency has filed 160 job discrimination cases in its first two years of power to file cases, compared to 100 filed by the Justice Department in nine years.

British Visit Protested

DAR ES SALAAM -- (NBNS) -- Paper wads were hurled at British Foreign Minister Alec Douglas-Home when he arrived from Malawi. Some 660 student demonstrators chanted "go home, go home" in protest of the British policy toward Rhodesia, which broke away from Britain years ago.

The membership of Highland Inc., a neighborhood association, took positive action at their annual meeting Tuesday night, March 12 toward expressing a positive attitude regarding inter-racial harmony.

The membership took their action in two steps.

First, they voted unanimously to disavow any connection with the outdated and illegal covenant which was filed with the county recorder in the 1930's, which stated that only members of the Caucasian race could have residence in Highland.

Although the covenant has not been recognized for years the residents of Highland decided not to just let the law speak for how they feel.

Secondly, they voted to add the following statement of purpose to the By-Laws of Highland Inc.

"The purpose of Highland Inc., shall be to foster and develop a spirit of neighborliness and good fellowship among the residents of the area known as Highland, regardless of race, creed or occupation; to encourage the improvement of the physical appearance of Highland and its parks; and to provide opportunities for the residents of Highland to become better acquainted."

In other business conducted at the annual meeting the membership discussed methods of controlling speeding cars through the neighborhood, especially near the parks, and a program to replace trees in the parks and the boulevards.

Submitted by Marge Phipps, secretary-treasurer of Highland, Inc.

The Rev. Luther Peterson, President.

I worked as an aide for five years at Allen Memorial Hospital where I am now employed, before I decided to enter the program of Practical Nursing.

Through working closely with people and caring for the sick and injured, I realized I wanted more out of life, and that I wanted to be able to care for my patient with training and skill, to the best of my ability, and to which I have been trained.

To me, nursing is caring and helping people that cannot help themselves.

From a personal satisfaction and fulfillment I received from caring for the sick and injured, I decided to enroll at Hawkeye Institute of Technology in the program of Practical Nursing.

With the inspiration and association I found in this type of work, I was inspired to continue my education through the Program

Oil Crisis May Cause Boom To Cities

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- The energy crisis may be able to accomplish something that the urban renewal program and $7.5 billion has been unable to -- bring people back to the inner cities across the country.

Outgoing HUD Under Secretary Floyd Hyde, who discussed the problems facing the nation's cities with the National League of Cities and U. S. Conference of Mayors, said: "My own view, in spite of some opinion to the contrary, is that the energy crisis will cause migration from the suburbs to the center city."

"The possibility raises some important questions about which, typically, very little is being done. . . Will it bring land speculation? Will it once again result in the exploitation and still greater overcrowding of the poor?"

He pointed out that there appeared to be "evidence here in the District and in other Eastern cities we've looked at. . . of the purchase of central city property by developers in areas where there's been little activity over the years."

The energy crisis is adding, most of the mayors agreed, to the problems faced by the nations' cities.

"The nation's cities are now experiencing the initial impact of massive unemployment as a result of. . . the energy crisis," said the conference in a statement. "In preliminary surveys, cities are reporting increases as high as 100 percent in their ongoing unemployment."

The statement continued: "While national statistics are growing and alarming, the true measure of crisis are the pockets of severe unemployment created by individual plant layoffs and related displacement. . . " the mayors' statement continued.

"Individual cities, both large and small, and geographic sections within these cities are experiencing unemployment far in excess of the national aggregate statistics. . . these examples show only the tip of the iceberg."

Gary's Mayor Richard Hatcher called on an extension of the federal unemployment insurance support to 52 weeks and an increase in funding of up to 300,000 jobs in public areas in the next fiscal year and up to 500,000 jobs in Fiscal 1976.

Hatcher also suggested a boost in funds for Title 2 of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act from the present $250 million to $500 million. He said "this would increase the number of jobs immediately available from 35,000 to 70,000."

New York Has Fewer Top Blacks

ALBANY -- (NBNS) -- Although there has been an over-all increase in minority members in the state's work force, there has been a noticeable decline in recent years in the number of blacks at the state's 22 agencies -- including the Division of Human Rights.

The State Department of Civil Service has released figures showing that of the state's 171,171 employees, 14.1 percent of them are black, which is an increase of 0.8 percent over last year and there was a 0.3 percent increase for Puerto Rican workers during the same period.

Other minorities, the report found, showed an increase of 1.2 percent.

In the human rights division -- to demonstrate the decline in the number of blacks in agencies -- there was a 9.2 percent decline in the number of blacks between 1971 and 1972. The number decreased from 76 to 69 employees.

But the largest drop, according to the study, occurred in the Audit and Control Department, which went down from 76 to 29 employees in 1972. That represented a 61.8 percent decrease.

However, officials of the Audit and Control Department said they believed a slight increase had been experienced. They were reviewing the state report, so that they could dispute the figures.

Writer's Bias Award In Doubt

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NBNS) -- An award of $1,000 plus lawyers' fees for "humiliation" suffered by former Newsweek correspondent Samuel F. Yette at the hands of the magazine's Washington bureau is now in doubt.

The D. C. Court of Appeals has ruled that the District of Columbia's Office of Human Rights, which granted Yette the monetary damages, does not have the power to do so. Such is also the case in actions charging discrimination in housing, so ruled the court.

According to A. Franklin Anderson, deputy chief of the Office of Human Rights, while an order that Newsweek establish an affirmative action plan for hiring minorities remains in effect, Yette's personal award of $1,000 in damages is now in question.

The only appeal from the D. C. Court of Appeals ruling is to the U. S. Supreme Court, an appeal Anderson said is being considered.

At stake are the outcome of some 200 cases. The court's decision did not comment specifically on a city regulation approved only last November which expressly gave the Human Rights office powers to award monetary damages. The three judge panel did say, however, that the legality of such a law is "at least doubtful."

Carnegie Report Charges 'Neglect' In West African Deaths

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- A detailed study sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace has charged that more than 100,000 West Africans have died which "U. S. and U. N. bureaucracies" were "unprepared, or unable, to take measure that might have reduced the tragedy."

The study cites previously unpublished documents to verify the deaths and the neglect of the international agencies.

It said the relief efforts by the U. S. Agency for International Development and the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization were "haunted by rudimentary failures to heed early warnings, to plan in advance, and to monitor and coordinate the rescue efforts" in the drought-stricken Sahel region.

"Weighed against the humane purpose and accomplishments of the U. S. and U. N. relief efforts, and against the comparative lethargy of the governments, those failures might be overlooked -- were not the stakes so high," said the writers of the report, "Disaster in the Desert."

Applications Being Accepted

Applications are now being taken for summer youth employment. The Jobs for Youth committee has distributed project 2001 applications throughout the metropolitan area to junior and senior high schools, community centers and the Iowa State Employment office.

Any youth 14 through 21 years of age wishing to work during the summer is encouraged to complete a project 2001 application card. These applications will again be used for all types of work such as corn detasseling, yard work, babysitting and other regular summer jobs as well as the funded programs NYC and GYOP.

All interested youth should complete their application as soon as possible for further processing, especially those interested in the funded programs.

Applications will be picked up at the various distribution sites on April 5 and 26. After this date, applications should be directed to the Iowa State Employment Service.

The youth are asked to complete only one 2001 application to help speed up further processing. Further questions may be directed to the summer youth worker at the Iowa State Employment Service -- 235-1471.

Iowa Democratic Party

The Democratic State Central Committee, the governing board of the Iowa Democratic Party will be enlarged from twelve to twenty-four members according to a resolution passed by the State Central Committee. If approved by the State Convention the change will take place in 1974.

Tom Whitney, State Chairperson, said "Enlargement of the Central Committee will allow for a broader representation on the Committee and will also give the committee greater organizational ability."

All Governing bodies of the Democratic Party are elected within the convention process which begins with the precinct caucuses. The caucuses will be held in each precinct of the state on Monday, March 11 at 8 p.m. All Iowans who will be over 18 by November 5, 1974 and who consider themselves to be Democrats may come and participate in the caucuses.

Democrats are urged to attend their local precinct caucuses on March 11, because, according to State Chairman Tom Whitney "Precinct caucuses are grass roots politics at work in Iowa, and those who wish to have a voice in their party's policies and selection process should participate at this level."

In 1974 Democrats will also elect delegates to a National Conference which will determine the structure of the National Party.

The procedures under which the Iowa Caucuses and Conventions will operate have been approved by the National Compliance Committee, Dagmar Vidal of Hampton, Iowa, who represents the Midwest Region on the committee stated that Iowa is one of fifteen states that have been approved at this time.

The World Of MONEY

(Mr. Harris, an official of the Pioneer Western Corporation, discusses the world of finances and money weekly in this column prepared exclusively for the National Black News Service.)

Children should start learning good money management just about the time they're learning to tie their shoes.

Teaching your child how to handle money is as important as saving for his college education -- and should begin just as early.

There are two key aspects to teaching money management to small children -- setting a good example yourself and giving the child continuing and meaningful responsibilities in the handling of money.

Children want to imitate their parents and they will pick up spending habits as surely as they will dress up in mother's dress or father's tie. That is why it's so important that you spend wisely and carefully explain how money is translated into goods.

Children should be given an early look at how the family spends its money as well as the opportunity to handle it on their own.

Even very small children are anxious to help their mothers shop. With the increasing importance of food economy, the grocery store is now a fine place to start teaching them the importance of spending money -- and wisely.

In addition, children can be given small allowances as soon as they're able to help out in the house or back yard. The child should be made aware that the money now belongs to him -- after all, he earned it -- and he should know the options open to him -- both for spending or saving. This would include his own account at the local bank or even an investment in a government bond.

The lessons learned in the impressionable early years remain with children the remainder of their lives.

Good money management training at an early age can truly make the difference between a spendthrift or wise handler of money matters in later years.

"Five On The Black Hand Side" Soars To $1,720,280 In 20 Key Situations

"Five On The Black Hand Side," acclaimed as a breakthrough black comedy, has grossed an outstanding $1,720,280 in 20 key situations, it was announced by James R. Velde, United Artists Senior Vice President.

The film, which opened in New York to rave reviews for its delightful humor and warmth, registered $889,028 for its combined premiere two-theatre engagement and its subsequent premiere showcase run. The film continues at the following additional outstanding engagements:

ATLANTA, Atlanta: $28,086, two weeks.

BALTIMORE, Met: $39,239, four weeks.

BOSTON, Savoy 2: $41,344, four weeks.

CHICAGO, Woods: $77,338, eleven days.

DETROIT, Adams and Mercury: $141,314, three weeks.

NEW ORLEANS, Loew's: $35,531, twenty-four days.

PHILADELPHIA, Duke and Duchess: $118,300, five weeks.

ST. LOUIS, Loew's State: $36,800, three weeks.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Keith's and Republic: $120,347, five weeks.

The film not only received the enthusiastic backing of critics and audiences in all of the cities where it has opened, but also was singled out for special praise on the floor of Congress and by a wide spectrum of community and educational groups throughout the country.

It was cited as a refreshing and encouraging departure from the typical black oriented films, which hitherto concentrated on drugs, violence and murder. "Five On The Black Hand Side" is a comedy about a middle class black family trying to cope with the problems of urban living.

Clarice Taylor, Leonard Jackson, Virginia Capers, Glynn Turman and D'Urville Martin are starred in "Five On The Black Hand Side." Based on Charlie L. Russell's American Place Theatre Hit, the motion picture is presented by Michael Tolan and Brock Peters for release by United Artists, an entertainment service of Transamerica Corporation. Oscar Williams directed from a screenplay by Russell. Peters and Tolan produced.

Kenyan track star Ben Jupcho, who got off to a flying start by earning $3,000 in winning all six races he started in this country, is having a few problems hurdling the U. S. Tax collector.

"My winnings were good," said Jupcho after capturing his sixth race, "but after taxation they're reduced to nothing." Nearly 30 percent of his income has gone to taxes, he said.

Senior Len Elmore helped make the University of Maryland's basketball team one of the best college squads in the country and his coach, Lefty Driesell had a few farewells for Elmore and his running pal, Tom McMillen. "They helped us recruit other players we have here, and hopefully we've got a winning tradition started. I'm proud of everything you've done. Now just get that national championship," he told the pair.

Former professional football player Johnny Sample will receive a full hearing on a judge's order revoking his three-year probation. Thirty-six year old Sample, who played for the Pittsburgh Steelers, Baltimore Colts, New York Jets and Washington Redskins, was convicted in April of 1972 of cashing $7,400 in government checks stolen through the mails.

The U. S. Attorney charges that Sample began fencing more stolen U. S. Treasury checks shortly after the judge ordered him placed on probation. The hearing will be to determine whether he has violated that probation.

According to the government, Sample reportedly agreed to purchase $6,000 in stolen checks at one-third their face value. The checks were stolen from a U. S. mail box in Southwest Philadelphia last March 19. It seems his trouble has really just begun.

Heavyweight champ George Foreman is leaving his training camp and flying to Caracas to prepare to meet No. 2 challenger Ken Norton late this month.

"That will give me three weeks to get used to the South American climate," Foreman said. Earlier, after being sued by KO Inc. for a $2.5 million breach of contract suit, it was thought that the Foreman-Norton fight might be postponed.

The corporation is seeking an injunction that would prevent Foreman from entering into any agreement for collection and distribution of rights to the March 26 bout. The company claims it has exclusive rights for all of the champions' fights between 1971 and 1975.

San Diego Conquistador Coach Wilt Chamberlain has returned to his team after going on special assignment for the team's owner. It seems the owner forgot to tell the general manager that Chamberlain was on special assignment.

Emperor Pledges Democratic Ethiopian Government

ADDIS ABABA -- (NBNS) -- Emperor Haile Selassie has told his mutinous army he will convene a constitutional convention to create a new democratic elective government for this ancient kingdom.

This would end the absolute monarchy that the 81 year old Emperor has ruled for more than 40 years.

It was not clear, however, that the pledge would end the turmoil that has spread from the initial mutiny of troops in Ethiopia's second largest city, Asmara, to elements in the navy and air force and to military units in the capital itself.

Civilian elements also have become restive. Labor leaders called a general strike to support demands for higher wages and more benefits. There has also been student unrest.

Students had been protesting the failure of the government to respond quickly and effectively to drought in parts of the country, even before the army troops stage their mutiny in support of demands for higher military pay.

The cumulative effects of these protests already have included the installation of a new Prime Minister, Endelkachew Makonnen, to replace the government which had controlled the country under Haile Selassie's reign since 1966.

The Ethiopian monarchy claims a 3,000 year descent from a child of the Queen of Sheba, fathered by King Solomon. Haile Selassie promised constitutional government which he came to the throne 44 years ago and a year later instituted a constitution, which he revised in 1955. Even under the revised charter, the Emperor rather than the Parliament controlled the cabinet and the judiciary was granted little independence.

Black Hawk County Women's Political Caucus

The Black Hawk County Women's Political Caucus will meet next Tuesday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the YWCA in Waterloo. The main subject for the evening meeting will be a report from the Education Task Force on their survey of the schools, and a discussion of that survey, as well as discussion of evaluating school curricula for sex discrimination.

In addition to the report from the Task Force, there will be time allowed for items that require action. There will be a presentation about the current problems facing the city of Waterloo's Turn-Key housing project and suggested courses of action.

All interested persons are welcome to attend the Women's Political Caucus meeting, and members are encouraged to bring friends.

The Caucus wanted to remind its Democratic members that the Democratic party precinct caucuses will be held this Monday night, March 11 and to encourage them to attend and present the women's issues at the caucuses. The Republican caucuses will be held in April.

Justice Department Argues Against Area-Wide School Desegregation

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- U. S. Solicitor General Robert H. Bork joined with lawyers for the State of Michigan and 44 suburban school district in arguing before the U. S. Supreme Court against resolving Detroit's school discrimination on an area-wide basis.

Speaking for the Nixon Justice Department, Bork asked the court to set aside lower court orders that could require cross-district busing to integrated the predominately-black Detroit city schools with the predominately-white suburban school districts.

He said the original desegregation decision by U. S. District Judge Stephen Roth was "an improper use of judicial powers," but he suggested that the Supreme Court return the case to Roth for more hearings in which the black plaintiffs would be required to show precisely what actions by the state and suburban school districts discriminated against black students in Detroit city schools.

Arguing for the plaintiffs, J. Harold Flannery of the Center for Law and Education at Harvard University and Nathaniel R. Jones of the NAACP said state action or inaction was responsible for the segregated school situation. They said state officials approved school buildings in the suburbs while providing inadequate funds for schools in the city, thus encouraging more prosperous white residents to leave the city in search of better schools for their children.

Michigan Attorney General Frank

J. Kelley denied state responsibility and said Judge Roth and the Sixth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which has supported him, were engaged in social planning. The appeals court had agreed with Judge Roth that no solution can be found for school segregation in Detroit if changes are limited to the city.

ALGIERS -- (NBNS) -- Algeria, labelling the upcoming conference of oil-consuming countries as an effort to create "an imperialist protectorate over energy sources," has called for a special session of the U. Saying the conference proposed by President Nixon for Washington was "fundamentally dangerous and contrary to our national interest," President Houari Boumediene said a French proposal for a UN-sponsored conference on energy was more acceptable.

President Proposes $2.3 Billion For Low-Income Housing

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- President Nixon has proposed to Congress that $2.3 billion be appropriated for low and moderate income housing programs during the next fiscal year.

He also recommended another $2.3 billion for grants to local governments for use in urban renewal and water and sewer projects envisaged in his proposed Better Communities Act.

The proposed community development program would eliminate seven existing community improvement programs, including model cities, open space land programs, and neighborhood facilities grants.

According to the President's budget, the seven categorical grant programs should be eliminated because they "tend to distort local priorities and interfere with comprehensive local community development programs."

Instead of being required to respond to Federal initiatives aimed at helping the underprivileged, local governments would be given bloc grants to spend as they see fit for community development.

The President's budget repeats his previous criticism of subsidized housing and promises new initiatives to determine "whether a policy of direct cash assistance for housing is practical."

Nevertheless, the budget provides for new federal commitments to purchase mortgages financing the construction of up to 200,000 additional housing units at reduced interest rates.

At the same time, he reported that no significant progress had been made in talks between his group and the government.

$2.5 Million OMBE Request To Boost Minority Skills

The office of Minority Business Enterprise has asked for $2.5 million in an effort to improve technical assistance in marketing skills for minority business.

Commerce's OMBE Director, Alex Armendaris said, "Today we realize that the emphasis must be on the quality and viability of minority businesses. The key word for minority enterprise this coming year is 'profit,' and one of the keys to profit is effective marketing."

He indicated that the requested $2.5 million would be used to determine the market potential for products and services of minority firms, and to develop the necessary marketing techniques for successful minority business management. Plans call for the addition of 13 marketing staff members to the Washington OMBE headquarters office as well as regional office marketing specialists moving into the new marketing effort.

ICBO, Interracial Council for Business Opportunity, has announced the appointment of Malcolm L. Corrin as their new National Executive Director. The American Bankers Association has named Thomas Ahart as Director of the Association's Urban and Community Affairs Committee. In accepting the appointment, Ahart said, "The committee will take a new look at the broad role banks can continue to play in improving the plight of urban America. A systematic approach is needed to further urban economic development."

COMMERCE TASK FORCE CALLS FOR SUPPORT FOR MINORITY BUSINESS

A Federal advisory group for the U. S. Department of Commerce has presented a report which recommends a long-term national minority business education and training program.

The conclusions drawn by the 73 member National Task Force were received by both Secretaries of HEW and Commerce. John K. Tabor, Commerce Under Secretary and head of the Interagency Council for Minority Business Enterprise said, "The recommendations of this report identify some key actions that can be taken to close the gap between majority and minority business ownership." He noted that "although minorities represent 17 percent of the total population, they account for less than one-third of one percent of the nation's business assets."

The report concluded as key recommendations:

1. Establishment of State and local Task Forces on education and training for minority business enterprise, to educate, train and support current and future minority owners, with State departments of education and local education systems providing core assistance.

2. Increased support for formal business education, including "minority enterprise" fellowships, scholarships and loans to support formal business training for minority youth at the elementary and secondary school levels, and for youth outside established school systems.

4. Establishment of work experience programs for potential minority entrepreneurs by the Federal government, working with private industry, to increase apprenticeship, internship and other similar opportunities.

Anti-Busing Drive Starts In Senate

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- Another drive to stop busing of school children to achieve racial balance has begun in the Senate, with proponents of the ban predicting the bill had a rocky future ahead of it.

Sen. Sam J. Erwin's Constitutional Rights subcommittee began three days of hearings on various anti-busing measures last week, to end what the North Carolina Senator termed "this senseless, forced busing of school children to achieve racial balance."

Declaring that innocent children were being made the victims of a "horrible tyranny," the retiring Democrat said the busing of children away from their neighborhoods was being done "to satisfy the social theories of federal bureaucrats and to comply with constitutionally unsound federal court orders."

Sen. William Brock, the sponsor of a constitutional amendment to stop assignment of students to schools to achieve racial balance, admitted that his measure faces serious problems and "at best its passage would require a lengthy period of time."

But he told Erwin he hoped the Senator's subcommittee would approve legislation safeguarding the rights of children and assuring them equal educational opportunities. Another Republican Senator, William Scott of Virginia, told the panel that the overwhelming feeling among Americans was that busing should be stopped.

He also insisted that the 1964 Civil Rights Act did not empower federal courts or officials to order students transported from one school to another to achieve racial balance.

Florida's senior Senator, Republican Edward Gurney said he hoped legislative action would come shortly to stop "the obnoxious practice of forced busing."

A constitutional amendment "may be the only sure way to accomplish it," he added.

But Senator Erwin responded: "I favor a statute to put an end to it immediately and a constitutional amendment to put an end to it forever."

Increase Welfare Aid, Va. Assembly Told

RICHMOND -- (NBNS) -- The Virginia Assembly has heard impassioned pleas from recipients of the state's welfare program that they increase the funding level of the program.

The legislators, who are considering a welfare reform package, have received a report from the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council that has called for a streamlining of the welfare system and for giving mothers who receive aid 100 per cent of the amount they need for minimum subsistence as local welfare agencies determine it.

But in the governor's budget this year, the figure was reduced to 90 per cent of need.

"I'm begging you all to consider it," said Inez Gaines, a welfare recipient from Richmond, with a cracking voice. "You just don't know if you're not in it. You're talking of human need, people who just want to exist."

"I feel great and anguished concern over what public welfare is doing to people caught in poverty," Sister Liguori of the Bainbridge Community Ministry told the House of Delegates Health, Welfare and Institutions Committee. "Nobody can live on the amount that's given to a public welfare recipient. It's impossible."

A legal aid attorney, John Levy, told the group the 90 per cent funding could not meet the minimal basic food needs.

Poor Continue Working, Study Finds

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- Contrary to popular beliefs, poor fathers continue to work after receiving income supplements, according to a study of income supplement programs.

Released by Congresswoman Martha Griffiths, chairman of the Joint Economic Subcommittee on Fiscal Affairs, the report clearly showed that the poor would continue to work if given income supplements as a reward.

"A key obstacle to extending cash supplements to poor families headed by able-bodied men has been the fear that many will leave their jobs," she commented. "The bulk of the evidence shows that such fears are unfounded."

Black Takes Judgeship Post

RICHMOND -- (NBNS) -- A 47-year-old black has been sworn in as the first black man in Virginia history to become a full-time judge.

Nominations For Black Hawk County Board Of Supervisors

Donald L. Hoth of Waterloo today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the two year vacancy term on the Black Hawk County Board of Supervisors. Mr. Hoth, a 13 year resident of Black Hawk County, is employed as the Senior Marketing Representative for the IBM Corporation Data Processing Division.

Mr. Hoth and his wife Karol Rae are parents of two sons, John and David. They are members of St. Edward's Catholic Church. Among various community and civic involvement, Hoth is a member of the Black Hawk Child Development Center Advisory Committee and serves as a vice-president of United Way of Black Hawk County.

In announcing his candidacy, Hoth stated, "It is my belief that government should involve those that are being governed. When the federal government is encouraging more control at the local level, we should seize the opportunity to help the citizens of Black Hawk County. Through various revenue sharing programs, the federal tax dollars are being returned to local governments to meet the needs of the people. Indications are that more federal tax dollars will become available to local governments. As a member of the Board of Supervisors, I would solicit these funds to help provide solutions to problems that confront the people in this county."

Hoth further stated, "It is also time for the custodians of the tax dollar to cooperate with the custodians of the voluntarily contributory dollar to implement the necessary people programs in this country."

"As a member of the Board of Supervisors," Hoth continued, "I would speak out on the issues pertinent to the citizens of Black Hawk County that are legislated by other bodies. When has the Board of Supervisors taken a stand on the transportation needs of this county or collective bargaining for public employees or co-operative child care services? Many issues need to be addressed by a voice from county government."

Mr. Hoth concluded his announcement by saying, "Certainly no one person has all the right answers. I want to listen, to learn and then to be heard."

Mrs. Lynn Cutler, Director of the Volunteer Bureau of Black Hawk County, formally announced today (Wednesday) that she is a candidate for the Black Hawk County Board of Supervisors. Mrs. Cutler, a Democrat, is seeking one of the four year terms up for election.

In announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Cutler said, "I have decided to seek the office of Supervisor because of a growing concern about the impact of county government on the lives of people in this community. I have worked for many years in this county with people programs and feel I have the experience and the concern for people that should be represented on the Board. I feel strongly about opening the processes of government to the people and finding more ways to have citizen input to the Board of Supervisors. During the campaign, I will be talking about specific plans to involve citizens in the decision-making process, programs to help the elderly, need for aid to child care facilities, programs for handicapped people, and many other areas of human interest.

The County Board of Supervisors will be playing an increasingly important role as revenue-sharing and special revenue-sharing funds come into the county and we must ensure that those funds are truly reaching the people they were designed to help.

It is more important now, than at any time in our history that government be responsive to the people. Local government is most easily reached and we must have Supervisors who will listen when the people speak. That will be the thrust of my campaign, and I'll welcome any support or offers of help for that campaign."

Mrs. Cutler recently received the Distinguished Service Award from the Waterloo Jaycees and was one of three state winners of the same award. She was also named one of the Outstanding Young Women of America in 1973. She has been active in the Democratic party at the local, state and national levels for many years, and is currently on the county party Executive Committee and the State Concerns Committee. She was Black Hawk County Coordinator in 1972 for Senator Dick Clark's campaign.

She has worked with children and youth programs; serving on the Governor's Commission for Children and Youth for six and a half years;

Black Chosen For Judgement

RICHMOND -- (NBNS) -- Willard H. Douglas Jr. has been chosen by the Democratic Caucus of the Virginia Assembly and Senate to become the state's first fulltime black judge.

Now an assistant commonwealth attorney, Douglas has been nominated for one of four Richmond juvenile and domestic relations judgeships that the General Assembly will fill next week.

child care center boards, and committees and was an administrator with the Head Start program here for four years. She was also a delegate to the White House Conference on Children in 1970 and has served on committees in the Waterloo schools. She is a former teacher and taught in Cedar Falls for three years.

The elderly and their problems have been a prime interest in her professional and volunteer activities and she is on the boards of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program here.

She is a member of the League of Women Voters and is currently active in the Women's Political Caucus and is on both the state and local steering committees of the Caucus.

The strength of the family unit has been an area of involvement for her and she has been on the board of Family Service League and is currently on the Catholic Charities Lay Advisory Board, and is working with the new Mental Health Association chapter here.

Mrs. Cutler holds a B. A. and an M. A. degree in Education from the University of Northern Iowa and has been Director of the Volunteer Bureau of Black Hawk County for two and a half years. She is married to Waterloo attorney Henry Cutler and they have four children. They are affiliated with the Sons of Jacob Synagogue.

'Missing' Fathers Tracked Down In N.Y.

ALBANY -- (NBNS) -- The state -- under an expanded program -- tracked down 4,000 fathers who left home or pretended to leave home to enable their families to go on welfare, state welfare officials have revealed.

In 1972, the Social Services Department was able to locate only 1,930 missing fathers of families on welfare, according to Commissioner Abe Lavine.

Declaring that the department's efforts would be accelerated this year in finding missing fathers, Commissioner Lavine said there was no way to estimate as to how much money is being saved or how much the program had cost the state to find the missing fathers, more missing fathers tracked down.

Welfare officials are delaying certification of persons they regard as "high risk" welfare cases for some 30 days -- enough time to allow caseworkers to check with "neighbors, past and present employers, landlords, post offices, and any other likely source of information." The commissioner said any of them could verify that the father was in fact missing from the home.

High risk cases are those in which the father is reportedly absent but there is little or no proof by a death certificate or divorce papers, to prove the welfare recipient's claim.

Commissioner Lavine estimated that there are 23,000 deserting fathers in the state which now has about 343,000 families receiving assistance under the program for aid to families with dependent children. About 17.5 percent of them are ineligible according to state officials.

The Social Services Department considers it a "critical first step" in curbing various welfare abuses. State auditors have found about 40 percent of those families on welfare are really ineligible since the deserting father hasn't actually left.

New Sterilization Guidelines

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- Local family-planning officials who receive Federal grants will be deciding the persons competency to determine whether they are to be sterilized or not.

Under the new plan, state officials, not local agencies, will appoint committees to approve sterilization operations in cases of minors and incompetents.

More U. S. Drought Aid to Africa Slated

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- The United States has agreed to provide an additional $21 million in aid to the six drought-stricken African countries. The Agency for International Development will award the money.

Earlier the U.S. had given Chad, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Senegal and Upper Volta $109 million in the form of emergency relief, but $20 million of the new money will be for rehabilitation with another $1 million going to the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization's Sahelian trust fund.

Marshall Plan Proposed For Africa Drought

LAGOS, Nigeria -- (NBNS) -- Unless a Marshall plan for assisting drought-ravaged countries in West Africa is adopted, those nations could be wiped off the face of the map before the end of the century, warned U. N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

Waldheim, on a tour to various African nations, proposed "a global approach like the Marshall Plan" which was a U. S. financed multibillion dollar reconstruction program for Europe following World War II.

"We need a dramatic relief operation," he told reporters shortly before his departure following talks with Nigerian military ruler Gen. Yakubu Gowon.

He said the advancing Sahara Desert threatens some six million Africans by death from famine. The prediction, made by the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization, said about a third of the estimated population of 30 million in the six drought stricken countries are weakened by malnutrition and hunger.

The best prospect for the sub-Saharan area which includes Senegal, Mali, Upper Volta, Niger, Chad and Mauritania, are the $1.5 billion worth of long-range rehabilitation programs sponsored by various Western nations. The United States has contributed a large part of that amount.

Hardest hit by the drought is Mauritania, where officials estimate the cereal crop which is 110,000 metric tons in a good year has declined to only one-third that amount. Half the country's one million cattle have died as have thousands of camels and sheep.

Waldheim said long term projects like the construction of huge dams on the Senegal and Niger Rivers, vast irrigation schemes and well digging programs.

The U. N. Secretary General said some 125 specific projects would be needed for the Sahara Desert area.

It has become fashionable for people seeking public office to go to a location which reflects an area of their concern. We have seen them announce at farms, in cornfields and at gas stations.

And not to be different, today I have come to this bridge to make known my desire to seek the office of state representative for House District #34. It is appropriate, I feel, that I come to this location which is the center of the area which I hope to represent.

This district is a microcosm of this nation. Within its boundaries reside the haves and have nots, the old and the young, men and women, and persons of different skin colors and religious connections.

I do not take lightly the responsibility of this office. Nor am I unaware of some of the needs of the people. I have had the advantage of growing up in this district and have come to realize they are many and varied.

The grass may be greener in other places but I have chosen to return to my hometown to be a part of that process that will make the grass greener here by making my services available to the 34th House District.

Some of the areas of concern that I have gleaned to date are: Tax reform, consumer protection and transportation.

Diane Brandt Announces Candidacy for 35th District Seat

Diane Brandt, 3705 Hillside Drive, Cedar Falls, today announced her candidacy for the 35th District seat in the Iowa House of Representatives.

Mrs. Brandt, a Democrat, said, "State legislative issues have been my major interest for several years. I think I can represent the people of the 35th District on crucial issues such as tax reform, the energy crisis and transportation."

"In making my decision to run for the Iowa House I have talked with a large number of people who live in this legislative district. Many were confused about who their present representative is. That indicates to me that he is failing to keep in touch with the people in the district. I plan to campaign door-to-door to meet as many voters as possible, to seek their views on the issues, and to present my own views for their consideration.

"The voters in this district deserve a legislator who will speak directly and clearly on the issues. Political doubletalk is no longer acceptable to the people."

Mrs. Brandt has been active in various community organizations. She is a past president of the Waterloo-Cedar Falls League of Women Voters and has served five years on the state board of that organization. She has worked as a lobbyist for the League during four sessions of the Iowa legislature. She is currently president of the Waterloo branch of the American Association of University Women, having served three years as education chairperson for AAUW.

A 13-year resident of Cedar Falls, Mrs. Brandt is chairperson of the Land Use and Zoning Committee of the Cedar Falls Planning and Zoning Commission. She is on the Church and Community council of First Presbyterian Church in Cedar Falls.

Mrs. Brandt is a home economics graduate of Iowa State University and attended one year of law school at the University of Iowa. She has served on the state board of Iowans for Better Justice. She is currently Black Hawk County representative on the state steering committee of the Iowa Women's Political Caucus, and is on the state child care task force.

Her activities in the Democratic party include service on county, district, and state platform committees.

The 35th District includes four precincts in Cedar Falls and 11 precincts in Waterloo, primarily in Ward III.

State of The Union Disappointment

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- The National Urban League says it is especially disappointed in President Nixon's State of the Union address because it failed to discuss the problems facing minority Americans.

Ronald Brown, director of the League's Washington Bureau, said the New York-based organization agrees that high-quality health care should be available to all Americans at a price they can afford, but he pointed to an evaluation of the administration's health plan and said it would wait until more specifics were offered by the President.

Pointing out that any reform of the current welfare system must "be fair and equitable and free of any punitive, work-fare proposals," Brown said the League would take a wait and see attitude.

He was also critical of the President's failure to talk about the problems of unemployment, which is critical to Black America.

Catholic Bishops Speak Out

SALISBURY -- (NBNS) -- Rhodesia's six Roman Catholic bishops have told the country's white-minority government that it must change its "racist policies" drastically if there is to be "any hope of permanent peace" in the country.

The outspoken criticism was circulated in a pastoral message, "Reconciliation in Rhodesia," which was read aloud or distributed in churches throughout the country. The bishops, five white and one black, declared:

"Discrimination based on race must be eliminated, equality of opportunity must be guaranteed, there must be proper parliamentary representation, job reservation (for whites) must go, and land reform must be seriously tackled, with more equitable distribution and appropriate control."

Troops Resist Emperor's Efforts To End Ethiopia Mutiny

ADDIS ABABA -- (NBNS) -- Concessions by Emperor Haile Selassie have failed to still the mutinous spirit of Ethiopia's restive troops and young officers.

Troops took over the capital, including the Addis Ababa International Airport, and incidentally broke up a conference of the ministers of the Organization of African Unity when the Ethiopian government said it no longer could guarantee the safety of the delegates.

Virginia State Fighting HEW Order

PETERSBURG, Va. -- (NBNS) -- Virginia State College will continue to fight a directive from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that the college does not have a sufficient number of white students -- therefore it is racially segregated.

Dr. Wendell Russell, president of VSC, said his school is not "inferior" because it lacks a racial mixture. "But the Department of Health, Education and Welfare does," he says.

After meeting with a team of HEW inspectors, he vowed the college would fight the directive to further desegregate of close down.

Observers estimate that one quarter of the country's 55,000 man army, plus most of the navy and some of the air force, have been involved in the mutiny, which began in Asmara, Ethiopia's second largest city as a protest over inadequate military pay.

The Emperor agreed to raise the base pay for privates from $50 to $56 a month and establish a new ceiling for privates' pay at $75. The rebellious troops had demanded $75 as the base, however, for a private.

The 81 year old Emperor also dismissed his own grandson as head of the country's small navy. According to reports the naval commander fled when his units joined in the army revolt.

The troops continue to proclaim their loyalty to Haile Selassie, who has ruled this ancient African kingdom for 40 years. His personal popularity in the country has not been shared, however, by the government of Prime Minister Aklilu Hapte-Wold who led the country from 1966 until his ouster as a result of rebel troop demands.

The Emperor has named as the new prime minister, Endalachew Makonnen, former ambassador to the United Nations and the Minister of Telecommunications in the outgoing cabinet.

This meeting recognized all the firms and their roles they are playing to promote human relations in this area.

U.S. Rejects 'Bias' S. Carolina Plan

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- The Justice Department, citing objections to South Carolina's reapportionment plan for its state house of representatives elections because it would deprive blacks of the right to vote, has turned down the proposal.

In a letter to State Attorney General Daniel R. McLeod, Assistant Attorney General J. Stanley Pottinger, director of the department's Civil Rights division, said the plan submerges "significant concentrations of Negro voters into large majority-white, multimember districts."

"If the blacks had been put into single-member districts, with one representative each, some would have been black majority districts, and the house would have had 15 to 20 black members," Pottinger wrote. Instead the state adopted a multimember district plan with two to 12 representatives for each rather than one.

The 124-member house has only four members now.

Senate Considering Genocide Pact

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- The Senate has refused in its first vote on the 25-year-old U.N. agreement outlawing genocide, to invoke cloture -- thus cutting all debate on the subject off. The initial attempt failed in gaining its two-thirds majority by only six votes. The vote was 55-36 in favor of closing debate.

Senators were scheduled later in the week to try a second time. The pact, officially known as the International Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, has been approved by 75 countries, including the Soviet Union. Conservatives have maintained that it is meaningless and should not be approved.

Mrs. Weems wishes to thank each and every one of the participants of this meeting.

EEOC laws are to assure equal employment to all people by the Federal government. The Federal government saw a need for this law to balance out the economical situation which we have in this country.

The purpose of the "kidnap your minority employee" program was to show there are some companies who have hired minorities.

However, Mrs. Weems, minority group specialist for ISES said EEO laws had to be made and enforced to make sure all companies recruit, hire and upgrade and promote fairly.

Also on the agenda was for the representative from Black Community to express their opinions in reference to how companies in Black Hawk County are responding and complying to Equal Opportunity Employment.

Another A U meeting will be held in April for the purpose of direct contact between business and the black community.

During the month, business hearing minority employees will be photographed for Waterloo World of Work - information action booklet.

It was decided the Waterloo Defender will be our communication instrument within the community.

Mrs. Anna Weems is shown here doing her thing. Mrs. Weems' thing is to promote and encourage community harmony. In order to have harmony in any city, the people of the city must communicate. In communicating you learn the needs of the city which in many cases you weren't aware of.

Our biggest problem in Waterloo is that people are so busy doing things to satisfy the system that they leave the human relations aspect of people out.

Democrats Change Delegate Rules

Four blacks and one chicanofought hard to retain the delegate selection rules hammered out last year by the liberal-controlled commission headed by Baltimore City Councilwoman Barbara Mikulski.

The Mikulski commission wanted a 17 member complain commission. The party leadership headed by National Chairman Robert S. Strauss asked and got a 25 member commission. The extra members were necessary said Strauss to "represent the different constituencies in the party."

The commission will include six blacks, two chicanos, a Puerto Rican, three labor representatives and 12 women. The political tone will be moderate-to-liberal.

The compliance commission is designed to guarantee participation in party affairs by minorities, women, youth and others by supervising state affirmative action plans. It will wield a great deal of power as it watches over states' efforts to open up participation in party activities.

The burden of proof for affirmative action will fall upon the state. Any state which does not comply with the commission regulations will have an alternate delegation set up by the executive committee of the party. Wallace forces protested this new rule.

These plans do away with the controversial quota system rules established for the 1972 campaign.

Broadcaster Opposed By Muslims Urged Urban League for FCC to Thank Whites

Local Briefs

The Iowa State Library Commission announced today that it has awarded the Waterloo Public Library a grant of $17,000.00 for the first year of an experimental program of services to preschool children. The money comes from federal funds under the Library Services and Construction Act.

Designed as a three year program the Preschool Project will enable the Waterloo Public Library to develop a collection of books, tapes, films, filmstrips, games and toys suitable for use with children from three to five years old. Equipment for viewing and listening to audio-visual materials will also be purchased.

After the collection has been assembled the library will provide a delivery system so that library staff will be able to visit preschool and day care centers on a regular basis to use the materials with the children and centers' staffs. The library plans to use volunteers as well as regular library staff in this part of the project.

Special programs for preschoolers including story hours, puppet shows and other library related activities will be scheduled both at the day care centers and in the downtown libraries.

In addition to materials for children, the library will prepare and publish lists of books especially good to read to and with young children. "The Youth Services Department of the Library in Waterloo has had a special interest in preschool children for several years," says Betty Bergman, Head of the department. "This grant will enable us to expand our programs and experiment with new services."

"Work on the project will begin as soon as funds are received and programs will start as soon as the necessary materials are purchased and processed" according to Michael Phipps, Director.

Culver Energy Information Bill Wins House Approval

The House of Representatives has approved energy information disclosure legislation introduced by Representative John Culver (D-Iowa). The measure is incorporated in the Federal Energy Administration Act, which now moved to conference with the Senate.

Culver emphasized that his provision had been carefully coordinated with both majority and minority members of his Committee, as well as with Administration professional experts. "It is certainly not going to be welcomed by the oil companies," Culver said, "but our homework should insulate it from any Presidential veto."

Culver stated that his legislation "does everything that needs to be done to give us accurate and reliable energy information." The bill grants the new FEA broad subpoena and information-collection powers, and also arms it with administrative inspection authority to verify data submissions.

The treatment in the House bill of confidential company data skirts difficulties that earlier snarled Senate debate on this subject. Under the Culver provision, such data must be disclosed to the energy agency and will be made available to the Comptroller General and Congress-sional committees, as well as to the general public in an aggregated form. "Thus we will have an independent check on the diligence of the Administrator," Culver said, "and the public will obtain the fruits of that diligence."

Passage of this measure marks Congressional approval of the first five points included in the Culver-sponsored energy program outlined to the House leadership last month. The other four points deal with industry competition, equitable burden-sharing, energy resource conservation and expansion, and international cooperation. Culver said he had received a positive reaction to his proposals from House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill.

"Collection of reliable and accurate energy information is an indispensable first step," Culver said. "It is vitally needed to assure the credibility and fairness of allocations and price levels and other aspects of the present crisis."

Hanafi Trial Draws Courtroom Outburst

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NBNS) -- The courtroom in the Hanafi murder trial was thrown into disorder when a witness faced five men charged with slaying seven people, including four children, and shouted:

"You killed my babies! You killed my babies and shot my woman!"

D. C. Superior Court Judge Leonard Braman immediately ordered Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, leader of the Hanafi (Orthodox) Muslims, removed from the courtroom and took under advisement a motion from defense attorneys to declare a mistrial in the emotional case.

Khaalis' outburst came in the trial's fifth day and he was the government's 10th witness. Under questioning by Assistant U. S. Attorney John F. Evans, Khaalis identified himself as "the guide, director, spiritual adviser" of America's 1,000 Hanafi Muslims.

Across the room sat five Philadelphia men, self-proclaimed Black Muslims, whose leader was publicly denounced by Khaalis. The men are accused of slaying members of Khaalis Muslim group whose ages ranged from nine days to 25 years on Jan. 18, 1973, when the killings occurred.

Glaring at the defense table, Khaalis pointed at one defendant and exclaimed: "You don't have to smile." When the defense attorneys asked the judge for a conference, Khaalis then stood; pointed to the defendants and gave his emotional accusation.

He added: "They killed them! I know who's behind it."

The two panels of 12 jurors and 11 alternates were quickly ushered from the courtroom and Khaalis called before the bench.

Khaalis, dressed in a black jacket, dark trousers and high-necked dark shirt, and wearing a moustache and goatee, then was brought before Judge Braman.

"The court has great compassion for your position and understands the tremendous emotional pressures you have been subject to for over a year," Braman said. "But you are a witness in a judicial proceeding."

"Under our system of justice, the judgement belongs exclusively to the jury, not to me and not to you. Their judgement must be based on reason, evidence and law, not upon emotion, rage and hysteria. Do you hear me?"

Khaalis protested and the judge cut him short.

"Your conduct has threatened to despoil the proceedings in this court. In your anxiety to see these proceedings end in convictions, you may have aborted them," the judge warned.

Khaalis made no further response.

Khaalis was the third member of his family to testify. Earlier, Amina, his daughter, who survived three bullet wounds in the head, identified three of the defendants as members of "Elijah Poole's cut-throat gang" -- a reference to Elijah Muhammad, Black Muslim leader. Muslim leaders have denied any involvement in the slayings.

Amina, 24, a white kaffiyah flowing from her head over her shoulders, pointed out John W. Clark, 31, as the leader of a group of men who invaded the Hanafi Muslim home and committed murder.

Clark, she told a hushed courtroom, "was the one who directed the man in a black coat to take my little girl upstairs and drown her."

She also identified John W. Griffin, 28, and she said he was the one wearing the black coat. Mrs. Khaalis further identified Theodore Moody, 28.

Before the killings, Hamaas Khaalis had written two letters to Black Muslim ministers around the country denouncing their leader, Elijah Muhammad, as a fraud and an arch-deceiver.

1,307 Black Elected Officials, Report Shows

ATLANTA -- (NBNS) -- There are 1,307 black elected officials -- an increase of 14.2 percent over 1972 -- and most of them are in the Southern states, according to a survey by the Voter Education Project.

John Lewis, the group's executive director, pointed out that seven of those officials hold two positions bringing to 1,314 positions those held by blacks.

"The increase in the number of black elected officials has been astounding," Lewis added, "over an 1,800 percent increase in a period of only nine years." In 1965, as an example, when the Voting Rights Act was passed there were only 72 blacks in elective office in the South.

Today, Mississippi and Alabama -- the two states that had the lowest black voter registration rate in the nation only 10 years ago -- now are among the top three states in its number of black elected officials.

Only 6.7 percent of the eligible blacks in Mississippi were registered to vote 10 years ago. That was the lowest rate in the country. Alabama had the second lowest rate.

Now Mississippi leads the 11 Southern states with 174 elected officials that are black. Arkansas follows with 150; then Alabama, 149; North Carolina, 148; Louisiana, 147; Georgia, 130; Texas, 109; South Carolina, 106; Tennessee, 74; Florida, 62 and Virginia, 58.

Liquefied natural gas.

Another way to store gas so it's there when you need it.

When cold weather blows across the northern states we serve, the demand for natural gas zooms. And we want enough on hand to meet the demand. That means we store it in the summer, so you can use it in the winter. One way is to store it underground, but that technique requires a special porous rock which can absorb the natural gas. And that kind of rock isn't everywhere we'd like it to be. So now we've got another way. We liquefy it. That's right.

We turn natural gas into a liquid by lowering the temperature down to 260° below zero. Then we can store it in tanks. When the temperature drops and demand goes up, we reconvert the liquid gas to its natural form and pipe it to your home. Of course we have to have special facilities to liquefy the gas, store it, and then vaporize it again. So we're building a liquefied natural gas storage facility near Duluth, Minnesota, on the northern end of our transmission system. It will store two billion cubic feet of natural gas. We expect it to be in service before the 1975-76 heating season. It's just another thing Northern Natural Gas Company is doing to keep that quiet, efficient blue flame burning at your house. So you can continue to have the advantages of natural gas for home heating and water heating, home cooling, clothes drying, and cooking.

Detroit's STRESS Unit Abolished By Young

DETROIT -- (NBNS) -- Mayor Coleman Young has announced major changes in the Detroit Police Department. The changes eliminate the controversial undercover STRESS unit, and increases black representation in the department to 50 per cent by 1977, and creates 50 mini-stations throughout the city.

Young also called for a "highly visible increase" in the number of uniformed police officers, both in patrol cars and on foot. He said that this would be accomplished by the abolition of STRESS and the re-evaluation of other plain clothes units.

"STRESS," said Young, "was a decoy operation which resulted in the necessary deaths of citizens and police officers. I believe that uniformed police officers in the street, recognizable to both criminals and citizens are generally more effective in combating crime than mickey mouse plain clothes operations."

During the three years STRESS decoy unit was in operation, 19 citizens were killed -- almost all of them black -- as well as three police officers. Because of strong pressure and criticism from the Black community, STRESS decoy operation was dropped a year ago. Its officers continue to work on plain clothes patrol.

Young added that "there is also a role in any (police) department of undercover operations. But there is a difference between an undercover operation and the decoy operation."

Young's proposed increase in black police officers and the creation of mini-stations is an attempt on his part to improve relations between the police department and Detroit's communities -- in particular the black community.

In order to achieve a police force that will be 50 per cent black by 1977, Young said that his department must hire more than 1,500 black recruits in the next three years. The Detroit Police Department is now 83 per cent white. Of 5,537 men and women, 930 are black.

The 50 mini-stations will be storefront police stations scattered around the city and open 24 hours a day. The stations will be adjunct to the city's 13 precinct stations. Young has already instructed Philip Tannian, police commissioner, to open at least 20 of the mini-stations within the next two months.

It is hoped by both Tannian and Young that there will be a lot of citizen cooperation and help at the mini-stations.

The elimination of STRESS (Stop the robberies, enjoy safe streets) was one of Coleman Young's campaign promises, as well as an increase in uniformed policemen.

Young also announced an all-out war on crime in the city, particularly on narcotics violations, murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, auto theft, and larceny.

News Reports False, Chisholm Group Contends

WASHINGTON -- (NBNS) -- Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm's Presidential campaign committee lashed out at the General Accounting Office for its allegations that "bank deposits totaling over $3,500 were not identified at all."

Saying the committee "concerned itself strictly" with safeguarding campaign funds, the Chisholm for President group filed a complete financial report and statement with GAO in an effort to present the "full picture."

"Every dollar was banked on record," the committee answered in its nine-page report. "Every dollar was expended by bank check, on record."

Although it admitted that it had "to some extent" kept incomplete and inadequate records, the committee counsel, Samuel Korb, said the committee did, at times, fail to maintain a list of the addresses and occupations of those who sent money to Mrs. Chisholm's campaign.

A committee report, which was erroneously submitted to GAO as a "final report of the Chisholm campaign" was not, he said, and he charged it was "badly written and incorrect."

"It appeared that it was a final report, but it was not," he said.

GAO charged that the Chisholm campaign had a surplus of more than $18,000, rather than a $6,000 deficit as they claimed.

Although the case has since been referred to the Justice Department for action on the "apparent violations" of election and corporate laws, GAO refused to comment to her than to say that "we've received the report, but I haven't seen it myself."

The greatest number of contributors to the Chisholm campaign gave between 25 cents and $5, according to the report.

"The committee recorded the names of thousands of the contributors," the report said. "Thousands of other contributors are unknown to the committee because their contributions formed part of cumulative sums collected at many places."

The GAO report that "bank deposits totaling over $3,500 were not identified at all," was a "shocking distortion of fact" since it failed to take into effect bills that followed the audit period, the committee said. "When those bills were paid, not only was the temporary surplus wiped out, but a deficit loomed large."

In its report to the Justice Department, GAO said the committee "had failed to record the mailing address, occupation or place of business of persons to whom expenditures were made."

But the committee countered that, "None of us is a lawyer or an accountant. We had no prior experience with or conception of a campaign like this one."

"We unreservedly subscribe to the fullest possible disclosure of campaign financing. Justice Holmes's admonition that 'the best disinfectant is the light of day' is more apt today than ever."

Dr. King Honored By Georgia

ATLANTA -- (NBNS) -- The Georgia State Senate has adopted a resolution honoring the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. as a "foremost advocate of non-violence." But before the Senate adopted the resolution, Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, the presiding officer in the Senate, left the podium and turned the gavel over to Senator Hugh Gillis.

Earlier, Maddox had said that Dr. King brought dishonor to the state shortly after a picture of Dr. King was scheduled to be placed in the State Capitol. That ceremony will take place shortly after the General Assembly adjourns.
