Hunger Hike Meeting Held

On Wednesday, September 25, a meeting was held at St. Timothy's United Methodist Church in Cedar Falls. This meeting's purpose was to develop a committee for the Annual Hunger Hike.

The Hunger Hike is taken each Fall through the Waterloo area. People of every kind, go and seek out pledges from relatives, friends, neighbors, teachers, and others in the community for each mile that is walked by the individual. In the past we have walked only ten miles which is only a fraction of what wome people have to walk each day for just a cup of milk. After the hike is completed, the money is collected according to the pledge and the miles walked. In the past the main organization we have supported was CROP (Christian Relief Overseas Program). Besides CROP we put a certain percentage into local needs such as day care centers, poverty stricken areas and hunger needs in the local area. This is not a church affair this is a community affair. We need many people to get involved in this very important project.

During the meeting Sue Hopkins was elected General Chairman, she is also in charge of publicity. Other officers will be elected next Wednesday at 4:15 at St. Timothy's United Methodist Church in Cedar Falls.

Others included in this meeting were: Maggie Connell, a Senior at Columbus High School; Wesley Kennedy, a Sophomore at East High School; Linda Wehner, a Senior at Northern University High School; Donald L. Carver, St. Timothy's United Methodist Church; Brian Carter, First United Methodist Church, Cedar Falls; Jim Pemble, First United Methodist Church, Waterloo; and Joe Fagan, Columbus High School.

The Hunger Hike will be held on Sunday, October 20th, 1974. We will meet at the First Baptist Church at 4th and Baltimore in Waterloo at 1:00 p.m. and walk till about 5:30 p.m.

For more information please call Sud Hopkins at 266-6510 after 4:00 p.m. on weekdays or come to the meeting at St. Timothy's United Methodist Church in Cedar Falls at 4:15 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 2.

WELFARE RECIPIENTS MUST SEEK JOBS

Under proposed federal regulations, welfare recipients across the nation will have to actively seek out jobs and not just register for training. The new measure is expected to hit an estimated 1.2 million persons currently on welfare rolls.

Hardest hit will be those persons receiving assistance under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the nation's largest welfare operation. In addition, hundreds of thousands of persons who previously only had to register for the Work Incentive Program (WIN) will have to join the soaring unemployment ranks and compete for available jobs.

WIN registrants in the past were normally adults who were in school full time, had children under 6; were needed at home to care for individuals or children under 6; or were too far away to participate in a training program.

Under the old regulation WIN registrants were still eligible for government assistance.

But under the proposed new regulations, any person who refused to look for work would be dropped from the government assistance rolls, however their children would still be eligible.

WIN officials said that it will be up to each state to regulate and enforce the new measure especially the type of proof needed by a person to show that he has actively participated in the job hunt.

Phillip Mason, a spokesman for the Labor Dept., said that the new regulations on WIN recognize local and regional differences and "give the state latitude in how they will respond to the requirement that you have to conduct a job search."

"This is a genuine effort to let the states and localities work the problem out the way they think best, not the way the Washington people think it should be worked out."

WIN began in 1968 as a program to ease the welfare rolls by moving people into jobs. It is jointly administered by DOL and HEW. The program is 90 per cent federally financed and 10 per cent state-funded and costs more than $350 million a year to operate.

Prior to 1972 registration in the WIN program was optional, but with the adoption of the Talmadge amendment, the law was changed making it mandatory that persons register unless they were specifically exempted.

We fully expect that thorough exposure to the labor market for all..... registrants will result in substantial increases in the number placed in jobs, declared Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Caspar Weinberger.

The new regulations which will be published in the Federal Register next Wednesday would also give states the option on setting up extensive manpower programs that could provide registrants with job orientation techniques how to apply for jobs and where to look for them.

WIN registrants under the new regulations will register at local employment offices, where there is ready access and availability to jobs and job information.

SPORTS CAPSULE

The fabulous career of Willis Reed, the captain of the New York Knicks basketball squad, got his bad news in the mail the other day. It was in a letter to the Knick's team doctor and was a medical report from a Toronto orthopedic specialist who examined Willis' right knee on August 16.

Well, the finding of the doctor was that: "It is recommended that some modification of activity be placed on this man," the letter said. "Possibly the addition of a brace to limit rotational stress will enable enable him to carry on his profession."

But the team physician said he "does not feel that Willis can play and Willis himself has said that he also feels that he can't play. It will be up to Willis to decide whether he will come to camp and try to play and then the final decision about playing will be Willis's."

Reed was named the National Basketball Association's most valuable player two years, in 1970 and 1973, and has two remaining years on his $300,000 a year contract. The ball club has a Lloyds of London contract on him and the team is expected to pursue the insurance claim now.

Muhammad Ali really got a greeting when he arrived in Kinshaha, Zaire for the upcoming heavyweight championship fight against George Foreman.

Ali, who was greeted by more than 4,000 cheering

Zairians, said he has been feeling a little run down. "They found that my blood sugar level was low two weeks ago. I've been having it checked every other day since then and I'll do it every couple of days until the fight.

That's better now, but now they say I'm supposed to drink more water."

Upon his arrival in Zaire, greeted the crowd by saying: Zaire is not like we imagine it in the United States. It's not a jungle. On seeing the beautiful city of Kinshaha I feel at home and freer I shall feel more Zairian than Foreman because it's him and not me who'll be foreign," he said in a verbal jab at the present heavyweight champ.

It's not surprisingly that Former National Football League defensive back, Fred "The Hammer" Williamson, has been canned by ABC from the Monday night professional football telecasts.

It's no secret that Williamson was not well received by the TV critic and there were continuing rumors that the network was looking for a replacement for the former Kansas City star defensive lineman.

Williamson would only say that it was Howard Cosell's fault and we all know that Howard is a permanent fixture around ABC. "It's obvious to everyone that there are problems but the fault is not mine," The Hammer said. "It's Howard Cosell's. He's avoided me on all three games we've done just let my lines die."

"I'm not coming off well because he's not doing what he does best--- playing if for controversy. Something's happened to Howard, he's started taking himself seriously and it's not very becoming." Nuff said.

MRS. FORD BOOST BLACK WOMEN FOR POLICY JOBS

Mrs. Gerald Ford has urged her husband to include black women among the women among the women appointees he has promised for the Ford Administration.

The first lady told a conference sponsored by the National Council of Negro Women that she had asked President Ford to choose qualified black and white women for top policy positions in his Administration. She said he responded that he would seriously consider these candidates for top jobs.

Thus Mrs. Ford expanded her husband's earlier pledge to appoint more women to high office.

She indicated that she would not let him forget his pledge:

If he doesn't get it in his office, he gets it at night in the ribs," she joked.

Mrs. Ford spoke briefly at a luncheon during the two-day conference on housing and food. Some 100 women, representing women's volunteer organizations, attended.

She said she always has been opposed to racism and, if necessary, would take to the stump to overcome both forms of discrimination. She urged a united effort among women:

You are the women who are going to lead the country down the path for equality-- not only racial equality but sexual. You have a great commitment and I know you will carry through."

"It is absolutely imperative that people register to vote and vote in this election November 5th; there are to many issues for the folks in this community to consider for the to ignore their opportunity to vote....." Peter Middleton was quoted as saying today as he considered what needs to be done in his campaign for the 34th District House Seat in the Iowa State House of Representatives. He was reviewing the voters registration programs that are having an impact on the third and fourth wards of Waterloo.

The A. Phillip Randolph Institute is sponsoring an extensive program of voter identification, registration and education that will have its kickoff this Saturday at Jim Porter's Community Enabler's Office at 527 Cottage St. at 2:00 P.M. Old and young teenagers will gather and go out into these wards surveying residents identifying unregistered voters. Mobile registrars will be working with them to register voters. The program of the Randolph Institute will also include letting the folks know what is going on in the political scene to help prepare them to vote on November 5th and then to continue an extensive voter education program even after the election so that the citizenry of the third and fourth ward will become much more attuned to the times.

Lawrence Bryant, community organizer emphasized that many more volunteers were needed for this Saturday.

Another program of interest to Pete Middleton is the Voter Identification of the Democratic Party, on whose ticket Pete is proud to run. The VIP program is a telephone survey identifying Democrats, and "Democratically leaning" voters who are not registered for one reason or another, then to get them registered. Up to this time 3,400 homes have been identified in Black-Hawk County containing Democratic voters who need to register.

Mobile registrars are busy at work assisting in the registering of these voters. Anyone who is unable to go down to register can call 235-7171 and arrangements will be made to have someone come out and register them.

Pete Middleton is one candidate who is concerned that at all the electorate have a chance to take part in the process.

BRANDT SPEAKS ON OPEN GOVERNMENT

Legislative candidate Diane Brandt, speaking Tuesday night to a meeting of the Waterloo American Business Women's Association, said she supports Iowa Common Cause' Objectives for open government.

Mrs. Brandt, Democratic candidate in House District 35, said she supports the Common Cause objective of public campaign financing for candidates for statewide office. The proposal would provide, within certain limits, state funds to match a candidate's accumulated small contributions, she said.

"However," she added, "I am unsure as to whether people are willing to support this concept for legislative candidates, and I would not vote for this part of the Common Cause proposal unless I thought my constituents did support it."

The second proposal Mrs. Brandt said she supports is for a law requiring both lobbyists and legislators in both houses to make full disclosure of lobbying expenditures. Currently, disclosure is required only by a rule of the legislature, and members of the house are not required to make any disclosure, she noted.

I also agree with Common Cause that Iowa needs a law making voidable any action en it is meeting in violation of the open meeting law.

Futhermore, I believe the courts should award court costs and lawyer fees to any citizen who takes on the burden of going to court against a public body which has violated the open meeting law."

CULTER PLEDGES OPEN GOVERNMENT

In a speech to Local #46 of the Meatcutters Union Thursday night, Lynn Cutler Democratic candidate for the Black Hawk County Board of Supervisors, reiterated her pledge to bring county government out into the open.

"There has been too much of secrecy and closed door meetings--it is time to bring county government out into the sunshine and let the people know what is going on, and how local government works. It is time to involve citizens in the decision-making process. Too often representatives of labor organizations are overlooked when committees are formed. The working men and women of this community form the majority of its population and should be represented in citizen's advisory group

We need to move the meetings of the County Board of Supervisors out into the community periodically and have evening meetings so that more people can come and find out how county government functions and what it does."

In other remarks Mrs. Culter urged the members to become involved in the political process, and complimented the group on the Cope Meet the Candidates Day they had sponsored at Rath's last week.

Mrs. Culter will be door knocking in the Third and Fourth Wards of Waterloo this week-end, and will be at a workday for the Win With Women effort on the Black Hawk County Women's Political Caucus Saturday morning, and will make an appearance at a fundraising bingo party at Local #46 Saturday night.

INFLATION MEET STRESSES IMPACT ON POOR

Inflation's impact on America's poorest families was stressed at a Federal anti-inflation conference concerned with health, education and welfare problems.

Background papers for the conference cited 22,973,000 people below the poverty level last year, or 11 percent of the population, according to the Bureau of the Census guideline of $4,540 as the poverty level on income for a nonfarm family of four.

These include 10,755,000 on Aid to Families with Dependent Children, 3,583,844 aged, blind or disabled persons in the new Supplemental Security Income program, and 800,000 others on non-federal state and local public assistance programs.

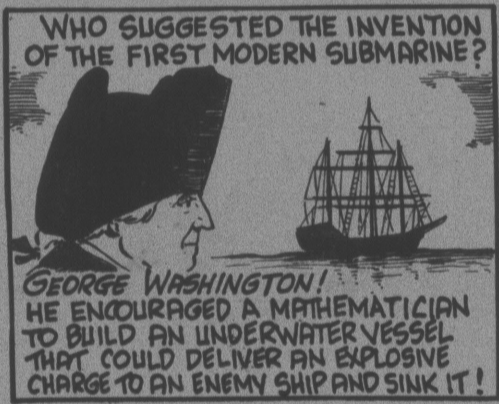

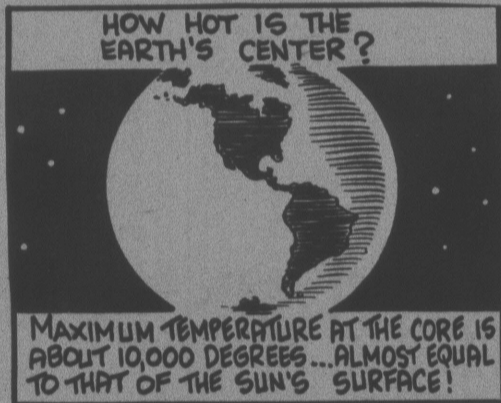

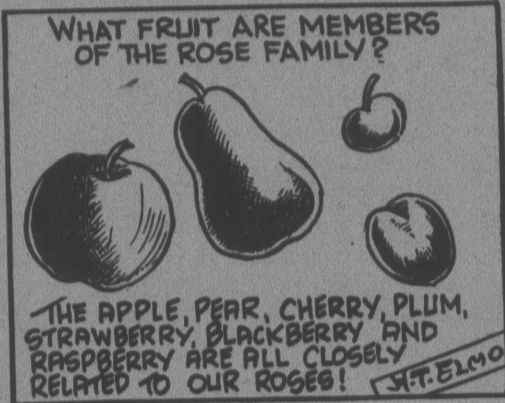

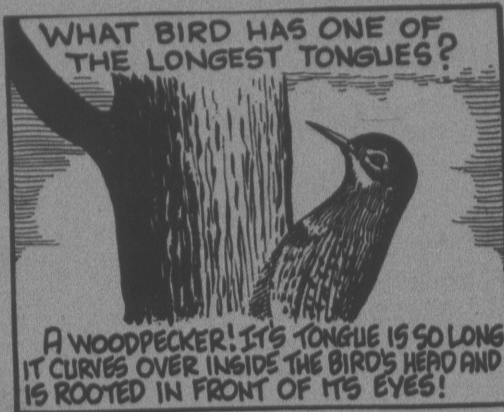

According to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's background paper, the cost of living rose much more rapidly for the poor between August 1971 and December, 1973 a 15.9 percent increase for the poor compared with a 13.4 rise in the general Consumer Price Index.

A key factor in the greater impact of inflation on the poor is the larger proportion of income spent on food and housing, two areas where prices have risen most rapidly.

Mrs. Johnnie Tillmon, executive director of the National Welfare Rights Organization, called on Congress to enact cost-of-living increases for welfare recipients and improved unemployment insurance.

Former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Wilbur Cohen, now president-elect of the American Public Welfare Association urged that $2.5 billion a year be made available to help the poor through direct Federal programs by eliminating Federal revenue sharing for the states, but not local governments.

Army Reserve's Black Generals

Success breeds success. That old dictum is well illustrated by two Army Reserve black generals, Benjamin Hunton, 55, and John King, 53. Both men are PhD's and have highly rewarding civilian and military careers. Their Army Reserve skills have aided them in their full-time jobs and vice versa.

Major General Hunton, the first black general in any military reserve component, commands 7,600 Reservists in the 97th Army Reserve Command, which includes Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Washington, D.C. and sections of West Virginia. In civilian life, he's Assistant Education and Training Director for the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

Brigadier General King is the first layman and first black president of the policy making body of the United Methodist Church. And he is also president of Huston-Tillotson College, Austin, Texas. In the Army Reserve, he's assigned to the Pentagon as minority affairs officer.

He advises young blacks to take advantage of the Army Reserve's education and skill training. Besides training, Army Reservists can earn at least $1,000 annually, can shop at PX's (at specified times) and are eligible to buy $20,000 worth of low cost group life insurance.

Army Reservists can look forward to pay increases with promotions and increased responsibility. For more information, contact the Army Reserve Center nearest you or write Army Reserve Opportunities, Box 6834, Philadelphia, Pa. 19132.

Georgia's Bond hopes to play vital role in '76 elections

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Julian Bond claims that the Democratic party is in turmoil and says that if he does not win the party's presidential nomination in 1976 he hopes at least to have bargaining power to influence the naming of a standard bearer.

"I don't think you can run without being serious about it," the black politician said in an interview of his aspirations for the presidency.

HOWEVER, BOND, at 34, an urbane, articulate legislator and professional lecturer, also is a political realist.

Asked what he will have accomplished if he runs for the nomination and does not win, he replied:

"If everything goes the way I would hope it goes, I would arrive at the Democratic convention in '76 with a sizeable bloc of the delegates pledged to me.

"And let's say the candidates are Jimmy Carter (Georgia's governor), Scoop Jackson, Teddy Kennedy, George Wallace. I would say to them — all of them — I have a set of principles here and they're not abstract, they're very real and very concrete.

"AND IF YOU WANT these delegates, you must agree to this set of principles and whichever one of you does can have these votes."

He defined the principles as the same 30-odd proposals the black congressional caucus made to President Nixon in 1971.

Bond said he would want a pledge that the candidate would work for higher black education, "do certain things in foreign policy toward black Africa and insure that the war on poverty not only continues but is strengthened...."

HE SAID BLACKS have had no consistent way to exert pressure on the national party apparatus.

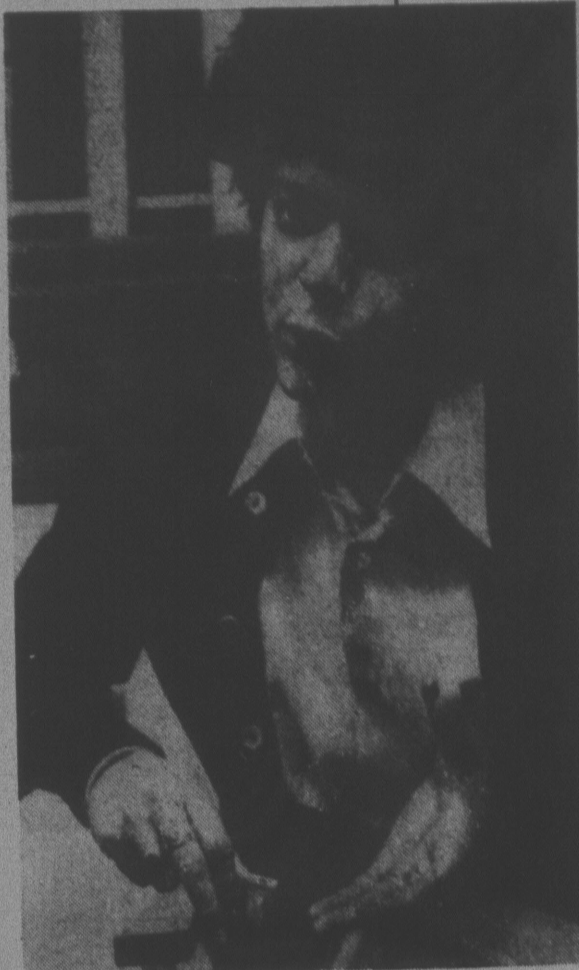

He said that in 1972 there should have been several black presidential contenders, all running as favorite sons or daughters.

"Then, each might have come to the convention with more delegates from their home state than they got over the nation," he added. "And they would have put those delegate votes together and used them in cohesive fashion, they could have bargained...."

Bond is credited with playing a major role in getting black voters in Georgia to support George Busbee for the Democratic nomination for governor. Busbee recently overwhelmingly defeated segregationist Lester Maddox.

AFTER HIS VICTORY, Busbee claimed it was the end of racist politics in Georgia. But Bond says, "I'm not as confident as that...."

He adds, "It's the last hurrah for the overt racism he (Maddox) represented. But racism is going to be an issue in American politics as long as there are racists."

Georgia Democratic Rep. Julian Bond

Reading program gets grant

CEDAR FALLS—The division of reading in the University of Northern Iowa Department of Curriculum and Instruction has received a grant from the National Right to Read Program to develop procedures in instructional materials for its program in reading education.

A total of $34,728 has been granted for the first year of the two-year project. The greatest modifications in the current UNI program will probably be made in the study of children's development in all areas of language skill, and the relations between this development and the reading process, according to Dr. Ned Ratekin, UNI professor of education and project director.

During the first year the project staff will identify skills needed by graduates in their teaching of reading and language arts, evaluate the current program for omissions and redundancies and prepare materials and programs to more effectively develop skills.

During the second year of the project the new materials and procedures will be experimentally introduced into the current reading and language arts program. A system of field experiences in reading for all elementary education majors will be organized.

Project staff members are: Dr. Max Hosier and Dr. Julia Sparrow, both professors of education and Dr. Jeanne Harms, associate professor of education.

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

The Bee-Hive your 4th ward Council office and the American Friends Service Committee co-sponsored a rally at Sullivan Park.

Mr. Gorgan Allen, Defense Attorney for Civil Liberties Union hosted a very interesting discussion.

The whole rally itself was based on a small booklet entitled RIGHTS AND REALITIES.

This book was made available through the American Friends Service Committee, and a few are on hand at the Bee-Hive if you are interested in reading one.

Some of the main issues discussed were:

1. What rights do you have during a police search?
2. On what grounds is it legal for a policeman to enter?
3. What are citizens rights if he has a complaint against arrest procedure?
4. etc.

Important points to remember are; ALWAYS LET YOUR LAWYER DO THE TALKING AND IN ANY CONFRONTATION WITH THE POLICE YOU ARE AHEAD IF THERE IS A WITNESS.

Mr. Peter Middleton candidate for State Legislature emphasized the importance of Legislative change which would be beneficial to individuals under arrest or being charged.

There was a high level of interest among the people who attended and future sessions will be planned.

Dr. Parker, Culture of the Ghetto class were among those who attended.

CHENAULT SENTENCED TO DIE

Marcus W. Chenault has received the death sentence for the murders of Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr., and a church deacon at the Ebenezer Baptist Church last June.

Judge Alverson set Nov. 8 as the execution date for the 23 year old black college student from Dayton Ohio.

My name is Servant Jacob I was ordered here by my God, my Father and my master," Chenault said grinning after the sentence was pronounced.

As the death sentence was read, Chenault blew kisses at the court. His mother Mrs. Marcus Chenault who sat in the front row of the crowded courtroom burst into tears.

The jury, which included four blacks, found him guilty after little more than an hour of deliberations, before convicting him of the shooting death of Mrs. King 70, and deacon Edward Boykin, 69.

Chenault received two death sentences and was also sentenced to 10 years in prison for the wounding of a woman member of the congregation.

Chenault's court-appointed attorney, Randy Bacote said the sentences would be appealed.

On June 29, 1972 the Supreme Court ruled that the death penalty was unconstitutional because it had been applied unevenly. Since then, 28 states have passed new capital punishment laws.

A 1973 revision of Georgia law permits the death penalty when certain "aggravating circumstances" are part of a crime SUCH AS MURDER FOR HIRE, prior record of a capital felony or a slaying that is 'outrageously or want only vile, horrible or inhuman.

Pressing for the sentence of death, District Attorney Lewis Slaton told the jurors: "This society cannot afford the defendant. Send him to prison. What will happen if he gets a knife or a gun? He'll kill again.

Ladies and gentlemen, he has tasted blood and he'll want more and more," Slaton said.

Chenault contended that he was innocent by reason of insanity. But Slaton said Chenault was not insane, "but cunning. He's putting on an act," Slaton said of Chenault's courtroom antics during the trial.

S.C.L.C. ends disappointing 17th convention

PHILADELPHIA -- (NBNS) -- The Southern Christian Leadership Conference has ended its 17th convention--and its first in a northern city--after a disappointingly small turnout of delegates. The S.C.L.C. Leaders has forecast an attendance of more than 2,000 But only 300 turned up for the annual banquet, which was transferred from the Sheraton's main ballroom to a west Philadelphia church after advance sales totalled only 16. Attendance at convention workshops was usually less than 100 persons, and a final march and rally at Independence Hall, where the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy was to deliver a "black declaration of independence," was cancelled.

Dr. Abernathy attributed the small turnout to the fact that "times have changed."

"People are complacent now," he said, "and things have to get worse before they get arouses."

Some former supports of the S.-C.L.C., he said, are benefiting from the progress made under the leadership of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and are fearful of losing those gains. Others, he added, "feel they've got little during the decade of civil rights struggle and have given u."

"But they ought not to forget the bridge Martin crossed," he declared. "Black American owes it to Martin to keep his dream alive."

Dr. Abernathy acknowledged the financial difficulties of the S.C.L.C. BUT SAID THE ORGANIZATION IS OUT OF THE RED.

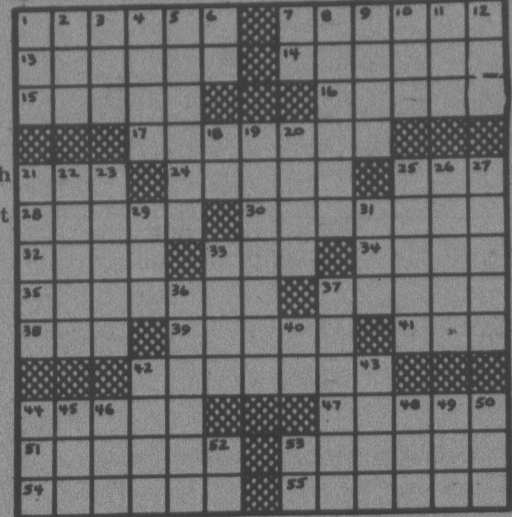

"We have been in existence for 17 years and have been broke 18," he said.

Answer to Puzzle

Near Redfield, Iowa we're storing natural gas deep underground. During the summer and fall we pump the gas 3,000 feet below the surface, under dome-like rock formations. The rock below the dome is porous and holds gas like a sponge.

When the cold of winter comes and the demand for gas increases, we pump it back up into our pipeline for delivery to your home.

On the coldest days, over 12% of the natural gas throughout our pipeline system comes from the underground storage facility at Redfield. Enough gas to supply approximately 230,000 residential consumers.

Why Redfield? It's one of the few areas with the right kind of rock formations for underground storage. And it's close to our main pipeline so we can get gas to you quickly in the winter when it's needed most.

Meanwhile, 3,000 feet above our energy warehouse, the cattle graze contentedly and the corn grows tall.

Developing underground storage is just one of the things Northern is doing, and will continue to do, to keep that clean, efficient blue flame burning at your house. For heating, water heating, clothes drying and cooking.

The pipeline serving natural gas to your local gas company
