

June 8, 1953

Mr. W. L. McAtee,
Division of Food Habits Research,
U. S. Biological Research,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. McAtee:

While in Washington two or three years ago I seem to recall that one of your men was working on hair of small mammals. Did he ever follow this up further, and if so has he published material on this topic which would be of utility to us here at the College in carrying on our analyses of predator pellets and stomachs? We have also a vast accumulation of fox fecal material from dens, all of which we hope to run through within the next few months.

Bennett, whom you met here, is particularly interested in this sort of thing, and if you could send us any literature or directions that would help him, such would be greatly appreciate.

Very truly yours,

PLE:EB

Paul L. Errington,
Asst. Prof. Wild
Life Research