

Ruthven, Iowa
September 9, 1933

Mr. Aldo Leopold
Old Soils Building,
University of Wisconsin,
Madison, Wisconsin.

Dear Mr. Leopold:

I just received your letter relative to my 1931-32 Wisconsin quail data. This material is incorporated in "Wintering of the Wisconsin bobwhite", published in the April issue of the transactions of the Wisconsin Academy of Science.

I have been intending to go to Madison for some time, but have been putting off the trip until your return from the south-west. I was about to write you asking when you planned to be back. I am, then, expecting to arrive at Madison about the middle of the week. In the event of your absence, please notify me promptly at Ruthven.

The research this summer, I think, has gone very well, and there are a vast number of things which I would like to talk over with you. I have also ready for criticism my manuscript, "Environmental pressure upon bobwhite populations", which I think really is something. I'll bring the manuscript and also some new reprints with me to Madison.

Very truly yours,

Paul L. Errington
Assistant Professor,
In Charge, Wild Life Research.