Dear Mr. Storer:

I read with particular interest your "Factors Influencing Wild Life in California" in Ecology for October. Your idea of a possible mineral depletion on livestock ranges is a brand new one and, I think, very significant.

I am sending copies of this note to Stoddard, Errington, and Grange, just to make sure they do not miss your very suggestive sketch of this possibility.

In the event you have any reprints of your paper, I would very much appreciate receiving one, or, if possible, two.

Yours sincerely,

ALDO LEOPOLD
