Dear Paul:

I had already written Darling before receiving your letter of October 3.

I think you and I both appreciate the action of the station in filling in the gap without saying anything about it.

I can see, of course, that you cannot carry Gastrow and I will at least see what can be done under FERA, although I am dubious of the possibility. I know these people pretty well, though, and it is worth trying.
If it can be done at all, I think the $150 can be arranged.

My own budget is already running a deficit, so that carrying him out of University funds is an impossibility.
I shall have to scramble considerably to carry the students
I have already taken on.

Yours sincerely,

Aldo
