Dear Paul:

As you surmised, I have had difficulty in getting around to your paper in time to do it justice. Upon re-reading it, I dropped the idea of giving a summary of my own, but I have roughly abbreviated the paper as it stands and enclose a copy. In case you think I have altered the sense too much for even verbal presentation, please wire me at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York. If I do not hear from you, I will assume I have your permission to present it verbally as is.

For the Transactions you could then revise it as seems best to you, and I will ask Seth Gordon to await your revision and let you know what the deadline is.

The rough draft enclosed does not include the references.

My present opinion of the paper is somewhat more favorable than when we talked, but I still think it would gain by greater simplicity of wording. The parts which I have revised attempt to do this, although possibly at some sacrifice of details.

I return the scratch copy in accordance with your request.

Yours sincerely,

Aldo Leopold
