Gentlemen:

The Midwest Fish and Game Conference is scheduled for here in November. Before proceeding with arrangements, I'd like your personal opinion on the following:

- (1) The National Wildlife Conference is to be out here every other year (as at St. Louis this year). Does this do away with the need for a separate annual midwest conference? Would your crowd prefer an extra day at the national conference for midwest problems?
- (2) The Wildlife Society has been organized since the last Midwest Conference was held. If the Midwest Conference is to continue, should it become a sectional meeting of the Society?

Yours sincerely,

Aldo Leopold
Professor of Game Management
