Dear Paul:

I am, of course, much interested in John Baker's letter to you of November 11. If you care to give me the general direction of your reply, I will be awfully glad to know of it.

Should you not be interested in the thing personally, it strikes me that a picked youngster working under your general direction might be advantageous. The question, of course, is what youngster can be spared from military duty.

With best regards,

Aldo
