Dear Dr. Halimi

On the afternoon of December 31, 1976, I saw a huge flock of Canada Geese flying from north to south at the usual height. It was late afternoon with bright sunshine; I was able to see the coloring of the breast feathers quite clearly. They were flying in a wavering line, sometimes several deep, which stretched at least an eighth of a mile. I remember & estimate 750 birds; there may have been more or less. They passed so quickly I did not have time to count; moreover it would have been hindered by my surprise.

I hope other birders see this flight.

Yours truly

Thyler M Burb
