The warbler and shorebird migration highlights the week's sightings.

In the southeast in Des Moines County, a large heron roost is on an island in the Mississippi River just north of the hiway 34 bridge at Burlington. On the 29th, hundreds of GREAT EGRETS and CATTLE EGRETS, fifty LITTLE BLUE HERONS, and four SNOWY EGRETS were seen by scoping the area from 5:30 PM until dark. Earlier in the week, an immature YELLOW-CROWNED NIGHT HERON was spotted there. At the Casey-Barrow Access ten miles north of Burlington, a WILLET was seen on the 29th. For more information on any of these birds, call Chuck Fuller at (319)753-0710. In Lee County at the Croton Unit of Shimek State Forest, sixteen warbler and five vireo species were seen on the 28th, and included CANADA and BAY-BREASTED WARBLERS, and WHITE-EYED VIREO. In Louisa County, a BUFF-BREASTED SANDPIPER was in a muddy field reached by going south of Conesville on hiway 70 for one mile, and then west on 260th Street for a half mile, on the 29th, and four RED-BREASTED NUTHATCHES were observed at the Big Sand Mound Nature Day on the 28th. In Johnson County, eleven warbler species, including GOLDEN-WINGED, BAY-BREASTED, and a singing HOODED were at Hickory Hill Park in Iowa City on the 28th. The HOODED was in the area just adjacent to Oakland Cemetery.

In the central in Marshall County, thirteen warbler species, including GOLDEN-WINGED, CANADA, and MOURNING were at Grammer Grove Park, where there were also YELLOW-BELLIED and OLIVE-SIDED FLYCATCHERS on the 28th.

In the northwest in Ida County, eleven warblers including MOURNING, as well as a YELLOW-BELLIED FLYCATCHER, were seen on the 28th.
